Animal rights group protests Circus Flora

By RENEE YOUNG
News Writer

Members of a local animal rights group staged a protest last Friday against Circus Flora, a group which recently performed on Washington Street in South Bend.

The protesting group, or the Coalition of Hoosiers Encouraging the Ethical Treatment of Animals, (CHEETA) hoped to encourage education on the issue of animal cruelty. CHEETA members passed out literature to circus-goers regarding what they described as the horrible treatment animals receive in training. The CHEETA organization admitted that the Circus Flora treats its animals better than many other animal shows, but they are still caging wild animals.

CHEETA is an affiliate of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA), located in Indianapolis. Its purpose is to stop animal abuse in the area.

One of PETA's main targets is factory farming, in which animals are raised strictly for profit. One example of factory farming is the raising of chickens. According to Lia Klinkhamer, CHEETA member and coordinator of Saint Mary's Language Learning Center, nine or more chickens are shoved into small coops where they spend their entire lives.

These coops are stacked on top of each other so that droppings fall on the coops below, said Klinkhamer. When the farmers decide to kill the chickens, the animals' legs must be cut off, because their feet have grown into the wire

Bush calls Iraqis 'isolated'; U.N. weighs new sanctions

(AP)-As the United Nations weighed new sanctions against Baghdad, Iraqi television broadcast a statement by President Bush Sunday in which he warned the Iraqi people that their leader's brinkmanship could plunge them into war "against the world."

Hours later, thousands of men, women and children marched through the streets of Baghdad, chanting "Death to Bush, Death to America!"

An official Iraqi response to Bush's statement called it full of "lies and contradictions," and said the U.S. president aimed to be the "dictator of the world."

Meanwhile, hundreds of Kuwaitis continued to flood into Saudi Arabia Sunday after Iraqi troops opened a border crossing over the weekend, and Kuwait's government-in-exile accused Iraq of depopulating the country to resettle Iraqis there.

The U.N. Security Council unanimously condemned Iraq's raids last week on the French, Belgian, Canadian and Dutch embassy compounds in Kuwait, and warned that further sanctions against Baghdad were likely.

Diplomats also began drafting language for a new resolution to close off Iraq's air routes and punish nations flouting the trade embargo, U.S. officials said.

Bush's address to the Iraqi people, with an Arabic voice-over and captions provided by the State Department, apparently was broadcast in its entirety Sunday evening.

"Iraq finds itself on the brink of war," Bush said. But "war is not inevitable. It is still possible to bring this crisis to a peaceful end."

President Bush

"Saddam Hussein tells you that this crisis is a struggle between Iraq and America. In fact, it is Iraq against the world," said Bush, standing in front of his desk with the American flag behind him.

The eight-minute speech was followed immediately by a 25-minute response from an Iraqi TV announcer.

A "thundering rage" is building against the United States in the Arab world, and a showdown in the Gulf would end "in a catastrophe" for U.S. forces, said announcer Mikdad Morad, who usually reads statements from President Saddam Hussein.

A group of a few hundred men later began marching in Baghdad. As they passed through residential neighborhoods, thousands of men, women and children joined them.

Raising their clenched fists in the air, the demonstrators denounced Bush and also President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, whom they called "traitors of the Arab world" for backing the U.S.-led forces in the Persian Gulf.

The U.N. resolution Sunday, along with actions by the Italian and Soviet governments, appeared to confirm a growing solidarity in opposition to Saddam, whose forces overran Kuwait Aug. 2.

The resolution followed Friday's raids by Iraqi troops on the diplomatic compounds in Kuwait.

Two Tunisian newspapers reported Sunday that Iraqi troops had entered the Tunisian Embassy in Kuwait as well. In Bangladesh, the Bengali-language newspaper Ittefaq said soldiers stormed the residences of two embassy officials Friday.

France retaliated for the raid on its property by expelling 26 Iraqi military and civilian trainees and three Iraqi students suspected of being secret agents. They left the country Sunday night under police escort on an Air France flight to Amman, Jordan.

Efforts to recruit and keep minority grad students aided by new director

By SARAH VOIGT
News Writer

Errol Lawrence, the newly appointed assistant director of Graduate Schools, plans to use his expertise to help recruit and retain minority students.

The scarcity of minority students on campus is a serious problem, according to Barbara Turpin, director of Graduate Admissions.

"Compared to the minority enrollment of other graduate schools, we don't stack up very well," she explained. "We only have one new black student this year." There are about 1,500 students in the graduate program.

"Part of the problem is that we've had no coherent plan in the past," Turpin said. "Dr. Lawrence's experience creating recruitment plans for other colleges by assessing minority enrollment and making recommendations will make him a valuable addition to the staff."

Before beginning at Notre Dame, Lawrence worked for a year as an access and retention specialist for Lilly, Lopez and Associates, an independent consulting firm in Princeton, New Jersey.

"Because I've developed specific techniques in the recruitment and subsequent retention of minority students, I have some ideas about what will attract them to Notre Dame," Lawrence said.

Lawrence said that many qualified minority students do not consider Notre Dame graduate school simply because they have never been exposed to the school.

"Notre Dame does not stand out in the black community as it does in the white community," said Lawrence. "There are very few black alumni out there."

As an initial phase of his minority recruitment plan, Lawrence will introduce Notre Dame's graduate programs to the minority populations at other universities. "We [the members of the Graduate Admissions Staff] will meet with the director of Minority Affairs, and black and white faculty members at other schools who counsel students about graduate schools."

Lawrence emphasized that once minorities submit their applications, they must meet the same admissions requirements as non-minorities. Lawrence's responsibilities, however, by no means end with the minority student's acceptance into the

Frosh football fans show true ND spirit

After a lot of complaining about who should get tickets and where students should sit at Notre Dame games, the first home game arrived. One group of fans stood out from the rest. It wasn't Notre Dame or Saint Mary's students per se, but rather the freshman classes of both schools.

As a senior, I finally had the chance to sit in the coveted senior section. I have never been to a ND game I didn't like. I guess I figured it could only get better now that my friends and I were in sections 28 and 29. I was wrong.

The senior section was not all I had dreamed it would be. Granted there were three times as many people as there should have been due to every girlfriend, boyfriend, brother, sister, friend from home, and alum who talked a student into getting them into the student section; but that wasn't the real problem. What bugged me most was the really bad attitude displayed by the students and fans.

During the National Anthem fans were wronging at one another about being in the wrong seats. I could not believe how pushy and rude everyone was. Friends and roommates turned on one another. I could not help but look over at the freshmen section. Even though they were basically in the end zone they were really having a good time. I think the freshmen had much more spirit and a much better attitude about the game.

An impressive percentage of them were wearing green shirts. I felt like I was rooting for the wrong school wearing green in our section. I even caught them making attempts at starting a "wave."

When I was a freshman I remember we would shout "we are" to the other side of the stadium to which they would respond "ND". The sound was deafening. We made the cheerleaders' job easy for them. Also, we were nice to each other.

We didn't care how smashed together we were. We just were glad to be together watching Tim Brown run back another kick off into the end zone. We shook our keys on third down and other "key" plays. We started waves that would travel around the stadium. After every touchdown we would high five and embrace our neighbors, not swear at them.

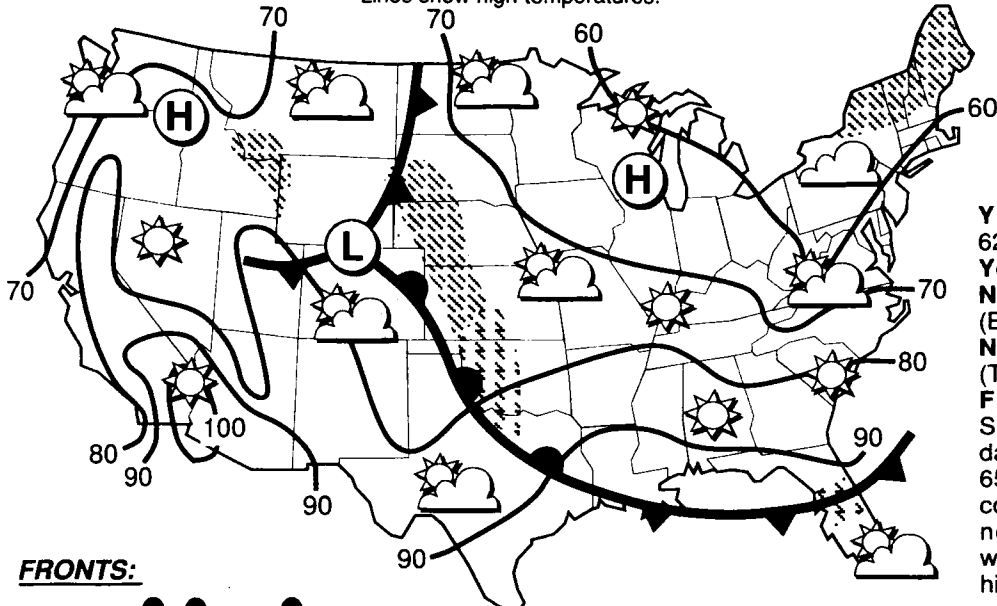

I know I probably sound like a parent telling one of those "I remember when I was a kid" type stories, but I can't help it. I paid three years worth of dues to sit where I did on Saturday and I don't want my efforts to have been in vain.

Things got so bad for this Irish fan that I chose to head home and catch the fourth quarter on T.V. I didn't have 59,074 fans around me to share the excitement with, but I did have a cold keg and a couple of good friends. On September 29, I hope everyone takes heed of the example the freshmen set for us on Saturday. They were true Irish fans.

Thousands of demonstrators marched to the Moscow Kremlin Sunday demanding that President Mikhail Gorbachev and his prime minister resign to take responsibility for the country's deepening economic crisis. "The Economy is a Disaster," read banners carried by the 50,000 member crowd. Gorbachev has been criticized for not implementing market reforms sooner. Soviets face shortages of food and many other products; store shelves are bare.

25 children, seven adults drowned in Honduras Sunday when a flash-flood dragged their school bus as it was crossing a rain-swollen river and overturned it, authorities said. The victims included 52-year old American missionary Dorothy Sauder Hood. The accident occurred on a country road between the villages of El Naranjal and Cantarranas, about 80 miles southeast of Tegucigalpa. 33 children were on their way back to El Naranjal from a party at Cantarranas, a few miles away. Peralta said the bus was crossing the usually shallow Rio Grande when a flood wave crested over the bus and tumbled it downstream.

Cumberland Farms Inc. officials fired more than 30,000 convenience store employees after they were questioned by company security for alleged theft, according to a published report. Fourteen former Cumberland Farms employees have filed a lawsuit, saying the company has a policy of falsely accusing cashiers of stealing and then threatening and coercing them into signing confessions. The company, based in Canton, Mass., denies the allegations. The civil lawsuit filed in U.S. District court in Camden, N.J., accuses Cumberland Farms of extortion, fraud, racketeering, malicious prosecution and wire and mail fraud.

INDIANA

Indiana State Excise Police raided a beer party near Ball State University in Muncie early Sunday, netting 47 people on alcohol-related charges. It was the second straight night Operation SUDS (Stop Underage Drinking and Sales) targeted Ball State and the Muncie area, excise police spokesman John Copeland said.

The Sierra Club, a national environmental group, held a forum Saturday at the Genesis Convention Center in Gary, Indiana. 30 people from northwest Indiana and southeast Chicago met to discuss the health hazards of air pollution from steel mill coke plants. "One of the main problems is the public feels there is no real concern on the union's part for environmental protection," said Maurice Richards, president of United Steelworkers of America. According to a steel union official, the risk is 140 cancer deaths per 10,000.

Committee aims to improve male/female relationships

By ALICIA REALE

News Writer

Improvement of undergraduate male-female relationships is one of the main goals of The Year of Women, according to Eileen Kolman, dean of the Freshman Year of Studies and Chair of the Year of Women Committee.

Kolman gave a 20-minute talk Friday, explaining what the Year of Women means to the Notre Dame community and outlining the committee's goals for the upcoming year.

The 1990-91 theme was decided upon by University President Father Edward Malloy. This focus is on the changing roles of women in society today. The primary audience is the entire Notre Dame student body - not solely the female members.

The committee has several goals which it hopes the Year of Women will accomplish at ND. The first is to improve relationships between undergraduate males and females.

Kolman explained that an undergraduate woman will need to make future choices in order to balance marriage, a career and a family. A male does not have to worry about a family infringing upon his life, according to Kolman.

Kolman said that another goal is to focus on scholarships and research of special interest to women. The Gender Studies concentration at ND also offers an excellent opportunity for both men and women to further their understanding of the sexes.

The committee's final goal is to "heighten awareness of what it is like to be a woman at ND," Kolman said. After 130 years of strong male tradition the 37 percent female population is still experiencing inequalities.

There should be more awareness between the sexes, said Kolman.

Women with achievements will be spotlighted this year. Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate in the 1984 election, will kick off the Student Government sponsored lecture series on Wednesday at the Fieldhouse Mall. There are also future hopes for a female commencement speaker.

According to Kolman, this is exemplified in many aspects of life at ND:

- In the classroom, only 12 percent of the faculty is comprised of women.
- In many departments there are no women at all.
- In one line of the Irish fight song, "while her loyal sons are marching onward to victory," a male bias exists.
- At every Sunday mass, Catholics recite the "Our Father."

Many educational events have been planned for the month of September, including the Emma Goldman Exhibit in the Hesburgh Library Concourse. Also, a magazine celebrating women's talents is being arranged by the Rector and a Resident Assistant in Pasquerilla West.

Recyclin' Irish expand

By MARK CAWLEY

News Writer

The Notre Dame campus produces close to 50,000 pounds of aluminum cans and about 250,000 pounds of newspaper per year. Because of this, Recyclin' Irish, a student-run organization devoted to recycling, is taking an active role in giving the University's trash a second chance.

Recylin' Irish recently decided to expand its program to include the community surrounding Notre Dame. At a press conference last weekend, senior Paul Ruesch announced the opening of the University's first Recycling Drop-Off Center, which is located behind the Alumni-Senior Club.

The Alumni Association provided space and publicity for the center. "Since it is a student sponsored activity, we would like to be involved," said Charles Lennon, executive director of the Alumni Association.

"The success of this new program is due in a large part to the Alumni Association," Ruesch said.

The center is designed for use by the entire community. "Just because it is a student-run activity and because it is on the Notre Dame campus does not preclude the local community," Lennon said.

The large recycling "boat" in the rear parking lot of the club was provided by Superior Waste Systems. This company also collects the waste material and transports it to its recycling facility in Chicago. "We began this program with Notre Dame primarily due to the severe shortage of landfill space," said Linda Spear, a representative of Superior Waste Systems.

"The company hopes that this recycling program with Notre Dame will start a precedent in the surrounding community," she added.

Last fall the Environmental Action Club helped initiate the campus-wide recycling program. A new organization, Recyclin' Irish, was created at that time expressly to support and expand the program.

A highly organized residence hall recycling system has been established under the leadership of Ruesch. Each dormitory has a representative who works closely with glass, newspaper, and aluminum "commissioners" to coordinate recycling within that hall. These individuals and a team of volunteers collect the waste and take it to a central location.

Ruesch has been pleased with Recylin' Irish's progress. "We've had phenomenal participation," he said.

Ruesch, a self-proclaimed environmentalist, has future plans for Recyclin' Irish. He hopes to provide receptacles in University offices for recycling office waste paper. He would also like to coordinate a program with Food Services to recycle old Observer's left in the dining halls. "I am devoted to establishing a comprehensive recycling program," he said.

Gas tanker explodes in Michigan; 18 injured

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — A tanker carrying about 1 million gallons of gasoline exploded and burned Sunday on the Saginaw River, injuring most of the 18 people aboard and spilling fuel in the water.

The fire was too hot for firefighters to douse, and officials waited for it to burn itself out, said Coast Guard Lt. Tom Koontz.

One person from the ship was missing, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Gerald Visited. Gov. James Blanchard visited the site and declared the blaze an emergency, supplying state aid and assistance.

The fire was reported at 8:45 a.m., while the tanker was unloading at the Total Refinery Dock Facility, and was still burning Sunday evening.

Authorities warned spectators to clear the area in case of multiple explosions.

"A few people blew right off the boat and slammed ashore," said Bay City police Officer Kenneth Adcock. "The sky is covered with black smoke. If it blows again, it's going to be a big one."

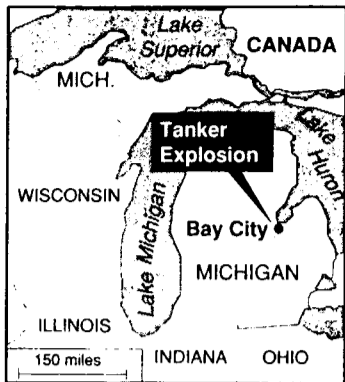

Witnesses said the black smoke blocked out the sun throughout the afternoon.

The tanker, owned by Cleveland Tankers Inc. of Cleveland, was carrying about 20,000 barrels of gasoline or about 1 million gallons, said Koontz. It has a capacity of about 54,000 barrels.

"That's the estimate. That's a lot of gas," Koontz said.

The state Department of Natural Resources was conducting water and air pollution tests Sunday to check for environmental contamination, spokeswoman Susan Henry said.

A gasoline spill is less damaging than an oil spill because "it's volatile and it evaporates," she said, adding that two booms were strung downstream from the ship to contain any spilled fuel.

Ronald Stopyak had returned home 15 minutes before the blast from working at the Bay Chemicals Co. directly across the river from the tanker. He said he raced back to work after hearing the explosion.

"I thought the plant exploded and when I got out there I saw black smoke everywhere," he said. "I saw the employees on the ship go overboard."

"It was really hot. I could feel the heat from across the river."

His wife, Cheryl, said that their house was less than two blocks from the explosion and was shaken.

"It was like a slow rumbling, it got louder and louder like thunder," she said.

Two Coast Guard helicopters sprayed fire-fighting foam while they rescued crew members from the tanker, said Lt. Dennis Secor.

Coast Guard crews secured the tanker with cables to prevent it from drifting into a nearby bridge, he said.

Bay Medical Center spokesman Curt Miller said three of the 17 crew members treated there were admitted.

Lawrence explained the vital retention phase of his plan.

"Since this campus is so predominantly white," said Lawrence, "we need to sensitize minority students before they can make the transition into this new environment. It is especially difficult for those students who, say, come from predominantly black schools or communities."

The ND administration has cited the transformation of the Graduate School into a nationally acclaimed research institution as a high priority. Lawrence believes that it is essential to foster a multicultural learning environment if Notre Dame hopes to achieve this goal.

"Since society is multicultural, it is important for Graduate students to interact with students of different backgrounds, races and cultures," Lawrence said. "If the students are not exposed to other cultures, they are not being challenged to break down stereotypes created by television," Lawrence said.

From 1984 to 1989 Lawrence worked as assistant dean of Rider College. At Rider he directed a State funded Educational Opportunity Program, where he gained experience in the access and retention of disadvantaged students.

Turpin expressed confidence in Lawrence's ability to implement his recruitment plans.

"We have great hopes for him," she said. "He is the type of individual who is easy for students to talk to. I think that he'll do a great job marketing the University."

South African black leaders make joint call for peace; 800 deaths reported

SOWETO, South Africa (AP) — The king of the Zulus urged thousands of armed supporters Sunday to curb the factional fighting that has caused almost 800 deaths in black townships around Johannesburg.

"Everybody must lay down their arms and take their brother's hand in friendship," Zulu King Goodwill Zwelithini told fellow tribesmen in Soweto and Tokoza, two townships that have been hard hit by the fighting which began in early August.

Zwelithini shared the stage at the peace rallies with President Tutor Ndumase of the Transkei, the tribal homeland of the Xhosa. The Xhosa have joined fellow African National Congress supporters in clashes against Zulus loyal to the conservative Inkatha movement.

Both sides blame the other for the fighting.

But on Friday, ANC leader Nelson Mandela said South African President F.W. de

Klerk now believes some of the violence may be instigated by a "hidden hand," an apparent reference to right-wing whites and others opposed to de Klerk's efforts to attain power-sharing between blacks and whites.

"I have come to this place to put out the flames of violence," said Zwelithini at the two rallies attended by more than 30,000 Zulus, many wearing red headbands and brandishing axes and spears.

ND engineering to hold Industry Fair

By JOHANNA KELLY
News Writer

In an effort to promote interaction between students and industry, Notre Dame's Joint Engineering Council (JEC) is holding its annual Industry Fair this Wednesday.

Thirty-eight companies plan on attending this year, which is the most ever throughout the fair's ten-year history, according to Katherine Pirrota, president of JEC. Some major participants are Andersen Consulting, Procter & Gamble, Merck, IBM, Boeing, and Dow Chemical.

The career fair will be held from 11-4 in the Fitzpatrick Engineering Building. This will offer engineering majors an opportunity to speak with company representatives and distribute their resumes, said Pirrota.

"I would strongly encourage sophomores and juniors to attend," said Pirrota. "You can make some strong contacts."

The president of Notre Dame's Society of Women Engineers, Colleen Templon, added, "We really have a diverse group. There's virtually something for everyone."

An hors d'oeuvre hour will be held at the South Bend Marriot from 5:30 to 6:30. This will give students a chance to talk informally with company representatives, said Pirrota. This event is sponsored by the General Electric Aerospace division.

A banquet will follow, where Meredith Ross, Senior Controls Engineer with Bechtel Corporation will speak. Ross's talk, entitled "What Do You Want to be When You Grow Up?" will deal with choosing career paths.

Ross, who recently returned from a two year assignment in London, is a life-time member of the Society of Women Engineers. She received the Outstanding New Engineer award from the Society in 1988.

"The reason we asked Meredith is because it's the Year of the Woman," said Templon. "We were very interested in getting a woman professional engineer to speak."

Both Templon and Pirrota mentioned that transportation will be provided for all Notre Dame students interested in attending the banquet. Buses will leave the main circle starting at 5 p.m. on Wednesday.

The event will be sponsored jointly by the Society of Women Engineers and the Joint Engineering Council.

Capitalism creeps closer to ailing Soviet economy

Radical forces and depressed economy 'force' Gorbachev into liberal decisions

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail Gorbachev, driven by the radicals who control the Parliament of the largest Soviet republic, seems to have accepted their prescription for the gasping Soviet economy: capitalism.

The economy's fall into depression was a major impetus. But the final push came from Russian President Boris Yeltsin, who won approval for the drastic reforms in the Russian Parliament this week and forced Gorbachev's hand.

Yeltsin threatened to pursue his economic revolution in Russia — which contains half the Soviet people and three-quarters of the country's land mass — with or without Gorbachev's support.

Gorbachev went along.

The economic plan he distributed to the national Parliament on Friday "95 percent coincides" with the Russian plan.

Russian Deputy Prime Minister Grigory Yavlinsky told his Parliament on Saturday.

That is an exaggeration. Gorbachev rejected some key points and a parliamentary battle remains to be fought. But the comment was a good indication that the Russian radicals feel they have already won.

In the five years since he came to power proclaiming the need for reform, Gorbachev has tinkered with the Communist system, trying to fill the barren shelves of Soviet stores.

Now, he has thrown his support behind an economic reform plan full of ideas that warm the hearts of capitalists and horrify die-hard Communists: private land, home ownership, merit pay and profits.

It also contains the thorns of capitalism: unemployment, factory closings, bankruptcies and rising prices. In the first months of switching to a market economy, the Soviet Union is likely to feel the full pain of these thorns.

Gorbachev this week was defensive, thumping his fist in Parliament as he told Soviet legislators such radical change would have been impossible earlier.

"A year and a half ago, we were just talking about pluralism," he said, referring to the Soviet Union's dramatic switch to multicandidate elections.

If he had heeded calls to change from a centrally planned to a market economy then, Gorbachev said, "Do you think anything would have come of it? That's nonsense."

"We needed all that time to think about things. Otherwise, there would have been such a tragedy, such confusion in the country, that we never could have escaped it," he said.

Now, however, the changes must come quickly, Gorbachev admitted.

"The old structures are falling apart and the new ones are not yet formed," he said. "There is no system in the true sense of the word."

His own economic reform plan says the country already has entered an economic depression, with rising foreign debt and declining ability to pay. The country's international economic position, the plan said, is "catastrophic."

As a result, Gorbachev's economic plan says the gradual transition to a market economy proposed by Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov would be too slow.

Without urgent action, "we would be forced to choose between hyperinflation and direct seizure of cash from the population and enterprises," the plan says.

Ryzhkov went on national television Saturday night to argue for his moderate approach to reform and to insist on retaining, through 1991, the rigid Soviet bureaucracy that now runs the economy.

In arguing against the Russian republic's plan, Ryzhkov predicted it would lead to a 30 percent drop in the country's standard of living.

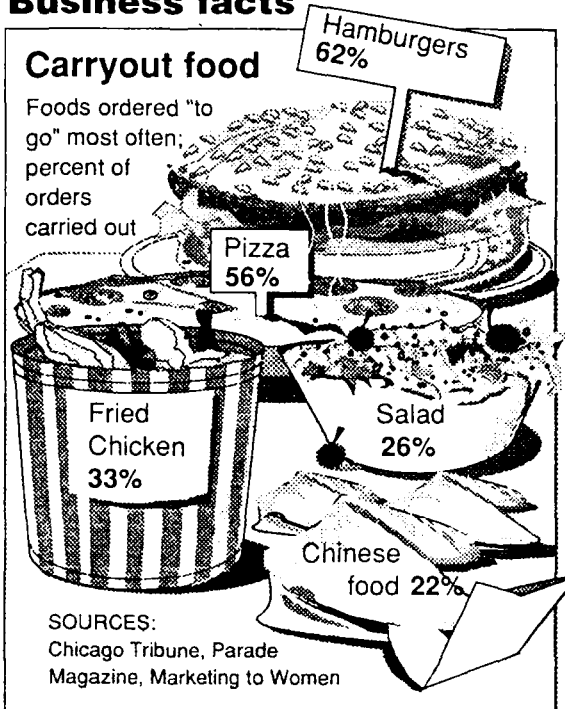

But Ryzhkov's plan, which calls for dramatic price increases on Jan. 1 without fundamental structural changes, is so unpopular that legislators have called for his resignation. And about 50,000 Muscovites demonstrated near Red Square in a cold rain Sunday evening, calling for Ryzhkov to step down.

Still remaining, however, is the battle over sections of the Russian plan that would strip the central government of much of its power.

Ivy Tech aids attempt to increase skilled workers

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Indiana Vocational Technical College will assume a new role in the state's efforts to create more jobs and develop a more highly skilled work force.

Sam Borden, Ivy Tech's regional vice president in Terre Haute, has been named to a new, state-level position and will work closely with the state Department of Commerce, the governor, lieutenant governor and the General Assembly.

"I'm extremely enthusiastic," he said Friday. "It's something new — a way to create and have an impact on the entire state system.... It's something the local board believes strongly in, and a natural fit for my personal interests."

On Tuesday, Ivy Tech President Gerald Lamkin told regional trustees that the need for a skilled work force is becoming a crisis in Indiana.

"More and more the state is looking to Ivy Tech as the number one vehicle to assist" it in developing programs to increase the number of skilled workers, he said. "Ivy Tech is not doing a bad job, but the job is getting bigger and tougher."

Borden said Gov. Evan Bayh and Lt. Gov. Frank O'Bannon want to strengthen technical education in Indiana.

They also want economic-development packages to move away from direct financial incentives toward programs that supply a well-trained, skilled workforce.

Under Borden's leadership, the Terre Haute region has become a leader in economic development initiatives with its industrial training program and its new plastics technology center, a joint effort with industries and economic development groups.

Student lauded in PACRIM Forum

Special to The Observer

Fen Jiang, a doctoral student in economics from Taiwan, was selected by his peers attending the PACRIM Forum in San Francisco last week to address the conference.

More than 800 students from 24 nations joined 500 invited guests and delegates to the PACRIM Forum, a biennial conference on investment and business opportunities throughout Asia and the Pacific.

Jiang's 20-minute presentation to the forum was entitled "The Borderless Generation."

Frank Potenziani, an Albuquerque, New Mexico businessman and investor, attended this year's forum as a representative of the Notre Dame Business Advisory Council. Chris Chung, a Notre Dame undergraduate finance major, also participated in the forum, representing the Notre Dame Council on International Business Development.

"The PACRIM Forum is somewhat unusual," said Potenziani, "in that it involves students of business and finance with very high-ranking and powerful business leaders, heads of state and political figures from throughout the Pacific."

Potenziani cited Bob Hawke, prime minister of Australia; Carmen Lawrence, premier of Western Australia; Gov. George Deukmejian of California; and Gov. Vladimir Kuznetsov of Eastern Siberia as typical of the sorts of officials involved in the forum.

Among the business leaders present were Kenichi Ohmae, chair of McKinsey & Company; Marshall Loeb, managing editor of Forbes magazine; Phillip Ruthven, executive chair of the Ibis Group, Australia, and others.

The students, political figures, corporate leaders and investors gathered in San Francisco, Sept. 9-12, 1990, to discuss trade relations, government and corporate policies and prospects for the future.

Issues related to international trade, regional trading blocs and prospects for sustaining long-term growth and investment opportunities were foremost among the agenda items.

"We were delighted," said Potenziani, "to have a Notre Dame student selected by such an honor, and we were very proud of the job he did. His speech presented the views of tomorrow's Pacific Rim leaders to the leaders of today and addressed the issues and concerns of students from throughout the Pacific."

Jiang, who will receive his doctorate in economics at the conclusion of this semester, teaches "Business Conditions Analysis" for the department of finance and business economics in the College of Business Administration.

Irate customers shred credit cards in protest

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hundreds of customers of a department store chain are tearing up their credit cards and threatening a Christmas season boycott in a revolt over the retailer's uncharacteristic snub of Planned Parenthood.

"I don't think they expected any big outcry," said Toni Tschann of the Minnesota Women's Political Caucus. "And frankly, I never thought I'd hear from this many. But people aren't standing for it."

Shredded credit cards began arriving by mail at Dayton Hudson Corp.'s downtown headquarters after the company's charitable foundation confirmed on Labor Day weekend that it was halting $20,000 education grants to Planned Parenthood of Minnesota, ending a 22-year association.

The decision to end the grant came about the time the Christian Action Council of Falls Church, Va., said it would boycott Dayton's and other corporations for supporting Planned Parenthood.

Dayton Hudson spokeswoman Ann Barkelew said the decision had nothing to do with pressure from special interest groups, but arose from confusion about the donations, which some misconstrued as support for abortion.

Now the public response has prompted trustees of the Dayton Hudson Foundation to reconsider their decision and enter talks with Planned Parenthood that are set to continue this week.

Barkelew said several hundred customers have returned their credit cards. On Saturday, about 500 people rallied outside a Dayton's store in suburban Edina and repeated their vow to boycott all Dayton Hudson stores beginning the day after Thanksgiving unless funding is restored.

Development endangers tradition

Dear Editor:

What can a prestigious university, rich in tradition, do with 500 acres of woodlands?

The plans have been made by the Notre Dame administration to destroy and develop such an area. The plans for this "unknown wilderness" possibly consist in the building of a new football stadium replacing our famous one, thus ruining nature and ending part of the Notre Dame tradition. Student unity is needed against this misuse of funds which will destroy beautiful land and the caring, spirited tradition we attend this school for.

At a slide show at the Center for Social Concerns, I learned that the destruction of five acres has already been completed. This land contained free deer, birds, raccoons and many lush green trees and wildflowers, as do the over 500 acres remaining. These beautiful elements of nature cannot remain "unknown" and must not be destroyed as I have seen far too often.

I am from New Jersey where our motto, "The Garden State" is a distant memory. A new football stadium (or any development of the woods) would destroy Notre Dame's tradition just as chemical companies and shopping malls have torn down New Jersey's motto. The tradition of our stadium as we know it (sitting with "Touchdown Jesus" shadowing the field, etc.) would be forgotten. And our university's image as a place of social concern and Christian justice would be raped along with the thousands of trees.

We cannot want this to happen, and it does not need to be done. If we, the students, unite behind the life of the wilderness, the land and a great part of Notre Dame's tradition will be saved.

Relations committee makes headway

Dear Editor:

At the end of the '89 fall semester, the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's College Relations Committee was established. This joint university committee was formed to "create an atmosphere in which a positive and open feeling exists between members of the two campuses."

The committee plans to "serve as the driving force behind improvements in Notre Dame/Saint Mary's relations." To date, the committee consists of concerned students and faculty from both campuses.

On August 27, the committee sponsored its first event, the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Freshmen Women's picnic. The picnic was held at Saint Mary's Haggar College Center. The purpose of this was for the women to meet each other before stereotypical attitudes could be set. Being its first year, the picnic was a success. It was encouraging to see not only the number of women who participated, but also the interaction that took place.

Now it is time to explore further possibilities. The avenue is paved for improving relations.

It is now up to you, the student body, to make the effort. As founders of the committee, we hope to see increased involvement. As we pass the leadership to Susan Zielinski and Pete Jakus, we encourage you to join them in their quest to lessen the tensions, to move on to bettering relations, and to strengthen the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community as a whole.

Have you cleaned up your act?

Now that Notre Dame has been without maid service for a few weeks, how does your dorm look? How do you feel about the new cleaning procedures? Did the administration handle the change well? How does the cleanliness of your room (or lack thereof) compare with that of the "community areas" in the dorm? Write Viewpoint, P.O. Box Q, Notre Dame, IN 46556 and let us know what you think. Deadline for submissions is Tuesday, Sept. 18.

Alumni avoid ticket frustrations by costly package purchase

Dear Editor:

Recent remarks in The Observer note the difficulties encountered in securing tickets for the Notre Dame football matches—in particular home games. Alumni, including members of the Monogram Club, are similarly frustrated.

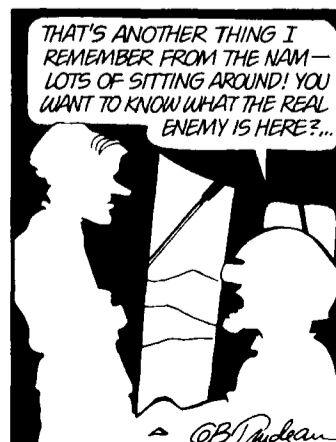

Sursum corda! The B/R Savings and Groan Society at the JACC provides relief. For a mere $419 per person, anyone on our planet can obtain a home game ticket. Via the B/R-Robustelli Marketing enterprise, anyone can buy a "Ticket to the Game" and two nights at an Elkhart hotel, bus trips between Elkhart and du Lac, an "Open Bar" Legends reception, a "Buffet Dinner with Beer, Wine" etc., the "Big Game Pep Rally" AND a "Legends Tailgate Party prior to the Game" at Krause Field—beer and wine are included at an otherwise dry du Lac. Think of that, citizens of du Lac! A mere $419 frees you of alumni lotteries and waiting lines at the ticket office. (Air fare to South Bend is extra.)

Given that the real cost of this novel B/R Savings and Groan Society package is an estimated $250, you can declare the near $200 difference as a tax deductible contribution to the CSC (Center of Sports Concerns). The IRS will allow this since, de facto, the University is now a wholly owned subsidiary of its Athletic Department.

Hispanic heritage month recognized at ND with native music and cuisine

accent writer

South Bend mayor Joe Kernam proclaimed September 16-October 15 Hispanic Heritage Month. In addition, Notre Dame's Hispanic student organizations will be sponsoring several events to promote the rich culture of Hispanoamérica.

Also during this month, Mexico's Independence Day will be observed on September 16 (Dieciséis de septiembre). Various celebrations, festivals, masses, dance, music, and food characterize the celebration. Dieciséis de septiembre is tantamount to the United States' Fourth of July celebration.

On September 16, 1810, Father Miguel Hidalgo, a Jesuit priest of the Mexican town of Dolores, called and administered a midnight mass, urging his parishioners to unite themselves in a "cause" against the Spanish rule that had so dominated Mexico for about 300 years. This mass has come to be known more famously as the "Grito de Dolores," which translated to English literally means the "Scream of Pains."

Hidalgo's followers grew from 600 to close to 100,000, most of whom were involved in the mining, agricultural, and manufacturing industries. Shortly thereafter, Hidalgo was excommunicated by the Bishop of Michoacán, thus allowing the Jesuit priest to mobilize further southward. Also, this gave the revolutionaries more time to organize, as more and more leaders emerged. Key among them was José María Morelos, who led the movement from the south.

On July 11, 1911, Father Hidalgo was killed, as his movement to Zacatecas proved unsuccessful and fatal. Though the "Father of the Mexican Independence Movement" died, his memory and martyrdom served as inspiration to the rest of the revolutionaries.

Having fought a long, drawn-out war, which lasted a little less than ten years, the Mexicans emerged victorious in securing their independence from the imperialistic Spanish rule.

Mexico's independence became official through the Treaty of Córdoba, signed on August 24, 1821. On September 27, 1821 Agustín de Iturbide became emperor, and Mexico was finally free from Spanish rule.

The celebration begins this Friday at Theodore's. Hispanic music will be played from 9:00 p.m. - 1:30 a.m. Food such as salsa, merengue, lambada, onda (Tex-Mex), will also be served. All are welcome to attend.

To obtain the right to wave this flag Mexico had to obtain its independence from Spain which is celebrated annually on September 16.

Billy Bragg's EP 'the Internationale' promotes strong socialist themes

Fran Moyer
accent writer

Workers of the world unite! The vanguard of socialism, Billy Bragg, has released a seven song EP, The Internationale.

For those of you who worship the ground that Ronald Reagan walks upon, this album is not for you. In fact, you will probably be sickened by the "Pinko Commie" message this demented Englishman spews.

Billy Bragg has never been a man who is afraid to espouse his political views, as is obvious by listening to songs on his five previous albums, such as "There is Power in a Union," "It Says Here," "Help Save the Youth of America," and "Waiting for the Great Leap Forward."

The overt left-wing political message of Bragg is no less prevalent in The Internationale than in his other albums, but it takes on a different form.

In The Internationale, Bragg only wrote two of the seven songs, which is a major diversion for this Brit, who is as much a song writer as a performer. Instead of writing his own songs, Bragg relies on traditional folk songs that explore various economic and political topics.

The EP is excellent, except for the first song, "The Internationale." This song, originally adopted by the French Workers Party and later embraced by the Soviet Union as its national anthem until 1943, is very much like the boring and stuffy "Pomp and Circumstance."

By including this song, Bragg let his desire to be known as a socialist go too far, as he trades enjoyable music for purely ideological lyrics. After a struggle through this first cut, however, the rest of the EP is very enjoyable.

In addition, Bragg's songs are not devoid of humor, as is obvious in the upbeat "The Marching Song of the Covert Battalions," which pokes fun at the U.S. military, who Bragg believes are "here to defend wealth" and make "the world safe for capitalism."

The most captivating song on the EP is the stirring song "The Red Flag," originally written in 1889 by an Irishman and now used by the British Labour Party. This traditional tune contains inspirational lyrics and is set to the old Jacobite air of "The White Cockade," which compels one to tap one's foot to the moving music.

The final song on The Internationale, "My Youngest son Came Home Today," has to be ranked as one of Bragg's best. Written by Eric Bogle, author of great anti-war ballads such as "The Band Played Waltzing Matilda" and "The Green Fields of France," this selection is dark and morbid.

The whining recorder creates an eerie atmosphere under which Bragg's voice moans "The fife and drum beat out the time/While in his box of polished pine/Like dead meat on a butcher's tray/My young son came home today."

The Internationale is a great album. It outdoes Bragg's previous album, Worker's Playtime, and is a positive indication that Bragg is back to the excellence of his earlier records.

Wilson Phillips creates harmonic trio with its debut album

MAUREEN GALLAGHER
accent writer

Wilson Phillips has released their self-titled debut album which for the most part is fresh and innovative. The group consists of sisters Carnie and Wendy Wilson and Chynna Phillips.

It is no coincidence that these names may sound familiar, for these ladies spring from families with strong musical backgrounds. Carnie and Wendy Wilson are the daughters of one of the Beach Boys, Brian Wilson, and Chynna Phillips' parents were members of the Mommias and the Poppas.

This history, as well as the fact that the girls have grown up together, may explain how effortlessly their voices seem to meld, producing a pure, clean sound.

The songs have soft, soothing melodies which are pleasing to the ear, and words which are simple, but very appropriate. "Hold On," which was popular earlier this year, and "Impulsive" are two songs which seem to exemplify this basic form, which borders on soft pop. However, they still manage to be catchy and fitting in the emotions they evoke.

The group features three very distinct voices. Unfortunately, they do not always highlight them. Wilson Phillips does not hide behind heavy synthesized guitar. In fact, the background music is soft. However, it sometimes seems like they try to hide behind each other's voices, and no one really gets an opportunity to shine.

After a few songs it becomes difficult to distinguish where one song ends and another begins. Promising songs like "Release Me," "Over and Over" and "The Dream is Still Alive" get lost in the repetition of beat and melody. This repetition tends to get monotonous and makes these songs seem more trite than they actually are.

Two surprisingly strong songs, which show a depth not evident in many of the other songs, are "Next To You (Someday I'll Be)" and "Eyes Like Twins." In these two songs, but especially in "Eyes Like Twins," they seem to explore different qualities of their voices and experiment with harmony and different beats. These songs are refreshingly different from the other songs.

For a debut album Wilson Phillips has put forth a very strong effort. In this album they skillfully harmonize, and perhaps in their next album they can learn to combine this strength with a little experimentation and a little more depth.

Alvarez shows restraint after Badgers' first win

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — It marked his first victory as Wisconsin's head football coach, but Barry Alvarez insisted he wouldn't reflect long on the Badgers' 24-7 thumping of Ball State.

"I know we have a long way to go to improve and I'm already thinking about Temple," the Badgers' next opponent, Alvarez said after Wisconsin evened its record at 1-1 Saturday before a Camp Randall Stadium crowd of 44,698 fans.

"We needed a win badly and the kids needed it more than anything, just for the fact that they can believe in the things that we are talking about and so they can enjoy it," Alvarez said.

Enjoy it they did, particularly tailback Robert Williams and wide receiver Lionell Crawford, who made Amends for their play in Wisconsin's season-opening loss to California at week earlier.

Williams, criticized for a lack of second effort against California, raced 23 yards for a touchdown the first time he got his hands on the ball, and followed with another second quarter touchdown from 1 yard out.

"For some reason, I was a lot more relaxed this week," said Williams, who rushed for 114 yards on 10 carries. "In the past I was playing to impress the coaches," he said. "Today I just wanted to do my job."

Lead dwindles while Sox await return of Clemens

(AP)—While Roger Clemens waits to find out if he can pitch this week, the Boston Red Sox continued to stumble.

The Chicago White Sox completed a four-game sweep of first-place Boston, beating the Red Sox 4-2 Sunday as Bobby Thigpen got his 51st save.

"This is the series I feared the most all month," Boston manager Joe Morgan said. "We don't play well here and we never get any breaks. I'll be glad to get the hell out of here. Have you ever seen so many cheap hits in all your life?"

Boston, which leads Toronto by 1 1/2 games in the American League East, has lost six of its last seven games. The Blue Jays were scheduled to play Baltimore on Sunday night.

"To play as badly as we did and still be in first place is a plus," Dwight Evans said. "It's up to us now, and that's the way it should be."

Eric King (10-4) allowed five hits in seven innings. Barry Jones pitched a hitless inning and Thigpen finished the combined eight-hitter.

Boston pulled within two runs in the ninth on singles by Mike Greenwell, Mike Marshall and Tony Pena. After Danny Heep walked to load the bases, Thigpen snared Jody Reed's line drive to end the game.

Meanwhile, Clemens intends to throw hard on Tuesday. He will be examined Wednesday and if everything is all right, he will start against the New York Yankees on Friday.

Athletics 5, Twins 4

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Walt Weiss drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the 11th inning as Oakland reduced the magic number for its third consecutive AL West title to seven.

Mark McGwire doubled with two outs off Juan Berenguer (8-4) and Terry Steinbach was intentionally walked before Weiss' single.

Tigers 5, Yankees 2

DETROIT (AP) — Cecil Fielder hit his 47th home run,

Steve Searcy and Paul Gibson combined on a two-hitter and Alan Trammell hit three run-scoring singles.

Yankees starter Chuck Cary (5-10) left the game on a stretcher after he collided with first baseman Steve Balboni chasing a foul popup. Cary, who briefly was unconscious, was taken to a hospital for X-rays.

Royals 9, Indians 6

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bo Jackson led off the seventh inning with a go-ahead home run off Efrain Valdez (0-1) as Kansas City ended the Indians' four-game winning streak.

Bill Pecota hit an inside-the-park home run and Kevin Seitzer and George Brett each had solo homers for the Royals, who won for just the second time in 13 games.

Mariners 5, Angels 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Pinch-hitter Ken Griffey Jr. hit a three-run homer off Bryan Harvey (3-4) in the ninth inning.

Mike Greenwell and the Sox have had little to celebrate lately.

Late BYU rally avoids upset

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Another week, another surprise at Brigham Young.

A week after its 28-21 upset of defending national champ Miami, BYU went out against Washington State and surprised almost everyone by falling behind 29-7 at halftime.

It took a school record 36-point fourth quarter — with Ty Detmer throwing three touchdown passes in the last 15 minutes — for No. 5 BYU to rally Saturday for a 50-36 victory.

"I knew during warmups that we were in trouble," Edwards said. "We were dropping passes. They just weren't into it. All this talk about an undefeated season and the Heisman (for Detmer) was a distraction."

Washington State jumped to a 20-7 first-quarter lead on field goals of 44 and 21 yards by Jason Hanson, a 53-yard scoring run by Shaumbe Wright-Fair and a 49-yard scoring pass from Brad Gossen to Calvin Griggs. Detmer had the first of his five TD passes — a 4-yarder to Peter Tuipulotu in the opening 15 minutes.

In the second quarter, Detmer was intercepted twice. One stopped BYU at WSU's 29, and Gossen drove his team 75 yards for Hanson's third field goal, a 23-yarder. On the ensuing series, Matt Bellini bobbled a Detmer pass, which was intercepted by strong safety Alvin Dunn, who ran 25 yards for a touchdown. The 2-point conversion pass failed, leaving WSU with a 29-7 lead.

"I told them it didn't matter whether we won or lost at halftime, but that the last 30 minutes would set the tone for what the rest of the season would be," Edwards said. "This was a real gut check for us and I am proud of our guys."

It was all BYU in the second half. By the end of the third quarter, it was 29-14 on Detmer's 2-yard TD pass to Nati Valdez. Then it got wild.

Within a two-minute span of the final quarter, Detmer threw a 16-yard scoring pass to Brent Nyber, hit a 2-point conversion pass to Chris Smith, and hit Andy Boyce with a 32-yard touchdown pass to tie the score at 29-29.

With 4:34 left, Detmer hit Stacey Corley with a 9-yard touchdown pass and, after Gossen and Griggs hooked up on a 7-yard scoring play to forge another tie, Tuipulotu put the Cougars ahead for good with a 23-yard TD run.

BYU's final touchdown came when Gossen was sacked at the WSU 13 on fourth down and Corley scored on a 5-yard run three plays later.

"There are not many teams in the country that can score 43 points in a half," Detmer, who completed 32-of-50 passes for 448 yards, said. "We got fired up and got hot. Our defense gave us the ball, our receivers came through over and over. I can't say enough good about our defense line."

Washington State coach Mike Price said he believed his team had a good chance to win the game.

"I thought we had a chance going in at halftime like we did," he said. "(But) you put Ty Detmer and that offense on the field and they are going to score points. He stays on the field and they are going to score."

SEC could try to woo Hurricanes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Southeastern Conference's search for a 12th member turns to Miami this week now that Florida's other powerhouse football independent has spurned the league in favor of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden, born and educated in the heart of SEC country, said Sunday he wanted Florida State to keep away from SEC membership despite his lifetime admiration for the league. He proved that last week as the Seminoles became the ninth member of the ACC.

"We think we've earned our own identity," said Bowden, a Birmingham, Ala. native who would like to coach 10 more years at Florida State.

"In regard to recruiting, we're definitely better off not in the same conference with Florida," he said. "From a football standpoint, we simply have more flexibility."

Miami president Edward Foote said SEC officials will visit the university this week to discuss expansion. The move is significant because SEC commissioner Roy Kramer has visited only one other campus — Florida State.

But Foote said it was premature to assume the SEC would extend a bid to the Hurricanes, an independent in both football and basketball.

"I think since FSU has made its decision, it will increase conversation," Foote said. "But we don't know what the SEC is going to say to us when they come down."

Miami athletic director Sam Jankovich also acknowledged that Florida State's decision likely would "escalate the process," but said the Hurricanes' target date for deciding whether to join a conference remained the "latter part of September to the first of October."

Kramer, who has never acknowledged that the SEC is interested in Miami, refused comment. He is expected to speak with Foote on Monday to determine what day he and other conference officials will visit.

The SEC added Arkansas as an 11th team earlier this summer and is actively seeking a 12th so it can break into two six-team divisions.

AP Photo

The Tigers will soon be trying to tackle Seminoles instead of Panthers.

went the final two yards for the score.

Michigan pulled to within four with just over four minutes remaining in the half when Watters fumbled at the Notre Dame 34 and Grbac hit a wide-open Howard for a 44-yard touchdown pass just two plays later.

The Wolverines took the lead on their opening drive of the second half. A pair of Grbac passes to Howard accounted for 40 yards and two first downs and Vaughn picked up two more, moving the ball to the Notre Dame three. The Irish defense held for two plays, but tailback Allen Jefferson sprinted around left end on third-and-goal from the one, giving Michigan a 17-14 lead.

"I thought this might be the best Michigan team coming into the game, but they were even better than I anticipated," Holtz said of a Wolverine rushing attack that gained 265 yards in the game. "I haven't seen anybody run the ball on Notre Dame like that."

The Wolverines extended their lead to ten points just seconds later after a Tony Brooks fumble gave them the ball at the Irish 25. Grbac hit Howard in the left flat on first down and the fleet flanker outsprinted Rod Smith and George Poorman down the sideline and into the end zone.

Down by 10 and failing miserably in its attempts to stop Vaughn, Notre Dame entrusted its number-one ranking to its previously untested sophomore quarterback.

Faced with a 3rd-and-15 situation from its own 15-yard line, Notre Dame came battling back. Mirer launched a pass to the streaking Ismail on the right side of the field. The ball bounced out of Ismail's hands and into the outstretched arms of freshman split end Lake Dawson, who advanced it to the Michigan 40.

"I think that certainly was a big swing in the momentum," Holtz said.

Culver capped the 13-play, 80-yard drive with a one-yard plunge up the middle, pulling the Irish to within three at 24-21.

Michigan drove to the Notre Dame 11 on its next possession, but Stonebreaker's interception gave the Irish what seemed to be their last chance for a comeback. However, Mirer returned the favor just five plays later when he overthrew Tony Smith over the middle and safety Vada Murray intercepted the ball, returning it to the Michigan 19.

The Wolverines picked up one first down before they were forced to punt from their own 30-yard line. Ismail fielded Eduardo Azcona's 46-yard punt at the Notre Dame 24 and the Irish began their final drive with 4:33 remaining on the game clock.

On third-and-six from the Notre Dame 28, Mirer threw on the run to Smith for a 13-yard gain. Watters picked up 16 on the ground, and Mirer rolled left and connected with Ismail on the left sideline for an 11-yard pickup. Mirer then rolled right, spotted Jarrell at the goal line, and hit him with the winning touchdown pass.

"It was a heck of a football game," said Holtz. "If we played another quarter, we might have been behind at the end of the fifth quarter. It's unfortunate when you have a game like that, you have to end it after four quarters."

Moeller might very well agree.

for now, there are other teams and other drives.

He cannot afford to enjoy the spotlight just yet. One DRIVE does not make a quarterback, even if it is big enough to put in capital letters.

If this keeps up, they might have to give Mirer an entire row of lockers to accommodate the hoards of media that will follow him.

He can only hope they will come for the right reasons.

Ismail shined at crunch time

By GREG GUFFEY and FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writers

Rocket Ismail might not have scored the winning touchdown Saturday night in Notre Dame's 28-24 come-from-behind victory over Michigan, but he did make the big plays in the final drive.

Ismail, who missed half of the second quarter after he suffered a bruised sternum, caught two passes and carried once in Notre Dame's winning drive, a 9-play, 76-yard effort that ended with a Rick Mirer touchdown pass to Adrian Jarrell.

Ismail touched the ball three consecutive times in that drive — a run up the middle for four yards, a screen pass from Mirer for another four yards and an 11-yard pass from Mirer on the left sidelines.

"We were on the sidelines and Rick Watters said to me, 'This is the time when All-Americans become All-Americans,'" said Ismail, one of the favorites to win the Heisman Trophy. "He couldn't have said it much better than that."

He also "touched" off the biggest play in Notre Dame's third-quarter scoring drive.

INDIVIDUAL STATISTICS

RUSHING—Michigan, Vaughn 22-201, Bunch 11-33, Jefferson 4-21. Notre Dame, Culver 19-95, Ismail 6-41, Watters 7-41, T. Brooks 8-36.

PASSING—Michigan, Grbac 17-30-2-190. Notre Dame, Mirer 14-23-1-165.

RECEIVING—Michigan, Howard 6-133, Vaughn 6-41, Alexander 2-21. Notre Dame, Ismail 4-42, Jarrell 2-26, Dawson 1-45.

On third and 15 from the Irish 15, Mirer threw a pass to Ismail streaking up the right side of the field. Ismail tipped the ball and it ended up in the hands of Notre Dame split end Lake Dawson, who picked up 45 yards and a first down. The Irish scored five plays later.

Ismail finished with four catches for 42 yards and carried six times for 56 yards. Michigan varied its kicking game, allowing Ismail just one return for 25 yards.

Jon Vaughn settled any questions about the Michigan tailback position.

Running behind one of the most powerful offensive lines in the country, Vaughn gained a career-high 201 yards. He gained 57 yards in all of 1989.

"It's been awhile since I've seen a team run the ball like that," said Irish coach Lou Holtz.

Indeed, it had been almost three years since Penn State's Blair Thomas broke the 200-yard barrier, gaining 214 yards against the Irish.

Mirer, a lifelong Michigan fan who once told former Wolverine head coach Bo Schembechler that he would someday play for him, wore a tattered Michigan tee-shirt under his uniform Saturday night.

Mirer told reporters that the shirt was a source of inspiration and a reminder of the game's personal importance for him. He added that he does not plan to wear an opponent's tee-shirt every week.

Holtz compared the game to a great heavyweight fight.

"One time, one team's on top and has momentum, and the other one bounces up. If one guy knocks the other guy down and the other guy stays down, it isn't a great fight."

"You knock this guy down, and he gets up and knocks you down. You get up and knock him down, and it just goes back and forth."

Notre Dame became the first team since Purdue (1962-1966) to defeat Michigan four consecutive times. . . . Notre Dame is now 59-9-3 when ranked first in the nation, a figure that includes 15-1 under Holtz. . . . Fullback Rodney Culver picked up a career-high 95 yards on 19 carries in the game. His previous high was 61 yards against Purdue in 1988.

The Observer/Andrew McCloskey

Rodney Culver led all Irish rushers with 95 yards.

Mirer

pocket, he threw on the run and hit Smith for 13 yards and the first down. Mirer later capped the drive with an 18-yard touchdown pass to Adrian Jarrell. In THE DRIVE, he completed five of six passes for 52 yards, nearly a third of his 165 total passing yards.

"We had a lot of motion as a unit in the drive," Mirer said. "It tells us we can come back from a deficit. It gives us confidence that we can be down to a great football team and still come back and win."

Mirer said he didn't even feel nervous when the Irish trailed 24-21. He knew there would be at least one more chance.

"He (Coach Lou Holtz) said, 'We're right in this thing and there's no reason to feel we can't win.'" Holtz said. "He felt we didn't need to run the ball that much. We needed to throw the ball. He asked me what I felt comfortable with and those things - we attacked the corners and ran some curls and some safe patterns."

This is the kind of win Mirer can look back on with pleasure a few years down the road. But

Smith, Dolphins trash Bills

(AP)—The Miami Dolphins, no longer Dan Marino and a prayer, are 2-0 for the first time since 1984 by using ball control and defense — ingredients missing in a four-year playoff drought — to rout the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

It wasn't the passing of Marino, the blocking of an offensive line that kept the usually relentless Bills off the quarterback or the running of rookie Sammie Smith that had Coach Don Shula crowing after a 30-7 victory.

"The first three quarters were as good as you want to be around, from the standpoint of balance, not making errors and getting the ball for our offense in good field position," said Shula, who became the fourth NFL coach to win 200 games.

Smith scored two touchdowns on short runs and gained 56 yards on 18 carries as Miami took the lead in the AFC East for the first time since December 1985. The Dolphins, who allowed 280 rushing yards in losing to the Bills last December, outgained Buffalo 128-44 this time.

"For us to turn it around like we did today makes me feel real good," Shula said.

49ers 26, Redskins 13

Joe Montana, who became San Francisco's all-time leader in career passing yardage, threw for touchdowns to John Taylor and Jerry Rice.

Montana completed 29 of 44 passes for 390 yards, eclipsing John Brodie's record of 31,548 with a 37-yard completion to Taylor in the third quarter. The play gave Montana 31,551 career yards. He finished with 31,654.

Taylor had eight catches for 160 yards and Rice six for 74. Mike Cofer kicked four field goals for the 49ers (2-0).

Reds push lead to 5 1/2

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers self-destructed, wasting plentiful scoring chances and misplaying Bill Doran's fly ball into a costly two-run double as the Cincinnati Reds reopened a 5 1/2-game lead in the National League West.

The Dodgers needed a win Sunday for a three-game sweep that would have got them within 3 1/2 games of Cincinnati. Instead, the Reds reduced the magic number to 12 for clinching their first division title since 1979.

The Dodgers had plenty of opportunities to take control early — they loaded the bases in three of the first four innings off Norm Charlton and Scott Scudder (4-5). They left them loaded all three times, stranding a total of 10 runners and scoring just twice.

Center fielder Stan Javier then made a key misplay of Doran's fly ball to start a six-run fifth inning against Mike Morgan (10-14) that snapped a 2-2 tie.

remarked senior captain and stopper Paul LaVigne. "With the exception of a couple fluke goals, it was very effective."

By the middle of the first half, the Irish began mounting an impressive offensive attack of their own, culminating with an acrobatic "bicycle" shot by halfback Mitch Kern which nearly resulted in the game's first score.

However, in the waning moments of the first half, St. Louis managed to take advantage of a rare collapse of the Notre Dame defense as Billiken forward Ritchie Bright lofted a shot over the head of Notre Dame goalie Matt Fitz to give the Billikens a 1-0 lead.

The score quieted the small but enthusiastic crowd at Krause, but the Irish continued to play with intensity for the remainder of the first half, narrowly missing several scoring opportunities.

Notre Dame came out strong in the second period, continuing to harass the Billiken defense and forcing St. Louis to slow the tempo of the match with a string of conservative passes which chewed up nearly four minutes from the clock.

With thirty one minutes remaining in the game, the Irish inexperience began to show as the defense unraveled and a seemingly harmless shot by Billiken forward Kevin Huber deflected off a host of defenders and into the net, boosting the St. Louis lead to 2-0.

"The second goal was due to a mistake caused by immaturity," Berticelli commented. "We have to stop allowing the cheap goals if we expect to play with the top teams."

Following the second Billiken score, Notre Dame managed to regain its composure, and at the 29 minute mark wingback Kenyon Meyer drilled a brilliant shot past goalie Kevin Johnston, recharging the Irish offense and cutting the lead in half.

The Irish continued to press St. Louis, and with thirteen minutes left in regulation the team's perseverance again paid off in the form of an unassisted Mario Tricoli goal which tied the score at 2-2.

The deadlock was short-lived as Billiken forward Steve Kuntz took matters into his own hands, dribbling the length of the field and placing a pinpoint shot into the corner of the Irish net, giving St. Louis the lead for good.

Despite the loss, Berticelli remained optimistic about his team's future, which includes a home matchup tonight with intrastate rival Valparaiso.

"You saw a different team out there tonight," he said. "This game will help us get over the hump."

Valparaiso, which returns eight starters from last year's 5-16 squad, will enter Krause Stadium today winless in nineteen attempts versus the Irish.

Irish women win a pair in weekend homestand

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team (3-2) wrapped up a successful weekend at home on Sunday afternoon, dumping Washington University 2-0 just two days after recording a 12-1 ambush of Valparaiso.

On Friday, the Irish overcame a delayed game start and slippery field conditions to handily trounce the visiting club team. Against Valparaiso, Susie Zilvitis opened the Irish scoring book at the 13:00 mark of the first half, scoring on an assist from Marianne Giolitto.

Giolitto, who had a goal nullified by a questionable call only seconds earlier, chipped a pass over a wall of defenders to the waiting Zilvitis for a 1-0 Irish lead.

Sophomore Margaret Jarc found the net 15:00 later, as she drilled a shot from the front left corner of the penalty box over the flailing hands of Valparaiso goalie Jen Baird.

"I guess that this game proves that our program has maybe progressed beyond playing club teams," stated Notre Dame head coach Chris Petrucelli. "It's great that so many kids played and scored. I'm happy with that. But I cannot honestly say that we are a better team after this game."

"We have spent lots of time working on crossing and scoring on crosses, and seven or eight of our goals in this game were as a result of that work, so I'm pleased about that."

Notre Dame dominated every facet of the game, next scoring on a fast break by freshman Alison Lester of Schaumburg, Illinois. Lester took a pass near midfield and motored past the defense before putting her shot into the goal for a 3-0 Irish edge.

Moments later, Margaret Jarc, on an assist from Susie Zilvitis, tallied her second goal of the afternoon on a fast break, putting Notre Dame on top 4-0. Only four minutes later, Stephanie Porter, on another Zilvitis assist, burnt the Valparaiso defenders for a 5-0 margin.

Notre Dame, which had 15 shots in the first half (35 in the game), closed out its first half scoring when Alison Lester headed a pass from Zilvitis into the net.

Valparaiso's lone score came with 1:10 left in the first half, as Lueene Vernerine fed Kim Heinrich, who blasted a shot past Irish goalkeeper Michelle Lodyga.

The second half saw the Irish continue their domination, as they rattled off six more goals. Freshman Tasha Strawbridge had a second-half hat trick, with two unassisted goals and one assisted by Marta Roemer. Freshman Christie Lewis also nailed two goals (with assists from Brenda Gorski and Marta Roemer).

Sophomore midfielder Denise Chabot added a goal on an assist from Tasha Strawbridge. Strawbridge's hat trick was the first of the season for Notre Dame.

On Sunday, the Irish attack was not quite as sharp, as they rebounded from a scoreless first half to defeat the Bears of Washington University.

Although Notre Dame outshot its opponent 15-1 (6-0 in the second half), goals were very hard to come by. The harried Irish faced quite a task in beating Washington goalie

The Irish women's soccer team hammered Valparaiso on Friday, 12-1.

Jennifer Haddad, but they found a way to do it at the 60:38 mark. Susie Zilvitis, who had been robbed by Haddad in the first half, took an assist from Alison Lester and beat the formidable Haddad for a 1-0 Irish lead.

"Although we dominated the game, there was no chance of us losing," observed Petrucelli. "We could have made it easier if we had finished our chances, but we didn't, and that led them to believe that they could play with us, when they had no business believing that."

"I'm happy with the way we played, but I'm not necessarily happy with the result, because we wanted to score some more goals."

A minor controversy over the interpretation of the new NCAA substitution rules followed the first Irish score, with referee Galen Graber sticking to the book. Graber, consistent with the 1990 NCAA rulebook, said that an injured player who has been substituted may not return. General substitution rules state that once a player has come off the field, that player may not return until the next half.

If a player is injured, the coach may remove that player and play one player short until the injured player is able to re-take the field. The coach may also substitute for that injured player. If the coach chooses to substitute for the injured player, that player removed may not play again until the next half.

However, this slight officiating controversy was only one of many between the coaches and referees on the day.

Notre Dame's final score came with just under 10 minutes remaining in the contest, as Alison Lester continued her two-day scoring rampage. Lester, who took an assist from Marianne Giolitto, headed a point-blank shot over the head of the Washington keeper to seal the Irish win.

"Alison Lester was outstanding," noted coach Chris Petrucelli. "She was dangerous today. They did not stop her, and they never dealt with her at all."

"This was a good weekend for us. We scored some goals and we got two good wins. Things are starting to come together. We're starting to play better, and we are getting better all the time. It's all starting to show on the field."

Next up for Notre Dame is a Wednesday evening home matchup with Saint Joseph's.

Victory propels Notre Dame to No. 1 in nation

Hoyas teach ND a difficult lesson

By RICH MATHURIN
Sports Writer

As expected, the Georgetown women's cross country team dominated the Irish at Burke Memorial golf course on Saturday. All 11 of Georgetown's runners placed in front of the overmatched Irish.

Georgetown's Susan Dahn took first place in the meet, running the 5,000 meters in an impressive 17:48.2. The closest Irish finisher was junior Diana Bradley, who came in a distant twelfth, but still managed to break the 19 minute mark with a time of 18:47.5. She was followed by fellow junior Amy Blaising, who ran in a time of 18:58.5.

The race began with the Irish in decent position after the first quarter of the race. Bradley and Blaising only trailed a pack of five Hoya runners with another group of six Hoya runners trailing them. At the half way point, though, that had all changed. The six Georgetown runners overtook the two Irish runners and the race was decided at that point. The 11

Hoyas never looked back in coasting to the victory.

"We knew Georgetown was tough, so we tried to run as a team," said Bradley of the ill-fated strategy.

"This kind of race teaches us that we have the talent and can use the experience to work against other teams," continued Bradley.

"You can't be happy until you win. We knew Georgetown was one of the top three teams in the country. All we can do is just keep working," said a somber Irish coach Tim Connelly.

Irish gun down Michigan with fourth-quarter rally

ND scores 14 points in final stanza, holds on to defeat Wolverines and ruin Moeller's debut

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

Rick Mirer saved his best for last.

Notre Dame's sophomore quarterback, who shuns comparisons to Joe Montana, posed a striking resemblance to the 49ers star when he led the Irish on a nine-play, 76-yard scoring drive in the closing minutes of Saturday night's thrilling 28-24 victory over Michigan. It was not unlike the drive Montana sparked in San Francisco's Super Bowl XXIII win over Cincinnati.

Top-ranked Notre Dame rallied from a 10-point, fourth-quarter deficit to defeat fourth-ranked Michigan and become the first team in 24 years to beat the Wolverines four straight times.

Mirer completed five of six passes on the final scoring drive, including the game winner—an 18-yard strike to flanker Adrian Jarrell between two defenders with 1:40 remaining—in his first collegiate start.

"We never gave up hope," Head Coach Lou Holtz said after the game. "We just kept our poise and moved the ball down the field. The thing I was scared of is that we scored too early."

Holtz's fear was compounded when Desmond Howard returned Craig Hentrich's ensuing kickoff to the Michigan 41. But on the next play, cornerback Reggie Brooks intercepted Elvis Grbac's pass intended for Howard at the Notre Dame 40, preserving the Irish victory and spoiling the debut of Wolverine Head Coach Gary Moeller.

"When we came in here," Moeller said, "we felt like we were going to win this football game, and this hurts. A couple of calls by me probably didn't prove out to be very good calls."

The most significant of those calls came with just over ten minutes remaining in the game and Michigan looking to build on its 24-21 lead, facing a first-and-ten situation at the Notre Dame 11. Although tailback Jon Vaughn had already sliced through the Irish defense for 55 yards in three carries on the drive (22 carries for 201 yards overall), Moeller called for a pass play that was picked off by inside linebacker Michael Stonebreaker in the end zone.

"I made that call all on my own and we just didn't execute the play," said Moeller. "It was quite honestly a high-percentage pass, but nothing's a given in this game."

The only certainty in any

The Observer/Andrew McCloskey

Adrian Jarrell (10) caught this 18-yard scoring pass to give Notre Dame the lead for good.

Notre Dame-Michigan matchup is that no lead is insurmountable as long as there is time remaining on the clock.

Notre Dame jumped out to a 14-3 first-quarter advantage behind an opportunistic defense and a well-balanced offense. Safety Greg Davis set up the first Irish score when he recovered Vaughn's fumble at the Michigan 26. The turnover was caused by a miscommunication in the Wolverine backfield, an indirect result of Michigan's no-huddle offense.

"We knew we had to do one thing to come in here and beat this team," Moeller said. "We had to set the tempo on both sides of the football. It seemed to be effective for the most part."

The Irish offense seized the opportunity and drew first blood when Mirer completed a six-play drive with a three-yard option run for the opening score.

Following a 38-yard field goal by J.D. Carlson, Notre Dame put together an impressive 11-play, 75-yard scoring drive to go ahead 14-3. Mirer hit tailback Ricky Watters for 17 yards and a first down and flanker Raghib Ismail for 14 yards. Fullback Rodney Culver (a career-high 95 yards on 19 carries) set up the touchdown with a 20-yard run to the Michigan two, and Tony Brooks

Notre Dame runners hammer Hoyas

By BARB MORAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's cross country team started off its season on the right foot, capturing a decisive 20-41 upset over 12th-ranked Georgetown Saturday morning.

The Irish, who are currently ranked 13th in the nation, took a strong lead at the outset and held it until the end of the 5-mile race. A pack of nine runners, seven from Notre Dame, led for the first three miles. When the group split at the four mile mark, Irish harriers Mike O'Connor and John Coyle took the lead, followed closely by Ryan Cahill of the Irish and Steve Holman of the Hoyas.

O'Connor crossed the finish line first, with a time of 24:43.3, and was followed only two seconds later by Georgetown's Holman. Coyle, Cahill, and Patrick Kearns captured the remaining three of the top five spots for the Irish. Overall, Notre Dame had seven runners finish in the top ten, including freshman Mike McWilliams, who placed ninth.

Irish coach Joe Piane was extremely pleased, though not surprised, by his team's strong performance, and expects them to continue improving.

"It was a great meet," said Piane, "it's obvious that we were underrated (in the national rankings), and it's hard to expect us not to go up. The team ran very well, and once J.T. Burke is back in, we'll be even better."

Burke skipped the meet due to illness and is questionable for Notre Dame's next meet, the National Catholic Invitational on September 28.

Piane is planning to keep the Irish working hard for the next several weeks in preparation for several invitationals and the NCAA trials on November 25. The upset over the Hoyas should give the Irish a strong boost in the national rankings and begin the momentum needed to carry them into the postseason.

Mirer enjoys talking about 'THE DRIVE'

Someone shouted a good warning in the Notre Dame lockerroom to sophomore quarterback Rick Mirer after he had rallied the Irish to a 28-24 victory over Michigan Saturday night.

"Get ready Rick," he said. "Here they come."

But Mirer didn't seem to mind because the reporters and TV cameras were there for the right reasons - to talk about THE DRIVE in which he led the Irish to the winning touchdown in the closing minutes of Saturday's game.

At least they weren't here to ask him why he hit Michigan free safety Vada Murray in the numbers with a pass deep in Wolverine territory earlier in the fourth quarter (He answered anyway: "Tony Smith was wide open. I was excited and I wanted to get him the ball."). Or how it felt to lose in his first career start at Notre Dame (He made sure he didn't have to answer that one).

Greg Guffey

Sports Editor

This was a time when Mirer didn't care if they stayed all night, if they asked him to replay all four quarters and discuss everything he's done from birth to his first Irish victory. He knew that once he left that room there would be little time to savor the victory.

"I wasn't really nervous even though I had a lot on my mind," said Mirer, who wears the same number as former Notre Dame and San Francisco great Joe Montana. "I grew up a fan of Michigan and it was sweet to get my first victory against them. I knew too many guys on that team to have let them take away my first chance at victory."

It used to be that Mirer could be the first one to shower and exit the lockerroom. He probably received more media attention in his senior year at nearby Goshen High than he did in his freshman year at Notre Dame.

But THE DRIVE changed that.

Trailing 24-21 with 4:33 left in the game, the Irish took over at their own 24. Mirer overthrew a wide open Tony Smith on the first play and then scrambled for four yards on the second.

The third-and-six play might have been Mirer's best. After being flushed out of the Men lose heartbreaker to St. Louis; prepare to meet Valparaiso today

By HUGH MUNDY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's soccer team gathered on the rain soaked Krause Stadium field Friday night knowing an upset of the ninth-ranked St. Louis University Billikens would avenge last year's MCC Championship loss and ensure the Irish national recognition.

Although the team was unable to realize its goal, ultimately dropping a heartbreaking 3-2 decision, the Irish, who will host Valparaiso today at 7:30 p.m. at Krause Stadium, did not emerge from the defeat empty handed.

"We gained some valuable experience tonight," said a dejected coach Mike Berticelli following the contest. "Unfortunately, our kids deserved to win."

It was apparent from the match's onset that the Irish had little respect for the highly touted St. Louis squad, as they thwarted the sophisticated Billiken passing attack with tenacious defensive play
