'Teach-in' announced by peace coalition

By CORINNE PAVLIS SMC Editor

The coalition for Peace and Justice, a conglomeration of six local peace groups, has announced that a "Teach-In" will be held on Sunday, September 23 to discuss the crisis in the Middle East.

The Coalition was created when Pledge of Resistance, NOW, Sane-Freeze, WILPF, Citizens of Hope, and the UN Association merged to address the crisis.

The Teach-In will include leaders from the six groups and the former national head of Sane Freeze who now works at the Notre Dame Peace Institute.

The goal of the panel discussion is to invite experts on the subject, such as historical expert Patrick Gaffney, to come in and share their knowledge. The Teach-In will run from 1:30-6:00 p.m at the First United Methodist Church on Main St. in South Bend.

Peter Smith, a Saint Mary's mathematics professor, has been actively involved in the planning and execution of the Coalition events. Smith, head of

Bush says US policy on Iraq cannot be changed

WASHINGTON -(AP) President Bush said his heart went out to the families of the hundreds of Americans held hostage by Iraq, but he de-clared, "Our policy cannot change, and it will not change. America and the world will not be blackmailed."

The address was Bush's third appearance before Congress during his 20 months in office. He was greeted by prolonged from applause those assembled in the House chamber, including the Congress and his Cabinet. Also in the audience were the ambassador from Iraq, Mohamed Sadiq Al-Mashat, and the ambassador from the conquered nation, Kuwaiti Ambassador Sheik Saud Nasir Al-Sabah.

Bush said that if the United States had not reacted swiftly to Iraq's invasion, it would have been "a signal to actual and potential despots around the world. ... America must stand up to aggression, and we will," he said.

"And one thing more — in pursuit of these goals, America will not be intimidated," Bush said. "Vital issues of principle are at stake. Saddam Hussein is literally trying to wipe a country off the face of the Earth. We do not exaggerate. Nor do we exaggerate when we say, Saddam Hussein will Bush told Congress there were high costs involved in showdown that 'conservation efforts are essential to keep our energy needs as low as possible."

He also hinted that the United States could dip into its Strategic Petroleum Reserve "if conditions warrant." The reserve is the nation's 590 million-barrel stockpile of oil.

Bush called on Congress to pass legislation this month to spur domestic energy production and foster conservation.

In particular, Bush cited tax incentives for domestic oil and gas exploration, fuelswitching and acceleration of oil drilling in Alaska "without damage to the wildlife."

Bush used the speech to explain anew the high stakes for the United States in the oilrich Middle East.

He said Iraq, by itself, controlled 10 percent of the world's petroleum reserves and doubled its holdings by invading Kuwait. If Iraq had gone unchallenged, Bush said, it would be able "to intimidate and coerce its neighbors neighbors who control the lion's share of the world's remaining oil reserves.

'We cannot permit a resource so vital to be dominated by one so ruthless. And we won't," the president

He said there was an unprecedented level of world cooperation against Iraq, with armed forces from many countries united to deter any attack on Saudi Arabia.

Russian parliament endorses sweeping economic reforms

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's parliament voted overwhelmingly Tuesday for a radical economic reform program, and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said he favored it over a moderate plan proposed by his prime minister.

Gorbachev's surprise statement undercut the authority of Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov and added momentum to calls for Ryzhkov's resignation.

It also increased the chances that the radical plan, drafted largely by economist Stanislav Shatalin, will go into effect throughout the Soviet Union.

Shatalin's plan calls for transferring most economic authority from the national government to the country's 15 constituent republics. The republics could then move rapidly to free prices, privatize government industries, legalize private ownership of land and take other steps toward a marketbased economy.

The national Supreme Soviet legislature and the parliament of Russia, the largest of the 15 republics, met separately Tuesday to consider the competing proposals.

Ryzhkov addressed the national legislature in a cavernous marble hall at the Kremlin, the centuries-old walled fortress that is the seat of communist power.

He charged that the Shatalin plan would lower living standards by 30 percent, force one out of every four collective farms into bankruptcy, and cause rapid inflation by decontrolling prices on about 75 percent of basic consumer products.

Ryzhkov called for retaining central control over the econ-

INSIDE COLUMN

Who said Notre Dame is homogenous?

Confession: I'm in way over my head. As a writer, I make a great cartoonist. In desperate need of a topic this afternoon, I went to the Huddle. My hope was that the students there would inspire me. As I sat in my booth, the ideas slowly began to precipitate.

Jay Hosler

Staff Cartoonist

The first thought I had was to write about the guy sitting directly to my right. This refined young college male sat there shoveling food into his mouth in an appalling porcine frenzy. This topic, however, seemed a little off-color so I decided it had no place in my article.

Fortunately, this culinary cacophony did make me look up from the blank sheet in front of me. Suddenly I saw the Huddle like I had never seen it before. I was surrounded by various camps of Notre Dame students.

The first that I noticed was a group I call the Eco-chic (EC). These granola chomping, nouveu-environmentalists have become Earth's mega-hip saviors. Of course, they might be sincere. Oops! Maybe not. I just saw one of them throw an aluminum can into the regular trash. (Honest)

Across the way, two tables of the J. Crew Crowd (JCC) are sitting around discussing their latest mail-order mania. Their lives are simple; look ultra-swanky and hang out with your own kind. Near them are sitting five Polo-people (PP)

These folks are a little more aloof than the JCC. That's because their clothes cost more. The JCC knows this and they spend their time kissing up to the PP (the JCC secretly hates the PP, but realizes they may have to work for them some day).

Off in the corner, I noticed a small group of the Dead/Rastafarians (DR). I can't tell how many there are beacause they're lost in a mass of off the rack tie-dyes and funny smoke. They seem to be making fun of the JCC and PP.

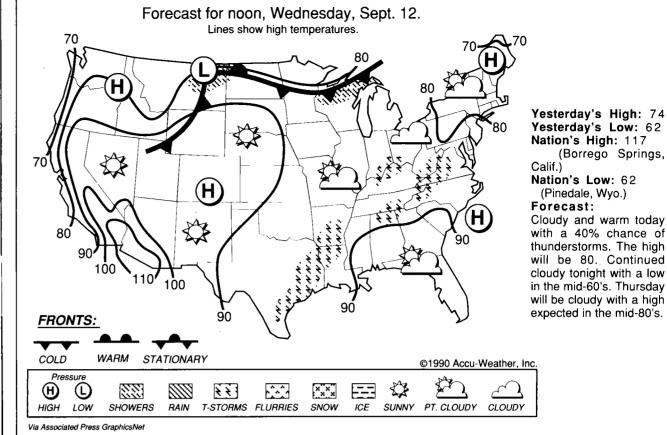

The JCC and PP, in turn, are throwing aerosol cans at the EC who are casting aspersions on the JCC, PP, EC, and the Euro-Hip (EH) and Jocks (J) that just walked in.

So what's the point of this student body taxonomy? In the final evaluation, I guess it's a weak analogy to the fragmenting American scene. Special interest groups and all that stuff. But the big point of this is a warning.

I left one group unmentioned; the Dorks. A wily and subversive lot, they are the ones that have been the charter members in groups like the JCC, PP, EC, EH, DR, and J. Why? Divide and conquer, of course While they've got everybody else worrying about what to wear and how to act, dork operatives are infiltrating the highest echelons of society. Don't believe me? Take a look at Bush, Quayle and the administrators here at Notre Dame. Or, should I say Notre Dork?

The state doesn't have to pay the cost of desegregating Indianapolis schools, a federal judge has ruled. U.S. District Judge S. "You're falling down on the job," Dillin said during a pre-trial conference, referring to disciplinary problems and low test scores in the district. "I don't know whose fault it is except IPS." Six Marion County townships that receive black students from IPS have been receiving state desegregation funds since Dillin ordered cross-district busing in 1981.

Senior Bar announces new hours

By JOE GODIN News Writer

The Alumni Senior Club and the Graduate Student Union (GSU) have designated 5 to 9 p.m. Friday nights at the Club for graduate students, faculty and staff members only.

But, on Fridays before home football games, the Club will open at 9 p.m. and undergraduates will be admitted.

Lawrence Briggs, manager of the Club, has been working for a couple of years on a way to involve graduate students with undergraduate social life. Last summer he met with representatives from the Graduate Student Union to try to get something going for graduate stu-

"We felt that the Alumni Senior Club had the right facilities to give graduates, faculty, and staff a place to go to and be social at," Briggs said.

"The GSU is concerned that not enough is going for them [graduate students]. Notre Dame wants them to get involved in student life, " he said. "Right now, the undergraduates are the school. Notre Dame wants the graduates to feel a part of the Notre Dame family. I'm here to help them achieve that goal."

The decision about designated hours was made by Briggs and the GSU. The GSU requested that the hours be 5 to 9 p.m. to give the opportunity for social and intellectual interaction for graduate students, faculty and staff.

About sixty people were present the inauguration of the hours, according to Briggs. "The graduates really enjoyed it. Hopefully it will pick up once the word gets out and people know about this," he

The president of the GSU also had an optimistic view of the first night. "From what we have heard it has been a big success and will improve second semester when there are no home football games," said Raynold Messiva, president of the GSU.

One graduate student was indifferent to the opening of the bar exclusively to graduates. "They haven't marketed it very well. It won't make much difference because the graduates can go anytime they want," said Jared des Rosiers, a second year law student.

Nonetheless, both the GSU and Briggs are optimistic about the future of the weekly activity. "We believe that the bar will become a fixture in the future of graduate student activity,' said Messiva. "The first night was fair and as time goes on it should get better," said Briggs.

Briggs has been the full-time manager of the Club for four years. Before he became manager, the bar was run by students. The bar, located beyond the football stadium, is open Wednesday through Saturday at 9 p.m. and serves lunch on Fridays.

Panel says US should withdraw its troops

By JEFF SWANSON

Robert Johansen, Senior Fellow of the Institute for International Peace Studies, called for the the gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia and the replacement of those troops with UN peace keeping forces.

"With a predominantly U.S. force there, it is too easy for some to see this as a U.S. effort against Iraq rather than as a universal norm being upheld by the world community against one deviant actor, the Iraqi government," said Johansen.

Johansen and David Cortright, a visiting faculty professor of the Peace Institute, spoke about the crisis in a panel discussion on Tuesday titled, "Assessing the Middle East Conflict: What Are the Options?"

Johansen argued that if the predominantly U.S. force was replaced with a UN peace keeping force, Hussein would be more likely to back down. "He could back down in the name of being a good international citizen," said Johansen.

Cortright also argued that the U.S. force should be replaced. He said, "I believe that it is essential that the U.S. halt its military buildup, pursue a peaceful negotiated solution to the crisis and begin to withdraw American forces in favor of an Arab or UN peace keeping presence."

Cortright said, "There is no military solution to this crisis." He said that a negotiated solution is in the best interests of the thousands of hostages in Iraq and Kuwait.

Johansen said that a war would be very costly and that it probably would not be over soon. He said that the U.S.

would probably lose international support if it launched an offensive strike and that the gains of such an attack would be unclear.

Cortright questioned the motive of the military buildup. "The President is prepared to spill American blood, and Arab blood too, to protect our grossly extravagant and wasteful consumption of oil in this country, " he said.

Cortright said, "The U.S. can do without oil from the Middle East entirely if we really get serious about energy consumption at home."

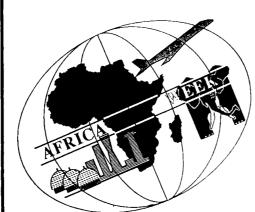

Both Johansen and Cortright agreed that an international force would be appropriate to secure the Persian Gulf region. "I would submit that the best way to support our troops is to move toward a negotiated peaceful solution and to begin to replace American soldiers with a genuine multinational peace keeping presence," said Cortright

Doe's murder makes Liberian crisis worse

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Troops loyal to slain President Samuel Doe bombarded rebels from atop the executive mansion Tuesday, and a West African leader said Doe's death would make it more difficult to end the war.

Two days after rebels led by Prince Johnson attacked Doe and his entourage at the headquarters of the West African task force, the late president's men used heavy cannons to beat back insurgents.

Throughout Monrovia, shells exploded and gunfire crackled as Prince Johnson's fighters scoured the city for Doe loyal-

Survivors from Doe's elite presidential guard turned heavy artillery, placed on the roof of the seaside executive mansion, onto the rebels and the war-ravaged city. The guns normally face out toward the Atlantic Ocean.

Gambian President Sir Dawda Jawara said Doe's men had asked the five-nation West African force to help them evacuate the capital. Jawara said aid would be offered on humanitarian grounds.

'I think it is now urgent to try and do something about protecting these 230 or so Doe supporters from factional or tribal revenge," said Jawara, chairman of the 16-member Economic Community of West African States.

The Community ordered a 3,000-member task force into Liberia last month to help quell the 8 1/2-month-old civil war, often marked by tribal fighting. The soldiers are from Nigeria, Ghana, Guinea, Sierra Leone and Gambia.

Jawara, who was visiting Zimbabwe, said that rather than speeding the war's end, Doe's death Monday likely would increase bloodshed.

Witnesses said Doe's mutilated body was on display at Johnson's headquarters outside the city. Johnson had said Doe would be courtmartialed, but within a day of his capture Sunday he was reported dead from gunshot wounds.

The West African force commander, Lt. Gen. Arnold Quainoo of Ghana, said Tuesday that 78 people were killed when Johnson's men attacked Doe's entourage on Sunday. Among the dead was Defense Minister Brig. Gen. J. Boima Barclay.

Quainoo said in a statement Doe told him he had come to express his surprise that Quainoo had not paid him a courtesy call.

The statement said: "General Doe talked at length to the effect that he was not ready to submit the sovereignty of his country to any power or indeed regional organization.

the Pledge of Resistance, is one of the organizers for next weeks Teach-In. He described the six main goals for the event:

- The historical role of the United nations.
- · American military role and options
- Possible peace keeping tac-
- The social and economic costs of U.S. involvement

"Our main goal and topic of discussion for the event is negotiation, not confrontation," stated Smith. Other events with this same goal included a press conference and march last week. The press conference, held last Tuesday, outlined the Coalition's eight main policy

- The U.S. will not make a first strike. This would include the invasion of Iran since the function of U.S. presence is to
- Organized negotiations between the U.N and Arab Countries.
- · Replacement of U.S. troops with UN forces
- Development of a national alternative energy policy to reduce American dependence of Middle Eastern oil
- · Condemnation of the implicit racism and sexism which currently exists in U.S. armed forces and the Middle East.
- Establishing self-determination for all people in the region.
- · Urging for a meeting of conflict resolution experts to work with President Bush, Congress, and the media to look for alternatives to the present military solution.
- · Outrage and sadness at the enormous cost in dollars, energy, and lives involved in our military deployment.

The coalition also organized a march last Friday. Participants met at the Viet Nam Veterans Memorial in Howard Park. The groups marched through South Bend carrying the UN flag to symbolize the "focus on the need for involvement of the UN" said Smith.

The march ended at the busy Federal Building in downtown South Bend as city employees were getting off work. The marchers received a police escort though no problems arose. The event ended as the marchers sang "We Shall Overcome" in unison.

Smith hopes that the march, as well as the press conference and scheduled Teach-In will increase awareness and involvement in the area.

"I would like to see SMC women learn as much as they can about the issue so that they can call or write the White House to urge President Bush to pull out U.S. troops in favor of UN peace keeping task force," Smith said.

Military called to help in UF murder case

GAINESVILLE, Fla.- (AP) Investigators seeking the killer of five college students called for military help Tuesday to comb 10 square miles of woodland where a suspect reportedly went on nighttime "reconnaissance missions."

Authorities would say only that they have a "good idea" of what they are looking for, and that the search could strengthen or weaken the case against 18-year-old University of Florida freshman Edward Humphrey.

"This is based upon some information that he enjoyed being in the woods, that he may have camped out, and enjoyed being solitary in wooded areas," said police spokeswoman Lt. Sadie Darnell. "We don't want any information to go unchecked."

Several hundred members of the Florida National Guard, along with reserve Army and Navy units, were being called up to assist in the search of several heavily wooded, marshy areas around Humphrey's apartment in southwest Gainesville.

Alachua County Sheriff's Lt. Spencer Mann said the search could begin as early as Thursday.

Metal detectors, dog teams and deep-woods experts also will be used.

Mann again emphasized that Humphrey is only one of eight suspects in the five gruesome slayings of the students. Four were enrolled at the University of Florida, the fifth victim was a student at Santa Fe Community College.

College.

"This search does not denote that Edward Humphrey is 'the suspect, and the only suspect," he said.
"A lot of resources have been poured into suspects just as important as him."

Humphrey became a suspect in the slayings through a canvas of the off-campus student apartment areas where the victims lived.

omy and making a much slower transition to a market-based system. He recommended keeping price controls on most food and household products while raising the cost of some major items, such as televisions, radios and refrigerators.

He also said imports of consumer goods and medicines would have to be cut by one-third because of a shortage of hard currency, and he warned that the government budget would have to be cut to prevent the $96 billion deficit from ballooning.

Ryzhkov's speech caused commotion in the hall as some delegates, led by Anatoly Sobchak, the reformist mayor of Leningrad, demanded copies of the Shatalin plan and the opportunity to adopt it

"If you ask me, I like the Shatalin plan better," Gorbachev told the delegates in an animated, 15-minute speech about the need to stabilize the Soviet economy, which is plagued by shortages of bread, meat, paper, gasoline, tobacco and other ordinary goods.

"If there is a real plan to stabilize finances, money circulation, the ruble and the market, then we should adopt the Shatalin idea," Gorbachev said.

Pounding the back of his hand on the lectern, the 59-year-old Soviet leader defended the concept of a free market, which is little understood and much feared by ordinary Soviet citizens.

When price controls are gradually lifted, he said, "we'll have real prices that will estimate who is worth what. Then powerful stimuli will be released for structural changes.

"Of course these will be painful changes. But so be it," he said.

It brings out the best in all of us.

Half of the proceeds will be donated to the Women's Care Center in South Bend. The other half will be donated to the family of Zheng-de Wang, a Notre Dame graduate student who was injured in a hit and run accident last October and remains in a coma.

The HPC also unanimously passed the Student Senate's amendement regarding replacement of the Senate President and Vice President in case of a vacancy in one or both of their offices. The amendment passed the Senate at their Monday meeting.

Paul Radich, a representative from the World Hunger Coalition, announced that sign-ups for the Wednesday lunch fasts will be held from Wednesday to Friday of this week. Those who volunteer will donate their lunches every Wednesday for the semester.

Radich said that the University Food Services donate a percentage of the cost of the meals not eaten, approximately one dollar per meal. He said to remember that this amount "is worth a lot more" in the countries targeted for donations.

Bubba Cunningham, Ticket and Merchandising Manager for the JACC, asked the Council for feedback on ideas concerning revised seating accomadations at Men's Varsity Basketball games. An idea proposed was to have seating on the floor for 600 students to promote "a Duke-like atmosphere," but nothing definite was settled.

Also announced was that the football pep rally will be this Friday at 7pm in the JACC. The four captains of the team will speak, and Coach Holtz will introduce the squad.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker gestures to his Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze before they hold talks on the 2 plus 4 framework of the Gulf situation Tuesday in Moscow.

Troop ceilings may be omitted in treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union, eager to conclude a conventional forces treaty by year's end, may drop provisions limiting troops in Europe, a senior U.S. official said Tuesday.

Such a move would leave only one stumbling block to finishing the accord — a prospective ban on nonnuclear aircraft. The official said that provision may be dropped as well.

'We have the clock ticking," he said. "We're getting to the point where we are going to have to wrap this up.

A 35-nation summit conference to sign the treaty is being planned in Paris in mid-November. The pact is being negotiated in Vienna between NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

The official spoke to reporters, here with Secretary of State James Baker, one day before the victorious World War II allies take a historic step to reunite the Germany they defeated 45 years ago.

A dispute over missile launchers in what is now East Germany — which threatened to delay eventual German sovereignty, was resolved on the eve of the ceremony, West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said without providing details.

The conventional forces treaty would set limits on tanks, artillery and other nonnuclear weapons - and on non-nuclear aircraft unless they are dropped from the treaty.

"Aircraft and manpower have been very difficult," said the official, who requested anonymity. "So we are considering removing limits on aircraft as well.'

The Soviets have argued that some of their planes the United States wants scrapped have defensive missions and should not be limited.

Panel says no to antiobscenity

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan study commission on Monday urged Congress not to impose new anti-obscenity restrictions on the National Endowment for the Arts, declaring that Americans must "put up with much we do not like" to preserve freedom of artistic expression.

The 12-member panel also urged NEA chairman John Frohnmayer to scrap a controversial requirement that grant recipients sign a pledge that they will not use federal money to produce works that might be deemed obscene.

Frohnmayer has repeatedly resisted demands that he eliminate the pledge, which has created a furor in the arts community, until federal courts rule on lawsuits challenging its stitutionality. He refused comment on the commission's report.

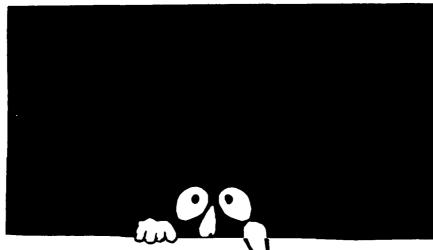

At the same time, the commission proposed a major overhaul of the endowment's grant-making procedures to ensure that the NEA serves the interests of the American public and not a narrow constituency of artists.

The panel concluded that "the endowment is not, in setting policy and making grants, adequately meeting its public responsibilities at the present time" as steward of taxpayer funds.

It proposed that the NEA chairman be given sole, explicit authority to make final grant decisions and that the growing power of "peer review panels" that select grant applications for approval be diminished to an advisory role.

The 94-page report of the commission, established by Congress last fall, drew mixed reviews from lawmakers trying to negotiate a compromise bill that would extend the endowment's life beyond Sept. 30, when its statutory authority expires.

David Prentkokowski hired as new Director of Food Services

By CARRIE DWYER News Writer

David Prentkowfski has been hired as Food Service Director of the University, replacing Bill Hickey, who passed away last Prentkowfski has been working in the food service industry for several years, and brings with him to Notre Dame extensive experience within a university setting.

In order to increase Food

Service's efficiency and production capabilities, Prentkowfski says he has a complete analysis scheduled to begin in early 1991. He said that a strategic, organized plan is needed to identify the most important issues facing Food Services. Among these issues, Prentkowfski sees the need to "balance customer satisfaction within a limited budget.'

In addition, he hopes to be able to "sustain production at its peak capacity while also improving the quality" of meals.

Born and raised in South Bend, Prentkowfski received both his bachelor's and master's degrees in food service from Purdue University. His previous work experience includes three years as Food Service Director at the University of Utah, and two years with the Stoeffer Hotel chain in St. Louis.

In addition, Prentkowfski, who was hired in July, served as a Food Service Director within a residence hall at the University of Michigan before coming to Notre Dame.

Law school entertains students

Mrs. Erma Veith was driving home one day after dropping her husband off at work. Suddenly, she saw a small, bright UFO land on the back of the car in front of her. She followed the UFO for three or four blocks. At this point she became aware that God was driving her car, so she let go of the steering wheel. Her car drifted left into the wrong lane. Mrs. Veith saw a large truck heading for her, and stomped on the accelerator. She did this in order to become airborne (she knew she could fly "because Batman does it"). Much to her surprise, Mrs. Veith did not become airborne until after hitting the truck head-on.

Where would you expect to hear a story like Mrs. Veith's? The National Enquirer? Geraldo? Monty Python? The Notre Dame Law School?

People often think of law schools as dull, dusty places. They think of ivy covered halls occupied by ivy covered professors and greedy, humorless students. Not so. The study of law acquaints students with more weirdness and comedy than any other discipline. The strange case of Erma Veith, for instance, is read by first year law students across the country every year in Torts class.

Mrs. Veith is not the only character to entertain law students. Mrs. Rush, a rather hefty lady, went out to use her landlord's outhouse one day. Unfortunately, she fell through the floor of the outhouse and, in the words of the court

Rick Acker In My Opinion

"descended about nine feet into the accumulation at the bottom, and had to be extricated by use of a ladder." The landlord argued that she shouldn't be allowed to sue because fat ladies assume the risk of falling through outhouse floors.

Another entertaining legal theory was presented by Mr. Menlove's attorney in the famous old case of Vaughan v. Menlove. Menlove had been piling dry hay on his property for several months. Vaughan, whose house was near the hay pile, repeatedly warned Menlove of the obvious fire hazard. Sure enough, the hay caught fire one day and burned down Vaughan's house. Vaughan sued Menlove for negligence. Menlove's attorney argued that Menlove couldn't have been negligent because he was too stupid to know better. No points for guessing that Menlove lost.

Several members of Monty Python's Flying Circus went to law school before going into weird humor (two fields more closely related than one might think). When one reads some of the old English cases, one can see how inspiring they could be to a slightly twisted sense of humor. One "Pythonesque" gem is Blandford v. Andrews, decided in 1599. Blandford wanted to marry a girl named Bridget Palmer, and Andrews promised to convince Bridget to wed Blandford by a certain date. Before that date, Blandford went up to Bridget and, as the court put it, "called her whore; and told her, that if he married her, he would tie her to a post; and used other opprobrious words unto her.' Not surprisingly, Andrews could not convince Bridget to marry Blandford. What is surprising is that Blandford sued Andrews for not arranging the wedding as promised. Even more surprisingly, Blandford won because the judge felt that Andrews hadn't tried hard enough.

sometimes old cases are worth reading not only for the stories they tell, but for the way they tell them. Dickes v. Fenne, decided in 1639 by England's highest court, provides a good example. Fenne stood outside Dickes' place of business and "having communication with some of the Customers of the Plaintiff, who was a Brewer, said, That he would give a peck of malt to his mare and she should pisse as good beare as Dickes doth Brew."

Law students are taught what is called the "common law," but some of it is definitely uncommon. Many of the people who show up in court are walking violations of the laws of nature, but as one judge put it, "this court does not enforce those laws"

Notre Dame community assists prevention of needless deaths

Dear Editor:

As you walk past a pond, you see a child drowning. No one else is around. If you wade in, you can save her, but if you don't, no one will know you were there. Is it your responsibility to save the child? If you feel that it isn't, you need not read any further.

You see your responsibility is to save the child, because the child's death is needless and it is within your power to prevent it. However, we have all been ignoring preventable deaths by not combatting famine.

The Notre Dame community is now, in its own small way, making an effort to help defeat hunger. If you are willing to skip your Wednesday lunch, the dining halls will donate the cost of your food to small, grassroots development projects overseas. Posters in the dorms and the dining halls display letters sent from the project sites in Bangladesh, the Philippines, Argentina, and other countries, thanking the past participants here on campus. Over the past two years, we have raised over $9,000 to send to these projects.

Friday is the final day to sign up for the Wednesday Lunch Fast. Please consider skipping a meal, so that others may eat and build for a better future.

"Open Forum" allows personal participation on gamut of issues

Dear Editor:

Beginning this Thursday, September 13, 1990, the Ideas and Issues committee of the Student Union Board (SUB) will be sponsoring an "Open Forum" to all members of the Notre Dame community.

The "Open Forum" is, more or less, an opportunity for students to voice their opinions on any issue they feel strongly about. A microphone and stand will be set up at the Fieldhouse Mall outside LaFortune between 4:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. for six consecutive Thursdays starting September 13, 1990 and running through October 18, 1990.

What is our opinion on University regulations regarding parietals? Perhaps you think Notre Dame should have co-ed housing available to students. What are your feelings about Apartheid in South Africa, the war in the Middle East, or your personal beliefs on abortion or the death penalty?

The "Open Forum" will give you the chance to express your concerns and voice your opinion. The Student Union Board invites you to be a part of this effort.

I am a freshman.

I know what you're thinking: "Nice opening. Concise. Good active voice. But wait, there's a problem here. Freshmen do not write columns in the Observer. There's a very simple reason for this: they're freshmen."

If you can't accept the fact that Notre Dame tradition has changed without a lot of evidence, read on. (If there's anyone out there who can, read on anyway.)

Chuck Young Fresh Perspective

This is my story.
Like most freshmen, I attended activities night at the JACC where over 100 campus organizations (read: resume builders and reasons not to do homework) were "hawking their wares." After wandering be the Observer's.

While waiting in line at the booth, I began to think about don't remember, most freshmen do this a lot.) Admittedly, they were typical freshman thoughts: "Why do they call us the Fighting Irish? As far as I know, Father Sorin came over from France. It must have something to do with football (everything else does). What if my roommate locks the door and goes to class while I'm in the shower? Should I take my keys with me?" I have trouble imagining a senior wondering those things, anyway.

Some things are simply unique to the freshman viewpoint: an amazement at the rigidness of the alcohol policy; an amazement at the amount of beer certain underclassmen can drink without staggering much; an amazement at the amount of beer certain upperclassmen can drink without requiring major rehabilitative therapy; the feeling that orientation weekend is just like camp. It's a kind of virgin outlook on life that even faculty and older students can find interesting, or at least amusing. But, I thought, you can't read about it in the

And think about the possibilities for new articles! For instance, freshmen are still interested in each other's S.A.T. scores. We wonder what exactly chicken-fried steak is, how it could possibly ever snow in South Bend if it's this hot in the summer, and whether we'll be hazed if we join the Glee Club. Subjects worry us that, because of experience and a hardened stomach, no longer bother most upperclassmen. Having read about the DeBartolo quad three times in one week, I knew the Observer could use some uncovered material.

I came to the conclusion that more reporting on the freshman perspective would interest students and faculty alike. So, in the end, I decided to do the noble thing and offer up my services as a columnist.

They were skeptical, but I wrote a sample column and gave it to an editor. In a visionary attack in the ongoing battle for market share with the South Bend Tribune, she agreed to publish it. She didn't even edit it much.

So never fear, class of '94, a new source of investigative reporting exists to look into your most pressing concerns.

As an exercise, I and a crack team of Senior engineering majors have already begun work to determine whether leaving the fridge open will really cool off your dorm room. While I can't guarantee that all of the material in this column will lend itself so well to practical application, I'll do my best.

Anyway, here I am.
If you like this column, please send appreciative letters and wads of money to my editors.

If you don't... well, after all, I'm only a freshman.

Letters to Chuck can be sent care of Accent at The Observer, third floor of LaFortune.

Gross pet tricks --One student's summer job

accent writer

How did you spend your summer? Working at a pool? Typing as a clerk? Doing hard physical labor? You thought you had a rough job.

Well meet Jane Smiley.
Maggots, diarrhea, tumors, and vomit were all an everyday part of her summer job. Jane is a sophomore biology major who worked at Montgomery Animal Hospital in Cincinnati hoping to gain experience in the veterinary field. She was hired as "Hospital Staff" but the job title didn't warn her for what was in store.

When she was hired she expected to do some cleaning but she also anticipated a lot of animal care. However, the actual work she did was far different. Every day she had a new grotesque tale. Her job included cleaning the animal cages covered with urine, stool, and vomit from the animals. She had to carry newly-deceased animals to a freezer to place in a pile of other dead animals. She also had to clean the animals of maggots, ear mites, and ticks.

However, her job was not all bad. She learned various skills about the veterinary field that she couldn't have received any-place else. She was taught how to take blood samples, how to administer medicine to animals, and how to take x-rays of the animals. She also assisted in critical situations like surgery and emergencies.

Another aspect of her internship was the emotional attachment to the animals. She watched some of her favorite animals be put to sleep. Helping old and crippled animals on the brink of death was also a painful part of the job. However, the worst part was saying goodbye after spending an entire summer caring for and nurturing them.

Her job included cleaning the animal cages covered with urine, stool and vomit from the animals.

Her opinion of her first experience in the veterinary field was one of mixed emotions. While she met wonderful doctors who cared very deeply for the health of the animals, there were also doctors who were cruel and harsh in their treatment.

Another realization was that the majority of veterinary work is routine, like toe nail clippings or neutering. She doubts she will enter private practice but would like to work in a veterinary field in Africa. Jane recommends that anyone interested in becoming a veterinarian should get some experience and a summer internship is the best way.

So when you're complaining about your job next summer, and you will complain, remember Jane and her work in a veterinary clinic. Then thank your lucky stars you don't have to deal with maggots, diarrhea, tumors, and vomit.

Feeling humorous? The Accent Department is looking for a few good columnists. Drop off a sample column in the Accent mailbox at the Observer, third floor LaFortune.

Martin's pal denies charges

PORT CRANE, N.Y. (AP) — A Detroit bar owner charged with drunken driving in the wreck that killed Billy Martin was behind the wheel when the former New York manager's pickup truck crashed, witnesses said Tuesday.

However, William Reedy's de-

However, William Reedy's defense lawyer said he would prove that his client only told investigators he was the driver to cover for Martin.

Reedy, 53, owner of Reedy's Bar near Tigers Stadium, is charged with driving while intoxicated in the accident that took Martin's life on Christmas Day last year.

Reedy and Martin had a longtime friendship and "as a result of that friendship, there was nothing he wouldn't do for Billy Martin," defense lawyer Jon Blechman told a six-member jury as Reedy's trial got under way in the Town of Fenton Court.

"When the accident, happened Bill Reedy thought, 'Billy's got himself in trouble again. I've got to help my friend," said Blechman, who added that Reedy didn't learn until several hours later that Martin had been killed when the pickup truck slammed into a concrete culvert at the entrance to Martin's driveway.

Martin had a long history of alcohol-related problems, including public fights with his ballplayers.

Among the first witnesses called Tuesday by Broome County Assistant District Attorney Kevin Among Guyette were members of the family that found Martin's pickup truck on its side in the ditch in front of his farm and the first sheriff's deputy on the scene.

Brent Piech, 14, told jurors he and his family were returning from-doing chores at a nearby farm when they saw the pickup truck lying driver's si de up in the ditch.

While his mother rushed back to a nearby house to summon an ambulance, Piech and his father tried to aid the accident victims, he testified.

He said Martin was pinned up against the passenger side door with Reedy on top of him.

"You only thought Mr. Reedy was there. We didn't think anyone else was there until my dad picked up Mr. Reedy," the youth testified.

Blechman focused his questions to Glanville on authorities' determination that Reedy was intoxicated.

Davis signs contract that will keep Raiders in LA

Memorial Coliseum plans to build skyboxes and undergo $145 in renovations

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Raiders, after flirting with offers from at least three other cities, signed a long-term contract on Tuesday to continue to play at the Memorial Coliseum.

The 20-year deal between the Raiders and the Coliseum's private managers, Spectacor, was signed Tuesday morning after negotiations that went into Monday night.

In conjunction, the Coliseum Commission dropped its $58 million breach of contract suit against the Raiders. Superior Court Judge William Huss accepted the dismissal of the lawuit on Tuesday afternoon.

The Coliseum will be renovated with private funds reportedly totaling $145 million. The Raiders finally will get the kyboxes they claimed they were promised when they noved from Oakland in 1982.

The new contract goes into effect once the renovations are complete. Construction probably wouldn't begin until after the 1991 season, officials said. Spectacor still must acquire approval from various governmental agencies.

During renovation, the Raiders and the University of Southern California, which has played football at the Coliseum since it was built in 1923, will play their home games at other local stadiums for at least one season.

"What's important is that we made a decision to stay in Los Angeles," Raiders owner Al Davis said at a news conference at the Coliseum. "I was very satisfied with the arrangement in Los Angeles, and that was the direction I chose to take."

The Raiders had been unhappy with the deteriorating Coliseum since 1987. While they negotiated for improvements there, they also negotiated recently with Oakland, where the team played through the 1982 season.

The team earlier appeared headed to suburban Irwindale or Sacramento, and an offer from Fontana, in San Bernardino County, was made in August.

One report even said the Raiders would return to Oakland in time for the current season. That proved false, and the Raiders drew a crowd of 54,206 to Sunday's 14-9 victory over the defending AFC champion Denver Broncos.

"I realized that we were almost operating like the Middle East, because day to day, and hour to hour, every minute there's a new crisis in the negotiations," Davis said. "But I was committed to resolve this, in some manner, so that we can focus on the football team."

The dispute between the Raiders and the Coliseum was resolved last week when the commission voted to drop its suit if the team signed a long-term lease.

The suit was filed after the Raiders announced in August 1987 that they intended to move to Irwindale, where officials offered to build a stadium in a gravel pit.

The Coliseum, site of the 1932 and 1984 Summer Olympics, is now privately managed by Spectacor.

Davis stands to keep an estimated $10 million by agreeing to settle the commission's suit.

Deane Dana, one of two commissioners voting against the agreement to settle, said last week the suit hinged on the $6.7 million the commission gave Davis in 1984 for additions to the stadium, including the installation of luxury boxes that were never built. With interest, the commission hoped to recover $10 million from the litigation, Dana said.

Oakland and Alameda County had offered the Raiders $127 million for renovations at the Oakland Coliseum and a $31.9 million loan, payable with interest in two years.

"What must be must be, that's all," Oakland mayor Lionel Wilson said Tuesday morning. "As far as I'm concerned, Oakland and the county did their best to try and work out something satisfactory and it just didn't work out."

The city made a "strong aggressive effort" but it couldn't compete with private offers that didn't have to "undergo public scrutiny," said Don Perata, chairman of the Alameda County Supervisors.

Coach pans Miami talk

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) -The Miami Hurricanes need to learn to keep their mouths shut because they're not good enough to back up brash talk, Coach Dennis Erickson said

Miami fell from No. 1 to No. 10 by losing its opener Saturday at Brigham Young, 28-21. Erickson said comments last week by the Hurricanes helped inspire BYU.

"I think we fueled the fire, no question about it," Miami's second-year coach said at his weekly news conference.

One Miami player last week said BYU quarterback Ty Detmer was good but not great. Another said the Hurricanes would try to rough up Detmer with blind-side hits. A third player, discussing past accusations that the Cougars play dirty football, described the game as "Nasty East meets Nasty West.'

The Hurricanes' comments were the talk of Provo, Utah when they arrived.

"I don't like that. I never have liked it," Erickson said.

"What we've got to do is worry about ourselves and learn to keep our mouths shut and just play football, and when we do that, good things

The Hurricanes' comments certainly didn't bother Detmer. He passed for 406 yards and three touchdowns.

Erickson said the Hurricanes, who play at California on Saturday, have learned a

'They'll watch what they say and say things in the way they want to express themselves," he said. "But I don't know that you're going to see a lot of things you can put in the (opposing) locker room, because obviously we're not good enough to do that and Linebacker Maurice Crum, however, later said the Hurricanes had no plans to temper their tongues.

"Definitely not," he said. "It never hurt us before. That's the way we've always been. ... Miami talks, and we have to back it up. We're not looking at that as a problem."

Quarterback Craig Erickson said he tries to watch what he says. But he said some of his teammates talk tough because it motivates them.

Strawberry lifts Mets over Cardinals; Pirates win

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl Strawberry's two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning off Lee Smith lifted the New York to a 10-8 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals on Tuesday night as the Mets kept pace with Pittsburgh in the National League East.

The Mets start a two-game series with the first-place Pirates on Wednesday night at Shea Stadium, trailing Pittsburgh by 3 1/2 games. New York is 48-22 at home, including nine wins in a row.

Tom Herr led off the ninth with a walk off Smith (3-4), but Dave Magadan popped out trying to sacrifice. Strawberry then hit Smith's first pitch for his 33rd home run and the Mets' 18th victory in their final at-bat this season.

The Cardinals tied the score 8-8 with two runs in the ninth off reliever John Franco (5-1), who blew only his fourth save opportunity in 35 chances

Pirates 5, Phillies 1

PHILADELPHIA — Bobby Bonilla drove in the go-ahead run for the second straight game to back rookie pitcher Randy Tomlin, who had a key double as surging Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia.

Tomlin (3-2) worked six innings, allowing five hits and one earned run in pitching the Pirates to their ninth victory in 11 games.

Trailing 1-0, the Pirates scored twice in the third against rookie Jason Grimsley. Tomlin, with his first hit in 19 major league at-bats, doubled with one out and scored the tying run on a triple by Wally Backman. Andy Van Slyke walked with two out before Bonilla singled to score Backman and chase Grimsley

Eric Davis had a solo homer, Mariano Duncan a sacrifice fly and Sabo a two-run single off Deshaies (6-12). The left-hander walked six in the first four innings, helping the Reds score three times on just one hit in the fourth to snap a 1-1 tie.

CHICAGO — A 10-run second inning, its best in 17 years, enabled Chicago to overcome a 5-0 deficit against Montreal.

Damon Berryhill, Andre Dawson and rookie Derrick May hit two-run doubles in the inning for the Cubs, who had seven hits and sent 13 batters to the plate. Luis Salazar singled twice in the inning for Chicago, which scored all its runs with no outs.

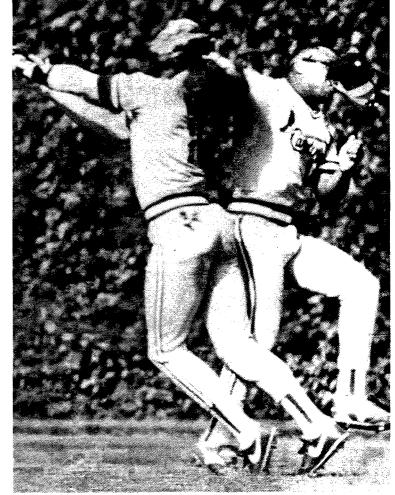

It was the biggest output for the Cubs since a 10-run first against Houston on May 31, 1973, and it was the most scored in one inning in the National League this year. It also was the most runs ever in an inning against Montreal.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

The Cleveland Indians dealt Chicago's slim pennant hopes another blow Tuesday night, defeating the White Sox 4-3 when pinch-hitter Brook Jacoby drove in the winning run with a fluke double to short center-field with two out in the ninth inning.

St. Louis outfielders Rex Hudler, left, and Ray Lankford collide while chasing a fly ball in Wrigley Field last week. The Cards lost to the Mets on Tuesday, 10-8.

It was the fifth loss in six games for the White Sox, who began the evening nine games behind first-place Oakland in the American League West.

Reliever Barry Jones (11-3) lost for the second time in two nights after yielding a two-out single to pinch-hitter Carlos a. Jacoby then hit a blooper that landed between shortstop Ozzie Guillen and center fielder Lance Johnson.

Guillen kicked the ball past Johnson, then picked it up and relayed it to first baseman Steve Lyons, who paused before throwing home. Catcher Ron Karkovice. Karkovice dropped the ball as Baerga slid in.

TV executive becomes first black at Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The president of Gannett Television is the first black member of Augusta National Golf Club.

Ron Townsend, 48, who is in charge of six of the company's television stations, has accepted membership in the club, site of the annual Masters tournament, Augusta National said Tuesday.

The action by the club came in the aftermath of the controversy that centered on the racial policies of Shoal Creek Country Club near Birmingham, Ala., site of last month's PGA Championship.

The events at Shoal Creek prompted the PGA Tour, the PGA of America and the U.S. Golf Association to adopt new guidelines — effective next year — requiring private clubs that want to host tournaments to demonstrate that their membership policies are not discriminatory.

Townsend was in Boston and was not immediately reachable by telephone.

Cragin looks to start for Irish

: By DAVE MCMAHON Sports Writer

"I see a light turning on and its starting to get brighter," said Lambert, describing the play of late by sophomore Marilyn Cragin, whose 18 kills led the Irish to a win over Western Michigan in the final round of the Notre Dame Invitational this past weekend.

Although Cragin played "barely at all" last season, spring practice enabled her to become familiar with more than one position. After starting out in the middle, the California native began playing on the right side before moving to the left at the end of spring practice. Shear talent has made the transition to the various positions easy for her.

Marilyn Cragin

"Physically she's a marvelous athlete and she has the ability to come in and break up the game at any time," said Lambert.

But the key words in that compliment are "come in". Cragin, although only in her second collegiate season, would like to nail down a starting role for the Irish.

"I've always been able to come in and sub, but I would really like to play my own position," said Cragin.

The urge to contribute is only natural, and Coach Lambert is impressed with what he sees in

"She came in during her freshman year and had little or no confidence,"said Lambert. "Now she's progressing to where she should be as a sophomore."

Cragin, who admits that confidence has not been one of her assets, plans to begin playing with a new outlook.

"In the past tournament, I thought that I did a good job," said Cragin. "I was never really sure of myself before this weekend, but now I'm confident and ready to contribute in any way I can."

The Irish, 3-3 on the young season, hope to improve to 5-3 with matches this weekend at Kentucky and Louisville.

Notre Dame men's soccer team faces Loyola today

By RICH KURZ Sports Writer

After facing two Top 20 teams last weekend, the Notre Dame men's soccer team will get a bit of a reprieve tonight. The Irish play the Loyola Ramblers in Chicago before meeting another Top 20 opponent, the St. Louis Billikens, Friday

The Ramblers are coming off of a horrible season in which they finished dead last in the North Division of the MCC. To make matters worse, they lost their leading scorer from last season to graduation. The Irish manhandled Loyola last season, beating them 4-0 in Chicago and 3-0 at Notre Dame. Nevertheless, Notre Dame cannot afford to ignore this Loyola team.

The Ramblers return seven starters from last year's team, including sophomores David Forsythe and Jay Kreikmeier who were both members of the MCC All-Newcomer team. The two played well in 1-0 loss against St. Louis earlier this season.

The Irish may also be affected by an unstable situation at goalkeeper. Junior Peter Gulli had been the starter, but freshman walk-on Matt Fitz was inserted as the starter for the N.C. State game. The starting position for tonight's game, however, hasn't been determined yet.

To make things tougher for the Irish, the man minding the net for Loyola has given Notre Dame trouble in the past.

"They have an outstanding goalkeeper," said senior co-captain Paul LaVigne. "When we were freshman, he must have stopped about eight shots from six yards out. He's just phenomenal."

On the other hand, considering the series record, Notre Dame might have a reason to look past the Ramblers. The Irish have never lost to Loyola, see SOCCER/ page 16

The Notre Dame soccer team will travel to Chicago tonight to face MCC foe Loyola before playing Top 20 team St. Louis on Friday. The Irish soundly defeated the last-place Ramblers twice last year.

Irish prepare for Wolverines

Holtz speaks at conference about injuries, controversy

BY FRANK PASTOR

Associate Sports Editor

Notre Dame will enter Saturday's regular-season opener against Michigan with a surplus of talent but a lack of focused preparation, Head Coach Lou Holtz announced at Tuesday's press conference.

The Irish return eleven starters (six on defense, five on offense) and 47 lettermen from last year's 12-1 squad, but the off-field distractions of recent weeks have interfered with the team's continuity and consistency, particularly on offense.

"We have worked the team harder than we ever have in fall practice," Holtz said. "We have more established football players, as good as any I've ever

"But this has been a difficult time, the one time it has affected my preparation. There has been a lot of inconsistency on offense, and I look at it as my fault. I've done a better job in preseason."

Public accusations of steroid use, mistreatment of injured players, recruiting violations and illegal payments to players have rocked the team since the beginning of fall practice. Through it all, Holtz has done everything in his power to keep the players focused on the task at hand.

But just one day after his team was voted tops in the nation, Holtz saw only potential where others see preeminence.

"We have the chance to be a good offensive football team," said the fifth-year Irish coach, "but not at the present time. Our progress in the next three days will be critical."

The final three days of practice before the Michigan opener should provide answers to questions on the offensive line, a unit which has been plagued by injuries and prepares to face one of the finest defensive programs in the country.

The offensive line has suffered numerous aches and pains during the preseason, but it was dealt only two major injuries. Junior guard Bernard Mannelly broke his foot on the first day of practice and will be out indefinitely. Then senior Winston Sandri, who had been pencilled in at starting quick tackle, partially tore a knee ligament last week. Sandri is expected to miss three to four

"We have not had our five starting offensive linemen in pads at any one time," Holtz said. "That has been the most frustrating thing."

In order to cope with the recent rash of injuries, Holtz announced a couple of position changes on the offensive line Backup center Gene McGuire has been moved to quick tackle and Lindsay Knapp is the projected starter at tight tackle.

Injuries are not limited to the offensive line. Sophomore tailback Dorsey Levens, the top tailback coming out of spring practice, injured his knee over the summer. He practiced on Monday and Tuesday, but his status for the Michigan game is doubtful.

The tailback situation is reinforced with the return of Tony Brooks to the Irish fold. Holtz said that Brooks will split the tailback duties with senior quad-captain Ricky Watters, although Watters will get the starting nod.

"Tony Brooks is only starting to come on," said Holtz. "He is not close to the form he was a year ago because he missed spring practice."

Defensively, Holtz fears the unknown with respect to Michigan's offensive firepower.

"I'm sure the element of surprise is with the University of Michigan," Holtz said. "I have no idea what they will do offensively. Michigan's ability to run the football always scares you. and then the passing game with Elvis Grbac also.

Popular slogan has nation prepared to

It has become more than Nike's marketing brainchild, more than a verbal playground in which Bo Jackson has been able to showcase his athletic prowess. No longer is it just a simple statement to sell a shoe.

It has become one of the most revered statements in the nation, exhibited in no finer fashion than on the Notre Dame campus.

Most persons on campus by now have noticed an overabundance of the statement "Just Do It," located on posters, flyers, advertisements, billboards, t-shirts, shoes and other athletic apparel.

It is said with shameless repetition by coaches who want to see their athletes perform. Fans say it because it epitomizes what sports accomplishment is all about. Notre Dame students say it because it cuts through the clutter of idle talk.

That it has transcended a marketing plan for Nike is a tribute to its advertisers' talent. The nation has latched on to this short, catchy imperative statement and molded it into a rallying cry transmitted through mass communications.

Nike's second catch phrase, "Bo knows," also has been catapulted out of the advertising arena and into the vocabulary of Americans everywhere.

Apparently Nike has a beat on the pulse of America. I've heard hybrid versions of their ads, from the jovial family observation "Grandma Punderbottom knows peach pie," to the frank "Just do me."

At Notre Dame, the "Just Do It" statement has been used for football t-shirts, sports themes, and Bo Jackson tributes. People walk around with a prodigious "JUST" on the front of their shirts and 'DO IT" on the back. A shirt-wearer could pay no higher tribute to a message than that.

Does this simple sentence present a threat to the mindset of the Notre Dame student, who has been taught to be responsible, to be considerate and to plan an action before performing it? Certainly Our Lady of the Lake would not subscribe to such a selfindulgent philosophy.

Well, we're not talking sexual philosophy here. It applies to resolve, to determination, to wanting something bad enough that you're willing to act instead of talk, and Notre Dame could use this philosophy in its sports programs and its everyday life.

The involvement reaches further into the athletic program at Notre Dame. The 1989 baseball team's slogan was "Just Do It," and a contemporary t-shirt says, "Lou Knows Football" on the front and "Just Do It" on the back.

It's just an effective motto. Cut through the muck to the heart of the matter. It expresses such a drive, a singularity of purpose, that any sports team or athlete can learn from it.

Don't say it; do it. Don't talk about getting into shape; run five miles. Don't elaborate on your team's weaknesses; improve on them. Don't complain about how much homework you have; get it

There's too much talk in this world already.
