Ad prompts letters to Tyson on handling of parietal violations

By SCOTT BEARBY
Assistant News Editor

Letters objecting to recent administration action concerning parietals violations have been received after a Hall Presidents' Council ad concerning the issue ran in the Observer, said HPC Chairman Kevin Howard at last night's meeting.

HPC is calling attention to University ability to suspend or dismiss students who are in violation of parietals, regardless of circumstances. Although HPC agreed "parietals are a positive influence on the residentiality of Notre Dame," they question removing a student from the University "when there is no moral issue in question."

Howard called on the presidents to encourage more letter writing to Vice President of Student Affairs Father David Tyson in care of Ombudsman.

In other action, Student Government Parliamentarian Brian Holst clarified a vote taken at the last HPC meeting concerning the disbanding of Student Senate. At that meeting, hall presidents voted by a 2/3 majority to put the issue to a student referendum after debating the legitimacy of the body.

According to Holst, they should not have voted to have a referendum, since that procedure would not be binding. He said if the body is going to take any action it should propose an amendment to the student government constitution, since disbanding senate is a structural change.

Another vote was taken last night on whether senate should be disbanded, this time putting the proposal in the form of an amendment. By a vote of 19 for, three against, one abstention, and one absence, the proposal again passed.

According to Holst, the issue needs to be approved by a 2/3 majority of the senate or a 2/3 agreement by the undergraduates who decide to vote on whether senate should cease to exist. Student Body Vice President Duane Lawrence said OBUD will be setting a date for the student vote, probably within the next week.

Howard said he and the original group of student leaders who proposed the abolition of senate are currently working on revising the constitution should the students vote to disband the body. Some of the power currently held by senate would go to the Campus Life Council, while HPC would be delegated

Abortion activist to speak today about pro-life activities

By CHRIS SKORCZ
Senior Staff Reporter

Joseph Scheidler, executive director of the Pro-Life Action League, will speak tomorrow at 8:00 p.m. in the Library Auditorium on the topic "Activism in the Pro-Life Movement."

Scheidler, whose pro-life educational organization works through the media to increase public awareness of abortion-related issues, has been called "one of the Green Berets of the pro-life movement" by nationally-syndicated columnist Patrick Buchanan.

His methods of drawing attention to his organization are highly "controversial" according to Professor Janet Smith of the Notre Dame/St. Mary's Right to Life Group.

"Scheidler is very outspoken," said Smith. "His method is confrontational, a method which reminds many people of the techniques used in the 1960's to protest the Vietnam War. He employs the same methods in defending the rights of the unborn."

"Because many people find him so controversial, we thought it would be fair to let him present his views and defend his techniques," Smith said.

Joe Scheidler

Scheidler, a former writer for the South Bend Tribune, has taught journalism and speech at Notre Dame. He has also served as public information director for the city of Chicago.

In addition to his book, "Closed: 99 Ways to Shut Down the Abortion Industry," Scheidler has had articles published in many major newspapers and magazines and has made more than 500 radio and television appearances.

Also today, Scheidler will be giving a demonstration of his sidewalk counseling techniques at the Women's Pavilion on St. Louis Bldv. from 4 to 5:30 p.m. It is this technique, in particular, for which Scheidler has drawn much fire.

"Sidewalk counseling is a procedure, the goal of which is to offer assistance to women before they enter the abortion clinic," Smith said. "Scheidler has helped thousands of women have babies by stopping them before they go into the clinic and by telling them that help is available at a care center."

"Sidewalk counseling is not like demonstrating or picketing which are directly concerned with making a statement before the media," she said.

Hurricane Juan swamps Gulf area

Associated Press

MORGAN CITY, La. - Unexpected Hurricane Juan wobbled ashore and stalled again yesterday, knocking down a third oil rig as its heavy rain and 85 mph winds whipped offshore waves 20 feet high and drove tides up to 10 feet above normal against inland levees.

At least three people were dead and four missing, including three believed trapped in a drilling rig that toppled in a marsh. Approximately 160 people had been rescued from rigs and boats in the Gulf of Mexico and adjacent waters over three days, the Coast Guard said.

By 3 p.m. CST, however, Juan's winds diminished to 65 mph, and the National Weather Service downgraded it to a tropical storm. At 5 p.m., the poorly defined center of Juan was estimated to be near latitude 30.4 north, longitude 92.1 west, near Lafayette, La.

Displaced snakes, including poisonous water moccasins, and balls of stinging fire ants floated through some flooded streets.

The storm, which surprised forecasters when it strengthened into a hurricane Sunday and then stalled for a day just off the coast, came ashore and then stalled near Lafayette.

By noon, winds on land had gusted to 40 mph and heavy bands of rain extended from the Gulf south of Mobile, Ala., to Jackson, Miss., and as far east as Florida.

Offshore, winds were clocked at 85 mph and kicked up 20-foot waves at noon, seven hours after Juan moved ashore near here, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Gary Stark.

Tornadoes spun out of the rain clouds at Laurel, Miss., and Orange Beach, Ala., damaging trees, a barn and a trailer home at Laurel and a store and car at Orange Beach. In Florida, a tornado caused minor damage to the Panama City suburb of Calloway, and rain flooded streets in Jacksonville, on the Atlantic coast. Southeastern Texas had gotten almost 7.25 inches of rain since Sunday.

Use bricks to build foundation; don't throw them at each other

Today's student leaders are a different breed from the ones I knew as a freshman.

Then, if for only one brief shining moment, Notre Dame had leaders who were making a difference.

The clouds have covered the campus again though. Students are right back where they started. The eternal truth is that students are hostages to the quality of leadership available. More often than not, few really qualified leaders are at the helm of student government organizations; however, my freshman year was one time when people of vision, not politicians, used constructive methods for beneficial change.

At a time when Healy-Haters and Bill-Bashers are gathering signatures to oust the student body president, I thought I would share with 50 percent of the student body not here two years ago some of the actions and characteristics of the then student leaders.

Former Judicial Coordinator Bob Gleason, a catalytic agent for student rights, took the Judicial Council from a skeleton of an organization and built it over the course of a year into a responsive vehicle to address disciplinary matters.

Among his credits, and I could list many having covered the council for The Observer during his term of office, Gleason held a Judicial Council Workshop to teach judicial hall members how to conduct a trial. Former Dean of Students Roemer even gave a talk to the 100 hall council members present.

Gleason began an aggressive campaign to inform students of their rights. Gleason got Roemer to clarify ambiguous points in du Lac and offered parietals policy alternatives to the administration. He even began a newsletter to keep council members informed. Under Gleason, the concept of a students' rights manual began to be formulated.

Another leader who performed his duties well was former Student Senator Dave McAvoy who lead the fight to win a series of minor victories for students' needs.

In an Observer commentary, Mark Worscheh, former managing editor of The Observer, noted McAvoy's success on the "parking lot issues" which are "the little things student government workers do to make life for the rest of us a little better."

McAvoy, impressive in speech and in deed, got more phones placed in the basement of Memorial Library. Having the phones installed took four months of working through the bureaucratic obstacles. McAvoy, along with others, helped make the Mock Convention and the student protest to the alcohol policy much stronger events than had he not been present.

Joe Murphy

The phone installation was one of several minor changes which occurred only because a student took the time to do it.

These two leaders symbolize an era when leaders worked hard, expected and received little applause, tenaciously pursued set goals and most importantly shared a vision of what should and could be done. They were student workers as much as student leaders.

Today's leaders are the wrong people in the wrong place at the wrong time working for all the wrong reasons.

Unfortunately, Gleason and McAvoy are not here to make things right.

I am sure, though, there are many on this campus who, like Gleason and McAvoy, prefer to build people and institutions up rather than tear them down. In the weeks ahead, it will become increasingly clear who throws bricks and who uses those bricks to lay the foundation for future leadership.

The solution to rebuilding student government rests in putting the right people in the right place at the right time for the right reasons. Success ultimately becomes a question of motives, and for too long the motives of student leaders have been questionable. Students, such as McAvoy and Gleason, may not have been right always, but their intentions were always beyond question.

Student government needs students who care about the success of student goals more than personal desires, who fight for what is right rather than what is expedient, and who are too busy improving themselves and the organizations which they lead to attack others.

This, though, is not to suggest Notre Dame is without such student leaders today. That would be unfair to many leaders who do care, who do work hard, who do do the job the way it should be done. In fact, they are the ones who have kept student government from total collapse. I only hope they will be there to pick up the pieces and rebuild in the weeks ahead.

Apartheid: the Notre Dame Response, was the topic of a panel discussion last night at Flanner Hall. The three speakers were, left to right, Professor Peter Walshe, Father Oliver Williams and Professor Lee Tavis. Story below.

Panel reviews apartheid options

By ELLYN MASTAKO
 Staff Reporter

Notre Dame's role in South Africa was discussed by a panel in Flanner Hall last night.

Professor Peter Walshe, one of three panelists, began with a discussion of his views on the apartheid system. Walshe, a South African native, spoke of his country's plight.

"Those who are pro-investment don't realize the powerlessness of the blacks in South Africa and the high infant mortality rate. It's easy under the dome and in Corby Hall to argue, 'let's give the South African government a little more time to change.'"

He continued, "They have to realize that the black protests began in 1912, and the United States has been condemning the apartheid since 1948.

"The issues are no longer micro-issues like integration of toilets. They are now macro-issues. We are moving into a period where increasing white repression will lead to increasing black resistance and escalated violence."

Father Oliver Williams, associate professor of management, and another panelist, told of his involvement with the apartheid issue, which began with an interest in the ethics of investments in South Africa. As he sees it, there are two schools of thought with regard to investments in South Africa.

First, is the theory that if Notre Dame divests, it will make an economic impact on the companies that are in South Africa, and they will, in turn, disinvest in South Africa. This disinvestment would have an economic impact on the country and, it is hoped, cause the country to come to a speedy, and satisfactory change in political systems.

The other theory suggests Notre Dame should try to use the corporate power that it has as stockholders, and try to advance human rights and abolish apartheid.

He told of the abolition of apartheid in the South African workplace. Blacks are in management positions and are receiving equal pay; in wider society, however, things are quite different. Even black executives are forced to live in black neighborhoods that have slum conditions.

Williams said, "The issue is, 'Is corporate power enough to dismantle apartheid? If so, stay. If not, divest."

He does not agree with Walshe's strategy of divestiture. Instead, Williams believes that the best chance for change lies within the multinational corporate structure.

"Businesses are the most progressive vehicles in alleviating the apartheid system," he said, at which point Walshe interrupted, saying that the Black protestors are actually the most progressive vehicles for alleviating the apartheid system.

Williams concluded, "The University's divestiture would do nothing because other investors would simply move in. Investors might be less sympathetic to the anti-apartheid cause. I feel that the policy at Notre Dame of selective divestiture is the moral policy."

Lee Tavis, professor of finance and business economics, was the third panelist. He taught in South Africa and told of his contact with its citizens, especially an aging revolutionary named Ernest. He told of terrorist training for black South Africans by the Russians and the Chinese.

Accountancy chair set up

Special to The Observer

The Vincet and Rose Lizzadro Chair in Accountancy has been established at Notre Dame by the late couple's son, an Oak Park, IL, insurance executive who graduated from the University in 1933.

"It is especially fitting that Dominic Lizzadro has chosen to honor his parents and the University with the gift of an endowed chair," said Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., Notre Dame president. "His parents were hardworking people at whose core was their love of family. Their belief in the value of education is joined in this chair with Notre Dame's mission to offer higher learning as a foundation in life."

Vincent Lizzadro emigrated to the United States from Baragiano, Italy, in 1912 at his wife's persuasion. Leaving behind his land holdings in Italy, he settled in Chicago to work as a railroad laborer. His wife and three children joined him in Chicago in 1914.

In 1919 the family opened the Lizzadro Bakery at 2130 W. Polk St., where they also occupied the upstairs living quarters. Lizzadro retired from the bakery business in 1951 at the age of 71 and moved his family to Oak Park. He died in 1958; his wife died 16 years later.

After receiving an accounting degree from Notre Dame in 1933, Dominic Lizzadro worked as an examiner for the Illinois Insurance Department. In 1949 he formed his own company, Industrial Fire and Casualty, Oak Park, and retired this year as its president.

Women excel in business world

Special to The Observer

More women than ever before are achieving high-level positions in the business world. But what skills and values are helping them reach the top?

Because business is now the most popular major at Saint Mary's, Jack Ruhe, professor and chairman of the business department, was interested in finding the answers to that question.

He and Rita Fritz, president of Corporate Systems and Images, a South Bend-based firm, surveyed 1,400 top-level women executives nationwide. Seventy-six percent of the women who responded were vice-presidents or above, and 14 percent were presidents or chairmen of the board.

Ruhe said he discovered an important ingredient in the success of women was their realization that no one, man or woman, succeeds the first time.

"Only by learning from mistakes," Ruhe said, "can a person develop the self-confidence he or she needs to advance in business. And sometimes that is a hard fact for women to accept."

"Most managers of businesses are men, and women do not naturally have the skills men are looking for," Ruhe continued. "That's because women have not had the same socialization men have had."

"For example women have not had the practice in risk-taking that men have had in the dating process, and women have not experienced the self-confidence through competitive team play to the extent that men have."

The top ten skills listed by the respondents which helped them through the ranks were: building trust with superiors, learning from experience, self-confidence, writing persuasively, managing time well, understanding corporate priorities, sensing what information is needed, planning work, implementing what needs to be done, and asserting authority when needed.

The top skills listed in retaining their positions were: being self-confident, understanding the "big picture," building trust with superiors and subordinates, understanding corporate priorities, selecting key subordinates, sensing what information is needed and how to solve problems, asserting authority when needed, delegating to appropriate persons, managing time well, and developing a climate of teamwork.

Non-Varsity Athletics announced its "all-nighter" at the ACC, which will take place the evening of Nov. 15 through the morning of Nov. 16. All facilities will be open to students, according to Sally Derengowski, assistant director of NVA.

NVA is sponsoring the social/sporting event in order to give students a chance to do something different. Derengowski added that all facilities, including the ice rink (after 6 p.m.) and the newly completed natatorium will be open for use.

HPC also heard from Student Activities Board's Fun Outside Before It Snows spokesman Chris Ryan.

New 'slim disease' linked to AIDS

Associated Press

NEW YORK - A new fatal disease that is linked to the AIDS virus and produces extreme weight loss has been found in heterosexuals in Africa, where it has become known as "slim disease."

"Although slim disease resembles AIDS in many ways, it seems to be a new entity," its discoverers wrote in the Oct. 19 issue of The Lancet, a British medical journal.

AIDS and slim disease share many of the same symptoms, the researchers report, but AIDS does not generally produce the extreme weight loss and diarrhea seen in slim disease.

Victims of slim disease are not as likely to exhibit the swollen lymph glands and the rare cancer called Kaposi's sarcoma, both common features of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, in American and European homosexuals, the researchers said.

Sixty-three of 71 patients with slim disease showed evidence of infection with the AIDS virus. Studies are under way to determine why evidence of the virus did not appear in all patients, said the researchers, who include Dr. Anne Bayley of University Hospital in Lusaka, Zambia and Dr. Robin Weiss of the Institute of Cancer Research in London.

The disease, found in Uganda and believed to have originated in Tanzania, differs not only from AIDS in America but also from the heterosexual form of AIDS seen in neighboring Zaire, the researchers said. Slim disease occurs predominantly in promiscuous heterosexuals.

A separate case of what appears to be slim disease was found in London in one patient who did not have evidence of infection with the AIDS virus, often designated HTLV-III. That patient, however, did carry an AIDS-like virus that has been isolated and is now under study, the researchers said.

Not all researchers believe that slim disease is a new illness, said Dr. Timothy Dondero of the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"It sounds to me like a variant of ARC (aids-related complex), a poorly defined collection of conditions which are related to HTLV-III infection," Dondero said. He said that he could not comment in detail because he had not yet seen the article in The Lancet.

House approves bill for Pentagon budget

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The House yesterday approved a bill authorizing a record Pentagon budget for the current fiscal year after some liberal Democrats dropped complaints that had delayed the measure for three months.

The bill, approved by voice vote, authorizes Defense Department spending of $302.5 billion in the fiscal year that started Oct. 1. That will buy thousands of planes, ships, tanks and other weapons, but it also halves President Reagan's MX nuclear missile program from 100 to 50 of the 10-warhead weapons.

It also permits development of new chemical weapons for the first time since 1969, although money to actually pay for the project was stripped last week from a companion spending bill. Those funds will have to be restored on the floor or else the Army could not build the nerve gas bombs and artillery shells.

The Senate approved the authorization measure 94-5 three months ago, shortly after it emerged from a House-Senate conference committee called to resolve 1,200 differences between the versions passed by the Democratic-controlled House and Republican-run Senate.

But some House liberals were unhappy with the bill, arguing that House members of the conference committee, led by Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., made too many concessions.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., said yesterday the position of the House was not well-represented in the conference committee.

For example, the House originally voted for a $292 billion Pentagon budget, but the conferees accepted the Senate-approved $302.5 billion.

Reagan has said he supports the measure, even though it limits the increase in defense spending to the expected inflation rate. Last year's authorized Pentagon budget was $292 billion and Reagan had originally sought a 5.9 percent hike beyond inflation, to about $320 billion.

Frank said procurement reforms approved by the House "were unrecognizable" when the conference committee changed them and noted that while the Senate voted for 50 MX weapons, the House approved 40 and the conferees accepted 50.

Still to come is a major fight over separate legislation that actually appropriates the money for the authorized spending. The House was scheduled to begin floor consideration today of a bill appropriating $292 billion for the Pentagon this year.

The authorization bill had been scheduled for a floor vote in early August, shortly before a month-long recess, but was delayed because of the complaints from some House liberals.

After the recess, Aspin and other Democratic leaders worked behind the scenes to deal with the complaints.

At one point, Aspin had promised a separate floor vote on the chemical weapons issue, but that was refused last week by the House Rules Committee.

Under congressional procedures, bills sent to the House or Senate floor by a conference committee must be voted on as a package and amendments are not permitted.

Lock wait continues; reopening 8 days away

Associated Press

THOROLD, Ontario - With a reopening deadline eight days away, the number of ships delayed by a damaged lock in the Welland Canal grew yesterday as workers hastened repairs to the vital link in the blocked St. Lawrence Seaway.

Gay Hensley, a spokeswoman for the Canadian St. Lawrence Seaway Authority in Ottawa, said 110 ships have now informed the seaway they are waiting to pass through the Welland Canal when it reopens.

AP Graphic

That compares to approximately 65 ships waiting to move through before the authority announced last Thursday a Nov. 6 tentative reopening.

Most ships are moored in the 26-mile long canal, some are at anchorages on either end of the canal in lakes Erie or Ontario, while others are tied up at harbors along the seaway, which links the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean.

Hensley said 63 of the ships waiting to pass through the canal are westbound, while the other 47 are eastbound.

With shippers losing an estimated $10,000 to $20,000 per ship each day and the blockage passing its 15th day yesterday the financial repercussions of the canal blockage loom large. Several Canadian shipping firms have filed notices of their intentions to hold the authority responsible for their losses.

Shippers and those who rely on the shipping business are losing in excess of $1 million a day because of the delay, officials said.

Hensley said authorities will not know the cost of the repairs until the job is completed.

General Motors Corp. for one, did not wait for the Welland to reopen to get a stamping press on its way to a plant in Mansfield, Ohio. A barge carrying part of the machinery bypassed the Welland by way of the shallow New York State Barge Canal from Oswego, N.Y., arriving in the Buffalo suburb of Tonawanda, N.Y. Monday night. The press is to be shipped across Lake Erie to Cleveland for trucking to Mansfield.

A tugboat that pushed the barge began a return trip through the barge canal, formerly the Erie Canal, on yesterday to pick up another barge-load of machinery at Oswego.

On the Welland, workers continued clearing debris from the floor of Lock No. 7, which was disabled Oct. 14 when a 180-foot long section of concrete wall collapsed.

Paper: Sakharov's wife to be freed

Associated Press

MOSCOW - Yelena Bonner, wife of Nobel Peace Prize laureate Andrei Sakharov, will be released from exile in the Soviet Union and allowed to go to the West for medical treatment, a Soviet journalist said yesterday.

If the report is true, it could signal a reversal of Kremlin policy toward Sakharov, the country's best known dissident, and his wife.

The West German newspaper Bild reported Monday that Bonner, 60, would be allowed to leave the Soviet Union immediately. Soviet journalist Victor Louis, who has close ties with Soviet officials, said he believed the report was authentic and that the United States was her likely destination.

The Sakharovs were exiled to Gorky in 1980 and have been isolated there since last year, when Sakharov went on a hunger strike to try and get permission for his wife to be treated abroad for eye and heart ailments.

Bonner had been allowed to make trips to Moscow until last year when she reportedly was sentenced to five years exile on a charge of spreading anti-Soviet slander and was forced to remain in Gorky.

In Newton, Mass., Bonner's son-in-law could not confirm the reports, but said, "If she is about to leave, I would expect this to happen today or tomorrow."

Efrem Yankelevich, who is married to Bonner's daughter, Tatiana, added that if Sakharov remained in Gorky, "as soon as she has finished medical treatment she will go back to him."

Since Bonner was reported sentenced in August 1984, Louis has been almost the only source of information about the Sakharovs. Louis has supplied media in the West with videotapes of the Sakharovs in Gorky.

Asked about the West German newspaper's report, Louis said, "As far as I am concerned it is authentic, that she will be allowed to go, that it will not be a one-way ticket, that it is up to her when and where."

Asked where Bonner might go, Louis said she may go to the United States, or to Italy, where she underwent treatment for glaucoma in 1975, 1977 and 1979.

Aftershock shakes Mexico City

Associated Press

MEXICO CITY - A strong tremor lasting about 25 seconds struck this capital city of 18 million residents on Tuesday, shaking loose debris from last month's killer quake and jangling nerves still tense from the earlier ordeal.

The quake, considered yet another aftershock of the Sept. 19 quake that killed 7,000 people, hit at 9:02 a.m. and was felt as far away as Guatemala, about 950 miles to the south.

The only injuries reported were 10 people suffering from what the Red Cross called "nervous crisis" who panicked and ran away from a building that was badly damaged in last month's quake.

Associated Press photographer Valente Cotera, reporting from the site at the intersection of Eduardo Molina and the Northern 1 Thoroughfare in eastern Mexico

City, said the victims suffered bruises when they fell while running. Little new damage to the building was visible.

The Sept. 19 earthquake, measuring 8.1 on the Richter scale, collapsed or severely damaged about 3,000 buildings. It was followed the next day by a quake measuring 7.5 on the Richter scale.

Since then, dozens of lesser tremors have hit the capital without causing damage. Tuesday's tremor, stronger than most, registered at least 5.5.

Mayor Ramon Aguirre, in the first of what the government said will be a series of reports on the devastation, said Monday night that 720,000 tons of rubble have been carted from the city so far. He said food has been provided to more than 50,000 homeless people still living in temporary shelters or camps.

Many who escaped with only their lives last month also lost their jobs or were already unemployed.

President Miguel de la Madrid has said the damage in September was so vast that it will take years for reconstruction to be completed.

On Tuesday, lamps swayed and ceiling tiles fell in some already damaged buildings. Clouds of dust billowed from ruins of the previous quakes. Debris fell in buildings hit earlier.

The government news agency Notimex said the National Seismological Laboratory recorded the quake as registering 5.7 on the Richter scale with its epicenter 235 miles west of the capital in the Pacific off of Michoacan state.

The U.S. geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the quake had a magnitude of 5.5.

that toppled in a marsh near Hope dale.

"We don't know a lot about it," Coast Guard Petty Officer Stacey Jaudon said. "We are told that there were four men aboard, and the rig master is the only one who escaped."

Three of the missing were aboard crewboats that foundered in the Gulf on Monday, and an unidentified wind surfer was unaccounted for in Lake Pontchartrain north of New Orleans.

Five men aboard the 100-foot boat Gary Ellen, blown adrift in 20-foot seas when its tow line snapped, were found yesterday afternoon, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Keith Spangler.

One oil rig sank out in the Gulf. Another went adrift and was blown into a second rig Monday, forcing 82 people to take to escape capsule life boats; one man drowned.

On land, up to 10 inches of rain had fallen over most of southern Louisiana over three days and Juan blew in flood tides of up to 10 feet, flooding communities lying outside levees that ring the cities.

Louisiana Office for Emergency Preparedness operations officer D.C. Jensen said he believed more than 2,000 people had fled their homes.

But many coastal roads were flooded as early as Saturday night and hundreds were stranded.

At Lafitte, water floated coffins out of mausoleums, and a Morgan City shelter for evacuees had to be evacuated itself.

An estimated 5,000 to 6,000 Mississippians fled coastal lowlands yesterday officials said, and Gov. Bill Allin declared a state of emergency.

What fellow domer would you like in jail?

LYNNE R. STRAND
features writer

Has anybody ever gotten you so mad that you wanted to do something dirty to them? Haven't you ever wanted to see them in some trouble, with the police or campus security? Your day has come. This is the chance you've been waiting for.

The United Way's annual campaign to raise money at Notre Dame/Saint Mary's kicked off Monday and its activities include a way to lock up your worst enemy, or best friend.

Student government is sponsoring the campaign, along with the Student Activities Board, class governments, Notre Dame Security, Alumni-Senior Club, and each dorm. It will run until Saturday. "This is an opportunity for students to contribute to the community they live in," said Co-chairman Mike Huber. "This will be a focus for students."

Organizer John Kunz describes this "Lock Up a Friend" as a fun time. "One person can pay $5 to arrest anyone on campus." Security will arrest your friend and "hold them in the 'drunk cell' at the bottom of the football stadium." The 'prisoner' can make as many phone calls as he wants to raise bail - another $5.

The Lock Up runs from 7 to 9:30 p.m., "but if the prisoner hasn't found someone to post bail by 10," added Kunz, "the Security guard will let him out then."

Lock Up a Friend began last night and will continue tonight, as well as next week on Wednesday and Thursday. Applications are now being distributed in the dorms and Lafortune Student Center and must be turned in at the Security office by 6 p.m. on the night of the requested arrest.

It was Director of Security Rex Rakow who first suggested Lock Up to Student Body President Bill Healy. "Security has given us a lot of support, but we (student government) will run it," said Kunz.

"We hope to get a snowballing effect and get the Lock Up going by Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Those will be the big days," he added.

United Way

Another captivating attraction planned for this week is the Halloween Horror Story Marathon, boasting such campus notables as Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson, Executive Vice President Father William Beauchamp, and Vice President of University Relations William Sexton.

Domers will not, however, be hearing their president read any eerie phrases, as Father Hesburgh will be out of town.

Students are also invited to read provided horror stories for 20-minute time slots. All students who want to participate should sign up by Thursday with organizer Laurie Hellert.

This event will be located in a tent in front of South Dining Hall on Thursday from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. While "goblins" serve marshmallows and doughnuts, people can donate money or merely pledge their United Way contributions.

Another horrifying event for many, eliminations for the all-dorm Tug-of-War Tournament, begin Monday. Each dorm will need 10 representatives for its team in order to play. There will also be a qualifying $20 fee.

This will not be another Billy Jean King vs. Bobby Riggs showdown as men and women's dorms will not be competing against each other. The Friday finale will feature the best north and south quad teams pulling for trophies.

Other "spirited" events in the United Way Campaign include door-to-door donations which ended today, a donation night at the Alumni-Senior Club, gift check sales, the showings of the movies "Hot Dog" and "From Russia With Love," and a senior class cocktail party. The final event is entitled "Dance Your Class Off."

In conjunction with the campaign, the Student Activities Board will be sponsoring the event everyone will want to attend - the Halloween Costume Party. For a $1 donation to United Way, students can not only party, they can also win a prize every 15 minutes. A grand prize will be awarded for the best costume. South Dining Hall will be spooked out Thursday night from 9:30 to 12:30.

The SAB is also scheduling a Lip Sync Contest tentatively set for the second week in November. Watch out Kevin Herbert, there could be another Bruce in the wings!

By giving to the United Way, "you're helping your community," co-chairman Bob McNamara said, for this drive is "the basic fundraising that supports activities in South Bend."

"It's much more efficient for one big group to support the other

He expressed hopes that the student government raise more money than $7400 they raised last year.

Co-chairman Huber added, "We just want everyone to give what

Joyride through time

The National Theatre of the Deaf brought its innovative production to Washington Hall last night with their performance of two short stories, Akutagawa's "In A Grove" and E.B. White's "Farewell, My Lovely." The most remarkable aspect of the performance lay in the blending of sign language with the spoken word. These elements were brought out by a lively and animated cast who delighted the audience of nearly 200.

The first piece performed by this renowned company was "In a Grove" which Akutagawa adapted from a traditional Japanese folk tale. It is the story of a murder which was shrouded in deception. The audience is presented with three conflicting testimonies, one of them from the victim himself, while the other two are from his wife and his murderer. Through this dramatic device the audience is appointed as both judge and jury in this thriller.

This tale challenges one to look beyond the surface meaning of the dialogue and to determine the motivational forces which act on the characters. Akutagawa portrays man as a victim of passion, as one driven by love, lust, hate, fear, and jealousy. On this tumultuous foundation men must build their lives, trying to deal with this ambiguity inherent in their existence.

The second piece performed, "Farewell, My Lovely" is based on a short story by America's beloved humorist E.B. White. This production takes a whimsical look at human nature while celebrating old time Americana. It is a joyful tribute to the old Ford Model T, the first mass-produced automobile in America, recapturing the spirit of freedom and elation which this new invention gave its proud owners. Of his salute to Americana White said that he intended "to revisit, to try old places and other times in the hope of tasting again the sweet sorrow of parting."

"To try old places and other times in the hope of tasting again the sweet sorrow of parting."

The NTD company stresses that they are a Theatre of the Deaf, not for the deaf. The subject matter they deal with is as relevant as the style in which they convey it. Their audiences, made up predominantly of hearing individuals, enjoy the speech and music as well as the stimulating visual effects, which of course include sign language. The National Theatre of the Deaf offers a rare and beautiful synthesis of the visual and literary arts.

ND financial well-being has priority over morality

Notre Dame has approved a new investment policy dealing with South Africa. In all reality, the new policy is only the old policy with a new stipulation; that corporations in

across the eighth dimension

which Notre Dame invests that also invest in South Africa adhere to a new version of the Sullivan Principles that demand the corporations "take an active part in talking the South African government out of apartheid." The Board of Trustees must not have yet realized that talking to the South African government has not done, and will not do, any substantial good in abolishing apartheid. Constructive engagement has only produced token reforms by the white power structure and no real movement toward the abolishment of apartheid.

I wonder if the administration and the Board watch the same news on South Africa as I do. If they do, they must wear rose colored glasses when they do. They see a move towards reform and the need for Notre Dame to keep its investments in South Africa to help the process along. I see riot police firing rubber bullets into a crowd of mourners for another victim of endless violence. I see police jumping out of boxes on a truck, a new twist to the "Trojan horse," and firing shotguns indiscriminately at a band of youths. They see reform and an eventual end to apartheid. I see repression and state sanctioned racism. I see Notre Dame giving consent and recognition to an oppressive regime through its investments in South Africa.

Notre Dame prides itself in being a Catholic university and standing up for justice. But this must be pushed aside when money is somehow involved. Notre Dame's financial well-being takes priority over its moral obligation to condemn South Africa and break all ties with this nation. Instead of listening to their hearts, the administration and the Board listen to their collective wallets when the subject is South Africa.

Many reasons are offered by University President Father Theodore Hesburgh for why Notre Dame should not divest from South Africa. He says that we will lose all our influence over the South African government if we were to divest. Unfortunately Hesburgh, we have little if any, influence over what the whites in South Africa will do concerning apartheid. I wonder if the administration is afraid to divest from South Africa, if they are afraid to take the lead in the fight against apartheid by divesting. Notre Dame should show moral courage and fortitude by deciding that Notre Dame will no longer be associated with a nation that advocates racism and uses violence to hold the oppressed of South Africa down. Columbia University has become the first major university to completely divest from South Africa. Notre Dame should be the next to do so.

I have been appalled by the actions of Student Body President Bill Healy in regards to representing student interests on South Africa. He will not stand up to the administration and tell them flat out that the student body does not support the policy. But Healy has decided to weakly submit to the administration and dismissed those two, John Dettling and Pat Baccinari, who stood up to the administration and demanded to know the specifics of Notre Dame's investment policy. Healy is not willing, and far from able, to stand up for the interests of the students.

I applaud the efforts of Professor Peter Walshe in the fight to have Notre Dame divest from South Africa. He is an eloquent and passionate man who is not afraid to say what is true. He has more knowledge of the situation in South Africa and what should be done with it than any in the administration or on the Board of Trustees.

The time is now to divest and move away from South Africa. Notre Dame must now admit that constructive engagement has, and always will be, useless in dismantling apartheid. If Notre Dame continues to support apartheid through investment in South Africa, the Catholic reputation may be seriously damaged. The glow of the golden dome of Notre Dame tarnished by this support of injustice.

Women of the 80's are putting limits on themselves

The "typical SMC Chic", we all know her very well. She is introduced to us during the first weeks of freshman year. I met her at my first SYR. She was painted on the walls of the dorm, in cartoon form. I didn't really understand it at the time, but my date assured me that it was just a joke. The "joke" explicitly stated that a Saint Mary's girl comes to Notre Dame to meet the "perfect" domer in order to marry him, and create the happy home for him the rest of his life. Although my 40-hours-per-week summers and the withdrawals from my father's savings account, would beg to differ: $40,000 is a lot to pay - even for the perfect domer; the stereotype survives, proving the "ring by spring" cliché is alive and well.

Jeanne Grammens

ask not

Students all over the country meet their future spouses during their college years. This is not unique to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. The assumption that a woman would spend four years of her life just to obtain a husband is ridiculous. Therefore, we must realize that the stereotype is a joke. The problem on hand (not the left one mind you) is that many women react to these "jokes" in ways that are going to hurt them more in the long run.

I have sensed a growing attitude among women in the 1980s. This attitude is expressed in classrooms, in movies, in advertising, in daily conversations. The attitude is similar to a chip on our shoulders, and we all know who gets weighed down by the chip. The Virginia Slims ad captures the attitude well: "You've come a long way baby," and you'd better not blow it. In other words, if we exhibit any qualities labeled as "feminine," we are afraid we will lose the ground we have gained. We cannot be afraid to show our feminine qualities. Well, in exaggerated efforts not to "blow it," in efforts to escape from the restrictions of the past, women are coming dangerously close to restricting themselves; this time, we will not have the men to blame.

In the past, roles were defined for women, and very few dared to cross the line that society drew for them. As our great grandmothers will tell us, a woman knew her place, it was in the home. In the home, a woman's creative, communicative and organizational skills were limited. Growth wasn't impossible, but it was limited. Society dictated that a "real woman" got married (22 was considered an old maid), raised a family and made her man happy. She could not expect to become as educated as a man, or dare to work outside the home. Not only did the "woman's place" stifle her potential, but the roles society defined for women were also confining. In the past, an entire list of etiquettes defined interaction between men and women. Women were put on pedestals, and were expected to stay there. On these pedestals, women were treated like helpless, empty-headed species who were not capable of participation in the "man's world." Through society's definitions of femininity, a woman's potential for internal and external growth was seldom realized. Women of the past were not challenged to be all that they could be.

So what did women do about it? In the 20th century, they got the vote, they entered the workforce and then they burned their bras. Hey, we got lucky. The women of our past opened many doors for us. But where they opened a heavy oak door, we are closing a steel one.

In reaction to the fear of suffering the same limitations of our ancestors, women in the 1980s are re-defining the terms of femininity. According to many college women, it is only acceptable to strive for a career. Homemaking is not a choice in this definition of a career. We are telling ourselves that in order to obtain our career, we must abandon the qualities that might be labeled as feminine. We must be aggressive, not meek; strong, not weak; independent, not dependent; unreachable, not vulnerable; logical, not emotional; insensitive, not sensitive. In fact, the closer a woman resembles the qualities once labeled "masculine," the more successful she can become.

In the past, a woman was only successful if she had a family and managed to care for its every need. The new definition of success is a six letter word: "career." We are merely redefining our "place" once again. We have become intolerable of any woman who feels she could realize her potential in another area, such as caring for a home and children. Just because we fear the past, is not a reason to fit ourselves into another mold. By denying a woman or any human being the opportunity to realize their potential, whether it be in basketweaving, or in weight lifting, is to stick them into a limiting stereotype.

Women fought many years to escape the limiting, defined roles society dictated to them. Now we are replacing them with new ones. Women are so afraid of regressing, that they are losing sight of the original problem: escaping any restrictions which stifled our growth. Women today are redefining the chains of restriction, when they stress the ultimate importance of having a career, being aggressive, assertive, professional and tough. The opportunities for women today are endless, but the restrictions are coming from a source we never would have imagined. To do our ancestors proud, to finish their liberating efforts, the women in the 1980s must not confine themselves to any stifling definitions.

Hurley's parents thank community for support

Dear Editor:

So many times I have started this letter never satisfied with the way it comes together. There are no eloquent ways to convey our appreciation for the response of the Notre Dame community to our recent family tragedy. Notre Dame is a very special community. Together with people from Saint Mary's you have sustained us all through your presence, your prayers and your ever-vigilant sensitivity to our practical needs and emotional ups and downs.

The selfless love and prayerful reaching-out we experienced seem unending and continue to touch us as even now letters, cards, and announcements of events in Kevin's behalf reach us. There is no question in our minds that Kevin is able to continue his fight for recovery because of Divine intervention in response to the earnest prayers raised in his behalf. Although he remains comatose at this time, you would be proud of his apparent determination.

His future is in the hands of Our Lord and we have long anxious months ahead as we endure the uncertainties of his progress and limitations. We are comforted by you all and pray that Kevin may someday return to Notre Dame as part of God's plan for him.

Know that we regularly read your cards and letters over and over to Kevin. With all you wonderful people pulling for him, Kevin can only win. We all shall win as Christ is among us.

ND students should be tolerant of government

Dear Editor:

In student government, Bill Healy is my boss. More importantly, he is a close friend. Although these facts will make any opinion of mine quite biased, they also provide me a valuable insight into the current situation asking for a recall election.

Impeachment of a student official, just as of a government official, is a serious accusation. Thus, it should be enacted only after careful consideration. Only three areas come to mind that, found lacking, could possible warrant such a drastic measure: integrity, motivation and ability.

After surviving the most scrutinized campaign without a blemish, Healy's integrity would seem to command great respect. His recent encounters with The Observer, the Student Senate, and the Anti-Apartheid Network illustrate his forthright nature that presents his position in very certain and honest terms.

To find a more motivated person to accept the duties of student body president would be a very difficult task. Healy spent both his summer vacation and his October break working on student government affairs. He can be found in his office at least thirty hours a week. In addition, he spends countless hours away from the office performing his duties. Very few, if any, can boast of this dedication to any job, much less an unpaid one.

I cannot attempt to list the accomplishments of the present administration. The highlights, however, are obvious. The student support for the Hurley family was overwhelming; student government accepted the role of organizing it to produce maximum benefit. The Board of Trustees is looking into a possible overpass or underpass linking the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses at the request of student government. A minority concerns committee is opening debate into how to best alleviate special problems faced by minorities on campus. A student government leadership conference brought new insights into the role of student government on campus. The United Way fundraising drive is underway at this very moment. Clearly, much has been accomplished already for this administration, especially when compared to previous ones. No reason exists to suggest that this active role will not continue.

The integrity, motivation, and ability of Healy is unquestionable in my mind as well as in those of whom that know him well. Impeachment does not seem the best way to solve the turmoil that is involving many different student activities this semester. Tolerance and cooperation would work much better than conflict and discord.

Support for petition urged by the organizers

Dear Editor:

On the last Wednesday before break, a group of concerned students gathered together to discuss what could be done about the current shambles called student government. Specifically, they discussed how to jolt the leadership so that some new air could be blown into a seemingly stagnant room. They worked out a solution, and that evening spread out among other students on this campus. In less than 18 hours they gathered over 600 students' names on a petition to recall the student body president and vice president. In terms of their goal, they reached the 50 percent mark in less than a day.

At this critical moment, we continue our petition drive and encourage discussion of the issues involved in this recall. To those ends, a round-table discussion between Bill Healy, Duane Lawrence and other students has been conceived and arranged. That student discussion will convene Wednesday evening in Hayes-Healy. We urge all to attend.

We feel the round-table will provide an excellent opportunity for our efforts to be reaffirmed. We favor the forum because it will provide Healy and his administration with an opportunity to demonstrate whether or not they are willing and capable to actively voice and channel students' outrage at the childish way we are treated at this University.

We ask for your continued support if you have already offered it. We ask for your newly felt support if you care to give it. Thanks.

Idealists never learn from own past mistakes

Dear Editor:

Idealists don't learn from their mistakes. Some clamor for Notre Dame to divest itself of South African holdings. They claim it will help the oppressed. Who are they kidding?

My class at Notre Dame was very supportive of the downfall of the white minority Ian Smith government of Rhodesia. A few years later, a new group of Notre Dame students welcomed the "human rights" movement. The human righters aimed their big guns at the Shah of Iran.

Now it appears that the idealists are working for the downfall of the South African government. Idealists don't learn from their mistakes.

University must define rules and punishments

Dear Editor:

As hopefully many of you have heard by now, there was a recent parietals violation in which both students were suspended from the University. The actions of the University regarding the severity of the punishment and the ambiguity of du Lac has raised many questions which we, as students of Notre Dame, have a right to have answered.

In this case, the couple was discovered by security shortly after 5 a.m. on a night in which parietals ended at 2 a.m. The first question raised here is the University's definition of "overnight parietals violation." Du Lac only states that "Overnight parietals violations involve suspensions or dismissal." The vagueness of this statement allows the University to define for itself what is an overnight violation, something which should be clearly stated in du Lac to begin with. I mean, how many times have you heard of a student being dismissed for violating parietals by only 15 minutes? Where should the line be drawn: 1 hour, 2 hours, 6 hours? This ambiguity is not fair to the students nor to the committees reviewing such cases for disciplinary action.

The next question which must be asked is necessity of the severe punishment received by the students. There was no moral issue involved in this case, which would appear to be one of the main reasons for dismissal for a parietals violation prescribed in du Lac. Did the University actually feel that the punishment was constructive for the individuals, for Notre Dame, for people viewing Notre Dame from the outside? Maybe the University has simply lost touch with what a suspension from a university can mean. What can be more traumatic for a 18, 19 or 20-year-old than to be suspended from their university? The severity of the punishment, when weighed with the offense, seems so disproportionate that it must be questioned as an effective means of punishment for such an offense.

We must also question the University's handling of the appeal by the students. When the Judicial Review Board recommended community service after hearing the appeal, the University completely overruled the Board's recommendation and reinstated the original punishment. Does the University recognize the role of the Judicial Review Board? Certainly a compromise could have been worked out which was both disciplinary and beneficial for all involved.

Several things must be done to keep the existing problems from getting any worse:

- Du Lac must be revised. The ambiguity which resides in du Lac is not fair to the students who must live by its rules. Definitions of offenses must be clearly defined, as well as the punishments. A review of the punishments and their appropriateness to offenses committed must be done to insure that punishments are both disciplinary and beneficial to those involved.

- The University must recognize the Judicial Review Board and its function as an appeal route for students. While the University does not have to accept completely the recommendations of the Board, compromises in some situations are certainly appropriate.

By answering these questions, the University will tell the students whether it feels that the relationship which exists between the students and the University is a one way street, or if it feels that we can work together to enforce rules which are both fair and clear to all who must live by them.

Impeachment of Healy based on irrationality

Dear Editor:

It seems to me that everyone is jumping on the bandwagon to dump Bill Healy because of one issue: South Africa. I do not know much about Healy's actions on this issue, but I do know that it seems rather ridiculous that he should be so brutally attacked by a group of radicals because of this one issue. These people must be extremely bored, or they must realize that they cannot win against the administration on the South African issue, to make such a campaign against Healy.

It just seems that they are searching for an issue, cannot find one, and decide to attack Healy for kicks. He seems to be a very hard working student body president, and he seems to dive in head first on tough issues. I am not saying his timing is great, only that he is trying to make a difference. I would rather have a controversial student body president, who is trying to get some things done than someone who sits back and does nothing. For instance, I think he is right about the Student Senate, and I think that most students would agree that the senate is a joke and should be eliminated.

What I have to say to this group of students who are trying to remove Healy from office is: why don't you find some way to make a positive change at this University like he has? You may call him all kinds of names in the newspaper and you may tell your friends terrible things about him, but have you really sat down and looked at what he has tried to accomplish? Or are you too frustrated in your own inability and you need to pick on someone else to make yourself feel good? Think about it.

Cards' pitcher suspended by Ueberroth

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Joaquin Andujar will miss the first 10 days of the 1986 season under a suspension imposed yesterday by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth for the Cardinal right-hander's outburst against an umpire in the seventh game of the World Series.

"Such actions are damaging to the game and cannot be tolerated," Ueberroth said in announcing that he was fining Andujar the maximum $500.

Andujar was ejected in the fifth inning of Sunday's game in Kansas City, won by the Royals 11-0, after he charged American League umpire Don Denkinger to argue over the ump's ball and strike calls.

PERSONALS

We think, sometimes, there's not a dragon left. Not one brave knight, not a single princess gliding through secret forests, enchanting deer and butterflies with her smile.

We think sometimes that ours is an age past frontiers, past adventures. Destiny, it's way over the horizon; glowing shadows galloped past long ago, and gone.

What a pleasure to be wrong. Princesses, knights, enchantments and dragons...mystery and adventure...not only are they here-and-now, they're all that ever lived on earth!

Freshman tight end Andy Heck, shown here carrying the ball and a Southern Cal defender in last week's 37-3 Irish victory, has played a big role off the bench the past few games. John Coyle profiles the talented and enthusiastic player in his story at right.

Freshman Heck plays big role at end for ND

By JOHN COYLE
Sports Writer

Football coaches seldom expect a freshman to have a large impact on a college football team like Notre Dame. The pressure of Division I football, bigger and stronger players, and a new system to learn are all obstacles that a freshman must overcome.

Therefore, it comes as a surprise to most when a largely unknown freshman like Andy Heck is able to adjust so quickly at the collegiate level to make an important contribution to the recent victories of the Irish.

Notre Dame looked to be quite thin at the tight end position coming into this season since it had lost three of its tight ends from 1984 to graduation. Junior Tom Rehder was moved from defensive tackle to tight end last spring to help fill the void, and junior tight end Joel Williams returned to the position where he had seen a bit of action the year before. But offensive coach Mike Stock was still looking for some more help at the position when the players returned in August.

Stock believed that the 6-6, 235-pound Heck had the talent to help the team immediately but he was not sure that the young freshman could make the quick transition to major college football.

"He has good feet, good leaping ability, agility and size," says Stock. "Also, he has the flexibility to be both a receiver and a blocker. I felt that if he could acclimate himself to the system, he would play. He came in and has reached beyond our expectations and has proven himself to be a player."

The Annandale, Va. resident saw only limited action in the first few weeks of the season, but in the last two games he has seen considerable time as the backup tight end. Despite the large crowds and the pressure on the Irish to win, Heck says he is not nervous when he enters the game.

"In high school I was nervous as hell, but in college it's so fun and exciting that I'm more relaxed and really enjoy it," says Heck.

With more practice and game experience, the talented freshman can only become more valuable to the Irish. Stock believes Heck is a quick learner, who is fitting in with the team extremely well.

"It's only a matter of repetition," notes Stock, who is the offensive coordinator of the Irish. "He needs to improve on his patterns, recognizing coverages, and the blocking scheme. He's not a hollerer. He's a guy who plays with a fire inside."

"Andy is somewhat in the back as far as leadership because he's only a freshman, but he's in the forefront in competition."

Heck, meanwhile, has some definite goals for himself and the Notre Dame football team. The Sorin Hall resident has a strong desire to win and wants the Irish back in the major bowls, where he believes they belong.

"When I walked into that locker room at halftime last Saturday, winning 27-0 over U.S.C., and saw those green jerseys, I said to myself, 'this is what it should be like,' says Heck. "This is what I expected when I came to Notre Dame."

If you are a fan of the Irish football team, you most certainly have to like the way this enthusiastic freshman tight end thinks.

Pitcher Dwight Gooden (right) and catcher Gary Carter (left) of the New York Mets, shown here after a victory last season, both have been named to the 1985 AP All-Star team. For details on these two players and their "teammates" on the all-star list, see the related story below.

Gooden tops list of AP all-stars

Associated Press

NEW YORK - New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly and right-hander Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, sure to be key characters in any future Subway Series scenario, head The Associated Press' major league All-Star team.

Gooden, 24-4, was the leading vote-getter with 114 of a possible 117 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Mattingly was next with 107 votes in results announced yesterday. Mattingly's nearest rival at first base, Baltimore's Eddie Murray, had seven votes.

The closest race was for AP manager of the Year, as Whitey Herzog of the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Cincinnati Reds' Pete Rose, 44-42. Herzog managed the Cardinals to 101 victories, the National League pennant, and to within one victory of a world championship before losing to Kansas City.

Mattingly, 24, led the American League with 145 runs batted in and hit 35 homers while batting .324. His 48 doubles were the most by a Yankee since Lou Gehrig hit 52 in 1927 and Mattingly is the first AL player to lead the majors in doubles in consecutive years since Tris Speaker completed a four-year run in 1923.

"He's one of the best players I've ever seen," new Yankee Manager

Lou Piniella said of Mattingly. "Take everything into consideration, he's the best player in the league right now."

The voters left little doubt about who they considered the best pitcher: Dr. K.

Gooden, 20 years old, led the NL in victories; earned run average, 1.53; complete games, 16; innings pitched, 276 2-3; and strikeouts, 268. He also reached double figures in whiffs 11 times, running his career total to 26.

"Even when he's not getting double figures, he's amazing," said the Mets' Gary Carter of Gooden. "When he gets into trouble, how can you not be excited by what he can do to bail himself out?"

John Tudor of the St. Louis Cardinals, who rebounded from a 1-7 start and went on to win 20 of 21 decisions, beat out the Yankees' Ron Guidry 80-26 as the top left-handed pitcher.

Carter led the catchers with 75 votes, followed by the White Sox's Carlton Fisk, with 40. Carter paced the Mets with 32 homers and 100 RBI while playing on an injured knee most of the season.

Tommy Herr of St. Louis beat last year's top vote-getter, Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs, 84-30 at second base and the voters opted for offense over defense at shortstop by selecting Baltimore's Cal Ripken over St. Louis' Ozzie Smith 67-48.

Boston's Wade Boggs' .368 average and 240 hits weren't good enough, as Kansas City's George Brett won selection at third base by an 11-vote margin, 63-52.

Brett hit .335 and belted a career-high 30 homers while driving in 112 runs. He led the AL with a .585 slugging percentage while leading the Royals to a World Series title with his characteristically spectacular postseason play.

The three outfield positions went to the Cardinals' Willie McGee, with 86 votes; Rickey Henderson of the Yankees, 79 votes; and the Los Angeles Dodgers' Pedro Guerrero, 64 votes.

McGee topped the highest previous average for a NL switch-hitter with a .353 mark to lead the league. The former record by a switch-hitter in the NL was .348 by Rose in 1969 and Frankie Frisch in 1923.

The relief pitcher spot went, in a tie at 39 votes each, to Montreal's Jeff Reardon and Kansas City's Dan Quisenberry.

Detroit's Darrell Evans was voted top designated hitter, edging Oakland's Dave Kingman, 21-17. Evans led the AL with 40 homers, and at the age of 38 became the oldest player to lead the league. He was also the first major-leaguer to hit 40 homers in both leagues.

Wednesday and Thursday served as travel days for the club, which moved on to Fairbanks to play the Nanooks. Still seeking the first victory of the year, the Irish found themselves pitted against a physical club not afraid to take penalties. Tempers flared, and fifty minutes in penalties were dished out by referee Chris Walker.

The Irish responded to the challenge by grabbing the early lead when freshman Brian Montgomery scored on a feed from Mike McNeill at 7:06 of the first period. Fairbanks, however, replied with a trio of goals before the period ended. The Nanooks then scored four unanswered tallies in the middle stanza to set up Steve Whitmore's third-period clincher which made the final 9-2.

On Saturday night, the Irish offense received a pair of goals from both Mooney and McNeill, but the defense again failed to contain Fairbanks, which scored an 8-4 win. Notre Dame thus stands at 0-4 as they prepare for Friday night's home opener against Kent State. The Irish also will play the Ohio team on Saturday evening. Both games, as always, will be played under the north dome of the ACC.

Hockey

past few years. Chapman led the team in scoring last season with 36 goals and 63 total points. Reilly finished the 1984-85 campaign with 22 goals and 39 assists.

"Chapman basically led the way for kids to stay at Notre Dame," says Smith. "After dropping to club level, Brent was offered scholarships by four schools, but he felt strongly about what we were trying to accomplish and stayed on."

Chapman will play alongside of sophomore center Tom Mooney, who scored 19 goals last year. Senior right wing Jeff Badalich rounds out the first line.

The Irish also have experience along the blue line in senior defenseman Bob Thebeau who chipped in last season with 19 goals and 46 total points.

"Bob Thebeau is the key to our defensive success," notes Smith. "He was injured during our trip to Alaska and missed two games. We felt the loss deeply. He's a hard worker and hard-nosed."

Because of the injury, Thebeau's spot on the first defensive line will be taken by freshman Roy Bemiss who will skate alongside sophomore Mike McNeill. Senior Greg Duncan and sophomore Pat Foley comprise the second line, while sophomores Lance Patten and Frank O'Brien will be the third pair.

The goaltending position, however, remains unsettled. Junior Tim Lukenda (6-11-1, 6.22 goals against) and senior Marc Guay (2-3-0 6.06) return to the nets, but Jeff Henderson, a transfer from Wisconsin, and freshman Mark O'Sullivan are challenging for playing time.

"All of our goaltenders have worked hard, but none has stood out," comments Smith. "I hope that in the next few weeks the cream will rise to the top."

This year's schedule is again strong, with home-and-home series with Kent State, Michigan-Dearborn, Alabama-Huntsville and Lake Forest. In addition, the Irish have a berth in the Syracuse Invitational after Christmas.

"The schedule is outstanding," says Smith. "Everybody would like to play us. We tried to upgrade it from last year. We won't get 20 victories without stepping on the ice. Every game will be a challenge."

The teams the Irish will meet this year also reflect the philosophy of the Notre Dame hockey program, a balance between academics and athletics.

"It's an excellent schedule for our type of program," notes Smith. "We have the advantage of athletics and academics. The best salesmen for our program are our alumni - both those who have had success in the pro ranks as well as the business schools. The alumni encourage the kids to come because of what they can gain from Notre Dame."

This year Smith, who embarks upon his eighteenth season behind the boards for Notre Dame, will be aided in recruiting by new assistant coach Tom Carroll, a former assistant at Culver (Ind.) Military Academy. Aside from his recruiting duties, Carroll will also coach the forwards.

After an 0-4 road trip in Alaska, a trip Smith said was a great experience, the Irish open their home season this Friday and Saturday with a pair of games against Kent State.

countered with nineteen.

The next evening Head Coach 'Lefty' Smith's squad made a go of it against the same team, but again wound up losing by three goals. This time, the score was 5-2.

After falling behind 2-0, the Irish tried to rally around Reilly's goal at 14:25 of the first period. But Chris LeVasseur beat Guay at 18:49 to put Anchorage back up by two, and the Alaskan team never looked back.

SMC tennis team falls in Districts

By CHRISTINE FORTIN
Sports Writer

October break was supposed to be a crucial time for the Saint Mary's tennis team. Not only were the Belles playing tough opponents in the district tournament, but they needed a good showing to qualify any individual players in the national tournament.

It was not to be, however, for Saint Mary's as it fell to both Saint Francis College and Goshen College to place third in the district tournament over October break.

Because the Belles placed third in the district tournament, no one from the team will be playing in the national tournament in the spring.

"We're disappointed that no one made it to nationals," said coach Debbie Laverie. "But the girls tried hard and gave it their best. What more could a coach ask for?"

Laverie could ask for little more than what she received, for several of her players made fine attempts despite coming up short.

Two Saint Mary's singles players, No. 4 Heather Temofeew and No. 6 Charlene Szajko advanced to the final round, and Szajko was victorious in her effort to capture first place in her singles position. Szajko defeated her Goshen opponent, 6-2, 6-2, in the final round. Temofeew, however, fell to her Goshen opponent, 6-0, 6-2, in the final round, finishing in second place.

No. 3 singles player Kim Drahota advanced to the semi-finals in both singles play and, with partner Sheila Campbell, in doubles play. Drahota, both alone and with her partner, however, lost to the players who ultimately finished in first place.

The No. 1 doubles team of Brigid Heraty and Anne Dimberio also made it to the semi-final round, but fell to Goshen 7-6, 6-1.

The Notre Dame field hockey team split a four-game road trip over fall break to raise its record to 9-6-2 on the season. Today, the Irish will play host to Valparaiso at 4 p.m. at Cartier Field. Chris Starkey gives all the details at right.

Irish come home after splitting four out East

By CHRIS STARKEY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame field hockey team returns to action this afternoon as it hosts Valparaiso in a 4 p.m. contest at Cartier Field.

The game marks the team's first home appearance since Oct. 6 when it hosted Albion. Five away games later, the Irish find themselves with a respectable 9-6-2 record going into today's game, their final regular season contest.

Head Coach Jill Lindenfeld is optimistic about her team's chances against Valparaiso.

"We beat them 9-0 in a scrimmage in September," she says. "Unless they've become incredibly better over the last two months, we should have pretty good success against them."

"Also, we played the scrimmage on their field. This game is on Cartier Field, and they've never played on artificial turf. That should give us an advantage."

The Irish have had a busy week heading into the Valparaiso game. An intense East coast trip over midsemester break ended in two Notre Dame victories and two losses.

The Irish started off with an impressive 3-1 win over a competitive Wooster team. In that game, junior Corinne DiGiacomo had all three Notre Dame goals. DiGiacomo, the team's leading scorer last year, drew words of praise from Lindenfeld.

"Corinne really had a nice game," says the Irish coach. "I was quite pleased with her performance, and also with the two assists Mary Wagner had playing in a new position."

Unfortunately for the Irish, however, any momentum gained in the win over Wooster did not carry over to the next game against a very strong Trenton State team. Notre Dame suffered a 3-0 loss in that contest.

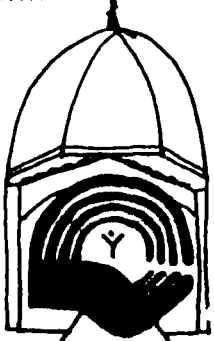

Notre Dame was able to rebound from this loss, though, and squeak by Franklin & Marshall College, 1-0. Sophomore Benet DeBerry was responsible for the lone tally in that game.

Finally, the Irish closed out the road trip at .500 when LaSalle registered a 1-0 victory over the Irish.

the caliber of competition we've played, it really helped our play against Charlotte."

The Irish soccer team has measured themselves against some of the toughest competition in the country, and it is obvious that this has lead to a great deal of learning and progressing for all involved.

"We've played some good soccer against some great teams," said Grace. "The fans may not be happy with the record, but you can't fool the players. I have no second doubts about putting together the most difficult schedule possible."

On Wednesday, the Irish will be playing Valparaiso, and on Friday they will face Loyola (Ill.) in their final game of the season. As the schedule draws to a close, Grace says that he's optimistic about next season.

"The team has made some strides this year and we'll try and continue this improvement next year. We're getting better and better".

Notre Dame hockey team ready to take the ice

ND has foundation to build for future

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Writer

Once again, the Notre Dame hockey team is facing a season of rebuilding. Fortunately, the Irish have an experienced foundation to build on in their second season of varsity play after a year of club status. In addition, the team is bolstered by a good crop of newcomers.

"We have to try and rebuild and make ourselves as strong as possible," says Head Coach Charles 'Lefty' Smith. "Our first batch of recruits last year really gave us a shot in the arm. Tim Reilly and Brent Chapman getting into the MBA program and coming out to play is also a shot in the arm."

"We can improve over last year's record (11-16-1). I realize we've got quite a challenge. We're competing with teams that do award scholarships. I'm encouraged by our attitude, the number of kids that came out for practice and the work ethic they've shown."

Granted fifth years of eligibility because of the year at club level, left wing Chapman and right wing Reilly figure to lead the Irish offensive attack as they have the

Irish lose four games in Alaska over break

By BILL IRVIN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team "went north" over fall break as it traveled to Alaska for its first competition of the 1985-86 season.

The scenery, however, proved to be more enjoyable than the hockey as the Irish dropped a pair of games, one to the University of Alaska-Anchorage and one to the University of Alaska-Fairbanks.

Notre Dame began the trip Monday night in Anchorage, with senior Marc Guay getting the starting bid in the nets. Although Guay gave up two early scores, the Irish received power-play goals from Tim Reilly and Tom Mooney to stay even at 2-2 after one period. Notre Dame then took a 3-2 lead at 2:53 of the second period when freshman Roy Bemiss scored the first goal of his Irish career. Mooney and winger Brent Chapman picked up assists on the go-ahead goal by Bemiss.

The state of affairs deteriorated in the third period, however, as Anchorage popped in four unanswered goals to trounce the Irish, 6-3. In the final stanza, Notre Dame managed only five shots on goal while Anchorage

Soccer team goes 1-2 over southern trip on break

By CHRIS KOSTER
Sports Writer

While most students were enjoying a week of relaxation, the Notre Dame soccer team was characteristically working hard in three away games during the break. In constant pursuit of the best competition it can find, the team was not disappointed when it played tough games at Central Florida, Southern Florida, and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The week began with the Irish facing a long game against the University of Central Fla. The Oct. 20 game started out very well for Notre Dame as the team was able to punch in a goal early in the first half. The score was contributed by freshman striker Joe Sternberg, with the assist coming from senior co-captain David Miles.

The remainder of the game, however, was all Central Florida's as they dominated play and outshot the Irish, 18-6. Despite some staunch goaltending by Hugh Breslin, the Knights were able to come away with a 6-1 victory.

"We had a lot of bad breaks that hurt us in that game," said Notre Dame head coach Dennis Grace. "We played well, however (the Knights) were more successful with everything they did against us."

From there the team stayed south to meet their next opponent, the University of Southern Florida on October 22. Southern Florida lead the first half 1-0, and later connected with two more goals in the second half of play to forge the 3-0 final.

"We just went up against a tremendous soccer team," said Grace.

The Bulls certainly played a tremendous game against the Irish, outshooting them by a 25-5 margin. The scoring would have been more damaging, though, if it were not for the brilliant play of Breslin, who made 10 saves in the Notre Dame goal.

Breslin's hard work and determination anchoring the goal for the Irish paid off in the third game on Oct. 25. On a day when Notre Dame was once again outshot (19-3), Breslin pulled down 11 difficult saves to preserve a 1-0 victory against the south's sixth-ranked team, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The lone Irish goal came at 1:42 into the first half from the foot of Bruce "Tiger" McCourt, with the crucial score being assisted by striker David Miles. Charlotte later provoked some tense moments by hitting the crossbar five times and by putting continuous pressure in the Notre Dame half of the field. Release finally came when the final whistle blew and the Irish had successfully knocked U.N.C. out of the N.C.A.A. tournament hopes with an emotional victory.

Grace, in his second year at the Irish helm, said he felt the team played the best they possibly could, and was very happy to end the week on a positive note.

"We picked up momentum in Charlottesville," he noted. "If we maintain the intensity we had, we'll be pleased with the end of the season."

"When you win against such a good team, it makes you feel everything was worthwhile. Because of the quality of the teams and

Lower arena seats gone for basketball season

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Editor

Distribution of student basketball tickets continues today, but freshmen and sophomores planning to get lower arena seats will be disappointed. As of 3:30 yesterday afternoon, all 1,575 padded seats available to students, spanning sections two to six of the ACC, had been sold.

Sophomores, graduate and law students are scheduled to pick up their tickets today from 1:30-6 p.m. at Gate 3 of the ACC. Freshmen are to pick up their tickets tomorrow at the same time and place. Both groups will have only the $39 bleacher seats available to them, as the junior and senior classes bought up all of the $52 lower arena seats on Monday and Tuesday.

Notre Dame Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski estimates that approximately 2,000 total tickets were sold the first two days. On Monday, the seniors purchased all of sections two, three, four, and much of five. The juniors bought the rest of that section and all of section six yesterday. Nearly all of section 102 in the upper arena was purchased between the two classes, as well.

What remains is all of the bleacher seats in sections 103-108. For those students who have yet to purchase their tickets, Bobinski says there is no need to worry about the ticket office running out. He estimates that approximately 2,300 more students could be accommodated if necessary.

Bobinski did admit more than a little surprise at the number of tickets sold the first two days. Last year the senior class bought only section two and part of section three, when 3,100 total tickets were sold to all classes.

Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps last night expressed his pleasure with the large number of student tickets sold the first two days.

"The students did a great job supporting us last season and I'm happy that there's going to be so many of them there this year," Phelps said. "I think they know what this team can be after seeing what we did in the NCAA Tournament last season against Oregon State and North Carolina."

"We didn't lose any starters from that team, and so everyone believes in us heading into this season. Plus, we have David Rivers, who got everyone excited with his play last year."

Upperclassmen who did not purchase tickets on their assigned day may do so today or tomorrow, and anyone failing to do so either day will be able to on Friday in the ticket office on the second floor of the ACC.

Senior midfielder Chris Telk, shown here in action earlier this season, and the rest of the Notre Dame soccer team traveled to Florida over fall break to play three tough southern teams. Although Head Coach Dennis Grace's squad could put away only one victory, the experience gained should help the Irish as they prepare to close out their season with home games today and Friday. Chris Koster gives all the details in his story above.
