Gladieux cracks the line....

The Harpo Story

Notre Dame halfback Bob "Harpo" Gladieux (5-11, 185 pounds, from Louisville, Ohio) leads the team in rushing, scoring, average per punt and kickoff returns. He ranks second in pass receiving and punt returns. Not much more the guy can do. Observer sports writer Terry Shields profiles him on page 7.

....cracks a smile....

T.H.H. Doubtful

Irish quarterback Terry Hanratty is a doubtful starter for this afternoon's game with Pittsburgh.

Hanratty injured his left knee Wednesday in a "live" goal-line drill. He was rolling out when a member of the prep team defense hit him and held the quarterback upright. A split second later, another defender slashed into Hanratty's knee.

ND's all-time total offense leader suffered no broken bones, nor was there any cartilage damage. However, torn ligaments are feared.

The knee is swollen and Hanratty has been on crutches the past three days. Trainer Gene Paszkiet said no decision on his playing status will be made until this morning.

Meanwhile, Joe Theismann has been running the first team offense in practice since Wednesday. Coley O'Brien has been returned to quarterback as Theismann's back-up man.

The Irish Eye

Grid picks

Milt Richman is on vacation until Nov. 24 and that means some other Observer columnist must accept the task of predicting football games.

I asked a couple of my friends if they'd like to try it. Betty Doerr said, "no." Chris Wolfe said, "No way." Joel Connelly said, "No way in" So here I am.

In an effort to elicit some hate mail (they have a monopoly on it) I will publish each Friday my record from the previous week. Big Milt never does that for you. But maybe he's a little smarter than I am.

THE EAST

Miami over Penn State—Only had this job five seconds and already I'm out on a limb.

Interesting angle here is the fact that Hurricane QB Dave Olivo and Lion tight end Ted Kwalick met four years ago in a high school championship game. Kwalick's team won that one. Today, Olivo evens the score.

Cornell over Brown—Despite the stalwart play of Jerry Hart.

Syracuse over William and Mary—On such games do predictors' averages get fat.

THE MIDWEST

NOTRE DAME over pitt—Joel says anything less than a 45-point victory margin will be a "moral defeat" for the Irish.

Michigan over Illinois—Go wild, Ron Johnson.

Michigan State over Indiana—Go to, Duffy.

Purdue over Minnesota—Gophers were overrated this season.

Kansas over Oklahoma—Not by much, though. This game could salvage a disappointing season for the Sooners.

Iowa over Northwestern—Hawk QB Larry Lawrence improves each week.

Missouri over Iowa State—This job ain't so hard.

Ohio State over Wisconsin—Even Milt wouldn't blow this one.

Nebraska over Kansas State—In a Big Eight "nothing battle."

THE SOUTH

Georgia Tech over Navy—If the Middies tell Tech coach Bud Carson what they know about ND, the Yellowjackets may not show next Saturday.

Tennessee over Auburn—Could be tense for the Vols.

Houston over Memphis State—Cougars got the offense.

Kentucky over Vanderbilt—Bad year for the hustling Commodores.

North Carolina State over Duke—State looks like the Atlantic Coast Conference champ.

Wake Forest over South Carolina—Leroy can tell you about Wake Forest.

Clemson over Maryland—Might be close with the game on Terp soil.

Alabama over LSU—Bear's been growlin' at his boys.

Georgia over Florida—By two touchdowns.

West Virginia over The Citadel—Pitt vs. The Citadel might be an even match.

Mississippi over Chattanooga—Still lookin' for "Sugar" in Oxford.

THE SOUTHWEST

Texas over Baylor—Longhorns coming back from a bad start.

Arkansas over Rice—No sweat.

Colorado over Oklahoma City—Another meaningless Big Eight engagement.

Texas Tech over TCU—Big rivalry.

SMU over Texas A&M—Hixon to Levias clicks again.

Arizona State over Utah—Without serious difficulty.

New Mexico State over Wichita State—Just a guess.

THE FAR WEST

Southern Cal over California—Dear O.J., Please be 9-0 when we get there. Love, Irish.

Oregon State over UCLA—After the game, they'll sit down and mutually plan defenses for Simpson.

Oregon over Washington State—Oregon is still high from last week.

Stanford over Washington—With closed eyes.

NFL

St. Louis over Pittsburgh—Those streaking (two in a row) Steel City Lads come back to reality.

Washington over Philadelphia—Poor O.J.

Green Bay over Minnesota—Vince will jump right out of the press box if the Packers dare lose this one.

Baltimore over Detroit—Letdown for the Lions after a big effort in Los Angeles last Sunday.

Dallas over New York—Might be a second straight shutout for Allie's charges.

Cleveland over New Orleans—Browns sniffing a Century Division title.

Chicago over San Francisco—Kick Mac, kick.

Los Angeles over Atlanta—If Pittsburgh beat the Falcons by 20, can you imagine what the Rams will do?

AFL

San Diego over Boston—Big margin here.

Buffalo over Miami—Bills seemed ready to shake out of it against the Jets last Sunday.

Kansas City over Cincinnati—Chiefs still hot over that bad performance in Oakland a week ago.

Oakland over Denver—Raiders thought it was pretty cool.

New York over Houston—Nice day for New Yorkers in the Big Shea.

How to tap a keg

(and tie into the best reason in the world to drink beer)

1 Pick up a half-barrel of Bud® (good for about 245 12-ounce cups ... with foam) and the tapping equipment on the day of the party. Just set the beer in a tub of ice to keep it cold.

2 Just before the party begins, tap your beer. First, make sure the beer faucet is closed (you wouldn't want to waste a drop of Beechwood Aged Bud!). Then, insert the faucet-and-pump unit into the upper valve of the keg, give it a quarter turn clockwise, and lock it in place by tightening the lower wing nut.

3 Next, insert the lager tap in the lower valve of the keg and give it a quarter turn. Now, set the keg upright in a tub and pack ice around it.

4 You're now ready to draw beer. Pump pressure to the proper point for good draw, usually about 15 lbs. That's all there is to it, but there's no rule against sampling just to make sure everything is perfect. Ahhhhh! It's no wonder you'll find more taverns with the famous "Bud on Draught" sign than any other!

D.C. Boys Display Offensive Power

By Ken Cange

The boys from D.C. combined for 143 points last night while approximately 1300 fans in the Niles High School gym watched the Irish court men stage another astonishing display of offensive power, with the whites taking it 125 to 107.

Heading the list of the Capitol City gunners was Collis Jones who tallied of 16 of 30 field goal attempts and 8 of 10 gift shots for the blue squad to capture the scoring honors with 40 markers. Jones, who apparently can play the post and forward positions equally will, canned his shots from deep in the corners as well as from inside, to amass his forty points.

Right behind Jones in the scoring battle, and high point man for the white squad was awesome Austin Carr with 39 points. Carr, who seemingly scores at will, dropped in 17 of 30 attempts from the field and five of five foul shots hitting his first six shots in a row before a miss.

Bob Whitmore and Sid Catlett, the other D.C. men, chipped in 33 and 31 points respectively as they, too, discounted the old story of the big man scoring most of his points from inside. Hitting repeatedly on medium range jumpers, Whitmore sank 15 of his 27 attempts from the field and all three of his tosses from the charity stripe, while Catlett, never too shy to throw up a 20-footer, connected on 14 of 27 field goal attempts and 3 of 4 free throws.

The whites jumped out to an early lead in the first half and never relinquished it. With only 2:50 gone in the game the score was 14-2, the white team on top, and already there were visions of too many numbers for the scoreboard to handle. The blues were not to be denied, however, as Catlett and Jones went to work to bring them back within ten at 39-29 to go in the half. It never got any closer though, and the whites took a comfortable 20 point cushion into the dressing room at halftime, leading 68-48.

The rest of the game was an even match as the whites scored 57 to the blues 59, with both squads letting defense go to the wind and seldom failing to take a shot whenever the basket was in sight. The combined field goal percentage of both clubs was a torrid 50%, with the blue squad making 48% of their shots and the whites 52%, implying that the shooting was not as haphazard as it may sound.

Sailors Wanted

The Notre Dame Sailing Team is presently seeking some experienced "big boat" sailors to fill out its crew which is making a bid to compete in the John F. Kennedy Memorial Yawl Regatta at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, April 19-20, 1969 (weekend after returning from Easter vacation). Regardless of whether you are a present sailing team member or not, if you are at all interested, please contact by Nov. 11, Rich Doyle, 328 Morrissey, tel. 3588.

Sports Parade

By Milt Richman, UPI columnist

Bootin' Texan

Today's Sports Parade is written by Tommy Geddie of UPI's Southwest Division.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — When Skipper Butler kicked four field goals—one of them a whopping 60 yarder—earlier this year, his University of Texas at Arlington mates dug out the record books to see if the long kick was a collegiate record.

After all, the professional record is "only" 56 yards.

The check showed a 61 yard kick by Bill Shear of Cortland N.Y. State against Hobart College in 1966, but brought to light the fact that Butler already held three national college division records for field goals and was rapidly closing in on two more.

Butler's current marks are for most career field goals with 27, most attempts with 67 and most attempts in a season with 24 last fall. With three games still to play this year, Butler has hit 11 out of 22 field goals and needs just one more good kick to tie the single season record of 12 held by Lee Mayo of Tennessee Martin.

In addition, Butler's toe has accounted for 140 Rebels Points and the national mark for kick scoring is 162 by Bill Swartz of College of Emporia in 1961-64.

That record may be out of reach this fall, but Butler is only a junior.

Butler's four field goals Oct. 5 in a 41-30 win over East Texas State University were also a Southland Conference mark.

"I knew I could kick the ball that far-60 yards, but I didn't know if I would have the accuracy," Butler said.

He claimed he knew he could do the job—mainly because he had kicked 62 yarders in practice.

"I didn't try to kill the ball, although you naturally try to hit it harder and follow through with your leg a little bit more," he said.

Butler a business major, came to UT-Arlington on a part scholarship from Gladewater, a town of about 5,900. He won 13 letters in football, basketball, baseball and track at Gladewater and was a standout quarterback.

Rebel coach Burley Bearden took one look at Butler's kicking ability when he was a freshman and decided to make him a fulltime kicker, and Butler has not played a down of varsity football as anything but a kicker.

Butler has a 37.5 punting average, but the figure is misleading. Opponents have returned only six of his 26 punts this season for six total yards.

His percentage of field goals might be better, but Bearden reasons that a long field goal attempt is worth just as much as a punt if it fails, and is worth three points more if it is good.

College Defense Extinct?

NEW YORK (UPI) — College football defenses are losing ground steadily to advanced offensive techniques.

That's the conclusion drawn from official figures released by the National Collegiate Sports Services today showing that Wyoming and Colgate, which lead in total defense and pass defense, could conceivably wind up as the most porous national defensive leaders in history.

Wyoming has surrendered 198.4 yards per game, well above the previous high leader, Miami, Fla., which gave up 189.4 in pacing the nation in 1956. Colgate is giving up air yardage at a rate of 94.4 yards a game, also well over the mark of 90.1 set by Nebraska last year.

Alabama, which leads in rushing defense with 74.6 yards per game, is fairly safe.

The NCSS statistics also show Wichita State leading in punting with 42.7 yards per kick while California (39) and Harvard (47) are running 1-2 in points given up.

Gladieux at His Best in the Clutch

By TERRY SHIELDS

Every great team has one. You know. That guy who always comes through in a tight situation, the clutch man of a ball club. The player who doesn't usually win the headlines, but merely wins games. In Boston his name is Sam Jones, in Green Bay his name is Carroll Dale, and at Notre Dame his name is Bob "Harpo" Gladieux.

This statement may surprise many people but there are numerous instances that support it. Look back to "The Game" of 1966. The score is Michigan State 10, Notre Dame 0. Coley O'Brien fades back to pass but his primary receiver is covered. Then he spots No. 20 all alone near the goal line. He overshoots the mark by a fraction but his receiver makes the grab look easy. Touchdown Notre Dame.

That was the big play of the year for it changed the momentum and started the Irish back in the ball game. Not enough proof? Remember last year when the Irish met the Miami Hurricanes? If they lost then they lose their national ranking and waste a great comeback effort.

The Irish have the ball in the fourth quarter with a scant one-point lead. The call is an end sweep by the halfback. He gets the ball, breaks one tackle, sets up a solid block, breaks another tackle, and there goes that No. 20 across the goal line again.

The best proof, however, lies in his statistics. These are some of his more important stats: 967 yards gained rushing for his career (he should break 1,000 yards this afternoon), 68 career pass receptions (he need four more catches to become second only to Jim Seymour on the all-time ND list) good for an even 900 yards, and 22 career touchdowns.

He leads the team in scoring this season with 10 touchdowns. This figure ranks tenth in the nation at the present. He is also the team leader in rushing this year with 462 yards. Besides this he ranks first for the Irish in kickoff returns and is second in punt returns.

Evidently someone has been watching Mr. Gladieux for he has been invited to play in the first American Bowl All Star game Jan. 4 in Tampa, Fla. He will perform for the North squad.

After this, Bob hopes to play professional football. "It really doesn't matter what team I play for, just as long as I get a chance to play," says the stalky Irish halfback.

Gladieux has no regrets about coming to ND. "I always wanted to come here because of the great spirit and tradition. I know that I played for the best." When he is finished playing football he plans on a coaching career.

His biggest thrill while at Notre Dame was not the touchdown against MSU, although "it was a thrill, but..." Instead his greatest thrill was the comeback of the '67 season culminating with the "come from behind" victory over Miami.
