Revolutionaries attack embassy

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — An armed band of professed anti-communist revolutionaries burst into the Polish Embassy here yesterday and were holding off police with a threat to "blow this shack away and everyone in it" unless martial law is lifted in their homeland.

Their leader, who identified himself only as Col. Wysocki of the "Polish Revolutionary Home Army," told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that his group was heavily armed and was holding 13 "diplomatic personnel" hostage.

He said they had 55 pounds of dynamite and would blow up the embassy, with themselves in it, if the Polish government does not meet their demands within 48 hours, or midmorning tomorrow.

Wysocki refused to say how many people were in his group. A police official said, "According to our information, there are about three suspected terrorists."

Their demands also included release of "political prisoners" and an "end to repression" in Poland, where authorities still are holding 650 of the thousands of Solidarity supporters interned when martial law was declared last Dec. 13.

There have been anti-government protests in Poland since then, and unrest swept the nation last week on the second anniversary of Solidarity's founding. But the embassy takeover was believed to be the first terrorist attack on foreign soil against the martial law regime.

Wysocki, who claimed to be a descendant of two 19th century Polish rebels, said the group was not connected with the suspended Polish labor union Solidarity. Swiss authorities and Solidarity spokesmen elsewhere in Europe said they had never heard of the "army."

The Polish Foreign Ministry refused to comment on the gunmen's demands, saying only that the Bern embassy was seized and that its chief diplomatic officer, Charge d'Affaires Stanislaw R. Dobrowolski, was in Poland on vacation.

tacted by telephone said there were "eight or nine" hostages.

Police sealed off the area around the embassy, located on a tree-lined street in the normally quiet sector of Switzerland's federal capital, soon after the gunmen forced their way in about 10 a.m.

Wysocki said "warning shots" were fired in the attack, but there were no injuries and "the mood is calm, with no panic." He said the attackers are armed with "heavy machine guns."

Informed sources in Warsaw said the government may ask Swiss authorities to contact the gunmen in its behalf, but the report could not be confirmed.

Swiss police spokesman Daniel Eckmann said a federal crisis team had been assembled to deal with the takeover.

First meeting

Student Senate discusses Senior Bar alternatives

By DAN KOPP
Staff Reporter

A plan to hold weekly non-alcoholic events at the Alumnae-Senior Club was revealed at the first Student Senate meeting last night.

"In the future, Sunday nights from 7 to 10 p.m. will be reserved for undergraduates," said Student Body President Lloyd Burke. Food and soft-drinks will be served and some live musical events will probably be planned.

Burke also reported that Chataqua, which had been subsidized by the University, will no longer receive such funds. "It's up to us to pick up the ball and run with it — if we want to," he said. The Student Union will support the entertainment center if the student government decides it is worthwhile.

In other business, Student Body

Vice President Bob Yonchak announced his project of a "job bank." He plans to contact local merchants and give them a chance to publish South. Also at the meeting last night, Student Body Treasurer John Eichenlaub called attention to a five dollar increase in the student activities fee. This gives the student government an additional $35,000 to allocate to clubs and organizations.

Finally, Judicial Coordinator Kevin Stierer proposed twelve faculty and staff members to comprise the Judicial Review Board. This board accepts and judges student appeals of decisions by the Dean of Students.

"It's not used very much," Stierer said. "It's probably only been used four or five times in the last four years. It's still very important, however."

Stierer chose the twelve from twenty-four nominated by the Faculty Senate. "We were looking for people with a 'pro-student' attitude," he explained. Next, the appointments must be approved by University President Father Theodore Hesburgh before they are official.

Stierer nominated and the Senate accepted Juanita Cleveland, Donald Dedrick, Sister Jean Lenz, Louis Cohen, Thomas Kirshner, Fred Baumer, and Professors David Dodge, Ethan Haimo, Katherine Blackstead, Stephen Hayes, Karl Kronstein, and Larry Ballinger.

Eating disorder

Bulimia prevalent among women

By JOHN SPENDLEY
News Staff

Psychologists say an eating disorder similar to anorexia nervosa is becoming a serious concern for college-age women.

Bulimia, more prevalent among young females, is an illness that is characterized by a binge-purge cycle which serves as a way for people to cope with various social problems.

Psychologist Dan Rybicki said women who have trouble dealing with the changing role of females in today's society may develop bulimia.

Rybicki, a psychologist for the Notre Dame Psychological Services Center, said some studies reveal that over 15 percent of college females may suffer from this disorder.

Bulimia should not be confused with Anorexia Nervosa, another more commonly known (but not more commonly occurring), eating disorder.

Rybicki said the anorexic sees food as evil and has a fear of being fat. "Regardless of her weight, she always views herself as being fat," he said.

Characteristics of Bulimia include food obsession, bingeing, vomiting, and self-starvation or purging to achieve severe weight loss or maintain normal weight.

Rybicki said the bulimic loves food and can go on binges for up to two hours. "These binges, which usually occur daily, consist of a rapid intake of high caloric foods."

When on a binge the bulimic enters somewhat of an "altered consciousness," Rybicki says, and this serves as a way to phase out the rest of the world.

'Regardless of her weight, she always views herself as being fat. ...'

He compares this bingeing to the drinking of an alcoholic.

When not on a binge, the bulimic abstains from eating — which means that the food intake of a bulimic consists only of the junk food eaten on the binges.

This results in severe nutrition problems which can be fatal.

Many theories have developed to explain the cause of Bulimia.

One theory suggests that in early childhood the bulimic was sheltered and not able to have an open expression of emotion.

But research is still in early stages and the causes remain uncertain.

Rybicki is certain of one thing — the bulimic has little chance of getting better on her own.

He says that the bulimic must realize the problem and seek out help somewhat like an alcoholic must do to cure himself of alcoholism.

One way to get help is to participate in a therapy group.

Rybicki is forming therapy sessions through the Notre Dame Psychological Services Center.

It will be 10 week program starting September 13 and will meet for 10 successive Monday nights from 5-9 p.m.

Dinner will be included in the program to help teach better nutrition.

Other features of the program include guest nutrition speakers and stress management and depression therapy.

Participation in the program is limited and to reserve a slot Dr. Rybicki should be contacted at 239-7336.

A lagging economy and rising interest rates have plunged Indiana's private aviation industry into a tailspin, pilots say. "Things are definitely slow in our industry," said Mick Pittard, owner of Indianapolis Aviation Inc. "Those not in aviation don't realize the scope and size of our problems. But we are one of the largest industries that has been hit by the economy." Except for military aircraft and scheduled airlines, private aviation operators handle everything from crop dusters and traffic helicopters to small intercontinental jets. Recently, however, small planes have kept the industry alive. But operators now say the recession has left them with large inventories and rising debts at a time when the demand for private aviation services is dropping in every area except corporate aviation. And spokesmen for the Washington-based National Air Transportation Association say they're worried that the economy will force a fourth of their 1,000 members out of business this year. — AP

Students bussed from predominantly black urban schools to mostly white suburban schools in Indianapolis for the last year say they're getting a good education but don't feel a part of the social mainstream, a study shows. "Overall, all the kids felt pretty good about school academically," said Indiana University psychology professor Robert Wolf, who conducted a survey the Indiana Center for Evaluation made for the state. But the students "segregate in halls, the lunchrooms and whenever possible," he added. Wolf directed a team of researchers in the study, which involved responses to 83 questions by 4,879 students at the end of the 1982 school year. Both black and white students were polled. — AP

A salvage boat skipper who has been charged with disturbing the wreckage of a boat that sank in Lake Michigan 71 years ago says he was on a vacation — not looking for sunken treasure. Joe Walsh, 27, owner of the two barges and tugboat involved, says he did not knowingly disturb a historic site when he and his four-man crew salvaged items from the wooden cargo boat J.D. Marshall. "We'd be out of our minds to go out there if we knew it was illegal," said Walsh, who is from Holland, Mich. Officials of the Department of Natural Resources say charges of "unauthorized alteration of historical property" have been filed against Walsh and his crew, Don Fischer, 25, Charles Van Alsbury, 22, Steve Streur, 22, and Randy Nieusma, 29. All are from Holland, Mich. The charges were filed late last week. DNR officials could not be reached yesterday for additional comment. — AP

Former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. will go back to work for United Technologies Corp. as a part-time consultant and chairman of its new international advisory committee, the corporation announced yesterday. Haig, 57, was president and chief operating officer of UTC for one year immediately before becoming secretary of state under President Reagan in January 1981. He resigned two months ago after feuding steadily with other administration officials. Haig will help select other members of the advisory committee, whose size has not yet been determined, according to Frank Giusti, a public relations spokesman for UTC, which has headquarters in Hartford. "The committee will organize and conduct a program in the development of assessments of social, political and economic trends in all areas of the world," Giusti said. — AP

The United States has 50 percent more nuclear weapons than the Soviet Union, despite President Reagan's assertion that the Russians have the upper hand, a liberal-oriented defense group asserted yesterday. The United States has stockpiles of about 12,000 atomic warheads, compared to about 8,000 for the Soviets, said the Center for Defense Information, a private, non-profit group which has in the past criticized defense spending increases. Reagan has proposed a $215.9 billion Pentagon spending plan for the new fiscal 1983 budget year starting Oct. 1 — a peacetime record 15.9 percent jump in outlays. He said U.S. defenses must be modernized to compete with the Soviets. Replying to a question during a nationally broadcast news conference last March 31, Reagan said, "The truth of the matter is that on balance the Soviet Union does have a definite margin of superiority, enough so that there is a risk and there is what I have called, as you all know, several times, a window of vulnerability." That statement renewed a longstanding debate about the relative strength of U.S. and Soviet nuclear forces. — AP

Defense Minister Ariel Sharon demanded yesterday that Lebanon sign a peace treaty with Israel, suggesting that if it does not Israel will maintain permanent control over southern Lebanon. Sharon said that if the new Lebanese government of Christian President-elect Bashir Gemayel refuses to sign a treaty, southern Lebanon will have "a different status." He said that without a peace pact, "we will secure a 40-50 kilometer (25-30 mile) wide security strip to keep it clear of artillery pieces and a threat of terrorist activity." He made the remarks to a cheering crowd in the Israeli border town of Kiryat Shmonah, which made him an honorary citizen because of Israel's June 6 invasion of Lebanon that ended Palestinian guerrilla attacks along the frontier. The had-line Sharon put forth his treaty demand as reports in Tel Aviv indicated disagreement among Israeli leaders over how hard to press Gerayal for a peace pact. — AP

Former first lady Bess Truman, hospitalized in Kansas City, Mo., with an ulcer, developed a slight fever yesterday but remained in fair condition, her physician said. "She didn't sleep too well," said Dr. Wallace Graham, the family's longtime doctor. "However, I'm not overly concerned. Her temperature is slightly elevated but there's no cause for alarm." Graham said the 97-year-old widow of President Harry S. Truman remained alert, and that her pulse was strong and regular. He said her age required a continual watch of all clinical signs. As she has during previous hospitalizations, Truman has been receiving one yellow rose a day from an anonymous well-wisher, a hospital spokeswoman said. — AP

Beware of the boneheads

Bonehead, adj. having a calcified cranium; devoid of grey matter; moronically mindless; syn. fool, dolt, noddie, administrator.

They are everywhere, you can't escape them. Those people who by their very nature, conspire to complicate and confuse your life. These are "the boneheads." You don't know when they are going to strike. In fact, you can't always identify them, for they hide behind masks of competency, ready to pounce on the unsuspecting.

Attending college introduces a person to minions of boneheads. In fact, college is worthwhile if for no other reason than it prepares a person for the frustrations of later life. Here at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, a well developed course in Boneheadism 101 is offered unofficially to all.

Many people would consider the maid who ignores their 'Do Not Disturb' sign and empties the trash at eight in the morning, or the dining hall worker who, despite one's pleas to the contrary, sends your entree adrift in gravy, as examples of boneheadism. However, these are simply examples of people trying their best at a job that brings them into contact with students who are often boneheads themselves. The true bonehead does not waste his time on such trivia. He seeks to cause the maximum annoyance to the most people, using logic that defies reason.

Here at Notre Dame, the art of boneheadism has been perfected. However, identifying true boneheads is not always easy. Oftentimes, ulterior motives are hidden behind a facade of inanity. A good example occurred a few years ago: a serious overcrowding problem existed on campus, and some method was needed to encourage students to live off-campus. The solution was to propose a lottery that would randomly send students packing. The rules for this system were so inane that many students voluntarily fled off-campus rather than become a lottery victim. Thus, what was seemingly a bonehead move, actually accomplished its purpose.

Another example of false boneheadism involves the Snite Gallery. Many people have questioned the logic of spending money on frivolous structures such as the Snite, when more important buildings like the Dome and many of the dorms are in such sorry states. Once again, a veil of boneheadism hides cold logic. Alumni, whose contributions pay most of the bills, come to campus and are dazzled by structures like the Snite Gallery. However, when visiting their old dorm room they are greeted by a cockroach, or worse are beamed by falling plaster in the Dome. Suddenly, this affluent individual who is impressed by the great strides of the University, is driven to donate more money to help fix up the older buildings. If this alum were to visit campus and see only immaculate buildings, he probably wouldn't feel so fiscally compelled.

Ryan Ver Berkmoes
Managing Editor

Inside Tuesday

And of course no one can question the logic of the N.D. mound that greets campus visitors. What better thing could be found for drunken fans to drive over after the Michigan game?

These are examples of false boneheadism. However you don't have to look far to find the real thing: take the people responsible for the Fitzpatrick Hall of Engineering. Since the structure's lavish dedication a couple of years ago, the building has been plagued by leaks, nameplates on doors didn't even stay up long enough for the glue to dry, and classrooms are bisected by massive pillars. The casual observer can identify one failure after another, all to the tune of several million dollars.

Examining the schedule of fines for violating campus traffic rules, a unique set of priorities becomes apparent. Speeding on campus can result in a ten dollar fine, the same holds for driving down a sidewalk or lawn. Offenders can also opt for a package deal that combines three or more charges under the charge of reckless driving. This charge is a bargain at 25 dollars. However should the hapless person commit the mortal sin of not displaying a parking sticker, the fine is fifty dollars. Thus the wise violator will attempt to mow down students rather than risk paying twice the fine for being stickerless.

Students have no reason to be smug. Many are merely fools waiting to mature into full-fledged boneheads. Take the individual who complains about how rotten the "townies" are, how they don't appreciate Notre Dame, and then proceeds to get drunk at the bars and relieve himself on some local's yard. Or the nag who thinks student government is worthless, but never bothers to vote, or attempt any constructive involvement.

So the sad reality is that the boneheads are everywhere. In fact to some extent we all contribute to the problem. There is hope. First off, each one of us must avoid joining the ranks of the boneheads. Take that extra moment to consider your actions. Are they the best for all involved? Secondly, the forces of foolishness only win when you let them. Speak up, get involved, don't just idly sit by and be victimized. Remember, if you give in to the boneheads, you become one yourself.

Amid unemployment

Labor parades revived in cities

(AP) — Three cities revived the traditional workers' parade yesterday and unions blamed President Reagan for the worst unemployment in 40 years as Americans celebrated or mourned the state of organized labor on the 100th anniversary of the first Labor Day.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland told a crowd in Texas that the Reagan administration "knows the price of everything in dollars and the value of nothing on the scale of humanity."

But Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said in a television interview that Reagan was sensitive to "the ills of unemployment," and he predicted the jobless rate, which stood at 9.8 percent of the labor force in July and August, would begin to drop in the fall.

Budget showdown imminent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns from its Labor Day recess this week facing seemingly heavy odds against overriding President Reagan's veto of a $14 billion supplemental appropriations bill.

Although White House spokesmen say they anticipate "an uphill battle" in getting Congress to sustain the Aug. 28 veto, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., acknowledges getting the necessary two-thirds vote in both chambers will be tough.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., has said Reagan will win this newest budgetary showdown with Congress.

A house override vote could take place as early as tomorrow. If the House sustains the veto, the matter will not reach the Senate since both chambers must vote to override.

Caught in the middle are some 19,000 Internal Revenue Service workers, who face midweek layoffs unless there's a quick resolution of the money quarrel or an internal agency transfer of funds, which requires written authorization by the heads of the congressional budget panels.

Tens of thousands of others in the federal work force, at such agencies as the departments of Labor and Health and Human Services and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, could be forced to take unpaid leave time by Sept. 15 unless the impasse is resolved.

The appropriations bill, among other things, would have provided money to meet payrolls through the remainder of the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

The problem stems in part from the fact Congress approved a pay raise for the 2.1 million federal civilian work force last Oct. 1, but did not provide enough money to meet payrolls under the higher scale through the end of the current budget year.

Burly iron workers and high school bands marched in Indianapolis in the city's first Labor Day parade in 40 years. "In the past we may have concentrated too much on baseball games, picnics and fishing trips," said Loran Robbins, head of the largest Teamsters local in the state, which had an 11.1 percent jobless rate in July.

Marchers paraded down Michigan Avenue in Chicago's first Labor Day parade by organized labor in 30 years, and the first Labor Day parade since the 1940s rolled through Denver.

Arizona officers manned roadblocks to catch drunken drivers as the state tried to cut the number of Labor Day weekend road accidents. The nationwide highway death toll had passed 350 yesterday afternoon.

There were the usual rollicking celebrations on the three-day weekend that traditionally means the end of summer: raft regattas on the Missouri and Arkansas rivers and mud stomping in Maine.

And there were somber reminders of unemployment: Parishioners at the A.M.E. Church in Baltimore were asked yesterday to offer jobs instead of money when the offering plates were passed around. Marchers in Racine, Wis., wore black armbands Sunday inscribed with 250,000, which march organizers said is the number of the state's jobless.

About 6,000 teachers were on strike in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Illinois and Ohio, threatening the beginning of school for more than 100,000 students.

"Today there are as many unemployed Americans as there were in 1934," Kirkland said in San Antonio at the unveiling of a statue of union pioneer Samuel Gompers.

Gompers, who helped found the American Federation of Labor in 1886 and died in San Antonio in 1924 at age 74, is memorialized by a 16-foot-tall marble, bronze and oyster-shell statue — surrounded by 12 seven-foot-tall statues of American workers.

Kirkland quoted him as saying in 1914 it is "a false and unwise economy and a lack of statesmanship to retrench public expenditures and improvements when such course means suffering, misery and hunger." Kirkland said President Reagan should read those words.

Arab leaders back Reagan plan

FEZ, Morocco (AP) — Arab kings and presidents met in this ancient religious capital yesterday to discuss a possible joint peace initiative, and an Arab news agency said most of them are tentatively backing President Reagan's recent Middle East proposals.

The Bahrain-based Gulf News Agency, quoting sources at the three-day Arab League summit here, said the leaders have some "minor reservations" about the proposals.

But it said they are expected to form a delegation "to undertake consultations in the United States and Europe about the American plan and about pushing the case forward."

Official Moroccan sources told The Associated Press that the Arabs are especially concerned about Israel's decision Sunday approving new settlements in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip — despite Reagan's call for a freeze on new settlements there.

The officials, who asked not to be named, said Reagan's ability to persuade the Israeli leaders to back away from this decision would test whether he can deliver on the rest of his plan, which has been rejected outright by Israel's Cabinet.

Of the Arab nations, only Egypt has made an official comment on Reagan's proposal last week for a Palestinian-run government on the West Bank and Gaza Strip in close association with Jordan, saying it had "positive points." Egyptians have been ostracized by their fellow Arabs for their peace treaty with Israel and were not invited to Fez.

The other Arab nations are not expected to issue their reactions until after the summit, during which the Palestine Liberation Organization is expected to make its position known.

The summit is a resumption of a meeting last November that was halted because of a boycott by Syrian President Hafez Assad, and the Moroccan officials claimed his presence indicated the most powerful of the Arab hard-liners is at least willing to discuss a possible peace move.

Official Moroccan sources said King Hassan conferred individually Sunday and yesterday with all the Arab heads of state here, including Assad, Fahd, Jordan's King Hussein, Sudan's President Gaafar Mohamed Nimeiri, Somalia's President Siad Barre, and Yasser Arafat.

The PLO chief flew in from Tunis yesterday, and was embraced at the airport by Hassan and other Arab leaders.

The summit is the first toplevel Arab meeting since Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6. Libya is the only Arab nation boycotting the conference.

Accident injures actresses

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Janet Gaynor, the first actress ever to win an Oscar, clung to life yesterday after a car crash that killed one person and seriously injured two others, including Broadway star Mary Martin.

Nursing supervisor Marilyn Potash said the 75-year-old Gaynor was on life-support equipment in the intensive care unit at San Francisco General Hospital.

"Her prognosis is very guarded," said Dr. Frank Lewis, chief of emergency services at the hospital after he performed four hours of surgery on Gaynor.

The surgery was needed to repair a perforated bladder and to stop bleeding near Gaynor's right kidney, said Lewis. She also suffered 11 fractured ribs, a broken collar bone and multiple pelvic fractures.

"She had multiple trauma and has needed nine pints of blood and she's likely to need more," Lewis said. "In a lady her age, the magnitude of her injuries is very critical."

Gaynor won the Academy Award as best actress in 1928, the first year the awards were given, for her role as a waif in "Seventh Heaven," and made numerous films before she retired at the height of her career in 1939.

She, her husband, award-winning producer Paul Gregory, 62, Martin, and Martin's manager, Ben Washer, were going to a Chinatown restaurant Sunday night when their taxi was hit broadside by a van at the corner of California and Franklin streets.

Washer, 76, Martin's long-time business associate and friend, was killed in the crash that sent the mangled cab sideways across California Street into a tree.

Van driver Robert Cato, 36, of San Francisco was taken to the hospital for treatment of minor injuries. When released, he was handcuffed taken to city jail, where he was charged with vehicular manslaughter, felony reckless driving, speeding, felony drunken driving, and running a red light. He was held in lieu of $3,500 bail.

Martin, 68, famous for her role as Nellie Forbush in the Broadway musical "South Pacific" and as Peter Pan on Broadway and television, was in serious condition with a punctured right lung, two fractured right ribs, two pelvic fractures and a bruised kidney, said Potash.

Gregory was in fair condition with broken legs and fractured ribs, Lewis said.

Larry Hagman, Martin's son who plays J.R. Ewing on television's "Dallas," arrived at the hospital early yesterday.

Gaynor and Martin live in Palm Springs, but Martin also has a home in San Francisco which she uses when taping "Over Easy," a Public Broadcasting Service talk show for the elderly of which she is a co-host. Gregory had been in San Francisco for a taping session.

Lewis said she will be hospitalized at least two weeks.

Gregory was in fair condition with broken legs and broken ribs, and probably will be released from the hospital in a week, Lewis said.

Gregory and Martin were "stable, awake and doing well," Lewis said.

Fund explores stock market

By ALEX SZILVAS
B & T Editor

How would you like $30,000 at your fingertips to invest as you please? Sounds like something you may have to wait a few years to think about, right? Well, thanks to the College of Business Administration Advisory Council Investment Fund (CBA-ACIF), the opportunity is just around the corner.

Beginning sometime in mid-September, students participating in the Fund's activities will begin analyzing investment possibilities. This will initiate the long process of determining which securities will comprise the Fund's portfolio for the coming year.

The CBA-ACIF originated with an anonymous donation of $10,000 by a member of the College of Business Administration Advisory Council for the purpose of permitting students to participate in the "market" as a practical supplement to their education in the classroom. The donor felt that students could this way enrich their formal education without taking any personal risk.

According to the Fund's moderator, Professor Paul Conway, the ACIF's portfolio has outperformed the Dow Jones Industrial Average in each year of the Fund's existence. It has achieved performances as outstanding as a 46.3/ value increase in 1981. The value of the Fund has swollen to around $30,000 as of late August.

If you are wondering how the Fund is managed, it works like this. The Fund's co-chairmen (chosen last spring) meet with Conway and outline the investment criteria to be followed this year. This involves determining what percentage of the Fund's sources will be allocated to growth, income, and speculative issues. The objectives for the coming year are also decided—namely which areas have the most potential and deserve exploration. Then at an organizational meeting which will be held in a few weeks, student participants will be organized into research teams of five members. Each participant will be given a stock or stocks to examine. These stocks will either be part of the current investment portfolio or issues which merit purchase consideration.

Participants will be given several weeks to complete their report(s) on the issue(s) assigned to them. These reports will then be turned over to the research team leaders who will discuss them with the co-chairmen at a meeting of the executive committee. This group will then propose specific revisions in the Fund's portfolio.

But don't think that the final decision has been made here. One final meeting is held to discuss the proposed revisions and is open to all participants. So if you think you have a worthy stock which has not been recommended by the executive committee, you still have a final chance to voice your opinion. The final investment decisions are made at this meeting and are then carried out subject to the moderator's approval.

Conway stresses that the decisions are up to the students. As long as they can justify their moves, the students are allowed to determine the Fund's portfolio. Nearly the entire Fund is invested in stocks, but some bonds and money market certificates are also held.

"We want to emphasize," Conway notes, "that participation in the Fund is open to all Notre Dame students. You don't need to be a business major or have much knowledge about investments, just a little interest and desire."

So if you want to help decide how $30,000 will be invested this fall, fill out a CBA-ACIF form by Friday, September 17, and return it to Room 244 Hayes-Healy. After all, when is the next time you will be able to invest that kind of money—and without personal liability!

Chemical warfare research continues

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

The United States officially renounced biological warfare in 1969. But in Frederick, Maryland, in a small corner of the military base where the American germ weapon effort was located, Army scientists are still involved in "medical defensive BW research."

With little public attention, the researchers are trying to discover vaccines or antidotes to any germ weapons that might be used against American troops.

The effort is based in a two-story Army lab in a corner of Fort Detrick, the sprawling base that was once the headquarters of U.S. chemical and biological warfare efforts.

Officials are sensitive about describing their work, which has continued since 1969 when President Nixon renounced American use of biological weapons and ordered the destruction of existing arms. But he said that a defensive effort would continue, to guard against possible germ attacks by an enemy.

"What we're doing is uniquely medical. We're involved in medical defensive research," said Col. Richard Barquist, the doctor who heads the Army Medical Institute of Infectious Diseases.

"We're just trying to use the tools provided by modern biology to come up with better vaccines," he explained. "We'd like to see if we can use to our advantage the technological wave sweeping through biomedical research."

Choosing between the roads to happiness

Already the pains of school have made their debut. You hear sighs and moans. Students trudge about campus till Friday afternoon when happy hours serve as attitude adjustment. There's a moment of peace after you tuck the books away and before you begin hard-core partying. A reverse adjustment takes place in the brunch line at 12:45 on Sunday. This leaves us a mere day and a half of uninterrupted bliss per week. It falls considerably short of the U.S. recommended weekly allowance for happiness.

We cannot neglect such a deficiency. Act on it now! Awareness of vitamins, for instance, has led us to better health standards, more nutritious dining hall menus, and subsequently, a longer life expectancy. But add some quality to that quantity! Remember, a day without happiness is like a lifetime without orange juice.

A Word Or Two

Okay, so you enjoy a drink now and then, but is that drink your ticket to get "away from it all"? Is it all that bad? It is! You picked it, you masochist. You should integrate your studies with your life instead of leaving them in the classroom. You're not going to leave your degree there, are you? Choose a major that matches your ambitions, and run with the whim, instead of against it. Curriculums can tend to be demanding, however, true convictions will weather the storm.

The question remains as to for the job market, or one that suits your creative interests? You shall either be forever inspired, or doomed to drudgery. Some students bridge this gap. They live for today and tomorrow, while those in training go through the motions to someday savor their salary.

Others stuff their brains with knowledge now, to starve on the street later. Bag the budget, but don't sell your soul, for only you can define happiness.

Doing time to punch on a clock is a terminal sentence. You're freed not by the bell, but by harnessing the heart. Walk to your own beat and you'll set the pace for others.

So next time you go to a happy hour, bring your own...

D-6, d-sgusting

A weary traveler winces as he endures yet another ravine in the rugged and rocky terrain. Only a small distance away, a young woman trudges through a seemingly endless path of snow to reach the warmth of shelter. Does this sound like Jack London's "To Build a Fire"? or like a travelogue for a Siberian getaway vacation? Wrong on both counts. This, my friends, is student parking at Notre Dame.

Diane Dirkers

Campus Quips

My freshman year, a friend of mine from Carroll Hall became one of the few, the proud, the student car owners. Little did he know that he would be assigned to lot D-1, across Juniper Road. Twenty minutes of brisk walking got him in the driver's seat. Unless he were planning on a luncheon in Chicago, the endeavor was virtually worthless. Within a week, his stereo was stolen out of his car, at which point benevolent security officials gave him the honor of parking on D-6.

D-6. Everyone hates it, and yet I know of a gentleman in Morrissey that registered his car under a imaginary female name to have the privilege of parking there. (F. B. I. impersonators on the N. D. security staff discovered that appalling scandal, by the way, and slapped the near-felon with a hefty fine.)

D-6 is by far the only lot that is at all convenient for students on South Quad, but only the lucky residents of Lyons, Carroll, and Holy Cross are given the pleasure of parking there.

What pleasure, you ask? The thrill of 4-wheeling! The challenge of crossing "D-6 canyon" without losing all four hubcaps! The ultimate anticipation of how many dents the D-6 rocks have inflicted on your car each time you take it out! And then there's the greatest feat of all — making it up the D-6 mountain in a snowstorm!

The smaller size of D-6 is the reason that its use is limited to the residents of only three dorms. Our friends in Morrissey, Howard, Badin, Walsh, Sorin, Pangborn, Fisher, Dillon, and Alumni must trudge past the stadium to D-2.

Of course, D-6 is expandable. I believe the two lakes we now have on campus are sufficient. Therefore, the swampland that surrounds D-6 could be used to provide at least three times as much parking area than presently exists — which would take care of nearly all of South Quad.

The implications of this proposal, however, will eliminate the innate charm of D-6. A paved parking lot? Why, who would ever want that? Certainly not we D-6 diehards who have come to love the gravel! And I must say that Notre Dame has tried to make things pleasant for us. Just last semester, we all moved our cars off the lots so N.D. Maintenance could snow plow and, best of all, rearrange our precious rocks! The snow job wasn't at all effective, but the repositioning of the gravel was certainly a welcome change of pace.

Our endowment fund has provided the campus with a new chemistry building, lavish renovations of the older dorms, a new senior bar, and a wonderful smoke alarm/fire protection system. If only a few dollars might be directed toward saving the undersides of our cars from the ravages of D-6.

P.O. Box Q Cartoon, article distort holocaust

Dear Editors,

I must express both historical and moral objections to the cartoon by Dennis Ryan and to the article by Randy Fahs on the Observer's editorial page of last Thursday, September 2nd. Ryan's cartoon depicts Menachem Begin threatening to punch a small figure labelled Beirut. The shadow cast shows a Nazi stormtrooper poised to strike a Jew. Fahs' article, less bluntly, views Israel's attack on Beirut and the Palestinians as comparable to the Nazi's killing of the Jews.

The historical flaw in Ryan's and Fahs' Israeli/Nazi comparison lies in their view of the Jewish holocaust. As an act of genocide, it is unparalleled in extent and purpose. If one lists the great human slaughters, the holocaust stands pre-eminent with that stark figure, six million; the number alone should deter casual analogies. Moreover, the Jews died in 1933-1945 not in a struggle over territory, but in a Nazi attempt to "purify" Europe racially.

As much as the holocaust is a unique historical event, it is also a unique moral symbol. For the twentieth century, it stands as the most potent image of man's capacity of evil and as the strongest call for him to do better. Possessed of such powerful meaning, the holocaust cannot and should not fail to have daily mention. Unfortunately, politicians and writers often invoke the holocaust to bolster otherwise weak arguments. Menachem Begin, who should know better, is guiltier of such exploitation than are Ryan and Fahs whose improper use of the holocaust's memory may be ascribed to youthful carelessness.

The point of this letter is not to argue for or against Israel and its actions but to caution against bad historical comparisons, particularly when they distort the historical fact and moral symbolism of an event as important as the holocaust.

See New Jersey first

"Hi, I'm from Joisy; you from Joisy?"
"Yeah, I'm from Joisy. What exit do you live off of?"
"I live off exit 11 on the turnpike, and you?"
"I'm off Exit 140 on the parkway."
"Is that near Newark?"
"No way, I wouldn't live near the armpit of America, although factory row is only two blocks away."

Eleanor Gallo

Tongue In Cheek

Unsuspecting persons who hear this conversation or a similar one usually come to a sudden realization that the people talking are from the misfit state, New Jersey — the place where people's accents are harsh because they inhale pollutants from the innumerable factories, the state that is completely paved and has an uncanny resemblance to a filthy, crumbling metropolis.

Should the opportunity ever arise to live there, do not even consider the idea. A short excursion through Trenton or Newark, or a visit to Rahway State Prison is enough to make a person wonder how he ever dreamed up such an insane thought. Even New Jersey residents cannot bear to stay in their own state, as is exhibited by the large population of New Jersey students attending this university. They really cannot be blamed for being the unfortunate ones to be born in New Jersey.

Most states are probably sympathetic to the plight of the New Jersey residents and would not mind offering refuge to those wise enough to get out. New York City could add quite a few to its population of eight million without anyone noticing. Even with New York City's crime rate and unemployment, New Jersians know that anything is better than being in New Jersey.

Others could be relocated in the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida. Whenever they become homesick, the Jersians could take deep, refreshing breaths of the sulfur-rich swamp air and reminisce about their homestate oil refineries.

Nevada would be a nice state to live in. The deserts must be exactly like the beaches of the Jersey shore, except for the absence of oil spills in an already polluted ocean. So what if Nevada does not border an ocean; any persons who spent their entire lives near the water should be able to easily give it up. Anyone from the Atlantic City area would move to Las Vegas and pretend he is still home.

If some of the hard-nosed New Jersians absolutely could not stand to be away from the ocean, they could make a pilgrimage to California and live on the West Coast. Maybe there is a slight chance that California will slide into the Pacific Ocean, but what is wrong with taking a risk as long as it gets one away from the East Coast?

New Jersians could also slip quietly into Pennsylvania. The only foreseen problem is they might unwittingly slip back since many eastern Pennsylvanians vacation on the Jersey shore. Of course, the New Jersian could travel farther west to Pittsburgh, but that is the same as living in New Jersey, so why bother?

Maybe New Jersey is not such a bad state to live in. All other places considered seem to have a little part of this state in them. New Jersians should be proud that the other states can only be a little bit like theirs. They should be proud they are from New Jersey.

Eleanor Gallo is a biology major from Clark, New Jersey.

Cards 1, Expos 0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joaquin Andujar handcuffed Montreal on five hits and pinch-hitter George Hendrick broke up a scoreless tie with a two-out, ninth-inning single last night to lift St. Louis to a 1-0 triumph over the Montreal Expos that stretched the Cardinals' lead in the National League East to 1 1/2 games.

Hendrick's game-winning single, a bouncer up the middle that scored Ken Oberkfell from second base, came off reliever Woody Fryman, who came on for Expos starter Bill Gullickson, 10-11.

Andujar, 11-10, went the distance, yielding only three hits after the second inning. He walked one and struck out four.

Gullickson, who held St. Louis to four hits through eight innings, retired Tommy Herr on a pop foul to start the ninth. Oberkfell then singled to right but Gullickson got Lonnie Smith to fly out. Keith Hernandez singled, with Oberkfell stopping at second to set up Hendrick's clean single up the middle.

Cubs 4, Phils 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Buckner's double keyed a three-run fifth inning yesterday and the Chicago Cubs hung for a 4-3 victory to maintain their home jinx over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The triumph was the seventh straight over Phillies in Wrigley Field this season and ended a three-game Phillies winning streak.

Pirates 6, Mets 1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Pena lined a three-run homer in the sixth inning to cap a four-run Pittsburgh rally as the Pirates celebrated Willie Stargell Day with a 6-1 victory over the New York Mets yesterday.

Stargell pinch-hit in the eighth and was greeted with a two-minute standing ovation by the crowd of 38,052. He then lined a single to center and was replaced by pinch-runner Rafael Belliard.

Tigers 6, Brewers 5

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tom Brookens hit a home run in the 10th inning to push the Detroit Tigers to a 6-5 win over the Milwaukee Brewers yesterday.

Milt Wilcox, 10-7, yielded ten hits before giving way to Pat Underwood and Aurelio Lopez in the tenth.

Brookens homered off Doc Medich, 10-12, who had no-hit the Tigers through the first six innings.

The Brewers, who blew a sixth-inning 3-0 lead, trailed 5-3 going into the eighth when they tied the score on Ben Oglivie's two-out homer, his 27th, after Cecil Cooper's single.

Orioles 8, Yankees 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Scott McGregor and Sammy Stewart combined on a five-hitter and the Baltimore Orioles set an American League record for pinch-hit homers as they extended their longest winning streak of the season to nine games with a 8-2 victory over the New York Yankees yesterday.

Lenn Sakata drove in three runs for Baltimore, and the Orioles made it a romp in the eighth with four runs, capped by Benny Ayala's fifth homer of the season, a two-run shot, and the 11th this year by a Baltimore pinch hitter.

Mariners 6, Royals 2

SEATTLE (AP) — Floyd Bannister and Ed Vande Berg combined on a three-hitter, Todd Cruz homered and Bruce Bochte drove in a pair of runs as the Seattle Mariners defeated Kansas City 6-2 yesterday, sending the Royals to their third straight loss.

Angels 8, Sox 6

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Juan Beniquez' two-run single and Bob Boone's run-scoring hit keyed a four-run, eighth-inning rally as the California Angels came from behind to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 8-6, yesterday.

Austin advances

Tracy Austin was among those victorious in yesterday's action in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships in Flushing Meadow, N.Y. Austin, the defending champion, easily beat No. 14 Virginia Ruzici to advance to the quarterfinals. Other winners included John McEnroe, Ivan Lendl, Martina Navratilova and Andrea Jaeger. Top seeds advance to quarterfinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champions John McEnroe and Tracy Austin moved into the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships yesterday along with top-seeded Martina Navratilova, while upsets eliminated ninth-seeded Yannick Noah in the men's singles and No. 6 Wendy Turnbull.

Kim Warwick of Australia, who upset seventh-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina in the opening round, shocked Noah 5-7, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 to also advance into the quarters on the hard courts of the National Tennis Center.

Turnbull fell to 18-year-old Gretchen Rush, a wild-card entry who was just graduated from high school in June, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

In a night match, third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia extracted revenge for his loss in the French Open by crushing No. 11 Mats Wilander of Sweden, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

McEnroe easily ousted Matt Doyle 6-3, 6-4, 6-4; Austin romped past No. 14 Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-1, 6-3, and Navratilova breezed by Andrea Leand 6-1, 6-2 in the warm, sunny weather.

Warwick, a 30-year-old righthander, has been hampered for the past two years with tendinitis in his right shoulder. But after dropping the first set, Warwick grabbed the first three games of the second, then served out to even the match.

He broke Noah in the fifth game to even the third set, then won the final three games to pull ahead.

In the final set, Warwick jumped out to a 4-1 lead, lost his serve in the sixth game, then held serve to close out the match.

A two-time winner here, Austin raced past Ruzici in 71 minutes as the Romania committed 15 unforced errors to just seven by Austin.

McEnroe dominated Doyle, a Californian who plays Davis Cup for Ireland because of his parents' heritage. Going for his fourth consecutive U.S. Open title, a feat which has not been accomplished since Bill Tilden in the early 1920s, McEnroe took the opening set by breaking his foe in the fifth game.

The New York left-hander opened the second set by breaking Doyle, then lost his service for the only time in the match. He immediately broke back for a 2-1 lead, then served out the set.

He closed out the two-hour match by breaking Doyle in the ninth game at 15.

"I don't think I played better than I did yesterday (Sunday, when he downed Vince Van Patten 6-3, 6-2, 6-2)," McEnroe said. "My concentration is going to have to be better from now on. You've got to get your mind on the match and don't let things distract you."

Rush enrolled at Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas, the week before the Open started. She advanced to the fourth round by defeating Pam Teeguarden, 11th-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and South African Jennifer Mundel.

Also posting victories yesterday were fourth-seeded Andrea Jaeger, 6-1, 6-1 over No. 13 Kathy Rinaldi; No. 7 Pam Shriver, 6-3, 6-1 over Ros Fairbank of South Africa, and Bonnie Gadusek, 6-0, 6-0 over Elise Burgin.

secured a starting position after gaining experience last season.

Mosley will back up Brown on the weak side and "has really come a long way," according to Coach Johnson.

Notre Dame's depth in the defensive backfield has been enhanced by strong play from two freshmen, Pat Ballage and Dave McGuffy.

Ballage has been noted as a hard worker with good size and speed. "Pat is a very gifted athlete but he's inexperienced and he doesn't quite understand the coverages yet," says Johnson. "But, he's come a long way."

"You hate to play freshmen unless you're forced into it because any inexperienced secondary man is going to make mistakes. This week we're still looking for solid second team people and there is a great opportunity for the younger kids to earn some good backup positions."

Convicted murderer escapes hospital

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP) — A woman dressed in a nurse's uniform pulled out a handgun in an emergency room yesterday and freed a convicted murderer who was being treated for stab wounds.

The inmate, 33-year-old Leroy Chasson, then jumped off his stretcher, grabbed the gun and, still wearing leg shackles, ran outside with the woman to a blue Chevrolet, officials said.

Security guards from Walpole State Prison fired five shots as the car sped off, but no one was believed injured.

A police bulletin was issued for Chasson's wife, 32-year-old Kathleen, because her description fits that of the woman at the hospital and the car is registered to her, according to Trooper Joseph Didick of the Foxboro barracks.

Chasson had been taken to Norwood Hospital about 9:10 a.m. after being treated at the Walpole State Prison infirmary for three puncture wounds in the stomach.

Didick said authorities were considering the possibility the injuries were self-inflicted. "They seem to be superficial wounds," he said.

With Herschel Walker, 'Dogs stop Clemson

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Seventh-ranked Georgia, with only limited play from injured All-American Herschel Walker, used a blocked punt by Dale Carver and two field goals by Kevin Butler to defeat defending national champion Clemson 13-7 last night in the nationally televised college football opener for both teams.

Walker, who suffered a broken right thumb 16 days earlier in a preseason scrimmage, got in for only three plays in the first half, but never touched the ball. The 220-pound junior gained 22 yards on 11 carries in the second half, 10 of them coming on one of his typical rushes when he bounced off several would-be tacklers.

Clemson, No. 11 in the preseason ratings, scored first, taking a 7-0 lead on Homer Jordan's 6-yard quarterback draw midway through the opening period. The touchdown came three plays after William Perry, the Tigers' 310-pound nose-guard, recovered a fumble by Georgia quarterback John Lastinger at his own 11-yard line.

But the usually reliable Jordan, who was intercepted only nine times all last season, was picked off four times by the Bulldogs, with one of them setting up Butler's tie-breaking 39-yard field goal nine seconds before the end of the first half.

The Bulldogs tied the score 7-7 on the third play of the second quarter. Carver blocked a punt by Clemson's Dale Hatcher at the 10-yard line and Stan Dooley outfought two Tigers at the 2 and lunged into the end zone with the ball.

Butler added a 23-yard field goal at 5:40 of the third period and Georgia relied thereafter on its rugged defense as the Bulldogs ended the nation's longest winning streak at 13 games.

Georgia's star tailback Herschel Walker did surprisingly see some action in last night's Bulldog victory over defending national champion Clemson. Walker, who has been bothered by a broken hand for two weeks and wasn't supposed to play until Georgia's fourth game, rushed for 22 yards in limited action as the Bulldogs triumphed, 13-7. See summary at left for more details. (AP Photo)

Women's tennis team makes final cuts

By DONNA WITZLEBEN
Sports Writer

There will be four new faces on the women's tennis team this year and six familiar ones, as final cuts for the 1982-83 squad were made Saturday.

With three members of last year's squad graduating and Linda Hoyer, last year's No. 2 singles player, deciding against trying out, the 16 women at tryouts vied for ten spots on the team.

All of the women competed in a best-out-of-three match, double elimination tournament September 1 thru 4.

Returning for the Irish this year will be junior co-captain and All-American Pam Fishette of Liverpool, N.Y., and fellow co-captain Camille Cooper, a Shreveport, La., native.

Rejoining their teammates also will be sophomores Lisa LaFratta of Richmond, Va., Lisha Gleason from Oak Brook, Ill., Cathy Schnell of Ballwin, Mo., and Laura Lee of Agoura, Calif. Lee is the division II national champion at number five singles and also is an All-American.

The new members of the squad include sophomore Louisa DeMello from Nairobi, Kenya, and three freshmen — Mary Colligan from Fort Wayne, Ind., Greta Roemer of South Bend and Sue Panther of Prairie Village, Kan. Panther, who is ranked 53rd among 18-year-olds by the United States Tennis Association, is Notre Dame's first woman to enroll as a freshman on a tennis scholarship.

"I am very pleased with the tryouts and the talent," said Coach Shyrout Petro. "We have a far better squad than last year's."

Defensive backfield

Johnson hopes changes help

By WILL HARE
Sports Writer

For a defensive unit that ranked 16th nationally against the pass last season, the Notre Dame secondary unit is regarded not like a tiger, but more like a goat.

Three of four starters in the defensive backfield return — only John Krimm is gone — from a team that yielded just 14.5 points per game. Yet, fans seem only to remember the breakdowns in the seconddary that occurred in critical situations and resulted in bitter losses.

Despite the impressive numbers, Irish coaches and fans alike knew changes had to be made.

Presto. Take strong safety Dave Duerson and free safeties Joe Johnson and Rod Bone and switch their positions. Move John Mosley from offense to defense to obtain more depth at the weakside cornerback position. Install an option of the nickel defense to help out in critical situations.

It all sounds so simple.

Duerson, a Street and Smith selection as an honorable mention All-American, has impressed coaches with his smooth transition to free safety.

"We're very happy with the way Duerson went from strong to free," says defensive coordinator and secondary coach Jim Johnson. "It gives us a good centerfielder back there, and it's probably his best position."

As for the strong safety position, Joe Johnson and Rod Bone are known exclusively as hard hitters and seem fit to do more damage at the new position.

"We feel the change will give us a little bit quicker secondary," adds

Coach Johnson. "But, they will be tested right away."

"Both Joe and Rod are such hard hitters," states strongside cornerback Stacey Toran. "Dave (Duerson) is tactful, better suited as a roving safety."

Injuries have plagued Bone's career with the Irish and Johnson apparently has earned the starting spot. "Going into spring ball, Rod Bone was hurt and Joe Johnson came on like gangbusters," says Coach Johnson. "Rod will still be very involved with our nickel defense."

The nickel defense involves the use of a fifth defensive back who is called on in passing situations. "You do it to disguise coverages and to avoid mismatches," adds Coach Johnson.

"More teams we face seem to be opening up their offense. They may stick three wide receivers in there so you compensate by adding the extra defensive back in there. Sometimes, we'll go with six defensive backs also."

Toran, a 6-4, 197-lb. junior, will once again man the strongside cornerback position. On the weakside corner, Chris Brown apparently has

Pozderac sticks, but others cut

It's been a rough summer of NFL training camps for former Notre Dame players, and yesterday the axe fell on three more former Irish stars as teams made their final cuts to reduce to the opening-day limit of 49 players.

But there was one piece of good news for Irish fans. Last year's offensive MVP, Phil Pozderac, made the roster of the Dallas Cowboys. Pozderac, a fifth-round choice at offensive tackle, has been very impressive in the pre-season and his making the Cowboys comes as little surprise.

However, three ex-Notre Dame players did not survive. Mike Kadish, a ten-year NFL veteran who played for ND in the years 1969 thru 1971, was released by the Buffalo Bills. Kadish, a nose tackle, was the Bills' player representative, which may or may not have had anything to do with his being let go.

Also cut yesterday were two members of the 1973 National Championship team that beat Alabama in that memorable Sugar Bowl game. Kicker Bob Thomas, whose 19-yard field goal with 4:26 left lifted the Irish over the Crimson Tide, was waived by the Chicago Bears, with whom he spent eight seasons.

Finally, cornerback Luther Bradley, who played at ND from 1973 to 1977 after sitting out the 1974 season because of a charge of attempted rape of a coed, was released by the Houston Oilers. Bradley, who originally was drafted by the New Orleans Saints, had tried to make the Oilers as a linebacker.
