Estonians want control over land, economy

Associated Press

TALLINN, U.S.S.R.—Members of an Estonian nationalist group accused the Kremlin on Sunday of sapping their republic's resources and demanded that Moscow give them greater control over their land and economy.

Thousands of supporters cheered the speakers at the first congress of the fledgling People's Front.

"We have been reduced to the level of slaves in a manor," farmer Enno Peets told more than 3,000 delegates.

Some speakers objected to what they called the Kremlin's "colonialist" policy, which they said syphons off Estonia's agricultural output and manufactured goods.

"These people are to blame for our suffering here, the lack of food here," delegate Albert Danielson told the audience at the Town Hall in Tallinn, the picturesque capital of this republic on the Baltic Sea.

The two-day conference opened Saturday with an address by Estonia's Communist Party chief, Vajno Vyalyas, who greeted the group in the name of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Official sanction for the meeting was an indication of the changing attitudes of authorities, who recently would have thrown in jail anyone espousing nationalist sentiments.

The issue of ethnic relations is key for Gorbachev, who is beset by unrest among the Soviet Union's more than 100 ethnic groups. The stirrings have been particularly troublesome in the Baltic republics of Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia, and in the southern republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan.

The Soviet Union took over the Baltic republics under a 1939 agreement with Nazi Germany.

Among the nearly two dozen resolutions passed Sunday was one demanding that the 1939 agreement be renounced.

Another resolution urged the Estonian government and the Communist Party to stop the flow of people of other nationalities into the republic, where ethnic Estonians make up just 60 percent of the population.

Delegates rejected a controversial proposal to encourage "remigration" of Russians and other non-Estonians living in the republic.

The measure was politically explosive because thousands of Estonians themselves were deported by Soviet dictator Josef Stalin after Estonia was absorbed into the Soviet Union.

Another resolution demanded that people who carried out "Stalinist crimes" be brought to justice and that victims be compensated in the same way as war veterans.

The resolutions have no legal force, but the Communist Party and government already have endorsed many of the demands of the People's Front.

The People's Front, formed in April, says it does not challenge the authority of the Communist Party and is not interested in breaking away from the Soviet Union. But some members say privately that their ultimate goal is independence.

The group claims membership of 60,000 of Estonia's 1.5 million people.

Without naming the People's Front specifically, Gorbachev and the Kremlin leadership have expressed support for populist movements and endorsed Estonian-proposed reforms for putting the republic's economy in the hands of local managers and preserving the native culture.

Changes in Contra aid considered

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The Reagan administration expects to take advantage of a minor change in the new humanitarian aid package for the Contra rebels to institute a series of non-military training programs designed to make the insurgents more self-sufficient.

The aid program that expired Friday said the administration could use the $17.7 million package "only" for food, clothing, medical services and shelter.

The new $27 million six-month package signed into law by President Reagan Saturday calls for assistance in the same four areas but the word "only" has been deleted, permitting the administration greater flexibility in how the money is spent.

In signing the $14.3 billion foreign aid bill, Reagan criticized what he said was a minimal amount of humanitarian aid for the Contras.

U.S. officials, insisting on anonymity, said they envision U.S.-sponsored "skills training" in areas ranging from radio maintenance to record keeping, human rights and health care.

The officials said such programs should boost the morale of the thousands of rebels who are camped along the Honduran-Nicaraguan border with little to keep them occupied.

Many of the rebels flocked to these camps from inside Nicaragua over the past six months to take advantage of the assistance programs being carried out in the border area

No charges filed against ND alums

By REGIS COCCIA
Senior Staff Reporter

No charges will be filed against the two Notre Dame alumni who were arrested at an off-campus party three weeks ago, according to Anthony Zappia, a South Bend attorney representing the alumni.

Zappia, a Notre Dame graduate, said he was notified by St. Joseph County Prosecutor Michael Barnes about a week after the incident that no facts warranted any charges.

"Mr. Barnes reviewed the police reports and determined the charges were not warranted based on the facts in the reports," Zappia said. "That was the determination that was made, and I believe it was appropriate."

The alumni, Thomas Abood and Thomas Fink, both 24, of Chicago, were arrested by South Bend police on Sept. 9 for alleged disorderly conduct. A police dog used in the arrest jumped on Abood and bit him, the police record stated.

Fink, who was accompanying Abood, tried to pull the dog away. Both men were then taken into custody. Abood was taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries from the police dog, according to the police report.

Both men were released from the St. Joseph County Jail on a $250 bond, according to Lt. Richard Kilgore of the South Bend Police Department. In an interview after the Sept. 9 incident, Kilgore said it was not clear in the police report why the dog bit Abood. Kilgore could not be reached for further comment.

Zappia said he obtained copies of the police reports from the prosecutor's office and determined that the facts did not call for charges against either of his clients.

"Charges are not going to be filed, period. The bond both Mr. Fink and Mr. Abood paid has already been released to them," Zappia said.

Bush and Quayle differ over arms

Associated Press

NEW YORK—Sen. Dan Quayle said the United States should make completion of a treaty on long-range nuclear weapons conditional on Soviet concessions on conventional arms, a position that differs from that of Vice President George Bush, The New York Times reported.

In an interview reported in the newspaper's Sunday edition, Quayle said he was worried the Soviets would not negotiate seriously on cutting conventional weapons if the two superpowers reach a prior agreement in their strategic arms reduction talks.

"If we negotiate on START, what leverage do we have on conventional?" Quayle told the Times.

The Reagan administration has rejected the idea of linking talks on strategic nuclear arms with talks on conventional arms, saying it would delay completion of a strategic arms treaty. The Bush campaign has endorsed that position.

Quayle said in the interview he would follow administration policy if he became vice president.

"The view of the Bush campaign is that we are going to proceed with START, and we want to talk about conventional arms control," Quayle said. "But there has not been the linkage that I discussed."

If Bush is elected President, Quayle said top officials "will sit down and discuss what the strategy is going to be" on nuclear and conventional arms issues.

Quayle, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, had not previously revealed these positions in the campaign, the Times said.

INSIDE COLUMN

'Don't worry, be happy' is bad advice

Sandy Cerimele

Saint Mary's Editor

Bobby McFerrin may very well be a talented musician and a dazzling performer, but there is definitely something wrong with his song, "Don't Worry, Be Happy" because every time it comes on the radio, people cringe.

This is more than a case of pop stations killing a song about living the good life like what happened to Whitney's "Greatest Love of All." Bobby's problem is his message itself. . . Who buys it?

He probably does. But then, he can buy a lot. He's made more than a million dollars with four words. Why should he worry?

Does he have twenty-six thousand dollars in college loans to pay off? Does he have a total of eleven dollars to his name, 9 of which are in a checking account for which he cannot find the checks? Or, has he just realized that after forty-thousand dollars and four years of college that he could make more money holding a road construction flag than in his chosen career field?

Probably not. But we have all faced these questions in the college community and "Don't Worry, Be Happy" just doesn't cut it as a solution for gray hairs and ulcers. Sociologists tell us that college-aged individuals face the most stress of all ages and maybe we could use a little of this simplistic advice, but deadlines, jobs and career plans kind of get in the way.

Has his boss just told him that he could screw up a two-car parade? Did he have a Whitesnake song running through his head while he was trying not to think about the fact that he really had to go to the bathroom halfway through the LSAT exam on Saturday? Or did he try to drop a class he's never been to on Friday only to discover the last drop day was Thursday?

Sure, if failing a class isn't something you'd mind too horribly, you probably shouldn't worry. But most of us don't intend to go to school to fail. Yet it happens to the best of us, and most of the time, worrying does no good for the situation. But, like snow falling on South Bend, worrying about these things is unavoidable. They have a way of staring us in the eyes like a praying mantis or of sitting on our shoulders like a lead balloon.

Sometimes, we realize that getting a 'D' in our major or attending "Choose a Major Night" as a Senior may very well be our fault, but in the face of realizing our mistakes, it's not likely that we're going to tell ourselves to be happy and not worry about it. People associate a worry-free life with being a 'blow-off'. A worry-free life is potentially hazardous when you fail a Music Appreciation exam for the sake of Margaritaville, or when you declare yourself one too many academic holidays only to return to class and be handed a blue book by surprise.

Maybe we should have been worrying all along about these things instead of the other things we worry about. The song has a point, in this case. No, we should not worry about being told that last night's date resembled a sweaty pig from Guam, or which color socks best matches khaki pants. These things just don't matter, and they are things that we worry about.

It may be stupid, it may be productive, but it's definitely unavoidable. That's why his point is moot and frustrating for people in a strive-to-succeed environment.

People don't exactly have control over whether or not they will worry. Things just come up and to live life without reacting to them in some way is virtually impossible.

Society doesn't work that way, either. If we don't worry, won't get anywhere, and if we don't get anywhere, we won't be happy, because our reward structure isn't built to advance those of us who take off for Jamaica in the face of disaster and social responsibility.

And, you can bet that Bobby doesn't totally buy into it, either. After all, making it in the music business means more than being a one-time-wonder, and the pressure is on for him to do another song. Don't worry, Bobby, now that you have annoyed your public, be happy.

Top ticket, and not running mates, sway voters' opinions

Associated Press

WASHINGTON--Democrats who hope Sen. Lloyd Bentsen will help the ticket win his home state of Texas and perhaps the presidential election could do well to regard the fate of Henry Gassaway Davis.

Davis was Democrat Alton Parker's running mate when Parker ran for president against Republican Teddy Roosevelt in 1904.

The voters chose between Roosevelt and Parker, and their choice was Roosevelt by a 3-2 margin.

Experts concede that the vice presidential debate in Omaha, Neb., on Wednesday between Bentsen and Republican Dan Quayle may make a difference, but they say the voters' final decision will come down to a choice between the top of the tickets, Democrat Michael Dukakis and Vice President George Bush.

"Unless Quayle is absolutely destroyed in the debate with Bentsen, I don't think it will hurt Bush," said Leo Ribuffo, a specialist in political history at George Washington University in Washington.

"People will be looking for Quayle to blow it," said Samuel Kernell, professor of political science at the University of California at San Diego. "If he can get through the debate in a competent fashion where he looks unexceptional, it will be a real success for him."

Eddie Mahe Jr., a Republican political consultant, said, "I think it is reasonable to suggest that George Bush would have won Indiana (Quayle's home state) without Mr. Quayle, and with Mr. Bentsen, Mike Dukakis is still not going to carry Texas. So you wash that out."

"I think the odds are that Quayle will have little or no effect on the ultimate choice," said Thomas Mann, program director for governmental studies at the Brookings Institution.

Elspeth Rostow, a political scholar at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas in Austin, said Bush's choice of Quayle "doesn't seem to have too much effect on the voters, at least so far."

"I don't think, if indeed Bush was disposed to choose Quayle to appeal to women, that so far it has had that effect," Ms. Rostow said.

"I think the conventional wisdom that the selection of a running mate is rarely decisive one way or another is absolutely true," said Ribuffo.

A survey conducted this year by the Hearst Corp. supports this view.

Eighteen percent of the 1,001 voters surveyed said they had changed their minds about a presidential candidate at one time or another because of their opinion of his running mate. Of those, 70 percent said they voted against that ticket.

Political experts agree that if a running mate has any effect, he is more likely to hurt than help.

Obscene phone caller harasses SMC students

By JULIE RYAN
News Staff

For the third year in a row, the St. Mary's Security Department has issued a newsletter advising students how to handle obscene phone calls, Director of Safety and Security Richard Chlebek said.

According to Chlebek, obscene phone calls happen at this time every year.

A typical caller phones in the middle of the night, pretending to be friends with the girl who answers the call, said Chlebek.

He begins asking questions such as, "What are you doing?" and then progresses to more personal questions like, "What color of underwear are you wearing?"

In the newsletter, the Security Department advised students to immediately hang up when the caller starts asking personal questions.

Security warned students not to talk to strangers or to tell them they are uninterested.

If the obscene phone calls persist, Security can screen the calls or install a switch to eliminate all late-night phone calls.

In past years, the caller has identified himself as a representative of the National Education Association and asked students to participate in a sexuality survey. This year, the caller has been identified by "the panty question," Chlebek said.

Racial problems in South Africa remain

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa—Government officials are elated by the success of their diplomatic offensive into black Africa, but foes of apartheid said Sunday the campaign does nothing to resolve domestic racial problems.

"Africa is talking to South Africa," President P. Botha said after meeting Saturday with President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire. It was Botha's third summit with a black African leader in three weeks.

City Press, South Africa's largest-selling black newspaper, described the visit to Zaire as "sheer hypocrisy." An official of the African National Congress guerrilla movement condemned Mobutu for agreeing to meet Botha.

Foreign Minister Pik Botha and the president said on the flight from Zaire that the increasingly open contacts between South Africa and its black neighbors discredited the sanctions campaign waged against South Africa by Western countries opposed to apartheid.

Apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 26 million blacks have no vote in national affairs. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

"I have often stated that South Africa has something to convey to Africa, and especially to southern Africa," President Botha said. "Now, suddenly, it seems they are coming to grips with this truth."

City Press, in an editorial Sunday, said, "What is the point of achieving peace and stability with neighbors when your own country is engulfed in flames?"

Apartheid must be abolished and negotiations held with legitimate black leaders, City Press said. "Until these minimum demands are met, Mr. Botha can tour the rest of Africa as much as he likes - peace will not come to this country."

Stanley Mabizela, the ANC's chief representative in Zimbabwe, said African leaders should shun Botha because he "executes people who are victims of an inhuman society, as well as political prisoners."

The summit also drew criticism in Zaire, where troops fired warning shots to disperse university students protesting Botha's visit.

The officials said they expect opposition to the proposed training programs from members of Congress hostile to the Contras who don't want them to survive as a viable organization.

The prospects for a renewal of military aid for the rebels are not good. The aid package, initially approved by the Senate in August, authorized the release of $16.5 million in stockpiled military equipment under certain conditions.

But the funds would require congressional approval before adjournment of the current session, and there is only about a week left before members go home until the next session starts in January.

Military officials are puzzled by US jet fighters' high accident rate

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The Navy and Air Force, each puzzled by an unexpected increase in accidents this summer involving high-performing jets, have failed to find a common thread to explain the mishaps, officials said.

From a historical standpoint, the current accident rates for Navy and Air Force fighter and attack jets are not out of line, according to officials. Indeed, they said the Navy is actually enjoying one of its all-time safest years for aviation.

Accident spurts involving the Navy's F-14s and the Air Force's F-16s have prompted both services to launch careful monitoring campaigns.

The Air Force said it has found no equipment problems, but has changed some of its pilot training techniques and increased supervision because of the rise in mishaps.

Officials said last year's F-16 accidents involved pilots who lost consciousness as a result of fast aerial maneuvers or who became disoriented and lost track of where they were.

None injured in hijacking

Associated Press

NEW YORK—Three Haitian soldiers armed with rifles who forced their way onto an American Airlines jetliner in Haiti were arrested Saturday when the plane landed at Kennedy Airport, officials said.

No one was injured in the incident, said American Airlines spokesman Jim Brown. The three men had surrendered their weapons before the airplane left Port-au-Prince.

Airport security and the FBI were waiting when the plane, with 224 passengers and a crew of nine, arrived about 8:15 p.m. in New York. The three men were arrested without incident, Brown said.

"They intended no harm to anyone, there was no threat of violence," said James Fox, director of the FBI's New York office. "They just said they wanted to leave Haiti for New York City."

American Airlines Flight 658 took off at 4:40 p.m. after the three soldiers slipped under a wire fence that surrounds Port-au-Prince International Airport and ran aboard the plane, airport employees said.

Radio Haiti Inter said the plane's captain agreed to fly the three men to New York, the plane's destination. The station said the men made no political statements.

Eric Boucicault, director American Airlines in Haiti, said "three soldiers on duty entered at the end of the line of passengers with a determined air. We could not refuse their entrance. As a result of negotiation, they deposited all their arms, pistols and rifles, in the pilot's cabin.

"Now they are seated calmly in their seats, and normal service is being maintained," he said before the airplane landed in New York.

Flight 658 runs daily between New York and the capital city of Port-au-Prince, where it arrives about 2 p.m. and leaves after 4 p.m.

"The pilot did a super job," said passenger Cameron Smith of Boston. "He negotiated a deal with them. He put them up in first class and tended to them the rest of the way."

Other passengers were not immediately let off the plane as authorities questioned them. The approximately 200 people who were waiting for the flight's arrival said they were not told about the incident until the plane landed.

Haiti has been beset by turmoil in recent weeks.

Social work an option after graduation

Editor's Note: All interested are urged to visit the Post Graduation Opportunities Fair at the Center for Social Concerns on Tuesday, Oct. 4, from 7:00-10:00 p.m. Speak with representatives of more than 30 groups, including Peace Corps, Holy Cross Associates, and others.

"Why volunteer?" Sitting around the kitchen table after dinner, my four housemates and I here in Puerto Rico quickly decided that was the fundamental question this article should address. Over two hours later we had a list two pages long of reasons why we chose volunteer work as a post graduate option. Perhaps the most important conclusion we made is that there are many different reasons why one may choose to commit himself to a volunteer program as well as a variety of types of volunteer programs available. Post Grad Volunteer night at the Center for Social Concerns provides the potential volunteer with an opportunity to become better acquainted with several different programs.

Thomas Kelly
guest column

What would motivate a senior in college, finishing up four years of preparation for the work world or graduate school, to devote a year or two to volunteering? The choice to volunteer is not always an easy one. For every senior sure of his or her decision to volunteer, there are several unsure of whether their desire to volunteer is a wise one. Institutions and family expectations channel us in certain directions, and breaking the pattern of this process is not always easy. Some people will say that doing volunteer work is a waste of a year better spent gaining work experience or continued schooling. But how can a year spent facing personal challenges and opening oneself up to new environments be denied its inherent value? In the short six weeks we have been here, we can only marvel at how much we have learned, not only about the people we are working with, but also about ourselves.

Volunteer work also should not necessarily be viewed as a career "break," an interim between other endeavors. Several of my housemates, for example, have approached this year as a natural step in careers such as economics and law. Statistics and graphs can tell an economist all he thinks he needs to know about an area's economic character. But let him talk to a family living at the poverty level, and he will approach his material the next time in a very different manner.

No study or statistic tells the full story. So much more insight is gained through direct contact. For example, our situation here in Puerto Rico has made us aware of the colonial syndrome typical to most Third World nations as we had never understood it before. The colonial experience has left an indelible mark on the Puerto Rican people and accounts for many cultural attitudes that are misunderstood by foreigners. Learning about the American role here has also caused us to take a critical look at ourselves as members of a nation whose political, economic and cultural dominance is staggering.

For some people, living out the message of one's faith can be another motivation to become a volunteer. Living out the message of one's faith can take many different forms. The commitment to volunteer your services to a marginalized community is not an easy choice. It requires the denial of the lifestyle you have grown accustomed to and an embracing of an often radically different lifestyle. What's the point in rejecting all the material things you and your family worked so hard to gain? There is no easy answer. There is a feeling though. A feeling of solidarity and an attempt to understand, from the inside out, a part of society that is rarely given a voice.

And one does not need to necessarily go to a foreign country to feel the effects of living on the margins of society, of being a minority. Perhaps even more revealing is for one to enter a community in one's own country in which one is a minority. To perceive that you are being prejudged by someone who knows nothing about you personally can be disconcerting to say the very least. To realize this is to open your heart and mind to a whole new perspective on culture, politics and economics among other things.

Another aspect of volunteering that provides an invaluable experience is community living. If my housemates and I learn nothing this year, we will at least have learned the meaning of flexibility. Five persons and one car necessitates some clever planning and a lot of give-and-take. Community living also provides a forum for more learning. An experience is worth very little unless it is absorbed and looked at critically. My housemates and I provide each other with opposing views which cause us to reevaluate our own positions.

Reading over what I had already written, one of my housemates pointed out that I was not conveying adequately what we had thus far experienced because I had failed to mention the "fun" side of the story. Sometimes we are blind to the obvious. "The toughest job you'll ever love" slogan comes to mind. The five of us are involved in several different programs in a community located fifteen minutes from San Juan.

Our separate projects include organizing a cooperative of local artisans, running a soup kitchen for the elderly, and beginning a library program to encourage children to read. Every afternoon for three hours the five of us also tutor children after school in various subjects. It is hard to describe the inner joy that is felt when that fifteen-year-old comes to you and tells you that he wants to learn how to tell time. Or when the old toothless woman grins from ear to ear when she sees you coming to the door with her lunch. And I cannot forget to mention the time and experiences shared with my new "family." Getting a flat tire at dusk down at the docks and discovering then that we had no jack or spare tire was only one of many. We have begun a year together that has already been and promises to be filled with new and exciting learning and growing experiences.

Senior Reflection proves rewarding

Dear Seniors:

The Senior Reflection Groups are an outstanding opportunity for seniors to meet and discuss some common interests and feelings as they near the end of their four years at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. We feel that it is our duty to make you aware of this potentially great experience so that you do not pass it up. This is a unique way of getting involved and reflecting on our college life and future plans.

The group, consisting of six male and six female students, meets twice this semester and four times next semester at a faculty member's house. Home-cooked meals are prepared by the students and the atmosphere is very relaxing and fun. This is not necessarily a religious experience--it is a chance for you to converse and encounter fellow classmates in our final year. So, if this sounds as interesting and exciting as it really is, please stop by the Center For Social Concerns before Oct. 7 and prepare yourself for a truly stimulating experience.

Campus clubs get student vote

accent writer

Voter polls, election predictions, and presidential campaign updates fill the newspapers as the press covers another election year. Although one constantly hears the presidential campaign analyzed on the national level, what campus clubs are involved with the election? What is the political flavor of Notre Dame's campus?

The College Democrats and the College Republicans both hope to educate students about the campaign issues and to generate enthusiasm for their respective party's candidates. Both clubs aim to encourage participation in the local and national elections this year.

The first step toward these ambitious goals was the voter registration drive. Both clubs worked on drives like the one sponsored by the Student Union Board that achieved a record number of newly registered voters.

These new voters are especially important to the College Democrats and College Republicans because of this year's extremely close local congressional race between Democrat Tom Ward and the Republican incumbent John Hiler. College Democrat's president Karl Kronenberger explained, "We hope to spark student support for Tom Ward since John Hiler only won by 47 votes last year."

Now that the crucial business of registration is behind them, both clubs hope to focus on their party platforms. Democrat Kronenberger said, "We want the club to function as a forum for information concerning liberal issues. For example, we are now pushing to grant Nelson Mandela, a prisoner from South Africa, an honorary degree. We also are trying to book a speaker from the National Organization of Women Voters to speak on the role of women in the Democratic party."

Mike Kraft, Co-chairman of the Young Republicans, claims that his club hopes to serve as an arena for conservative issues. "Over the past year the club has been revived and given a breath of life with new leadership. We had over 400 volunteers sign up at Activities Night. We hope to encourage the conservative nature of the student body," Kraft said.

The College Democrats, with a core of only 25 members, often consolidates forces with the Dukakis campaign on campus led by Mark Bettencourt. The Dukakis support group holds weekly meetings and has over 75 volunteers. They recently conducted a poll of 551 students to test the political environment. The poll found that 44 percent of the students supported Bush, 31 percent for Dukakis, and 25 percent were undecided.

Currently, Student Government, Pasquerilla East and Flanner Hall working with hall fellow Professor Daniel Lapsley, and WVFI are all planning to sponsor informal question and answer sessions where Bettencourt will represent Dukakis' views. Attempts to organize debates between the two clubs fell through last year but both agree that they would be beneficial as election day approaches.

Both club leaders find their ambitious goals often difficult to achieve because of student apathy. Kronenberger voiced this concern, "Many students just don't seem to care—especially about local elections." The College Democrats and the College Republicans, however, are both enthusiastic about the election year. They hope that the increased political awareness on campus will continue long after the events of November 8.

CBS soaps light up the nighttime for viewers

The suds will be higher and thicker than ever this year as CBS prepares its three prime time soaps for the crucial upcoming season. After all, nighttime soaps are a dying breed...or are they? CBS intends to make this season the best for "Knots Landing," "Dallas," and "Falcon Crest" by showing that these bubbly serials are on a rebound.

"Knots Landing," which airs on CBS Thursdays at 9 p.m., is the strongest of these soaps. Due to its realistic nature, emotional plotlines, and major appeal to young viewers, the show is able to keep its audience in knots while still maintaining a huge number of viewers. The major questions on "Knots" stem from the cliffhanger episode in which Jill Bennett (Teri Austin) poisons naive Valene (Joan Van Ark).

While keeping the viewers guessing is much of the fun in the show, it is safe to say that Valene will live; however, the real trick will be connecting Jill to the crime. A smaller cliffhanger involving Paige Matheson (Nicollette Sheridan) and Michael Fairgate (Pat Peterson) will not be so easily solved as the two attempt to escape from their kidnappers in Mexico.

A new character, Ted Mulcher (Robert Devederia) will arrive in town this season just in time to serve as Greg Sumner's (William Devane) publicist and help the ex-Senator to get back into the public eye. This can only mean Greg is up to no good. Abby Ewing (Donna Mills) will begin the season in a more sympathetic mood; however, viewers who love to hate Abby need not worry. She will be meaner than ever. Whether Abby will stay in Knots Landing after this season remains a question since Mills' contract expires this year.

The Ewings at Southfork are in for some changes as well on "Dallas," which CBS presents on Fridays at 8 p.m. Show executives are guarding the solution to last season's cliffhanger (Is J.R. really dead?) with their lives, but some future plot twists are definite.

An acquaintance of Miss Ellie (Barbara Bel Geddes) and Clayton Farlow (Howard Keel) named Carter McKay (George Kennedy) will move into the Krebs ranch shortly after Ray (Steven Kanaly) and Jenna (Priscilla Presley) bid Dallas a fond adieu. Minor characters April (Sheri Wilson) and Casey (Andrew Stevens) will assume major roles this year while the fate of Pamela Ewing continues to bother Bobby (Patrick Duffy).

Once television's top-rated show, "Dallas" has had its share of ratings problems. In an attempt to regain the show's high status, show executives have refined the show's format. "Dallas" will continue in a serial format, but will focus more on Texas and Southfork ranch. Episodes will feature more outdoor scenery and turn away from such far-fetched plots as Ray's "fatal attraction" to a killer. Show executives hope these changes will arouse more viewer interest in the show.

The vineyards of California will have more than their fill of drama as "Falcon Crest," which airs after "Dallas," prepares to unveil its new plotlines for the year. The wines will certainly have a more ethnic flavor this year as the show presents the nighttime soaps' first Hispanic family.

Formerly Hope on "Days of Our Lives," Kristian Alfonso will portray Pilar Ortega, the daughter of Angela Channing's (Jane Wyman) foreman. Pilar is an ambitious banker who will rapidly become one of the show's main characters as the character of Melissa (Ana-Alicia) is written out of the show. David Rafel will play Pilar's brother, still unnamed.

Another actor from the nighttime soaps' daytime counterparts will star in the show. David Beecroft (Trent of "One Life to Live") will play Melissa's cousin, an intellectual vagabond caught in the crossfire between the Channing and Agretti families. Regular cast member David Selby will be back as Richard Channing.

"Falcon Crest" intends to improve its ratings by regaining the show's central premise and luxury. There will be no wild terrorist plots this year as the show's plots locate themselves mainly in the Tuscan Valley. There will be many new, expensive sets as well to restore the show's ritzy look.

When the fall season begins, the nighttime soaps will intrigue and entice their audiences and appeal to the next generation of soap viewers. With new characters, new sets, new plots, and a new season ahead of them, the shows will attempt to regain their esteem and keep their audiences covered with suds.

Reggie Ho and a goal-line stand by the Stanford defense to end the first quarter kept the Cardinal in the game longer than it might have been.

But Stanford quarterback Brian Johnson fumbled the snap on the first play after the goal-line stand, and Notre Dame's Ned Bolcar recovered the ball on the Cardinal 1-yard line.

This time the Irish crossed the goal line, as Mark Green jumped over 16 seconds into the second period. Rice added the two-point conversion on a keeper and the rout was on.

"When they stopped us at the goal line and got the ball back, and then fumbled on the very next play, that was big," Holtz said. "That got the team up. I'm not saying it turned the game around, because it didn't. I thought we controlled the football game."

The Irish amassed 332 rushing yards to Stanford's 59. Cardinal running back John Volpe was the only Stanford player with positive net rushing yards, gaining 67 on 17 carries.

Green gained 63 yards on 10 carries for the Irish. Sophomore tailback Tony Brooks (12 carries, 59 yards) scored from five yards out, dragging Stanford defender Mike Newton with him most of the way, to make the score 21-0 in the second quarter.

Rice's passing touchdown was a three-yard toss to freshman tight end Derek Brown on the first drive of the third quarter. Brown and split end Pat Eilers each caught two passes, while sophomore flanker Ricky Watters led the Irish with four receptions for 51 yards.

Stanford's run-and-shoot offense managed 215 passing yards, 158 coming from backup quarterback Jason Palumbis. Palumbis replaced Brian Johnson early in the third quarter and was 16-of-23 with a touchdown pass.

But Notre Dame was again overpowering behind its young offensive line, which continues to erase any early-season doubts about its ability to replace all five starters from last year.

"We had a great challenge coming into this game," junior guard Tim Grunhard said. "They have two all-American candidates in (Ray) Huckestein and (Andy) Papathanassiou, and we took that as our challenge. But we like knocking people in the dirt. I guess they learned that the hard way."

Or you can start there. Earlier this year, both Advertising Age and Adweek recognized Leo Burnett as the Agency of the Year. And the results of the Cannes Film Festival only echoed their esteem.

We are honored. And grateful. It's been a wonderful year, so far. But in this business, complacency is only an invitation to mediocrity.

So, we've decided to leave the awards at home, where they belong. And come to the Notre Dame campus with our presentation on career opportunities in client service/marketing. Because we're always looking for bright young people to keep us moving onward. And upward. Presentations will be made at the University Club. Season ends with Boggs, Gwynn regaining titles

Associated Press

Tony Gwynn of the San Diego Padres won his second consecutive National League batting title, this time with the lowest average in the league's 120-year history, and Wade Boggs of the Boston Red Sox led the American League in hitting for the fourth consecutive year.

Gwynn, who didn't play Sunday, batted .313, 57 points less than his league-leading batting average last year. Larry Doyle of the New York Giants had the previous lowest average for an NL champion, batting .320 in 1915.

"There are so many dominant pitchers this year," Gwynn said. "There is a whole list of pitchers who have dominated. Last year they said pitching was down, but it's not this year."

Boggs, who also did not play

Sunday, batted .366 and became the first AL player to win four consecutive batting titles since Rod Carew of Minnesota from 1972 through 1975. The only AL player with more consecutive batting titles was Ty Cobb, who won nine straight from 1907 through 1915.

"It's my fourth in a row. You want to be the best and that's the way to measure it, so it's very gratifying," Boggs said.

Boggs had 214 hits, becoming the first player this century to get 200 hits in six consecutive seasons.

A year after offense reached record levels, pitching dominated. There were 3,180 home runs, a 28.7 percent decrease from last year's record of 4,458.

There were just five .300 hitters in the NL, the fewest since 1968. The AL average dropped from .261 to .259. The NL average fell from .265 to .248.

While batters struggled, pitchers flourished. There were six 20-game winners, up from two last year. The AL earned-run average dropped from 4.46 to 3.97, the NL from 4.08 to 3.45. Darryl Strawberry of the

New York Mets led the NL with 39 homers. Jose Canseco of the Oakland Athletics led the AL with 42 and also had 40 stolen bases, becoming the first 40-40 player in major league history. Kirby Puckett of the Minnesota Twins finished second to Boggs with a .356 average, the highest by a right-handed batter in the AL since Joe DiMaggio hit .357 in 1941 for the New York Yankees. Puckett's 234 hits were the most by a right-handed hitter in the AL since Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics has 253 in 1925 and the most for a right-hander in either league since Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals had 237 in 1937.

The Twins drew 3,030,672, becoming the first AL club to top 3 million and the fourth major league team to do so. On the field, the Twins made just 84 errors, the fewest ever for a major-league team. The previous record of 95 was set by Baltimore in 1964 and tied by Cincinnati in 1977 and Baltimore in 1980.

The Boston Red Sox committed just 93 errors this season. And of course there was a record for balks.

Astros fire Lanier after 4-13 finish

Associated Press

HOUSTON --Hal Lanier was fired as manager of the Astros Sunday after a disappointing season that ended with Houston losing 13 of its final 17 games.

Lanier, 46, said he was told about an hour before the game, a 5-1 loss to the San Diego Padres. Fired along with Lanier were third-base coach Denis Menke, bullpen coach Mark Hill and hitting instructor Gene Clines.

"Managing is the hardest job in baseball," Astros owner John McMullen said in a statement distributed in the press box at the start of the ninth inning. "It is the culmination of all the possible pressure on an individual. Hal Lanier has been a first-class citizen and done many positive things for the organization. We feel at this time, however, it is best to wipe the slate clean and start over again."

"I've had three great years with this club but this is not a happy time for anyone," Lanier said. "However, I don't hold any bitterness toward anyone. Dr. McMullen had a job to do. He and I have been friends and we'll continue to be friends. I think I'm the best competitor in this game. John McMullen just felt there needed to be a change."

"He has the right to be disappointed. He was committed that we wanted to have a pennant winner. We were still in the race in September but I don't think any manager could have come in here and won the way we were scoring runs."

"I can't see anything ever being tougher than this," general manager Bill Wood said. "However, the manager is the chief on the field. He sets the tone and direction of the team and we just didn't get it done this year. We thought we had overcome some of our problems but they seemed to bubble up to the surface even more than before."

Lanier's fiery, aggressive style of baseball seemed to re-charge the Astros in 1986. Lanier was named manager Nov. 5, 1985, promising the same wide-open base running attack he learned as a third-base coach under Whitey Herzog in St. Louis.

The Astros won the West Division by 10 games but lost to the New York Mets in a six-game playoff, dropping the final game in 16 innings.

Dame's leading scorer. Marked closely by Terese Martinov, Zilvitis was unable to execute on her first half scoring attempts.

"We knew Saint Mary's was a good team," said Zilvitis. "We were looking for a tough match."

Three minutes into the second half the Belles made it 2-0, when a hard Kathy Revane shot ricocheted off the left post and into the lower right corner, beating Irish keeper Kelly McCrystal.

The field lights came on during the second half, however, and so did the Irish. Not ready to give up, they struck back with four unanswered goals to win the match handily, 4-2.

Sophomore Michelle Richards started off the scoring for Notre Dame with a high lob from the top of the penalty box at 80:12.

Zilvitis got her chance at 67:30 when off a pass from sophomore Bernie Holland she was able to draw the Belles' keeper out of the box and slip the ball straight into the net.

"We changed our offense in the second half," said Zilvitis. "By putting in a center striker we left the sideline open and could switch the ball more. That way Mimi (Suba) could get in the crosses and we could just put it in."

A perfect header by Notre Dame senior Kathleen Birmingham at 74:00 put the Irish ahead for the first time, 3-2. Suba recorded the assist.

out the scoring with 16:30 left, off another Suba assist.

"We were so psyched at halftime," said Suba. "We've been working on the crosses, and as soon as we got our timing down we did alright."

Irish assistant coach Neil Schmidt explained the strategy.

"Our passing attack is basically using the touchlines. We hope to avoid going through the middle, because too many turnovers occur there."

"Notre Dame showed a lot of courage," said Saint Mary's head coach Tom Van Meter. "Most of the teams we've played so far would give up if they were down 2-0. They played their game plan, and they stuck with it. They executed on the simple things, and they played their strengths."

"We got up early in the game, but you have to play the full 90 minutes," continued Van Meter. "We had some very nice counterattacks in the last 10 minutes. We're going to get better. This is a nice move from where we were last year."

The two teams meet again on October 13, at Saint Mary's.

"For the most part, our line dominated up front," Johnson said. "We had the better line going both ways, and that's why we controlled the game and were able to run and pass the way we did. That's why we are becoming a complete offense."

Johnson gives three reasons why the running game has been so productive in the first four games of the season.

"Number one, Coach (Jim) Strong does a great job putting us all together and getting us to do the right thing," Johnson said.

"Second, we all have a desire to play well, to get the job done. And third, we play together and know we are part of a team. We are oriented within the team to be able to do well as a team."

Maybe the best test of the running game is yet to come. The Pitt Panthers held the Irish rushing offense to 103 yards (less than one-half this year's average of 281 yards per game) last season at Pittsburgh.

"Pitt is a talented team," Holtz said. "Defensively, they're outstanding. They've always played exceptionally well and totally together against us, and they've whipped us. That's something that really concerns us. To tell the truth, I don't know how good we are."

Men upset Providence at National Catholic meet

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

The men's cross country team has done it again, starting off as the underdog and finishing as the victor, this time at the 9th Annual National Catholic meet.

The meet, held on Friday at a specially designed five-mile circuit at the Burke Memorial Golf Course, saw the Irish emerge victorious, accumulating a meet-low 46 points.

Second place finisher Loyola (Ill.) collected 75 points, and Providence finished at a distant third with 96.

Was this a big upset? "I think it is," said Head Coach Joe Piane, who is also the director of the meet. "I didn't expect that much of a margin between ourselves and Providence. Providence has an outstanding team, but our runners did an excellent job."

Providence entered the race as the favorite, with Loyola a close second. However, the Irish runners proved to be too much for them, taking three of the top ten spots and four of the top eleven.

Included in those top-ten finishes were senior captain Dan Garrett and senior Ron Markezich, who tied for first place, uncontested, with times of 24:39.

Junior Tom O'Rourke came through in sixth place with a strong time of 25:13, and junior Mike O'Connor finished in 11th at 25:30.

Freshman Mike Drake had an impressive meet, finishing the race in 26:08, which was good enough for 26th place.

Sophomore Matt Ronzone finished 32nd with a time of 26:15, and classmate Ryan Cahill finished 40th at 26:32, but was slightly bothered with an injury.

The ease with which the Irish won came as a surprise to almost everybody, especially considering their times were not the greatest.

"Dan (Garrett) and I were suprised that no one really challenged us that hard," said Markezich. "Our plan was to pick up the pace after about 2 1-2 miles, but no one was there. We didn't have to pick up our speed at all."

"We had the capability of finishing four in the top seven," said Piane. "I know it sounds arrogant, but I don't mean to be. We have a really good club."

Piane can only hope that their times can be much better, considering that the Notre Dame Invitational takes place this Friday, and they will need better times than they had last Friday to win.

The Irish will also have to avoid any more injuries, considering that senior Rick Mulvey and sophomore Pat Kearns are out of action. Mulvey's situation continues to improve, but he most likely will not be able to run at the Notre Dame Invitational.

Michigan and East Tennessee in particular will make things difficult on the Irish to repeat their finishes from the National Catholic.

"We were up for it (the National Catholic), but we really didn't run that well," said Garrett. "If we don't get our act together, we're going to get killed at the Notre Dame Invitational."

"We're pleased we won, but we know we have to improve to win on Friday," said O'Rourke. "We have to run more as a team, with less of a gap in between our first and fifth man."

Irish women battle injuries to take sixth place at Catholics

By MARY GARINO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's cross country team turned in some good individual efforts as they captured sixth place among 19 teams at the National Catholic Championships on Friday.

Providence College was first overall with 62 points, 26 points less than the second team, Boston College. Notre Dame totaled 133 points.

Theresa Rice's ninth place finish with a time of 18:44 led the way for the Irish, and she was followed by freshman Lucy Nusrala, who took twelfth. Both runners had strong races against a group of over 120 women.

"I'm pleased," said Rice. "I didn't feel like I was in as good of shape as last year, but I think I did better."

The surprise for the Irish was the performance of junior Linda Filar, who crossed the finish line in fifteenth place with a time of 19:19. Filar was not expected to finish so high, especially because she had been bothered by a sore foot during practice this past week. Notre Dame women's coach Tim Connelly was impressed with Filar.

"I hadn't seen her compete so well until this race," he said. "She did a good job."

The problem for Notre Dame has been the lack of a fifth runner. Sophomore Jenny Ledrick is still out, and had she run she probably would have finished around twentieth, which was her place last year in this same meet. As it was, Notre Dame's fifth runner was sixty-first.

"If Ledrick had raced we would have moved up 40 places," said Connelly. "That means we would have come in third."

Both the coach and the runners cited a stronger field as making the race more competitive than last year. The College of St. Thomas from Minnesota, which came in third, is the Division III champion, and runners from DePaul University took both first and second en route to a fourth-place finish, followed by Dayton. Despite tougher teams, however, the Irish still improved from last year when they finished seventh.

"We ran really well considering the teams we faced," said senior Terry Kibelstis, who finished 36th despite being hampered by an injury. "I think the field was stronger this year."

Coach Connelly said he is happy with a better competitive effort than what he saw in the team's opening loss to Georgetown three weeks ago.

"I wanted to improve and we did," he said. "We have the makings of a good team. I'd say I was satisfied with the effort, but I'm not really content."

The next meet for the Irish will be the Notre Dame Invitational this Friday. Connelly says if the team is healthy he expects to be in the top four or five in the same level of competition as the National Catholics.

Bears deal Bills first loss

Associated Press

Jim McMahon and Dennis Gentry provided the offensive thrust while Chicago's defense shut down Buffalo, handing the Bills a 24-3 loss on Sunday, their first of the NFL season.

McMahon completed 20 of 27 passes for 260 yards and two touchdowns, and Gentry raced 58 yards, the longest run of his career, on a reverse for another Bears score.

"Give all the credit to Jim McMahon," Chicago coach Mike Ditka said. "He took a lot of rips and shots. We had to attack and Jim made things happen."

Giants 24, Redskins 23

Odessa Turner caught eight passes for 103 yards and a touchdown and the New York Giants held off a late rally by Washington to edge the Redskins. Washington, 2-3, missed a chance to take the lead when rookie kicker Chip Lohmiller missed a 36-yard field goal attempt with 2:54 left.

The Giants, 3-2, held a 24-9 lead in the third quarter, but allowed Washington to pull within a point on two touchdown passes from Mark Rypien to Ricky Sanders. The comeback was aided by a defense that sacked Phil Simms five times, including four by Dexter Manley.

Buccaneers 27, Packers 24

Donald Igwebuike's 44-yard field goal with 12 seconds left gave Tampa Bay a victory over Green Bay for the second time this season.

The Buccaneers, 2-3, also edged Green Bay 13-10 three weeks ago when Igwebuike kicked a 28-yard field goal with three seconds left.

Eagles 32, Oilers 23

Randall Cunningham passed for two touchdowns and ran 33 yards for another score to rally Philadelphia from a 16-point first-quarter deficit. Cunningham completed 24 of 38 passes for 289 yards, while the Eagles' defense held Houston's usually explosive offense to 206 yards--55 running and 156 passing.

Patriots 21, Colts 17

Doug Flutie came off the bench to spark a 14-point fourth quarter, including a 13-yard run with 23 seconds to play to lead New England over Indianapolis.

Flutie scored when he faked a handoff, rolled left and outraced the Colt defenders into the end zone.

Cardinals 41, Rams 27

Neil Lomax threw for 342 yards and two touchdowns as Phoenix handed the Los Angeles Rams their first loss. The victory was the first for the Cardinals over the Rams since 1976.

Lomax, bouncing back from an arthritic left hip that slowed him last week, completed 28 of 43 passes, including first-half touchdown throws of 33 yards to Roy Green and eight yards to Jay Novacek.

percentage on 41 assists and executing well-timed and cleverly placed sets that allowed her hitters to find the holes in the Bronco defense.

And the Irish hitters took full advantage of the sets, as Bennett recorded an astounding .714 hitting percentage on 14 kills, with Waller following close behind with a .682 percentage on 16 kills.

The team as a whole had an impressive .469 hitting percentage for the match and matched their strong offensive performance with defensive hustle as well.

Bennett tallied nine total blocks and senior Maureen Shea added seven as the Irish outblocked the Broncos 13-6 for the match and Shewman and Bennett picked up 14 and 13 digs, respectively.

"Art's got a great team," said Bronco head coach Rob Buck. "They've got at least 10-12 strong, really good athletes and they've definitely improved from last year. They took advantage of our errors and just played with more confidence."

The Irish had every reason to be confident, coming off of Friday's trouncing of Butler.

It took Notre Dame only 44 minutes to completely annihilate Butler in three games, 15-2, 15-2 and 15-8, as the Bulldogs could only manage a paltry .028 hitting percentage for the match.

Irish dominated game one, establishing a 10-1 lead behind a two-man army of Bennett and Waller, before the Bulldogs realized what hit them.

And just about every Irish player did hit the Bulldogs, as the team recorded a .600 hitting average for the game with only one error.

Game two gave Butler much of the same, as Shea, Shewman, Waller and Bennett assaulted the Butler defense, which could only manage two team blocks for the entire game, with an errorless .733 team hitting percentage.

The entire Notre Dame roster saw action before the end of game three after Waller and Bennett left the game with 10 and six kills, respectively behind hitting percentages of .692 and .833.

Junior Kathy Cunningham and sophomores Rachel Hall and Jai Bruno all recorded impressive .667 hitting percentages for the match and Shea followed close behind with .625.

USC beats Washington; Miami wallops Mizzou 55-0

Associated Press

"Good teams have to be able to win on the road," says UCLA coach Terry Donahue. And seven members of the Associated Press Top Twenty, led by second-ranked UCLA and No. 3 Southern California, did just that.

In Seattle, a place they hadn't won in their last three visits, the UCLA Bruins needed a 48-yard pass play from Troy Aikman to Reggie Moore with 1:28 left to beat No. 16 Washington 24-17.

Southern Cal had an easier time in Tucson. Rodney Peete threw three touchdown passes to Erik Affholter, leading the Trojans to a 38-15 victory over Arizona.

UCLA and Southern Cal are 4-0, as is No. 20 Oregon, a 34-13 winner at San Diego State. However, Saturday's game was the Bruins' first Pac-10 contest while USC and Oregon are 2-0.

Meanwhile, No. 1-ranked Miami pounded Missouri 55-0, fourth-ranked Auburn hammered North Carolina 47-21 and No. 5 Notre Dame trounced Stanford 42-14.

Miami 55, Missouri 0

Steve Walsh threw four touchdown passes and backup Craig Erickson added two more as Miami rolled to its 36th consecutive regular-season victory.

Walsh threw scoring passes of 29 yards to Rob Chudzinski, 9 to Dale Dawkins and 44 to Randal Hill as the Hurricanes opened a 21-0 first-quarter lead and led 38-0 at halftime as Miami outgained Missouri 349 yards to 29 in the first 30 minutes.

Auburn 47, N. Carolina 21

Auburn ran for six touchdowns, two by freshman Henry Love and two more on reverses by wide receivers Alexander Wright and Freddy Weygand. The Tigers piled up 511 yards and led 33-0 before North Carolina scored.

Florida St. 48, Tulane 28

Sammie Smith, stymied much of the season, ran for 213 yards and two touchdowns. Florida State rolled up 434 yards rushing and Smith had 156 in the first half, including touchdown runs of 6 and 8 yards. Jerome McIntosh scored three Tulane touchdowns on passes from Terrence Jones, who set a school career record of 40 scoring passes. However, Jones also was intercepted four times, one of which Deion Sanders returned 34 yards for the game's first touchdown.

Nebraska 48, UNLV 6

Nebraska built a 20-0 halftime lead on the first of Ken Clark' three short touchdown runs, Cartier Walker's 34-yard run with a blocked punt and Terry Rodgers' 20-yard run. The Cornhuskers used 16 ball-carriers in gaining 444 yards on the ground.

Rice leads ND over Stanford

QB runs, passes Irish over the Cardinal 42-14

By MARTY STRASEN
Sports Editor

Tony Rice threw the football like he was throwing darts Saturday.

And he ran like somebody was throwing darts at him.

Everyone knew the Irish quarterback could run like he did in Notre Dame's 42-14 triumph over Stanford at Notre Dame Stadium. Rice gained 107 yards on 14 carries and scored two touchdowns to prove it.

But the doubters of Rice's passing ability got a glimpse of what the junior can do through the air, as Rice completed 11 of 14 passes for 129 yards and one touchdown without throwing an interception. He tied a Notre Dame single-season record, held by many players, by completing 10 consecutive passes, including four in last week's 52-7 Irish triumph over Purdue and six more to start Saturday's contest.

Notre Dame, ranked fifth in the nation, boosted its record to 4-0 on the season.

Rice attributed much of his success against the Cardinal to a recently-acquired interest in throwing darts, inspired Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz.

"Me and Coach Holtz were talking, and he suggested I get some darts and just throw in my room," Rice said. "It seemed like it just carried on. Every night I just threw darts, and in practice I could see I was improving a bit.

"I'm going to keep throwing them. I think the darts really helped out tonight."

Rice's ability to run the ball did not hurt the Irish passing game, either. When the Stanford defense keyed on Notre Dame's ground attack Rice has run brilliantly this year, the Irish receivers found plenty of room in which to get open.

With great protection from the Notre Dame offensive line, Rice made it look easy.

"Their quarterback, Rice, did an excellent job running the option and throwing the ball," Cardinal head coach Jack Elway said. "(Rice's passing) gives them another dimension to their offense. He was throwing with real accuracy."

Rice put the Irish ahead 6-0 on a 30-yard touchdown run early in the first quarter, but then it looked as though the momentum was swinging Stanford's way. A missed 21-yard field goal by Irish kicker

Rush thrives as Johnson returns

By THERESA KELLY
Assistant Sports Editor

Last week, the Irish rushing offense gained 321 yards on the Purdue Boilermakers, averaging 5.6 yards per carry, making 13 first downs and scoring three touchdowns.

But something was missing. Anthony Johnson returned at fullback for the Irish Saturday against Stanford, sending Tony Brooks back to tailback. The result?

Against a Cardinal defense tougher than that of the Boilermakers, the running game netted 332 yards, averaging 5.4 yards per carry, making 16 first downs and scoring five touchdowns.

Johnson has been out of the Notre Dame lineup with an ankle sprain suffered against Michigan State Sept. 17. Brooks' total of 110 yards against Purdue was reduced to a still-respectable 59 against Stanford, but he didn't seem to mind sharing the wealth.

"It helped the offense to have him back," Brooks said of Johnson. "It helps us do what we want to do, which is have two experienced backs fresh all the time, and just keep running our game."

Johnson's numbers were right on par with those of the rest of the Notre Dame backfield—58 yards on 14 attempts. Johnson's one touchdown came with 1:36 left in the first half, as he plowed over left tackle and extended the Irish lead to 27-7.

"It was fun to get back and play," Johnson said. "It's not fun sitting, and that is a motivation to work hard and get back in the game."

Johnson's return had Brooks sharing the tailback chores with Mark Green. Quarterback Tony Rice led the running game with a career-high 107 yards, but the inside work was balanced between Green, Brooks and Johnson.

Green carried 10 times for 63 yards and one touchdown.

"Anthony Johnson played well," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said. "They seem to complement each other out there. We tried to control the football and do what we had to do."

As always, some credit for the 332 yards rushing goes to the offensive line, although it took the Irish four tries and one Stanford fumble to move the ball six inches and score the second touchdown of the game.

"We played as a team," Holtz said. "When we didn't get the ball in down there on the goal line, the defense came back and we got the chance."

Irish dominate second half to beat SMC

By COLLEEN HENNESSEY

Notre Dame's Moose Krause Stadium saw the birth of a rivalry last Friday night, as the Irish women's soccer team took on Saint Mary's in the first varsity soccer match between the two schools.

Notre Dame came out ahead in an even match that was closer than the 4-2 final score would indicate.

The first half was characterized by a frustrated attack on both sides, while tough marking and ball control kept the play stagnated in the mid-field.

Each team effectively shut down the opponent's offense, but neither could generate a counterattack of its own. The Irish defense was saved continually by the tenacious play of junior K.T. Sullivan, making an unusual appearance as sweeper. At 29:25, however, the Saint Mary's offense broke through when Tricia Troester's long high cross grabbed the upper left corner of the Irish goal, leaving it 1-0 at the half.

Troester has been averaging about a goal a game this season for Saint Mary's.

The Saint Mary's defense did an excellent job at shutting out freshman Susie Zilvitis, Notre

Volleyball team abuses Broncos, beats Butler

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team used and abused visiting Butler and Western Michigan this weekend in quick, three-game matches to establish a four-match winning streak at home.

The Irish, led by the brilliant setting of freshman Julie Bremner and her teammates' phenomenal hitting, used their talent to exploit the opponents' weaknesses and abused them with an unstoppable offensive attack.

Notre Dame controlled the tempo of Saturday's match against a perennially strong Western Michigan team and won in three games, 15-8, 15-6, 15-8 to record its first-ever win against the Broncos.

The Irish ran up a 7-2 lead in the first game, taking advantage of four straight service errors by the Broncos, before Western Michigan rallied to come with a point at 8-7.

But Notre Dame maintained its composure and behind back-to-back blocks by seniors Mary Kay Waller and Whitney Shewman and a flurry of kills from Waller and senior Zanette Bennett, ran the score up to 14-8 before Bremner ended the match with a service ace.

In game two, the Irish came out strong again behind the powerful hitting of Waller and jumped out to a 7-0 lead.

Western Michigan, without its star middle blocker, Gail Church, due to a shoulder dislocation, could never quite get its game going. Waller, with the help of Bennett and sophomore Colleen Wagner, dismantled the Bronco defense with a barrage of kills until Wagner answered Bremner with a service ace of her own to win the game.

Game three was not as easy for the Irish.

The Broncos made the Irish work for each point as the two teams exchanged side outs and points until they reached a 7-7 tie.

But Notre Dame steadily tallied points from that point on to take control of the game and the match.

"We played the best we've played all year," said Irish head coach Art Lambert. "We're getting ourselves a little identity as we get more established. Our knowledge of the game is showing and we're using our heads more, which is a good thing."

Bremner had an outstanding match, recording a .519 assist
