Potential candidates for class offices, senate gear up for elections

By CLIFF STEVENS
News Staff

As the student body president contest comes down the stretch today, potential candidates for the class offices, Student Senate and off-campus commissioner races are lining up at the starting blocks.

Mandatory candidate meetings were held last night by Ombudsman to register names, distribute petition forms and discuss campaign rules.

The class officer, senate and off-campus commissioner elections are slated for March 18, with run-offs on March 20 if necessary.

Nine possible sophomore class office tickets, one possible junior class ticket, and two possible senior class tickets attended. Three possible off-campus commissioner candidates also were present.

Ten possible candidates for the senate attended, with one from district 1, three from district 3, two from district 4, and four from off-campus.

No potential candidate attended from district 2, which includes Stanford, Keenan, Zahm, Cavanaugh, Breen-Phillips and Farley.

Class office tickets and off-campus commissioner candidates must return 100 signatures, according to Ombudsman election rules. Senate candidates must return 75 signatures to become official candidates on the ballot. Students may only sign petitions for a candidate in their own district.

Candidates technically must have attended last night's meeting to appear on the ballot, said Ombudsman Director David Stephenich. Whether late candidates for district 2 senator will be write-ins or allowed on the ballot will be determined by the Ombudsman Election Committee, he said.

Possible sophomore class office tickets in attendance, listed in the order of president, vice president, treasurer, and secretary, were Stephen Shake, Mike Kletzly, Susan Rosenthal and Gretchen Schauer; Liam Brennan, Mary McCarthy, Tim Lake and Jeff Utz; George Molinsky, Karen Ruff, Andy Kinney and Carolyn Aylward.

Other tickets in attendance that may run, listed in the same order as above, include Patrick Creadon, Erica Hinkle, Sam Bailey and Tom DiResta; Kris Malaker, Brian DiBona, John Ofenloch and Melissa Houk; Michael Moynihan, Christopher Sullivan, Patricia Fanning and Timothy Cummins; Michael Keegan, Matine Beamon, Ellen Nichols and Peter Hartweger; Pat Cooke, Theresa Barnhart, John Ruhlin and Chris Anne Downes.

I'm on mission from God, says Apollo 15 astronaut

By BOB MUSSELMAN
Senior Staff Reporter

Colonel James Irwin once went on a mission to the moon. His mission today, however, concerns the Son - Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

Irwin, 55, spoke at a dinner presentation at the South Dining Hall last night to the Notre Dame Air Force ROTC corps in place of their weekly leadership lab. The religious experiences.

"Jesus walking on the earth was more important than man walking on the moon," he said. "I've had my highest flight, but the Lord has given me a new mission, to be your servant, to share the love of Christ."

Irwin began as a pilot in the Air Force, then moved to test flights of the F-12. "I felt very proud. I felt I was the hottest pilot in the sky," he said.

Then disaster struck in 1961. While training a pilot in a small airplane, he crashed. Irwin survived, but was critically injured. Doctors assured him that he'd never fly again.

But Irwin was obsessed with flying, he said, and began wondering what he'd do with his life. Irwin started praying. And he realized that he had drifted far from the Lord.

With new determination based on a new faith, he reenrolled in the F-12 program. And when the space program blossomed in the mid 1960's, he decided "space was the highest, fastest I could go."

In 1966 he was picked for the astronaut training program. He trained for five years and finally went to the moon as part of the Apollo 15 crew.

Irwin narrated a movie which detailed the mission, saying that he and fellow astronaut Colonel Dave

A new computer store opened Monday in Room 25 of the Computing Center to replace the General Micro store which closed in December. Two unidentified employees worked in the store yesterday which will both sell and service Apple computer equipment. Story below.

New campus computer store opens

By MARY REYNOLDS
Staff Reporter

The University opened a computer store in the Computing Center Monday to replace the General Micro store closed last December.

The new store, located in room 25 and open weekdays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., became necessary after the store, formerly in the basement of LaFortune, was closed because General Micro went bankrupt.

In opening the new store, the University is fulfilling an agreement with Apple Computers, Inc. Under this agreement, known as the Apple Consortium, Notre Dame faculty and students can buy Apple computer equipment at reduced prices as long as the University provides a store to sell and service the equipment.

When the University initially entered the consortium in 1983, it contracted General Micro for this service. But when General Micro filed for bankruptcy last semester the University was forced to replace the firm.

"We were faced with the decision of whether to get another outside company or do it internally," said Jim Wruck, director of the Computing Center. "Ultimately, we felt it would be better for students and the University to do it internally," he said.

"We will look at financial operations of the store much more closely than we were able to when it was done by the outside firm," Wruck said.

The University has assumed General Micro's financial obligations to members of the Notre Dame community, said Vice President for Business Affairs Thomas Mason.

"There were only a few students that had orders in process, and as far as I know no students have suffered in the transaction," Mason said.

By having the University operate the store at the Computing Center, students and faculty who buy equipment will receive more complete service, said Kelly Havens, assistant director for User Services at the Computing Center.

With the old store, Havens said, it was difficult to coordinate the store with the services available at the Computing Center. "For example, a lot of people didn't realize that there were demo units at the Computing Center," she said.

"By having it all in one spot people will be able to make better decisions in the first place and know where to go for help afterwards," Havens said.

"Since the consultants at the Computing Center aren't connected to the store, they can give unbiased advice to people who buy equipment," said Wruck.

Another advantage of the new store is that the University will have greater control in promoting products that will be in the long-range interests of students, Wruck said.

Wruck said that prices in the new store will be comparable to those in the old store. "The store is just another service that the University is providing. We don't want to lose money, but we don't want to make a profit. That way we can sell equipment to faculty and students at the best possible price," he said.

Aquino releases communist rebels

Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines - President Corazon Aquino freed two former communist rebel leaders yesterday despite reservations from the military, and paid her visit to the palace in which Ferdinand Marcos lived for 20 years.

Meanwhile, attorney Lupino Lazaro said two men cleared in the 1983 murder of Aquino's husband, Benigno, had given sworn statements admitting involvement and implicating the former president, his wife Imelda and four former Cabinet ministers. Gen. Fabian Ver, Marcos' military commander, was among the 26 people acquitted.

"I'm sorry for the delay," Aquino told Jose Maria Sison and Bernabe Buscayno when they were ushered into her temporary office less than an hour after being freed from military prisons. Two alleged members of a rebel assassination squad also were released.

Aquino had pledged to free all political prisoners held by Marcos, who fled the country a week ago, and the four were the last on the list. Most of the prisoners have not yet gone home because of required medical checkups and paper work.

Presidential spokesman Rene Saguisag said the four men were released after a "candid, cordial, and vigorous exchange of views" with military commanders, worried that they would take up arms again. Her top military advisers had argued the four men should not be freed unconditionally.

Sison acknowledged at a news conference a few hours after his release that he found the Communist Party of the Philippines in 1968 and led the armed struggle against the Marcos government until his capture in November 1977. He had refused throughout his imprisonment to answer questions about his party role.

Buscayno, who was captured in August 1976, was the alleged commander of the party's New People's Army guerrillas and was known as Commander Dante.

The two other men released were Alexander Birondo and Ruben Alegre. Both were arrested within the past two years.

Cardinal Jaime Sin, archbishop of Manila, said in Rome that the estimated 12,500 insurgents might surrender this month because "there's no reason for them to stay in the mountains" with Marcos gone. Sin, who led the nation's Roman Catholic bishops in support of Aquino, was on a visit to the Vatican.

Stop worrying about restructuring, start worrying about real concerns

Student government . . . why?

Andy Looney is not the only one who could be asking that question these days.

Constitutions have become as commonplace as the flu around campus. There are different interpretations of the rules for every student leader you talk to. And "restructuring" has become a household word.

In short, mass confusion reigns in student government.

Last week, the Committee on Restructuring was all set to implement its long-planned and carefully worked out constitution, designed to enlarge the senate, as soon as the Hall Presidents' Council or the students ratified it. Only they didn't.

If "Committee of Restructuring" has a familiar ring to it, it may be because just one year ago, the Committee to Restructure Student Government (known as CREST) came out with its own proposal for a drastic overhaul of student government. This too, quickly died.

And don't forget last October's insta-constitution, by which Student Body President Bill Healy and four other student leaders attempted to disband the senate and restructure the Campus Life Council overnight.

The latest attempt to cure the ills of student government was just three days ago, when yet another constitutional proposal was brought before the senate, this time to toss out the senate except for five members who would sit only on the Campus Life Council. Lobbying is already going full speed ahead both for and against this new proposal.

Neither is the restructuring syndrome peculiar to students currently at Notre Dame. The senate has only existed since 1980, when a new constitution created it. Another senate, way back in the sixties, was disbanded in 1972. In between eras of the senate, there was a Board of Commissioners which was completely restructured every two years or so, under a new constitution.

Confused? So am I.

Somehow among all the committees, the proposals, and the arguing over rules, the same basic thing always emerges. It is a group of organizations that accomplish many valuable things every year, but fail to make an impression on either the administration or most students.

Student government seemed to have hit new lows in terms of student respect last year. One presidential ticket was disqualified for election violations and reinstated by a secret vote of the senate. Then the senate extended its term to finish the restructuring which never came through anyway. But this year has been even more laughable. Why else would 20 percent of the vote for student body president have gone to the candidate whose platform promised "a national campaign to change macaroni and cheese to cheese and macaroni?"

What is the cause of all the restructuring mania? It always seems to occur when there has been a plunge in student government's credibility. The proponents of each new constitution seem to believe this is the one that will really make student government effective, respected and efficient. This is the one that will make the administration listen and the students get involved.

But the overhauls, no matter how drastic, don't really make a difference in terms of getting things done. Countless manhours are spent researching, rewriting, and publicizing new constitutions, but what is there to show for it? Simply a differently-structured organization.

Those hours could be spent far better by working within the structure that already exists. Student government already has enough to do without constantly trying to revise itself. There are always issues that need to be addressed (like parietyals, divestment and WVFI-AM). The administration needs to be confronted with student concerns. And student input needs to be collected, not to mention running all the day-to-day programs and events.

One of the main tasks of the new student body president should be to restore the badly shaken confidence in and respect for student government. It has little to do with how many senators there are or who can propose amendments. It has to do with how effectively it responds to students and makes their voices heard to the administration.

Little Sister's Weekend returns to Saint Mary's

By ELLYN MASTAKO
Senior Staff Reporter

After a year's absence, Little Sister's Weekend has returned to Saint Mary's College.

The annual event was cancelled last year because of lack of interest, according to Karyn Ruesch, the weekend's chairperson.

"People really missed the event last year," she said. "I guess they just took it for granted and once it was gone, they realized what they missed."

Attendance has surpassed the committee's best expectations, Ruesch said. "We had planned for 80, and hoped for 100. As of today, we have 360 little and big sisters. That was a real pleasant surprise," she said.

Although there is no age requirement for the little sisters, the committee has geared most of the events toward the 10-to-16-year-old age bracket, said Ruesch.

"In the past, they have planned events for all age ranges," she said. "This year we tried to make the events interesting for the most popular age group.

"Of course, sisters of all age ranges are welcome, Ruesch added.

Planned events begin tomorrow with registration in Haggart Parlor from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., a Merle Norman cosmetics makeover from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall, and an ice cream boat in Haggart Parlor from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

On Saturday, a fashion show and brunch will be held in Regina north and south lounges from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fashions are courtesy of Maurice's located in the University Park mall.

Other events to be held Saturday include a sports festival in Angela and Regina pool from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., a pizza party from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. in Haggart Parlor, and the showing of the movie "Footloose" at 9 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

The weekend's events will conclude on Sunday with a Mass in Holy Cross Chapel at 11:30 a.m. followed by a brunch in the dining hall.

Government Career Fair scheduled for today

By ROB HENNIG
News Staff

Interested in a job with the FBI or Secret Service?

Representatives from those government agencies and others will be attending a Government Career Fair today from noon until 4 p.m. in the lower level of the Center for Continuing Education.

The event is being sponsored by Career and Placement Services at Notre Dame and is open to sophomore, junior, senior and graduate students in all disciplines at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

Representatives from more than 20 federal and state agencies will be in attendance to answer any questions students might have and to provide literature and application materials for interested students.

In addition to the FBI and the United States Secret Service, other government agencies attending will be the Peace Corps, Immigration and Naturalization and the National Labor Relations Board.

Although last year's Government Career Day was cancelled because of the Valentine's Day blizzard, this is the eighth time the event has been held, according to Paul Reynolds, assistant director of Career and Placement Services.

Two years ago there were approximately 250 to 300 students who participated in the event, Reynolds said.

Fewer agencies will be attending the career day than in past years, Reynolds said. He added, "In the past five or six years there has been a slight decrease due to the lack of hiring on the agencies' part."

Reynolds said the event was mainly an information gathering session. "I think it's an excellent opportunity, especially (for) underclassmen who are interested in careers in government," he said.

"Originally the day was started as an instrument to aid liberal arts majors," Reynolds said. "But now . . . all students can benefit from this, not just liberal arts majors."

He added there are a variety of employment opportunities open to business, science and engineering majors as well.

Researchers link service in Vietnam to increased suicide rate

Associated Press

BOSTON - Vietnam veterans are nearly twice as likely to commit suicide as men in the same age group who avoided the war, a new study concludes.

Researchers say they believe their work is the first to show a cause-and-effect relationship between military service in Vietnam and an unusual risk of suicide.

"I think it demonstrates the experience of being drafted during the Vietnam era had profound, long-term psychological effects on people," said Dr. Norman Hearst of the University of California, San Francisco.

The study concludes that Vietnam veterans were 86 percent more likely than non-veterans to die of suicide in the years after the war, and they were 53 percent more likely to die in traffic accidents.

The research was based on a survey of death records of men who were involved in the draft lottery from 1970 to 1972. They concluded that military service during that three-year period was directly linked to an estimated 1,250 non-war deaths throughout the United States in the years that followed.

"If the draft affected men in the same way through the whole Vietnam era as it appeared to affect them for these three years, then the number might be in the tens of thousands," Hearst said.

The study, directed by Hearst, was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

Four million Americans served in Indochina during the Vietnam War, and 800,000 were assigned to combat. Some studies have found higher levels of depression, drug abuse, marital problems, criminal charges and other difficulties among the veterans.

However, some critics speculate that the veterans have trouble because they were poorer and less educated than those who avoided the draft, not because of any lingering effects of military service.

The new study was based on a review of death records of 14,145 men in Pennsylvania and California who were born between 1950 and 1952 and died between 1974 and 1983.

Between 1970 and 1972, the military lottery randomly assigned these men on the basis of their birth rates into two groups - those with low lottery numbers who were eligible for the draft and those with high numbers who were exempt.

The researchers noted that because of the random lottery the two groups were identical except for their draft status. So any differences between them in later years must be caused by the draft.

"We've hit upon what we call an experiment of nature," Hearst said. "When we see a difference, it's clear a cause-and-effect relationship."

The suicide rate was 13 percent higher among those with low lottery numbers than those with high numbers. This figure was diluted, however, because a low lottery number didn't necessarily mean military service. In fact, only 26 percent of the draft eligible men entered the military during the three years, while 9 percent of draft-exempt men served as volunteers.

When the researchers took into account the percentages in each group who actually served, they projected that the suicide rate was 86 percent higher among the veterans.

30,000 mourn black riot victims, demonstrate for end to apartheid

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - At least 30,000 black mourners, joined by hundreds of whites, turned a mass funeral for 17 black riot victims yesterday into a vast demonstration of opposition to apartheid.

The throng packed a soccer stadium in Alexandra, a squalid black township wedged among the richest white suburbs of Johannesburg. In the crowd were activist Winne Mandela and diplomats from seven Western nations, including the United States.

Among clergymen of all races was the Rev. Beyers Naude, 70, an Afrikaner whose spiritual journey from faith in apartheid to the struggle for black rights has made him a symbol of white liberalism.

"No one is free in this country as long as the black man is not free," Mike Beea, president of Alexandra Civic Association, told the mourners. "We are simply saying, dismantle apartheid."

"When is this brutality going to stop?" he asked. "When is this barbarism going to end?"

Police with rifles manned all entrances to Alexandra and searched incoming cars, including that of Betsy Spiro, political counselor of the U.S. embassy. They stayed well away from the stadium, but a helicopter circled overhead.

With most other forms of protest banned, the crowd - which some estimates put at 50,000 or more - transformed the service into a huge rally against the official apartheid race policy that reserves privilege for South Africa's 5 million whites and denies rights to the 24 million blacks.

Black-power chants and songs filled the air between defiant speeches in which the riot victims were praised as the latest martyrs of the fight against white rule.

The coffins were lowered into the pale, sun-scorched ground of the nearby hillside cemetery after the service. Some mourners threw in ragged bits of clothing as gestures of remembrance.

Police reported earlier yesterday that three more blacks were slain in overnight violence in black townships, including a woman killed by a grenade tossed into her home. Her son, a rights activist, was seriously wounded.

Authorities said a limpet mine, a favorite weapon of the outlawed African National Congress, caused the explosion at Johannesburg police headquarters Tuesday that wounded two policemen and two passers-by.

Well over 1,100 people have been killed in South Africa since the outpouring of rage against apartheid began 18 months ago, nearly all of them black.

Scott were like "typical tourists," taking pictures all the time and going for Sunday drives in their moon rover.

Scientists wanted the astronauts to retrieve samples of pure white rock, which the scientists hoped would help explain the composition of the moon. Irwin and Scott found such a rock sitting on top of another stone, standing alone as if to say "pick me up."

"I use the incident as an example of God's guidance," Irwin said. Later in the mission, he felt compelled to recite the first verse of Psalm 121, the only scripture quoted on the surface of the moon.

He said the future of space travel looks good, despite the fact that "we've lost our ability to go into space for a while" because of the shuttle accident.

Like most people, he said, he follows the shuttle investigations in the media, and has no connection with the investigation. He predicted NASA will continue, perhaps with new leaders.

Irwin said we need to re-prove the safety of our space program, and predicted a space station, more reliable space transportation and journeys back to the moon and to Mars within 20 years.

Why does he make such presentations, mixed with religion and science?

"It's a good experience for these cadets to meet me and hear about my experience in the Air Force." He said we all need to learn from others, adding "We all need heroes," in whose footsteps we can follow.

After the presentation Captain Roger Overturf said the leadership labs are designed to teach cadets practical and operational matters of military service. He said Irwin's emphasis on his relationship with God is a unique part of his presentation about service as an astronaut.

Notre Dame students need drug education

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend you on your stories regarding drugs at Notre Dame-Saint Mary's. Those interviewed offered an interesting perspective on the use of drugs on the campuses and provided some insight on the extent of drug usage here.

Those interviewed ("Tony" and "Max") showed that misinformed and ill-conceived attitudes toward alcohol are not the only problem on campus. As seen in your article, ignorant, stereotypical attitudes associated with partying here extend beyond alcohol to drugs.

Most people, student and administrators alike, believe functioning people, fulfilling their academic, social, or job responsibilities, cannot have a problem with drugs or alcohol, simply because they are functioning. People equate problem users with disabled, useless individuals, those unable or unwilling to perform their respective roles because of drug or alcohol interference.

Obviously "Tony" and "Max" have this type of attitude, as evident by their remarks. Tony says, "I hang out with pre-meds and engineers who do drugs, and they still have good grades." For Tony, if one has good grades, then one cannot have a drug problem. Now from my experiences, I know students who study hard but party harder. These are individuals who in some cases make dean's list. They seem to be surviving quite adequately. But to assume anyone at Notre Dame who has good grades cannot have a drug problem is an uninformed, bogus claim.

For Max, a drug abuser must use everyday and miss classes. "When you label something as a drug problem, you find people who are getting high every day, missing classes." "I know a lot of people who smoke pot, but not one of them abuses it by smoking every day." "No big time (user) would be able to survive at Notre Dame." By Max's logic, if one "only" parties every other day, then one cannot have a problem. Give me a break. Think about the absurdity of such a statement. And to miss classes means you have a using problem — think about all the people you run into in class who complain because they are hungover. But since they are in class, they could not possibly have a problem. The naivete and ignorance of Tony and Max toward drug abuse is quite apparent.

Far from being accurate, these attitudes are merely convenient excuses which many employ to quell their own doubts about alcohol and drug use. If you were to quantify and qualify what problem users are, then no one would have a problem, because each individual's definition would be sure to conveniently exclude themselves. Every problem user has a list of excuses a mile long why they do not have a problem. You have heard them all before: I don't party in the mornings, I haven't got a DWI, I never party alone, I don't miss many classes, I have good grades, and so on, and so on.

What I am driving at is that users can, and do, survive at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, and because of the aforementioned attitudes, often pass through college and graduate unaware that they have any sort of a problem. These attitudes are destructive in that they serve to hide the problem from the problem user. What desperately needs to be done is to teach people about the use and abuse of alcohol and drugs so that the problem users will be less inconspicuous and receive help sooner. Education is the most effective way to correct Tony's and Max's attitude problems. Let's hope that this comes about soon.

Police must have Skiles detectors to get star

Dear Editor:

Hello again everybody! We are writing to defend our friend and, as Al McGuire said, "One of the best guards in the world," Scott Skiles.

His performance on the court far outweighs the misconstrued, blasphemous allegations he has had to suffer with the past few months. Could it be Indiana's law enforcement agencies are "out to get Scott just because he chose to leave Indiana to further his college career at Michigan State?" As one of the reliable East Lansing student put it, "The police have Skiles detectors as well as radar detectors."

Few know the true facts of his supposed D.U.I. He risked his own personal well-being by sacrificing himself to drive home a drunk friend on his 21st birthday. Does this altruistic gesture warrant the condemnation of a fine human being/student athlete?

Skiles is not the first college player to run into trouble with the law. His exploits seem trivial compared to incidents such as the unpunished, malicious rape of a University of San Francisco woman by then All-American Quinten Dailey. We will not even mention previous incidents involving past Notre Dame players who are now in the professional ranks.

It is a crime Skiles is not even being considered for the John Wooden Award, given annually to college basketball's most outstanding player, even though he is second in the nation in scoring while playing in the ever-tough Big Ten.

This response does not even include his unheralded community service in the East Lansing area. If Skiles were in the NBA, he just would have to admit his misfortunes, and he would be exonerated, like Michael Ray Richardson. Then, once again, Chuck Freeby, he would be on top of the world, proclaimed by all as "Scott-free" Skiles.

Recent movies unfairly stereotype the Arabs

Dear Editor:

The latest attacks upon the Arab communities, in the United States and abroad, by the enterprising Hollywood movie industry is insulting to the Arab nationals, U.S. Arab communities and destructive to the peace process in the Middle East. The portrayal of the Arabs in movies like "Delta Force" and "Under Siege" as subhuman, blood-thirsty killers, serves nothing but to affirm the long held view by the West about Arabs. These portrayals are nothing new to the Arabs. The Arabs seem to be always viewed by the West as decadent romantics living in deceitful ways, always trying to play something or another. I call this phenomenon "The Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves Syndrome."

This Hollywood attack upon the Arabs is not a new phenomenon either. During World War II, the war movies always referred to the Japanese people as Japs. In Vietnam, the Vietnamese were referred to as Gooks. Even in good old Westerns, the Indians were portrayed as barbaric tribes.

What scares me the most is the timing of these movies. Recent violence in the Middle East is exploited by the Hollywood movie industry to make money. They not only insult the Arabs, but they cheat their fellow Americans by capitalizing on their feelings of hatred toward recent Middle East events (TWA hijacking, the bombing of the Marines barracks in Lebanon, etc.) and mislead them in understanding the Middle East conflict.

The movie "Delta Force" portrays a hostage drama where a civilian airliner was hijacked and an elite American force reacts to free the hostages. I would not have been insulted by "Delta Force" is the terrorist group involved was named "X" and the setting was not in the Middle East. The reason for this, is that the movie portrays the Palestinians as bloodthirsty killers who attack innocent people for no apparent reason.

Although I am opposed to violence, I am still firmly convince of the legitimacy of the Palestinian steadfastness against Israeli oppression and occupation of Palestine. Movies like "Delta Force" overshadow the underlying reasons for the violence in the Middle East.

Hollywood is not the only one to blame. The media plays a large role in promoting such idiosyncracies. Israeli military activities are always portrayed as defensive in nature by the media. This is done by a careful wording of reports. Although most Israeli attacks are carried out on refugee civilian camps.

Even though I may sound bitter toward the Hollywood movie industry, I still understand the appeal that most Americans feel toward such movies which make them ticket sales successes.

1. The American idea of subduing "the Villain" and the ever support of the underdog.

2. The American inability to accept defeat. America has been historically, for the most part successful. The failure of the American foreign policy in the Middle East, i.e. the failure of the implementation of the Camp David Accords (the implementation of Palestinian Autonomy in the West Bank as agreed by Israel and the ending of the Israeli settlement of the West Bank), the failure of the Marines mission in Lebanon, etc.

Movies like "Delta Force" and "Under Siege" have a positive influence also, if viewed by audiences who have a good political and historical understanding of the Middle East conflict. Unfortunately, most Americans lack such an awareness. These movies reaffirm the urgency for constructive policy to establish peace upon justice in the Middle East. Some people might analyse this as giving in to terrorists. I consider such a responsive awareness, a pragmatic move toward peace and justice in a true historical context.

All-nighters

Students crack books until the crack of dawn

ROBIN SQUYRES

features writer

All right, let's have the truth on the "all-nighter" scene here at ND. Can we talk? Notre Dame, land of parietals and DuLac, has a fascinating behind the scene army of late-night creatures. These individuals range from the overeager intellectual to the blow-off-in-time-of-crisis. What do they do? And where do they do it? Here are some answers.

POLLING RESULTS: WHO, WHY AND HOW

In the results of a random poll, two-thirds of the student body have at some time in their Notre Dame career pulled an all-nighter, or at least a very-very-late-nighter. Half of these all-nighters were necessitated by an exam or test. The causes of the other half were divided between paper pressure and catch-up crises.

Almost all of Notre Dame all-nighter students study in their dorm in these wee hours, either in their rooms or in study lounges. Interestingly enough, four-fifths of ND all-nighters tackle the morning hours alone: either abandoned or purposely isolated.

There are many, many study (anti-sleep) aids, which are creatively used by the student body. Topping the list was caffeine, in forms from soda to Excedrin. Food, No-Doz, Vivarin and fear followed. The effectiveness of a given substance is said to be directly proportional to the amount consumed. But, Notre Dame all-nighter students reported, the amount needed to be effective increases directly with the lateness (or earliness) of the hour.

WHERE

Notre Dame does seem to have a definite lack of interesting all-night study space. The mainstay 24 hour lounges in the dorms become rather dreary and dull, but students don't really have many other places to go.

The Nazz, a popular all-night study lounge in the basement of LaFortune, has recently been demolished and replaced with a more commercial setting. Nothing has been provided to replace the lounge, much to the chagrin of many students.

"It was a more relaxing atmosphere. It was so much more laid back," said Kerry Hill, a sophomore from Pasquerilla East. "You could go with a group of people and get a table and talk."

"There is nothing offered right now at night with a relaxed atmosphere," said Theresa Ferns, also a sophomore.

"Late at night you just feel like there's no place to go," put in Hill.

The Administration has offered an "alternative" to the Nazz for late night co-ed studying, South Dining Hall. The Oak Room, with its snack and soft-drink availability, is open until 1 each morning. The South Dining Hall then remains open until 3 a.m., minus the food supply.

Hill pointed out that, "People from the North Quad will never go all the way to South Dining Hall or the Oak Room, especially in the winter."

Many of the classroom buildings are open for study at night, but close before the crucial pre-dawn hours. O'Shag is open until 1 a.m. and the Computer-Math Building is open until 2 a.m. The Microcomputer lab is open around the clock but only for computer use. For late night co-ed study, the options seem to have been narrowed back to the ever-faithful 24 hour lounge.

"It would be nice to have a place to study too night. In the 24 hour lounge people are talking and stuff," said Amy Harron, a Pasquerilla East freshman. "For people who want to study with guy-they should have somewhere comfortable."

The Observer/Drew Sandler

Carol Sils studies accounting while Ed Fitzgerald catches a few winks in LaFortune.

It was unable to be determined, after talking to several administrators, if the University has any plans for future 24 hour public study space.

UNIQUE STUDENT ADVICE AND OBSERVATIONS

"Definitely have someone wake you up if you're going to take a nap," says Scott Elderkin, sophomore.

"I study where there's a lot of light. Stay away from any beds," says Anthony Brusca, freshman.

"Lots of soft drinks," says Audrey Beckman, junior.

"Don't lay around in sweats, it's too easy to go to sleep. Take a shower, get dressed. If you're in a sweater and pants, it's easier to study," says Trent Rock, senior.

Caffeine is students' eye-opener, study aid

features writer

The all-nighter. In an academically rigorous environment, this ritual can be as common as an Emil quiz, and is about as welcome.

Most students here are all too familiar with this night-long adventure; one of the few pure joys of college is staying up all night with weeks of worked piled up at your desk. How can a student stay up all night and still be coherent enough to complete a semester's worth of accounting?

The answer lies in a variety of methods. Most of the students on campus rely on some sort of caffeine, whether it be from Coke, coffee, or a pill. From my modest survey, Notre Dame students favor more traditional methods, such as coffee, tea, Coke; many students also use a caffeine pill, however.

All of the drugstores listed in the campus directory carry some sort of caffeine pill which specifically helps people who want to stay awake. The most popular of these pills are No-Doz and Vivarin. Both are over-the-counter drugs, available to anyone who has enough money to buy them.

The pills are basically the same. No-Doz is almost strictly caffeine while Vivarin adds some glucose-based sugar for a longer lasting effect. A few years ago diet pills were a popular form of this type of drug, but now these pills do not contain enough stimulants (according to FDA regulations) to be an effective stay-awake drug.

These drugs are quite harmless when taken in small amounts. Problems can arise, however, when these drugs are abused. Some students find it hard to sit still after taking too much caffeine. They become jumpy or nervous and are unable to accomplish whatever task for which the drugs were needed in the first place. When used properly, however, these drugs can be the most effective way to stay awake.

For the rest of us out there who do not wish to shake like a Jell-O on a washing machine, there are some alternatives. Coffee brewers are fixtures in many rooms, and Coke machines see heavy use during finals week. Of course, this type of stimulus requires quite a few trips to the restroom, but that is one of the few side effects.

One of the most asked questions is what do these drugs do to your body? According to biology department professor Dr. Thomas Troeger, caffeine "promotes the release of adrenaline." The drug artificially puts your body on alert, places it in its "fight or flight" mentality. This allows you to stay awake, because your body thinks that there is some life or death situation facing it.

As long as students pull all nighters, they can rely on caffeine to help them make it through the night.

Songwriter has unique obsession with time

features copy editor

If the major labels don't watch themselves, they might actually begin to become hip. I mean, they signed the Replacements to Sire, the Long Ryders to Island, Husker Du to Warner Bros., and this talented artist, Tommy Keene, to Geffen.

All of those artists mentioned share one thing - they started on independent labels - but Keene seems the most radio-ready of them all; his reedy voice and sharp pure pop sound are the stuff legends are made of.

Songs From the Film, Keene's first Geffen LP (and not a soundtrack at all) is an excellent collection of hooky, moody pop songs driven by his instantly likeable voice and guitarist Billy Connolly's crisp playing.

The best track on this album is "Places That Are Gone," a reworking of a song Keene did on his 1984 Dolphin Records EP of the same name. It should be a hit, but it probably won't in today's stagnant radio world, where Mr. Mister can have two consecutive number one singles and a number one album.

Songs From the Film is filled with an obsession with time - aging, holding on to memories, the shortness of life - showing Keene to be one of the more unique songwriters around.

The lyrics to "As Life Goes By" exemplify his style:

As far as you know, the feeling's over now

Now you can say, "We watch as life goes by"

*You see the hand move on the wall
You feel alone and not so tall*

*I wonder if I could've changed anything but now I know
We watch as life goes by*

One song of note is Keene's cover of Lou Reed's "Kill Your Sons." This breaks away from the mold of Keene's typically sprightly-played pop numbers. If you're familiar with Reed's music, then you know his songs often are bombastic and heavy; this is one of them. Strangely enough, "Kill Your Sons" doesn't seem out of place here; I don't know why, I just like it.

So what we have here is a fresh bunch of songs from a definite star on the horizon. Tommy Keene has a knack for writing tunes that always sound nice. He's not one of those guys who suffers from the "sensitive singer/songwriter" syndrome, and he's not one of those self-important tunesmiths who get big heads when they get too many good reviews. Keene is honest, modest and most important, he's talented.

Combination of beats makes strong debut

features writer

The day the breakup of the English Beat occurred, late in 1983, was a sad one for many people. The band that epitomized the racially-mixed two-tone movement and who so skillfully infused politics into their reggae-influenced brand of pop music split up when the two singer-songwriters left to form General Public.

This left the rest of the Beat high and dry without the creative forces that kept them together for those four years. Andy Cox, the guitar player, and David Steele, the bass player, though extremely bitter, decided to carry on and write some new songs for a new band they were planning to put together.

The only thing they lacked was a singer, until they spotted Roland Gift singing in the clubs around London. They liked him, and asked him to join their new band, and together they formed the Fine Young Cannibals.

Now, two years later, their debut album is out on IRS Records, and it is simply titled Fine Young Cannibals. The FYC's style is much more jazzy than the Beat ever was, and they use a combination of organ, horns, and vocals to comprise the melody, with the guitar used sparsely, and usually only to keep rhythm.

The one aspect of their sound that sets them apart from some of the other new pop bands that borrow heavily from jazz and soul, like Sade and Everything But the Girl, is Roland's unique style of singing, in which he distorts the words, as if in pain, rendering them almost intelligible. As a result, he uses his voice more as a source of melody than as a vehicle to recite lyrics.

This is best illustrated on the first, and finest, song on the album, "Johnny Come Home." This song has the familiar theme of the boy who leaves the small town for the intoxicating decadence of the city, except Roland blames himself for causing Johnny to leave, expresses his sorrow, and urges him to come home so Roland can get on with his life without this guilt.

*What is wrong
In my life
that I must get drunk
Every night?
Johnny,
We're sorry,
Won't you come on home.*

One other rather unique song is a cover version of the old classic, "Suspicious Minds," which my roommate thinks Elvis Presley used to sing, as I could not recall who did it.

"Funny How Love Is," however, is more typical of the rest of the songs on the album. It is a slow, Caribbean-influenced song, featuring an almost classical guitar riff and the searing saxophone of Saza, the elderly Jamaican man who hasn't been seen since the Beat's last album. The lyrics focus on the politics of the personal, as Roland expresses his desire, because of the very pain involved, not to see his former girlfriend for a very long time.

Some of the other good songs on the album include "Blue," the second British single, and "Like a Stranger." The Fine Young Cannibals, on their debut album, have combined a jazzy style with jerky, danceable rhythms, but these rhythms never quite break into the spontaneity that the Beat enjoyed. In any case, however, this debut album is an accomplished one, and promises more good songs in the future.

Band takes mature stance

Tom Brannigan
features writer

The Violent Femmes are a weird band and they're from Milwaukee. I guess that explains it.

The group was an underground hit in 1983 with their own brand of dance music comprised largely of acoustical instruments. "Blister in the Sun" and others are still party favorites today.

Where the first album oozed with teenage frustration over girls and life in general, this, the band's third album, sees the group moving toward a more mature stance both musically and lyrically. Unfortunately, the band has failed to channel their maturity onto both sides of the album.

The first side sputters along never really getting into any kind of groove. "Old Mother Reagan" is typical of the first side in that the song is too choppy and fails to grab one's attention.

The second side redeems this album. Here the band gains the focus that was lacking on the first side by going back to what Gordon Gano does best, that is, wrestle with frustrating relationships. Each song borders on the frantic with its desire to end the pain of relationships gone wrong.

In "Good Friend" Gano sings:
*Seems like every time I turn around
My heart's on the mend
'cause I don't think you want me to be your good friend.*

This, the best song on the album, recalls not only the hopeless romanticism of some of Lou Reed's work with the Velvet Underground, but also the remarkable vocal similarity between Reed and Gano (a definite positive).

The Violent Femmes are a very good band and their talent certainly shines through on the second side of this album. If you are a fan, The Blind Leading the Naked won't disappoint you.

Pacers upset SuperSonics

Associated Press

SEATTLE - Wayman Tisdale scored 31 points and Clint Richardson and Lon Anderson each tossed in 21 as the Indiana Pacers defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 120-112 last night.

The victory allowed Indiana to escape from the NBA's Central Division cellar.

for the day: "A soulmate is someone who has locks that fit our keys, and keys to fit our locks. When we feel safe enough to open the locks, our truest selves step out and we can be completely and honestly who we are;
we can be loved for who we are and not for who we're pretending to be.

Leading LPGA winner shines at Kemper Open

Associated Press

PRINCEVILLE, Hawaii - Defending champion Jane Blalock and four other returning winners may have to share some of the Kemper Open limelight with Mary Beth Zimmerman.

Zimmerman, who has won the last two LPGA tournaments, leads a field of 144 in the $300,000 tournament, which was to begin today at the par-72 Princeville Makai course on Kauai's North Shore.

She is the leading money winner so far this year after victories in last week's Uniden Invitational in Costa Mesa, Calif., and the previous week's Standard Register Samaritan Turquoise Classic in Phoenix.

No one has ever won the Kemper Open twice, but Blalock and former winners Amy Alcott, Betsy King, JoAnne Carner and Pat Bradley will be trying to change that.

Kathy Whitworth and Nancy Lopez are the only former Kemper winners not competing this year.

Bradley is in second place on this year's money list with five consecutive top ten finishes. No. 3 Val Skinner also is in the field.

The only women in the top 10 not competing her are Laura Baugh, who was runnerup to Zimmerman last week, and Cathy Kratzert, who tied for second in the Phoenix tournament.

Others competing include Jan Stephenson, Beth Daniel, and Japan's Ayako Okamoto.

Blalock's victory last year was her first since February 1980. It followed five years of serious back problems and self-doubts and a five-month break for "introspection" in 1983.

The tournament is being played here for the first time. It was played at the Royal Kaanapali course on Maui for the past four years after a move from the Mesa Verde Country Club in Costa Mesa, where it started in 1979.

the 72-hole tournament continues through Sunday.

After the fighters exchanged blows equally for most of the first two rounds, Loughran was able to land three successive rights in the third to capture a unanimous decision and set up a final with Thoms "Thunder and Lightning" newell, an earlier victor.

"(Seals) was tough to beat. As for the final against Newell, he is an excellent fighter, one of the best we have," said Loughran. "I am looking forward to the fight a lot."

By far the most crowd-pleasing fight of the evening was provided by a 175-pound matchup between Ignacio "Bang-Bang" O'Donnell and Michael "Spike" Renaud. For three straight rounds, these two exchanged heavy-handed blows, going toe-to-toe for the last two and bringin the 3,331 fans in Stepan Center to their feet.

By the end of the fight, each fighter was having trouble keeping his feet, although neither one was willing to be put away. In the end, it was Renaud who would get the extremely close, split-decision victory.

"My right is what won it for me," said an exhausted Renaud after the fight. "He was going with left-left-right and left-right combinations, and I just countered with my right and tried to keep my hands up. I felt so tired, but it was too close to give up. It was all mental."

Defending champions also fared well on the evening, as Joe "Smokin' Joe" Collins and Donald "Transpo" Antrobus were successful defending their titles, in the 147-pound and the 165-pound divisions, respectively. Antrobus was especially impressive, stopping Dennis "The Menace" Coleman with 1:15 left to go in the second round.

Some strong combinations in the corner and a walloping right hand hurt Coleman before the referee finally stepped in. Antrobus will take his power-punching and skillful boxing into the ring in the hopes of a second straight title Friday.

"When I came out this year, I hoped to learn to box better, but when you get out there you forget that sometimes," said Antrobus. "Denny is a tough kid, we fought last year and I really thought it would go longer."

When it was all over, all of the defending champions advanced to the finals along with some strong challengers who will be getting their first chance to win a championship jacket. Most of the emotional, fired-up crowd will be back as well for Friday night's finals, but some tickets will be on sale today at Gate 10 of the ACC from the 7:30 p.m. event.

Rafferty feels nervous excitement

By ANDREA LaFRENIERE
Sports Writer

The first round of the NAIA Nationals begins today, and Saint Mary's swimmer Meghan Rafferty admitted that she is a little nervous from all the excitement surrounding the three-day event taking place at Whitworth College in Spokane, Wash.

"We've been working towards Nationals all season, and it should be a good meet, but I'm starting to get nervous," said the sophomore from New Canaan, Conn.

Rafferty, one of nine Belles participating in the competition, met the Nationals qualifying times for six events, including the 100-yard and 200-yard backstroke, the 200-yard and 400-yard freestyle relays, and the 200-yard and 400-yard medley relays. The sprinter/backstroke will swim the 50-yard freestyle event on optional time as well.

If last year's results at Nationals are any indication, Rafferty should do well at the event. Last season she gained All-America status in the 200-yard backstroke and the 200-yard, 400-yard, and 800-yard freestyle relays. The english/history double major hopes to see similar results this weekend.

"I'd like for our relays to make All-America (status), and I'd like to make the All-America team in one of my individual events," Rafferty said.

Belles head coach Nancy Kuznitz is confident of Rafferty's success at the competition.

"I'm sure she'll place in both individual backstroke events," said Kuznitz. "She'll be a big help with the relays too. Meghan's a strong swimmer."

According to Kuznitz, Rafferty was a strong finisher throughout the regular season in individual events, as well as in relay events.

"Meghan's been the highest scoring person on the team," she said. "She's either had a first or second-place finish every meet, and that's where the points are."

Although Rafferty may be somewhat apprehensive about her own performance at Nationals, she said that the team results will be positive.

"We have a pretty strong team," she said. "Our relays are strong, and I think we'll do well."

OSU coaches hinted at

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio - A Columbus radio station reported yesterday that five names top the list for consideration as the next Ohio State head men's basketball coach, but the school's athletic director said he is not yet leaning toward any one candidate.

"I'm not close with anyone right now," Athletic Director Rick Bay said. "There are six or eight people we have talked with, but you can't rule out the possibility that there are others we want to get in contact with."

have already interviewed for the position. The station also said that the university has received permission to speak with Arizona coach Lute Olson. Two other names mentioned as strong possibilities but who have not reportedly been interviewed yet are Navy coach Paul Evans and Purdue coach Gene Keady.

Eldon Miller, the current Ohio State coach, was fired by Bay Feb. 3 effective at the end of the current season.

"Red Auerbach is out of the question," Bay said, making light of all the speculation.

Bay said he was under no time restrictions to hire a replacement for Miller.

Indiana gains sole possession of conference lead

Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. - Indiana's Big Ten title hopes improved and Michigan State's were dashed last night as the No. 16 Hoosiers manhandled the No. 17 Spartans, 97-79, and gained sole possession of the conference lead.

Junior guard Steve Alford scored 31 points and freshman Ricky Calloway added 19 to lead Indiana, which won despite a game-high 33 points by Michigan State guard Scott Skiles, who became the Spartans' all-time scoring leader.

The Hoosiers gained a 15-point lead late in the first half, 38-23, and were barely challenged the rest of the way while raising their Big Ten record to 13-4, a half-game better than idle Michigan.

Michigan State, with only its second home loss, sagged to 11-6 in the conference and was eliminated from title contention.

"The game was kind of the way I thought it would be," said Indiana Coach Bob Knight. "It was an offensive game more than anything else. I knew they would score, so I just told our kids they would have to score also and not get knocked out of the box."

Alford dominated the Spartans from the outside and Calloway handled things under the basket for the Hoosiers, who led by at least eight points the entire second half.

"Calloway really helped us in the second half," Knight said. "Steve (Alford) played well."

Spartan Coach Jud Heathcote called it a "very disappointing performance," by his team, which entered the contest with a mathematical chance of winning the conference.

"We played so poorly, it made (Indiana) look good," said Heathcote. "Maybe they played so good that it made us look bad. Maybe we were due for a poor game, because we've been playing so well."

Skiles needed 21 points to break Gregory Kelser's old school scoring record of 2,014 points and got exactly that in the first half.

The 6-1 scoring whiz from Plymouth, Ind., hooped a 15-foot turnaround jumper 1:59 before halftime to move one point ahead of Kelser, who starred for the Spartans from 1976-79.

"I've scored a lot of points, but all I can think about right now is this loss," said Skiles, who turned 22 yesterday. "Records are nice, but they don't mean anything to you until you're 35-40. Someday it might sink it."

Skiles, the Big Ten scoring leader, exited the game after his milestone basket with what is believed to be a pulled ribcage muscle. He returned in the second half, but may sit out the Spartans' season finale Saturday against Ohio State.

"I turned to make a pass and it felt like someone was sticking a knife in my back," said Skiles. "I'm worried about it. I'd say chances of me playing on Saturday are slim right now. I probably shouldn't have played in the second half."

Michigan State pulled within eight, 81-73, on a Skiles jumper with 3:21 remaining, but Alford and backup forward Todd Meier made sets of free throws to give the Hoosiers a 12-point lead with 2:36 left.

Indiana center Daryl Thomas and guard Stew Robinson converted three-point plays down the stretch to make it a runaway.

Thomas contributed 14 points, Andre Harris 10 and Robinson 9 for Indiana, which improved to 21-6 overall.

For Michigan State, 20-7 overall, junior guard Darryl Johnson added 15 points and reserve forward Ralph Walker had 14.

Bradley falls at tourney

Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. - Forwards Brian Rahilly and David Moss scored 22 points apiece to lead Tulsa past No. 9 Bradley 74-58 in the championship game of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament last night, snapping the Braves' winning streak at 22 games.

The victory gives Tulsa, 23-8, an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament. Bradley, with a 31-2 record, also is expected to receive a tournament bid.

Bradley entered the game with the best record among Division I teams and the longest winning streak in the nation among major colleges. The Braves' last loss came against Clemson on Dec. 28.

performance throughout the season.

"In Keenan's last two seasons we only managed to win one game combined, so I would say this season by comparison was a definite improvement," said Tracey. "This is a tribute to our guys, considering that we had an average of eight players per game."

And in the battle of the cellar dwellers, Stanford (1-5-1) lost that lofty position by crushing Sorin (0-7), thus securing Sorin last place.

At the end of the final season, in the Corrigan League, Alumni won the title followed in order by Pangborn, Zahm, Keenan, Carroll, Fisher, Stanford, and Sorin.

In the Krause League, Grace finished first with Cavanaugh/Howard next, followed by Dillon, Holy Cross/St. Ed's, Off-Campus, Morrissey, and Flanner.

Correction

Because of a reporting error, two things need to be corrected in yesterday's spring baseball preview. The Irish do not play Oral Roberts and Houston this season, and the name of freshman pitcher Derk Madden was misspelled.

Beginning her career by accident

Hynes becomes premier fencer

By MIKE CARDINALE
Sports Writer

To start as a freshman in any varsity sport is a special challenge, but Notre Dame fencer Janice Hynes has handled the task of adapting to the pressures of college and the pressures of a major collegiate fencing program equally well.

Hynes has nailed down a starting position as a number two fencer, compiling a record of 61-14 this season. In addition, she has qualified for the individual NCAA Championships by winning the Midwest Regionals last weekend with a 12-2 mark. First-year Irish women's coach Yves Auriol praised Hynes' outstanding performance.

"Last weekend, she realized she could be as good as any girl on the college level," Auriol said. "She really went for it and she did a great job."

Hynes has been a major factor in the most successful season in women's fencing history, but at first, she worried about how she would fit in as a freshman starter. "I wondered what the other girls would think, but they've made it a lot easier," she said.

"Janice has adapted very well," said Auriol. "Coming in this year, she has brought a lot of power to the team. The power of Janice and Molly (Sullivan) is what we needed for the team to do well nationally."

Hynes began her fencing career almost by accident about six years ago.

When she failed to make her school's basketball team, her mom suggested that she give fencing a try. Her initial reaction was not one of fascination.

"I thought it was weird," she said. But Hynes stuck with it, and she began to fence in small competitions in her home state of Massachusetts. She also took private lessons from fencing instructor Joe Pechinski.

The highlight of Hynes' pre-Notre Dame career was a fifth-place finish in the 1985 Junior Olympics in Tampa, Fla. The national attention given this competition thrilled Hynes and helped her to realize her potential. She decided that she wanted to attend a school with a fencing program and Notre Dame fit the bill.

Coach Auriol had known Hynes for three or four years from her participation in national events. "I knew she would be a great asset to our team," he said.

Hynes has found the team emphasis at Notre Dame to be the biggest adjustment to make. "I never had been on a team before," she said. "Here the team is always the first priority." In terms of mechanics, Hynes feels that Auriol has done a lot to help her improve her footwork.

According to Auriol, Hynes' determination and confidence will help her to go a long way in her career at Notre Dame. She has made an immediate impact this year, and should continue to be a solid starter in the years to come.

Hynes will join sophomore Molly Sullivan and juniors Cindy Weeks and Vittoria Quaroni as the women's team travels to Princeton, N.J., for the NCAA Championships, March 25-29. The team qualified by placing first in the Midwest Regional, capping off an undefeated 23-0 regular season, the best in women's fencing history.

Exciting 56th Bengal Bouts set up interesting last round

By SCOTT INGLIS
Sports Writer

"Never a dull moment," is a phrase that best characterizes the 56th annual Bengal Bouts. That is, unless you are counting the ten-minute intermission coming halfway through the semi-final round last night. On either side of that intermission, however, the crowd of 3,331 fans was treated to 29 contests and some thrilling action.

Providing a great deal of the early excitement was Thomas "HAMMERIN' Hank" Hayman, a 132-pound junior, who pummeled an overmatched Wilson Walter from the opening bell in the third match of the evening.

Landing three successive rights and drawing blood early in the first round, Hayman continued to pound Walter, with the crowd on its feet until the fight was stopped at 1:11 to go in the second, as Hayman advanced to the finals.

Shortly thereafter, in the 138-pound division, Anthony Bonacci, a former champion and great finesse fighter, went three rounds to defeat a difficult opponent, Timothy "The Soccor Psycho" Hartigan on a split decision.

"He was really tough to get to early," said Bonacci. "I was a little rusty starting out, but I have to give him credit, he fought a great fight."

Bonacci's victory, coupled with the win of his friend Edward "Fast Eddie" Bornemann over Steven Slaughter in the other semi-final, should make for one of the more interesting final matchups Friday.

Bornemann and Bonacci are best friends and have been sparring and working out together six-days-a-week in preparation for the Bengals.

If you like to pull for the underdog, then you would have been pulling for the 147-pound Robert Harig after the first round of his bout with Robert "Nikita" Prebenda a few fights later.

Prebenda came out swinging in the first round, landing numerous right leads on Harig's head, drawing blood from his nose, and forcing a standing eight-count. Things continued to look grim for Harig in the second round until he suddenly landed a right-left combination that stunned Prebenda. From there on, the table was turned, as Harig staged the greatest comeback of the night, pounding his opponent with a strong left for the remainder of the bout.

"This was by far the toughest fight I've ever been in," said Harig, still bruised and bleeding after the match "I was so excited at the start that I was forgetting to use what I learned in practice. After a while, though, things started to go as I thought they would."

One of the most promising matchups on the evening, a fight between Pat "Joe Man" Loughran and Mark "night Train" Seals, lived up to its billing in the 145-pound weight division. Seals, who scored a 14-second knockout in his opening bout Sunday, could not overcome the powerful punching of Loughran in this one.

see LOUGHRAN, page 12

The Observer/Drew Sandler

Thomas "Thunder and Lightning" Newell, left, exchanges blows with David Dvorak in Newell's unanimous decision in the 145-pound division. Scott Inglis details the action at the left. The finals will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Interhall hockey enters semi-final playoff action

By ORLANDO RUBIANO
Sports Writer

The interhall hockey regular season ended Tuesday night, leaving four teams to vie for the championship. The final four will square off in semi-final playoff action tonight at the ACC.

The playoff slate begins at 10:30 p.m. with Grace taking on Pangborn, followed by Alumni against Cavanaugh/Howard at 11:45 p.m. Both games should feature exciting hockey for the fans.

A recap of last week's action saw two playoff-bound clubs win their respective finales. Pangborn (6-1), paced by John Drew's two goals, coasted by Fisher (2-4-1) for a 6-2 win.

Meanwhile, Cavanaugh/Howard (5-1) had a much tougher time in defeating a tough Morrissey squad by a slim 4-3 margin. Cavanaugh/Howard got balanced scoring as Jim Mejia, Clay Hamlin, and Chris Sullivan each scored once for the victors.

Morrissey saw its record drop to 1-4-1, however, its final record includes two one-goal decisions.

Cavanaugh/Howard captain John Oteri said that his club might have been caught looking ahead to its game with Alumni.

"We blew a lot of scoring opportunities, but you have to give a good deal of credit to their goalkeeper (because) he played great," said Oteri. "The big positive from this game is that our passing game seems to be clicking just right. We will be ready for Alumni."

Pangborn assistant coach Brian MacSwain was surprised that Fisher gave his team a harder game than he thought. If he thought Fisher was tough, undefeated Grace will be that much tougher.

"We have to have a good game for us to beat Grace," said MacSwain. "Our biggest problem is that we will be missing a couple of guys tomorrow for various reasons, but the key factor for this team is going to be the play of our goalkeeper, Dave Long."

In other regular season ending games, Holy Cross/St. Ed's blanked Fanner (0-6) behind Evan Farley's two goals. Holy Cross/St.

Ed's captain Gene O'Connor said that his club had a good overall season despite a 3-3 record.

"Tonight our team played together as a unit against Flanner," said O'Connor. "We all had fun this season, and that is what counts."

Keenan (3-3-1) and Zahm (4-2-1) skated to a 2-2 tie, after a five minute overtime yielded no winner. Brian Tracey, Keenan's captain, was impressed at his club's

The Notre Dame men's varsity track team is running into the two most important weekends of the indoor track season. Before traveling to Oklahoma City for the NCAA Indoor Championships next week, the Irish head east for the IC4A Championships in Princeton, New Jersey.

The importance of this race is in its history. The INtercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America, or IC4A, is one of the oldest conferences in the nation. The competition is very strong.

The importance of this race is in its history. The INtercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America, or IC4A, is one of the oldest conferences in the nation. The competition is very strong, consisting of all East Coast schools with one exception- Notre Dame.

"It's a very good meet," said Irish head coach Joe Piane. "Their qualifying standards are high, for example, the mile standard if 4:10."

In all, 12 members met the qualifying standards and will compete in the meet. Notre Dame will be especially well represented in the middle distance runs, even though Piane has decided to hold out two relay teams.

"We qualified both the mile and the two-mile relays, but we just don't have enough bodies to run all the races," he said.

To increase the potential number of points, Piane has elected to split up his two-mile relay team which qualified for the Nationals at the Terrier Classic, and place the runners in individual events.

John McNelis and Robert Nobles will both run the 880-yard run. Jeff Van Wie will race in the 1000-yard run, and Jim Tyler will run in the mile.

The distance medley qualified for the meet with a time of 10:08. Paul Duvair will run the 880-yard leg, David Warth in the 1320-yard leg, and Rick Mulvey in the mile.

Three sprinters will represent Notre Dame at Princeton. Brandy

Wells and Tony Ragunas both qualified in the 60-yard dash with times of 6.43 and 6.44, respectively. Van Percy qualified in the 440-yard run with a time of 49.68.

Finally, Chris Matteo is the only Irish qualifier in a field event, vaulting 15 feet in the DePaul-Marquette triangular.

Despite the large contingent, the Irish will be hard-pressed to repeat their fifth place showing last year. That team featured seniors Jim Patterson, who took second in the long jump, and Lloyd Constable, who placed third in the high jump.

"All the runners have the potential of making it to the finals," said Piane. He also said that George Mason should win the meet, and Penn State, Villanova, Princeton, and Northeastern should all field strong teams.

IRISH ITEMS - Piane said he believed that Auburn's two-mile relay team may have beaten Notre Dame's mark. At the Terrier Classic, the team of McNelis, Nobles, Van Wie, and Tyler ran a 7:24.84.
