CARE works to prevent rape on ND/SMC campuses

By PETER LOFTUS
Assistant News Editor

Campus Alliance for Rape Elimination (CARE), a long-standing club at Saint Mary's, attained club status at Notre Dame at the beginning of this semester.

At a recent meeting, the members of CARE discussed a wide range of topics: methods of self-defense, phones around campus, lights in D-2, male-female discussion groups. They laughed, but they had a very serious subject in the backs of their minds: rape.

"We want to create an awareness of and try to prevent further sexual abuse on campus," said ND senior Beth Maus, publicity chairwoman for CARE.

CARE was established on Saint Mary's campus about eight years ago, according to the alliance's adviser, Betsy Pawlicki, assistant director of residence life at Notre Dame.

Approximately 25 students from Notre Dame and Saint Mary's attended the group's first meeting of the academic year.

To achieve CARE's main purpose, events are planned similar to ones held in the past—big-name speakers, programs for students, and programs for sexual offense counselors in both the ND/SMC and South Bend areas.

One of the events discussed at CARE's organizational meeting was the "dating game." The game, which is still in the planning stages, will be similar to the one on T.V., said Maus, but would feature questions that are sex-offense oriented and would prompt discussion. The game will focus on attitudes and perspectives of men and women concerning sex and sexuality.

CARE, in conjunction with Sex Offense Services (SOS) in South Bend, has already distributed the oft-seen "No means No" posters and buttons around campus.

Also involved in CARE are Renee Levesque, Saint Mary's co-coordinator; Jennifer Neidenbach, Notre Dame co-coordinator; and Maureen Ostrosky, treasurer.

All agreed that rape is a "big problem" on the ND and SMC campuses—bigger than people think.

"The biggest hidden problem is date rape," said Neidenbach. "It happens a lot."

Those in charge of CARE stressed that rape is problem that affects everybody, men and women alike. They said they would like to see more men involved in CARE. Only one male showed up for the first meeting.

"We're not a 'men-hating' organization," said Maus.

Every man who cares about a woman is affected by the rape issue, said Ostrosky.

CARE hopes to enhance its effectiveness by collaborating with many other organizations on campus—and not just "women's concerns" organizations, said Maus.

CARE encourages and welcomes all new members, including men. Anyone interested in joining the organization should get in touch with Maus, Ostrosky, Neidenbach, or Levesque.

ND Security to improve parking lot conditions

By MEGAN JUNIUS
News Writer

Notre Dame Security will be adding call boxes, reassigning student parking, and putting up row markers in the student parking lots within the next six weeks, according to Phil Johnson, assistant director of security.

Due to the construction of the new DeBartolo academic quad, Notre Dame security has been forced to reassign the parking for students, faculty, and staff.

The parking changes were announced last spring, but the students did not think about the consequences until the changes were actually put into effect this semester, Johnson said.

Many complaints have occurred concerning the D6 lot, located behind the security building. This lot is reserved for the women's halls of south quad, Carroll Hall, and the seniors in Pangborn, Morrissey and Fisher. Seniors from Alumni, Dillon and Sorin will soon be assigned to D6 in order to fill some of the empty spaces.

However, this lot is not only used by residence hall students. It is used by security, golfers, and visitors to the campus, Johnson said.

Students have also complained about the safety of this lot. Johnson said that better lighting and call boxes will be installed within the next 3-4 weeks.

Johnson also said that an escort is always available if needed by going to the main gate and asking the officer. From this point, the student is asked to wait in the car, with the doors locked, at the entrance of the lot until SafeWalk or security arrives.

The remainder of the halls have been assigned to the newly paved and striped D2 lot. However, because of the large size, many students have difficulty finding their cars.

Joe Wilson, District 4 senator, has been working on a solution for this problem. Wilson is in the process of proposing a plan to number the rows and parking spaces in the lot. "It has been surprising how cooperative Notre Dame Security and Plant Management have been in order to increase convenience and safety for the students," Wilson said.

"L.A. Law" stars join fight against rape

Special to The Observer

The Rape Treatment Center at Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center has asked college students and administrators to join them in the fight against campus rape by supporting the first comprehensive national campaign against campus sexual assault.

At a press conference on September 4, "L.A. Law" television series stars Susan Dey and Corbin Bernsen joined Rape Treatment Center Director Gail Abarbanel to announce the national program which includes a new 20-minute film about campus sexual assault.

The film, entitled "Campus Rape," is hosted by Dey and Bernsen and has already been disrupted by the Center to more than half the universities in the country. The Center encourages college administrators to adopt the film as part of orientation programs for all incoming students.

"The goal of the campaign and the film is to reduce the epidemic number of campus sexual assaults," stated Abarbanel. "Recent studies indicate that each year, one in every six college women is a victim of rape or attempted rape and one in every 15 college men admit to committing sexual assault."

In addition to the film, which contains important information about rape and prevention strategies, campaign materials include powerful ads and posters for colleges to adopt, and proposals for state legislation requiring colleges to implement written procedures for handling sexual assault cases and mandatory rape prevention programs for freshmen.

"Students must understand that rape is not sex; it's an act of violence with devastating consequences," stated actress

Philippines want control of U.S. Air base

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Philippine negotiators told the United States Thursday that they want complete control of the U.S.-run Clark Air Base "as soon as possible."

The Philippine panel made the demand during the third day of talks on the future of Clark, Subic Bay naval base and four smaller facilities, whose lease expires in September 1991.

"The Philippines took the position that it shall assume sovereign control of Clark as soon as possible," Philippine spokesman Rafael Alunan told reporters.

Reminded that the Philippines has had sovereignty over Clark since 1979, Alunan said he was also referring to "operational control." It was unclear whether "as soon as possible" meant before the lease expires.

U.S. and Philippine officials began the talks Tuesday.

Also Thursday, Alunan said President Corazon Aquino will order steps to dismantle the bases unless the two nations reach an agreement on their future by January.

"If there is no treaty or arrangement, let's say by January ... then we will most likely create a committee that will oversee the dismantling of the bases," Alunan said in a radio interview.

"It is important for us to have a treaty or an arrangement," he said. "If there is no understanding, nothing will come of the bases such that by Sept. 16, 1991, they will have to leave."

Chief U.S. negotiator Richard Armitage said Tuesday the days of a large American military presence here were coming to an end. The United States maintains 40,000 troops, Defense Department civilians and military dependents at the six bases.

INSIDE COLUMN

Inclusive language not for everyone

Almost a month into the Year of Women, I find myself bothered by the effects the designation is having on my life. Although as a female I applaud the effort to recognize gender-related tension at this University, I am troubled by the assumption that I am SUPPOSED to feel oppressed, for lack of a better word, as a female on this campus.

Monica Yant
Assoc. News Editor

The issue that first comes to mind is gender inclusive language. Last week in one of my classes, our professor asked us to refrain from using words such as "man," "mankind," etc., in favor of more neutral terms like "individual." If I understood the request correctly, it was made because our conversations, by using masculine words to describe both males and females, were offensive, excluding and degrading to the women in the class.

Personally, I am offended by the mere fact that anyone would assume I should be offended. The basis of gender inclusive language seems to rest on the idea that by eliminating traditional speech, women will finally gain the equality they feel they have so long been denied.

Rubbish. The only thing such elimination does is present a picture of women as underconfident creatures grasping at any straw they can find. In fact, if anything, gender inclusive language serves to make the issue greater by putting it in a negative spotlight.

I've discussed the issue with many people, male and female. Not a single male could tell me he gained feelings of superiority by reading passages of the Bible that refer to groups of people as "mankind." And I have encountered few females who are truly disturbed by the Fight Song's references to ND's victorious "sons."

My roommate had a classroom experience similar to mine, but instead of a request to use gender inclusive language, her professor mandated that every composition be strewn with "she" in every place that "he" would have been used.

At the risk of being stoned to death by campus feminists, I must say that it all seems a little petty. Frankly, I feel that the issue at hand is confidence and security about one's self as a female AND an individual, not trying to take something away from men or any other group that has been given "better press," historically speaking.

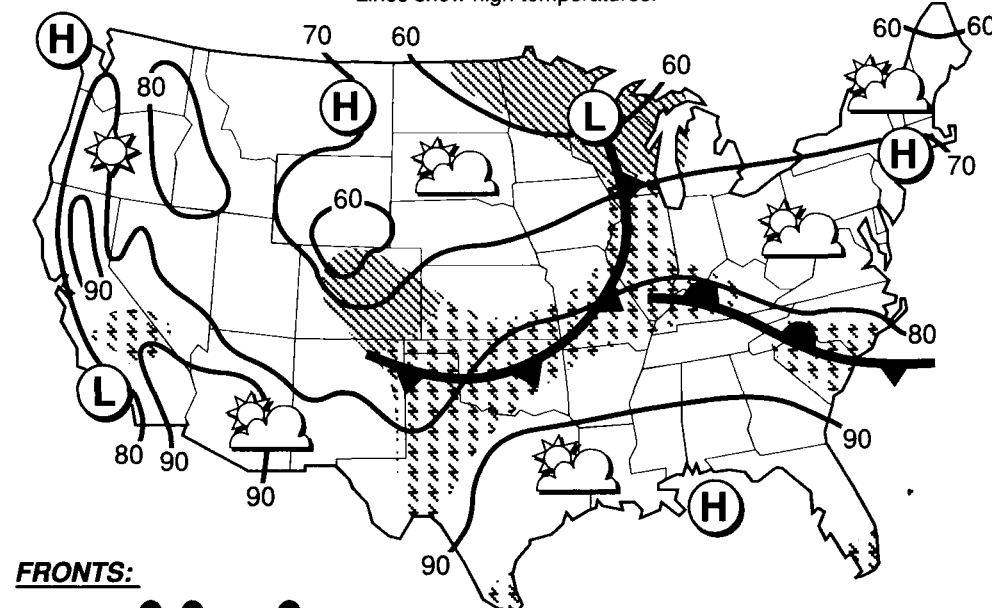

So I won't be buying my clothes at a store called "Womyn" or correcting my speech every time I say anything with a male reference. It's just as demeaning to them as it is to me, and in an age where rape and assaults plague our lives, it seems there are more important sexual issues at hand.

And when I go to church, I'll end my prayers with "Amen..." with NO reservations.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Dietician stresses common sense diet

By MCCULLOUGH
MEREDITH
News Writer

Using common sense to achieve and maintain nutritional well-being was the main thrust behind a lecture given by Karen Seegers, Registered Dietician at St. Joseph's Medical Center.

Seegers said that there is a growing concern, mainly among women, about nutrition and weight loss. However, she said that not enough women are properly educated about weight loss and consequently encounter difficulties when dieting.

A healthy weight loss program should offer three main components: balanced nutrition, safe exercise, and an extended maintenance program, she said. Any program can be effective, but the program should be safe as well.

When it comes to weight loss programs Seegers said women must "learn to do it sensibly." They should avoid fad diets and programs that do not cater to the individual.

Seegers said that diet centers and programs like Nutri-Systems follow a strict regimen that is standardized, and do not take into account one's age, weight, or sex. Self-imposed diets can be equally harmful, said Seegers, because such diets often alter one's metabolism and could lead to further health problems.

The ideal weight loss program would be a balance of proper foods and "a diet regimen you can live with the rest of your life."

Seegers said that women's diets often lack two main nutrients, calcium and iron, but a combination of sensible eating and iron supplements should fulfill the necessary requirements.

"A life-long calcium intake" is essential to prevent osteoporosis, a brittling of the bones. Seegers said that students lack sufficient levels of calcium simply because they do not drink enough milk. She recommended drinking four glasses of milk a day.

Excess amounts of caffeine effect calcium absorption, said Seegers, and advised that high caffeine content drinks, such as coffee, should be injected before meals to allow proper calcium absorption.

Seegers said that, unlike most nutrients, iron cannot be obtained through daily eating habits. In order to obtain enough iron, Seegers recommends an iron supplement.

Seegers by reassuring students that one can keep one's weight under control while maintaining proper nutritional values. She emphasized moderation and sensibility. "You can make wise choices in the cafeteria," she said.

The lecture took place in the South Dining Hall, and was sponsored by the Year of Women Committee, University Food Services, and University Counseling.

Keating named Jones professor

Special to the Observer

Barry Keating, Professor of Finance and Business Economics in the University of Notre Dame College of Business Administration, has named Jesse Jones Professor of Business Administration. The appointment, announced today by Dr. John G. Keane, Dean of the College of Business Administration, is for a four-year period, beginning with the current semester.

"I'm very pleased," said Keating in response to the appointment, "and very surprised. The Dean just told me of this yesterday and I'm still in a state of shock. This is a very great honor and I'm obviously pleased to receive it."

Keating is a 1967 graduate of Notre Dame who went on to earn an advanced degree from Lehigh University in 1968. He returned to Notre Dame to pursue graduate study in economics, earning a doctorate in 1974. He began his teaching career in the Notre Dame College of Business Administration in 1978.

"Barry was chosen for this honor," said Dean Keane, "because of his long and consistently outstanding record of teaching, research, and service. He continues to receive excellent teaching evaluations for undergraduate, MBA, and Executive MBA courses. And he has an enviable record of service at Departmental, College, and University levels."

"His research specialty in the economics of not-for-profit firms and the impact of governmental regulation has resulted," said Dean Keane, "in a long list of publication."

Keating's most recent book, Business Forecasting, was published this year by Dow Jones/Irwin. An article, entitled "An Update on Industries Ranked by Average Rates of Return," will appear in the Cambridge publication, Applied Economics, this fall. His work appears in more than a dozen other, top-ranked economics and business finance journals in this country and abroad.

The Jesse Jones Professorship is a result of an annual gift to the College of Business Administration from the Jesse Jones Foundation, and was previously held by Professor Salvatore Bella of the Department of Management. Bella was promoted to Emeriti status in June of this year.

Former governor encourages minorities to seek bigger role

BY JULIE GARDEN
News Writer

Minorities must work for greater roles in politics, said Toney Anaya, former governor of New Mexico, in a lecture Thursday entitled "The Changing Face of Politics in the 21st Century."

"Hispanics need to generate national leaders in order to provide a voice," said Anaya.

himself an Hispanic. "If we could all pitch in and join in a coalition we could make political changes."

Speaking about the process of getting minorities involved in politics, Anaya said that Americans expect quick solutions to problems. However, he added that minorities becoming involved in politics will take time and commitment.

Anaya focused on the involvement of students in politics and stressed that everyone can make a difference. Anaya said, "Students need to become more active in school politics and office politics and make a commitment to become involved on the behalf of others."

"We can make a difference, and we have to make a difference," he said.

He was the first speaker in a series entitled "Gathering Voices" sponsored by Saint Mary's Office of Minority, International, and Non-Traditional student life.

Iraq demands equal U.S. air time

(AP)- Iraq on Thursday demanded equal time, asking U.S. networks to broadcast a message by Saddam Hussein in response to President Bush's address to Iraq. Saddam told a newspaper Iraq can fight for years and "could hurt" America.

The White House said it would not try to block the broadcast of Saddam's videotaped message. The networks did not immediately commit themselves to showing it.

More than 100 American women and children from Iraq flew aboard a Pan Am jetliner Thursday to North Carolina. The State Department said a similar flight Saturday was the last U.S. charter planned from Baghdad, and it advised all Americans wanting to leave to sign up.

International efforts mounted Thursday against Iraq's occupation of Kuwait.

Organizers of the Asian Games banned Iraq from the competition in Beijing.

Discussions continued at the United Nations on a proposal to ban all flights into and out of Iraq and occupied Kuwait, except for mercy missions.

French soldiers, including members of the French Foreign Legion, headed to Saudi Arabia to join the U.S.-led multinational force upholding the U.N. trade embargo. They were the first of 4,000 troops expected to ship out of southern France in the seafight, France's largest in three decades.

NATO's secretary-general, Manfred Woerner, urged other Western European nations to follow suit. "Let me clearly state my personal opinion — that some allies could and should do more," Woerner said at a conference in Brussels.

"Additional parking is available for students in the faculty lots after five and on the weekends," Johnson said. "A new lot behind the post office, near the engineering building is now restricted to short term handicapped parking; however, 30 minute or 1 hour parking will be added for students in Alumni Hall."

Thousands of troops and dozens of warships from other nations have converged on the Persian Gulf since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, but Britain and France are the only Western European nations to send ground troops.

More than 100,000 U.S. soldiers have been rushed to Saudi Arabia and half as many are aboard warships sent to the region. The Army and the Air Force on Thursday called about 7,000 reservists to active duty.

The Iraqi leader has an estimated 360,000 soldiers in and around oil-rich Kuwait.

An American soldier was killed and two others injured in a jeep accident Thursday in the Saudi Arabian desert, U.S. military officials said. The death brought to 17 the number of fatalities among American personnel since Operation Desert Shield began in early August.

All deaths were accidental. They included a soldier hit by a truck, another killed in a road collision and a sailor electrocuted aboard a ship. On Aug. 29, a C-5A transport aircraft loaded with supplies for gulf forces crashed after takeoff in West Germany, killing 13 crew members.

Iraq's information minister was quoted as saying Thursday that Iraq will knock out gulf oil fields if attacked by the multinational force. The official, Latif Nassayef Jassim, also said "Iraq will use all weapons at its disposal to respond to any aggression" intended to force its troops out of Kuwait. His comments were reported by the English-language daily Jordan Times and were made to Jordanian journalists in Baghdad this week.

U.S. officials said Iraq has asked Iran if the two countries can join their oil pipelines, a move that would allow Saddam to partly bypass the international embargo against his country.

Saint Mary's offers students information on date rape

By PETER LOFTUS
Assistant News Editor

Pamphlets distributed at Saint Mary's College provide helpful information and advice that can help students get the facts about rape.

"Date Rape: An Unreported Crime," a pamphlet distributed by Saint Mary's Security, warns students of the danger of acquaintance or date rape.

"No one has the right to force you to do something that you do not want to do," the pamphlet reads.

The pamphlet tells students to beware of men who tend to:

- act excessively jealous and possessive of you;
- display anger and aggression easily;
- ignore your personal space boundaries;
- ignore your wishes;
- attempt to make you feel guilty or accuse you of being uptight;
- get hostile when you say "no."

Another pamphlet, "Rape: Not by Strangers Only," contains a section "for men only," which tells men that "it's never all right to force yourself on a woman." According to the pamphlet, "real men can take 'no' for an answer."

"Nothing you do, say or wear gives anyone the right to assault you—sexually or otherwise," the pamphlet advises women. However, it also states that men and women "are both responsible for preventing sexual assault and rape."

"The rape victim frequently finds that she fears people and that she feels vulnerable as she goes about the regular activities of her life," according to a pamphlet distributed by Saint Mary's College.

Other emotional reactions to rape include:

- loss of control over her own life;
- fear of the rapist;
- confusion over whether to tell people and which people to tell;
- concern for the rapist if she tells;
- anxiety, shaking, and nightmares;
- guilt, shame, embarrassment, stupidity, and anger.

If a student is assaulted, she should not change clothes, bathe, or douche, so as not to destroy any useful evidence, according to the pamphlet. She should contact various organizations and departments, including the Saint Mary's Health Center and Campus Ministry.

A student who is attacked should go to St. Joseph's Hospital Emergency Room for treatment. If the student is not covered by insurance or Medicaid, an Indiana law provides for coverage for emergency room costs.

In a pamphlet distributed by Saint Mary's Department of Residence Life and Housing, sexual assault is defined as "any sexual activity which a person is forced or threatened into without his/her consent."

The pamphlet, titled "Sexual Assault," provides information about several aspects of rape, rape prevention, rape statistics and emotional reactions to rape:

•60 to 70 percent of rapes are "at least partially planned beforehand by the rapists."

•The reported age range of victims of sexual assault is six months to 93 years.

•One-half to one-third of sexual assaults are committed in the victim's home.

•49 percent of rapes are cases in which "the victim and the offender knew each other in some way."

•In 14 percent, the rapist is a close personal friend.

•The FBI estimates that only ten percent of all rapes are reported.

•A rapist is usually from the same socio-economic background as the victim.

Superior general of Holy Cross visits ND

Special to the Observer

Father Glaude Grou, superior general of the Congregation of Holy Cross, will preside over the 10 a.m. Mass Sunday in Sacred Heart Church on the University of Notre Dame campus. He will also preside at Solemn Vespers at 7:15 p.m. Sunday in Sacred Heart.

Grou, who is visiting Holy Cross communities in the South Bend area, is a native of Canada who was ordained in 1968. He served as a missionary and as a university professor in Pune, India, until 1982, when he was elected assistant provincial of the Canadian Province of Priests. He was elected superior general in July 1986 and now resides at the Night photography exhibit comes to Snite

Special to the Observer

The exhibition "Night Light—A Survey of 20th Century Night Photography" will open Sunday at the Snite Museum and will continue through Nov. 4.

The 85 photographs, including images by Stieglitz, Steichen, Brassai, Bourke-White, Winogrand, Brandt and Callahan, are all part of the Hallmark Photographic Collection. This exhibition was organized by Keith Davis, curator, Fine Art Collection, Hallmark Cards Inc.

According to Davis, artists over the centuries often have been drawn to depicting dramatic scenes at night. Although photography as medium of artistic expression developed only relatively recently, artists were experimenting with night scenes shortly after the invention of the daguerreotype in 1839.

At first photography became more frequent and diverse. Twentieth century night photography, reflecting the complexity of the modern era, shows a wide range of subjects, social interests and artistic approaches.

Museum hours are 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday; 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday; and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday (when classes are in session). The museum is closed Monday and all major holidays. Admission is free.

Here's your opportunity to clean up your act!

Isn't it time you considered doing away with the low resolution of the Laserwriter? No longer do you have to settle for printing materials in which the type is jagged and difficult to read at small point sizes. Using our Linotronic 200P your fonts and graphics are accurately spaced and registered, blacks are solid, whites are clean and tones are crisp.

What's more all jobs are guaranteed to be completed in twenty-four hours or less or we'll output it for free. And we offer pick-up and delivery to any administrative or academic office on the Notre Dame or Saint Mary's campus.

Best of all, we offer high quality outputting at extremely reasonable prices. In fact our prices are some of the lowest in the nation. Special discounts are also available for large jobs.

Our staff is familiar with most major desktop publishing and graphics programs for the Macintosh. And we have a large library of Adobe Typefaces.

Isn't it time you did away with the 300 dpi resolution of the Laserwriter and switched to the 1270 dpi resolution of our Linotronic Imagesetter?

Concert master to perform on campus

Special to the Observer

Ruben Gonzalez, co-concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, will appear as a guest artist with the Notre Dame Piano Quartet in a performance Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Snite Museum of Art's Annenberg Auditorium.

Faculty members William Cerny, piano; Karen Buranskas, cello; Carolyn Plummer, violin; and Victoria Chiang, viola, will join Gonzalez. The concert is free and open to the public.

Gonzalez was appointed to the position of co-concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony in the spring of 1986. He has appeared as a soloist many times, including performances under the baton of maestros Georg Solti, Kenneth Jean, and Eric Leinsdorf.

Gonzalez also serves as concertmaster of the Aspen Festival Orchestra and has been concertmaster of the Houston, Syracuse, North German Radio (Hamburg) symphonies and associate concertmaster of the Minnesota Orchestra.

His concert program includes Shostakovich Quintet, Op. 57 and the Brahms Quintet in F minor, Op. 34.

Jazz group to give performance at library

Special to the Observer

SAUD, a four-piece jazz ensemble, will perform in a concert Monday from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library Auditorium, on the University's campus.

The concert is free and open to the public.

The band is led by Galen Abdur-Razzaq, who is considered one of the world's most innovative flutists.

Abdur-Razzaq graduated from Rutgers University and holds a master's degree in the arts. He was also a former student of the Berklee College of Music in Boston.

Abdur-Razzaq had been performing, arranging, composing, directing and instructing for more than twenty-five years. He has performed and recorded with pianist Billy Taylor, Houston Person, Melba Moore, Gwen Guthrie and many others.

The concert is sponsored by Notre Dame's Office of Minority Student Affairs.

Liberal group asks Senate to reject Souter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The liberal group Americans for Democratic Action on Thursday called on the Senate to reject Supreme Court nominee David Souter.

ADA president Charles Rangel, a Democratic congressman from New York, said Souter during three days of testimony had not "satisfactorily explained ... his judicial philosophy regarding crucial legal issues which underpin the life of all Americans."

The ADA questioned Souter's commitment to civil rights, separation of church and state, and privacy rights — including abortion rights — based on his record as a New Hampshire prosecutor and judge and on his testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Some liberal and conservative groups have found fault with Souter. However, the Senate committee is expected to recommend his confirmation at a meeting next week. Full Senate approval also appears certain.

Many senators who opposed President Reagan's nomination of Robert Bork three years ago have said they could support Souter, who also is a conservative.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said Thursday he was leaning toward voting to confirm President Bush's nominee.

Harkin said he was nervous that Souter wasn't more specific in supporting abortion rights but was partially relieved that Souter backed privacy protections.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., said he will vote to confirm Souter despite reservations about the nominee's conservative credentials.

An outspoken conservative on the Senate Judiciary Committee, Humphrey said he was particularly appalled by Souter's praise of retiring Justice William Brennan, who was the court's most liberal voice.

Humphrey and other conservatives view President Bush's nominee as their ticket to rolling back the landmark 1973 Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion. The high court is currently split on the issue.

Capital gains tax cut debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole has suggested that deadlocked budget bargainers remove the proposal to cut the capital gains tax rate from the deficit-reduction package they are working on, an aide said Thursday.

Dole's suggestion is the first indication that some Republicans are willing to accept a deficit-reduction plan without a cut in the capital gains tax rate. President Bush has repeatedly insisted that a reduction in that tax — imposed on property sales — be included in the deficit-cutting plan because it would stimulate the economy.

An aide to the Kansas Republican denied that Dole was retreating on the capital gains issue. But he said Dole's plan to remove the issue from the deficit-reduction package was the best way to end the current budget talks impasse.

Democrats have said Republican insistence on lowering the capital gains tax rate is the key stumbling block to the two parties working out a five-year, $500 billion deficit-cutting plan. They have opposed the proposal, arguing that it would be a tax break for the rich. They have said they would accept it only if other taxes on the wealthy are boosted.

A White House spokesman said President Bush has not altered his position on what should be included in a budget deal. "There's been no change in the White House position on entitlements, process reform, taxation or growth incentives," spokesman Stephen Hart said.

Number two House Republican Newt Gingrich of Georgia said he opposed the idea of removing capital gains and the other items from the deficit reduction package.

"House Republicans feel strongly about having one package and one vote," he said.

Under Dole's idea, the capital gains cut, a Democratic proposal to improve federal child care programs, and a package of tax benefits supported by both parties would be broken out of the deficit-cutting package and combined into a separate piece of legislation.

That separate measure would have to contain new taxes or spending cuts to pay for itself.

"It's just a common sense approach," said Walt Riker, Dole's spokesman.

Riker later stressed that Dole was "in no way retreating on capital gains. We think in the long run this is the best way to go and the best strategy."

He said Dole's proposal will "enhance the chances for capital gains enactment because it would be included in an overall package of add-ons that Democrats want as well."

Dole suggested the idea Wednesday evening at a meeting among congressional leaders and top administration officials, Riker said.

It was not clear what reaction Dole's idea got from the other bargainers.

But on Wednesday, the House Budget Committee chairman, Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., visited the high-level budget talks briefly and told reporters that a similar tradeoff might be the way to end the yearlong budget stalemate.

He said that a package removing GOP-sought tax breaks "in return for our new spending initiatives may hold the key."

The proposed capital gains tax reduction would lower the top rate on the profits from property sales from the current 33 percent to 15 percent. It would be expected to raise $3.7 billion next year because the diminished rate would encourage people to sell their holdings. But over the next five years, officials project that it would cost the government $21.5 billion.

The biggest tax benefit now under consideration at the budget talks, supported by Bush and most members of Congress, would cut business taxes by more than $9.2 billion over the next five years. It would renew credit and deduction rules aimed at increasing investment in research and experimentation.

Other expiring tax breaks under consideration include a $1.4 billion credit for part of the wages employers pay newly hired low-income workers and a $1.7 billion exclusion for a limited amount to tuition that employers pay for workers.

Women should be included in the victory march

By Heidi Hansen

This year, the Year of Women, is, I think, a particularly appropriate time to consider a change which should have been considered many years ago. This change concerns the words to the "Notre Dame Victory March."

At one point the song states, "...old Notre Dame will win over all, while her loyal sons go marching onward to victory." If one were to listen carefully during a football game, one would hear a few voices singing an alternate version, which says, "...old Notre Dame will win over all, while her loyal sons and daughters march on to victory." This alternate phrasing fits perfectly into the melody of the song, and it does not change the essential meaning. What it does include in the Victory March is a significant portion of the Notre Dame student body which has thus far been excluded. I, therefore, propose that the words to the song be officially changed.

I realize that this proposal can and probably will be contested on three main points.

First, it will be argued that to change the Victory March is to tamper with a proud, long-standing, and fundamental Notre Dame tradition. I agree. I also agree that changing tradition is never easy. Nevertheless, it must be done. Notre Dame, as an institution and as a family, tampered with tradition 18 years ago when it admitted women to the student body. That action should be applauded. It should also be officially acknowledged by changing Notre Dame's trademark, its fight song.

Second, it can be argued that the Victory March is directed toward and representative of the football team, which obviously consists of sons and not daughters. This, however, would be an incomplete analysis. The Notre Dame football team consists of more than just players. No college team could be number one without its support staff of managers, trainers, and administrative personnel, many of whom are women. Furthermore, the Victory March may represent the team, but the team represents the University. And 37% of the student body at this university is women. When Notre Dame fans cheer for the Irish, they are cheering for more than men wearing pads and helmets.

Finally, it will probably be argued that all of this is a minor point and a waste of time. After all, everyone knows that women are part of the University, and no one pays that much attention to the actual words of the song; its more the idea of the song that matters. So isn't changing the song more trouble than it's worth?

The answer, simply, is women pay attention to the words and to the consequences of those words. Women know that it is not a minor, insignificant point. Women know that they are not yet wholly and completely accepted members of the Notre Dame family.

If women truly are to be a significant portion of the student body, then why not openly acknowledge the fact by including them in the Victory March? If the University truly is dedicated to embracing women at Notre Dame, then why not let the Year of Women leave a lasting impression on the Notre Dame tradition? 1972 was the year women were officially admitted into the Notre Dame family. Why not let 1990 be the year that we proclaim that acceptance in song?

Participants in panty raid view its tradition as light-hearted fun

Dear Editor:

I have just finished reading the letter written concerning the Freshman Panty Raid, and I have made up my mind to respond to it.

First, I would like to inform everyone that the Panty Raid is not the first impression Notre Dame males receive of Saint Mary's women. This event usually does not take place until about two or three weeks after classes have started. During those weeks there are different events where Freshmen receive their first impression of each other.

One such event is camping out for football tickets. What an impression you make there. You wake up the next morning at about 6:00 a.m.—after celebrating, until 5 a.m., the fact that no one was going to get good seats—covered with dew and looking like you've been through a war. But, you had fun and met a lot of people.

The Panty Raid is also a good opportunity to meet new and interesting people. It is often the first time many of the guys have set foot on Saint Mary's campus, and what better reason than to catch a pair of panties?

I am a Sophomore and, yes, I participated in the Panty Raid my Freshman Year (GASP!). Because of that, plus the fact that an adventuresome male caught my panties, I now have some of the greatest and closest friends from Notre Dame. Every time someone asks how we met, we all laugh and tell them. It's a great story.

People need to relax and realize that the Panty Raid is just in fun. The messages written on the panties are not serious, the names given are usually made up (I hope no one would actually name their child Fluffy, Muffy or Buffy), and the underwear is definitely a joke. Many people wouldn't be caught dead wearing some of it.

As far as the relationship between Notre Dame and Saint Mary's goes, I think everyone needs to lighten up and look at everything with a sense of humor. When you think about it, having about 20 guys singing "You've Lost that Loving Feeling" or "Earth Angel" for some underwear is quite humorous.

Political candidates' private lives are relevant

By Mark Bettencourt

This past Wednesday, Geraldine Ferraro offered to the Notre Dame community her insights developed throughout a distinguished tenure in congress and a history-making vice-presidential nomination. Ms. Ferraro candidly depicted the obstacles confronting women in politics, as well as the issues catapulting women to the political forefront. Her message touched upon a plethora of salient issues, ranging from the effects of the 1984 national campaign upon her family to the prominent role of abortion in recent state elections. I applaud Ms. Ferraro for her accomplishments and her address, which, with one noticeable exception, imparted encouragement to both women and men concerned with our political system.

In response to the final question of the lecture, which solicited Ms. Ferraro's opinion on the ever-increasing degree of scrutiny under which candidates are placed, Ms. Ferraro relayed a troubling interpretation of what constitutes the moral and ethical values of a candidate. She asserted that any moral or ethical judgement of a candidate must differentiate between standards applied in one's personal life and in one's political or public life. I wholeheartedly disagree with Ms. Ferraro.

Ms. Ferraro concluded that the best measure of a candidate's moral fiber is how that candidate treats the poor and helpless—not how that candidate conducts his or her personal life. I agree that any aspirant to elected office should display an acute sensitivity to the plight of those who cannot help themselves. Nonetheless, the manner and fashion in which a candidate conducts himself or herself in private exposes that individual's convictions about the value of trust and commitment among other things. The incentive to behave compassionately in public, buttressed by the watchful eyes of the press and the electorate, dissipates behind closed doors. Behind these doors, the true character of the candidate emerges.

I, in no way, aspire to augment the already overbearing role of the media in political campaigns. On this point, I believe Ms. Ferraro and I concur. Rather, I contend that the choices an individual makes about his or her personal life underscore the priorities and principles cherished by that individual. I do not excuse or condone the behavior of Gary Hart or, for that matter, The Miami Herald. Furthermore, I refuse to dismiss what Gary Hart did as merely "stupid," as Ms. Ferraro appears to do willingly.

Ms. Ferraro claimed that the actions of Gary Hart would not have impaired his ability to negotiate with the Soviets of balance the budget and thus would have had no bearing on his competency to serve as president of the United States. Quite possibly, what transpired off of the Florida Keys would not discernibly affect Gary Hart's ability to articulate vital U.S. interests at a superpower summit. The discretion exercised by Gary Hart—or the lack thereof—would, however, inevitably impact the diplomatic proceedings of the Hart administration. Gary Hart cared little about The Miami Herald reporter he challenged to investigate his personal life. He demonstrated to the American people, however, that he did not possess the tact and caution required of the president of the United States.

Moreover, Gary Hart afforded little regard to his marital union of the damaging effects his actions may inflict upon his family. Admittedly, Gary Hart was not the first man to cheat on his wife and will not be the last. This realistic observation provides neither an excuse nor a justification for those actions. Gary Hart proved himself unable to exercise self-control when aware that anything less than self-control had potentially devastating ramifications. If Gary Hart could not protect his family in such a scenario, then how much protection could the American people expect?

When the press and the voting public demand super-human conduct from elected officials, we impose unreasonable standards on our representatives. We must, however, require public officials to respect the trust endowed upon our government. How a candidate conducts his or her personal affairs reveals, above all else, how much that candidate will revere the public trust. Although violating the basic privacy of a candidate is wrong, dismissing the personal life of a candidate may compromise the foundation of our republic—the consent of the people. I do not believe Ms. Ferraro wants that.

Men, like women, juggle careers, family

Dear Editor:

In an article summarizing comments by Dean Eileen Kolman on the Year of Women at Notre Dame (The Observer, Sept. 17), the following paragraph appears: "Kolman explained that an undergraduate woman will need to make future choices in order to balance marriage, a career and family. A male does not have to worry about a family infringing upon his life," according to Kolman."

I doubt that a person of Dean Kolman's sophistication would have said "A male does not have to worry about a family infringing upon his life..." or anything close to it.

To claim that men make career decisions unaffected by family concerns is inaccurate, thoughtless, and demeaning to both partners in a family relationship, as well as to their children.

The only career decision I have ever made that did not involve my wife or children was to accept an appointment at the college where I met my eventual wife. We have turned down executive directorships or withdrawn from top leadership positions in the academy and business firms because, after lengthy discussion, my wife or children did not feel they were the right thing. And I have remained in a couple of competitions because my wife and children encouraged that. We love and respect each other too much to go on our merry separate directions on career matters. I am not alone among my male friends in the academic world.

Nor are we alone in church communities. Many are the lay persons in parish voluntary leadership circles whom we interviewed during the Notre Dame Study of Catholic Parish Life who turned down career advancement so that their (wife/husband) could stay at the present job and all of the family could participate in the parish community. Career decisions are complex matters for both men and women.

Something quite different from what she had said on a similar topic involving male-female power relationships. She had to waste a lot of valuable time setting the record straight and restoring the confidence of colleagues.

The desired changes in power structure, gender relationships, and learning culture at Notre Dame require care and patience. An inflammatory "quotation" or summary makes it altogether too easy for men and women to hurl the epithet — "sexist." A simple rule for journalists is: get it right; get it in writing.

Key jingling tradition no longer applicable, insults Coach Holtz

Dear Editor:

Attention, those of you football fans who jingle your keys on third-down situations: knock it off! This tradition started during the Gerry Faust days because some people believed that ol' Gerry needed to be alerted to critical (or "key") plays. Notre Dame currently has a coach who knows quite a bit about the game of football, therefore it is an insult to Coach Holtz to continue this practice.

Women speakers merit more respect

Dear Editor:

Along with many other Arts and Letters seniors, I attended last night's Placement Night in the Library Auditorium, and like a large percentage of those in attendance, I too was very disappointed and angry when I left. I, however, was not unhappy with the presentations or the speakers. Rather, I was highly disappointed in the behavior of a large portion of the audience. As I looked around during the presentations, I was disgusted by the fact that many of the students, especially the males, were yawning, slumping down in the chairs, fidgeting, not paying attention, tuning out the speaker due to lack of interest, or, worst of all, walking out.

One of the many aspects of the Year of Women is to gain a perspective on what it means to be a female in our society. I think a great majority of the males in attendance last night received a first-hand glimpse of what it might be like. All three speakers were female, and all addressed their careers from a female perspective. This does not mean, however, that they did not have valuable insights and pertinent information for both men and women. Their topics were a concern for all of us. Yet many men in the audience were incensed that there were no male speakers and that the women addressed some concerns that are more pertinent to or affect more directly women. I suppose they felt their rude behavior was justified because they were upset, or felt excluded.

As I left the presentation I overheard one irate classmate demand to know "how the University could give a presentation and address less than fifty percent of the audience?" Think of the countless presentations in the past, given by men, about jobs that are held primarily by men, where the primary employee was referred to only as "he." Now ask yourself that same question. I had to laugh inside wondering how many times in the past that question had been asked by women. Maybe I should have asked him.

If you were one of the many people who was tremendously upset by last night's presentation, then I seriously think you need to ask yourself a few questions. Why do you find it so difficult to accept that a female is more qualified, is better at some sports or subjects, or can complete a task more efficiently than you? Why is it so uncomfortable or disheartening to hear about female executives and vice presidents? Why does this article make you angry?

Perhaps the answer lies in yet another objective of the Year of Women—to promote an awareness of the abilities and contributions of females. Maybe it is disheartening to you because our society is finally accepting that women are as competent as men in virtually all fields. Now that women's abilities are being taken more seriously, women become serious, legitimate competition. This reality diminishes all of our chances of succeeding in the job market. Maybe that scares you. Maybe it should.

If you were one of those not paying attention, being rude, or that left last night, then you may have missed some excellent advice. One of Ms. Blackett's main points (despite her disappointing concluding quote that I found to be both inconsistent and discouraging), and a common theme throughout all three presentations, was that the American work force is changing. We must be aware of these changes, and we have to understand that attitudes in the workplace have progressed. So if you missed the message, be aware: your potential boss will be aware of these changes and new attitudes, and if you are not, if you remain ignorant, SHE may fire you.

Now that the Fightin' Irish have conquered the Wolverines of Michigan, it's time to face another nemesis from that northern state: the Michigan State Spartans. Roadtrippers are preparing to embark on yet another weekend that will fill the personals with top ten quotes.

Michigan State University is just south of East Lansing, MI, approximately a two and a half to three hour drive from South Bend. Roadtrippers should probably get on Highway 31/33 going north, then exit onto highway 51 going east. Then take Interstate 96 north until you get to Interstate 69, which will take you north east, and then you will finally exit onto Interstate 127, which will take you all the way up to East Lansing, where there will be signs leading you straight to campus, where you'll eventually end up on Trowbridge Rd.

More than 40,000 students attend MSU, making it the largest university in Michigan, and the nation's fourth largest single-campus university, with only University of Minnesota, Ohio State University, and the University of Texas-Austin ahead of it in size. Seventeen of those forty thousand students live in on-campus residence halls, and an additional 2,284 furnished apartments are provided by MSU for its students. It's the largest on-campus residence hall system in the U.S. The campus is spread out over 5,000 acres of grass, trees, and flowering plants, and the tall residence halls stand in tiny clusters.

Michigan State University, which was founded in 1855 and originally concentrated on farm science, now includes more than 200 programs of undergraduate and graduate studies, all divided into 14 degree-granting colleges. It's the only university in the nation with three medical colleges: A College of Human Medicine, which trains allopathic physicians, a College of Osteopathic Medicine and an College of Veterinary Medicine.

Game time on Saturday is 3pm. at Spartan Stadium, which is located in the northwest quadrant of campus.

Parking lot tailgaters will be just north of the stadium. Remember that the drinking age in Michigan is 21. The only change from South Bend is that in a few bars/nightclubs in town, you can enter the bar if you're 19, and you get a special stamp on your hand. According to a source from the Central East Lansing Business Association, quite a few of the bars used to allow 19 and up, but lately there has been a crackdown on underage drinking, so they've raised even the entering age to 21. Dooley's is a popular spot for students at MSU and they still allow 19 and up in.

The Greek system at MSU is strong and will be in full force this weekend. Sorority rush coincides with the game weekend, ending at 2:15 on Saturday. There are 17 sororities and 31 fraternities, all national. About 11% of the student body is Greek.

In the words of J.J. Wentz, board member of the Panhellenic Organization at MSU, "It's going to be crazy around here this weekend." Let's hope so. Have a blast, roadtrippers, and Go Irish!

A guide to Lansing's exciting

After several hours of serious roadtripping and a few more hours in the football stadium, most fans are going to be hungry—and thirsty—after the Notre Dame-Michigan State game.

Just north of Michigan State University is the city of East Lansing. Lansing, Michigan's state capital, is northwest of the university. Since MSU is located in close proximity to these cities, there are more than enough restaurants and bars to choose from.

The MSU campus and East Lansing are separated by Grand River Avenue, which runs East-West. This is where all of the fast food chains are located and there are several non-fast food eating establishments along this avenue and in the near vicinity. Here are a few of the restaurants to keep an eye out for in East Lansing:

America's Cup, 220 M.A.C. Ave., University Mall.

Restaurant and bar with a nautical atmosphere. B'zar nightclub is on the lower floor.

Castellani's Market, 551 E. Grand River Ave. Italian deli, sandwiches, groceries, beer and wine take out. A great place to stock up before tailgating.

Crunchy's, 254 W. Grand River Ave. Bar and restaurant.

Jersey Giant Submarines, 220 M.A.C., University Mall. The name says it all. Subs made fresh as you like them.

The Peanut Barrel, 521 E. Grand River Ave. Restaurant & full service bar, sandwiches, burgers and beer. A popular student hangout.

P.T. O'Malleys 210 Abbott, Full-service restaurant, hamburgers, hot dogs and drinks.

Rocky's 213 E. Grand River Ave. Southwestern food and burgers.

Sidestreets Deli, 605 E. Grand River Ave., Stonehouse Mall. A delicatessen just like one you would find in New York, except it's in Michigan.

For those fans who are in the mood for pizza, there are several restaurants in East Lansing which specialize:

Bell's Pizza House, 225 M.A.C. Greek pizza, grinders, salads and spaghetti.

Bilbo's Pizza in the Pan, 213 Ann St. The name is self-explanatory.

Goodtimes Pizza, 615 E. Grand River Ave. Dine in and delivery pizza.

And of course, to wash down all of that good food, here are the names of a few of the bars in East Lansing:

B'zar, 220 M.A.C. Ave., University Mall. Contemporary, high energy nightclub. B'zar is below the America's Cup restaurant; it was closed for renovation during the Summer so it may not be open yet.

Dooley's, 131 Albert St. Limited menu restaurant and pub. "Sensations" nightclub on the lower level. Highly recommended for visiting students. You only have to be 19 to enter, but 21 to drink.

Rick's American Cafe, 224 Abbott Rd. Rock & roll music, bar and dining.

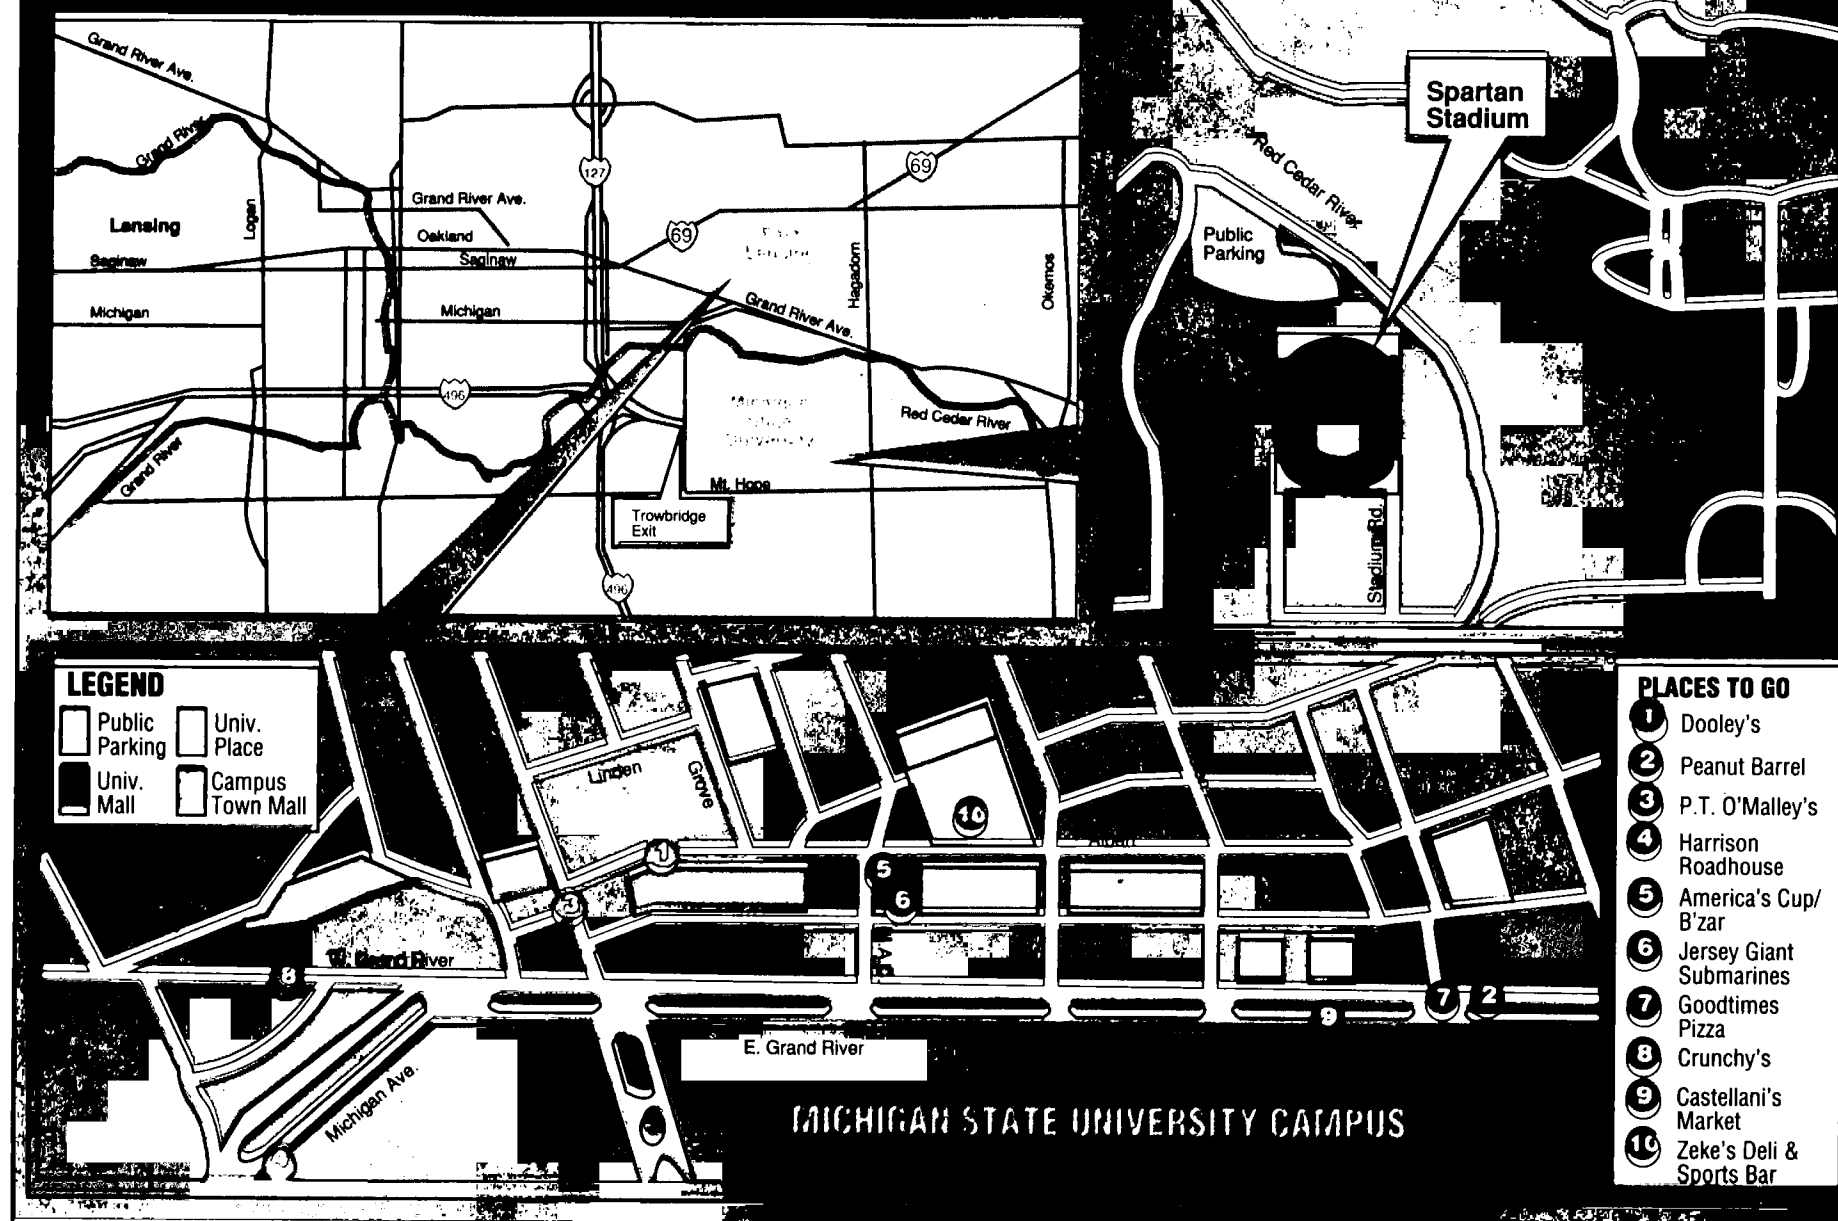

The Riviera Cafe, 231 M.A.C. Fun World Headquarters, music, food and bar.

Great places in Lansing to rest your weary bones

Zeke's Deli & Sports Bar, 802 E. Michigan Ave. A post-game hangout, this authentic Irish pub specializes in drinks, darts, and oldies.

Prison Roadhouse, 729 Michigan Ave. A post-game hangout, the roadhouse offers food and music. This is a recommended bar.

Sea's Restaurant & Pub, 1000 Park Lake Rd. Food, drink, and entertainment.

Those people who want to go beyond East Lansing, take I-96 West to Lansing, where some of the best nightclubs can be found.

Local hotels. Most of these are close at 2 a.m. (and you can't Notre Dame only had 13:00).

Zeke's American Gothic & Pub, 7501 W. Michigan (in the Holiday Inn Conference Center.) Lansing's newest night club offers live bands and Saturdays.

Zeke's, 5652 W. Saginaw (Lansing Mall.) A live D.J. playing Top 40 and Rock music while the customers dance until 2 a.m.

Zeke's Pub Inc., 802 E.

Michigan Ave., This authentic Irish pub specializes in drinks, darts, and oldies.

Roxy's Nite Club, 7711 W. Saginaw Hwy. (inside the Midway Motor Lodge) Requests are welcome at this video night club which features Top 40 music from the past four decades.

Scandal's, 925 S. Creyts (inside the Sheraton Lansing Hotel.) Daily drink specials and dancing to the tune of Top 40 videos.

Tango's Restaurant, 111 W. Washtenaw, Disk Jockey and dancing to a variety of music, (Classic Rock, Top 40, Rhythm & Blues and Jazz)

Trippers, 350 Frandor, Lansing's premiere sports bar. Shoot some hoops while playing half court basketball, play pool and shoot darts, in addition to enjoying the food and drinks.

There are plenty of places in the East Lansing/Lansing area to keep roadtrippers occupied before and after the game, and this is probably the last chance ND fans will have to enjoy another campus while the weather is still mild.

So you made it to Michigan State University in one piece. You found the football stadium and only one question remains: where are you going to spend the night?

Obviously, your best bet is to stay with a friend from high school who happens to go to MSU. If you don't know anyone on campus, there are several hotels near campus that will be more than happy to accommodate paying customers.

Here are few of the more reasonably-priced hotels in the East Lansing/Lansing area. Be sure to call ahead to make reservations and check the prices.

Holiday Inn-University Place, 300 M.A.C. Ave., East Lansing. Across from MSU and home of the Chesapeake Crab House and Zeke's Deli Sports Bar. 181 rooms. For reservations call (517) 337-4440.

Holiday Inn-Lansing South, 6501 Pennsylvania, Lansing.

Take I-96 Cedar St. Exit 104. Hotel has outdoor swimming pool and game room. Pipers Restaurant serves breakfast, lunch, cocktails and dinner. 153 rooms. For reservations call (517) 393-1650 or 1-800-HOLIDAY.

Howard Johnson's, 6741 S. Cedar, Lansing. Take I-96 at Saginaw exit from I-96, South on Cedar. This recently renovated hotel has 100 rooms and an outdoor pool. For reservations call (517) 694-0454 or 1-800-654-2000.

Best Western-Midway Motor Lodge, 7711 W. Saginaw Hwy, Lansing. Take I-96 at Saginaw Exit 93B. Home of Roxy's Nite Club, Hoffman House restaurant serves breakfast, lunch, cocktails and dinner. Hotel offers indoor swimming pool, sauna, whirlpool and game room. 149 rooms. For reservations call (517) 627-8471.

Knight's Inn-South, 1100 Ramada Dr. Lansing. Take I-96 Cedar St. Exit 104. Outdoor swimming pool, 104 rooms. For reservations call (517) 394-7200.

Knight's Inn-West, 7326 W. Saginaw, Lansing. Outdoor swimming pool and 104 rooms. For reservations call (517) 321-1444 or 1-800-722-7220.

Motel 6, 112 E. Main St., Lansing. Outdoor swimming pool and 118 rooms. For reservations call (517) 484-8722.

Red Roof Inn-East, 3615 Duncel Dr., Lansing. Take I-496 Jolly Road Exit. 80 guest rooms. For reservations call (517) 332-2575 or 1-800-THE-ROOF.

Red Roof Inn-West, 7412 W. Saginaw Hwy., Lansing. Take I-96 to Saginaw East Exit. For reservations (517) 321-7246 or 1-800-THE-ROOF.

Super 8 Motel, 910 American Rd., Lansing. Take I-96 Cedar St. Exit 104. Close to Bob Evan's, Wendy's and Kentucky Fried Chicken. 42 rooms. For reservations call (517) 393-8008 or 1-800-843-1991.

Obviously, the closer the hotel is to the campus, the harder it will be to find rooms, but with the large number of hotels to choose from, ND roadtrippers should not have too much of a problem finding a place to rest after a long day of football festivities.

A pilgrim's soul leads husband to heaven's gate

Kathy, as a St. Mary's student, used to come regularly to the children's liturgy I celebrated at Notre Dame every Sunday for twelve years. Even as a campus sweetheart, she enjoyed the company of urchins and moppets. Now as a doctor, she specializes in child psychiatry.

When she was married this summer in late August, she asked me to especially remember the children who couldn't be present at the ceremony. She even telephoned me in London to see if I couldn't create a special moment at the Nuptial mass, celebrating the children who need to feel loved.

Wanting to please the bride, I tried to figure out how I could seamlessly add a memento of Kathy's young patients in absentia to the traditional rituals of a marriage in Christ.

By the time I arrived in Philadelphia, on the day before the wedding, and registered at the Holiday Inn, Blake's poetry was running through my head like a mantra: "On a cloud I saw a child./And (s)he laughing said to me:?" Pipe a song about a Lamb!/"So I piped with merry cheer..." Still I had a mental block that stopped me from writing songs of innocence for Kathy.

In the hotels east of Suez, "where the best is like the worst./Where there aren't no Ten commandments, an' a man can raise a thirst," you may not find that the Gideons have left a King James Bible in the desk drawer of your room.

Holiday Inns, east or west, may be shabby. Maybe the cigarette machine in the lobby doesn't work after shamelessly

Father Robert Griffin

Letters to a Lonely God

swallowing your money, and maybe the television is on the fritz; but as a guest, you can always get your hands on a room copy of God's Word—unless the previous occupant has ripped it off—if the deep dark night of the soul, coming back day after day, has you feeling grim at 3 a.m..

Could there be a scene in "Death of a Salesman" that Arthur Miller hasn't written yet? Biff has walked into the hotel room where his father, Willy Loman, is giving silk stockings to a Boston lady of the evening.

Afterwards, ashamed and alone, Willy finds the Gideon Bible in a dresser drawer; opening it, he reads Romans 3: 23: "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God," and other verses that appear inside the front cover, under the title HELP IN TIME OF NEED.

If Willy, studying those Scripture aids, can take them to heart, he could end the scene on his knees, accepting Christ as his personal Saviour.

If you think I'm mocking honest religion, as American as apple pie in it style, you don't understand how much of me stays a born-again Baptist. Many a travelling salesman has made peace with God and gone home by the road of the Cross, with the help of the Gideon Bible, I can turn to the section on John 3: 16 ("For God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son..."), which has been translated into more than 1100 languages. Thanks to the Gideons, I can read that verse recorded in 25 of the important world languages which are understood by three-quarters of the earth's population.

Saturday morning at the Holiday Inn, two hours before the wedding, I decided that I should re-write Kathy and Dave's homily starting from scratch. The decision was inspired by a reading of Matthew 18: 1-10 ("Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?") in the Gideon Bible, since it was the only Bible in sight, once I decided that none of the Gospel texts printed in the Catholic Lectionary would do for Kathy.

Matthew 18: 1-10 doesn't throw much of a floor under the theology of marriage, but it gave me a start on the children's cameo appearance. What should I say at a wedding about the spiritual childhood? Should I tell a bride and groom that "Childhood is the kingdom where nobody dies"/Nobody that matters, that is.?"

The Gospel insight is wonderfully different: "In heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father..." Songs of innocence are not the same as a child's garden of verses. The child in the garden is Peter Pan, puer aeternus, who never grows up.

Songs of innocence based on the Gospel are light-years away from the lost boyhood of Judas in which Christ was betrayed. The spiritual childhood does not necessarily bypass Housman's athlete dying young, or the Shropshire lads and girls who must, as chimney sweepers come to dust; but to tell the truth, the Gospel does not have them in mind, either.

And so, in the marriage homily for Kathy and Dave, who love children, I talked about the dandelion wine that Ray Bradbury wrote a short story about. "Peer through it on the wintry day... And peering through, color sky from iron to blue. Hold summer in your hand, pour summer in a glass...change the season in your veins by raising glass to lip and tilting summer in."

Then Bradbury tells us about Doug, the 12-year old dying in August of heat exhaustion, "Some people turn sad awfully young. No special reason, it seems but they seem almost to be born that way. They bruise easier, tire faster, cry quicker, remember longer and, as I say, get sadder younger than anyone else in the world."

The cure that saves Doug is bottled wine made from green dusk for dreaming, and pure northern air derived from the atmosphere of the white arctic, mixed with the wind from the upper Hudson valley. "Drink the content of the bottle. Not with you mouth, no. Drink with you nose...and let what is in it go right down into your head."

I said to Kathy: "You're the doctor in the family, so keep an eye on your man, to see if he turns sad early. Love is the wine that keeps marriage young, since it's made from young grapes that the bees get drunk on as part of the uncertain glory of April days." Kathy, staying young on love for a lifetime, could be better than wine. For Dave, she could be like water from the fountain of youth.

For Dave's song of innocence, I chose a love poem by Yeats: "When you are old and gray and full of sleep," Yeats writes to the actress Maude Gonne, "take down this book and slowly read...How many loved your moments of glad grace/And loved your beauty with love false or true/But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you/And loved the sorrows of your changing face."

I told Dave, "As a pilgrim soul, Kathy can lead you to heaven's gate, where hearts are examined like passports to see if they've been stamped PURE. Only the pure of heart can hope to see God, and that's what the spiritual childhood is all about. Always be on the lookout for the pilgrim soul in your bride, and you'll find the child who never grows old waiting to show you the Father's face."

I said all this and other stuff that you might have liked better if you'd been there to hear it. Homilies don't tend to turn out well when they're written down as articles, and this homily is no exception. I wrote it down as a love letter to Kathy, whose professional life is dedicated to the care of children. I've loved the pilgrim soul in her since she was a college freshman.

Iraq banned by Asian Games

BEIJING (AP) — The Olympic Council of Asia expelled Iraq from the Asian Games Thursday for its invasion of Kuwait, despite Iraq's insistence that the sports body should stay out of politics.

Iraq also was suspended from the council until Kuwait's National Olympic Committee is able to function normally in its homeland again. Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, and most of Kuwait's potential competitors for the Sept. 20-Oct. 7 Games were trapped there.

The vote was 27-3, with five abstentions and one invalid ballot, officials said. Two other members of the 38-member council—Mongolia and Afghanistan—stayed out of the voting. The reason was not immediately known.

Iraq, Yemen and Palestine voted against expulsion, said Roy De Silva of Sri Lanka, vice chairman of the meeting.

Two days before the Games' opening ceremonies, 52 Kuwaiti athletes and officials had checked into the Games village. All had been outside their country when Iraq invaded.

Iraq had intended to send 124 athletes to compete in the Asian Games. None had entered the village by Thursday, although an Iraqi soccer team, in China for other competition, was awaiting results of the vote.

In all, some 4,000 athletes are expected to compete for 308 gold medals in 27 sports.

"We the Kuwaitis have justice on our side," said Ahmed Fahd Al-Sabah, president of Kuwait's National Olympic Committee.

His father, Sheikh Fahd Al-Ahmed Al-Sabah, had been president of the Olympic Council of Asia, but was killed when Iraqi troops stormed the royal palace in Kuwait City.

Thursday's council meeting began with all delegates, including the Iraqis, standing in a moment of silence for him, delegates said.

The younger Al-Sabah said he was "very overwhelmed" by the silent tribute.

Asked if the vote would lift Kuwaiti athletes' morale, he said, "It will help our athletes, but unfortunately most of our athletes cannot participate."

"In any case, they feel now that the whole world and Asia are with them," he said.

He said the meeting proceeded smoothly, in a constitutional manner, and only the Iraqis raised any objections, claiming the voting had been rigged.

Abdul Karim Al-Mulla, president of Iraq's National Olympic Committee, said, "We feel sorry for the (Iraqi) athletes. We feel more sorry for the spirit of Olympism. This is a victory for everything illegal."

An Iraqi National Olympic Committee statement described the procedures in Iraq's expulsion as "a clear and flagrant violation of the OCA constitution and all its principles and values of fair treatment for all members."

It also said Iraq was "keen not to involve this assembly in the Gulf crisis and what accompanies it concerning well-known international and regional interferences."

Olympic Games and the ideals that symbolize the Olympic spirit," the president said in a statement.

"It is clear that its assessment was influenced by expediencies that have harmed not only this historical institution, but also (the committee's) own prestige."

In 1976, when he was premier, Caramanlis proposed that the Olympic Games be held permanently in Greece. The country launched the ancient Olympics in 776 B.C.

Athens blasts IOC decision

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greek president Constantine Caramanlis said Friday that the International Olympic Committee had "ignored the history of the Olympic Games" in awarding the 1996 games to Atlanta.

Athens, where the modern Olympics were resurrected in 1896, had hoped to host the games in their centennial year.

"I can only express my regrets because the recent decision by the International Olympic Committee has ignored the history of the "Working on my dissertation and field studies means collecting an incredible amount of information. So jumping from one program to another with ease is imperative, as is quickly making charts and graphs. By enabling me to do these things, Macintosh probably saves me an hour and a half each day."

"Another great thing about the Macintosh is that it makes you feel technically confident. Remember putting toys together when you were a kid? Who reads the directions? Nobody. You look at the picture of the bike and you know exactly what to do. The Macintosh operates the same way. I actually taught a friend to use one in two minutes."

Detroit's Taylor tests positive, gets lifetime ban from NFL

DETROIT (AP) — Cornerback Terry Taylor of the Detroit Lions became the fourth NFL player banned for life under the league's drug policy.

The Lions, who acquired Taylor from the Seattle Seahawks last season for running back James Jones, said Thursday they won't appeal the league action, based on Taylor's third positive test for substance abuse. Taylor can reapply for admission to the league in a year.

"It's always a shock to find out something like that, and my heart is heavy and saddened. But we have to go on and hope things work out for Terry," Coach Wayne Fontes said.

Taylor has been dogged by trouble for most of his seven-year career, which began when he chosen by Seattle as the 22nd player in the 1984 draft.

Neither Taylor nor his agent, Jack Mills of Boulder, Colo., could be reached by telephone on Thursday.

The other players banned for life under the NFL's drug program were Indianapolis running back Tony Collins and defensive ends Dexter Manley of Washington and Frank Warren of New Orleans.

Collins was reinstated this season but was released a week ago by the Miami Dolphins.

Teammate Leroy Irvin, signed as a free agent this year, said Thursday he had talked to Taylor and that Taylor was devastated by his lifetime ban.

"He has to go ahead and do what he has to do to get back in the game," said Irvin, who once was suspended by the league for 30 days for failing a drug test when he was with the Los Angeles Rams.

In Seattle, Taylor twice tested positive for substance abuse. He was treated once and fought a 1988 four-game suspension in court.

He was charged with assault after he allegedly punched a woman in the mouth outside a suburban Seattle video store in September 1987. The complaint was settled out of court and Taylor paid the woman unspecified damages.

Taylor also had numerous traffic violations and missed court appearances, according to court records. He has no criminal record in Michigan, Oakland County police said.

Taylor had 309 tackles and 16 interceptions, including two he returned for touchdowns.

Taylor started the first two regular-season games with the Lions, recording 10 tackles.

ent this weekend. We've been playing man-to-man lately, but we may play a zone this weekend to keep from getting too spread out. We will spend time in practice trying to do that. If we can defend well against these two teams, then we're in the game. We just have to keep them from scoring."

Like their coach, the Notre Dame players have no illusions about what they must do to come home with a pair of victories.

"These will be two of our toughest games," said senior co-captain Mimi Suba. "We have to keep our minds on defense."

"We really needed our last few wins for momentum. Our defense was good in all of them. I can honestly say that we are a better team than in the beginning of the year, and hopefully that is enough to get us some wins."

Said freshman forward Tasha Strawbridge: "It's exciting to be ranked. We think that we can beat Michigan State and keep improving."

Strawbridge, one of 14 freshmen on the Notre Dame roster, had the first Irish hat trick of the season. Her three goals, which came against Valparaiso, put her second on the Notre Dame scoring list this season.

"This is a big weekend for us," said coach Chris Petrucelli. "This weekend gives us a chance to prove ourselves. One of our goals that we set at the beginning of the season was to be competitive and successful in our region. These games are a great opportunity for us to do just that."

"We'll be disappointed if we don't improve on our effort from last week," said Bayliss.

The toughest singles competition will come from Dan Brakus, the top Canadian singles player from the Michigan. Steve Campbell, an All-American at Rice who once was a Notre Dame recruit, and Wisconsin's Jack Waite are also favorites along with DiLucia.

With the exception of DiLucia, the positions are all up for grabs, and Bayliss said he wants to see some people come forward this weekend.

"We're still finding ourselves. At this point, know one other than DiLucia knows where he stands on this team," he said.

The doubles teams will undergo a complete overhaul from last weekend in order to find winning combina-

Once again, the Irish will compete with some quality teams, including Top-25 squads from West Virginia, Harvard, Northwestern, and Ball State. Rounding out the 12-team field are Rice, Michigan, Colorado, Southern Illinois, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Army.

had trouble with the Warriors last year, winning 1-0 at Marquette, and tying them 2-2 at Krause Stadium.

Marquette, led by Matt Dillon and Jay Spatzek, finished with an 8-8-4 record in their first season of MCC play, going 4-1-1 in league play.

Notes: Kevin Pendergast's six points against Valparaiso put him into a tie for eighth place on the Great Lakes Region scoring list. Evansville's David Weir leads the list with 18 points. The six points in the Valparaiso game gave Pendergast 16 points on the season, a total he did not reach until the 14th game of the season last year.

Notre Dame soccer will be going national next week. First-year head coach Mike Berticelli will be the subject of an article in Soccer America, one of the major soccer magazines in the country.

Expos sweep Mets as Pittsburgh wins

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Chris Nabholz pitched a one-hitter for his first major league shutout and complete game and the Montreal Expos beat New York 2-0 to complete a doubleheader sweep Thursday, dropping the slumping Mets 2 1/2 games behind first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

In the opener, the Expos rallied for four runs in the eighth inning against 19-game winner Frank Viola and Mets relief ace John Franco and won 6-4. The Expos have won six straight and are two games in back of New York and 4 1/2 behind Pittsburgh, which beat Chicago 11-2.

Nabholz (6-0) did not allow a hit for 5 2-3 innings until Tommy Herr's clean single. The left-hander walked three and struck out six. He has not allowed more than four runs in any of his nine major league starts.

In the second game, Montreal scored both its runs in the fourth inning off Sid Fernandez (9-14) on Tim Wallach's RBI single and Marquis Grissom's sacrifice fly. Fernandez gave up only two hits in six innings, both in the fourth when Andres Galarraga and singled with one out after a leadoff walk to Tim Raines.

In the opener, Viola led 4-2 and was five outs away from his 20th victory when Spike Owen tripled and pinch-hitter Mike Fitzgerald singled. Raines' single chased Viola and Franco was greeted by Otis Nixon's single that scored pinch-runner Moises Alou with the tying run.

Galarraga put the Expos ahead with a sacrifice fly and Nixon, who stole second and took third on a passed ball, scored on Wallach's infield hit.

Viola (19-10) gave up five runs and six hits—including solo homers by Raines and Wallach—in 7 1-3 innings in losing to the Expos for the first time in five career decisions. Mel Rojas (3-1) pitched one inning for the victory and Tim Burke pitched two hitless innings for his 20th save.

The Mets scored all their runs against rookie Brian Barnes, two on RBI singles by Tommy Herr.

"We have to pass the Mets before thinking about first place," Expos manager Buck Rodgers said. "I just hope the schedule doesn't run out on us."

"We've come back before but now time is just running out," Mets first baseman Dave Magadan said. "Now we have to win on the road."

The Mets play 10 of their remaining 13 games away from home, where they are 32-39 compared to 51-27 at Shea Stadium.

"The Expos are really loose and having fun," Mets manager Bud Harrelson said. "They're getting good pitching and lots of key hits. We're struggling."

"I didn't even know I had a no-hitter," said Nabholz, who was 0-6 at Triple-A Indianapolis. "I threw a no-hitter in high school, but this was my best game as a professional."

AP Photo

Gregg Jefferies (sliding) may have gotten the advantage off Spike Owen as he stole a base off the Expos Tuesday night, but Montreal got the last laugh as it took two games from the Mets Thursday night.

Pirates 11, Cubs 2

CHICAGO—Pittsburgh won its second straight after a six-game losing streak as Andy Van Slyke hit two home runs and drove in three runs and Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer.

Van Slyke homered in the first inning off ex-Pirate Randy Kramer (0-3) and hit a two-run homer, his 17th, off Mitch Williams in a three-run sixth. Bonds hit his 32nd homer in the eighth inning after Van Slyke walked.

"I woke up, opened the drapes and saw the lake was calm," Van Slyke said. "I knew the wind was blowing out, and that brought a smile to my face."

Bob Walk (6-5) raised his career record to 10-3 against the Cubs. He needed relief in the sixth after Ryne Sandberg hit his league-leading 37th home run. Vicente Palacios allowed two hits in blanking the Cubs over the final 3 2-3 innings for his first save.

The Pirates scored three runs in the second. Bonds and Mike LaValliere walked and scored on a triple by Jose Lind. Walk singled to score Lind. Lind singled to open the fourth and two walks loaded the bases before Bobby Bonilla hit a two-run single.

Astros 3, Reds 2

HOUSTON—Pinch-hitter Carl Nichols singled home the tying and winning runs with two out in the ninth inning Thursday night, giving the Houston Astros a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Glenn Davis led off the ninth with a single off Reds relief ace Randy Myers (3-5), who relieved starter Norm Charlton in the eighth. Gerald Young ran for Davis and Dave Rohde, another pinch hitter, was hit by a pitch.

Craig Biggio sacrificed the runners to second and third and Rafael Ramirez was intentionally walked, loading the bases. Myers struck out Mark Davidson before Nichols batted for winning pitcher Xavier Hernandez and delivered his game-winning hit.

Hernandez (2-0) pitched one hitless inning in relief of Mike Scott, who gave up two runs—one earned—and six hits in eight innings. Charlton held Houston to three hits in 7 1-3 innings. Since moving into the starting rotation July 15, Charlton is 7-3 with a 1.91 ERA and has not allowed more than three earned runs in any of his 14 starts.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Davis singled, stole second, continued to third on catcher Biggio's throwing error and scored on a passed ball. Eric Davis made it 2-0 in the fourth with his 22nd homer.

The Astros began their comeback in the sixth when Eric Yelding singled, stole second and scored on a single by Casey Candaele.

The Reds, who have lost three straight and six of 11, began play 4 1/2 games ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who played a late game against San Diego.

Giants 5, Braves 3

ATLANTA—Pinch-hitter Mike Laga hit a tie-breaking two-run homer in the sixth inning to give Eric Gunderson his first major league victory. Laga, batting for Gunderson, hit his second home run of the season off John Smoltz (13-10) following a one-out single by Jose Uribe for a 4-2 lead.

Rick Reuschel, recently off the disabled list, gave up a run and three hits in four innings for his first save since Oct. 5, 1985, when he pitched for Pittsburgh. Gunderson (1-2) yielded two runs and two hits in five innings.

Cardinals 5, Phillies 4

ST. LOUIS—Rookie Ray Lankford's pinch single capped a three-run ninth inning that snapped the Cardinals' four-game losing streak, as the Cardinals were held to two runs and four hits over eight innings by Terry Mulholland.

Todd Zeile started the ninth with a double, bringing on Roger McDowell (6-8).

Zeile held second on Rex Hudler's infield hit and took third as Pedro Guerrero hit into a double play. Felix Jose's infield hit made it 4-3 and, after Jose stole second, Denny Walling, pinch hitting for winner Mike Perez (1-0), singled off third baseman Charlie Hayes' glove to tie the game. Ozzie Smith's double sent pinch-runner Dave Collins to third before Lankford's single gave Perez his first major league win.

The Saint Mary's tennis team expanded its winning streak Tuesday, improving its record to 5-0 after soundly defeating Saint Francis College 9-0.

In singles competition, senior Sarah Mayer played in the No. 1-position, blanking her opponent 6-0, 6-0, while sister Ellen Mayer, a junior, swept her opponent in the No.2-spot, 6-1, 6-0.

Junior Marie Koscielski, playing in the third spot, captured an easy 6-0, 6-1 victory while number four Natalie Kloefer, sophomore, trounced her opponent 6-0, 6-0.

"This year, Natalie is ranked number four and last year she was ranked number six. This has been a tough year for her, but she is doing fine," co-coach Dr. Jo-Ann Nester said. Kloefer has been undefeated so far this season.

Freshmen Thayma Darby and Mary Crossgrove both blanked their cross-court rivals 6-0, 6-0.

"This has been the strongest recruiting class Saint Mary's has had in a long time," Dr. Nester added.

In doubles play, the No.-1 team of the Mayer sisters swept passed their opponents 6-1, 6-1. "This year is the first time that they are playing doubles together," said Dr. Nester. "They never wanted to play play together before, but their styles are similar and they are a solid combination."

Koscielski and Kloefer defeated their opponents 6-1, 6-3 while the number Darby and freshman Jennifer Kovass trounced their opponents 6-1, 6-2.

The team will complete its last game of the fall season this weekend as they play host to the Saint Mary's Invitational. In 1992, as part of the team's move into the NCAA Division III, Saint Mary's will add four weeks to its spring season.

'Pumped up' volleyball squad presses past Northeastern Illinois, improves record to 5-3

By LYNNE BRAGG

A pumped-up Saint Mary's volleyball team came out fighting Tuesday night to beat Northeastern Illinois University 15-9, 16-14, 15-10 to improve its record to 5-3.

The Belles won the first game easily, but ran into trouble in the second. In that game, the Belles came back from a 0-8 deficit to pull out the 16-14 victory. They then went on to win the third game 15-10, completing the sweep. Coach Sue Medley was very impressed with the come-from-behind victory in the second game and praised the play of sophomore Sara Jisa.

"Getting Sara into the line-up off a shoulder injury was a big plus for us," said Medley. "Her performance really helped us in the middle."

Seniors Katy Killilea (13 kills, four service aces, nine digs), Sibilsky (13 kills, seven digs, three blocks), sophomores Karen Lorton (ten kills, five service aces, six digs), Jisa (six kills, ten digs, three blocks) and freshman Michelle Martino (39 assists, seven digs) led the Belles to their impressive victories. Coach Medley also praised the defensive play of freshman Mary O'Malley.

Florida gets NCAA suspension

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The University of Florida was placed on NCAA probation for the second time in six years on Thursday, and school officials were upset that the punishment included a postseason ban for this year's football team.

The NCAA chose to impose less than the minimum prescribed penalties in a case of major violations. The bowl ban for this season was the only punishment of the football program, and there was no ban on television appearances for either sport.

The basketball program's scholarships will be restricted, and it must repay at least $287,000 in revenue from the 1988 NCAA tournament because guard Vernon Maxwell played while he was ineligible. The Gators will be permitted 13 scholarships in 1991-92, two fewer than the maximum, and 14 scholarships in 1992-93.

First-year football coach Steve Spurrier said the bowl ban was a more severe penalty than Florida deserved.

"This has been a clean-run program in the last four or five years," Spurrier said. "There's been no cash payments, no buying tickets of players, no falsifying of transcripts."

As part of the ruling, the NCAA cited former basketball coach Norm Sloan and former football coach Galen Hall, both fired last October, for unethical conduct. If either takes a new coaching job in the next five years, his hiring must be approved by the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

Hall is now an unpaid graduate assistant at Penn State, while Sloan is coaching a professional team in Greece.

Chuck Smrt, director of enforcement for the NCAA, said the case was unique because the school took significant corrective steps after the investigation was disclosed. For that reason, Smrt said, the five-member Committee on Infractions did not impose the minimum prescribed penalties.

The minimum penalties also could have included restrictions on postseason basketball, recruiting in both sports and television appearances.

Florida even faced the remote possibility of having its football and basketball programs shut down by the death penalty. But even though the school escaped severe sanctions, university president John Lombardi took exception to the postseason ban on this year's football team, which is 2-0 and ranked No. 19.

"We are not entirely comfortable with a set of penalties that appear to us to ... penalize the innocent for the sins of a prior generation," Lombardi said.

"This is particularly difficult when you recognize that these players and these coaches are now in the middle of their season, and these penalties at this time in their season appear to us to be a particularly difficult blow to accept."

Smrt said the committee has wrestled with the issue in the past.

"The NCAA is a group of member institutions," he said. "And the penalties run toward the institutions."

The school has 15 days to appeal the sanctions or ask that the ban against the football team be delayed. Neither Lombardi nor athletic director Bill Arnsparger would say whether the school will appeal.

Spurrier said the football program has been guilty of only one major violation in the past six years — when Hall gave a player $360 to make a child-support payment. For that reason, Spurrier said, the school should challenge the NCAA's bowl ban.

"I strongly recommend we do whatever we can to allow this team to play," he said. "For a former coach allegedly making a child-support payment four years ago—that's the reason this team can't play for all the marbles any more? We got a problem with that."

In 1984, the Florida football program received two years' probation, lost scholarships and was banned from appearing in postseason games and on live television.

The NCAA has imposed sanctions on three other programs this year. Maryland's basketball team won't be allowed to participate in postseason play for two years and is forbidden to appear on live television for one year. UNLV, the 1990 NCAA champion, won't be allowed to compete in postseason play

Rader signs extension

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels have been a huge disappointment this season, but apparently the front office doesn't blame Manager Doug Rader.

Rader signed a two-year extension through 1992 on Thursday after two years working under one-year pacts.

Last year, the Angels were one of baseball's biggest surprises, finishing third in the AL West with a 91-71 after being in contention almost the entire season. This year has been a different story: The Angels fell out of contention early and are 74-75, 21 games behind the first-place Oakland Athletics, with 13 games to play.

Management feels confident it's retaining the same Doug Rader who led the Angels to the third-best record in the AL in 1989 — not the one who's had to come up with almost as many starting lineups as games played this year due to an inordinate amount of injuries.

"The strongest trait about Doug Rader is that, more often than not, he'll have the guys in the right frame of mind and help them get the most out of their abilities," general manager Mike Port said.

GAME NOTES

- Michigan State finished 8-4 overall in 1989 and tied for third in the Big Ten at 6-2. The Spartans lost only to Miami, Notre Dame, Michigan and Illinois by a combined total of 21 points and defeated Hawaii 33-13 in the Aloha Bowl.
- Notre Dame has won the past three meetings between the two teams, 12 of the last 14 and 18 of the last 21. The Irish hold a 10-9-1 edge at Spartan Stadium.
- The Irish are 59-9-3 in games in which they have come into the contest ranked number one by AP. Lou Holtz boasts a 15-1 record as Irish head coach when ranked number one.
- This will mark the sixth time and the second straight season that Michigan State has met a top-ranked Notre Dame team. The Irish are 4-0-1 in those games, the tie (10-10) coming in 1966 in the fabled "Game of the Century" in East Lansing.
- Michigan State will be looking for its 500th victory. The Spartans have an all-time record of 499-305-43.

Running wild

Culver fills void in life and Irish backfield

By FRANK PASTOR

Associate Sports Editor

Lou Holtz firmly believes that each of his football teams has a distinctive personality.

When asked to describe this year's Irish squad at Tuesday's press conference, Holtz offered that it had a "lucky" personality- a response which reporters digested with the same grain of salt normally reserved for more evasive answers.

Then Holtz explained himself.

"I believe that there is a spiritual feeling at this school, a spiritual peace," said the fifth-year Irish coach. "I think that this school is very lucky. I think good things happen to this school and the people who attend it, and I think good things are meant to happen. I firmly believe that this school has been blessed, and the people associated with it are [blessed]."

...

Rodney Culver began counting his blessings early in life. He praised God for giving him the talent to play football. He thanked Him for the opportunity to display his talent. He genuflected in the end zone after every touchdown.

Yet his spiritual life lacked a certain sense of balance. Culver let God accompany him down the path of success, but he walked the troubled road alone.

A visit to the doctor's office changed all that.

"I was sitting in the doctor's office during my junior year in high school," said Culver, "and these doctors and their assistants who were supposed to be specialists were pulling on my [injured] leg. It was really frustrating.

"But then my mother said, 'Why do you have so little faith? You have to glorify God now because there will be days where you will be back on top again.'"

Culver fully understood the message.

"It is because of the goodness of God that we have these talents," he continued. "We have to give Him glory for what we have accomplished. Now I don't get down mentally any more."

On the surface, Culver seems to have found that "spiritual peace" which Holtz describes as the key to Notre Dame's success both on and off the field. His strong work ethic and career-high 95 yards on 19 carries had far more to do with last Saturday's 28-24 come-from-behind win over Michigan than luck ever did.

"I didn't know how many carries I had," said the junior fullback. "Coach Holtz thought I was prepared and he just happened to give me the ball more often."

"It could have been Ricky [Watters], Rocket [Ismail] or Tony [Brooks]. On game day, he just saw it work with me effectively and decided to stay with it."

Holtz looked to Culver on critical short-yardage situations against Michigan, previously the domain of Anthony Johnson, a second-round draft choice of the Indianapolis Colts.

When Johnson left Notre Dame at the end of last season, he took with him over 1500 career yards and 32 touchdowns. What he left behind was a star pupil.

"Anthony Johnson and Tony Rice were both great leaders," said Holtz. "Rodney is a lot like A.J. both as a player and a person. He is really and truly a team player in every sense of the word."

Said Culver, "A.J. was a great influence on me. He and Tony Rice took to me like I was their brother. Anthony showed me what it takes to go out and do it effectively every day where you're satisfied and the coach is satisfied.

"I've taken on a key role in leadership this year," Culver continued, "but Coach Holtz doesn't put pressure on me. I put pressure on myself."

Culver felt the pressure early in his freshman year when high expectations and injuries in the offensive backfield induced him into a move from strong safety to running back.

Early-season injuries to tailback Brooks and fullbacks Johnson and Braxton Banks prompted a switch first to tailback and then to fullback for the 6-0, 220-pound Culver.

He responded by rushing for 61 yards on ten carries, including a 36-yard touchdown run against Purdue in his first collegiate game. Culver quickly became a valuable member of the Irish backfield, rushing 30 times for 195 yards and three touchdowns in Notre Dame's 1988 National Championship season.

The Sporting News rated Culver one of the top seven freshman running backs in the nation after the '88 season. He made even more believers the following spring when he earned offensive MVP honors in the Blue-Gold game, scoring all three touchdowns in the Blue team's 21-8 win.

Culver's success continued early into his sophomore campaign when he rushed for a season-high 47 yards on nine carries in Notre Dame's 36-13 victory over Virginia in the Kickoff Classic. But a sudden series of untimely fumbles alarmed Holtz and resulted in considerably less carries for Culver.

"Rodney showed flashes of brilliance during his freshman year," said Holtz. "But he started last year with fumbles in his first three games, so we didn't see a lot of Rodney Culver until he learned to protect the football."

Fortunately for Culver, he was blessed with a strong will and a great appreciation for the fundamentals of the game.

"I didn't understand how to hold the ball," Culver said. "My arm always came away from my body and when I was hit, the ball would come right out. I corrected the problem, and late in the season Coach Holtz just trusted me more with the ball."

Holtz came to trust Culver so much that he began grooming him as the heir apparent to Johnson's fullback spot early in spring practice. But just when Culver appeared ready to accept the starting assignment, a sprained knee forced him to share time with Kenny Spears.

While critics questioned his durability, Culver slowly worked his way back into the starting lineup. Today he is undoubtedly Notre Dame's best short-yardage runner, and his surprising quickness (4.3 speed in the 40) enables him to make big plays out of seemingly ordinary gains.

When the writers of the 1990 Notre Dame football press guide asked Culver what he would call his biography, he responded with, "All I Needed Was A Chance". He was given that chance last Saturday against Michigan and made the most of it.

Recalling the words of his mother, Rodney Culver is back on top again. He is not alone this time.

Holtz has legitimate worries this time

By KEN TYSIAC
Associate Sports Editor

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz has often been accused of exaggerating the strengths of his opponents and the weaknesses of his own teams. His worries entering Saturday's game at Michigan State are legitimate, though.

Holtz is most concerned about what will happen when his defense takes the field at 3:30 p.m. in Spartan Stadium in East Lansing. The Irish, who gave up 443 total yards in last week's 28-24 victory over Michigan, will be facing an explosive Spartan offense which features senior quarterback Dan Enos and junior flanker Courtney Hawkins, perhaps the top passer-receiver combination in the Midwest.

That's not the worst of Holtz's concerns as he enters Spartan Stadium with three straight wins over Michigan State, and 10 straight victories over Big 10 teams under his belt. Holtz will also fret about the prospect of defending Enos, Hawkins, and Co. without the services of All-American cornerback Todd Lyght, who aggravated a hamstring injury on the last play of the first half against Michigan. Lyght did not practice early in the week and Holtz said his status was doubtful for the Michigan State contest.

Greg Lane, a true freshman, is slated to start in Lyght's place if the senior cornerstone of the Irish secondary is not able to play.

"It would be asking an awful lot of him to ask him to go out there and perform like Todd Lyght," Holtz says, "but he's a good athlete."

Lane will line up on Hawkins, while sophomore Reggie Brooks, who intercepted Elvis Grabac's pass late in the game to seal the victory against Michigan, will probably start at the other corner. Senior Greg Davis and junior George Poorman will start at strong safety and free safety, respectively.

Spartan coach George Perles will likely try to take advantage of the inexperience of Notre Dame's cornerbacks by having Enos throw to Hawkins (60 catches for 1080 yards last year, an 18.0-yard average) and split end James Bradley (six catches for 85 yards last week against Syracuse). Enos is a threat to run the ball as well. The All-Big 10 candidate ran for six touchdowns last year in addition to completing 153 of 240 passes for 2066 yards and nine TDs last year.

"The team should know that with Dan at quarterback, we're never out of a game because he can bring us back in such a short period of time because of his abilities to run the two-minute offense," Perles says.

The Spartans, who tied Syracuse 23-23 in their season opener last week, will platoon sophomore Tico Duckett (16 carries for 73 yards against Syracuse) and senior Highland Hickson (19 carries, 87 yards) at tailback. Senior Rob Roy will get the nod at fullback and Duane Young will start at tight end. Senior Jeff Pearson, a 6-3, 265-pound transfer from Notre Dame, will snap the ball to Enos and try to get the best of Irish nose tackle Chris Zorich.

Zorich, a returning All-American, will anchor a defensive front seven which will try to put as much pressure as possible on Enos in order to hide the vulnerabilities of the Irish secondary. 6-3, 298-pound senior George Williams and 6-5, 261-pound senior Bob Dahl will join Zorich on the defensive line.

Sophomore Demetrius Dugan and senior Michael Stonebreaker, who contributed eight tackles and a key interception against Michigan, will start at inside linebacker for the Irish. They will share time with senior Donn Grimm, who led Notre Dame with nine tackles last week. Seniors Scott Kowalkowski and Andre Jones will see time at defensive end along with junior Devon McDonald.

The Irish offense could have a field day against a Spartan defense which graduated seven starters, including Butkus Award winner Percy Snow, last year. Notre Dame was more successful than Holtz had anticipated against the Michigan defense last week, totalling 399 yards.

Holtz is still not used to having Rick Mirer at quarterback. Last year, when Tony Rice was the Irish QB, Notre Dame seldom threw the ball. Last week, though, Mirer completed 14 of 23 passes for 165 yards and one touchdown. The change of pace gave Holtz, a conservative coach by nature, a few gray hairs.

Michigan State's Courtney Hawkins is one of the most explosive receivers in the nation. With Irish cornerback Todd Lyght doubtful for Saturday's game, Hawkins could give the Notre Dame secondary some problems.

"I thought we threw the ball 73 times," Holtz says. "When they told me it was (23) I said, 'You've got to be kidding. I don't ever remember us throwing the ball as much as we did today. It seemed like all we did was call pass patterns.' I was rather surprised with it."

Mirer, the sophomore sensation from nearby Goshen, Ind. who has been compared to Joe Montana (whose number he now wears) and pictured on the cover of this week's Sports Illustrated, received rave reviews after completing five of six passes on the fourth-quarter drive which put Notre Dame ahead to stay against Michigan.

Holtz just wants Mirer to play within himself.

"I don't expect him to be outstanding or awesome. I just expect him to be our quarterback. This is not Rick Mirer's football team. This team belongs to the Rocket Ismails and the Mike Heldts and the Ricky Watterses and the Derek Browns and the Tony Brookses," Holtz says.

Michigan State's defense will be led by senior outside linebackers Carlos Jenkins (eight tackles last week) and Dixon Edwards (seven). Fellow seniors Brian Jones, a middle linebacker, and Mike Iaquaniello, a free safety, also made big plays against the Orangemen when they intercepted passes by Syracuse quarterback Marvin Graves.

"Michigan State always plays outstanding defense," Holtz says. "We've always had trouble moving the ball on them and scoring many points on them."

This year could be different. Although the Irish offensive line is still lacking continuity, Notre Dame has explosive athletes at all of the skill positions. At fullback, junior Rodney Culver was a pleasant surprise last week, leading all Irish rushers with 95 yards on 19 carries.

Seniors Ricky Watters (7 carries for 41 yards) and Tony

FACES TO WATCH

George Perles

In his eighth season as Michigan State's head coach, Perles has a record of 46-33-4. He has directed the Spartans to six consecutive winning seasons, the first time that has happened in 36 years. Michigan State has appeared in five bowl games under Perles.

Carlos Jenkins

A fifth-year senior and third-year starter at outside linebacker, Jenkins has over 200 career tackles. In 1989, he had 75 tackles and was named All Big Ten by AP and UPI and honorable mention by The Sporting News. He had three interceptions - against Notre Dame, Miami and Hawaii.

John Langeloh

The placekicker needed 28 points to become the all-time leading career scoring leader at Michigan State heading into this season. He had two field goals against Notre Dame last season. He was honorable mention All Big Ten by AP.

Eric Moten

A fifth-year senior offensive lineman, he is a candidate for All Big Ten and All America honors. He started all 12 games at left guard in 1989. He was a second team All Big Ten selection by UPI and an honorable mention by AP.

Jeff Pearson

The former Notre Dame player, Pearson is in his second and final year as the starting center for the Spartans. He will line up against Notre Dame All-American Chris Zorich. Pearson started all 12 games for Michigan State in 1989 after sitting out in 1988.

Instant hero

Jarrell's winning touchdown catapults him into spotlight

By CHRIS COONEY
Assistant Sports Editor

Adrian Jarrell deserved to catch Rick Mirer's first collegiate touchdown pass last Saturday, if only because of last year's game against Navy.

In that match-up, Jarrell took a reception from Mirer to the one yard line, missing by just a few feet what would have been the first scoring completion for the two Notre Dame freshmen.

Instead, the pair had to wait almost a year, but their timing was right-on. When the tandem finally combined successfully, Jarrell was waiting in the end-zone for Mirer's dramatic, game-winning touchdown pass over fourth-ranked Michigan.

"I just ran a corner route to the back of the endzone," said Jarrell. "It was up to Rick to pick the receiver. I turned around and the ball was there."

Jarrell caught the 18-yard pass right on the numbers and became one of the night's many heroes, a new experience for the sophomore who backs up Rocket Ismail at flanker. But playing behind one of Notre Dame's superstars doesn't bother Jarrell.

"I don't worry about name recognition," he said. "If it comes, fine. I'm more concerned with just doing whatever the team needs me to do."

For the 6-2, 197-pound Jarrell, that means sharing a good deal of playing time with Ismail, blocking downfield and catching the ball when it's thrown his way. While he had four receptions for 37 yards in his first season with the Irish, this year Jarrell looks to become a more permanent figure in the Notre Dame offense.

"I think a year makes a difference," said Jarrell. "I'm catching and blocking better and putting things together on the field. Now going into the game it's 'I'm going to do this,' not 'What am I going to do?'"

Improving his execution and earning a regular roster spot at flanker was bit of an adjustment for Jarrell, who was used mainly as a quarterback at Clarke Central High School in Athens, Ga. Catching the ball was just a sometimes job for the all-purpose player who threw for 369 yards and ran for another 466 his senior year. While Jarrell did total 215 yards receiving, he also punted, returned kicks and played defense.

But Jarrell knew that he would mainly play receiver at Notre Dame. He said the change didn't bother him too much, because his quarterbacking knowledge eventually became an asset at the new position.

"At first it was hard looking at things from a different perspective, but I think now it helps me anticipate what will happen on the field," he said. "I like having a total picture of everything that's going on so I can compensate on my feet if something goes wrong."

Jarrell, who chose Notre Dame over schools such as

The Observer / Kevin Weise

Adrian Jarrell (10) celebrates after catching the winning touchdown pass last Saturday against Michigan in Notre Dame Stadium. The catch helped the Irish open their season with a 28-24 victory over the Wolverines.

Michigan and Ohio State, thinks the Irish receiving corps will be recognized as one of the best in the nation by the end of the season.

"People don't look past Rocket, because up to now he's done everything," said Jarrell. But with Mirer developing the Notre Dame passing attack, Jarrell anticipates that the rest of the receivers will have a chance to shine.

"Rick's a solid player, very consistent," he said.

Jarrell and the rest of the Irish catching crew will have another chance to excel this Saturday when Notre Dame faces Michigan State. And while Jarrell does not aspire to be the hero every week, he said he hopes the team's confidence on the field continues.

"We weren't at all nervous in the huddle," Jarrell said of the game-winning drive. "We were going to win the game, you could feel it."

Jarrell and the rest of the Irish offense hope that feeling continues this weekend and for the rest of the 1990 season.

Spartan quarterback Dan Enos could give the Notre Dame secondary some problems Saturday afternoon. An inexperienced secondary will probably play without All-American Todd Lyght, who aggravated a hamstring in last weekend's win over Michigan.

Notre Dame assumes top spot in college poll

Observer Staff Report

Notre Dame is the new top team in the National College Sportswriters Poll released earlier this week.

The Irish, 28-24 winners over Michigan last Saturday, received 23 first-place votes and 569 total points in the poll. They were second in last week's poll.

Florida State, last week's top team, dropped to second with four first-place votes and 545 total points. The Seminoles, 2-0, will play Tulane on Saturday.

Auburn remained at number-three after beating Mississippi last week to up its record to 2-0. Brigham Young, 3-0, is ranked fourth and received one first-place vote. The Cougars host San Diego State on Saturday.

Southern California rounds out the top five after last weekend's victory over Penn State. The Trojans travel to Washington on Saturday.

Tennessee, 3-0-1, is sixth followed by Michigan, Miami, Virginia and Nebraska. The Wolverines will try to get their first win on Saturday against UCLA. Virginia will put its perfect 3-0 record on the line when it travels to Duke.

Oklahoma is 11th followed by Texas A&M, Arkansas, Colorado and Ohio State.

Rounding out the Top 20 are Clemson, Illinois, Florida, Houston and Arizona.

Brooks (8 carries for 36 yards) will share time at tailback. Watters may also spend some time split out as a receiver like he did last week as the Irish continue to take advantage of Mirer's passing prowess.

Heisman Trophy candidate Raghib Ismail, who caught four passes for 42 yards and rushed six times for 50 yards against the Wolverines, will start at flanker. The versatile Ismail will also return kickoffs and punts for the Irish.

Don't expect the Spartans to kick the ball to Ismail, though. The Michigan State coaching staff has great respect for the explosive junior from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. who has returned four kickoffs and one punt for touchdowns in his collegiate career.

"We're going to kick away from him," Perles states curtly.

Michigan State placekicker John Langeloh, who became the Spartans' all-time field goal leader when he knocked three kicks through the uprights last week against Syracuse, could figure prominently in the game. 6-5, 246 pound Josh Butland will handle the punting chores for Perles.

Sophomore Craig Hentrich, meanwhile, will handle the placekicking and punting duties for the Irish. Holtz was disappointed with his squad's punting game against Michigan, but Hentrich was an outstanding punter as a freshman and he is likely to revert to form against the Spartans.

The final important factors in the game will be the artificial turf and the home-field advantage, which both favor the Spartans.

"The hitting is usually much harder on Astroturf than it is on grass because you get better traction and the game is much on grass," Holtz says. "Backs make cuts on Astroturf that you don't see on grass, and it always concerns me going from grass to Astroturf."

And the home field advantage?

"You've heard me say many times that when you go on the road you better pack your defense, your discipline, your kicking game, your quickness and your togetherness or you don't have a chance."

If the Irish secondary doesn't come together, the Spartans may be the ones who have a chance to score a lot of points

Women's soccer heading north

Irish to face Michigan State, Marquette this weekend

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team journeys northward this weekend for key regional matchups with the Michigan State Spartans and Marquette Lady Warriors.

This afternoon at 2 p.m., the Irish (4-2) face the mighty Spartans, who are ranked sixth in the Midwest. In their last game, the Spartans (2-2) fell 1-0 to Colorado College, the 1989 national runner-up in Division I. Michigan State owns a 1-0 advantage in the adolescent series with Notre Dame.

In Michigan State's season opener, the Spartans dispatched Canisius College of Buffalo 4-0, outshooting the Lady Griffins 39-2. Among the players to watch on the high-powered Spartan offense are junior forward Kate Ferguson, senior forward Emily Coatney, sophomore midfielder Yolanda Marino, and freshman midfielder Margaret Martin. The Michigan State goalkeeper, sophomore Andrea Gerbi, also promises to give the Irish fits.

"Michigan State defends very well," noted Notre Dame head coach Chris Petrucelli. "I think that the game will be a good challenge for our frontrunners who have been playing very well recently. We will see what we can do against a step up in competition."

The Irish then face Marquette on Sunday morning at 10:45 a.m.

Marquette, unlike Michigan State, is a club team. Because of this status, a paucity of scouting information on Marquette is available. But Marquette is a well-organized, highly competitive club team. In fact, Marquette owns a 2-0 advantage in the lifetime series after trouncing the Irish 3-0 last season. Notre Dame only managed four shots on goal in that game.

"Marquette is a very strong club team," emphasized Petrucelli. "They are maybe on a different level than most clubs. They defend very well, and they have been a team that Notre Dame has had trouble figuring out in the past. It is frustrating trying to get scouting reports in women's soccer in general, but especially frustrating when it comes to Marquette."

Yet despite the seemingly awesome power of the Spartans and the amorphous reputation of the Lady Warriors, Notre Dame has no intentions of doing anything but winning two games this weekend. Key to the Irish game plan will be the consistent play of the defense, which has recorded two consecutive shutouts.

"All year long our goal going into every game is to get a shutout," explained Petrucelli. "That is our goal because I know that our kids up front can score. If we can get a shutout every time out, then we will not lose a game. This is a legitimate goal, but it will also provide a very tough test because of all the freshman which we have on the field."

In their last two games, the Irish defense has performed with the accuracy of a sniper and the effectiveness of a wrecking ball, dominating opposing offenses. Against Washington University, Notre Dame surrendered only one shot on goal, while giving up two shots against Valparaiso. In those two games, the Irish fired off 51 shots of their own.

"It will be important for us to defend well," said Petrucelli. "We may do something differ-

Volleyball attempts to set tone for season

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

This weekend's Rhode Island Tournament will go a long way to determine the tone for the rest of the women's volleyball team's season, as the Irish face Rhode Island, Syracuse and Canada's Sherbrooke.

Win the tourney and the Irish come into next weekend's big match with pre-season number 13 Penn State with a full head of steam.

Have a poor showing, like this season's opening tournament, and the season could take off like a wounded bird.

The biggest question is, which Irish team will show up? The one that swept to the championship of the Notre Dame Invitational or the one that lost to an unheralded Kentucky squad last weekend?

"The consistency is not there yet," stated Head Coach Art Lambert.

None of the teams the Irish will face this weekend is a powerhouse. The Irish defeated Rhode Island in four games (15-0, 15-3, 13-15, 15-6) last year at the Joyce Center. The game the Irish lost in that match most likely had a young, inexperienced team on the floor. The Irish starters should have no such trouble.

The Irish haven't met the Orangewomen of Syracuse since 1981, their second year as a varsity team. As for Canada's Sherbrooke, the Irish have never met them.

The most prevalent concern for Irish players and fans is that the Irish are a mediocre 4-

The Observer / John Cluver

4 thus far. That ledger includes no teams in the Top 20. The Irish, who aspire to be a Top-20 team themselves, still must play eight teams in the preseason Top 20.

The question really isn't a physical one with the Irish. Sure, Jessica Fiebelkorn and Molly Stark must improve on the middle attack as well as block better. A setter must emerge and the hitting must be consistent game-in, game-out. But all that will come.

What remains to be seen is if the Irish have the internal makeup, the mental toughness to turn things around. This weekend would be as good a start as any.

Next few games vital for men's soccer tone

By RICH KURZ
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's soccer team lost to one team and tied another it should have beaten in the last week, and the next few games will be critical while they struggle to find the right combination to get the team clicking.

Tonight they travel to East Lansing, Mich., to face Michigan State. The Spartans are 4-0 on the season, 1-0 in the MCC, with one win coming against Detroit, a team which defeated the Irish Wednesday night.

Michigan State's defense has been spartan, to say the least. They come into the game with a sparkling 0.69 goals-allowed average, and have not allowed more than one goal in any of their games.

The Spartan's offense has also been high-powered this season, outscoring its opponents 11-3. Carl Hopfinger has scored three goals, and Mike Rawlins has been potent, scoring two goals and delivering three assists.

The Irish have owned the series with Michigan State, holding a 5-1-3 all-time record against it. Last season Notre Dame beat the Spartans 4-1 at Krause Stadium, and, in the team's last meeting in East Lansing in 1988, the Irish won 5-0. The last and only time MSU defeated Notre Dame was in 1986, when the Spartans prevailed 1-0.

Tennis hosts Invitational

By DAVE McMAHON
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team will play host to the fourth annual Tom Fallon Invitational Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Courtney Courts.

After a performance last week at the Navy Invitational that left coach Bob Bayliss still searching for a starters at virtually every position, the Irish hope to improve on their last outing.

"We lost a lot of close matches, which was a concern to me," said Bayliss. "Some of our guys were rusty competitively from not playing over the summer."

Irish All-American David

DiLucia, playing at number-one singles, returns to the lineup this weekend after sitting out the first tournament of the fall season. Chuck Coleman will play at two singles, while Mark Schmidt will round out the "A" flight. At Annapolis last weekend, Schmidt placed fifth in the number-two flight.

"I was a little bit disappointed in several of our players' performances," Bayliss said. "Our doubles were not as good as they should have been, but we threw in several untested teams and it showed. Right now we just need to get on the courts and play."
