Leadership conference to include past leaders

By SCOTT BEARBY
Assistant News Editor

The Hall Presidents Council opened their meeting in old form last night, contrary to efforts last year which would have reorganized the body.

The Council heard from Student Body Vice President Duane Lawrence and student government member Bruce Lohman about an upcoming student government leadership conference. The participants will include many alumni who served as student leaders during their college days.

The conference, explained Lawrence, is scheduled to be held throughout the campus on Oct. 11-13.

Over the summer, Lawrence, Lohman, and Student Body President Bill Healy began contacting past student body presidents, judicial coordinators, HPC chairmen, Observer editors, and other leaders in order to see if they would be willing to take part in discussions about student leadership and residence life.

Lohman, who is serving as co-chairman of the conference, said two main topics, residentiality and "avenues of student leadership," will be discussed. The sessions will not be filled with old stories from the alumni, but will help current student leaders on developing concrete proposals for the administration, he added.

Meetings will be held on all parts of the campus and in some residence halls in order to make it more convenient for students to attend. Sessions will be open to any interested students, according to Lohman.

In other business, Dillon Hall President John Husmann asked the hall presidents if their halls would be willing to help reimburse Dillon for an open air concert they financed during Freshmen Orientation.

Husmann said they "may have put the cart before the horse" in holding the concert before asking the halls to help finance the concert, but felt the event benefited the entire campus.

'A ridiculous thing'

That's what Notre Dame Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski called waiting for student football tickets, which he said his department would try to avoid this year. Bobinski, in an article last week, said the new ticket distribution procedure would be "a heckuva lot faster," but juniors, shown here yesterday, and seniors who waited in huge lines Monday would be prone to disagree. Sophomores are eligible to wait for tickets today, and freshmen line up tomorrow.

Law Building addition will contain offices, classrooms, courtroom, more library space

By KATHY CEPERICH
News Staff

The addition to the Notre Dame Law School will expand its facilities by adding a new library wing, a student courtroom and additional classrooms and offices.

The new library space will provide students and faculty with additional research materials.

The present facility is a good working library for teaching efforts, but the new facilities will encourage scholarly production, explained Law School Dean David Link.

The expanded library will enable faculty to do research here that they would otherwise have to do at other institutions, he said. A computer will provide direct access to other libraries, allowing almost limitless research capacity without leaving the campus Link added.

A classroom was designed to replace the old courtroom and the new courtroom will be equipped with some of the most modern courtroom presentation apparatus, such as video machines and other audio-visual equipment. This will allow students to conduct mock trials in preparation for actual court appearance, Link said.

Additional microfilm and videodisc equipment, and a telecommunication system will be added at a later date, Link said.

Construction began this summer and is expected to be completed by July 1, 1986. The addition will copy the Neo-Gothic reproduction architecture of the existing structure.

The Notre Dame Law School boasts a good reputation, said Link and he hopes the new facility will enhance it even further. Though there will be a 60 percent increase in the size of the law building, Link said he does not foresee a proportional increase in the student body, except in the post-graduate degree programs.

It will continue to be a small law school with individualized teaching and a graduating class of about 160 students, he said.

U.S. welcomes Soviet attempt at better relations

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The White House sidestepped Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's charge that the United States is setting up a confrontation at the November summit, yesterday and chose instead to welcome his pledge to propose ways of improving superpower relations.

In the administration's first formal reaction to Gorbachev's debut interview in the Western press, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes dismissed the Communist Party chief's claim that the United States expects the Soviets to make all the concessions.

President Reagan, Speakes said, is prepared "to meet the Soviets halfway in an effort to solve problems."

Meanwhile, a delegation of U.S. senators who met with Gorbachev in Moscow yesterday said the Soviet leader told them he is ready to make radical offers to reduce nuclear weapons arsenals and may not oppose basic U.S. research on space-based military systems - the so-called "Star Wars" program.

Speakes said the administration has heard such talk before and challenged the Soviets to put their proposals on the table when arms control talks resume Sept. 19 in Geneva if they are serious about negotiating arms reductions.

"Our views of the causes of the present U.S.-Soviet tensions are quite different from that presented by Mr. Gorbachev," Speakes said in response to the Soviet leader's interview with Time magazine. But he said, "We do not intend to enter into a debate in the media," preferring to prepare for the summit through confidential diplomatic channels.

He repeated Reagan's challenge to the Soviets to permit the American president the same access to the Soviet Union's government-controlled media as Gorbachev has to the independent Western press.

"We are pleased that Mr. Gorbachev was able to present his views to the American public," Speakes said. "If President Reagan had a comparable opportunity to express his views to the Soviet people through the Soviet media, this would no doubt improve our dialogue."

Teachers strikes hit several cities

Associated Press

CHICAGO - Yesterday, teachers in Chicago and Seattle went on strike, one day before the scheduled start of classes; while teachers in Philadelphia shouted their overwhelming approval of a new three-year contract that averted a walkout.

Elsewhere, strikes by teachers in 10 other school districts in Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan disrupted the resumption of fall classes for more than 76,000 students.

The Chicago Teachers Union, representing 28,000 teachers in the nation's third-largest school district, launched its third walkout in as many years after rejecting the 430,000-student district's offer of a 3.5 percent salary increase. The union is holding out for a 9 percent raise.

Aides to Illinois Gov. James Thompson met yesterday with both sides to present a proposal, the terms of which were not disclosed.

"My hope would be to have a settlement this afternoon," said Jim Reilly, the governor's chief of staff.

Jim Prescott, a spokesman for Thompson, said the governor was "very frustrated" by the walkout.

"I think he's more frustrated with this strike than with the past ones because last spring he put together a record increase in school funding in Illinois," said Thompson.

A coalition of 17 unions representing 12,000 other school workers, including painters and engineers, also struck yesterday.

The 19,000 member Philadelphia Federation of Teachers ratified by voice a vote a $250 million, three-year contract.

In Brief

A Holy Cross Junior College student was injured yesterday afternoon in an accident at the intersection of Juniper Rd. and Edison. Thomas Lewis, 18, of 1102 Portage, was riding his motorcycle northbound on Juniper when he apparently failed to obey the stop sign at Edison, according to Glenn Terry, director of Notre Dame security. He struck a car driven by Carl Griman, of 1942 E. Donald St., which was westbound on Edison, Terry said. Lewis was taken to St. Joseph's Medical Center where he is in stable condition with multiple abrasions, a hospital spokesperson said. - The Observer

The smoke bomb sparked a fire on Aug. 23 in the Evansville, Ind., firehouse that destroyed some clothing and other belongings in the lockers. Jeff Austin was suspended for five days and placed on a year's probation after admitting he had dropped the smoke bomb. - AP

McAuliffe, 37, was chosen in July from more than 10,000 teachers across the country to be the first teacher in space. The economics and history teacher said the space program wanted her to begin training Sept. 1, but, she said, "I can't do it. I've got to go to school, for the annual faculty meeting." - AP

Kokomo AIDS victim Ryan White, who was denied permission to attend classes by school officials last month, has been admitted to an Indianapolis hospital. The 13-year-old was in "satisfactory and stable condition," after being admitted on Monday, said Rena Brown, of the public relations department at Riley Hospital for Children. White, a hemophiliac, contracted the disease from blood products, doctors have said. White has participated in classes so far this school year via a telephone connection from his home about five miles from Western Middle School. - AP

Mutual respect, understanding to result from Five Points party

Ever since Father Sorin built the first log cabin and called it his college, students have been leaving campus in the eternal search for kicks.

Today, huge tribes of students migrate from campus every weekend looking for that exclusive off-campus party, or to stop in for a beer or two at one of the local taverns.

A number of theories can explain why students are so anxious to leave campus for awhile - such as the cramping alcohol policy, the strict regulations of DuLac, or even a natural need for independence. But the end result is a lot of fun for the students, a lot of worry for the administration, and a lot of sleepless nights for the neighbors.

The growing prominence of off-campus parties, for the social life of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students, has not done a lot for community relations, especially since raids and arrests have become almost a weekly occurrence.

Perhaps this tension came to a peak in the recent past when the infamous "death marches" were traditional. During the weekend of the final home football game, seniors from both schools would march from campus to the taverns in the Five Points area and beyond.

The purpose of the death march was to literally party 'til you drop. And that's exactly what most of the seniors did. Not only drunkenness, but vandalism, rowdiness, and often violence were the highlights of the day.

The death march was eliminated three years ago and replaced with the annual block party, where seniors are joined by area residents under the double domes of the ACC for a festival of music, food, beer and fun.

This change in activities of the final football weekend did a lot to quell the hostility between the students and the residents of the Northeast Neighborhood. But students walking to and from Five Points or along Corby Street are often surprised to find that students from Notre Dame and Saint Mary's still are not among the resident's favorite people.

This is perhaps only natural. The resentment that the residents of the Northeast Neighborhood seem to express is not unfounded. Students driving home from the bars or standing in line at the Great American Hot Dog Stand seldom realize that some of the people trying to sleep nearby have to get up for work in the morning.

But while there still is some hostility and resentment, the situation has improved and is continuing to get better. Specifically, the neighbors have invited the students to join them this weekend for a party at Five Points. According to the festival planners, the party will enable the student and residents to get together in a context of fun and games, rather than hostility and confrontation.

The party is the second annual Northeast Fall Festival. It will be held this Sunday at the Goodwill Plaza, at the intersection of Corby and Eddy streets from noon until 7 p.m.

Neighbors and students will come together over food, games, beer and fun. The festival will be the perfect opportunity for residents and students to meet each other, and hopefully discover that people really are the same, whether they live under the golden dome, or at the Five Corners.

Among other things featured at the festival will be a dunk tank, which will have celebrities from both South Bend and Notre Dame risking being dunked. Also, the Goodwill discount store will be open with 50 percent off all prices, and residents will be holding a rummage sale.

The Clay Township Fire Department will have their newest fire truck on hand and will talk to people about fire safety. Also, the police department will have representatives at the festival to talk about relations between the department, the community and the school.

South Bend Chief of Police Charles Hurley has even volunteered to sit in the dunk tank.

Also, a special license has been procured to open a beer tent at the festival. The suds will probably be the only beer available in the area which is otherwise dry on Sundays.

Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students are being given the opportunity to get to know some of the people in the Northeast Neighborhood as something more than just a threat to their safety or to their fun.

The neighbors have made the effort by inviting the students to their party. Now it is up to the students to show up and prove that the students and the residents really can coexist in peace and understanding - and in mutual respect.

Shuttle mission ends 'near-perfect'

Associated Press

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. - Early yesterday morning, space shuttle Discovery's triumphant astronauts landed safely, completing a "near-perfect" repair mission in space that revived a lifeless $85 million satellite.

Discovery dropped out of a brightening sunrise sky and mission commander Joe Engle and pilot Dick Covey guided the 100-ton craft to a flawless landing down the centerline on the dry lakebed runway, ending a week-long, 2.9 million-mile voyage.

"Eddie (Edwards) looks beautiful," said Engle, a former test pilot who once flew airplanes at the desert test flight center.

"Welcome home, Joe, and congratulations to the whole crew," said Mission Control.

Jesse Moore, director of NASA's space shuttle program, said he was delighted with the mission that included the "jump start" salvage of the Syncom 3 satellite and the successful launch of three other satellites.

If Syncom 3 works when it is fired toward a higher orbit next month, it will become the first commercial satellite salvaged in space. An earlier astronaut crew repaired and relaunched Solar Max, a science satellite. Two broken commercial satellites have been returned to Earth for repairs.

"I have to characterize this as a near-perfect mission," said Moore at a post-landing news conference.

the graduate program for history and philosophy of science.

In addition, the center will be responsible for creating an undergraduate Science, Technology and Values concentration which will begin next semester.

Although the concentration will only be available within the College of Arts and Letters, McKim said individual courses will be open to students in all colleges.

Another primary role of the center will consist of overseeing the five-year Arts and Letters/Engineering program. New courses will be added to the program as well as opportunities for new scholarships, said McKim.

More personalized counseling for students in the program "will help provide an identity for the program and give it more cohesiveness," said McKim. Under consideration is a foreign study program within the five-year curriculum.

In the future, the center also "hopes to encourage faculty research and will sponsor speakers and conferences," McKim added.

Ten hurt after landing

Associated Press

An examination of the engine showed there was no fire in the engine, said airline spokesman Joe Stroop.

ABILENE, Texas - An American Airlines jumbo jet carrying 190 people made an emergency landing yesterday when a warning light indicated an engine fire, and 10 people were injured while evacuating, officials said.

Flight 436, a DC-10 carrying 177 passengers and 13 crewmembers, was flying from El Paso to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport when it landed at Dyess Air Force Base shortly after noon, airline spokesman John Hotard said.

Thirty-two people sought medical treatment after sliding down emergency chutes, and 10 required treatment, he said. Two people were hospitalized, one with a broken ankle and the other for observation for a heart problem, Stroop said.

American said it would send another DC-10 to Dyess to bring the passengers the 160 miles east to Dallas-Fort Worth, he said.

Darden gets late stay; execution will wait

Associated Press

STARKE, Fla. - Convicted murderer Willie Darden won a stay of execution from the U.S. Supreme Court late last night, hours before he was to die in Florida's electric chair.

Darden, 52, nicknamed "the sage of death row" by friends and attorneys because he has been on Florida's death row longer than any inmate but one, had been condemned to die at 7 a.m. today, for killing a Lakeland furniture store owner in a 1973 robbery that yielded $15.

The stay was granted by the Supreme Court at one minute to midnight. The same court had turned down a bid to halt the execution on a 5-4 vote.

Darden had been turned down earlier by federal courts in Atlanta and Tampa and the Florida Supreme Court.

In denying a stay earlier in the evening, Chief Justice Warren Burger pointed out that the issues in Darden's appeal had been considered thoroughly by federal and state courts and that the Supreme Court has had five prior opportunities to study the issues in his case dating back to 1977.

The Florida Supreme Court denied the petition by Darden's attorney, Robert Harper, which was based on the premise that there have been changes in the law that should entitle his client to a new sentencing procedure.

stressed that the halls were not required to reimburse Dillon, but could if they wanted to. Howard agreed the concert was a campus event and that it especially benefited the South Quad.

Off-campus Representative Tom McDonald addressed the group about the problems off-campus residents had in obtaining football ticket applications. He said many students did not receive the information in time and were not told the procedure to follow in order to get the application before tickets were distributed.

Upcoming campus activities were highlighted to the HPC during part of their meeting. Lyons Hall President Joanie Cahill informed the group that Lyons will be hosting a charity volleyball tournament this Saturday.

Any team of six Notre Dame or Saint Mary's students are welcome to enter, according to Cahill. Sign-ups will take place today and tomorrow at LaFortune during lunch hour and at both dining halls during dinner. The $6 entry fee will benefit the Logan Center, Cahill added.

Bill Lytle, the HPC representative to the Undergraduate Club, reminded presidents that the club will get into action this Saturday night for a non-alcoholic event at Senior Bar. The MTV broadcast of the Tommy Shaw concert, held at the ACC last spring, will be shown, Lytle said.

"Cold Drinks" will provide live entertainment on Green Field after the broadcast.

Student government cabinet member John Dettling said he and two other student government representatives were part of a University Board of Trustees ad hoc committee dealing with the current South African investment policy. He said serving on the committee was a big step in having more student involvement in University decisions.

Dettling also offered to speak to any group which is interested in learning more about the turmoil in South Africa. Students here may become more involved as the problems continue in that country, he added.

Black students in South Africa riot against white rule; mine strike ends

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - Students abandoned black schools near Johannesburg and rioted around Cape Town yesterday, one year after bloody rent protests set off a tide of violence against white rule that has cost more than 650 lives.

Police and troops sealed off eight black townships, including the two in which the rent protests began Sept. 3, 1984.

The black National Union of Mineworkers said last night it had "suspended" a two-day-old pay strike against selected gold and coal mines after a gold mine fired 5,000 of its 7,000 workers.

Gold Fields of South Africa said earlier that it was "processing" the workers dismissed from its Deelkraal mine, west of Johannesburg. Mine guards and police fired tear gas to drive strikers away from a heavily guarded dormitory block, where management said 1,400 miners who wanted to work took shelter.

In announcing the suspension, the union said it was seeking a court injunction to stop management from sending dismissed miners back to impoverished black homelands. It said Marievale already had sent 300 miners home. There was no immediate comment from the mine management.

The eight sealed townships included Sharpeville and Sebokeng, near the industrial white towns of Vereeniging and Vanderbijl Park, 30 miles south of Johannesburg.

There had been rioting incidents in August, but it was the Sept. 3 protest of rent hikes that marked the beginning of South Africa's year of black rage against apartheid, the race laws that guarantee supremacy to the white minority.

A black man was shot to death yesterday in the black Eastern Cape township of Duncan Village, near East London, when police fired on a crowd during a gasoline bomb attack on a police vehicle, national police headquarters in Pretoria reported.

It also said students demonstrating at the University of the North, in the Lebowa tribal homeland, went "on the rampage." One student was seriously wounded and five were arrested, the report said.

In the huge black city of Soweto, which houses 1.5 million people outside Johannesburg, thousands of high school students left classes and roamed the streets. Residents said the anniversary walkout spread rapidly in a mixture of spontaneity and coercion by militant students.

Grenades disturb poolside party; British tourists 'lucky to be alive'

Associated Press

GLYFADA, Greece - A man lobbed grenades over a hotel hedge into a poolside party of British tourists yesterday, wounding 19 people, police and witnesses reported. The assailant escaped.

A spokesman for the Voula Red Cross Hospital said seven of the wounded, including a 28-year-old woman who was pregnant, were kept overnight and were in stable condition. The others were released after treatment for cuts and puncture wounds caused by flying glass or shrapnel.

A woman called several daily newspapers claiming responsibility in the name of the terrorist group

Black September. She threatened to "fill Athens with bombs" unless Greece frees a jailed Palestinian gunman who allegedly admitted planning to kill the Jordanian ambassador.

Black September is named for September 1970, when King Hussein's army drove Palestinian guerrillas out of Jordan.

Witnesses said a dark-complected man hurled two grenades into the crowd at the Hotel Glyfada pool and was picked up by a waiting car.

"We were having a party around the swimming pool when someone threw two or three round objects over the hedge," said Michael Harding, 40, of Horsham, England. "One went off among the crowd and another her in the swimming pool. We're lucky to be alive. There was blood everywhere."

The explosions blew out windows in the adjoining dining room at the Glyfada, which is in the seaside suburb of that name and is among more than a dozen hotels strung along the main highway to Athens Airport.

The Palestinian, identified as Salameh Haten Samir, 26, was arrested Friday near the Jordanian Embassy. He was charged yesterday with illegal possession of an automatic weapon and a hand grenade.

Police sources said Samir admitted that he intended to assassinate the ambassador.

Modern Catholics should judge self before others

Every time I have attended Mass on Palm Sunday, I have always thought about how abhorrent the Jews were when they crucified my Saviour, Jesus Christ, by nailing Him to a tree. Reading the Passion story in church invokes in me a strong sense of hate for any person who could have murdered a peace loving man. It has always seemed such a waste of humanity.

Kevin Becker

to the point

Recently, I began to think about the Jews' treatment of Christ and how little right I have to condemn them. They saw Him merely as a wise and prophetic man who was a far cry from the King whom they were promised would deliver them from bondage. The crime of Jesus' crucifixion was, of course, hideous; but it always scares me to think of how modern Americans would treat Jesus Christ if he were to return to earth exactly as He did 2000 years ago.

The results, I presume, would be frighteningly parallel.

In the United States there is an astronomical number of "Christians" in every field of work. There are Christian businessmen and politicians and plumbers and professors. Despite the great numbers, I wonder how many of these supposed Christians, including myself, would recognize Jesus Christ if He were to return to America. Most of the people in this society firmly stand behind the capitalist system of the United States. We believe in trying to better our financial well being and often have little ethical regard for the effect that our betterment may have on others.

If Jesus were to return to earth today as an American, how many of us would recognize Him or accept His word as truth? How would pro-choice proponents respond to His condemnation of abortion? How would wealthy businessmen respond to His words telling them that they should liquidate their riches and give their money to the poor? What would Christ say to politicians who try to have the "best of both worlds" by claiming to be Catholic faithfuls but who then act as secular officials?

Can people be Christians for half of their daily lives and practice popular secular morality for the other half? Many people in this country try to do just that.

I consistently manage to begin chuckling as I leave my hometown neighborhood church after Sunday Mass. Just as soon as most of the Catholics escape from the doors of the church, they turn into rabid Tasmanian devils behind the wheels of their cars. They cut each other off in the parking lot, they curse each other under their breath and they manage to turn a peaceful Sunday afternoon into a World War II battle scene. They do all of this just a short period after they turned to one another and said "May the peace of Christ be with you."

Is that the peace of Christ? Do we as Christians and Catholics practice what we preach? Or do we fill our churches and call ourselves Christians because there is some fear of damnation that clouds our hearts?

There are many so called Catholics who react with offense when anyone says something derogatory about their religion, but who also flagrantly violate the precepts of that same religion. There are adulterers and liars and thieves who stroll up to the communion rail every Sunday and then have the nerve to criticize those who questions their Catholic beliefs.

I am not trying to say that sinners should not be Catholics or any variation of that myopic interpretation that some will want to make of this column; however, I am trying to say that people should not be so quick to be defensive of their own religion when it is questioned. One should not be as naive to believe that the Catholics in America today are white as snow in the eyes of Christ.

To the contrary, I believe that Christ would have just as rough a time with us as He did with the Jews 2000 years ago. If Christ were to come back to this earth and begin to point out the imperfections in our Catholic Church, it would be frightening to see how He would be treated. I have a feeling that those of us with the greatest sin would be the first to cast stones.

Man's confusion may be world's greatest problem

Recently, my seven year old cousin asked me a very surprising question. She said, "Tom, what is the greatest problem in the world?" My jaw dropped, my eyes widened and I burst out laughing.

And my response was, "Listen kid, you're too young to be asking questions like that. Still, because you asked, I'll do my best to go out and find an answer for you." And then - just for some peace of mind - I thought of some answers. In a lighthearted sort of way, I thought of academic woes, of gridiron woes, of all the typical difficulties of the undergrad.

Tom Considine

the answer

I never forgot that bright sunny July day when I was "popped" with the question.

A week later, I found myself out on the golf course with an old high school buddy. We were on the fairway of the second hole and my friend had just driven his shot into the brush. Not a bad shot, I reckoned. It just needed a little straightening out. And then, I thought, what the heck. "Jimmy, what is the greatest problem in the world?" He looked at me for a second and then answered quite seriously, "My left hook." We laughed for a moment and then moved on.

By this time, July had turned into August and I realized for the twentieth time that summer was passing too quickly. In fact, my summer was almost over. Unfortunately, the question still remained.

One day at work I turned to my partner and asked him the question. "Gee, Bill, what do you think is the greatest problem in the world?" His answer: "Personal survival, my personal survival - making ends meet, keeping alive, happy and satisfied." Simple question - simple answer right?

That afternoon I asked another fellow employee the same question. And like the other two, he had an answer for me. He said, "Not having enough money, not having financial security. In three words - my bank account."

By this time I was quite interested in the responses I had heard. They were fascinating. They were remarkable, and all for the same reason. All three failed to answer the question as I had stated it. All three had confused two of the simplest words in the English language. "The" does not equal "My." "The world" does not necessarily mean just "my world." Ah - maybe I was on to something. In considering the question, each had failed to bring an objective mindset; each thought primarily in terms of himself, and himself alone. Each had confused "myself, and himself alone" with "my greatest problem."

What a stupid mistake, I thought. But then I took a look around and laughed. A stupid mistake - maybe. But a common mistake as well.

Last week I saw my little cousin again and asked her, "What is the first thing that you do when you get up in the morning?"

"Look in the mirror and brush my teeth," she said.

"Exactly right," I remarked. "We look in the mirror; we look at ourselves. And kid, I suppose that this universal habit is not really a bad one. The problem starts when we look in that mirror all day, every day - when we see nothing but ourselves, and when the rest of the world and all its problems simply disappear - we leave only our problems and ourselves. It can be a pretty bad one. But saddest of all, it is unnecessary. So kid, do you understand what I mean?" She just looked at me and laughed.

I don't think too often about the question anymore. Perhaps I found my answer.

A freshman's wide-eyed view of Notre Dame

Kris Murphy
features writer

Saturday, August 24. You strike out from hometown U.S.A. with a station wagon full of all the necessities of college life (stereo, refrigerator, beer posters, maybe two or three pencils). You are accompanied by your parents who alternately look proud and worried. Your destination: THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME (trumpets sound, dancing girls appear). After hours on the highway, during which your parents have offered enough advice to straighten out Jack the Ripper, you see THE DOME. You feel proud, inspired, ready to start a new chapter in your life. You don't feel so proud when you can't find a parking space and you realize that you forgot to pack underwear.

The guys in your hall are very helpful. They shake your hand and help you unpack your car. If you live in Grace or Flanner they take you to an air-conditioned room with cable television hookups. If you live in an older hall they take you to something quite different. It resembles a room in shape and structure but it is smaller. Much smaller. How much smaller is it? It is so small that the cockroach on the window sill is blocking all the light. There are large holes in the walls too. Later you will be told not to stick any tacks in the walls because you might crack the plaster and then there would be holes in the walls. This means something but you're not sure what.

Parting with your parents is a bad scene. Mom cries a lot and twists your arm until it's blue. Dad pats you on the back and says nice things like "Don't screw up" and "Don't call too often, we're not made of money." When they finally leave you get to meet your roommates. They come from places like Massachusetts and Los Angeles. You like your roomies but other people are not so lucky. They say "My roomie is a geek and he doesn't use deodorant." That night you meet your RA. He says things like "I shouldn't be telling you this but..." and "I didn't say that!" You go to bed smelling ethanol and thinking about your dinner. This means something too but you can't figure this one out either.

You wake with the worst breath of the day. Minty fresh Scope takes care of that and you're off to orientation. You go to Mass and meet a cute girl. This is probably illegal or something but you get her phone number anyway. On the way home from the ACC you and your roomies get lost. The campus did not look this big on the back of the Notre Dame folder that you bought at the bookstore. You meet other packs of roving freshmen. They are lost too. You can tell because they whisper to each other a lot and their heads go around and around on their necks. You talk to them but they won't admit to being lost. You won't either. After 45 minutes you find your hall. You make a pact with your roomies to never get lost again. Ten minutes later you are forced to ask directions to the bathroom because it's not where you thought it was.

You enjoy the food at dinner. This is probably a mistake because most of the upperclassmen are eating Lucky Charms and Captain Crunch. You try to take an apple back to the dorm but a woman at the door smirks and takes it away from you. You don't understand this until a junior tells you that those apples have been there a long time and they are an institution, sort of like the Holy Cross cabin. In fact, those apples have been there since that cabin was built. That explains why they were so soft. You decide that maybe the upperclassmen are right about the food.

That night you go to Saint Mary's for the first time. The nice lady at the front desk says that you cannot go upstairs yet unless you are related to one of the girls. You proceed to explain how you and your four cousins have travelled many miles to see your dear sister and the nice lady lets you go up. On the stairs you meet other cousins and brothers. You also meet nephews and second cousins. Saint Mary's is just like one big family reunion.

You like Saint Mary's because the girls are cute and they get excited when you come over because you are now a domer. A domer. You have worked hard and waited a long time to become one. This feeling might not last very long, though. When you are an upperclassman you will complain about everything: the food, the snow, the football team, and the administration. You might even forget what made you want to be here so badly. You might forget the mystique that is such a part of this place. But for now you are a freshman. You say things like "Gee, what's that smell?" and "Gosh, is that really Allen Pinkett?" Savor the moment while it is new.

Yankovic enjoying life in the weird lane

features editor

He jams rock 'n' roll tunes on an accordion. He graces the video music stage alternately as a warped Madonna, a witless Huey Lewis or a demented Michael Jackson. And his purpose in life? "To slam a stapler against the forehead of American pop culture."

Weird Al Yankovic is stapling away, as he systematically mangles hit after hit into parodies as weird as rock has ever seen. His efforts have turned into hits in their own right, and few rock stars worth their salt have been spared. Yankovic is coming to Notre Dame tonight, for a stop on the national tour to support his latest album, Dare to Be Stupid.

In an interview with an Observer reporter, Weird Al explained how he turned out the way he is now after an inauspicious beginning as an architecture student at California Polytechnic in San Luis Obispo.

"I eat too much broccoli; it warps my brain," said Al, expressing his condolences for those Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students who consume it in the dining halls.

Actually, Yankovic's career began as a child, when he learned to play the accordion and began sending in song parodies to the Dr. Demento show. "When you play the accordion it really does something to your emotional stability," said Al. But Dr. Demento didn't mind, as "My Bologna," a parody of the Knack's "My Sharona," became an instant hit.

After graduating at 16 as valedictorian of his high school, Weird Al perfected his warped style throughout college. With the hit "Another One Rides the Bus" (from Queen's "Another One Bites the Dust") his career took off. But his degree in architecture has not gone to waste. "I use it every day... as a book-mark," he boasts.

If his career had gone in that direction, he said, he would now be designing "big, accordion-shaped buildings."

Now 25 and unmarried, Yankovic said he is enjoying fame and the experience of playing live, but that there are not nearly enough women screaming all over him.

Despite his success, Yankovic's plans for the future are rather

Yankovic said he is enjoying fame and the experience of playing live, but that there are not nearly enough women screaming over him.

limited. "I thought I'd go home and take a shower, then maybe get dressed," he confessed. Actually, he will be on tour until October and in his Los Angeles home, "All my plants are dead and nobody's fed the dog in months."

Weird Al contends he has no problem thinking up his masterpieces. "Because of my twisted mind I listen to songs and think up ways to reword them," he said. In order to make the parody sound as close as possible to the original, he and his producer "take time and care, just listening to it and figuring out what they did." Sometimes the track is sped up or the key changed because "I can't sing nearly as high as Michael Jackson or Madonna," he said.

Yankovic's most recent send-ups poke fun at Madonna ("Like a Surgeon"), Huey Lewis ("I Want a New Duck"), and Cyndi Lauper ("Girls Just Want to Have Lunch"). He has also written some of his own songs for his albums. One song, "One More Minute," expresses a fond farewell from a lover who's bitter but honest ("I'd rather spend eternity eating shards of broken glass, than spend one more minute with you").

Past hits have included "Eat It" from Michael Jackson's "Beat It," "I Lost on Jeopardy," spoofing Greg Kihn, and "It's Still Billy Joel to Me." Yankovic also has done four hour comedy specials on MTV and is soon coming out with his autobiography, "The Authorized Al." He recently finished The Compleat Al, a long-form video that will be sold for home use in September.

Weird Al will be performing (cavorting?) at Stepan Center tonight at 8 p.m. Tickets, at $3.50 for students and $7 general admission, are still available at the ACC Box Office or at the Student Record Store in LaFortune.

Connors and Evert Lloyd advance in U.S. Open

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd, the two winningest players in U.S. Open history, kept alive their title hopes yesterday with hard-fought victories.

Lloyd, the No. 1 seed who is seeking her seventh women's singles title here, reached the semi-finals for the 15th consecutive year by disposing of tenacious Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany 6-3, 6-3. Lloyd's next foe will be third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, who edged No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 7-6, 7-4, 7-5.

Connors, going for his sixth men's crown, having won last in 1983, stopped Stefan Edberg of Sweden, the No. 11 seed, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 in a match that was much closer than the scores indicated.

Connors will face Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt in their quarter-final match. The other quarterfinal pairing in the bottom half of the draw will pit No. 7 Yannick Noah of France against the winner of last night's match between second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and teen-ager Jaime Yzaga of Peru.

Soviets beat U.S. in basketball

Associated Press

KOBE, Japan - A last-second long shot gave the Soviet Union a 96-93 victory over the United States for the men's basketball title yesterday, while the Americans had their best day in track and field, winning three gold medals in the World University Games.

The Soviets won a total of four golds for the day - including water polo, men's epee team fencing and the women's 800-meter run, but Japan stopped them in the men's volleyball final.

Down two sets to one, Japan recovered for a 15-8, 10-15, 12-15, 15-17, 15-8 victory before a crowd of about 6,000, mostly ecstatic Japanese rooters.

North Korea blanked Uruguay 1-0 for the soccer gold, scoring on a header that bounced off a Uruguayan defender into the goal.

With nine gold medals left to be decided on the University Games' final day, today, the Soviets led the standings with 77 medals, including 41 golds. The United States had 61 medals, including 21 golds, and Japan, China and Cuba each had six golds.

In the last games in 1983, the Soviets had 115 medals including 59 golds and the United States had 53 medals including 12 golds.

In another highlight on the track yesterday, Cuba's Silvia Costa won the women's high jump with a Universiade record of 6 feet, 7 inches, breaking the old mark of 6-6 set by Tamara Bykova of the Soviet Union in 1983.

For the Americans, Mike Ramos won the demanding two-day, 10-event decathlon, Cathy Branta and Kathy Hayes placed 1-2 in the women's 3,000 meters and Cletus Clark won the men's 110-meter high hurdles, with teammate Keith Talley finishing third.

Ramos, of Missoula, Mont., overtook first-day leader Michael Neugebauer of West Germany with strong performances in the pole vault and discus. He finished with 8,071 points to 7,971 for Valter Kyulevet of the Soviet Union. Neugebauer ended up third with 7,895.

Branta, of Madison, Wisconsin, won the women's 3,000 in 9 minutes, 2.75 seconds, with Hayes, of Eugene, Oregon, just behind in 9:02.92. Angela Chalmers of Canada was third in 9:03.19.

In the Soviet triumph in the women's 800 meters, Nadezhda Zvyagintse edged Romania's Cristiana Cojocaru, 1:58.59 to 1:59.09.

Bulgaria's Ginka Zagorcheva won the women's 100-meter hurdles in 12.71 seconds, with Soviet runner Nadezhda Korshunova second.

Top seven retain spots in AP poll

Associated Press

The nation's top seven teams, none of which has played a game this season, retained their positions yesterday in the first regular-season Associated Press college football poll.

Defending national champion Brigham Young jumped from 10th place to eighth after opening with a victory over Boston College.

Top-rated Oklahoma, which doesn't get under way until Sept. 28, received 27 of 60 first-place votes and 1,049 of a possible 1,100 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Auburn, which entertains Southwestern Louisiana on Saturday, received 10 first-place votes and 948 points, followed by Southern Methodist with two firsts and 834 points. The Mustangs play host to Texas-El Paso on Saturday night.

Iowa retained the No. 4 spot with five first-place ballots and 810 points while Florida, which visits Miami, Fla., on Saturday night, received two firsts and 735 points. One first-place vote went to sixth-place Southern California, which received 715 points. The Trojans visit Illinois on Saturday.

Seventh-place Maryland, which plays host to Penn State this weekend, received three first-place ballots and 701 points.

BYU, after defeating unranked Boston College 28-14 in the Kickoff Classic, received three first-place votes and 691 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Ohio State, with 645 points, and Nebraska, with 640. Nebraska entertains Florida State on Saturday in a national television (ABC-TV) game. Ohio State and Nebraska were eighth and ninth in the preseason rankings.

The Second Ten is composed of the same teams as the preseason poll except for Florida State, a 38-12 winner over Tulane. The Seminoles moved from 19th place to 17th, ahead of South Carolina and Penn State. South Carolina was the only other Top Twenty team in action over the weekend. The Gamecocks crushed The Citadel 56-17.

The Second Ten consists of Illinois, Washington, LSU, Notre Dame, Arkansas, Oklahoma State, Florida State, South Carolina, Penn State and UCLA.

Gary Carter hits three home runs to lead New York over San Diego

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO - Gary Carter hit three home runs and drove in six runs through the first five innings last night in helping the New York Mets take a 7-0 lead over the San Diego Padres.

Carter hit a two-run homer in the first inning off Dave Dravecky and connected for a solo shot off Dravecky in the fourth.

In the fifth inning, Tom Paciorek and Keith Hernandez singled with one out off Dravecky. Carter then hit an 0-2 pitch from reliever Luis DeLeon into the left field seats for his third home run of the game and a 7-0 lead.

It marked the second time in Carter's career that he had hit three home runs in a game. Carter now has 23 homers this season.

Carter is the fifth player in the major leagues to homer three times in a game this season. Teammate Darryl Strawberry, Baltimore's Eddie Murray, Seattle's Gorman Thomas and Texas' Larry Parrish have also accomplished the feat.

Carter also became the fifth Met player to hit three home runs in a game, joining Strawberry, Dave Kingman, Claudell Washington and Jim Hickman.

Twins 4, Brewers 3

MINNEAPOLIS - Kirby Puckett's sacrifice fly tied the score and pinch-hitter Dave Engle delivered a run-scoring single as the Minnesota Twins scored twice in the seventh inning last night to beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

Engle singled home Tim Teufel, who had reached second base on a sacrifice bunt that Danny Darwin, 7-16, threw away for an error. Mark Salas had led off the inning with a single and eventually scored on Puckett's sacrifice fly.

Steve Howe, 2-3, the fourth Twins pitcher, pitched 3 2/3 hitless innings for the victory.

Cardinals 6, Reds 4

ST. LOUIS - Pinch-hitter Brian Harper's two-run, two-out double snapped a seventh inning tie last night and led the St. Louis Cardinals past the Cincinnati Reds.

The victory, only the second in six games for the Cardinals, kept them in first place in the National League East.

Reds player-manager Pete Rose did not play. He needs six hits to break Ty Cobb's all-time record of 4,191.

With the score 4-4, Cesar Cedeno led off the bottom of the seventh with a single against Tom Hume, 2-4.

The hit made a winner of Jeff Lahti, 3-2.

Phillies 4, Giants 3

SAN FRANCISCO - Ozzie Virgil opened the 13th inning with his 18th home run of the season to lift the surging Philadelphia Phillies to their sixth straight victory, a 4-3 win over the San Francisco Giants yesterday.

Virgil's game-winning blast, on a 2-1 pitch from Greg Minton, 3-4, bounced high off the foul screen in left.

Rookie Dave Shipanoff, 1-0, posted his first major league victory by pitching one inning and Fred Toliver worked the 13th for his first save.

The paid crowd of 1,632 was the lowest at Candlestick Park since 1,033 watched the Giants play the Houston Astros on Sept. 14, 1977.

Astros 8, Cubs 7

CHICAGO - Pinch-batter Bill Doran's suicide squeeze bunt in the 10th inning scored Denny Walling from third base Tuesday to lead the Houston Astros to an 8-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Mark Bailey opened the 10th with a single off George Frazier, 7-6, but was forced at second by Walling. Burt Pena singled to left to send Walling to third.

Reliever Dave Smith, 8-5, was the winner.

Braves 2, Pirates 0

PITTSBURGH - Rookie Joe Johnson combined with relievers Zane Smith and Bruce Sutter on a five-hitter last night as the Atlanta Braves beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0.

Johnson, 3-0, allowed leadoff singles to Joe Orsulak in the fourth inning and R.J. Reynolds in the seventh. He left the game after Johnny Ray followed with a flyout to the wall in the seventh.

Atlanta scratched out two runs in the seventh. Bruce Benedict led off with a single against Jose DeLeon, 2-16, and Milt Thompson's single sent pinch runner Andres Thomas to third, with Thompson taking second on the throw.

Yankees 6, Mariners 3

NEW YORK - Phil Niekro won the 298th game of his career, pitching seven shutout innings before needing relief help in the eighth Tuesday night as the New York Yankees beat the Seattle Mariners 6-3.

The Yankees, with their fourth straight victory, moved within 3.5

A's 3, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE - Pinch hitter Steve Henderson singled home the tiebreaking run in the eighth inning and Jose Rijo teamed with two relievers on a three-hitter last night to lead the Oakland A's to a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

KC's Smith will testify in drug case

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - Lonnie Smith of the Kansas City Royals is expected to be the first witness to testify today and the key to the federal government's case, in the cocaine trafficking trial of Curtis Strong, a former Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse caterer, The Associated Press learned yesterday.

Smith is expected to be called this afternoon and Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets will be called next to testify, said sources close to the case who requested anonymity.

Smith has confessed to several years of cocaine abuse and testified under a grant of immunity before a federal grand jury that indicted Strong and six other Pennsylvanians on drug trafficking charges in May.

Smith recently told The New York Times that he identified his drug supplier to both the FBI and to the Pittsburgh grand jury. Smith underwent drug rehabilitation in 1983, the year after he was a key member of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

"We're going to find out if a jury will believe the testimony of junkies," said Strong's attorney, Adam Renfroe, Jr., who would not identify the "junkies."

Smith's testimony is expected to follow completion of the jury selection which took most of the court's time yesterday and opening remarks by Renfroe and U.S. Attorney J. Alan Johnson.

Smith is one of 10 current and former players identified last week by Johnson in court documents as prospective witnesses in the case, which could take more than a week to try.

Royals spokesman Dean Vogelaar said Smith would miss the Royals' home game yesterday night against the Chicago White Sox because of his court appearance, but hoped Smith would be back in uniform tonight.

Mets Manager Dave Johnson said Hernandez, also a former Cardinal, is expected to "miss a day" because of the Strong case. "We're hoping it's the off day (Thursday)," Johnson said.

The Mets are currently playing the Padres in San Diego.

Among the other players who could be called are Dave Parker of the Cincinnati Reds, Rod Scurry of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Al Holland of the California Angels. It was reportedly on Holland's recommendation that Strong was hired this April as a Phillies caterer until being asked to quit after five games.

No witnesses were called yesterday, the opening day of the trial, as attorneys spent most of the day questioning 50 prospective jurors. Twelve jurors and four alternates will be chosen.

Strong, 38, of Philadelphia, is charged with dealing in cocaine 16 times between 1980 and 1984 on dates when the Pirates of the National League were playing in Pittsburgh.

At least 12 former or current players testified before the federal grand jury that indicted Strong. Three of the other men indicted have pleaded guilty and face jail terms.

ND students take back seat to alumni for away game tix

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

On Friday afternoon between 1 and 4, Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students will have the opportunity to enter a lottery for the right to purchase tickets to the Irish football team's game at Michigan on Sept. 14. This will be the only chance this year for students to purchase tickets for an away game through the University.

The lottery will be held at the Ombudsmen desk on the first floor of LaFortune. Winners will be posted by the desk on Sunday.

A total of 6000 seats in Michigan's 101,701-seat stadium have been allocated to Notre Dame, and 200 of those tickets will be sold to students. The Irish also have access to 5000 seats in each of the other stadiums the team will visit this season, but no tickets for any other away game will be sold to students.

According to Notre Dame Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski, it has been a common practice in recent years to allocate to the students 200 tickets to a relatively close away game. The remainder of the tickets for away games are provided for alumni.

The logic behind this allocation process is that students have priority for the home games, so the alumni are given their shot to see the Irish when the team is on the road.

"The general philosophy has always been that on our campus, students get first crack at tickets," Bobinski says. "Every student that wants to can go to every home game. There is absolutely no restriction on students for home games."

"With away games, we have traditionally reserved that for the alumni, for them to get a shot to see the team near their hometown."

For the three away games on Notre Dame's schedule this year that are within reasonable traveling distance from South Bend, 16,000 tickets were allocated to the University. In addition to the 6000 tickets for the Michigan game, Notre Dame also has 5000 tickets each for the Purdue and Penn State games. The number of alumni applications for tickets far exceeds the number available.

Bobinski says that 6224 alumni applications for 12,447 tickets to those away games were turned down. In addition, 7941 applications, for a total of 15,882 tickets, to three home games - Michigan State, Army and USC - were rejected.

With such an overwhelming demand for tickets from Notre Dame alumni, Bobinski says that it is unlikely that students ever will have a chance for many tickets to away games. He says that in the future it may be possible, however, for students to receive up to 200 tickets for two games in those seasons - such as this year's - in which two close away games are scheduled.

"The one-game-a-year deal was working out all right when we had Purdue and Michigan State in alternating years," Bobinski says, "but when Michigan came into the picture, that kind of threw a wrench into the system because that was another relatively close away game."

The number of tickets the University is granted by its opponents usually is set at 5000. The Irish provide 5000 tickets to each of the teams that plays in Notre Dame Stadium, which seats 59,075. That number has been standard for most schools for years, Bobinski says.

wins it, the tournament still gives any undergraduate on campus, male or female, the chance to post a good score and get noticed," he said. "It is also an excellent opportunity for freshmen to be recognized and evaluated."

The competitors will complete the first two rounds of the Open around their class schedules by Saturday, playing in threesomes grouped according to handicap. The final two rounds, to be completed between Sunday and next Wednesday, Sept. 11, will have new threesomes based on the players' 36-hole totals.

The eight-day tournament provides for rain delays and scheduling problems. Gold, silver and bronze medallions will be awarded to the three finishers with the lowest totals.

Golfers will perform at annual tourney

By ED JORDANICH
Sports Writer

Another Notre Dame tradition continues today with the first round of the Notre Dame Open at the Burke Memorial Golf Course.

Varsity golf coach and tournament director Noel O'Sullivan says he expects 75 participants in this year's tourney, one of the largest fields ever in its more than 40-year history. O'Sullivan also predicts the winner of the Open will come from among his returning varsity letter winners.

Summer preparations by returning golfers should become apparent in the 72-hole stroke play tournament, which will be evaluated by O'Sullivan, who is starting his 14th year as Irish golf coach.

Irish Items

Hello again, everybody!

Do not clip and save this column. Read it, understand it quickly, then burn it. The contents may self-destruct before you know it.

Such is the case with any article which tries to predict college football's national champion. However, this isn't just another prognostication.

We're going to follow through the process together, step-by-step, so you can see the method of my madness. At the end, you'll get your chance to make your own prediction and we'll see if you should be writing this column (which will more than likely be the case).

First, let's get rid of any teams in exceptionally weak conferences and certain independents. That means you can wave goodbye to any team in the Mid-American Conference, the Missouri Valley Conference, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and the Ivy League. None of those schools have come close to winning a national title since the flag had 48 stars.

Secondly, the national champion won't come from a significantly strong conference, either. Playing too many good teams week after week is bound to bring about at least one or two losses, and that's too many. So forget about any team from the Pac-10, the SEC, and the Southwestern Conference. They'll be in contention, but they won't win.

What's left for now? The Big Ten, you say? Well, remember all those Ohio State-Michigan games in the '70s to decide who goes to the Rose Bowl with a shot at the national title? Ask yourself when was the last time one of those teams actually won the national title. I hope you're not in a hurry because you have to go back to 1968 to find it. The Big Ten's hopes aren't any brighter in 1985.

That leaves the ACC, the Big Eight, and the WAC. Well, the ACC has Maryland and Clemson, and that's about it. Virginia and Georgia Tech are nice, but so are house plants. As for North Carolina, Wake Forest, N.C. State and Duke, it's best to wait until basketball season.

In the Big Eight, Nebraska and Oklahoma are still around, which is the good news. Oklahoma State has hope of being a top-20 team as well, but isn't in the same class. Otherwise, the rest of the Big Eight looks like it has been struck by a tornado.

Finally, the WAC is held up by Brigham Young and Air Force. Unfortunately, it's brought down by schools like Texas-El Paso and Colorado State. Yeah, some real powerhouses there, folks. That conference is about as barren as the Mojave desert.

In each of those situations, the conference champ only has one big conference game to worry about. If they win that, all they have to worry about is the non-conference schedule.

So, let's look at strength of schedule. Now you can start weeding out independents. You think Notre Dame can get through its schedule undefeated? Yeah, right. For the same reason, you won't see any independent topping the charts at the end of the year. They're all too busy beating up on one another.

As far as the remaining six teams are concerned, Oklahoma plays SMU, Texas and Miami besides Nebraska. No wonder Barry Switzer gets arrested for drunk driving.

That leaves us with five teams and takes us to the next step in the process - the curse of the national magazine. When was the last time Sport, Sports Illustrated or The Sporting News correctly predicted the national champion? I don't know, either, but they haven't done it once in the 1980s.

Therefore, there's no reason to expect this perfect track record to be broken. Maryland was picked No. 1 by Sport magazine, so you can feel the trap door open underneath the Terrapins.

The next theory is the curse of the defending champion. College football is like the NBA because no champion ever repeats. Sorry BYU, but your national championship soon will be history.

We now are left with three teams: Air Force, Clemson and Nebraska. Air Force is good, but the Falcons are certainly not a national championship team. For Clemson... well, cheaters never prosper. Thus, the Irish Items pick for the national champion is (tympni roll, please) the Nebraska Cornhuskers!

This, however, is by no means gospel. This prediction comes from the same man who said the Cubs would win the NL East and Miami would win the Super Bowl last year. That's why the door is left open to you, the readers. Send your pick and the reasons for it to: Irish Items, The Observer, P.O. Box Q. We'll take a look at them and print the results at the end of the year.

Pick of the Week... For five seasons, the Notre Dame volleyball program has toiled in relative obscurity, playing St. Francis and IUPUI-Ft. Wayne. Those days are over.

The curtain rises on the 1985 volleyball season Friday night, and this time the foe is the highly-ranked Kentucky Wildcats. Art Lambert's squad is young and inexperienced, but they have talent. The question is: Can the Irish play and beat the best?

An answer may come Friday night at 7 p.m. Come out to the ACC and see if the Irish spikers can get Kentucky fried.
