Voter registration drive underway ND wants informed voters

By KELLEY TUTHILL News Staff

Student Government is sponsoring a voter registration to encourage informed student voting, not just the participation itself.

Tables for voter registration were set up in both dining halls during lunch and dinner yesterday and the registration will continue today. There also will be a table set up in LaFortune Student Center from 2-4 p.m.

Mike Keegan, Executive Coordinator for Political, Cultural, and Social Concerns, and John Hamill, Political Concerns Commissioner, are leading the voter registration project.

"Registering to vote is a very important thing to do and we think that the Student Government is the appropriate body to sponsor it," said Hamill. Hamill added that in the past many individuals and small

With election day less than two months away, students at St. Mary's are getting ready to cast their ballots.

Sophomores Kristen Swanson and Cindy Coulter of the Government Club, with the support of Campus Ministry, SMC Peacemakers, Student Government and Vice President for Student Affairs Lisa Hill have organized a program to encourage students to register as voters either in Indiana or in their home states through absentee ballots.

Swanson explained that students are eligible to register to vote in Indiana if they have not registered already in their home state. Furthermore, students who have registered at home may transfer their ballot to Indiana while they are a student in Indiana. In addition, the organization will provide information about voting in questions Saint Mary's Judicial Board has addressed in their newly issued pamphlet en-titled, "Saint Mary's Students Behind Bars: Your Next Case Might Be a Court Case," designed to familiarize students with the penalties for underaged drinking and their rights in situations involving alcohol.

Peggy Kramer has been commissioner of the nine member Student Judicial Board for the past two years. She thought of the pamphlet as a result of the crackdown on underaged drinking during the 1986-1987 school year. Kramer referred specifically to the large amount of Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students ticketed at Lee's Ribs in 1987.

"I felt the J-board should be more than a disciplinary body," Kramer said. "We asked minors questions they had concerning their respec-

In addition to explaining the process of pre-trial diversion, the pamphlet illustrates the consequences of entering a bar or party with false identification and the actions which constitute resisting arrest.

"We have received positive feedback so far because there was a need in our community to know minors' rights in situations involving alcohol," Kramer said. "We are hoping the issuance of this pamphlet will be a deterrent to minor drinking."

The pamphlet is being dis-tributed in Saint Mary's dorms this week. Any Saint Mary's or Notre Dame student who would like a copy but has not received one should contact the Residance Life and Housing Office at Saint Mary's.

IN BRIEF

Herb True, University of Notre Dame adjunct professor, said Tuesday he will continue using his flaming hand trick as an audience attention-grabber despite nearly setting a lecture hall on fire. "When was the last time you set your audience on fire?" True joked Tuesday. He was lecturing Monday when he produced a small ball of fire in the palm of his hand. Someone distracted his attention, his hand was burned and he accidently hit a flip chart at the front of the classroom being used for a seminar for the American Amusement and Music Operators Association. The pages caught fire and flames reached the ceiling. No one was hurt in the incident at the Center for Continuing Education.

Freshmen election results at Saint Mary's have been tallied. Peggy Abood, Lisa Blair, Melissa Budetti, Meg Dalition, Michelle Delaney, Colleen Durkin, Cathy Fisher, Anne McArdle, Alissa Murphy, Joelle Pouliot, Shanna Randolph, Alysann Sieren, and Kelly Smith were elected to the Freshman Council. A run-off will be held on Friday for the Presidential and Vice Presidential positions between the ticket of of Kelly O'Connell and Kerry Brown, and Susan Zielinski and Lori Marucut. According to Michelle Agostino, election commissioner for Saint Mary's student government, O'Connell's ticket received 18 percent of the vote and Zielinski's ticket received 16 percent. Agostino said that 59 percent of the freshmen class voted in this year's elections. "That's really high," Agostino added. -The Observer

INSIDE COLUMN Fetal tissue issue is everybody's business

Recent news of medical research using tissue from aborted fetuses has turned quite a few stomachs, including mine. It makes me wonder just where technology is taking us these days.

Evidently, it's making others wonder, too. The National Institutes of Health have formed a 21-member advisory committee to investigate the scientific, legal and ethical issues surrounding the use of aborted fetuses. The committee met last weekend in Washington for the first time. The move is laudable, but so far the panel isn't getting to the heart of the matter.

Father James Burtchaell, a Notre Dame theology professor who was named to the committee, said they were given 10 questions to discuss on the practice of using aborted fetuses. Burtchaell added the panel hasn't even looked at all of the questions.

Why was the panel restricted to 10 questions in the first place? If the group was appointed to investigate the controversial research, they should be permitted to ask away. It seems very suspicious to me that the NIH would give their own committee members such short rein. What are they afraid of?

The very idea of using aborted fetuses for anything is absurd. Some medical researchers believe that transplanting fetal tissue may aid the treatment of certain diseases, such as Parkinson's syndrome and diabetes, the Associated Press reported. Please tell me medical technology could not devise a more ethical solution to disease research.

Research that compromises human life in an effort to better it is absurd. Many may argue against the viability of a fetus; we can expect that. But why should we discard the possibility that the aborted fetus was alive, despite an apparent lack of evidence? The issue in research using tissue from aborted fetuses is simply one of respect for the dead.

What about organ donors? Well, donors make that decision themselves. They are at least given a choice. Fetuses aborted in pregnancy aren't given a choice. Perhaps right now we can't be sure the fetus is alive. But can we be sure it isn't?

Debate over using fetal tissue in medical research is currently a question of ethics, not a direct debate on abortion. Burtchaell is right when he says this is a major policy. Abortionists and pro-lifers will will enter this debate sooner or later. It's an issue that should have been settled long ago, but must be addressed.

When human life begins is a question medical technology may help answer in the near future. Ultrasound and other techniques enable physicians to detect the fetus' heartbeat at increasingly earlier stages. Last I heard, medical and make the world a better place.

Regis Coccia News Editor

instruments could detect the heartbeat of an eight-week-old fetus, well within the first trimester of pregnancy.

Consider that once the human heart starts beating, it does not stop permanently until death. I think that's a pretty good indication that fetuses are alive a lot earlier than science and various pro-choice groups would allow us to believe. Perhaps modern medicine is only a heartbeat away from proving that human life begins at conception.

The so-called landmark Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion on demand was not one of Justice's finest moments. The Supreme Court acknowledged it did not know when human life begins. But the justices didn't give the untold millions of fetuses aborted since then the benefit of the doubt. That is perhaps the greatest injustice ever wrought by the highest court in these United States.

How much do we value human life? Until we answer this question for ourselves, the ethics of using aborted fetuses for medical research will be debated. Until we decide for sure that some things in the world today are wrong, people will continue arguing to keep them around. If this issue turns enough stomachs, maybe we can rid ourselves of this sickness

Father Pelton invited to Chile to be an international observer

By JIM LANG News Staff

"Guarded optimism" is the outlook of Father Robert Pelton for the uncertain political future of Chile and the incumbent military regime.

Pelton, Director of Notre Dame's Institute for Pastoral and Social Concerns, was recently invited to Chile's Defense Committee for the Rights of the People (CODEPU) conferences, held from August 4-6, as one of several international observers.

One of the aims of the committee was to focus on accusations of human rights violations leveled against Chilean dictator General Pinochet and his military Junta, said Pelton.

Pinochet siezed power from Socialist president Salvadore Allende in a 1973 coup d'etat and has ruled since then as a military dictator. According to Pelton, the United States was instrumental in Allende's downfall, and worked to destabilize his government during his two year presidency.

During Pinochet's fifteen year rule, Pelton said, Chile underwent an economic revival in terms of its Gross National Product and its foreign debts. At the same time, however, there was a complete elimination of the middle class, and it was the rich who saw the benefits of the revival, while the poor maintained their economic status or sunk into deeper levels of poverty.

Also during this time, there was "brutal repression of those dissenting from the regime, repression documented by various human rights groups, including Amnesty International," Pelton said.

Many of those in attendance at the CODEPU conferences were victims of this repression, Pelton said, and had suffered torture at the hands of soldiers or served jail sentences for their actions.

On October 5 of this year, Chilean voters will finally have a chance to cast their votes for or against Pinochet's dictatorship.

A vote of yes, Pelton said, is a vote for Pinochet to step down as the military commander-inchief, but to continue to rule as a civilian president until March, 1997. A vote of no is a call for Pinochet and his Junta to step down, and for general elections to be held for the President, senators, and deputies in December, 1990.

"I believe that the election itself will be clean," Pelton said, "but after that ... in either case I see many problems."

Pinochet's involvement in Chilean politics stems from his stay there as a Holy Cross missionary from 1964 to 1972. Since then, he has made numerous return trips to study the role of the Roman Catholic Church in Chile.

Presidential expert to speak on 1988 election

Observer Staff Report

A series of lectures on the 1988 presidential campaign, featuring Michael Novak, visiting Welch professor of American studies, begins tonight at 7:30 in the Center for Continuing Education.

The three lectures, titled

"Choosing Our King, 1988: A Monthly Election Watch," are co-sponsored by the Department of American Studies and the CCE and will include updates on the issues and trends of the campaign.

Other lectures will take place at 7:30 p.m. on Wed., Oct. 12 and Thurs., Nov. 10. Each session will explore the campaign "against the philosophical and theological backdrop of the continuing clash of American stories and symbols," according to the CCE.

The lectures will partly reflect on the uniqueness of the presidency, report on the campaign's turning points, provide a good intellectual interchange and lively debate, a CCE press release stated.

Although the lectures are billed as the 1988 Fall Faculty Seminar, students and other members of the University community are welcomed, the CCE said.

Novak, a distinguished held the Welch Chair in Ame scholar of presidential politics, fcan studies since last year.

is the director of Social and Political Studies at the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, D.C.

He has published numerous books, including "Choosing Our King," a 1974 study of the election process. Novak has held the Welch Chair in American studies since last year.

Pesticides lead to 'Wrath of Grapes'

By MICHELLE LAROSE News Staff

A bitter debate between migrant workers and Southern California vineyard owners on the use of pesticides has drawn the attention of two Notre Dame students this year who hope to promote campus awareness of harmful pesticides.

The California laborers, led by activist Cesar Chavez, who spoke at Notre Dame last spring, argue their families, communities and ultimately the consumer are threatened by use of the pesticides Captan, parathion, Phosdin, Dinoseb and methyl bromide. They further claim these pesticides are unnecessary for the growth of a healthy crop of grapes, and that the owners use them only to improve the fruit's market appearance.

Seniors Celeste Freind and Tony Tramontin became interested in the migrant workers' problem after Chavez visited campus.

'Although I didn't attend his lecture, one of my friends who went became so adamant about boycotting the grapes that I wanted to find out more about it," Freind said.

Freind and Tramontin have been devoting research time to identifying the issues and learning more about the pes-ticides themselves. "It's themselves. amazing how toxic the chemicals are. One of them, parathion, can kill you if only a teaspoon is spilled on you. And they are sending the workers out into the field an hour after they've sprayed," Tramontin said.

Both students plan to talk to various campus groups about the issues and show a tape of "The Wrath of Grapes," a film distributed by Chavez, showing the harmful effects of grape pesticides.

The film depicts the workers' reports of illness and the rise of serious birth defects in children born of migrant workers. It also details the inordinately high incidence of cancer in children in surrounding communities. The film theorizes that pesticides seep into ground water consumed by the children.

Vineyard owners, however, claim there is no substantial evidence supporting the workers' claim of the increased health risk due to the use of pesticides. They also cite strict federal laws dictating the safe use of the chemicals, and claim that the high cost of pesticides severely limits the extent to which they are used.

"Basically our main concern is to get people to see what's going on. There are so many people who don't realize that the use of pesticides could directly affect their lives," said Freind.

She added that a recent Food and Drug Administration survey found the residues of 30 pesticides on a sample of California table grapes.

"The Wrath of Grapes" will be shown Thursday, Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Center for Social Concerns, Tramontin said.

"Hopefully after seeing the film students will choose to boycott the grapes. But if they don't, at least they'll be aware of the problem," he said.

Democrat Michael Dukakis proposed a broad health insurance program for American workers Tuesday and told Republican rival George Bush "it's about time you came out from behind that flag" and addressed the issue. Bush draped himself in patriotism, visiting the nation's largest flag manufacturer.

Dukakis, seeking support from working people, said the federal government should enact legislation requiring most employers to provide basic health insurance benefits for employees and dependents.

"I think it's time we did something," said Dukakis. He said he wanted to extend health insurance to all Americans, and that the first step would be to provide it to working people through their employers. Campaign aides said the first phase of Dukakis' program would give benefits to about 22 million people who have none.

Senate may raise minimum wage for first time in 8 years

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Senate Democrats maneuvered Tuesday to force a vote on raising the $3.35 minimum wage for the first time in eight years, stopping just short of accusing Republicans of filibustering the issue in deference to presidential politics.

"We've been discussing the minimum wage since last week and haven't voted on a single amendment," complained Sen. Alan Dixon. "We are behind the curve. The people in this country realize you can't even hire people at a $3.35 minimum wage." Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign said Tuesday that Bush likely would not unveil any specific minimum wage proposal until after his debate next Sunday with Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis.

"We're exploring a modest increase so long as its tied to a subminimum or training wage," said David Sandor, a Bush campaign spokesman. "But there's nothing scheduled for this week."

Labor Secretary Ann McLaughin, meanwhile, was said by officials to be preparing a statement on behalf of the administration.

sponsored groups have registrations but that this year is the first campus wide registration drive.

Keegan and Hamill also plan to run a Voter Information Campaign that will begin on October 1 and continue through November 1. Keegan explains that, "I think what John (Hamill) and I didn't want was people registering and voting without the necessary information. We would like the students to get information and have well educated votes, not just votes.'

This campaign will include a table in LaFortune open Monday through Friday from 12-6 p.m. This table will make information pertaining to the local and national elections available Keegan said. The representatives working at the table will offer unbaised materials about the various candidates, said Keegan, adding, "We started collecting materials last week and by October we hope to compile as much information as possible on presidential and local candidates."

"In addition to the Information Desk we will also issue posters in the residence dorms with information about the various candidates. Another part of the Campaign is to print cards for the dining hall tables. Each card would discuss a specific issue of the presidential campaign with a side dedicated to the Democratic view and the other to the Republican," said Keegan.

Student Body Vice President Mike Paese said that the idea of a Student Government sponsored registration "started last spring when President Tom Dovle and I were running for office. One of our campaign promises was to try to make the campus more politically aware."

Hamill said that student representatives from the Dukakis Campaign and the Young Republicans were joining the Student Government Campaign for voter registration.

Another revolt feared in Haiti

Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti -Soldiers from six units ousted their commanders as a revolt spread through the military Tuesday, as the new president appointed a military chief and appealed for an end to the unrest.

Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril, who declared himself president early Sunday following a coup, said Haiti's military government was taking steps to satisfy "the most urgent demands of the members of the armed forces."

But reports of reprisal killings, demonstrations and a rash of military mutinies continued to grow.

"I'm afraid we're on the eve of another insurrection," a government official said privately.

Radio stations said gunmen killed four people in apparent reprisal for the Sept. 11 massacre of 13 people during a Mass at a Roman Catholic church and other atrocities linked to the government of the deposed president, Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

Nine other people have been reported killed since Avril seized power. The coup was led by non-commissioned officers and lower-ranking soldiers in Namphy's own presidential guard. Namphy was exiled to the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

Soldiers who staged the coup had demanded of the military command that Avril be put in power, that the military be reorganized, and that democratic reforms be brought to Haiti, including free elections, sources said.

During the ceremony outside the National Palace, Avril said the unrest among soldiers .

he was aware of "numerous problems" within the armed forces but urged his troops "to stay calm, not to adopt attitudes which may expose the institution to wanton criticisms and affect the spirit of unity and solidarity which the new government is seeking.'

The president, shown on state-run television wearing a dress uniform, spoke from the palace steps to a gathering of about 200 soldiers representing all units of the 7,000-man Haitian army.

At the ceremony, Avril announced the appointment of a new armed forces commanderin-chief, Maj. Gen. Herard Abraham, who was foreign minister under Namphy.

Abraham's appointment confirmed speculation that Lt. Col. Jean-Claude Paul, commander of the dreaded 700-man Dessalines Battalion military unit, would not assume command of the army.

The United States is seeking Paul's extradition to face federal drug charges in Florida. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater in Washington said Monday that Paul's elevation to army chief would have been an "indication of the difficulties we will have with this government.'

Namphy led a junta that ran Haiti for most of the 2 years since Jean-Claude Duvalier was forced into exile in February 1986.

There was no announcement of an army reorganization during Avril's address. The announcement had been expected Monday, but a goverment official said the high command was hesitating to make it, fearing a loss of its authority. It was unclear if that spurred

Ritz owners resent column

Dear Editor:

page 8

As the owners of The Ritz Hotel, we felt compelled to respond to the article by Mark McLaughlin in the Sept. 12 publication of The Observer. The insinuations that something illegal is taking place at The Ritz are not only ludicrous but also way out of line. We sometimes advertise our phone number as 289-LOVE, and the LOVE is, in our opinion, a novel idea. The 289 however, which Mr. McLaughlin analyzed to spell BUY, is the work of Indiana Bell. We hope that Mr. McLaughlin devotes as much time to his studies as he apparently did in this determination. This type of deciphering is reminiscent of that used by groups who play rock music backwards to find evidence of devil worship.

There are several reasons our building cannot be entered until the desk clerk "buzzes" you in, but to "look you over to make sure you are not a cop" is not one of them. In fact, many "cops" and their wives or girlfriends have been guests of The Ritz, and we offer a discount to all law enforcement officers. We strictly enforce our "single or double occupancy only" policy, and the door buzzer helps the clerk keep track of people entering and leaving the building. The buzzer also provides security for the hotel employees.

Those insinuations, and the comment regarding the nature of our establishment, inspired a woman, who identified herself as the mother of a Notre Dame student, to call The Ritz the day the article was published. She called to let

The brochure the writer "snagged" is one of thousands we freely hand out and send through the mail. They are not the prized possession he seemed to think his was. In fact, the clerk who took him on the tour probably handed it to him on his arrival. We also state in our brochure, "guests must provide their own alcoholic beverages." Mr. McLaughlin's selection of items from our brochure omitted that particlular item. The term "Champagne Suite" originated from the manufacturer of the heart-shaped whirlpools.

The "etc." after our listing of bathroom amenities includes mouthwash, water glasses, and hairdryers. We would hope that the "adults" who stay in our hotel practice safe sex without our help. We do not provide condoms, nor do we promote sex or promiscuity. We do promote romance and intimacy between people who care about each other.

As Mr. McLaughlin stated, the hotel is quite nice. As for the clientele we "try to cater to," they are quite nice also. Our 4-hour Getaways are very popular with couples who have children and find it impossible to stay out all night. On Saturday nights, approximately half of our guests are honeymooners. We decorate rooms and provide cakes and decorations for many couples who are celebrating birthdays and anniversaries.

Mr. McLaughlin entered our hotel with a purpose: to gather information to write an article presenting The Ritz as a questionable advertiser in University materials. Is he aware that we have advertised in the University Directory for the past two years? The University did not ask us to advertise. The publisher of the service directory just Notre Dame to give three hours a week called on us like all of the other busi- to the social concerns volunteer pronesses who placed ads.

not happy with the administration's tivities were the most important things policy regarding alcohol, but is it fair I did in college.

to slander our business (or even involve us at all) because of that conflict? We run a respectable hotel and have invested much time and money toward achieving a good standing in the community. We donate rooms to help raise money for schools, churches, the families for seriously ill or injured persons, muscular dystrophy, and the list goes on.

Far be it for us to say that Mr. McLaughlin has analyzed the situation a little too deeply to try to make a point (and a weak one at that), but the only "intent" anyone had was to reach the goal of all businesses; that of increasing profits. On the other hand, maybe we should thank Mr. McLaughlin for reaching out a bit far on this issue. With the exception of the mother who called to disapprove of The Ritz, the article has sparked some positive interest by the student body. It would seem that many students were not even aware of our ad until they read the article, and the comments we found unacceptable have been overlooked by some.

Of course, we realize that many people at Notre Dame, St. Mary's, and throughout the community will not visit our hotel because of that article; and, therefore, we personally invite everyone to stop out, take a tour, and judge for yourself.

Dear Editor:

I am a 1987 graduate, currently a second year in Notre Dame's London law school program and an RA with the junior Arts and Letters London program. I've never written to The Observer before, however, when I saw the "activities night" advertised in an Observer that an undergrad received over here a couple of days ago, I decided to write. I wish to encourage students at gram of their choice. Two years We realize that many students are hindsight convinces me that these ac-

WHY DON'T

The range of opportunities you are offered at Notre Dame is exceptional. The Center for Social Concerns lists numerous activities, among the jail ministry, students assisting students, projects with South Bend's homeless, tutoring at many levels, visiting nursing homes, DISMASS House, CILA's Mexico Volunteer Program, Peace Corps internships, Logan Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, and Urban Plunge. Moreover, it will never be easier for you to volunteer: everyone can find an option suited to their interests, everyone has needed talents and everyone has three hours per week (free enough) to participate.

In particular, I want to promote the last three programs I listed above. The Logan Center needs volunteers for its Saturday morning "rec" sessons, scorers for its bowling league, and people for its other weekly activities. Try this if you want to learn something fundamental about human dignity. Big Brothers/Big Sisters needs recruits to fill its constant waiting list of children from single-parent homes. Being a Big Brother or Big Sister "match" to one of these children can be an exceptionally rewarding experience because your effect on the child is often selfevident, as is the mutual friendship you develop. You may also gain a new appreciation of your own privileges. Finally, everyone should at some time go on one of the Urban Plunges directed by the CSC to recognize what is "reality" for many people. Talk with Mary Ann Roemer or Fr. Don McNeill at the CSC for other suggestions.

Everyone has three hours.

usic is often seen as a means of escaping anxieties and frustrations. But for some students, instead of serving as an outlet, the repetition and lack of originality in a radio station can only add to these difficulties

WVFI (the Voice of the Fighting Irish), however, seems to have that fresh excitement and uniqueness that many people seek. "The whole basis of the station is to play a format that is different than any other station," said manager Dan Janick of WVFI, a student-run radio station that focuses primarily on progressive music.

WVFI can be found at 640 AM, from 7 a.m. to 1 a.m. all week long. The station is located on the second floor of LaFortune and employs approximately 200 students from Notre Dame and St. Mary's. "The students pretty much run the show and there is very little administrative involvement," said Janick.

WVFI also gives students the opportunity to become familiar with many new musical groups. "Nobody can digest all of the new music that is released and by turning to WVFI, you can get exposed to some of it at least," said senior disc jockey and production manager Andy

GARFIELD: I hate Mondays. Shopping is my life. JASON: (labored breathing, slug-snorting) GARFIELD: Big fat hairy deal. (The sound of a chainsaw starting. The sound of a blood-curdling, high-pitched shriek. Muffled laughter. Snot sounds.)

Actually, I guess that was less a conversation than it was a homocide. Oh well.

The next conversation was way WVFI adds variety to its format. Along with the progressive music which is played the majority of air time, the station also runs special show and this helps widen audience appeal.

The special programs include WVFI's top 10 show on Tuesday at 9-10 p.m., an oldies show on Wednesday at 3-5 p.m., an urban contempory show on Thursday at 9-11 a.m., a hardcore show on Saturday at 9-11 p.m. and a heavy metal show on Sunday at 7-9 p.m.

WVFI also presents "Speaking of Sports" which is broadcast on Tuesday at 10-11 p.m. and features a call-in format for listeners and guests such as football players, basketball players

MRS. EINSTEIN: Now Albert...

EINSTEIN: Pass the damn butter....

(Sounds of clinking plates) EINSTEIN: My peas are cold again! I don't believe it!

It is obvious that this shows a rare insight into the man, the lover, the misunderstood genius that was Albert Einstein.

So, through all this, what have we learned? That famous people are just like you and me? That everybody is vulnerable to occasional bursts of "mundanity?"

and coaches. Another university-related program is "Campus Perspective" and it introduces guests who speak about events and issues pertaining to Notre Dame and St. Mary's. This show is broadcast on Thursday at 10-11 p.m. News, weather, sports and concert reports are also announced at various times throughout the day.

The diversity and originality are what makes WVFI the unique radio station that it is. Not only can students learn more about music through WVFI, but they can also learn about themselves. Perhaps senior disc jockey Joe Medel summarizes WVFI best when he said, "It is a mind-broadening experience. If you're into new experiences, listen to WVFI."

dWorks, Notre Dame's Aown full-fledged, independently operated advertising agency, has been in operation since 1983. The AdWorks company has grown into one of the most successful business organizations on campus. Run entirely by a student staff, the agency provides quality advertising services for all of Notre Dame's clubs and organizations an organization or event. The little blue footballs that University Food Services passed out at a picnic this year were designed and produced by AdWorks.

According to the president of AdWorks, Dan Baldino, one of the most useful and practical services they provide is the resume service.

Everyone at one point or another needs quality resumes for job applications, and AdWorks has the capablity to provide them The staff will do resumes for half of what most services

Not all of the students intend to work in advertising for a career, but they still like working for the experience of involvement in a business. Staff members learn a lot of skills: such as the mechanics of operating a business, solicitation of new clients, interaction with business associates, and maintaining a healthy business environment.

Dan Baldino says that Ad-Works is a microcosm of a bigbusiness advertising agency.

Some of the things AdWorks does for its clients are the design and production of advertising posters, flyers, and novelty products, a complete resume service, and a logo design service. Its staff has at its disposal over 4,000 novelty products, from fly swatters to footballs to Tshirts with which to promote throughout high school. She did not focus all of her energy on athletics, however, as her grades were good enough to earn her a full four-year academic scholarship to Canisius. And now, as a junior living in Lewis Hall, Sullivan is overflowing with enthusiasm for her new team and her new school.

"From day one we've gotten along great," she says of the team. "We weren't exactly sure how we all fit together, but it's really starting to work out. We're looking to gel on the field as well as we do off the field."

Just as Sullivan is happy to be here, Irish head coach Dennis Grace is happy to have her.

"K.T. is just fantastic, a good person and a great lady," he says. "She handles herself very well. With our young team she's taken on a very positive leadership role, and she's done month, and not for the other up and beyond what we thought two years of her college she might be able to do. career.

Sullivan herself recognizes the importance of her valuable experience of playing at a high level for so many years.

"I am the only one on the team who has played varsity college ball," she says. "I can help them know what to expect.'

As one of the team's central midfielders, Sullivan's responsibilities will include motivation as well as field leadership. That shouldn't present a problem for her.

"I have a lot of fun out there on the field, you have to work really hard and ask 110 percent of yourself, but you can't ask more than 100 percent of anybody else," she says. "I'm glad that a lot of people get a chance to play, and I'm just happy to be out there." Grace agrees.

K.T. is very intelligent as a player, and has a unique ability to bring people up to higher levels," he says. "Her biggest weakness is that she's only played at Notre Dame for one

U.S. basketball dumps Brazil

Associated Press

SEOUL--The U.S. basketball team and boxer Michael Carbajal both got even Wednesday, and swimmer Matt Biondi became the United States' first triple medalist at the Seoul Olympics, falling one stroke short of two gold medals.

The Observer

The basketball team scored a 102-87 victory over Brazil, which had stunned the United States in the title game of the Pan Am Games last year. The victory clinched America's berth in the medal round.

Carbajal, meanwhile, moved the U.S. boxing team another step farther from oblivion with a mean-fought victory over a South Korean who beat him last year in a dual meet in Seoul.

Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., swam the fastest 200-meter free leg of the 800 relay in history in leading the Americans past the East Germans. Biondi missed another gold when he finished just .01 seconds behind surprise winner Anthony Nesty, the only swimmer here from Surinam. Beaten when he glided into the wall after his last stroke, Biondi thus added a silver in the men's 100-meter butterfly to the bronze he won in the 200 freestyle, and his quest for seven medals at these Games continued.

The Soviets now have 11 medals, six gold. China has seven medals, one gold, and Bulgaria and the United States have six each. Bulgaria has three gold, the United States two. East Germany has five medals, including three gold.

While the Soviets were running away with the medals race, the wounded hero Greg Louganis and worried warrior Kenneth Gould got the Americans going on Tuesday.

At the same time, Said Aouita of Morocco sent ripples of disbelief through the world of track and field. Now, it appears he may try for an Olympic triple in the 800, 1,500 and 5,000--even though the two longer races will be run 20 minutes apart on the next-tolast day of the Games. Aouita is the world record-holder at 1,500 and 5,000 meters.

The U.S. basketball team used a defensive pressure that has become the trademark of Coach John Thompson of Georgetown to wear down Brazil. Brazil led 38-37 with 7:34 to play in the first half, but that's when the United States defense went to work. J.R. Reid led the Americans with 16 points, 14 in the first half, and Danny Manning and Dan Majerle had 12 each.

Brazil's Oscar Schmidt had 31 points, but that was nine off his Olympic average, and Thompson said his players were sick of hearing about the Brazilian star.

"This team was Oscared to death," the coach said.

On Tuesday, the U.S. team went to a weapon not known to be heavily stocked in its arsenal, the 3-point goal, to beat Canada 76-70 for its second straight victory. Hersey Hawkins led the way with 13 points. It was a big victory for America's littlest boxer when Carbajal, of Phoenix, Ariz.,

South Korea 3-2 in a 106-pound matchup, giving the U.S. team two straight victories.

Oh, considered a prime gold medal candidate, scored with the harder punches, but Carbajal jabbed and countered well, often scoring with big flurries in a fight marked by a lot of holding and wrestling.

"He's the hometown hero," the 21-year-old Carbajal said. "I had to fight hard because of the crowd.'

Kenneth Gould advanced on Tuesday in the 147-pound division after two stunning U.S. losses ä first-round knockout of Kelcie Banks and the loss by walkover of Anthony Hembrick.

Gould was camped on the floor of the gymnasium long before his 147-pound bout started. He might not win, but he was going to be there-especially after what happened to Hembrick the day before.

The Observer / Mike Ury Waller finds home on volleyball court

By MOLLY MAHONEY Sports Writer

"I was never mean enough," senior Mary Kay Waller laughed. "If you put me out there on the court now they would just put me away."

It is hard to believe this is the same 6-0 middle blocker from Lawrence, Kan., who is leading the Notre Dame women's vollevball team in kills. hitting percentage and total blocks.

But fortunately for the Irish, if not so for their opponents, Waller is merely reminiscing about her high school years when basketball--not her volleyball--was top priority.

"I played volleyball as a side sport," says Waller. "It wasn't until my senior year that I realized my potential lay in vollevball. It takes a more aggressive person to play basketball and I'd prefer to hit the ball, not people. It fits my personality more."

Waller is now fully devoted to volleyball and sports statistics that could earn her All-American honors this season.

She has dominated net play for the Irish in their first eight matches, recording 109 kills and 51 blocks thus far in the season, taking up where she left off last year ranked seventh in nation in blocking average.

"She's doing extremely well this season," says Irish head coach Art Lambert. "Her play is tremendous right now and we'd like to see her take her game a level above that. We feel as coaches that she's got a great deal of potential--more than even she realizes--and we hope to tap it."

Since joining the Notre Dame squad, Walle s helped the

'We learned from those losses and put together a decent record the last two years," Waller says. "Now we're trying to get into the (NCAA) tourney so we'll have to be a little more obsessed if we want to make it.'

So far, Waller has taken her own advice and played with a zeal that has earned her alltournament honors in the Saluki Invitational and the Holiday Inn / University Park Classic this season.

Part of her success could be attributed to the team's trip to China this summer during which the Irish played a Chinese national team considered by many to be one of the best in the world.

But Waller also gained experience on her own, playing for the U.S. Olympic B-team in San Diego, Calif. Chosen as one of only 15 players selected from the collegiate level, Waller spent 2 1/2 weeks training and played a three-match series against the West German national team.

"It was an unbelievable feeling putting on that United States uniform," says Waller. "People wanted our autographs--they respected us. I didn't feel like I deserved it.

"It was worth all the hard work just to play for my whole country.

"China was the same way," she continues. "The international experience was exciting, but more than that, it helped improve our skills and boost our confidence."

Amid these personal achievements, though, Waller still believes team goals are the key to success.

"The team is most important," Waller stressed. ""It doesn't matter if I play well if the team as a whole doesn't. If continued from page 16 can perform well consistently, but seniors Mary Kay Waller and Zanette Bennett will undoubtedly be major contributors.

Waller, a middle blocker who was the lone Irish representative on the Holiday Inn/University Park Classic alltourney team last weekend, leads the team in total blocks, kills and hitting percentage. Bennett's statistics fall in right behind Waller's and her play will also be a factor in net.

I don't make All-American and this team goes far, I'd be way more excited. I don't even consider myself a prospect, I just want the team to win."

Senior Whitney Shewman has been struggling with knee problems, but she should be a defensive factor against Purdue with her team-leading 3.57 dig average.

The Irish will also need freshman setter Julie Bremner to continue her consistent play and add to the team-high 337 assists she has accrued thus far in the season. They will also need freshman Jennifer Slosar. who played in all four games against Houston last weekend, to continue to improve as a middle blocker.

"Right now we want to cut down on our errors," said Lambert. "Teams aren't beating us, we're beating ourselves.

'He's the kind of guy you'd go to war with'

5th-year senior Stams has team's respect

By GEORGE TRAVERS Sports Writer

There is but one word to describe Notre Dame defensive end Frank Stams. Respect.

The fifth-year senior from Akron, Ohio, is known on the team for intelligence, ability, and above all spirit. His teammates and coaches respect him just as much as he respects the game of football.

"His agressiveness is one of his greatest strengths" said defensive end coach George Stewart. "I'll tell you what kind of person Frank Stams is. If you're picking guys to go to war with, you'd pick him first.''

The Fightin' Irish football team will go to war at least nine more times this year, and the Irish defense will look to Stams as a leader throughout the season. Stams will do all he can to see the Irish win.

"The team has tremendous chemistry this year," says Stams. "Basically, we're just a bunch of guys who love to play football. We've been tested by the run and done well. If we can put a good rush on the passing teams, we'll have a great year.'

Stams originally came to Notre Dame as a fullback, averaging 3.7 yards a carry and scoring three touchdowns his sophomore year. In the spring of 1986 he broke his ankle and as a result sat out virtually his entire junior year.

"Frank had a rough junior year," said Stewart. "When he came back senior year we had Braxton Banks and Anthony Johnson here. The best move for the team was to use Frank's strength and agressiveness as a defensive end. He's made a fantastic adjustment."

After splitting time with Flash Gordon last year, Stams has found a home and a starting job as a defensive end.

Frank Stams

Although he is starting, he is still learning. According to Stewart, Stams is a true student of football.

"In football you either hit your opponent or he hits you." said Stams. "It sound simple but requires alot of effort. You've got to dissect your opponent--know him better than he knows you. Then you can anticipate and get that extra step that makes a great play."

Stams has played extremely well in both games this season, registering two important sacks against Michigan and recording four tackles, three unassisted against Michigan State. As a defensive end Stams is very good and still improving.

"Frank is relatively new to this position. But he is definitely not new to the game of football. He's a very important part of this team." said Stewart.

Stams hopes to continue to throughout improve the season. He also hopes to see the Notre Dame football team win as many games as possible.

"My main goal as a player is to be able to walk off the field and not be able to think of anything I should have done but didn't," he says. "I want to reach that goal this season.'

The Observer / Mike Mora Defensive end Frank Stams (30) blows by the block of Michigan's Dave Chester (64).

ND volleyball finishes 7-game trip at Purdue

By MOLLY MAHONEY Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team will play the last game of a seven-game road trip as it takes on Purdue in West Lafayette, before returning to the friendly confines of the JACC for a string of four matches at home.

The Irish dropped two games in last weekend's Holiday Inn/ University Park Classic, losing to Colorado State and Houston. Now they face the Boilermakers--a team they have yet to beat in their eightmatch history--in their home territory.

"We need this win," said Irish head coach Art Lambert. "Purdue always has a good team and an excellent program, and playing in Lafayette is never very easy."

A key to making this road trip easier on the Irish will be containing Purdue's powerful middle blocker Debbie McDonanld.

McDonald, a junior who earned second-team All-American honors last year, and her fellow Boilermakers should be a force in the Big Ten again this year. They beat the Irish in four games last season 15-10, 14-16, 15-2, 15-4.

Notre Dame, ranked 25th in the nation according to the Sept. 13 AVCA Coaches Poll, will face a Purdue team that also has come close to breaking into the top 20 poll.

The Irish have been experimenting with new lineups, trying to find a rotation that

Women's golf finishes 9th

By BARBARA MORAN Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's golf team tied for ninth out of 13 teams at the Illinois State Invitational tournament this past weekend with a total score of 684.

The two-day tournament was won by Northern Illinois with a score of 617.

Contributing to Notre Dame's score were freshman Christine Lazar (score of 163), sophomore Roberta Bryer (170), sophomore Heidi Hanson (176), senior Carolyn Burke (177), and sophomore Pandora Fecko (178).

Bryer currently holds the lowest team average with an 83.25.

Notre Dame had a rough first round in Normal, Ill., falling to 12th out of 13 teams, 15 strokes behind eighth place. The Irish fared better the next day, however, making up the 15 strokes and moving into a tie for ninth place overall with Northern Missouri State.

Rookie on ND campus, veteran on soccer field

Sullivan leads ND soccer team By COLLEEN HENNESSEY Sports Writer

K.T. Sullivan is just happy to be here.

The 20-year old Long Island native transferred to Notre Dame this year after two years at Canisius College in Buffalo, New York. The reason? The Notre Dame women's soccer program finally gained varsity status.

"I had originally wanted to come here as a freshman," says Sullivan. "I was admitted, but I really wanted to play varsity soccer."

Thus she deferred her dream and opted for the upstate New York school where she could continue her athletic pursuits. Majoring in finance and thinking about law school, Sullivan never completely put Notre Dame out of her mind. So when she heard that Notre Dame's club team would be promoted to the varsity level this season,

Irish in action tonight at Krause

The Irish will take on the Wheaton women's soccer team tonight at 7:30 at Moose Krause Stadium. Grace is looking forward to a good match, saying he'd be "surprised is Wheaton comes in here at anything less than dynamite."

Coming off a 5-0 shutout of Western Michigan, the team is looking better and better. Overall, Grace is pleased with the women's 3-2 record. He emphasized that there is still much to be learned and experienced.

"The way I see it right now," he says, "the team is like a young colt. It runs like crazy and the effort is there. It has a lot of potential, but it makes a lot of mistakes. But so far they have done extremely well to insure that the future of Notre Dame women's soccer will be a success, and I wouldn't trade them for the world."

she decided to transfer.

"Canisius was great," she is quick to point out, "but this is really where I wanted to go in the first place. Every once in awhile I do get 'old-school sick', but this is totally the right decision for me. I can't imagine myself anywhere else than at Notre Dame."

Coming from Long Island, the hot-bed of Eastern soccer, Sullivan first played on an organized level over 13 years ago. She was seven when she joined the community Youth league that her father was coaching. Within two years she had joined the travelling team and was well on her way to a successfull career. After two years of playing center halfback for a private high school, she switched to a public school with a better team, where she played left halfback.

In addition to soccer, Sullivan played basketball

Irish need at least the threat of a passing attack

It seemed like an innocent enough question.

"Coach, can you continue to win without throwing the ball?"

Notre Dame had just trounced Michigan State without throwing a complete pass over the line of scrimmage and had run the option flawlessly for 295 yards.

"We can't win unless we throw the football," says Holtz, even though his 2-0 Irish had done just that moments earlier in front of 77,000 in the stands and a nationally televised audience. "I know that, and you know that, but our players don't know that."

He's right on at least one count. Fifteen minutes later Tony Rice is surrounded by members of the media who scribble down every word the optionwizard has to say. Then, The Question.

"Tony, can you guys keep winning without throwing the ball?"

"I think we can," says Rice.

Uh oh.

First, the facts. In games Tony Rice has started at quarterback for Notre Dame, the Irish are 6-2. When he has thrown ten or less passes, Notre Dame has not lost. Rice has thrown the ball 21 times this fall for five completions. The Irish are 2-0.

Notre Dame defeated Michigan and Michigan State without effectively throwing the football.

Notre Dame can probably get by Purdue without throwing the football. Notre Dame could probably beat the Owls of Rice without seeing the football. And maybe Notre Dame can even upset Miami without throwing the football.

But if the Irish are going to remain a Top 10 team they have to have a threat of being effective in the passing game. And right now they do not even have that threat.

"Vegas ought to post odds every time we drop back to pass," said Holtz in yesterday's weekly press conference.

The Irish have an explosive running attack. Rice was masterful on Saturday in his decision-making with the option. Much maligned in the preseason, the Notre Dame offensive line is opening holes in the defense and shutting up doubters. But Holtz realizes that keeping all your eggs in one basket is not a smart idea. "The last thing I want to be is a team that runs the option because we have to run the option," says Holtz. "We have to be able to run between the tackles and throw the football, and we haven't been able to do either."

The option alone cannot support a team seeking a national championship. Without the threat of a consistent passing attack, an offense becomes stale and predictable. And stoppable.

The blame cannot go solely on the shoulders of Tony Rice. His arm has improved, now his confidence needs to come around. That has to happen at the same time a green group of recievers, who are not always exactly perfect in their passing routes, learn the ropes.

"We do some things awfully well but we do not do them on a consistent basis," said Holtz. "All anybody wants to know is what to expect when the ball is snapped. If you're gonna throw the sucker into the eighth row of the stands and do it every single time then at least you know what to call on and what to do--it's the inconsistency that's the problem."

Holtz knows its a problem. So too will the Irish if, and when, the running game doesn't come together as smoothly as it did in the final twenty minutes in East Lansing.
