Proposed move of local bookstore stirs controversy because of zoning

By KELLEY TUTHILL
News Editor

A debate is brewing in South Bend's northeast neighborhood over the proposed move of Pandora's Books to a new location on the corner of Howard St. and Notre Dame Ave.

Pandora's Books is presently located at 808 Howard Street and would like to move across the street into a "bigger and nicer structure," according to Store Manager Mandy Arnold.

In order for Pandora's to make a move across the street the plot of land would have to be rezoned from an A-residential zone to a C-1 commercial zone.

Art Quigley, president of the northeast neighborhood association and associate professor emeritus, opposes the rezoning based on bad experiences with this piece of land in the past. He said that he does not oppose a bookstore in the neighborhood; however, he does not want it on that particular corner.

"It's a beautiful place for three homes," he said. Renelda Robinson, director of the northeast neighborhood association, agreed saying, "We need some affordable housing in this area."

"We really want to have a new store," said Arnold. She said the new plan, which includes a parking lot and landscaping, will get cars off the street. Presently, customers at Pandora's must park on Howard St. in front of the store.

She said the operation would not change and promised that there would be no large delivery trucks, only small vans.

Quigley said that in the past there was a restaurant on this slot of land which was respectable for a period of time. He said, however, that after the restaurant was granted a liquor license it "went downhill."

James Roemer, director of Community Relations at Notre Dame, said that the official University position supports the northeast neighborhood association. The official stance was a result of discussions by Roemer, Thomas Mason, vice president for Business Affairs, Philip Faccenda, general counsel, and Father William Beauchamp, executive vice president of Notre Dame.

He said that although the owners of Pandora's are "very good neighbors and well respected, wonderful people," the neighborhood residents do not want a bookstore on this corner.

A petition against the rezoning of the land was signed by approximately 200-300 residents, said Roemer.

He said that if Pandora's possibly failed, for example, the property could then be sold for commercial use. "Once it's rezoned, we have no control," said Robinson.

"Supporting the proposed change to C-1 for this corner permits only limited commercial use of property for such buildings as a bookstore. This zoning change does not permit the establishing a bar, restaurant or most other commercial uses; nor does Pandora's Books or the Howard-ND Partnership (the builders of the building) have any interest in promoting or encouraging such ventures in our neighborhood," according to a flyer put out by Pandora's.

Arnold said that the bookstore polled the residents of the neighborhood by phone from April 1 through April 25. "We were pleased to see how many people are for it (the proposed move)," she said. She said over 1000 contacts were attempted and over 500 responses were obtained.

Theft still most common ND crime

By MICHAEL OWEN
News Writer

Approximately 3,028 incidents were reported to Notre Dame Security in 1989, a figure which is close to the number of incidents for the year before, according to Rex Rakow, director of Security.

This figure is a bit different from those of past years since traffic citations are now included, Rakow said. Larceny is traditionally the largest category of incidents on campus, he said, and 500 of this year's reports were of some type of theft.

"Larcenies include everything from stolen wallets, bookbags, bicycles, to car radios," said Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Security.

Rakow said improvements are being made in combatting larceny. Last fall, a South Bend resident was apprehended in connection with the theft of bookbags at Notre Dame. The woman had attempted to sell the books to local bookstores.

Public accidents increased significantly in 1989, according to Rakow. "These include personal injuries from playing basketball to people falling out of lofts," Rakow said.

Vandalism, assaults and towing all stayed at about the same level, said Rakow. Two hundred fifty-six cars were towed in 1989 and 84 have been towed as of March, Rakow said.

"It was a good year overall, but recent assaults have been the most troubling problem," said Rakow. Rakow cited three series of assaults on campus this year. A jogger in a blue sweatsuit and a band of juveniles each separately bothered women in the fall. A series of assaults that began in April have lead to the arrest of a suspect.

"We have stepped up patrols and have placed people in various locations to watch," Hurley said. "Rightfully, females are concerned as we are," he added.

Rakow stated that the involvement of Security with the student-based SafeWalk program was the most positive event of the year. "SafeWalk allowed us to do more patrol time," Rakow said.

SafeWalk was started this year by junior Gina Mahony as a response to the attacks that occurred in the fall. Security has always offered escorts to people, but most students were not aware of it, according to Hurley.

A new computer system will be used in the next few weeks that will keep records of every incident and accelerate the process of getting information, Rakow said.

Other changes for next year will include the relocation of the Security department to the old ROTC Building.

"The new offices will give us the opportunity to work more closely with student groups and offer more educational seminars on crime prevention," Hurley said.

A few more Security positions will be added to next year's staff in response to the expansion of the campus, according to Hurley.

Hurley said that the summer session at Notre Dame is not as "day-to-day busy," but that there are still many events such as alumni reunions and special events at the JACC.

Some goals that the department is working on include the continuation of a good rapport with students and letting them know that "we are here to serve the University community," Hurley said. The expansion of education about crime prevention is another goal.

Although this is only Hurley's second year of working for Notre Dame Security, he said it has been going smoothly and he enjoys working here.

Ideas for improved female experience at ND are given

By SANDRA WIEGAND

A sex-blind admissions procedure, co-residential housing, an increase in female faculty and a policy allowing the consumption of alcoholic beverages in dorm hallways are among the diverse conditions that would improve the female experience at Notre Dame, according to a Student Government report.

In the last few years, due to a discrepancy between the number of women who applied to ND and the number who were accepted and attended, a conscious effort was made to increase the number of women accepted. Men's and women's applications have been evaluated separately.

The Student Government report to the Board of Trustees recommends an admissions procedure that does not take into account the sex of the applicant, to "enable the most qualified applicants to be accepted, thus contributing to the highest possible quality of student body."

"All the ivy league schools have sex-blind admissions policies," said Amy Weber, chairperson for the report, "and their ratio is about what ours is. The applicant pool may increase if women realize they're not pitted against other women."

Co-residential housing should initially be offered to upperclassmen on an experimental basis, the report says. Siegfried, Knott, Pasquerilla East and Pasquerilla West should be converted first, as their "L" shape would allow separation of sexes by wing.

Co-residentiality would "provide a natural environment in which men and women could learn from each other, leading to the creation of mutual respect," says the report.

Within ten years all departments in the college of Arts and Letters should have

INSIDE COLUMN

The Good, the Bad, and the Golden Dome

She rode into town in 1972 in a cloud of dust, tethered her horse and prepared to stay.

The townspeople regarded her suspiciously through their windows. They were coldly polite as she bought provisions at their General Store and took a room in one of their boarding houses.

But they stopped her as she tried to enter the Golden Dome Saloon.

"Men only, ma'am," said the barkeep, doffing his hat to her.

The men in the smoke-filled saloon turned hostile eyes to her, then went back to their high-stakes poker game, taking swigs of beer and adding chips to the pile.

She went away quietly this time, but determined to return.

The townsfolk accepted the stranger; she began to feel a part of them as they smiled politely and touched the brims of their hats as they passed.

But there still remained the saloon. She passed it day after day as she walked down the street in the town, hearing piano music and boisterous laughter wafting through the swinging doors. The life of the town lay in the saloon, she knew, but for her it was strictly taboo.

Once in awhile someone would stagger in front of the saloon, drunk, yelling half-coherent challenges to the men inside. They would emerge, their silent manner ominous, and take care of the problem quickly. Ten paces, turn and fire...the troublemaker never stood a chance. The townsfolk would mutter behind their window shades, but their justice prevailed. As long as the poker games continued, the whiskey flowed and the music echoed down the street all was right in the world.

Years passed and she established roots in the town. Working quietly alongside her neighbors she earned her living and her place. The acceptance and the friendliness ceased to amaze her and became a matter of course. By day she felt as though the town had always been her home.

By night the saloon still irked her. She had won the respect of the town, but the saloon remained an exclusive area and she had yet to gain admission. After dark she was still not completely accepted.

What the hell, she thought one day, I'll try again. Maybe this time...

She approached the saloon, drawn as always by the sounds emanating from within. Boldly she pushed the door open. Heads turned but no one spoke. Silently the men at the poker table shifted in their seats and pulled a chair out for her, pushing a glass of whiskey her way.

The Golden Dome Saloon let a woman into its men's club.

Efficiency measures in state health and human services programs could save more than $193 million a year that could then be spent to improve services to Hoosiers, a committee told Gov. Evan Bayh Thursday. If all the changes listed in the report by the Government Operations Committee were implemented, the state could save $387.7 million in the 1991-93 budget period and more than $500 million in later two-year budget cycles, the committee of private business and public agency executives said.

A chemical spill at an Evansville trucking company Thursday prompted the evacuation of a small area until it could be cleaned up, officials said. # Issue of rape addressed at Board of Trustees meeting

By PETER AMEND
News Writer

Rape at Notre Dame was one of many issues brought to the attention of the Board of Trustees by three student committees on Thursday.

The Women of Notre Dame Committee, headed by Chairwoman Amy Weber, had been planning for the presentation all semester. The report began with a video concerning sexual harassment on campus. The video, created by an ND film major, was an innovation in communication media for student committee reports to the Board.

The video showed students responding to 3 questions:

•Have you ever witnessed a professor make a sexist comment?

•Are there prevalent stereotypes of women on this campus?

•What are the major safety concerns at ND?

The committee on sexuality at ND suggested that all rape and sexual harassment incidents should be made public in order to reveal to the student body the extent of the problem. Many advocates for educating Notre Dame students on the problem of rape want consequences of rape to be made clear to incoming male freshmen during orientation.

The issue of women giving reflections at Mass instead of the priest's homily was also raised. It was argued that the University's decision to allow Provost Tim O'Meara, an unordained man, to give the homily at the Baccalaureate Mass was a double standard in this issue. It was noted that women often give the homily at summer Masses at ND, and this practice could be extended to the regular school year.

A suggestion was made that ND should make an effort to improve the relationship between the women of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. It was noted that when Notre Dame first accepted women 18 years ago, the ND women immediately subscribed to the stereotypes about SMC women established by men at Notre Dame.

As for the stereotypes of women in general, the suggestion was made to implement a genders study course in the required curriculum in the hope that it could help battle gender ignorance. It was reported that the University has been very receptive to the idea, yet still needs the funding to start such a program.

A committee for the Graduate Women at Notre Dame wants a center established for the graduate women as a place where the women can come together as a community and act as a support network for each other. The committee said that these women are generally a minority in their disciplines and often do not find any support within their department.

In the closing of the meeting, a brief report purported that Student Activities does not satisfy the needs of the media groups: WVFI, WSND, and Scholastic. The committee suggested that an autonomous group outside Student Activities could solely regulate these student medias.

Robert Pasin, student body president, said "It's unfortunate that only five out of 13 trustees attended the meeting. However, the reports don't end there. The reports will be sent to all trustees and officers of the University. The student government will follow up today's meeting with continued reports on these issues."

The Observer / Steve Moskop

The Board of Trustees are intent upon a video concerning sexual harassment at Notre Dame created and produced by an ND film major. Ann Weber, chairwoman of the Women of Notre Dame Committee, was responsible for this presentation of the current situation of women and what measures can be taken to improve it.

a number of women faculty members which reflects national availability rates, the report says. Presently less than eight percent of ND faculty with tenure are women. Benefits to increase retention of female faculty should include parental leave and child care policies and spousal employment initiatives.

Alcoholic beverages should be allowed in the hallways during semi-formals, Student Government recommends, since drinking continues behind closed doors anyway, and "the current rule...inhibits two of the most positive aspects of the semi-formals: social interaction and hall unity."

Information from various universities provided ideas for the report, Weber said. Brochures from Stanford University designed to introduce women to the campus spurred the idea of a "Women's Guide to Notre Dame," she said.

Other recommendations include the following:

- Permanent status for the Gender Studies Program, along with a continued attempt to secure an endowment for the program.
- Re-evaluation of the curriculum to eliminate gender bias.
- A formal procedure for submitting sexual harassment complaints.
- Guaranteed participation at campus masses for Eucharistic ministers, even when enough priests are present to accommodate the congregation.
- Greater participation for women at the year's opening mass.

•Installation of 25 emergency telephones to improve security, especially in the parking lots, and additional lights around campus that retain the "aesthetically pleasing" appearance of the campus.

•A 24-hour area for study and social purposes for the entire campus. The basement of LaFortune is recommended.

•A change in athletic policy to obtain accordance with Title IX regulations, which guarantee equality for both sexes regarding various athletic benefits and opportunities, "not only because it is the law, but because it is the fair and right thing to do."

Pandora's

According to the people who responded to the survey, 250 or 45 percent said yes to the question, "Are you in favor of a new bookstore on Notre Dame Ave. at Howard St?" 198 or 36 percent said they don't care, 69 or 12 percent said no, and 37 or 7 percent were undecided. These results reflect a combination of two separate surveys by Pandora's.

Opponents of the rezoning questioned the validity of the survey. Roemer said that he heard Pandora's merely asked residents whether they would like to have a bookstore in the neighborhood, not if they minded rezoning in their neighborhood.

Father David Schlaver, editor and publisher of Ave Maria Press, recently wrote a column in the South Bend Tribune voicing his support for the rezoning.

"A new and larger store would serve the South Bend and Notre Dame community better, and I think would greatly benefit the northeast neighborhood," he said.

While opponents agree that they are not against the idea of a new bookstore, they suggested several alternative locations to the proposed site. Roemer said he suggested that Pandora's move into Goodwill plaza, in the location that is currently Brunos Pizza. He said that this area is "properly zoned" for a business.

In addition, Roemer said that Notre Dame offered to buy the lot at the corner of Howard St. and Notre Dame Ave. from Pandora's, at the same price Pandora's owners paid for it, in order to prevent the rezoning.

He added that Notre Dame has a particular interest in this neighborhood because there are numerous students, faculty and staff who reside in the area. "Notre Dame is concerned because of the people who live there."

Robinson said she suggested that Pandora's consider moving next to Club 23, while Quigley suggested the area where Corby's bar used to stand.

Roemer voiced a final concern for the University pointing out that Notre Dame Ave. is the main entrance-way to the campus. He said the University must be concerned with the most attractive way to maintain that road be it commercial or residential.

However, Schlaver maintains that "... a new building with off-street parking could only enhance the neighborhood."

Discussion of the rezoning will continue next in front of the South Bend Common Council, according to Quigley.

"I'm proud of our neighborhood and I don't feel it is in the best interest of the neighborhood to have this area rezoned," Robinson said.

Pandora's, however, believes that they have support from the residents. "We're not going to let it (the rezoning efforts) ground to a halt without some effort," said Arnold.

Two Amtraks have accidents in less than 24 hours

Crawfordsville police officers secure an Amtrak cafe car which partially derailed after the train was incorrectly switched onto a siding containing parked freight cars. The engine (left) of the three-car train hit a box car. Twenty-six people were reported injured. Six were admitted to Culver Hospital in Crawfordsville and listed in satisfactory condition.

DURANT, Miss. (AP) — A passenger train crashed into a truck, injuring 29 people Thursday, less than 24 hours after another Amtrak train smashed into a row of freight cars in Indiana in an accident that injured 26.

The latest accident occurred about 9:30 a.m. when the train, "City of New Orleans," en route from Chicago to New Orleans, struck a log truck at a private railroad crossing near the Memphis Hardwood Co., a lumberyard in Durant.

Authorities said no flashing lights or signs marked the crossing.

"It looked like a dynamite explosion," said state Trooper Jimmie Thomas, who witnessed the accident. "When it hit, it scattered lumber all over creation, and the truck was dragged down the track."

"It was a big jolt," said passenger Melissa Mitchell. "Everybody woke up ... We got outside and saw that we were majorly off the track, but upright."

Officials said 160 to 170 people, including crew, were on the train. At least two crew members were among those injured. It was the second Amtrak

State" with 30 to 35 people aboard derailed Wednesday night after striking five freight cars parked on an outside track 40 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

A passenger and the train's engineer and assistant engineer remained hospitalized Thursday with minor injuries. The others were treated.

"Thank God we were only going 25 (mph), or him and I would be history," said assistant engineer James Neff, 42, referring to himself and Amtrak employee James Ullery, 40.

Ullery said that by the time he noticed the train was on the wrong track, it was too late.

Officials from Amtrak, Conrail, the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Railroad Administration were investigating the cause of the crash, but released no preliminary results. Conrail owns the track where the accident occurred.

In the accident at Durant, District Two Community Hospital reported at least 25 people were brought from the scene. A spokeswoman said that except for the truck driver, most of the people were treated for bumps and bruises.

Authorities said an incorrectly set switch sent a Chicago-to-Indianapolis train crashing into freight cars Wednesday night near Crawfordsville, Ind. On April 22, at least 91 people were reported hurt, three seriously, when the national passenger rail line's California Zephyr derailed in Iowa en route from California to Chicago.

Internships awarded

Special to the Observer

The Helen Kellogg Institute for International Studies has announced the selection of three students for summer internships in human rights.

The Institute awards up to three subsidized internships annually to outstanding undergraduates from any college in the University. The students will all be working in Washington, D.C. this summer.

Wendy Cunningham, of Wright-Patterson, Ohio, a government and economics major, will spend two months as an intern with the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights at the Organization of American States.

Susan Finn of Dallas, Texas, a Spanish and international relations major, will spend her internship at the Washington Office on Latin American (WOLA).

Kathleen Mulhern, an English major from Basking Ridge, N.J., will be an intern at the Center of Concern.

The interns spend their time in a variety of activities promoting human rights, including research, attendance at Congressional hearings, and office support to visiting dignitaries.

Leadership plays strong part in business, politics, speaker says

By BRADLEY GALKO
News Writer

What began as a discussion on a French method of vacuum sealing food turned into a discussion on world politics and the role of the United States and private business Thursday night at the Morris Inn.

Peter Grace, head of sales for Grace Culinary Systems and a 1964 graduate of Notre Dame, addressed questions from the Notre Dame Council on International Business Development concerning oppression in Eastern Europe, Lithuania, China, South Africa, and the Soviet Union.

"I think the critical issue is leadership," said Grace. "We need someone who is willing and able to go out there and be a leader, even if it's unpopular." Grace defined a leader as "someone who goes out and says 'I think this is the way we ought to go.'"

"The business community has responded," he said. He cited the integration of Dallas schools in the 1970s as an example where business played a leadership role in resolving a problem. "The leadership was there. In Lithuania, the leadership has to be there; I don't see the leadership in Washington (D.C.)."

Grace said businessmen have to be responsible and "support the right" in these global conflicts. He also said that everyone should hold our elected officials more accountable. He cited the 96 percent re-election rate of members of Congress as evidence of a lack on the part of U.S. citizens to hold their elected leaders accountable for their actions.

In response to those who cited negative drawbacks to United States involvement in situations such as Lithuania, Grace said, "The fact that there are trade-offs is not a reason to not have leadership. . . . There are trade-offs in everything. . . . (we should) admit that there are trade-offs and discuss alternatives."

"I think we are going to have to make those kind of trade-offs as a nation," he added.

However, Grace's remarks were not meant to blindly condone U.S. intervention. "I think we need to encourage the development . . . of local enterprise (in these foreign countries) . . . (and) not quash local embryonic industries." He said failure to do this causes resentment toward the United States even if it helps solve other pressing problems in these countries.

He added that the foreign U.S. capital and domestic labor and materials "must be in concert" with each other.

Grace began his presentation by showing a five-minute videotape demonstrating sous vide, a French method of vacuum-sealing food. Sous vide allows restaurant owners to prepare foods at off-peak hours, cook them within minutes with minimal labor, or store up to three weeks before preparing.

Grace operates fifteen restaurants in the Washington D.C. area, called American Cafe, that utilize the sous vide method of food preparation.

He said the process was developed in Europe because "they (Europeans) recognized the efficiency of labor." He cited a hospital in New Jersey where the method is scheduled to be implemented as one example where sous vide would cut labor costs.

"This will help them streamline," he said. "you're eliminating a lot of labor in the hospital itself." He said he expects the method of food preparation to move into other areas of the food industry as well because, among other things, "you are able with that technology to offer a much broader, much more sophisticated menu."

"I think there will be some applications in fast food. I don't think it's going to be immediate. I think it's going to be down the road," he said.

One problem the method faces in restaurants he said is that "the customer has indicated that they don't want a branded product. They want to feel it was made for them, not made 150 miles away."

Sous vide has unsuccessfully attempted to move into the grocery market. "We're actually packaging meals so people can just pick them up in a supermarket," explained Grace. "This is a meal that when you bring it home, tastes just like a meal in a restaurant." The meals are only marginally more expensive than typical frozen dinners, he said.

Responding to a question as to whether the typical American consumer would be willing to buy a high-quality meal in a package, he said, "That's one of the open issues, whether the American consumer will recognize that quality."

So far General Foods, Nestles, and Campbell Soup have all tried to market sous vide products and failed. Kraft is currently test-marketing a product called Chillery in Kansas City.

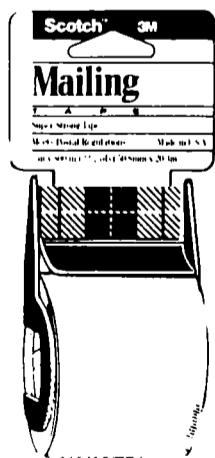

"The food business, like so many other businesses, is going to be technologically driven," Grace said of the future. "One of the reasons why it (technology like sous vide) is so expensive today is because the technology is just embryonic."

Former Student Body President Matt Breslin engages in a discussion of the issues addressed at meeting of the Board of Trustees yesterday. Among the topics presented were: the education of students on the problem and consequences of rape, the periodic substitution of a woman's reflection for the priest's homily, and the implementation of a gender studies course into the required curriculum.

Democrats support public financing of campaigns, oppose PAC grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats proposed Thursday that the public finance nearly half the cost of Senate campaigns and that political action committees be prohibited from contributing directly to candidates.

The revised campaign reform bill, which party leaders said they will bring to the Senate floor next week, retains spending ceilings vehemently opposed by most Republicans but raises them about 20 percent above what Democrats had first proposed.

Democratic leaders unveiled their package just two days after Republicans rushed out a counter proposal endorsed by 34 of the 45 GOP senators.

Under the Democratic plan, about 70 percent of a candidate's general election campaign expenses — but none of the costs for primary races — would be paid by the government from funds raised through a proposed $3 checkoff on income tax returns.

Since the middle 1970s, tax returns have included a check-off that allows taxpayers to designate $1 of their taxes to a fund for financing presidential campaigns.

The new Democratic-proposed ceilings on Senate campaigns would range from $1.9 million in small states to slightly more than $10 million in the largest, California. Sponsors said it would basically cut in half the amount now being spent.

The GOP plan would abolish union and corporate PACs entirely and cut the amount that issue-oriented PACs can contribute to campaigns by 80 percent. But Republicans would leave unlimited the aggregate amounts that candidates and the two parties can raise from individual donors and spend on elections.

"The only meaningful way to reform ... is to have limits on campaign spending," said Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell of Maine. "Anything less than that avoids the real issues and simply creates the illusion of reform."

With revised proposals from both parties now on the table, the door is open for Mitchell, Republican Leader Bob Dole and their representatives to begin serious negotiations.

"We still hope we can reach a bipartisan agreement," Mitchell said. "I hope we can engage in discussions in the very near future."

Oklahoma Sen. David Boren, the chief author of the Democratic package, said he doesn't expect those talks to begin before the bill is brought to the Senate floor Monday or Tuesday.

"Everything is negotiable from our point of view, except that we have to have some limit on overall spending, or that money will pop up in some other way," Boren said.

The initial reaction from Republicans was disdain.

"I can't believe this is a serious proposal," said Kentucky Sen. Mitch McConnell, the chief author of the GOP measure.

"I plan on doing my résumé on my Mac. And making Macintosh part of my résumé."

Bob Reich
Sophomore Accounting Major
University of Notre Dame

There's a lot more to an Apple® Macintosh® computer than just something to make a résumé look good. Sure, it's got the capability to improve the look of practically any document. But once you get beyond Macintosh as just an elegant formatting tool, you begin to understand why it's becoming so widely accepted in the business world. My Mac® can crunch numbers with the best of them. It just plain makes me more efficient in everything I do. That frees me up for serious book time—and for not-so-serious stuff, too.

Having my own Macintosh is a big plus now, and I know it'll give me an edge in the real world, too. I'll be able to interface my Mac with mainframes and MS-DOS® computers and still have the ease-of-use that Macintosh is famous for. And that'll make me work better for whoever I work for.

Macintosh is going to make my résumé look better—in more ways than one.

Latvia debates whether to declare independence from Soviet Union

RIGA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Latvia's legislature on Thursday began debating whether to declare independence from the Soviet Union, exhorted by Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis to "be strong and have courage."

Landsbergis said he came to the neighboring Baltic republic "to be with my brothers." He said Latvians, if they moved more slowly than Lithuania on the path to secession, would be "trudging through a jungle."

"I see and feel that Latvia won't retreat from the principle of independence," Landsbergis said in separate remarks to Latvian Radio.

Pro- and anti-independence protesters surrounded the Latvian deputies as they entered the parliament building.

About 50 Soviet Army officers who live in Latvia gathered with signs proclaiming, "The People and the Army are United," and "We Won't Go the Way of Lithuania."

A few steps away, pro-independence protesters carried banners saying, "The Soviet Army Must Go Home," and "Independence for Latvia." Protesters carried Soviet flags or the red-and-white Latvian flag.

The Latvian Supreme Soviet, or legislature, debated procedural questions. A vote on independence was likely Friday. Lawmakers from the separatist People's Front predicted they could muster the two-thirds majority needed.

There are 201 members of the Latvian Supreme Soviet, but only 197 will vote on independence because of four disputed seats stemming from the March election. A two-thirds majority of 132 votes is needed to pass the independence measure.

A spokeswoman for the People's Front said Thursday the measure is supported by more than 140 deputies.

Anatoly Gorbunov, who was re-elected president of Latvia at Thursday's session, backed independence in a nomination speech.

"I believe that the renewal of a legally sovereign nation must be accomplished," he said, declaring it a "normal way of life for all the residents of Latvia."

Gorbunov, a 48-year-old former Communist Party functionary who has shown himself skilled at negotiating with Moscow, won 153 votes out of 196 cast.

He warned that the republic could not expect help from the West.

"The world, on account of 5 million Baltic people, is not going to risk what has been done in the area of arms control and by Mikhail Gorbachev," he said.

In Washington, Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene said before a meeting with President Bush that her republic would be willing to suspend independence measures opposed by Moscow if it had Western guarantees of support for its sovereignty.

Lithuania is enduring a Kremlin economic embargo imposed in response to its independence declaration. Officials of Landsbergis' government said Thursday that shortages were beginning to hit medical supplies.

Landsbergis told reporters he thought Latvians would eventually achieve independence by a slower, "more difficult" path than Lithuania. He said they were agonizing over their relationship with Moscow and appeared to be "trudging through a jungle."

Because of Latvia's delicate ethnic balance, the step could be less radical than Lithuania's declaration of independence March 11.

Lithuanian prime minister appeals for recognition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene appealed to President Bush on Thursday to formally recognize her government's independence from Moscow.

"I think he's going to see how events unfold there and he's going to take decisions which are compatible with U.S., Soviet and Lithuanian interests," she said.

Bush said at a news conference shortly before the 45-minute Oval Office meeting that he sees no role for the United States as a mediator between Lithuania and Moscow.

But Prunskiene, speaking at a reception as her long day of top-level meetings and public appeals drew to a close, said that her countrymen expect more than that from Bush.

"I made it clear to President Bush that the Lithuanian nation is awaiting basic support from him," she told an audience at the conservative Heritage Foundation.

"I don't think the president is at all indifferent to the Lithuanian cause," she said.

"He is, however, concerned with some of the complexities that surround this issue."

She said that what Lithuania most needs — if it accepts a proposal made by France and West Germany to slow the implementation of independence — are international guarantees that talks with Moscow will in fact lead to independence.

"President Bush's involvement in this process would be very helpful," she said.

Only time will tell whether her White House meeting was productive, she said, adding: "I have not lost hope."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush told Prunskiene to take back to Lithuania this message:

"I am personally, and the United States government, is committed to the self-determination of the people of Lithuania."

The White House has said Prunskiene's visit was unofficial, but Fitzwater said Bush was pleased to get a first-hand account of the conditions in Lithuania.

Thatcher's conservatives lose elections

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party lost heavily in local elections Thursday, and socialists posted their best performance since she won power 11 years ago.

But the Conservatives, in deep trouble over the economy and the imposition of an unpopular new local government tax, averted the rout forecast in opinion polls, where Thatcher trails by nearly 20 points.

"Not a marvellous result, but certainly not the disaster that was being predicted," said Environment Secretary Chris Patten, the Cabinet official in charge of the new so-called poll tax. "It's the massacre that didn't happen."

The Labour Party was jubilant. It was the only party to make net gains and easily outstripped its target of 200 new seats.

With results declared from 180 of the 201 councils, Labour had made 10 new gains to control 89 councils. The Conservatives lost eight and had control of 36.

The third-running centrist Social and Liberal Democratic Party controlled three councils and had lost three. No party had overall control in the rest.

About 5,000 seats were at stake.

"We're delighted," said Labor campaign manager Bryan Gould.

But he said the Tories' not doing as badly as predicted would lessen pressure by some worried Conservatives to try to shed Thatcher as leader. "If so, the Tories will be making a mistake," he added.

For the first time since Thatcher won power in 1979, Laborites made significant gains in the Tory heartlands of the prosperous south.

Labour seized control from the Tories of the south England port of Portsmouth and for the first time in nearly 20 years, Laborites won seats in nearby Thatcher's Conservatives Lose Heavily in British Local Elections

Iranian president says U.S. acted like 'spoiled, frustrated child'

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — President Hashemi Rafsanjani of Iran said Thursday the groups holding hostages in Lebanon released two Americans at Iran's prodding, but that the United States was still acting like a spoiled child.

He also said Iran is not restoring diplomatic ties with the United States.

Robert Polhill, 55, of New York, was freed April 22 and eight days later a second U.S. educator held hostage, Frank Reed, 57, of Malden, Mass., was freed.

Rafsanjani said the kidnapers released the two "at our suggestion. They could have ... rejected our advice. But they accepted our advice."

In his speech to a group of teachers in Tehran, Iran's capital, Rafsanjani compared the U.S. response to that of "a stubborn, frustrated child."

The speech was carried by Tehran Radio and monitored in Nicosia.

President Bush told a news conference in Washington Thursday he was cheered by the release of Polhill and Reed, but was unwilling to make any conciliatory gestures toward Iran at this time.

Bush has repeatedly declared he will not negotiate with Iran or the Lebanese Shiite Moslem kidnapers for the release of hostages.

But he did promise to help Iran get details on the fate of four Iranian diplomats kidnapped in Lebanon in 1982, calling it a goodwill gesture and not an attempt to bargain for U.S. hostages.

"This is something they feel very strongly about," Bush said. "They've mentioned it to us several different times."

Sixteen Westerners, including six Americans, are missing in Lebanon. Most are believed held by groups controlled by Hezbollah, the Iranian-financed Party of God. Longest held is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, kidnapped March 16, 1985.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Thursday welcomed Syria's and Iran's role in gaining freedom for Polhill and Reed, but said

Britain will not deal with hostage-takers.

She is under pressure to secure the release of British hostages in Lebanon. Three Britons and an Irishman with dual British and Irish citizenship are held, including Terry Waite, special envoy of Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie.

Rafsanjani said Thursday that "an angry, revolutionary, enraged group, after it released one hostage without pre-conditions.

Under construction since the summer of 1989, the new ROTC building is near completion and will be ready for operations in the fall. The old ROTC building will be occupied by the Notre Dame Security.

Former hostage beaten after escape attempt

BOSTON (AP) — Former hostage Frank Reed was severely beaten after an escape attempt and was told his mother had died even though she's still living, his daughter said Thursday.

"He didn't know she was alive until he was released," said Marilyn Langston. "We were able to tell him she was very much alive."

Reed's mother, 91-year-old Leota Sprague, shares an apartment in the suburb of Malden with Reed's wife, Fahima, and the couple's 9-year-old son, Tarek.

Langston said she was told Thursday by a State Department spokesman that doctors had decided Reed, who is weak after 42 months in captivity, should undergo further medical tests.

Frances Jones, a spokeswoman for the State Department's Bureau of Consular Affairs, said Reed would be flown to Andrews Air Force Base Friday, then probably to Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where former hostage Robert Polhill was taken after being released April 22.

Jones said it was unclear how long Reed would stay in Washington before continuing to Massachusetts.

Langston, who also lives in Malden, said she would fly to Washington on Friday to meet her father.

In a telephone call Wednesday, Reed told Langston he had tried to escape.

"He told me he'd been beaten. He did try to escape and they'd beaten him very badly," Langston said in a telephone interview from her home.

She said Reed was denied medical attention for his wounds and is still recovering from them.

Fire races through Everglades

MIAMI (AP) — A 4-mile-wide brush fire raced through bone-dry Everglades sawgrass Thursday, jumping a canal and threatening 150,000 acres of a wildlife preserve.

"We're in big trouble, it jumped a levy 50 feet wide," said state ranger Gene Dempsey. "There's nothing slowing it down — there's no water holes, no breaks."

The fire, driven westward by 15 mph winds and fueled by sawgrass parched by Florida's two-year drought, had spread to 24,000 acres, or more than 37 square miles, by early afternoon.

The fire northwest of Miami did not threaten any inhabited areas. By jumping the canal, the blaze moved into the Everglades wildlife management area and headed toward the Big Cypress National Preserve.

"Our main hope was to stop it there," Dempsey said. "The next canal is about 12 miles away."

The wildfire was one of three burning around Miami. A 10,000-acre fire in Everglades National Park southwest of Miami remained active Thursday, although park spokeswoman Pat Tolle said a federal fire-fighting team from Asheville, N.C. seemed to be containing it successfully.

Seminole Indian firefighters were trying to control a smaller blaze on their reservation in Broward County, said Dempsey. So far they did not need state help.

Air-, sea-launched weapons offset cuts in land-based, analysts say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is developing air- and sea-launched nuclear weapons that would more than offset the loss of firepower resulting from President Bush's cancellation of two land-based nuclear systems in Europe, analysts said Thursday.

Earlier in the day, Bush officially scrapped plans to field a new, more powerful version of the Lance missile and a modernized 155 mm nuclear-tipped artillery shell. The decision had been widely anticipated, even though Bush strenuously argued for those weapons last year. West Germany and other NATO allies opposed the weapons.

Bush made no mention of the other nuclear weapons already in the pipeline for European deployment. Private arms experts say these other weapons, some of which already are in Europe, have more military worth than either of the canceled systems.

The tradeoff is like "trading two handguns for an assault rifle," said Daniel Plesch, director of the British American Security Information Council, a private arms group.

Already in the American nuclear arsenal in Europe are an estimated 1,400 free-fall bombs carried by the F-111 and other European-based aircraft; about 1,200 artillery shells; 200 anti-submarine depth bombs and 700 aging Lance missiles.

The most important new weapon earmarked for European deployment is an air-to-surface nuclear missile that could be carried on the American F-16 fighters based in Europe and the new F-15E nuclear strike aircraft now in production.

The leading candidate for an air-to-surface missile is the Short-Range Attack Missile-Tactical, which the Air Force is reported to be developing. It would have a range of about 250 miles.

William Arkin, an arms expert with the environmental group Greenpeace U.S.A., said the Air Force wants to start deploying about 300 of the the air-to-surface missile in Europe by 1995.

The advantage of an air-to-surface missile is that it would give the air forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the capability, in the event of a nuclear war, to "stand off" from the battlefield and still hit Soviet territory.

The United States now has no air-to-surface nuclear missiles in Europe. Britain and France are reportedly cooperating to develop their own missiles of this type.

The now-canceled Lance missile, which was to replace an existing arsenal of 700 aging Lance missiles, would not have been capable of reaching Soviet territory.

Bush did not say he would withdraw any of the existing Lances, and Plesch said it was possible that NATO could agree to refurbish them to extend their useful lives.

U.S. plans for land-based nuclear weapons scrapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush scrapped plans Thursday for newer and more powerful battle-field nuclear weapons in Europe and called for a NATO summit to rewrite political and military strategy for "a new era in history."

"As democracy comes to Eastern Europe and Soviet troops return home, there is less need for nuclear systems of the shortest range," Bush said.

His decision, canceling modernization of the Lance missile, amounted to a recognition of political realities both in Europe and in Congress.

West Germany, where most of the new weapons would be based, had fiercely opposed the deployment since the warheads would be targeted on their countrymen in East Germany.

Congress, doubting that the new missiles would ever be installed, had balked at Bush's request for $112 million for modernization.

Bush made his announcement at a wide-ranging news conference during which he also said "I sometimes do worry" that military hard-liners in the Soviet Union might oust President Mikhail Gorbachev and try to reverse democratic reforms in Eastern Europe.

It was Bush's most direct statement ever about Gorbachev's grip on power.

Bush said Gorbachev is under "extraordinary pressure" at home because of unrest over Lithuania's drive for independence and the ailing Soviet economy.

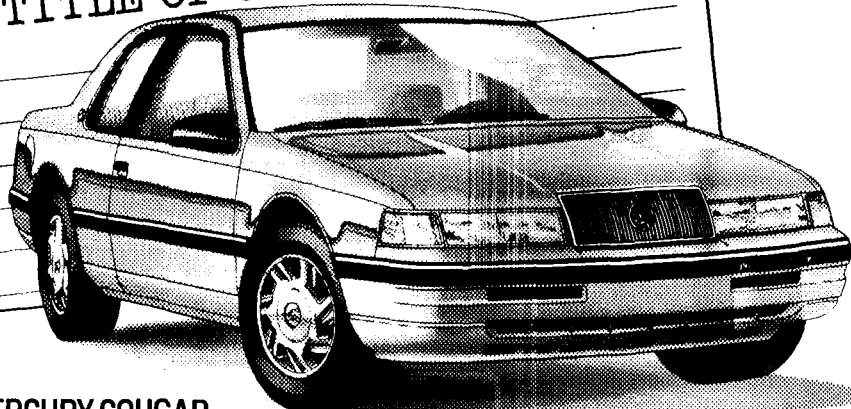

In a lighter moment, Bush defended his wife Barbara against complaints by Wellesley College students who oppose her as their graduation speaker.

He said the students may be right in saying her recognition comes from his success, but declared "these young women can have a lot to learn from Barbara Bush" anyway.

Tyson bids students fond farewell

Dear Editor:

I should like to take this opportunity to extend my best wishes to the student body as we end the 1989-90 academic year. The break is close, and all of us look forward to the change of pace that summer brings.

Regardless of your summer plans, I should like to urge you to take some time to reflect upon this past year. Question yourself as to the meaning of your education at Notre Dame at this juncture in time. Be willing to confront your failures as a source of future growth. Examine your relationships in light of true friendship and service. Dip deep into your heart to review your faith and the place of God in your life.

Finally, I should like to bid a fond farewell to all of you as I prepare to begin a new ministry at the University of Portland. I am very blessed to have been a student, a faculty member, a hall staff member and a vice president at this special place. My fondest memories will be of the interaction I have had with students. It is a privilege to play a role in the growth of young people. I am thankful to have had that privilege at Notre Dame.

I made perpetual vows in the Congregation of Holy Cross because of the deep dedication of its members to education. As I have shared in the mission of Holy Cross at Notre Dame, I look with enthusiasm to sharing that same mission at the University of Portland.

Know of my continued good wishes and prayers for all of you.

Report on sexuality makes unfair statements about campus groups

Dear Editor:

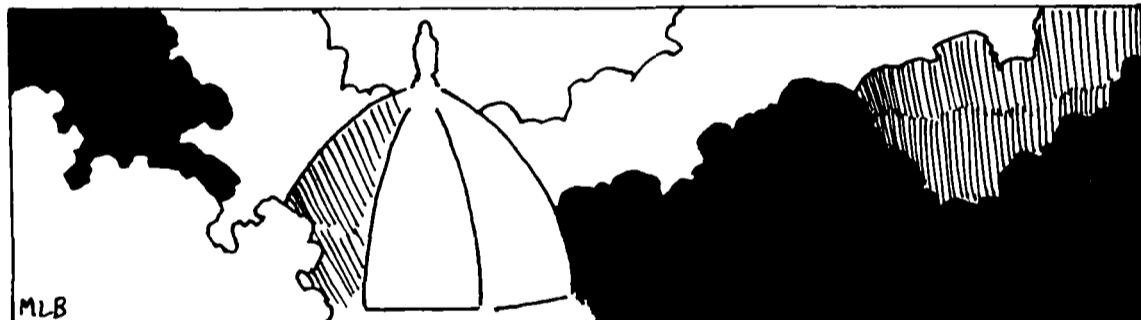

We, Women United for Justice and Peace, would like to clarify the misleading statements concerning our group as presented in "Report recommends change in parietals" (The Observer, May 2). The article stated that Women United for Justice and Peace was recognized by the University to uphold beliefs "contrary to Catholicism." No explanation of why our group was deemed as such followed this statement. Researching this question, we discovered that the Report on Sexuality complied by Student Government contained statements assuming that Women United for Justice and Peace maintained a stance on women's ordination; however, no one in our group was even asked if we had a stance. We do not. The Report on Sexuality based its information concerning our group, therefore, on assumptions and stereotypes.

Although our group does not maintain a public stance on the ordination of women, some of our members hold personal views on the issue. Does anyone who questions the Catholic Church qualify as non-Catholic? Is there room for dissent in the Church? We sincerely hope there is and believe that, by embracing a plurality of views, we begin our long journeys toward truth.

Dedicated to recognizing the full dignity of all persons, Women United for Justice and Peace upholds a call to witness, action, reflection and education. We understand our vision as one that accords with Christ's message to seek justice through compassion.

Hickey addresses Saint Mary's students

Dear Editor:

The ending of the school year never changes. In what seems like an instant, the anxiety and tension of those last weeks are transformed into anticipation and relief. Before I know it, the campus is empty and the ceremonies and celebrations are over. As Saint Mary's students prepare to rush home, I welcome this moment of your time to wish you well.

The 1989-90 academic year has provided Saint Mary's students with much to remember thoughtfully and fondly during the coming months and years. As in each year, there are events and projects outside the classroom which particularly stand out for individual students as well as for the College.

As the weeks pass, and you find the time to think back on your year, I hope that you will reflect on those experiences which have brought you closer to an awareness of your goals, values and beliefs. You will undoubtedly find that what you have read, studied and written about during the past nine months will begin to mean more when you have the time to look at the "big picture."

Take that time, that opportunity, to look at how all that you do during your time in college fits together: the studying, volunteering, worshipping and recreation. It is in that integration of experience and knowledge that true learning and growth occurs.

With the faculty and staff of Saint Mary's, I wish you a safe and happy summer. We'll look forward to seeing you in August.

ND wishes students well

Dear Editor:

I want to wish all returning students well at the completion of another academic year. I am sure that the upcoming Summer will pass quickly and soon you will be looking forward to returning to the campus. May the Summer provide you with sufficient opportunity for both work and leisure in order to get a perspective on your life here. I hope that you come to appreciate even more the friendships you have developed. I assure you that the faculty will be busy over the Summer preparing to resume their responsibilities in the Fall.

As you return home, be sure to speak words of thanks to your parents and everyone else who provides support for you while you are at Notre Dame. All the best to you and may God keep you from harm in the coming months.

Ed "Monk" Malloy, CSC
President
May 1, 1990

The Observer staff would like to wish the student body good luck on finals and a safe and happy summer. See you next year.

Mexicans honor victory in battle with France on cinco de mayo

MANUEL ESPINO
accent writer

Contrary to popular belief, cinco de mayo (5th of May) is not Mexican Independence Day, but rather it is a celebration of a victory at the Battle of Puebla on May 5, 1862. On this day, much like dieciseis de septiembre (Mexican Independence Day), celebrations are held throughout the United States and parts of Mexico, for in Mexico dieciseis de septiembre is more widely celebrated.

In my hometown (Fort Worth, Texas) and in many other regions with a considerable Hispanic contingency, a carnival is held every year. There are bands playing Mexican and Tex-Mex music, Mexican food being sold, teenage girls competing for the honor of cinco de mayo queen, politicians speaking, and overall, people having fun.

Cinco de mayo is the perfect time for people to learn about the Mexican and Mexican-American culture. However, the historic events that transpired more than a century, a score, and nine years ago often are forgotten in the midst of celebration.

Shortly after a civil war, known as the War of the Reform, in the late 1850s, Benito Juarez of the Liberal party was elected president. Along with his office came an over-80 million peso foreign debt of three years. On June 17, 1861, all payments on the national debt were suspended by the government.

This caused a great deal of discord with their debtors, and in late 1861, a joint British, Spanish, and French expeditionary landed on the Port of Veracruz to obtain a debt settlement from Mexico.

Mexico owed the British 70 million pesos; the Spanish, 9.5 million pesos; and the French, only a small amount. However, under the rule of Napoleon III, France demanded that Mexico pay back the 2.5 million pesos for some imaginary property damages and 12 million pesos in repayment of a 70,000 peso loan to the former government.

A Mexican flag, guarded on all sides by colonial administration buildings, waves proudly in the middle of the main square of Mexico City. To defend this flag's right to wave, a Mexican army defeated French invaders at the Battle of Puebla. This battle is remembered each year on cinco de mayo.

Yet, through negotiations, it became evident that the French did not want to settle the debt, for it had always been the emperor's secret desire to create a French protectorate in the New World. In April 1862, the British and Spanish withdrew, while the French sought to move towards the interior.

Under the leadership of Count Lorencez, who with 6,000 soldiers, thought he could easily defeat the Mexican army, the French moved forward to Puebla in May 1862, attempting to seize Fort Guadalupe and Fort Loreto. However, under the leadership of General Ignacio Zaragoza, the Mexican army was able to force the French to retreat. Thrice the French were unsuccessful in their attempts to take Fort Guadalupe.

The Battle of Puebla gave the Mexicans the much-needed confidence to fend off the French.

Alas, France's intervention in Mexico ended with the execution of Maximilian, emperor of Mexico, on May 15, 1867.

Thus, cinco de mayo is more than a time to delight in the food, culture, music, and tradition that is Mexico. It is also a time to reflect on the courage and good fortune displayed by Zaragoza and his men. Had the Battle of Puebla been lost, so too would have Mexico to the French.

Finding God at the far side of a child's garden of verses

According to Prince Malinsky, a Russian refugee, there once was a man named Ivan Ivanovitch who, in a mood of despair, decided to sell his soul to the devil. Ivan sends the Prince of Darkness a letter, in which he makes an offer, and a few days later, he gets a reply: the devil will be waiting for him at a designated time on a designated night at a place called Bald Mountain, where witches hold their Sabbaths.

When Ivan goes to keep the appointment, he looks all over the haunted peak without finding any trace of the archenemy of souls. Finally, he spies a bearded patriarch sitting peacefully on a tree stump. Though he's surprised to find a holy man in this wild, terrible place, Ivan summons up the courage to ask him for help: "Have you seen anyone hanging around here tonight?"

"Why?" answers the patriarch. "Are you expecting someone?"

"As a matter of fact," says Ivan, "I'm expecting company." "Not the devil, by any chance?" asks the holy man. "How did you know?"

"Because I am the devil," replies the holy man. "Why do you look so surprised?"

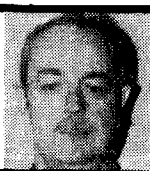

"I expected the devil to have a different appearance," stammers Ivan.

The patriarch exclaims with a chuckle "Don't you realize all the press notices I have received were put out by my enemies?"

Dostoyevsky gave us the story of a prisoner interned in a prison camp in Siberia. As a way of escaping from his grim, violent surroundings, the prisoner starts to reflect on his past life. The memory of an August day, when he was a child, comes to mind. He recalls a hallucination in which he heard the cry "Wolf" and, frightened, ran to the peasant Marey, who was plowing in a nearby field. Marey comforts him and sends him home.

Letters to a Lonely God

"There is a wolf!" I cried panting. . . "Where is the wolf?" . . . "A shout. . . someone shouted 'Wolf'!" I faltered. . . "Nonsense, nonsense! A wolf! How could there be a wolf! Why you have had a fright. . . Come, little one, Christ be with you! Cross yourself."

"I grasped at last that there was no wolf, and that the shout that I had heard was my fancy. . . 'I will go then,' I said. . . 'I'll keep a watch on you as you go. I won't let the wolf get you. . . Christ be with you!' And he made the sign of the cross over me and then over himself. . .

"Afterwards, I never even spoke to him about the wolf or anything else, and all at once now, twenty years afterwards in Siberia, I remember this meeting with such distinctness. . . I remember the soft motherly smile of the poor serf, the way he signed me with the cross. . . if I had been his own son, he could not have looked at me with eyes shining with greater love.

"And what made him like that? He was our serf, and I was his little master. . . I was a solitary meeting in the deserted fields, and only God, perhaps, may have seen from above with what deep feeling and delicate tenderness the heart of a coarse, brutally ignorant Russian serf may be filled. . .

Saint-Exupery wrote: "All grown-ups were once children-although few of them remember it." Christ reminded us of the importance of seeing the baffling mysteries of the universe through a child's eyes. Once you add an adult's understanding to the child's way of seeing things, you will not have trouble figuring out the peasant Marey as a Christ-figure, or the devil's making an appearance as an angel of light.

Anytime I hear stories of God, or of His enemies' list, other words of Saint-Exupery, who wrote "The Little Prince," come to mind. "I would like to have discovered in the universe the trace of the divine mantle; and touching a truth outside of me like a god who has long hidden himself from men, I would like to have gripped him by the hem of his coat and to have torn the veil from his face, to lay it bare. But it would not have been given to me to discover anyone other than myself."

For Saint-Exupery, God is simply "deus absconditus," a god who hides his face, the great silent one whom the mystics refer to as "the silent wilderness that is God."

I'm too old to remember how God appears to the mind of the child whom Christ wants me to become like, but I think that as a child, I understood that adults have their space. This is especially so with God, who stood so close, I thought, I could feel His breath.

But I was never tempted to make Him as small as myself. Only adults are tempted to make God in their own image. Often, the God we hear about from preachers and other believers is a projection of themselves. That is why so much of our religion is shallow and lacks nourishment.

Perhaps it's his credit that the Little Prince is a "petit bonhomme solitaire," almost "primus inter pares" of the "solitary little fellows too soon deprived of God at an age when one still seeks refuge, and left to struggle with life." He owns a tiny planet with a single rose, one sheep and three volcanoes, one of them extinct. That must be an advantage.

Still, in a universe haunted by solitude, this lonely child is an orphan. The loneliness was an aid to his innocence, for the adults couldn't program him to be a prophet. Child prophets can be such a bore, for their insights are a bunch of spontaneous as Punch-and-Judy show, well-rehearsed.

The Little Prince is not simply the child Saint-Ex would like to have fathered; he's Saint-Ex as a child. The "petit bonhomme" had been appearing for years in countless drawings. Intrigued by Saint-Ex's doodling on the white tablecloth while at lunch in a New York restaurant, the publisher, whose guest he was, asked him what he was drawing.

"Just a little fellow I carry around in my heart," Saint-Ex replied.

The publisher looked closely at the little fellow and got an idea: "What would you think of making up a story about your imaginary Antoine, for a children's book?"

The Little Prince echoes, among other "matters of importance" dear to Saint-Ex's heart, the importance of love, without which one is blind, as expressed in the desert fox's secret: "One sees only with the heart. The essential is invisible to the eye."

In dedication, Saint-Ex wrote "I ask the indulgence of the children who may read this book for dedicating to a grown-up. . . this grown-up understands everything, even books about children. . . I will dedicate the book to the child from whom this grown-up grew. . ."

Of the grown-up to whom the book was dedicated, Saint-Ex wrote "The presence of a friend, who in appearance is far removed, can prove denser that a real presence. As dense as a prayer." That's why the Little Prince can promise that when he's back home on his planet "You--you alone [that is, the aviator he has met in the desert]--have the stars as no one else has them. . ."

"In one of the stars I shall be living. In one of them I shall be laughing. And so it will be as if all the stars were laughing, when you look at the sky at night. . . You--only you--will have stars that can laugh."

The Little Prince comes close to being E.T., the Extra-Terrestrial. Like E.T., he goes home to one of the trillion stars out in space. The way back to the lost childhood has always been through a child's garden of verses--as Robert Louis Stevenson, or E.T. or the Little Prince can show you, NOW THAT YOU'RE AN ADULT, for whom the stories of God have meaning.

A trip to the far side of the garden and back could clear your head of the looney-tunes that you've been clinging to as a religion, like the preachers whose guardian angels have lost sight of God's face.

Happy summer! Darby O'Gill and I never said we didn't love you!

10th-inning home run by Gaetti lifts Twins to victory

DETROIT (AP) — Gary Gaetti's two-run homer in the 10th inning Thursday gave the Minnesota Twins a 3-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers and a sweep of their three-game series.

Kirby Puckett started the inning with a walk. Gaetti, who had a pair of three-run homers year after 23 games, when they finished with a major-league high 103 losses.

Terry Leach (2-0) pitched a scoreless ninth inning for the win. Rick Aguilar pitched the 10th for his fifth save.

"It was a breaking pitch, a slider right down the middle," pitcher Mike Henneman said.

made two errors in the seventh, one in the eighth and one in the ninth to tie the league mark for third basemen shared by 20 players. The last AL third baseman to commit four errors in a game was Baltimore's Floyd Rayford in 1986.

The modern major-league record for errors by a third baseman is five, by Boston's David Brain in 1906.

As a result of Blowers' errors, the Indians scored four unearned runs in the seventh, one in the eighth and two in the ninth to hand the Yankees their fifth straight loss.

Blowers, acquired last August from Montreal in the John Candelaria trade, had only two errors this season.

Braves 4, Expos 1

MONTREAL — Tom Glavine allowed one hit in seven innings and the Atlanta Braves scored three times in the ninth to win their fifth straight game, defeating the slumping Montreal Expos 4-1 Thursday.

With the score tied 1-1, Andres Thomas greeted reliever Drew Hall (2-3) with a single to start the Atlanta ninth. After moving to second on Mark Lemke's sacrifice, Thomas scored on Greg Olson's double to right-center.

Jeff Treadway followed with a single against Steve Frey, who relieved Hall, to score Olson. Before pinch-hitter Lonnie Smith's RBI single against Tim Burke scored Oddibe McDowell.

The only hit Glavine allowed was a bunt single by Otis Nixon in the third. Glavine then loaded the bases by walking Junior Noboa and Tim Raines, before striking out Tim Wallach to end the threat.

Reds 5, Mets 0

NEW YORK — Jack Armstrong allowed four hits in 7 2-3 innings to win his fifth game and Joe Oliver hit two home runs, leading the Cincinnati Reds over the error-prone New York Mets 5-0 Thursday night.

Armstrong (5-0) joined Frank Viola and Dave Stewart as the only five-game winners in the major leagues. Viola shut out the Reds for New York on Wednesday.

Howard Johnson made three errors and the Reds stole five bases, including four in the eighth inning.

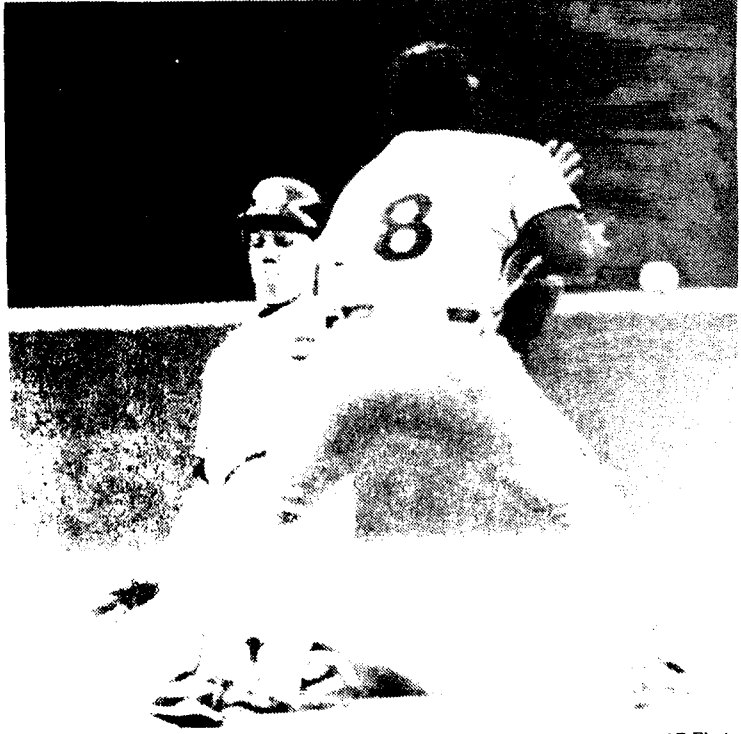

Sid Fernandez (1-3) and Armstrong breezed through the first four innings until the Mets' defense got them in trouble again.

Johnson, playing out of position at shortstop, bobbled Rolando Roomes' one-out grounder for an error in the fifth and Oliver followed with his first home run. Oliver entered the game with 11 singles and three doubles in 57 at-bats.

Oliver led off the ninth with his second homer of the game and season.

In the eighth, Chris Sabo led off with a walk against Alejandro Pena, stole second and third, and scored when Johnson made a two-base error on Barry Larkin's grounder with the infield in. Larkin stole third and Billy Hatcher followed with an infield single.

The Reds are 46-for-53 in steals for the season. The Mets have allowed 46 stolen bases in 53 attempts.

Gary Gaetti waited sunk the Detroit Tigers with a two-run homer in the 10th inning as the Twins prevailed 3-1.

Wednesday night, hit an 0-1 pitch over the left-field wall for his fourth homer of the season.

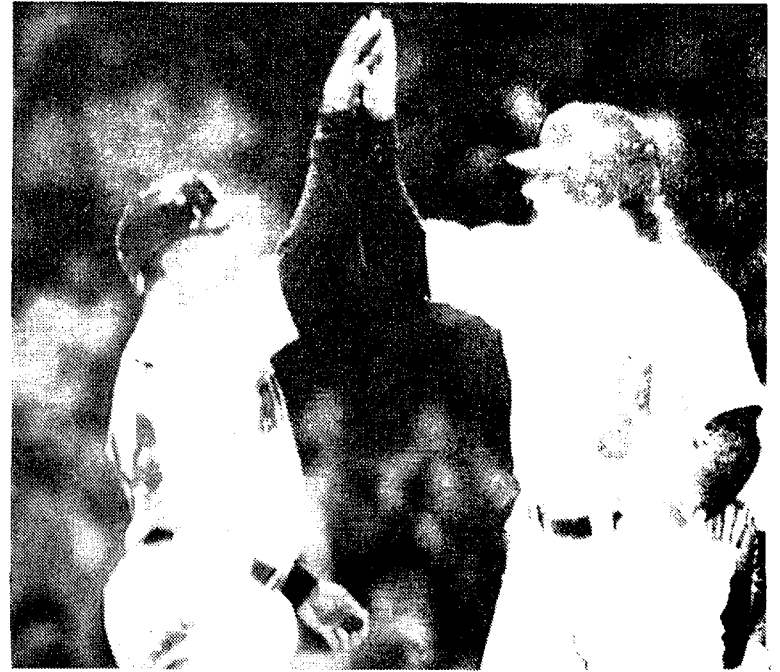

"I didn't hit the ball all that well," Gaetti said. "I'm not even sure that's a home run. Maybe in Boston, but not here."

The Tigers have lost five straight games and are last in the American League East with an 8-15 record — same as last

"It just hung right there. It was an easy pitch to hit. It was right there and he's a mistake hitter."

New York has made 27 errors in 22 games, allowing 14 unearned runs. The three errors by Johnson tied his club record for shortstops set on July 18, 1985.

Armstrong, the Reds' No. 1 draft pick in June 1987, struck out three and walked one. Former Met Randy Myers relieved with two out and two on in the seventh and fanned Johnson. Myers finished for his fifth save in his first appearance against New York.

After Dave Magadan singled with one out in the first, Armstrong retired 13 straight before walking Daryl Boston in the fifth.

In his five starts, Armstrong has allowed six runs in 33 1-3 innings.

Astros 10, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA — Bill Gullickson, back after two seasons in Japan, pitched a strong game and Ken Caminiti drove in three runs as Houston cooled off Philadelphia.

The Phillies, who got 20 hits in winning 14-4 Wednesday night, were limited to six by Gullickson (2-1) in 7 1-3 innings. He struck out four, walked three and never trailed after Caminiti hit a two-run single off Terry Mulholland (1-1) in the first inning.

Philadelphia scored in the first on an RBI double by Von Hayes and in the eighth when Carmelo Martinez hit his third home run. Dave Smith, the third Houston pitcher, worked the final 1 2-3 innings for his eighth save.

The Astros put the game out of reach with a six-run ninth against Jeff Parrett and Chuck McElroy. Glenn Wilson had two hits in the inning, including a two-run single. Biggio, Davis and Caminiti had RBI singles and Ramirez a run-scoring grounder. Len Dykstra went 4-for-4 for the Phillies and scored two runs.

Bulls' defense stymies Bucks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 25 points and the Chicago Bulls used an aggressive body-checking defense and a decisive second-quarter run Thursday night to rout the Milwaukee Bucks 110-86 and clinch their opening-round playoff series.

Chicago, which won the best-of-5 series in four games, will face the winner of Saturday's Cleveland-Philadelphia game in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

The Bulls, promising to be more physical to reciprocate for what they felt was rough play and hard fouls from the Bucks in the first three games, got tough on defense in the final seven minutes of the second quarter.

Chicago, led by 11 points from Jordan, outscored the Bucks 22-5 in those seven minutes, taking a 56-39 halftime lead.

Milwaukee managed only one field goal in the final 7:37 of the first half, that a 3-pointer by Brad Lohaus with 56 seconds to go. Chicago then held the Bucks to only two third-quarter field goals, pulling ahead 84-60 going into the fourth quarter.

Scottie Pippen added 20 points for Chicago, which has beaten the Bucks 20 times in 23 games.

Alvin Robertson led Milwaukee with 20 points and Ricky Pierce had 19.

Milwaukee's Greg Anderson and Chicago's Ed Nealy got into a fight with 7:06 remaining after Nealy fouled Anderson hard under the basket and Anderson elbowed him. Anderson was ejected, Nealy was ejected with a foul and Jordan drew a technical foul during the brief scuffle.

The second quarter was the Bucks' undoing. Milwaukee shot 24 percent for the period, making only 6 of 25 field goal attempts. Chicago also had a 31-19 first-half rebounding edge in building its big lead.

Chicago led 27-20 after one quarter behind 10 points from Will Perdue, who was brought in to give the Bulls more bulk and a physical presence inside. On entering the game, Perdue immediately delivered a hard foul on Robertson and the minutes later got into a shoving match with Anderson.

Cavaliers 108, 76ers 96

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Brad Daugherty hit 10 of his first 11 shots from the field and scored a team playoff record 34 points Thursday night as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Philadelphia 76ers 108-96 to even their Eastern Conference quarterfinal series 2-2.

The two teams split their four regular-season games, with each winning once at home and once on the road. Each has won its two home games in the playoffs.

The fifth and deciding game will be Saturday in Philadelphia.

Mark Price set a Cleveland playoff record with 18 assists, and Daugherty, who also grabbed nine rebounds, had his best offensive game of the season. His regular-season best was 30 points.

Cleveland's previous playoff scoring record was 32 points, set by Campy Russell against New York in 1978 and tied by World B. Free against Boston in 1985.

The Cavaliers virtually shut down the 76ers in the fourth quarter, outscoring them 22-14. The Sixers went scoreless from the field for seven minutes as Cleveland widened an 89-84 lead to 97-85 with five minutes left.

Daugherty finished off the 8-1 flurry with a short hook shot and two free throws.

As has been the case in all four games in the series, the Cavaliers got off to a quick start, leading 34-23 after one quarter and 60-50 at halftime.

Cleveland let its halftime leads slip away in Philadelphia, but made them stand up at home.

Philadelphia got within two points late in the third quarter on Hersey Hawkins' 3-pointer, but Craig Ehlo closed the quarter with a layup and John Williams began the fourth with a three-point play. Philadelphia got no closer than five after that.

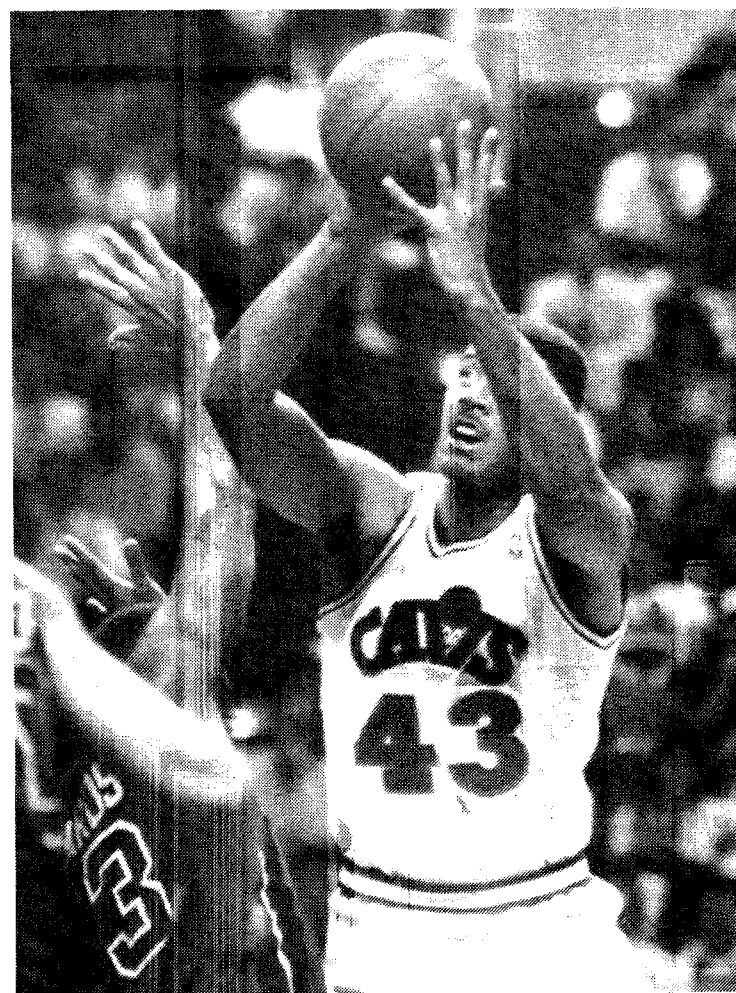

Charles Barkley scored 23 points and had 11 rebounds for Philadelphia. Hawkins scored 22, but only two in the fourth quarter.

Williams had 21 for Cleveland.

Lakers 109, Rockets 88

HOUSTON (AP) — James Worthy scored 10 of his 20 points in the final 7:37 on Thursday night to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 109-88 victory that eliminated the Houston Rockets from the NBA playoffs.

The Lakers, who snapped a four-game losing streak in The Summit, won the best-of-5 series 3-1 and will play the winner of the Utah-Phoenix first-round series in the Western Conference semifinals. Phoenix leads the series 2-1 with Game 4 in Phoenix on Friday night.

Worthy scored his first basket of the fourth quarter with 7:37 left in the game during a 12-2 run when the Lakers took charge of the game with a 93-83 lead with 6:35 to play.

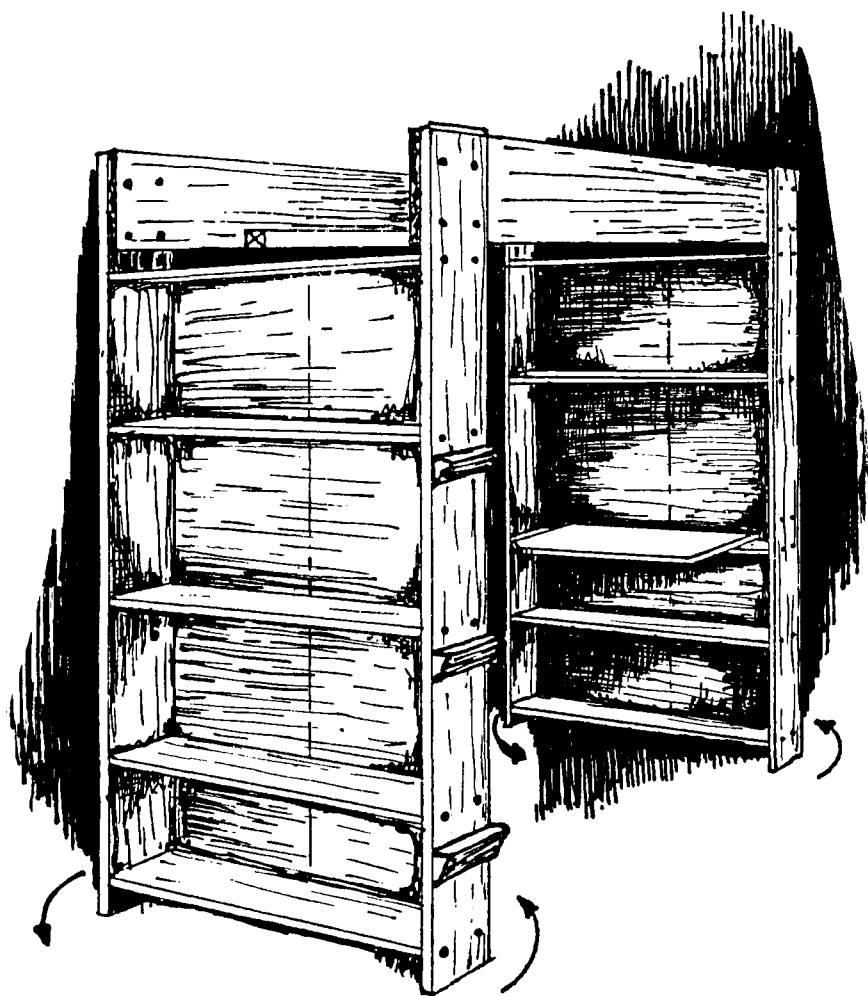

Magic Johnson scored 19 points for the Lakers, who outscored the Rockets 12-2 over the final 4:17.

Akeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 28 points and 14 rebounds and Otis Thorpe scored 18 points.

The Lakers, who never trailed, hit six of their first nine shots while the Rockets made just two of their first 18.

The Lakers led 56-52 at halftime as they shot 63 percent from the field in the first half compared to Houston's 43 percent.

Pleasant Tap could reach winner's circle

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Chris Speckert was drawn to the history of Churchill Downs when he brought his first horse to the Kentucky Derby, so he paid a visit to the track museum.

There, he found evidence that his horse, Pleasant Tap, could win the race.

A native of Ascot, England who came to the United States 10 years ago, Speckert brings Pleasant Tap into the Derby as a 30-1 outsider. He's a come-from-behind horse, and that's part of the reason.

Thirty two of the last 39 Derbies have been won on or near the lead. It's thought that the traditionally big fields in the Derby make it tough to handle the traffic.

"My horse doesn't have a late run, he has a long run," Speckert said. "But I looked at 15 to 20 Derbies in the museum, and I didn't see too many horses get in trouble. It's a big track, and there's a lot of room."

The last two Derbies have been won by Sunday Silence and Winning Colors, both of whom were never far off the lead. However, in 1987, Alysheba won from back in the pack, as did Ferdinand in 1986.

It's best to be in good shape by the six-furlong pole, Speckert said, or with about three-quarters of a mile left in the 1 1/4-mile race.

"Ferdinand had great position out of the gate, got shuffled back and then came on to win," Speckert said.

The 36-year-old Speckert began his training career in England, Ireland and France, then did his American apprenticeship under Charlie Whittingham, who trained Ferdinand. Speckert now trains Buckland Farm's West Coast division.

"I've been here on Derby day before," Speckert said, "with Charlie and for the Kentucky Oaks, but I've never had a horse in the Derby."

four well played games on April 28-29.

"We did not play exceptionally well against Xavier earlier this season," said Murphy. "Xavier has the type of pitchers that can give you problems with all their knuckleballs, especially since we're a young team. But we did what we had to do to win."

The Detroit matchups will be a tough challenge for the Irish, especially since Notre Dame swept the Titans last time. Detroit, tabbed by Murphy as "the best team talent-wise in the conference, no question" returns almost all of its players from last year, a team that beat the Irish seven out of 11 times last season.

"We have to keep focused because Xavier and Detroit are sitting back after we've beaten them, and they're just going to come out here and play baseball. That's the best thing you can do," said Murphy. "I think our kids will react, that they will be thinking baseball and concentrating on their performances. If they do that, the wins will take care of themselves."

Since these are all MCC contests, Notre Dame could do nothing better for itself than to dominate the conference in the hopes of receiving an at-large bid to the NCAAAs.

"I think we should go (to the NCAAAs), no question," said Murphy. "Our freshmen are getting better and better. If anyone saw the adversity we've been through this season, we have not missed a beat. We've had 28 one- or two-run ball-games, and we're 20-8 in those games."

Perhaps the biggest disappointment of the season came when the game with Illinois was rained out on March 31 in front of a national audience. ESPN televised the game, in which the Irish jumped to a quick 2-0 lead before rain came pouring down to dash any hopes of the Irish defeating a top-20 team this season.

Besides the goal of reaching the NCAAAs, the baseball team would do well just to finish the season on a positive note. Murphy's slogan for this year, "One More Step," was coined in the hopes of building on the program's credibility, which just three years ago was a team that lost to teams like DePauw and Bethel. Since Murphy has been coach, the DePauws and the Bethels of the schedule have been replaced by nationally contending teams like Miami and Texas.

"We're looking to make that one more step," said Murphy, "to make the commitment and have the players mature and grow up as baseball players. The will is the key, to prepare and to get better. If we do that, that's one more step."

Propp lifts Bruins over Caps

Boston comes from behind to defeat Washington 5-3

BOSTON (AP) — Brian Propp broke a tie with 5:22 left as the Boston Bruins scored three straight goals in the final period for a 5-3 victory over the Washington Capitals in the opener of their Stanley Cup semifinal series Thursday night.

Propp, 30 feet in front of the goal on the left side, passed the puck across ice to Cam Neely. Neely immediately sent it back to Propp, who fired the puck from 15 feet over goalie Mike Liut's stick to break a 3-3 tie.

It was the fourth goal of the playoffs for Propp and second assist of the game for Neely, who also had a goal. Dave Poulin added an empty-net goal with 15 seconds left, his second of the game, as the Bruins rallied from a 3-2 deficit.

The second game of the best-of-7 Wales Conference final is scheduled for Boston Saturday night.

Boston, which had the NHL's best regular-season record, won its seventh straight home game. Washington, whose 36-38-6 record was 13th best, had its four-game winning streak snapped.

Poulin had tied the score at 1:05 of the third period. Randy Burridge passed the puck from the left corner back to Dave Christian along the left boards. Christian fired it across to the right corner of the crease, where Poulin tipped it in.

Washington's Kelly Miller, who failed on a first-period penalty shot, had broken a 2-2 tie with a shorthanded goal with 2:21 left in the second.

The unassisted goal after a bad pass from Boston's Ray Bourque came 1:21 after Washington's John Tucker tied the score on an unassisted goal set up by goalie Andy Moog's bad clearing attempt.

The Bruins led 2-1 after one period on goals by Garry Galley and Neely. Washington's John Druce got his 13th goal of the playoffs and seventh on a power play.

A seemingly harmless shot by Michal Pivonka from just in front of the red line led to Tucker's goal. Moog saved the shot, then tried clearing it by lifting it with his stick.

Tucker caught the puck in the right circle, dropped it to the ice and fired a five-footer from the right for his first playoff goal.

Miller got his third 34 seconds after Washington's Rob Murray was penalized for high-sticking.

Cam Neely scored one goal and added two assists for the Boston Bruins in their 5-3 win over the Washington Capitals. Notre Dame graduate Dave Poulin added two third-period goals for Boston.

3. After a scoreless first half, Notre Dame dominated the second stanza in the Orange Bowl against Colorado. This was a win over the top-ranked team in the country and ended Notre Dame's season at 12-1. This would have been the top story, had the Irish defeated Miami in November.

4. The decision of the athletic department not to renew the contract of soccer coach Dennis Grace was big in that Grace led the Irish to a 76-38-14 record during his six years at the helm and their first-ever NCAA Tournament berth. His replacement will be hard-pressed to equal or better those marks.

5. The women's basketball team did everything it could, but that was not enough. A 23-6 mark and 18-0 in the weak Midwestern Collegiate Conference did not secure a berth for the Irish in the NCAA Tournament. The fact that a team can have such a successful season and then be denied a tournament berth makes this a top five story.

6. The men's tennis team has come a long way under Bob Bayliss in the past few years. The Irish are on the verge of their first-ever NCAA berth and have one of the top ranked players in the country in David DiLucia. Had Notre Dame received the bid before this issue came out, this story would have been in the top five.

7. Malicious Prostitution did what few thought it could in repeating as Bookstore Basketball XIX champs. Just repeating in Bookstore deserves recognition, but Malicious did it in an incredible manner. Joe Scott scored 13 points and dominated Adworks down the stretch. It's too bad this team won't be back to go for a third.

8. Notre Dame got its first-ever NCAA Tournament bid in lacrosse Wednesday afternoon with a victory over Michigan State. This story jumped in at eighth and could go higher depending on what the Irish do in the tourney. Coach Kevin Corrigan has done a terrific job this spring.

9. The USC game was big because the Irish trailed 17-7 at halftime and then rallied to win. It was bigger because of the pre-game incident in the tunnel between the two teams. That incident drew more coverage than the actual game and prompted Lou Holtz to say that he would resign if it happened again.

10. The men's basketball team had a rollercoaster season that ended with a loss to Virginia in the NCAA Tournament. But on the first Saturday in March, third-ranked Missouri caught the Irish at full strength. Notre Dame crushed the Tigers and probably assured themselves of an NCAA bid with the win.

There were other big stories during the past year--the wrestling team at the NAAs, the softball team winning the MCC, the rollercoaster season of LaPhonso Ellis, Lou Holtz allegedly linked with the Minnesota football scandals, Jubba Beshin winning an NCAA title in fencing, Karen Robinson winning the MCC Player of the Year, Digger Phelps capturing his 400th career victory.

But those Top 10 stood above the rest. In many cases, they had impacts beyond the original game or season.

Those are the images that will linger in 1989-90.

Last season Piotrowicz was the top pitcher on a squad that went to the NCAA Tournament. His 11 wins set a single season record and his 2.24 ERA was remarkable considering the quality of today's collegiate hitter. His masterful control was once again displayed with only 37 walks in 112.1 innings.

Still, Petro isn't the most talented pitcher. His fastball is in the low eighties and his curve is considered average. However, he more than makes up with a great change-up, the ability to put the ball where he wants an incredibly focused mentality and a work ethic that is second to none.

"Brian is the perfect example of a true pitcher," says Murphy. "He totally understands what it means to be a pitcher. He doesn't have a lot of talent, but he proves that you don't have to have the best stuff to be the best."

"I have to be mentally and physically prepared before each game," comments Piotrowicz. "If I'm not, I'm beat. I'm not a Sinnes or Leahy, but once I get going and pitch my game the way coach wants, I'm all right."

Petro continues to be Notre Dame's 'Mr. Consistency.' He's 5-3 this year with a 2.17 ERA, 40 strikeouts and only 17 walks. Perhaps the biggest thing he's done this year besides almost always giving a steady performance is make an impact on the the five talented freshmen that are the future core of the Irish pitching staff.

"They look at him and say, 'Look how he handled that-he didn't get upset,'" explains Murphy. "He leads by good example, he's a winner. The young guys see that and they want to have that aura."

"I hope that whatever I do, I do in a positive way," says Piotrowicz. "We've had rainouts and I haven't always pitched as well as I want, the key is to do the little things, right. I just try to do the things coach tells us."

Leahy learns ropes as rookie

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

Notre Dame pitcher Pat Leahy has a rich and storied athletic tradition in his family. His grandfather, Frank Leahy coached the Irish football team to four national championships between 1941-1953 and his dad played football for Notre Dame.

Pat himself was a three-sport star in high school with scholarship offers for his services as a pitcher, tight-end and forward in basketball. Leahy was also drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays. As an 18-year old, Leahy faced a lot of tough decisions.

"It (the deciding process) was tough, but I made it harder than it really was," said Leahy. "I was trying to weigh everything, asking what-ifs."

The 6-7, 245 pounder chose college baseball and it's a good thing for the Irish that he did. His 91 mile-per-hour fastball and excellent breaking ball make him a great addition to the Irish pitching staff.

"He was very heavily recruited, but we had the inside track because his dad knew Notre Dame inside and out," says Pat Murphy. "But Pat himself knew what Notre Dame was all about as far as the education and the program."

"It was the tradition that helped me make the decision," says Leahy. "Baseball was definitely something I wanted to do and the last couple of years under coach Murphy the baseball has improved."

Like any highly recruited athlete, there are a lot of expectations of Leahy.

He's had a lot of pressure on him," explains Murphy. "Everyone always asks, 'how's the Leahy kid?'"

Leahy was expected to step in and start as the Irish were only returning two starters from last year's 48-19 squad. Besides that pressure, Leahy was tabbed as the preseason MCC Freshman of the Year by Baseball America. Leahy hasn't been fazed by all the attention that has been heaped on him, though.

"I really didn't pay attention to it," said Leahy. "The best thing to do was to start over. I felt it was most sensible to start at the basics. In a way it has been a little difficult at times," Leahy continued. "I've had the typical freshman adjustment period where the entire world is in a spin."

Unlike many superstars out of high school whose egos are higher than Mt. Everest, Pat Leahy is a down-to-earth, modest guy.

"He's a warm hearted person who expects to be successful," says Murphy. "He has to learn to be more patient, though. When you're extremely bright, competitive and young like he is, patience isn't always in the vocabulary. His biggest critic is himself. He needs to relax a little more and realize you're not always going to have a good outing."

Although Leahy is 6-0 with a dazzling 2.15 ERA in 67 innings along with 61 strikeouts, there have been times where he has struggled a bit. Against Detroit last Saturday, he walked six in a five-inning winning performance. Wednesday he struggled through three innings against Valparaiso.

"When I don't pitch well, I can't even look myself in the mirror," said Leahy. "That I'm hard on myself is good because I'm never satisfied, but it's bad because I tend to dwell on things too long. I don't always just think about it, learn from it and forget it."

One of the things that has made Leahy so successful this season is his desire to learn Murphy's pitching plan.

"It's been a pretty smooth adjustment in that respect," Leahy said.

"He's learning but he has a long, long way to go," adds Murphy.

Leahy realizes where he need to improve himself to become a dominant pitcher.

"By far it's the mental aspect," he said. "I need to have better focus. I have to be able to turn on the focus button when I need it and turn it off when I don't."

No one can argue the fact that Leahy has been a big reason for the success of the Irish this year. With more experience, his two-hit shutout earlier this year against Saint Louis will become routine. In addition, Murphy plans to take advantage of Leahy's tremendous potential as a hitter next year once he is comfortable in his role as a pitcher.

Former walk-on Lund now a leader behind the plate

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Assistant Sports Editor

How many people know that the captain of the Notre Dame baseball team was a walk-on?

The Irish team, filled with freshmen and sophomore recruits who ooze with talent and anticipate potential pro careers, is captained by a player who was not asked in any way to play baseball for the Fighting Irish.

That former freshman hopeful is senior catcher Ed Lund, the cornerstone of this year's team.

"People forget that Ed Lund was a walk-on player at Notre Dame and that he just fell in love with the game," says third-year coach Pat Murphy. "He was put into catcher, a position he wasn't used to, and has done an outstanding job."

This versatile athlete played outfield at St. Francis High School in Pasadena, Calif., although catcher has always been his first love. When he came to Notre Dame hoping to make the baseball team, he tried out at every position.

"I came in here just hoping to make the team, so I tried out everywhere," says Lund. "I always loved catcher, a position I've always wanted to play. You're in on every pitch, blocking balls at the plate. I like everything about catching, and I think that's what I do best."

The pitching squad's statistics can attest to that. The team earned run average stands at 2.86, the fourth-lowest in the country. Three of the five main starters on the team are freshmen, and Lund's experience has helped them in their process of maturation.

"It has been extremely important to have a catcher behind the plate to have so much experience," says Murphy. "The pitchers feel so confident with Ed Lund back there. That really helped the team, especially in the beginning of the season. He's like the Rock of Gibraltar back there."

The Irish pitchers echo Murphy's sentiments. Freshman Dave Sinnes, who is leading the nation in ERA at 0.73, has nothing but compliments for the senior leader.

"His presence behind the plate helps me concentrate and focus a little better," says Sinnes. "If I make a bad pitch he'll let me know about it, and he gives that extra help that comes from being a senior and a great leader."

Lund's experience reaches further back than the Murphy's winning tradition. Lund played his freshman year under former coach Larry Gallo, when the Irish went 15-29 for a .341 winning percentage. Since then, under Murphy Notre Dame has compiled a 123-51 record, or a .707 mark.

In other words, Lund has seen it all.

"It has been advantageous for us (the seniors) to see how far we've come," says Lund. "We know how it is to lose and not to get the best out of our ability, and maybe that's our jobs as seniors to say this is the way it's got to be or it will be like it was."

"The better way is to put in everything you can and get the most out of it. If you're going to put this much time in, you might as well go all-out to make it worth it."

"My expectations have definitely changed since my junior year," says Lund. "I'm hoping to get drafted and play in professional ball. That's what I've wanted since my junior year, but right now, I can't worry about that. That is out of my hands. Right now I'm worried about this team. I want Notre Dame baseball to do as well as it can."

The team is on track to do just that, which at 36-10 has a shot at the NCAA tournament. Lund himself is batting .294 with four home runs, 24 RBIs and a team-leading 12 doubles. His on-base percentage is .441 and he has swiped 11 bases this season.

One more aspect of Lund's game deserves mention, and that's his cannon on his right shoulder. The Irish have stolen 111 bases this season versus their opponent's 49, a testimony to other teams' respect for Lund's lightning-bolt arm.

"It's quite incredible that other teams have run so little against us," says Murphy. "It's because of his outstanding reputation. I feel that he's going to be a solid pro player in the future. There's no question he'll be drafted."

Having made great strides in baseball at Notre Dame, Lund hopes to keep the momentum rolling with a shot at the big leagues.

The Observer / John Studebaker

Catcher Ed Lund, who began his Notre Dame baseball career as a walk-on, now captains the Irish from behind the plate.

Xavier visits for doubleheaders

By SCOTT BRUTOCAL
Assistant Sports Editor

"We've just begun. Now it's put-up time, and we're in the position we want to be in."

These are the words of Pat Murphy, the head coach of the Notre Dame baseball team. Although the pessimists have all but dismissed the Irish this year, it is an indisputable fact that this group of overachievers is 36-10, on pace to finish with the best winning percentage for a Notre Dame baseball team since 1936. This is for a team that is not fully endowed and usually has less players on scholarship than its opponent.

The NCAA tournament selection committee has decided this season that the MCC tournament winner will not receive an automatic bid to the tournament. This stands in contrast to previous years, when the MCC could claim to have at least one team in the nationals every year.

"I hope that people definitely understand what a blow it (the NCAA decision) is for us," said Murphy. "I hope we get the support from them, and I think we'll get it (the automatic bid) back. I think we can put enough pressure on them to get it back."

This weekend MCC foe Xavier comes to town for a pair of doubleheaders at Jake Kline Field. The twin bills will be played on noon on Saturday and Sunday. Next weekend, May 12-13, Detroit pays a visit to Jake Kline Field to wrap up Notre Dame's regular season with four more games.

Notre Dame took three of four from Xavier in its previous encounter in Cincinnati, Ohio on April 14-15. Against Detroit, the Irish blanked the Titans in

The Observer / John Studebaker

Frank Jacobs will take his cuts for the Notre Dame baseball team this weekend in two doubleheaders against Xavier at Jake Kline Field. The Irish are currently 36-10.

Intensity of 'Petro' vital to Irish

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

The eyes of Brian Piotrowicz tell the whole story. Those eyes are intense; they have the look of a real competitor.

"His temperament is unbelievable," says coach Pat Murphy. "He's the greatest pitcher in Notre Dame history as far as what I've heard about. He's part of every almost every career record. He's a mainstay."

One look through the record book affirms Murphy's assertion as 'Petro's' name turns up in almost every category. He's the career leader in wins (25), games started (50) and innings pitched (319.3). He's also among the leaders in appearances, complete games, strikeouts and ERA.

A native of nearby North Liberty, Ind., Piotrowicz couldn't help think about a career at Notre Dame while he was starring at South Bend's Washington High School.

"I definitely had the dream of playing here when I was growing up," said Piotrowicz. "I always loved the university and followed the football team. It was like a dream come true to get a scholarship here."

When he came during the fall of 1986, the Irish baseball program wasn't in the best of straits.

"With Coach Gallo here the program wasn't on the rise," recalled Piotrowicz. "Still, I was able to participate right away and contribute. It was a good opportunity as far as school and baseball."

The fortunes of the Irish and Piotrowicz started to turn around with the arrival of Murphy.

"The bottom line (with Murphy's arrival) was attiude," explained Piotrowicz. "The mental aspect that he gets across is outstanding. The preparation and mental toughness he instills in his players really comes into play when the game is on the line. I'm able to adapt to tough situations. Now I feel I can win against anybody."

Things didn't begin well for Piotrowicz during his sophomore year as he began the season 0-3, but his belief in himself and Murphy's confidence saw him through a tough time.

"It was a frustrating time and I was having some mental problems," said Piotrowicz, "but the biggest thing coach was trying to get across to us was to believe in ourselves. After that third loss I was conditioning in the outfield and Murph came out and said 'Stick with it, hang in there. We're going to have a great year and you'll be a big part of it all.' That really stuck with me."

Piotrowicz finished the year in a big way by winning his last seven decisions, including a no-hitter against Ball St., to go 7-3.

Irish track plays host to Central Collegiates

By KEN TYSIAC
Associate Sports Editor

Moose Krause Stadium will be abuzz with excitement as Notre Dame hosts the Central Collegiate Outdoor Track and Field Championships Saturday beginning at 2 p.m.

Schools from the Big 10, Mid-Atlantic, Midwestern Collegiate and Missouri Valley conferences will be represented in the meet. Notre Dame Head Coach Joe Piane says that one of his team's goals will be to qualify more athletes for the IC4A and NCAA championships in what should be a competitive meet.

Piane claims that the team to watch in the Central Collegiates is Eastern Michigan. Purdue, Michigan State and Wisconsin are also expected to run well.

"It should be a great overall track meet," says Piane. "there will be in the neighborhood of 20 teams competing, so we should have strong competition in every event. In the field events, I know there are pole vaulters from Purdue and a high jumper from Illinois State who have already qualified for NCAAAs, so there will be strong competition in those events."

Notre Dame finished fifth in the Central Collegiate Indoor Championships February 9-10 at Milwaukee, but Piane hopes his team can do even better tomorrow.

"Our goals as a team are to score as many points as we possibly can and improve on our fifth-place indoor finish," says Piane.

The strongest Irish performances should come from senior co-captain Mike O'Connor in the 1500 meters and junior John Cole in the high jump. Javelin throwers Matt DeAngelis and Jon Stewart are also expected to gain points for Notre Dame.

Piane says there are several Irish athletes who could qualify

Loss to Miami heads list of year's important stories

Today's center spread highlights the Top 10 sports stories of 1989-90.

From top to bottom, there were no clear-cut choices. The top story last year was easy after Notre Dame won its eighth national championship. This year was tougher.

This is by no means a complete list. There were many other big sports stories during the past year. This is simply a composite of the top stories chosen by the executive sports staff at The Observer.

Here are some of the reasons why the 10 stories in the center spread merit special attention.

1. When Notre Dame lost 27-10 at Miami, it not only ended the 23-game win streak for the Irish, but it also cost them the national title. This was the most-hyped game of the year. While the game itself may not have lived up to those standards, the end result regarding the national title makes this the biggest story of the year.

2. Notre Dame made history with its five-year television pact with NBC. The network will broadcast five years of Notre Dame football beginning in 1991. This turned into one of the biggest national sports stories off the field, with several members of the CFA publicly voicing their displeasure when the Irish strayed from the organization and its new contract with ABC. This may have longer lasting effects than the Miami game, but within the context of one year, the Miami story was bigger.
