Bush will strike without hesitancy if provoked

'Just doing my job,' says Bush

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — President Bush said Monday "we'd have no hesitancy at all" to use military force in the Persian Gulf if provoked by Iraq and indicated he feels no obligation to get Congress' approval.

"History is replete with examples where the president has had to take action," Bush said. Apparently referring to the U.S. invasion of Panama, Bush said, "I've done this in the past, and certainly, somebody mentioned provocation, we'd have no hesitancy at all."

Bush said he was not trying to prepare the country for war.

"I'm just doing my job as president of the United States," he said. "I'm not preparing anybody for anything. I'm as determined as I've ever been that this aggression will not stand."

Bush spoke at an airport news conference in San Francisco after campaigning for Republican Sen. Pete Wilson in his race for governor. Later, he flew to Oklahoma City to appear at the Cowboy Hall of Fame with Bill Price, the GOP candidate for governor in Oklahoma.

Shrugging off his slump in the polls, he accused Democrats of trying to win elections through "tax the rich, class warfare kind of garbage."

"I think people know that this Congress is controlled by the taxers, by the liberal Democrats," Bush said in a sharply political attack eight days before Election Day.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State James Baker was echoing Bush's tough gulf statements in a speech in Los Angeles.

"We are exhausting every diplomatic avenue to achieve (a peaceful) solution without further bloodshed," Baker said. But he added, "Let no one doubt: We will not rule out a possible use of force if Iraq continues to occupy Kuwait."

The White House policy in the Persian Gulf has won strong bipartisan support in Congress, although there is a growing feeling that Bush should consult lawmakers before sending troops into any combat. More than 200,000 American forces have been deployed to the gulf after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said last week that as many as 100,000 more troops may be dispatched.

The gulf crisis will be at the top of the agenda when Bush meets with congressional leaders at the White House on Tuesday. The president also is to consult with Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who just returned from the Middle East.

Bush appeared unmoved by demands that Congress should be asked in advance before he sends troops into action.

"I know the authorities that a president has," Bush said. "I'm working to try to get this matter resolved peacefully. We have a lot of force there and they're well trained, they're highly motivated and that alone is sending an enormously strong signal to Saddam Hussein."

Bush also said the Soviet Union remains aligned with the United States against Iraq. He said Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev "is holding just as firm as he can. And that's good, you see, because that sends a strong signal that the free world is united against this dictator."

The Oklahoma stop concluded a five-day campaign trip that took Bush as far west as Hawaii while Congress was wrapping up a $490 billion deficit-reduction agreement. Bush said he had felt politically restrained while the agreement was being put together but now is taking off the gloves.

"I don't like being on the defense," he said. "I like being on the offense."

The president will hit Democrats again in a speech in Washington on Tuesday and then hit the road Thursday for nonstop campaigning until the election.

O'Hara reinstates last year's advertising policy for bands

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Managing Editor

Patricia O'Hara, vice president for Student Affairs, reinstated on Thursday last year's policy concerning the posting of advertisements for student band performances off-campus.

Her acceptance of Campus Life Council Resolution #909101 reverses a policy adopted by the Office of Student Affairs in May of this year. The policy prohibited on-campus distribution of flyers for student band performances at establishments serving alcohol.

In a letter to Student Body President Rob Pasin, O'Hara said "The Office of Student Affairs will reinstate last year's policy with respect to posting of advertisements for student band performances at establishments serving alcohol."

The resolution was unanimously approved by the CLC on October 15 and was sent to O'Hara, who had seven days to issue a decision on the resolution. Had she rejected the resolution, the CLC would not be able to override her veto.

While O'Hara accepted the resolution, she expressed "minor differences of opinion" with some of the resolution's language.

"For example, I think that student bands take advantage of opportunities to perform at on-campus events not involving alcohol, as well as performing at off-campus establishments serving alcohol," she said. "I do, however, concur in the resolution."

"The passage and approval of this resolution is a perfect example of students and the administration working together to improve campus life," Pasin said in response to the letter.

Controversy surrounding the issue arose earlier this year after Student Affairs prohibited the on-campus distribution of flyers. This action was taken after "a number of student band advertisements appeared which had not been approved by the Director of Student Activities and which violated the guidelines of the prior policy."

This caused Student Affairs to reexamine the policy and issue a literal interpretation of the passage in du Lac which states: "Advertising for events involving the use of alcohol which directly or indirectly refer to alcoholic beverages in any form cannot be posted or distributed on any University property."

After student dissatisfaction with the new policy was expressed in The Observer on October 10, and after the resolution was brought to the CLC, O'Hara met with Associate Vice President for Student Affairs John Goldrick, and Sister Jean Lenz and Father Peter Rocca, assistant vice presidents for Student Affairs, to reevaluate the decision.

"We decided that the previous policy sufficiently satisfies the spirit of the provision and is consistent with advertising cur-

CLC calls for new responsibility

By CATHY FLYNN

Collective responsibility should replace the current policy of collective punishment, according to a unanimous resolution made by the Campus Life Council.

"The actions of a few should not result in the punishment of many," Raja Singh, executive coordinator of the Student Government Legal Department. Collective punishment involves actions against the innocent as well as the guilty, he added.

The resolution encompasses incidents involving the entire student body which might result in collective responsibility. Avoidance of such situations is sought through discussions between the appropriate administrative office and proper student officers.

"This is not just a response to the snowball fight of last year," said Singh. Because this is one of the few incidents in which the University withheld dorm funds as a campus-wide collective punishment, it is cited often as an example in discussions of the new resolution, he added.

Collective punishment did not work in this particular situation, according to Singh. People who damaged the University's property did not care if money for hall improvements was withheld, he continued.

In the event of an incident such as this, "the Office of Student Affairs will contact appropriate student leaders," according to the resolution. This coalition will work toward the adoption of action which stresses collective responsibility.

The resolution will be sent to Patricia O'Hara, vice-president of Student Affairs, for approval or rejection. She must respond within seven days, citing her rationale for either action, according to Rob Pasin, student body president.

Members of the Campus Life Council drew up a resolution emphasizing collective responsibility for incidents such as last year's snowball fight as opposed to the present policy of collective punishment.

INSIDE COLUMN

Healthier food would improve students' lives

I spent October break complaining to my mother about how difficult it is to maintain good eating habits at Notre Dame, when the four food groups are: the pizza family; the burger and fries family; the chips, pretzels, and other snack food family; and the dessert family.

Alison Cocks
Editor-in-Chief

Periodically, I suffer from the irrational urge to purge my body of junk food (and a few pounds into the bargain), particularly immediately before social and professional situations which require me to behave like a civilized human being.

These harebrained endeavors border on masochism because I've found that "eating right" at Notre Dame usually restricts me to about two or three possible meals.

I was pleasantly surprised to discover that the dining halls have introduced the lighter fares during meals. Before this week, I found that healthy eating in the dining hall usually meant heading for the salad bar.

No matter how wide the variety of vegetables, my tolerance for rabbit food, and therefore my desire to eat healthy meals, usually lasts about three days. Low-calorie, low-cholesterol selections are much-needed additions, but efforts should not stop there.

If I miss a meal, or skip the dining hall, what then? If either my car or the weather is feeling contrary, I'm stuck with food I can find on campus.

Anyone with the metabolism rate to compensate for their food choices can subsist on Huddleburgers with cheese, fries, chips, pizza and candy without having to worry about effects on the waistline.

Mere mortals aren't so fortunate, and find few alternatives to this fare outside the dining halls. Although Flavor of the Orient in the Huddle offers a salad bar and a good stir-fry, it closes at 6:30 p.m. After that, only the ice-cream shop, the Bull Pit Grill, Leprechaun Pizza and the deli are open.

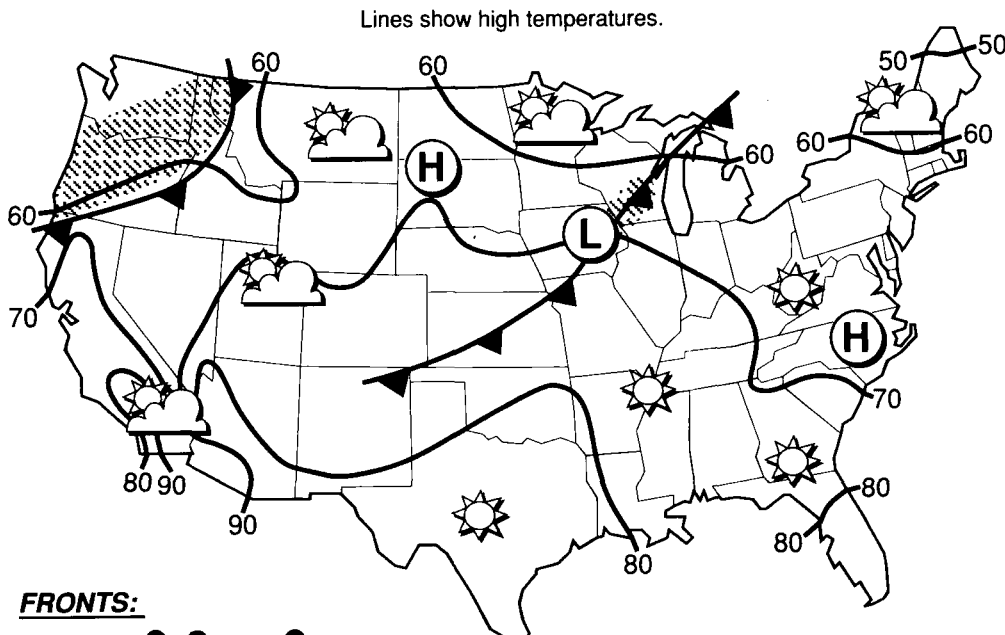

Needless to say, the first three can be eliminated right away in the quest for healthy food, and aside from ready-made salads and popcorn, there is little in the deli that is particularly nutritious. The same holds true for dorm foodsales and vending machines.

No wonder eating disorders prevail on campus: dieting is difficult and hunger after 6:30 p.m. usually means ordering fast food and feeling guilty later.

It surprises me that Notre Dame has not followed the health craze which is pervading America. Clichés such as "freshman fifteen" and the more direct "I'm so fat" can be heard less frequently, but first the University must provide better means for students to lead the healthy lifestyles many others across the country have already chosen.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

New York, the New England Express, that is intended to make the 230-mile trip in under four hours. The first trip Sunday almost met the mark. The Express left Boston's South Station at 11:15 a.m. and arrived at Penn Station in Manhattan at 3:18 p.m., eight minutes late, for an average speed of 57 mph, including stops. The trip has taken about four hours and 40 minutes in the past, for an average speed of about 45 mph. By comparison, Japan's "bullet" trains travel at about 130 mph, and France's high-speed trains hit about 200 mph. Both have exclusive use of all-new tracks. To shorten the ride, Amtrak officials want to electrify the entire Boston to New York route. The ultimate time goal is a trip under three hours.

Legislation to expand the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore died when Congress adjourned before the House could act on its final version. Rep. Peter Visclosky, a Merrillville Democrat, refused to accept a Senate-passed version of the bill, which greatly scaled back the proposed expansion. Visclosky and his House colleagues sent their original plan back to the Senate, where it arrived minutes before Congress adjourned for the year early Sunday. The Democrat and Indiana environmentalists agreed that no bill was preferable to the Senate version drafted by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

Senate discusses Business Board

By PETER AMEND
News Writer

The Student Senate discussed the possibility of amending the constitutional authority of the Business Board general manager over the student run businesses.

Mike Kolar, Business Board general manager, presented the issue in light of an instance that occurred last Valentine's Day. Irish Gardens had to buy roses at the inflated market price; yet, they refused to raise prices for the students, according to Kolar.

Molly Griffin, last year's general manager, wanted Irish Gardens to raise their prices so that the business would not take a loss, said Kolar. "It became the Student Senate versus the Student Managers," he said.

In the end, the Irish Gardens did not raise their prices, and the only avenue Griffin had to overthrow the student manager's decision was to fire the manager, according to Kolar.

Despite this incident, the Student Body Constitution states: "The Business Board general manager shall be the Chief Financial Officer for the student businesses. Quantitative decisions concerning staffing, inventory, promotion, or other matters directly affecting the financial performance of the businesses shall be the responsibility of the general manager. The general manager shall see that the businesses operate according to the policies and guidelines established by Business Control Council and/or the Student Senate."

Kolar said he would like the Constitution amended to prevent such events from happening in the future.

Panelists talk about women in business

By CLAIRE ROBINSON
News Writer

There is a "glass ceiling" in the business world that prevents women from gaining access to upper level positions, according to panelists at a recent discussion about women in the business world.

The panelists discussed a survey in the Wall Street Journal indicating that many women, as well as men, have no desire to break through this glass ceiling. Individuals are either perfectly content with their positions, or their jobs are not a priority in their lives, according to panelist Judith Hennessey.

"The ceilings are starting to crack," said panelist Thomas Nessinger. "We cannot isolate a group and say we won't count on them."

Seventy-one percent of the women surveyed believed that a glass ceiling did, in fact, exist, while 73 percent of the men surveyed said it did not, according to Phyllis Washington Stone, another panelist.

"For many decades, women have been in the work force playing second fiddle, creating the harmony that makes work and the work force continue in the direction that we want it to go," noted Kathleen Hessert, the moderator of the discussion titled, "Women in Business—Issues in a Changing Corporate Culture."

"But after years of sitting next to that first chair, it no longer is enough ... we're hearing more and more discord ... because harmony is no longer their goal," she said.

The four panelists included Hennessey, a student in the Notre Dame Executive MBA program and an environmental compliance manager; Lauren Strach, an assistant professor of business administration and economics at Saint Mary's College; Stone, a pharmaceutical sales representative; and Nessinger, a partner and director of U. S. recruiting for Arthur Anderson & Co.

The panel opened with a slide show about the status of women in the work force.

The discussion touched upon the issues of sexual harassment, family life, pay and promotion inequity and power in the workplace. Nessinger cited use of interns and part-time workers to replace a woman on maternity leave.

"Women who will be successful are the ones who will jump up and go after what they want like men do," said Nessinger. However, he said that while men are aware that they can achieve high positions in businesses, women are often not even sure of this.

Closing comments were delivered by Mary Cunningham Agee, president of Semper Enterprises and executive director of the Nurturing Network.

Agee focused upon the three stages of change necessary to incorporate women into the work force. First, legislative change is required. As a result, behavioral changes in the workplace ensue. These two steps are external.

The most difficult change, said Agee, is the internal change in the attitude of both men and women.

She said that the most important thing for female newcomers in the business place to do is to try to empathize with co-workers, who may have never worked with a woman before. Women should be aware that male discomfort may manifest itself as prejudice.

"Winning means making sure your [corporate] ladder is leaning up against the right wall," she said.

The discussion was sponsored by the Advisory Council to the College of Business Administration, held in conjunction with the "Year of Women."

Cyanide spills into Lynches River

JEFFERSON, S.C. (AP) — Millions of gallons of a dilute cyanide solution spilled from a gold refinery and biologists Monday searched along the Lynches River to see if it had harmed livestock or wildlife.

Elsewhere, oil from a coke plant's discharge pipe spilled into the Monongahela River Monday at Pittsburgh, creating a shimmering, 4-mile-long slick, authorities said.

Health and wildlife officials in South Carolina reported no fish kills or problems with animals that might drink from the river.

The spill posed little threat to drinking water supplies but officials warned residents to keep animals from tainted water.

About 11 million gallons of the solution of sodium cyanide had spilled by midday Monday into the Little Fork Creek after an earthen dam broke Sunday at the Brewer Gold Mining Co. The reservoir held about 13 million to 14 million gallons.

The liquid contained only 50 parts of sodium cyanide per million, said Richard Carnes, director of the Chesterfield County Emergency Preparedness Division.

Undiluted sodium cyanide would be fatal, but the spill created only a minimal health risk to people and animals because it would be significantly diluted after mixing with river water, said Thom Berry, a spokesman for the Department of Health and Environmental.

However, the cyanide wasn't the only threat from the spill.

"Our concern right now is not so much the cyanide but levels of copper we're seeing in the discharge," Berry said. Some copper compounds also can kill aquatic life, he said.

The sodium cyanide solution began spilling Sunday afternoon from a holding pond at Brewer, officials said. Brewer uses sodium cyanide to separate gold from ore.

The holding pond is about 2,000 feet from the Little Fork Creek and two miles from Lynches.

Carnes said recent heavy rain in the area might have weakened the dam.

Crews worked to divert remaining chemical in the reservoir into Brewer's discharge treatment system to be neutralized with chlorine and hydrogen peroxide, Berry said.

Brewer officials did not return telephone calls Monday.

Wildlife and health officials took water samples from the river along a series of stations along the river, said Berry.

Marine biologists in three boats covered the Lynches, creeks and tributaries in search of dead fish, said John Evans of the state Department of Wildlife and Marine Resources. Game biologists searched the banks for deer, fox, raccoon and waterfowl, he said.

It's a scary thought. First Semester's half over. Where has it gone? To Stanford, some might argue. Or to many spilt beers and good intentions to study and pray and deal with those growth issues and help at the Homeless Center.

No matter, it's now gone. That's not a time to feel badly, but rather to make some manageable goals for the remainder of the semester. Here are a few categories:

1. Studies. They come first. If you find yourself just staring out the window or thinking about love's labors lost, study with others, maybe once a week per subject. That's manageable.

2. Alcohol. Policies aside, it still plays a dominant role in the social life of Notre Dame students. Maybe a new sort of drinking game could be devised for the remainder of the semester: count the drinks. Be acutely aware of how much you drink, and reflect on how you feel about that. Talk it over with someone you trust who won't lecture you, but will be honest. A minor step, but a beginning.

3. Socializing. Think of one new way to have fun, that isn't in any way even potentially destructive. You have six weeks to come up with one!

4. Sex. Find a safe person with whom to reflect on your continuously emerging sexuality. Get just a bit more honest about it. Take your time.

5. Prayer. Add three minutes a week to whatever time you currently spend praying: the time spent listening to God's groanings within you. Just listen. Don't analyze. Just listen. Maybe that'll bring you to a total of three minutes a week of prayer. That's ok.

6. Service. Volunteer one more time than you did the first quarter, to help someone who will increase your image of who God is.

7. You. Be it!

Happy New Quarter!

Harvard will sponsor conference on AIDS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard University said Monday it will sponsor the annual international AIDS conference in 1992, four months after threatening to cancel the forum unless the United States removed travel restrictions on people infected with AIDS.

The conference, the principle forum for presenting scientific information on the fight against the disease, will go ahead in the last week of May 1992, school officials said.

In June, the Harvard AIDS Institute threatened to withdraw as sponsor and cancel the conference to protest a U.S. policy making AIDS infection one of several contagious diseases for which foreigners could be barred from the country.

But under a revised immigration bill passed by Congress over the weekend, Health Secretary Louis Sullivan would have the authority to remove AIDS and other diseases from the medical list for which a person may be denied entry.

Sullivan has repeatedly said there is no reason to exclude people with AIDS, because the disease is not passed casually, but only by exchanges of blood or body fluids or by sexual contact.

The measure went to President Bush, who has indicated he will sign it as early as this week.

The conference is expected to attract about 15,000 researchers, policy makers, community organizers and AIDS patients, Harvard officials said.

Scientists find new danger in cocaine

NEW YORK (AP) — People who drink alcohol while using cocaine create a third brain-targeting substance that may help boost their euphoria and may contribute to a puzzling form of overdose death, researchers say.

The research may help explain a preliminary finding that adding alcohol to cocaine use produced 21.5 times the risk of an overdose death for people with severe coronary heart disease, scientists said.

Drinking is frequently combined with cocaine, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

New studies show that a substance called cocaethylene, formed in the liver from alcohol and cocaine, reaches the brain and mimics some actions of cocaine there.

Further studies of cocaethylene may give leads for medications to treat cocaine addiction by blocking cocaine's effects, said study co-author Deborah Mash, a neuropharmacologist at the University of Miami School of Medicine.

She and other researchers spoke in telephone interviews about the work, which was presented Monday at the annual meeting of the Society for Neuroscience in St. Louis.

Scientists found that cocaethylene affects a brain-cell communication system thought to produce the euphoria that leads to cocaine addiction, she said.

Prior research suggests that cocaine produces its "high" by intervening in this system, in which brain cells signal each other with a chemical called dopamine. After a dose of dopamine reaches its target cell, it is supposed to be brought back to its original home by molecules called transporters. But cocaine blocks this mechanism by binding to transporters, keeping the signal turned "on" and producing a sense of pleasure, scientists say.

The new work shows that cocaethylene also binds to the transporters, suggesting it may boost cocaine's effect, Mash said. In addition, she said, it appears less able than cocaine to moderate the euphoria through a second brain communication system.

Another possible role of cocaethylene deals with cocaine overdose deaths in people with severe coronary artery disease.

Surgeon General warns not to mix Halloween with hops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Surgeon General on Monday issued a pre-Halloween warning to the beer industry, saying it should avoid advertising practices that encourage drinking among minors.

"The beer industry should not capitalize on a season that youngsters look forward to with great anticipation to push their products," Dr. Antonia Novello said.

"Halloween and hops do not mix."

Novello said breweries and their advertising agencies were sending the wrong message to minors, that alcohol consumption was acceptable for children under the legal drinking age. She said they should put larger warning labels on containers and revise advertising practices.

"We would like the industry to share in the responsibility,"

she said. "Children can either consciously or unconsciously be affected by both print and electronic ads" that for the most part never show the harmful effects of alcohol consumption.

Alcohol abuse was "the number one substance abuse problem among American youth," and indications were that the situation was getting worse. Children were being enticed by advertisements for so-called "soft liquors," including beer, wine and wine coolers, she added.

The alcohol industry annually conducts its most intensive advertising campaign between October and January. The National Coalition on Television Violence estimated that before the average American child turns 16, he would see 75,000 television scenes where alcohol is consumed or its use encouraged.

Computer classes to be offered

Special to The Observer

The Office of University Computing will be offering computer training classes for students who have never used a computer for word processing.

The classes begin today and will run through mid-November. They will give free instruction to Notre Dame, St. Mary's and Holy Cross students.

The classes focus on the basics of using a computer for writing a paper. The instruction includes use of Microsoft Word 4.0 on the Macintosh computers and Word Perfect 5.1 on the IBM/ Zenith (DOS) computers.

The classes will be conducted Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1, 6, 7, 8, 13, 14, 15.

If students are interested in attending one of the classes they should register in person at the Information Resource Center (IRC), Room 111, Computing Center/ Math Building, or by calling 239-8111. All classes are taught in Room 248 of the Hesburgh Library from 7 to 9 p.m.

Students must pre-register because classes with less than five students registered the morning of the class will be canceled, said David Mastic, training specialist of the Office of University Computing.

Information regarding spring semester offerings will be available in the IRC after the Christmas Break.

S&L 'whistleblowers' might be getting rich

WASHINGTON (AP) — Savings and loan whistleblowers could get rich under legislation passed by Congress that provides rewards for information leading to fraud prosecutions and the recovery of ill-gotten gains.

The provisions, enacted as part of the crime bill passed over the weekend, offer rewards of up to $50,000 for information leading to prosecution of S&L crooks.

Whistleblowers who help Justice Department investigators trace ill-gotten gains would share a percentage of the seized money if the attorney general declared the information was crucial to its recovery.

The bounty provisions would only apply to people who are not participants in S&L crimes, said Laurence Urgenson, head of the Justice Department's fraud section.

But "there's a category of individuals on the periphery, who know about it, never have been knowing participants, but could point the way," Urgenson said.

"The potential awards are ample and certainly adequate to provide incentive for someone to come forth," Urgenson said. "It could be millions of dollars in certain kinds of instances, certainly tens of thousands in many," he said.

A person who helps the government recover S&L money would share 20 percent to 30 percent of the first $1 million, 10 percent to 20 percent of the next $4 million and 5 percent to 10 percent of the next $5 million, according to the bill.

The bill also creates a so-called S&L kingpin crime that carries a sentence of 10 years to life and fines up to $10 million for individuals and $20 million for corporations.

The "continuing financial crimes enterprise" is defined as a fraud continuing over a two-year period by three or more people in which at least one person gains $5 million.

S&L legislation passed before Congress adjourned for the year may not include extra money to bail out failing thrifts.

But the crime bill raises from $50 million to $162.5 million the Justice Department's annual appropriation for fraud investigations.

Last week, Congress appropriated slightly less — $160 million — for the current fiscal year.

The legislation also creates an eight-member commission to study the cause of the S&L crisis. Six of the members would be appointed by Congress and two by the president.

The panel would have the power to subpoena testimony and evidence. The attorney general or the heads of the Office of Thrift Resolution and the Resolution Trust Corp. could veto commission attempts to take evidence or testimony to protect an on-going investigation.

Five members of the commission could vote to override such vetoes.

The Bush administration had opposed creation of the commission, saying it would interfere with investigations. But it agreed to compromise language.

The bill also:

- authorizes court-approved wiretapping of S&L officials suspected of wrongdoing

- expands the list of crimes under which ill-gotten gains would be subject to civil forfeiture.

OFFICIAL COMMEMORATIVE NOTRE DAME VS MIAMI

T SHIRTS

The official commemorative shirt is decorated on the front with Notre Dame and Miami Football helmets, the date of the game, and the Final Score! The back is a multi-colored collage of Notre Dame scenes including the Golden Dome, Hesburgh Library, Leprechaun, and two game tickets with a picture of Coach Lou Holtz.

On the evening of October 20 last year Zheng-de Wang, Notre Dame graduate student from Tianjin, China, was struck down by a car while walking on Notre Dame Avenue. Uninsured at the time of the accident, Zheng-de was severely injured and comatose for several months. Now confined to a wheelchair and undergoing therapy, Zheng-de is able to recognize old friends and to move his fingers for rudimentary communication, but his recovery is far from complete and far from certain.

Profits derived from the sales of this T-shirt will be donated to Zheng-de's family for the enormous expenses this tragedy has inflicted on them.

The navy t-shirts are available in both short and long sleeve versions for $10.00 and $12.00 respectively. All shirts are size extra-large. Get your shirts at the Notre Dame Bookstore, Hockey Pro-Shop, Alumni Association Office, and LaFortune Student Center Information Desk. Or call our toll free number, 1 800/345-5027 (Add $5.00 per telephone order for shipping and handling.)

Soviets make friendship pact

AMBOUILLET, France (AP) — Presidents Mikhail Gorbachev of the Soviet Union and Francois Mitterrand of France signed a friendship pact Monday providing for immediate consultations if either country feels threatened by conflict.

The two leaders signed the Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation after an overnight visit to Paris by the Soviet leader.

"In the case of situations which, in the view of one of the parties, create a threat to peace, a breach of peace or provoke international tension, the governments of France and the Soviet Union will enter into contact without delay to coordinate all aspects of such situations," the treaty said.

The treaty fell short of a non-aggression pact, similar to the treaty Moscow concluded recently with Germany. French officials say France will adhere to its commitments to NATO and the European Community, making a non-aggression clause unnecessary.

The treaty was the first between the countries since a friendship pact in 1944, and France's first bilateral treaty in 27 years. It was signed at the chateau of Rambouillet, 33 miles southwest of Paris.

"We have done a great deal of work in a short time," Gorbachev said at a joint news conference with Mitterrand. "This reflects the new level of cooperation and understanding between the leadership of our two countries which enables us to obtain results."

The broad agreement calls for regular political consultations. It also provides for cooperation in energy, non-military nuclear science, transportation, high-definition television and telecommunications.

France and the Soviet Union pledge to "reinforce European solidarity" and seek the creation of a European confederation.

The treaty promised French assistance as the Soviet Union shifts to a market economy, and French help in arranging accords between Moscow and the 12-nation European Community.

Poll: trust in USSR leaders plummets

MOSCOW (AP) — Less than one in 10 Soviet respondents in a new poll expressed full support for their leaders and half said they had no confidence at all.

The poll by the independent All-Union Center for Public Opinion indicated that support for President Mikhail Gorbachev and his government, headed by Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov, has hit the lowest point since Gorbachev took power in 1985.

The poll, released by the independent news service Interfax, found only 6 percent of respondents gave full support when asked, "How much do you trust the national leadership now?"

Thirty-two percent expressed qualified support and 50 percent had no confidence at all. The rest had no opinion, Interfax reported.

The results were based on answers by 1,356 people in 11 regions across the country, Interfax said. However, it gave no margin of error and didn't say when the survey was done. There was no answer to phone queries at the center late Monday.

A poll conducted last summer by the liberal weekly Ogonyok put support for Gorbachev's Communist Party at 30 percent, below the Red Army, the Russian Orthodox Church and the national Supreme Soviet legislature.

The latest poll was released two weeks after Gorbachev was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for helping end the Cold War. In contrast to his worldwide popularity, Gorbachev's domestic standing has been sliding for years, even more severely the last year as shortages have worsened and nearly all the 15 republics have declared some form of sovereignty.

The poll also asked whether the emergency powers given to Gorbachev by the Supreme Soviet last month will "help stabilize the country's economy."

Man praises 'Fountain of Youth'

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Robert Bensing doesn't feel cheated by his brief flirtation with an age-reversing hormone that some fancy may be the doorway to a futuristic Fountain of Youth.

In fact, the 72-year-old retired chemist has found his joints no longer ache constantly with arthritis and his skin is firmer, giving him the appearance and vitality of a man much his junior.

"I feel a little more energetic," said Bensing, who relishes being called "son" by a friend about his age and now can spend more time gardening.

He stopped taking the hormone more than 1 1/2 years ago, and doctors predicted the age-reversing symptoms of his therapy would fade within a few months.

"Theoretically, I lost all that, but I don't feel that I did," Bensing said recently his rural Waukegan home. "Since the benefits didn't go away, I don't feel cheated. It was worth it. If it contributes to the advancement of medical knowledge, we don't feel cheated."

For a year, Bensing injected himself three times weekly with the human growth hormone. Within six months of the first treatment, he could unscrew bottle caps with ease, mow the law without tiring easily and sit through lengthy car trips — all of which would have been difficult months earlier.

Tests revealed the hormone treatments helped shrink body fat, restore lean body mass lost through aging and increase the thickness of Bensing's skin.

"I noticed right off he was doing things much faster," said Bensing's wife, Alice, 57. "He was more willing to go places and do things than before."

The growth hormone taken by Bensing and 19 other older male volunteers is a synthetic version of one produced naturally in humans. As one ages, the natural production of the hormone fades and eventually stops, researchers have learned.

Daniel Rudman, an endocrinologist at the Medical College of Wisconsin in suburban Milwaukee and director of the experiment, said researchers have determined the hormone injections reversed aging in the body composition of elderly men by as much as 20 years.

Rudman and his fellow researchers reported this summer in the New England Journal of Medicine that the hormone increased lean body mass in patients by 9 percent, decreased fat tissue by 14 percent and thickened skin by 7 percent.

It does not, however, affect failing eyesight, hearing loss or degeneration of brain cells. The improvements strictly involved the patient's body mass.

Rudman, 62, was among a group of physicians in the 1960s who used human growth hormone to treat abnormally short children. He decided to experiment with the hormone on the elderly after watching his parents grow old and frail in a nursing home.

The hormone, once only available by extraction from human corpses, now is produced through genetic engineering. But regular treatment costs $14,000 a year for adults.

Experts warn it is too soon to determine the severity of side-effects or whether the hormone could be produced cheaper and more readily.

Most of the men in the experiment have declined to talk publicly since the study was published, some at the advice of the Medical College of Wisconsin.

Bensing, one of the first volunteers for the study, said the hormone lessened the crippling effects of arthritis, prompted a quicker recovery from a cataract operation and appeared to make a crushed spinal disk a bit sturdier.

"There's a guy my age starting to call me 'son,'" Bensing said. "They said, 'You look great.'"

When he began treatment, Bensing was told the possible side effects included an increase in blood pressure or blood sugar. But his only complaint was a numbness in his wrists, which he attributed to pressure from skin and muscle growth. It stopped once the therapy ceased, he said.

Cuba still bitter about 28-year-old withdrawal

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Cuban government Monday released a document on the 1962 missile crisis and reiterated its bitterness over the Soviet decision 28 years ago to remove the missiles without consulting with Cuba.

The government news agency Prensa Latina, in a dispatch monitored in Mexico City, ran a description of the events it said was culled from a 200-page secret document that Fidel Castro's government just released.

"Twenty-eight years after the October Crisis that pushed the world to the brink of nuclear war, the Cubans maintain their claims from the era and reproach Nikita Khrushchev for having excluded them from secret conversations," the article begins.

There appeared to be little new in the document, and its release seemed to be in the nature of nursing an old grudge at a time when relations between the Soviet Union and Cuba have hit a post-revolutionary low.

Although the Soviet Union is still providing aid to Cuba, the Soviet press recently has published a series of revealing, unflattering reports, including a rare portrait of Castro's personal life that said he has 32 houses, a security contingent of 9,700 and five children by his "present wife."

Cuba has dedicated a new monument on the launch site for the rocket that shot down an American spy plane during the crisis, Prensa Latina reported in a separate dispatch Monday.

The monument contains a rock wall surrounded by palm trees, symbolizing the decision of Cubans to defend their territory, it said.

In the summer of 1962, the Soviet Union began installing 42 medium-range nuclear missiles in Cuba. U.S. spy planes detected the missiles, and the United States began a naval blockade of Cuba. Tensions peaked when Cuba shot down a U-2 spy plane on Oct. 27; Khrushchev submitted to President Kennedy's demand the missiles be withdrawn.

In newly released excerpts of his memoirs, Khrushchev called Castro a "hothead" who wanted the Soviet Union to attack the United States during the crisis. Castro denied that story.

The document released Monday said the Soviet Union had sent a delegation to Havana in May 1962 to discuss installing the weapons as a means of discouraging the United States from Cuba accepted the plan in June after a meeting of the political leadership, including Castro, his brother Raul Castro, Ernesto "Che" Guevara, Osvaldo Dorticos, Blas Roca and Emilio Aaragones, it said.

The weapons, medium-range R-12 missiles, began arriving after Raul Castro visited Moscow in July and signed a secret agreement, according to the report.

About 43,000 Soviet soldiers, officers and specialists were sent to Cuba in connection with the deployment, it said.

The Soviet general in charge and his second-in-command had orders to use the missiles "only in case of aggression by the United States and only under orders from Moscow," the report said.

Hindu holy men clash with police

AYODHYA, India (AP) — Hindu holy men clashed with police Monday and set a bus on fire in this curfew-bound city, the eye of a violent religious dispute between the country's Hindus and Moslems.

It was the first report of violence in Ayodhya in connection with the plan of fundamentalist Hindus to start building a temple over a 16th-century mosque on Tuesday.

The dispute has killed at least 104 people nationwide in the past week and brought Prime Minister V.P. Singh's government to the brink of collapse.

One person was killed Monday in Lucknow, 75 miles west of Ayodhya, when Hindu crowds surged through a Moslem neighborhood throwing bricks, according to police officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

One person committed suicide by swallowing poison Sunday night in Hoshiarpur in Punjab state to protest government efforts to halt the temple project, United News of India said.

In Ayodhya, a town of about 40,000 people, a group of about 80 Hindu holy men threw stones at police and set a bus on fire when authorities attempted to arrest a local Hindu priest, a police inspector said.

The inspector, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said it was an isolated incident and did not cause any lasting tension.

But within an hour of the skirmish, authorities banned entry into Ayodhya and canceled passes issued to reporters. An indefinite curfew is in force in the town, which has remained peaceful despite the raging controversy over the religious site.

At least 80,000 Hindus who were planning to participate in the construction program have been arrested and roadblocks set up on all routes leading to Ayodhya.

Hindu fundamentalists, however, claimed they had infiltrated thousands of supporters into areas near Ayodhya and would start the temple construction program as scheduled.

In a hand-written communique, the World Hindu Council vowed to start building the temple despite the presence of 20,000 police and paramilitary troops in the town.

Residents of Ayodhya said 5,000 Hindu activists were hiding in fields and villages around the town and planned to converge on the disputed holy site Tuesday morning to start constructing the temple.

In New Delhi, the World Hindu Council claimed 10,000 supporters had slipped through police cordons and roadblocks around Ayodhya.

Police in Ayodhya and the neighboring town of Faizabad said the claims were inflated. They said a maximum of 1,000 to 2,000 temple activists might have reached the area. "We are in a position to control them," said a police official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

A two-paragraph statement claiming to come from a top leader of the World Hindu Council was covertly distributed to reporters in Faizabad on Tuesday afternoon. It urged residents to defy a round-the-clock curfew and come out of their houses Tuesday morning.

"This curfew is murder of democracy. I appeal to all citizens of Faizabad and Ayodhya to come out in large numbers tomorrow (Tuesday) and march with me to Ayodhya," said the statement which carried the name of Ashok Singhal, general secretary of the World Hindu Council.

Students' complaints about costs lack rational analysis

Dear Editor:

Domers are basing nearly all of their complaints on the cost of tuition, fully believing that it entitles them to a perfect world served on a silver platter. Yes, it is a lot of money which demands accountability and service, but let's grow up and stop complaining. "I paid $15,000 and so I deserve this." That's not a valid argument, and we generally get what we pay for.

In the last two months alone I've seen this argument used to complain about parking, ticket distribution, security, the infirmary, maid service and the dining halls. On Oct. 16, a student wrote "the students here at ND pay enough tuition to attend this fine institution. Is it crazy to expect..." On Oct. 17, another wrote, "What is 'unethical' is that we, as students, pay $15,000 a year to come [to ND] and the tickets...." I think the only issue debated in The Observer in which this doesn't arise is the ordination of women.

We do pay a lot of money, and the University does have its faults. Some of that fault lies with the administration, and some lies with the student body. Most issues, however, are multi-dimensional and should be approached rationally, not childishly. Sensitivity to individual concerns, funding, availability, feasibility, long-term effects, fairness and intent must always be considered along with how much we are paying.

Rarely in my contact with comparable institutions have I seen so many complaints based on costs. Such an attitude does not lead to rational analysis of the issues, but is merely a cheap excuse for criticism. We generally get what we pay for; we have an excellent faculty, a beautiful campus, a huge library and excellent athletic facilities, for starters. Most student concerns are valid, but we should base them on sound principles, for reasonable accounts are taken much more seriously than those that appear to whine.

Ignoring cultural events is inexcusable

Dear Editor:

Recently, I was treated to a brilliant performance on the Saint Mary's campus, the Songs of Broadway Company's "Camelot." I thoroughly enjoyed the performance and intend to see many more throughout the year. Yet my mind was distracted by the realization of how few students attended the show.

In talking to some of my fellow students, I heard the common complaint that tickets are just too expensive. Tickets for "Camelot" were free for Saint Mary's students. They complained that tickets for "Dracula" were a whopping $14. Outside the campus community, the price for such an event like "Dracula" would exceed the Saint Mary's price tremendously. I would bet that students pay a lot more than $14 socializing in less than the time spent at any performance.

In addition, many students said they were too busy with school work to go. Since we are, first and foremost, students, I understand the difficulty of ignoring school work to see a production. Still, we can't close ourselves into our little college world and ignore everything else. We should take advantage of what the campus offers us. The chances of finding performances of this quality, at such a low price and convenient location, are slim.

I'm searching for answers as to why there is such low student attendance at these productions. Is it a lack of interest in the performances? Saint Mary's tries to offer a wide variety of cultural events. The Performing Arts Series presents music concerts from classical to modern, dance presentations of all sorts, and many theatrical events each year.

I also heard the complaint that students didn't even know the event was taking place. I find it hard to believe this is anyone's fault but the students'. Campus events are highlighted in The Observer in calendar listings and feature articles. Many events are part of on-going programs and so are continually being promoted. Also, flyers are repeatedly posted on walls. Aside from personally contacting each student, there is little else to be done by promoters to inform students of the events.

What will happen if student attendance to events on campus continues to drop? I would hate to see Saint Mary's discontinue the Performing Arts Series. It is something I enjoy and appreciate, and I know many other students would also if they just took the small amount of time and energy needed to find out about the events and attend them.

Snowball fighters should avoid glass

Dear Editor:

While it is still October and we are enjoying the sights of fall—leaves falling off the trees, squirrels gathering acorns and alumni walking around in plaid, I would like to discuss winter. Not the whole season, of course, since such discussions would inevitably lead to complaints about sub-zero January temperatures.

No, I would like to discuss the opening event of winter, which occurs shortly after the first snowfall: the interquad North-South snowball fight. Last year, during the fight, I was standing by a third-floor window when it was broken. I had to go to the hospital to get my right ear stitched, and I received minor cuts on my face as well. The window was a complete loss.

Within the coming weeks, the student body will be warned about the snowball fight in terms of matching funds. I am sure if windows are broken this year, Student Affairs will follow the example set by Father Tyson last year and suspend matching funds. However, it is more important that the possible injury to others be considered before throwing snow at a window. It is a "pane in the glass" to have a window shatter in one's face.

I don't know if people will refrain from attacking dorm windows this year. Whatever the case, I suggest that everyone avoid windows or learn how to duck.

INDIANA'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

By PAIGE SMORON
Assistant Accent Editor

At long last... In the dubious tradition of Guinness' World Records, Ripley's "Believe It or Not," and even David Letterman's "Museum of the Hard to Believe," Fred D. Cavinder has published "Indiana's Believe It or Not," the latest in a genre that celebrates, among other oddities, really nice ears of corn.

Finally, the appropriate Christmas gift for that Hoosier who seems to have everything. With its snappy red and yellow cover, this is definitely a coffee-table book, to be treasured and passed on for generations.

How many times have you been reading The National Enquirer and asked yourself, "Why is it that there are so many wondrous and sexually morbid stories being reported, such as hippos swallowing circus dwarfs, yet they all take place in obscure middle Eastern countries? Don't we have rejects of society and freaks of nature right here in Indiana?" Well, no, but we have had some pretty wacky weather. Read on.

John Hanson Craig of Danville was six feet, five inches tall and reached a top weight of 907 pounds.

"Indiana's Believe It or Not" abounds with whimsical animal stories. In 1955, Indiana was abuzz with the accomplishments of Lady Wonder, a psychic horse in south-central Indiana. By counting and spelling out words, she predicted that Franklin D. Roosevelt would be the next president of the United States - even before he was nominated (collective gasp of disbelief). Fourteen times in seventeen years she predicted the winner of the World Series, and she was particularly gifted at picking the winners of horse races, as might be expected.

Everyone will be pleased to note that Indiana does indeed boast of its own tremendously fat person. Actually, there have been several of significance, not the least of which was Baby Ruth of Kempton, who peaked at 815 pounds, yet had "no ambition to follow the career of her mother, a circus fat lady." Unfortunately, her secretarial career did not work out, and she ended up at Ringling Brothers. Baby Ruth's life had its ups and downs: in the circus she met her future husband, a balloon salesman who took one look at her and dubbed her "my woman." Later, she had surgical complications when her hospital bed collapsed.

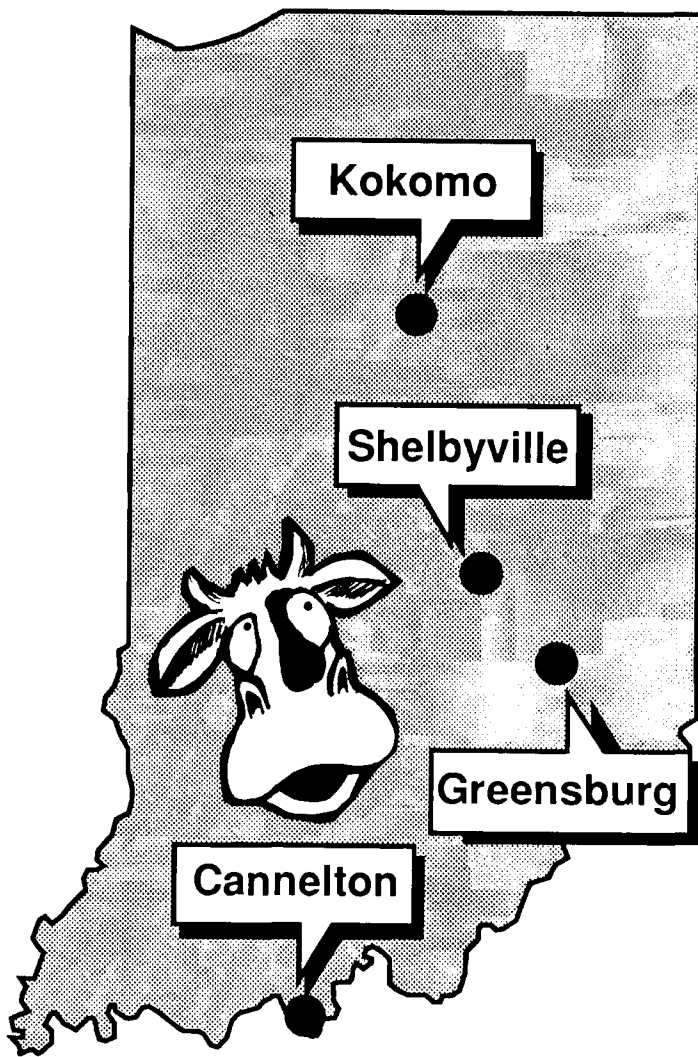

'Everyone will be pleased to note that Indiana does indeed boast of its own tremendously fat person.'

Then there is the strange and near-unbelievable story of Leonard B. Clore, who was so gifted at raising corn that he was banned from any further competition in the Nation Corn Association in 1909. One of his ears of Indiana corn, described only as "unusual," sold for $250 at an auction - and was bought by Clore himself, who decided it was too valuable to let go.

Indiana has had its share of rough weather, as anyone who has had to hike to a class in Loftus, in a blizzard, in February, without earmuffs, can attest to. Cavinder, in an article dramatically entitled "The Year Without a Summer," writes of the tremendous cold of 1816, when it snowed in August. Hard to believe!

One of the strengths of Cavinder's book is his unique way of turning a phrase. He gives many of his subjects illustrious titles such as "the meanest man in the world," and "the most useful man in Indiana" (which might very well lead one to wonder who the most useful man in the world is, and what he is doing now), etc. This book is not, however, for the faint-hearted, as the author is not excessively tactful, nor discriminating in his material. In an article called, "Ring Around the Commode," Cavinder concludes by saying, "After twenty-seven years of flushing the ring was back on Kemp's finger." Kind of makes you want to buy the book, doesn't it?

Unusual attractions abound in Indiana

While everyone else is roadtripping to Tennessee, you might want to take advantage of all the photo opportunities that exist right here in Indiana. Here are just a few of the attractions you'll want to capitalize on in your tour of the glorious Midwest.

(Editor's note: this itinerary may not be geographically feasible, as at the time of publication, a map of Indiana was not handy.)

Sapling buffs will want to start off their tour in Greensburg, which is internationally known for the trees that grow on the roof of its courthouse. We are not making this up. Apparently it's one of those "you had to be there" things. The trees have inspired a name for an athletic team, as well as a poem: "On the roof of our tower, two trees / Seem to thrive in the dust laden breeze, / But when the storm blows, / The Lord only knows, / How they cling with such nonchalant ease."

From there you might want to get around to Cannelton, to experience firsthand Ralph Daum's pet bass. He has apparently trained a fish to eat food out of his hands. In his own words, "You have to work with fish a little more than you would another creature, but they can be trained and they can become your friends." You'll return home with the memory of a new friend and maybe even a nice postcard.

Next stop is Shelbyville, site of the largest corn shock ever constructed. An estimated 10,000 corn stalks were used to create the majestic shock, which "soared seventy feet tall" and was the centerpiece for the Shelby County Corn Festival in 1956. No, of course it's not still there, but Shelbyvillians still reminisce about the day Ronald Reagan visited and was photographed in front of the shock. I bet the picture's still there.

A must-see is the "largest tree in the nation east of the Yosemite Valley," or at least a remnant of it, in Kokomo. And you thought the trees in Greensburg were good. More than 100 feet tall and with a stump 51 feet in circumference, it was once used to house a telephone booth.

By this time, you might have decided to go down to Tennessee after all. Have a good time at the game.

year earlier in the Orange Bowl, but hatred was not a part of his game plan to stop the Hurricanes.

"I remember reading about a lot of bad blood between the two schools in 1985," Holtz said at his press conference the week before this year's Miami game, "and that talk fuels emotion for the next year they play."

Yes, coaches do read the papers. So do many of the players. The same might even be said for a few university presidents around the country. All are aware of the highly-visible role collegiate athletics play in university life. The sports media, in a sense, serves as a thinly-veiled promotional service for these institutions.

In the past year, however, Notre Dame has learned to look upon no news as good news.

Practices were closed the week of the Miami game so that players could concentrate on stopping the Hurricanes on the field and not on badmouthing them in the papers. Notre Dame students also had to take midterm examinations during the week.

Nonetheless, players were stopped on the way to the locker room after practice and asked how they would respond once a fight broke out against Miami. Not if, but when.

No player in Division I football will tell a reporter that he plans to back down from a fight. I don't care where he goes to school. So when that player declares his intention to defend himself and his teammates in the event of a fight, the resulting story makes front-page news. This constitutes "talk", as Holtz calls it, or "rhetoric", as Smizik calls it.

Whatever you call it, the media generates it.

True, security guards stood outside the players' locker rooms on Oct. 20. Fortunately, they proved unnecessary since both teams handled themselves with class both on and off the playing field.

Hats off to Lou Holtz, Dennis Erickson and their players. As for Smizik, well, nobody asked him anyway.

Moeller says Michigan must improve defense

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — When the topic is defense, Michigan coach Gary Moeller believes the Wolverines have room for improvement.

"I said that going into the season and a lot of people just kind of snickered, but the best defensive team is going to win the league. We're not to that point yet," Moeller said Monday.

Despite flashes of their expected form in last week's 45-19 thrashing of Indiana, Moeller knows the defense will need another strong effort Saturday against Purdue and quarterback Eric Hunter.

"Eric Hunter is one of ... the best athletes in the conference," Moeller said. "You saw it last year (in Michigan's 42-27 win over the Boilermakers). He goes against all principles of football as what you should do as a quarterback and he's successful at it. With him dodging around in their run-and-shoot offense, it's a different deal."

Michigan (4-3, 2-2 Big Ten) registered seven quarterback sacks for minus-31 yards against the Hoosiers, but will have a tougher time duplicating the feat with the agile Hunter, who leads the Big Ten in total offense.

"The key is to contain him as best as possible and still have an aggressive pass rush," Moeller said. "(Linebacker) Erick Anderson played his best game of the year last week and he has to keep improving. The secondary has to keep improving and Mike Evans and a couple of those outside linebackers have to get play well."

The Wolverines are in an unfamiliar position with four weeks left in their Big Ten schedule — out of the league title and Rose Bowl pictures.

Tyson's latest bout in the courtroom

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Tyson's latest bout began Monday in a courtroom where jurors considered claims that the former heavyweight champion assaulted a woman at a dance club.

Tyson disputes all allegations in the $4.5 million civil lawsuit, which his attorney called a "stickup." The boxer is expected to testify in his defense.

The lawsuit, which went to trial in U.S. District Court, was filed by Sandra Miller, a 26-year-old Brooklyn woman, who claims Tyson "forcibly fondled" and cursed at her after she refused his advances at Bentley's Disco early Dec. 10, 1988.

Her attorney, Alan Clark, said she decided to sue the boxer to "punish him and deter him ... and to tell him this will not happen to another woman again."

Miami quarterback Craig Erickson is pressured by Demetrius DuBose. Erickson picked apart the Irish secondary for 355 passing yards.

Rodney Culver takes the wraparound handoff and gains eight yards.

Culver gains seven on a pass over the middle from Mirer.

Raghib Ismail slashes for a gain around the Miami line as Russell Maryland (67) tries to escape a block.

George Williams recovers Gene McGuire's (30) fumble, forced by Scott Kowalkowski, at the Miami 25.

Raghib Ismail, on getting a block from Tony Brooks (40), returns a kickoff versus Pittsburgh for 24 yards.

Tony Brooks sprints through a wide gap and sprints to the end zone in the first quarter to make the score 7-0 Notre Dame.

Alex Van Pelt completed a record 37 passes against Notre Dame for a 384 yard tally.

Todd Lyght intercepts a Van Pelt pass in the second quarter for a touchback, stopping a Pittsburgh drive.

Rocket runs behind center Heldt in the third quarter for 12 yards and a first down.

Chris Zorich (50) makes a diving tackle on Curvin Richards near the Notre Dame sideline.

Steelers' special teams shine as Pittsburgh crushes Los Angeles

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers special teams overcame their own bungling and became something special Monday night.

Embarrassed a week ago at San Francisco when they allowed the 49ers to recover a kickoff at their own 5, and victimized Monday night by Gaston Green's 100-yard return of the opening kickoff, the Pittsburgh special teams made a 180-degree turn in helping the Steelers over the Los Angeles Rams 41-10.

The offense and defense certainly helped. Bobby Brister had four touchdown passes, two following interceptions, and Merrill Hoge had three touchdowns and Pittsburgh's league-leading pass defense limited Jim Everett to 15 completions in 34 attempts for 176 yards. But it was the special teams that set the tone.

Rod Woodson returned kickoffs 44 and 49 yards to set up two field goals by Gary Anderson. And Larry Griffin and Dwight Stone combined to stuff Rams punter Keith English, setting up a one-yard TD run by Hoge that opened up a 27-10 lead in the third quarter.

The victory improved Pittsburgh's record to 4-4. The Rams are 2-5 and in serious jeopardy of missing the playoff spot that had been virtually conceded to them before the season.

The Steelers' special teams were anything but special early, looking as bad on Green's 100-yard romp up the sideline as they did a week ago, when Barry Foster let a San Francisco kickoff drop untouched, contributing to a 49ers' touchdown.

Foster contributed Monday night with a 38-yard run that set up Pittsburgh's final score, a two-yard pass to Hoge from Brister, who completed 15 of 24 for 161 yards.

The Steelers bounced back from Green's kickoff return to tie the score on a 75-yard, eight-play drive, capped by a six-yard Brister-to-Hoge TD pass. Brister was 6-for-6 for 61 yards on the drive.

Late in the first period, David Johnson intercepted a pass by Everett and returned it 34 yards to the Rams' 17. On the next play, Brister hit Eric Green all alone in the end zone for the 275-pound rookie's sixth touchdown this season, a team record for a tight end.

Mike Lansford's 32-yard field goal 45 seconds into the second period cut it to 14-10.

But Woodson returned the kickoff 49 yards to the Rams' 39, setting up a 42-yarder by Anderson that made it 17-10 at halftime.

Woodson did it again on the second-half kickoff, which he brought back 45 yards to the Los Angeles 45. That set up another field goal, this one from 30 yards.

Then came the key play in Pittsburgh's biggest win since the opening game of 1985 season, a 45-3 victory over the Indianapolis Colts.

Dolphins' defense keys strong start

MIAMI (AP) — The last time the Miami Dolphins had a decent defense was the last time they made the playoffs.

Now, five years later, they've given up the fewest yards in the NFL and — voila! — they're again a first-place team.

Miami allowed 356 yards per game a year ago, fifth-worst in the league, but the average is 230 this season. Indianapolis managed just 132 yards, the lowest net against the Dolphins since 1979, in Miami's 27-7 victory Sunday.

"We've pretty much stayed with the same defensive philosophy," coach Don Shula said Monday. "It was just a question of guys making the push upfield and getting rid of the blocker and staying in their lanes and pursuing."

With five new starters on defense this season, Miami has allowed a league-low 90 points. That's an average of 13 a game, compared with 23 a year ago.

Notre Dame actually made the first mistake. Irish fullback Rodney Culver fumbled on the first play from scrimmage, and Hurricane fullback Steve McGuire scored six plays later on a one-yard run to give Miami an early lead.

The teams traded field goals before Ismail went to work. With 1:43 left in the period, Ismail fielded a Carlos Huerta kick at his own 6 and ran 94 yards for the touchdown. Miami had kicked away from Ismail on two previous occasions.

"I caught the ball, slipped and got up," said Ismail in describing the return. "I saw a crease and got through that and moved to my left. Then I saw another guy. Then I saw the kicker and I got past him. After that, I knew I had a chance to take it to the house."

Said Dennis Erickson, "You work against it all week in practice, you know what to do. Then you get in the game, he gets the ball and he's gone."

Craig Hentrich added two field goals for the Irish, but Erickson capped a nine-play, 80-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown run. Miami went into the locker room with a 17-16 lead.

Hentrich added two more field goals in the third quarter, but Huerta connected on a 25-yard field goal early in the fourth to put Miami within striking distance at 22-20.

The play that sealed the game for the Irish was one that Holtz said he thought of during breakfast.

With just over six minutes left in the game and Notre Dame facing third-and-four from the Miami 21, Rick Mirer connected with Culver on the "fullback dump" over the middle. Culver caught the ball at the 15 and then ran in for the touchdown.

"The touchdown play we kinda made up at breakfast today," Culver said. "I brushed the end and came off into the open field and Rick gave me a great pass to catch."

Miami advanced to the Notre Dame 25 on its next possession, but Irish linebacker Michael Stonebreaker recovered a Leonard Conley fumble to seal the victory.

The Observer / Andrew McCloskey
Rodney Culver scores the final touchdown of the game versus Miami in the fourth quarter with 6:16 left, crossing the endzone after a fullback dump over the middle from Rick Mirer.

Pitt

tory that stopped a powerful Panther drive.

"I was happy with the interception," said Grimm, a Pennsylvania native, "since I had been frustrated with them running routes around me."

Holtz explained that while Van Pelt's performance against the Irish defense disturbed him, Notre Dame's zone coverage, which allowed Pitt receivers to catch short patterns in front of the Irish defenders, protected a Irish young secondary from relinquishing the middle or long yardage passes.

We need to be able to play some man and play it a little bit better," said Holtz, "because right now with our young kids, we're playing a lot of zone and giving up certain things."

Notre Dame played much of the second half without Zorich, who was injured midway through the third quarter. Double-teamed most of the game and the cause of a number of Pitt holding penalties, Zorich had forced a fumble and contributed to five tackles (two for losses) when his right kneecap slipped out of and back into place, sidelining him for the rest of the game. The injury, which is similar to the one that kept Zorich out of spring practice his freshman year, will probably prevent the senior nose tackle from playing in this week's game against Navy.

While the Irish defense shone for most of the game, the Notre Dame offense was largely unproductive, due in part to some Panther defense antics.

"They kept us off-balance," said Holtz of the Pitt defense. "They never had a rhyme nor reason for what they did. We couldn't get anything established."

Irish quarterback Rick Mirer had his first less-than-spectacular game for Notre Dame, completing only 5 of 16 passes for 85 yards and one interception, his third of the season.

Butter-fingered receivers, who dropped a number of catchable balls, contributed to the poor showing, as did the Irish offensive line, which after an impressive game against Miami, did not give Mirer adequate time to set up for the pass. Mirer was sacked three times for a loss of 16 yards.

Ismail and tailback Tony Brooks accounted for most of the Irish offensive highlights. Brooks, who ran for 91 yards on the day, took advantage of Lyght's interception and McDonald's fumble recovery to score both of Notre Dame's first-half touchdowns. Ismail took over in the final two stanzas, running for 110 yards on 10 attempts while compiling 214 all-purpose yards.

Both teams hurt themselves with a total of 18 penalties that accounted for 182 lost yards, including four 15-yard penalties for the Panthers. The first of those, a roughing-the-kicker call on Hentrich's only punt, dislocated the kicker's left thumb.

Hentrich continued his place-kicking duties but could not catch the long snaps on punts and was replaced by back-up Jim Sexton. The thumb has been fitted with a cast and may prevent him from punting next week.

RODNEY CULVER of the NOTRE DAME FIGHTING IRISH

Toyota honors junior Rodney Culver, fullback of the Notre Dame Fighting Irish, as a recipient of the Toyota Leadership Award for demonstrating outstanding leadership in the fields of academics, athletics, and community service.

Rodney Culver will receive the Toyota Leadership Plaque, and the University of Notre Dame will receive a $1,000 contribution to its general scholarship fund.

The example Rodney Culver has set is an inspiration to us all. And as a leader in its own field, Toyota recognizes the discipline and unrelenting effort it takes to excel. So next time you watch a college football game, look a little closer. There's a lot more talent on the field than you realize.

"I love what you do for me."

ND ties for No. 2 in poll

By RENE FERRAN
Sports Writer

Virginia maintained its top ranking this week in the National Collegiate Sportswriters' Poll released Sunday, while Notre Dame climbed from fourth into a tie for second with Nebraska. The Cavaliers, idle this week, received 20 first-place votes and 474 total. Nebraska gained three first-place votes after whipping Iowa State 45-13, while the Irish, 31-22 winners over Pittsburgh, both racked up 431 points. Washington received the other first-place vote and placed seventh in the poll after thrashing California 46-7. Not much movement occurred in the rankings this week. Colorado, preparing for next week's Big Eight showdown with the Cornhuskers, defeated slumping Oklahoma 31-22 and made the biggest jump in the poll, from twelfth to ninth. Cross country wins MCC race

Men, after falling to William & Mary, are perfect in MCC

By BARBARA MORAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's cross country team had a roller-coaster break, taking its first loss of the season to William and Mary Oct. 20 and following the loss with a landslide victory at the MCC conference meet last Saturday.

The Irish started the week with a 26-29 loss to William and Mary, despite capturing five of the top ten spots, including the top two. Senior Captain Mike O'Connor tied with teammate Ryan Cahill to take top honors for the Irish, with a time of 24:46 for the five-mile course. Also placing in the top ten for the Irish were John Coyle (seventh), Pat Kearns (ninth), and Mike McWilliams (tenth).

"We ran horrendously," said Notre Dame head coach Joe Piane after the race. "We did not compete as a group. O'Connor and Cahill did a great job, but I can't say that anyone else ran very well."

"There was no reason for it. We were physically ready to run a hell of a lot better, and it was a perfect day to run, so there's no excuse there. William and Mary just came a hell of a lot more prepared to run than our kids."

A week after the William and Mary loss, the Irish dug in and swept eight of the top ten places, including the top six, winning the Midwestern Collegiate Conference championship with a perfect score of 15. The top six Notre Dame runners finished in a pack composed of Kearns, McWilliams, Coyle, O'Connor, Cahill and Nick Radkewich.

"We kind of dominated the meet," said Piane. "Our goal was to score 15, and we wanted to get seven of the top ten, and we ended up with eight. We needed to run well after William and Mary and we needed to run as a group, and that's exactly what we did."

Having captured the conference crown, the Irish now can focus on their season-long goal: the NCAA tournament, Nov. 10.

"All we have to do is a little bit more training and stay healthy for the next two weeks," said Piane.

up 14 points and 171 yards to secure the victory.

"I thought offensively we did not play well at all," Holtz said. "We never got into a rhythm, we couldn't get anything established. Rocket went in at tailback and gave us a big break."

Ismail's 76-yard scoring run, his longest run from scrimmage, was undoubtedly the pivotal play of the game. With just under eight minutes remaining in the contest, Pitt failed to convert on fourth-and-12 from the Irish 33.

No sooner did the Panther offense leave the field than Ismail took quarterback Rick Mirer's handoff from the 24-yard line, followed guard Tim Ryan's and fullback Rod Culver's blocks up the middle and sprinted down the right sideline to give Notre Dame an insurmountable 24-7 lead that cleared the Pitt stadium section.

"It was a tremendous hole," Ismail said. "I saw it, ran to it, and just kept going. When I was playing tailback earlier in the game, they were doing a lot of different things. Late in the game, our line just took over."

"We needed to stop them in the key situations," Pitt strong safety Louis Riddick said, "but when you play a guy like Ismail, he will break one or two big plays like he did."

Pitt held Ismail to one reception for eight yards in the first half, but he caught Mirer's first pass of the second half and raced 49 yards to the Panther 22 to set up Craig Hentrich's 39-yard field goal.

"Overall, I think we played well as a defensive unit," Pitt outside linebacker Ricardo McDonald said. "Ismail had some big plays, but I was pleased with our performance overall."

Ismail caught three passes for 64 yards in the game, returned a kickoff for 24 yards and a punt for ten. He has amassed 705 total yards in Notre Dame's past three games, numbers which have put him back into the thick of the Heisman Trophy race.

"There is no question that Raghib Ismail is the finest football player in the country," said Pittsburgh head coach Paul Hackett.

Women's soccer finishes 16-3-1, captures MCC title

The Observer / Kenneth Osgood

Susie Zilvitis (15) scored the game-winner versus Florida International in overtime last week and scored three goals against Xavier Sunday.

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team wrapped up its 1990 season in style this past week, winning the MCC Tournament and two other games to finish at 16-3-1.

The Irish dumped Calvin College 2-0 on Oct. 20 behind unassisted second-half goals by freshmen Stephanie Porter and Andrea Kurek.

Notre Dame's next victory was a 3-2 cliffhanger in overtime at Florida International on Oct. 24. The Irish, who had brought 20 players down to Florida, suffered the loss of several players.

Standout sophomore goalkeeper Michelle Lodyga sprained her knee trying to save a goal with 10:00 remaining in the first half. Midfielders Margaret Jarc and Marta Roemer, who were replacing the already-injured Brenda Gorski, were also knocked out of the game in the first half.

Typically, sophomore Cara Lewis would step in for Lodyga. However, since Notre Dame was only playing one game, normal procedures did not dictate the necessity of carrying two goalkeepers on such a trip.

Enter Molly Lennon.

Lennon had never played goalkeeper before. In addition to her paucity of goaltending experience, Lennon, who has played most of her games in the midfield, had been saddled with injuries this season.

In 79:00 of goaltending that could air on rebirths of "That's Incredible" or "Ripley's Believe It or Not," Lennon made seven saves and allowed only one goal, as the Irish held on for a tremendous road win.

"We tried to play with four fullbacks and four midfielders after Margaret and Marta went down," said Irish head coach Chris Petrucelli. "Molly went in to play goal, and the rest of the game we just refused to lose. We fought, we played hard and we scrapped the whole way."

"Really, you have to figure that a player that has never played goalie will make more than one mistake, but Molly really only had one. She was very, very good back there. Everyone rallied around her playing."

Alison Lester accounted for two goals and one assist, while Susie Zilvitis nabbed the game-winning goal in overtime. Mimi Suba assisted on the first of Lester's goals.

"Without lots of our players and with the injuries, everyone picked up their level of play," noted Petrucelli. "I didn't expect the game to be close, but after the injuries I thought that we would be lucky to come out with a tie."

...

The Irish returned home in time to host and win the Midwest Collegiate Conference (MCC) Tournament over October 27 and 28.

In the first day of action, Xavier clubbed Marquette 3-0, while Notre Dame ran their winning streak to six games, trouncing Dayton 1-0.

Early in the Dayton game, Marianne Giolitto, who did not start, was waiting at the scorer's table to substitute for Denise Chabot. Yet as Giolitto waited to enter the game, Chabot scored the only goal of the day for the Irish, as Notre Dame jumped out to a 1-0 lead that they would never relinquish.

On the second day of the tournament, Dayton thumped Marquette 4-0, while the Irish ended their season with a seven-game winning streak, soundly hammering Xavier 4-0.

Xavier, who had been ranked 21st in the nation in Division I, in addition to being the fourth-ranked team in the central region, proved unable to shut down the potent Irish squad.

"We won a game against a quality opponent," said Petrucelli. "They had a forward who was probably the best player we have faced all year, but Andrea Kurek shut her down. We have always put Andrea on the opponent's best player all year long and she did a great job as usual."

"We took advantage of our opportunities. It was a great day for the team and for individual players. We won the conference tournament, finished the season with 16 wins and beat a Top 20 team—those are three great accomplishments for this team."

Susie Zilvitis had a hat trick against Xavier, while Alison Lester added her 15th goal of the season. Marianne Giolitto, Stephanie Porter and Denise Chabot each added one assist. Lester's goal set a new record for most goals in a season by an individual player. Susie Zilvitis set the old record of 14 in 1988.

Mimi Suba, playing in the last game of her Notre Dame career, also turned in a splendid performance.

"In the last couple of games and the last couple of weeks, Mimi has been outstanding," observed Petrucelli. "She has picked up her level of play and played like a senior who is ending her season and her career."

Closing out the season at 16-3-1 with a seven-game victory streak and winning of the MCC Tournament, observers have noted that Notre Dame has indeed garnered a great deal of regional recognition and taken a giant step toward national prominence.

Defense vs. Miami—a setup or rising to occasion?

It was all a setup.

The Stanford loss. The last-minute victories over Michigan and Michigan State. The defense that yielded 27 points to an otherwise impotent Air Force offense.

At least that's what Notre Dame inside linebacker Michael Stonebreaker would have us believe following the improbable 29-20 Irish victory over second-ranked Miami on Oct. 20.

"We were just setting up Miami the first couple of games," Stonebreaker joked, "so we knew when we played Miami we were gonna tighten up and play hard."

In what Head Coach Lou Holtz called "a team effort, a players' win", the Irish defense did more than its part in keeping Notre Dame's national championship hopes alive.

Just two weeks after surrendering 36 points in the loss to Stanford, the Irish defense held the Miami offense, ranked sixth nationally in scoring (37.2 points per game), to 20 points, including just three in the second half.

"You've got to give them credit," Miami head coach Dennis Erickson said. "They played defense a lot better than they had earlier in the year, but I knew that coming in. I knew they were going to play outstanding defense, and they did."

"That is a great offensive football team we played," Holtz said, "and to hold them to three points in the second half is rather incredible. I don't think anybody thought that we would play so well on defense. I thought we would play very well on defense."

Holtz knew what nobody else did because he spent the two weeks before the Miami game overseeing the Irish defense and preparing it for its biggest test of the season. He did not throw out the defensive scheme crafted by defensive coordinator Gary Darnell. Instead, he worked with Darnell during the week and focused on turning up the intensity at practice.

Frank Pastor

Associate Sports Editor

"We worked very hard the last two weeks," Holtz said, "and the players responded. I thought we made a lot more progress than people envisioned, and our pass defense wasn't far away from being very good than what people would be led to believe."

"With Coach Holtz coming to practice (on the defensive side of the field), it definitely helped us get motivated more," said outside linebacker Scott Kowalkowski, who forced a third-quarter fumble by Hurricane fullback Steve McGuire at the Miami 25. "We had a pretty much business-as-usual week, and we got our tackling down better. We didn't have many missed mental assignments, and it really paid off."

More importantly, Notre Dame's defense forced four Miami turnovers and made impressive goal-line stands in the first and fourth quarters to halt the Hurricanes' potent scoring attack.

Field cornerback Todd Lyght made perhaps the biggest defensive play of the game when he intercepted Erickson's pass for Lamar Thomas at the Irish eight-yard line with ten minutes remaining in the game and Notre Dame clinging to a 22-20 lead.

Nose tackle Chris Zorich and outside linebacker Andre Jones chased Erickson out of the pocket, and he forced a throw downfield where Thomas had slipped at the 15.

"Our front three got good pressure on Erickson," Lyght said, "and he was looking for the open zone. We put in coverage that they hadn't seen before and that kept them off balance."

"We score there and kick a field goal, we're right back on top again," Dennis Erickson said. "Instead, we throw an interception and they take the ball down and score. That's obviously the turning point in the game."

It also was something Holtz planned for in preparing his pass defense for Miami's aerial attack. Erickson completed 20 of 36 attempts for 355 yards in the game, but his two interceptions proved costly.

"We took Todd Lyght and moved him on the inside guy and played a lot of man-to-man on Todd," Holtz said. "We put a lot of pressure on Todd, and we put a lot of pressure on (short cornerback) Greg Lane. I thought they responded very well."

Lyght led all Irish defenders with eight total tackles, including six unassisted. Backfield mates Greg Davis and Reggie Brooks added five apiece.

Davis shut down Miami's final scoring chance when he knocked the ball loose from running back Leonard Conley at the Irish five and Stonebreaker pounced on the loose ball at the two.

The Irish defense proved especially stingy once the Hurricanes moved inside the Notre Dame 10-yard line.

An early-fourth quarter, 72-yard Miami drive stalled when Erickson misfired three consecutive times from the Irish eight. Carlos Huerta converted a 25-yard field goal to pull the Hurricanes to within 22-20.

The Notre Dame defense limited running backs McGuire and Conley to 91 yards in the game, or 253 less than they gained two weeks earlier against Florida State.

"We played the run very well up front," said Holtz. "Our secondary played well, but we felt we had to stop the run with the six-man front. We have played well up front. That's what I said all along. We just have to take this to another level."

ND, in 'classic,' defeats Miami

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Editor

It was the final battle in the long war between Notre Dame and Miami. The teams fought this battle on the field, and it turned out to be a classic.

The Irish edged the Hurricanes 29-20 before the usual crowd of 59,075 in Notre Dame Stadium to mark the conclusion of college football's most heated rivalry of the last decade.

The Irish improved to 5-1 and moved a step closer to playing for the national championship on New Year's Day, while the Hurricanes fell to 4-2 and saw their hopes for a second straight title evaporate.

"It's not who can win the title but who's left," Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz said. "It's like getting up in the morning and reading the obituary column. You're happy if you're not in it. This is a great game, a great series. It's why you come to Notre Dame, why you come to Miami, to play this type of game."

Notre Dame still holds the edge over Miami since the two first met in 1955, but the teams developed a rivalry through the 1980s that will be hard to match. The winner of the Notre Dame-Miami game has won the national championship for the past three seasons.

A scheduling decision made years ago—long before this became such a heated rivalry—resulted in the termination of the series in 1990.

"We'd like to keep playing them," Erickson said. "As I've said before, you've got two great programs involved and it's a shame it's over."

Junior Heisman Trophy candidate Raghieb Ismail led Notre Dame's offensive attack, and the Irish defense stopped Miami when it counted in the second half.

Ismail, who left the game briefly in the second quarter with what was later diagnosed as a low blood sugar count, ran for 100 yards on 13 carries, caught one pass for 24 yards and returned a kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown. He finished with 268 all-purpose yards.

"He's the best football player in the country," Holtz said.

Notre Dame rallied from a 17-16 halftime deficit and controlled the second half, holding Miami to just three points. The Hurricanes had the ball for just over eight minutes and had three turnovers in the second half.

"You just can't make the mistakes we made in the second half and expect to win," Erickson said. "Notre Dame controlled the ball in the third quarter and it really paid off for them."

Said Miami quarterback Craig Erickson, "They came out in the second half and played good, consistent football. We didn't. We made mistakes."

Rocket racks up the all-purpose yards

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

When Notre Dame won the coin toss Saturday night in Pitt Stadium, it deferred to the second half.

Raghieb Ismail waited until the fourth quarter, when he exploded for 109 of his career-high 116 rushing yards, including a 76-yard touchdown run that put away the upstart Panthers in Notre Dame's 31-22 victory.

"Rocket just gave us a spark," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said, "there's no doubt about it. He's really an exceptional football player."

Ismail gained 214 all-purpose yards in leading second-ranked Notre Dame to its sixth win of the season. The 116 rushing yards on 10 carries marked Ismail's third career 100-yard rushing game. His previous high was 108 yards in last year's Orange Bowl victory over Colorado.

"I didn't really help out too much as far as our offense was concerned," he said modestly. "We just weren't getting the rhythm, and I was definitely missing."

The Irish offense struggled for three quarters, compiling only 17 points and 210 total yards against a Pittsburgh defense that kept several Notre Dame drives alive with senseless unsportsmanlike conduct penalties.

The Panthers held nearly a two-to-one advantage in time of possession during the final stanza, but Notre Dame picked

Irish not pretty in win over Pitt

By CHRIS COONEY
Assistant Sports Editor

It wasn't pretty by any stretch of the imagination, but Notre Dame still earned its sixth victory of the season on Saturday, beating Pittsburgh 31-22 and moving to No. 2 in the Associated Press poll as Auburn dropped two places to No. 4 after barely edging Mississippi State 17-16.

While the Irish win was never really in doubt on the scoreboard, with Notre Dame taking an early lead and never looking back, two Panther touchdowns in the last five and a half minutes, combined with a number of Irish miscues, made for some messy football. The game was marred with penalties, an out-of-rhythm Irish offense and a stellar day for Pitt quarterback Alex Van Pelt, who threw for 384 yards on a career high 37 completions.

The Panthers, typically a tough team for the Irish to beat (they've won three of the last five), deserve much of the credit. As Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz pointed out after the game, Pittsburgh exposed the Irish defensive weaknesses while confusing the Notre Dame offense with unpredictable coverage.

"Pitt played awfully well against us," said Holtz. "The (Notre Dame) defense carried the team for 50 minutes. I would have been perfectly happy if the game had ended 17-7."

Holtz can blame Rocket Ismail for changing that score, which lasted for most of the second half after a Craig Hentrich field goal midway through the third quarter. With less than eight minutes left in the fourth quarter, Ismail followed a Rod Culver block and exploded through the right side of the Panther offensive line, scampering 76 yards into the endzone for the most exciting play of the day.

The touchdown, which was the longest run of Ismail's career, created a 24-7 cushion that Van Pelt and the Panthers spent the next seven minutes trying desperately to deflate. Sparked by Van Pelt's 14 straight completions, Pitt marched 80 and 73 yards and scored on both of its last two possessions, only to have Notre Dame interrupt the showing with an impressive 47-yard drive and touchdown of its own that prevented the game from being any closer.

Nine Panther receivers combined to catch Van Pelt's bullets, with five of them tallying 45 or more yards. But the opportunistic Irish defense held Pitt to just 84 yards rushing and made the big plays when it needed it. Those big plays included a Todd Lyght interception in the endzone, a fumble forced by Chris Zorich and recovered by Devon McDonald, and another interception by Donn Grimm deep in Notre Dame territory.

see PITT / page 19

Hype for big games too prevalent among media

This is what Bob Smizik had to say about the Notre Dame-Miami game in the Oct. 23 edition of The Pittsburgh Press:

"Nobody asked me, but the shame of college football grows daily. The latest example of how putrid the sport has become took place Saturday at one of its supposed shrines, Notre Dame. Police stood guard in the tunnel to the dressing rooms at Notre Dame Stadium, obviously to prevent brawling between Miami and Notre Dame players. What does that say about the players on these teams? At least that some of them are nothing more than thugs, recruited to university life solely because of their size and/or athletic ability. And what does it say about the coaches? Not only that they cannot control their players, but they probably contributed to the high state of agitation with their rhetoric. And what does it say about the university presidents? That they have little or no control over their coaches and, like those coaches, are willing to achieve victory at almost any cost."

So what does all this say about the media? That we will go to almost any length to sell newspapers? In some cases, perhaps.

More distressing, however, is the discontentment among some members of today's media with our fundamental responsibility of informing the public. We feel the need to "color" stories to make them more interesting to the reader, often at the expense of the facts.

Steroids, recruiting violations and tunnel fights attract more readers than do simple game stories, especially when they involve Notre Dame. T-shirts proclaiming, "Catholics vs. Convicts" never make the final box score, but they almost always make the headlines, not to mention a great deal of money.

What we are dealing with here is hype. Hype is a dangerous tool in the hands of a writer, not unlike a disproportionate amount of leisure time for a juvenile delinquent.

We are living in an age where publication, unfortunately, connotes authority. There is something aesthetically alluring about newsprint that calls attention to what is often nothing more than the opinions of a single observer. All too often, we are willing to accept this view as the final word on the subject.

The media may not have created the "Hate Miami" hype which has pervaded this campus every fall since Jimmy Johnson unmercifully ran up the score in the Hurricanes' 58-7 romp over Gerry Faust's obviously overmatched '85 Irish squad, but we have played a central role in fostering its growth.

Five years after that game, Johnson is coaching the Dallas Cowboys, Faust is coaching at Akron, and the players from both teams have moved on. Yet the hype remains. Why? Ask the media. Ask Smizik. When Lou Holtz took over the Notre Dame head coaching reigns in '86, he harbored no hard feelings towards the University of Miami. He was aware of the bloodletting a
