Sr. Gerald talks to students...

by Ed Ellis

Four Saint Mary's juniors who spoke last night with Sr. Gerald Hartney, Treasurer of the Sisters of the Holy Cross and a member of the SMC Board of Trustees, concluded that the problem with the merger at this point "is not financial, but philosophical," and can only be dealt with "step by step, in a rational manner."

The four juniors, Grita Anderson, Ann Shoemaker, Cathy Hicks, and Regina Ivory, concluded from their two-hour talk with Sr. Gerald, that "we are up against a philosophy of education held at this college and at many other Catholic colleges for over 125 years."

"To combat this," said Ann Shoemaker, "each of us must act in our own way, but united in a common goal, to change this philosophy."

She said that "they must be made aware of our disagreement in a way they can understand."

To accomplish this, the four recommended that the students continue with the plans outlined in the meetings held thus far this week.

They emphasized that continued pressure must be brought to bear before the meeting of the Board of Trustees December 18, at which the students will present their demands to the Board.

The students said that they had asked for an immediate emergency meeting of the Board, saying that "if ever there was an emergency, this is it." Sr. Gerald, however, said that according to Sr. Olivette, chairman of the Board this would be impossible, since some members of the Board are out of the country and could not possibly be back until December 18, the date of the scheduled meeting.

Sr. Gerald did say, however, that Saint Mary's students taking their major courses at Notre Dame would get Notre Dame degrees. This was a point that had upset many SMC students, especially those in departments that did not exist at Saint Mary's.

In discussions Tuesday night, SMC students leaders had concluded that Sr. Gerald was the key to the entire merger question, since she was the Treasurer of the Order and a member of the Executive Board of the Board of Trustees. A demonstration had been planned for the front of Bernard Hall, the sisters' residence on the campus.

The four girls volunteered to try to talk to Sr. Gerald, who had reportedly rebuffed all previous attempts at communication on the part of the SMC student leaders.

Their attempt to talk to her was successful, and they were accompanied at 7 pm by a crowd of about 300 students to the door of Bernard Hall. All the lights in the hall were out when the crowd arrived. The four entered the building and the crowd left, except for a few who stayed waiting for their exit, due at 8 pm.

At about 8:30, the door of the convent was opened and the sisters present invited a crowd of about twenty-five students inside for a statement.

At that time, Sr. Gerald said that she was concerned at the student response, and would personally take their recommendations to the Board of Trustees on December 18.

The four girls returned to the SMC Student Government offices in Holy Cross Hall and spoke to a crowd of several hundred at a meeting at 9:30.

According to Regina Ivory, the secretary of the group, "Everything in the merger will continue in the direction it has been going, it's just that the boundary limits of time were to be removed."

Also, the students said that the Board is studying the merger, and that Co-ex programs will be continued.

The reason for the interruption of the merger process was that the Board felt that things were going too fast, and so they wanted to slow things down by removing the time limits.

decision made jointly

As far as the decision-making process, Sr. Gerald said that "the decision was made jointly" by Notre Dame and St. Mary's, and that Notre Dame had asked for separate budgets for the coming year.

The group also said that in the voting of the Executive Committee, Sister reported that "the Executive Committee as a whole, voted." The question had been brought up at the meeting the previous night of the student body with Sr. Alma, SMC Acting President.

As for the demand for justification, Grita Anderson reported that "As one member of the Board, she did not feel that she could give all the intricacies of the decision." This was also Sr. Alma's statement last night.

The demand for a meeting of the Board before December 18 cannot be met because of physical reasons, reported Miss Ivory.

...students discuss next steps

by Maria Gallagher and Mike Baum

Approximately 300 students and several faculty members discussed means of protesting the recent merger decision and exchanged information in Holy Cross Hall last night.

The meeting lasted over two hours and featured reports of interviews with dept. heads and a member of the St. Mary's Board of Trustees.

Joe Schlosser and Marilyn Graves (OC Commissioner at SMC) opened the meeting. Schlosser remarked that the general consensus at Notre Dame seemed to be that this was just a "temper tantrum" on the part of the SMC students and remarked that although meetings were to be held in ND halls Thursday, "don't expect large things from ND."

SMC students Regina Ivory, Anne Shoemaker, Greta Anderson and Cathy Hicks reported on an interview held with Trustee Sister M. Gerald Hartney (Treasurer). Sister Gerald, they reported, had contacted other colleges which had considered co-education, Vassar, Smith, Radcliffe and Harvard to ascertain their problems and decisions. She noted that the students and faculty had moved faster than either of the two Boards, and said that the Boards "felt boxed in" by the 1974-75 deadline.

Sr. Gerald recommended an "expanded co-ex program" and said that SMC students with a major at Notre Dame would receive a Notre Dame degree, according to Miss Ivory.

There is no plan to penalize girls for expense increases, such as classes at Notre Dame, or the shuttle bus Miss Ivory said. Sr. Gerald allegedly said that every member of the committee did vote on the motion to halt the merger. She reportedly remarked that St. Mary's "takes the blame", but that there was no reason why they should suffer.

Sr. Gerald replied to the charge that women applicants had been given the false impression of merger with Notre Dame, reportedly, by observing that 95 per cent of the present freshman class had accepted before the May 14 release, and suggested that only the remaining 5 per cent were actually under false assumptions. She recommended allegedly that this 5 per cent could transfer to Notre Dame if they so wished and that she herself would see to it that they were accepted.

She reportedly revealed that there was to be a normally scheduled meeting of the Trustees of St. Mary's here on Dec. 18, and that Sr. Whalen could not speak alone, but only with the entire Board.

Pleas were made at the meeting for large numbers of students to remain in South Bend after the end of exams, to attend the Trustees meeting in order to exert pressure on them.

Other actions discussed included the mailing of prepared and personal letters to parents and Trustees, explaining the situation and asking for support. Lists of Trustees, with addresses and phone numbers were circulated, and students were urged to call and write their parents, asking them to withhold tuition payments.

Indiana U loses ground in tenure conflict

Mike Baum

Two former teachers of Indiana University at South Bend have won a decision against the University in a court action contesting that the University denied them due process in refusing to grant tenure.

The case, involving Mr. William Fabrychy and Mr. Matthew Zivich, both of the Art Department, may well have important consequences in determining the rights of non-tenured instructors.

Both men had six years credit as teachers, and were denied further employ in their seventh year, the time when the University is required to either grant them tenure or terminate their contracts. Mr. Zivich had been an instructor at IUSB for all six years, his colleague, Mr. Fabrychy had taught his first three years at St. Mary's College, but was granted three years credit when he went to teach at IU.

When further contract was denied, both men went before separate Boards of Review. In spite of favorable recommendations from the Boards, and without explanation the University refused to grant tenure, according to Fabrychy, "Both our positions were upheld, that we should have been tenured, that's a kind of generalization...however the Administration denied this, the recommendations of this Board of Reviews in both our cases.

"The Administration seems to consider this only a recommendatory body rather than a hearing body. No place in the faculty handbook does one find anything that says the Administration has to listen to the Board of Review. "In Zivich's case I don't believe the Administration showed up for the Board of Review. In my case they showed up, but it's my understanding they gave no explanation...We were never given reasons of any sort at any time."

As co-plaintiffs, Zivich and Fabrychy have gained a favorable decision from Judge Grant, of the United States District Court Northern District of Indiana (the suit being filed in Federal Court.) Their Attorney, Mr. Don Wirtheimer, explained the court's decision.

"The Court ordered Indiana University to give a statement of reasons why Fabrychy and Zivich were denied tenure and to provide a hearing wherein they could test those reasons and also to provide evidence in their own behalf. Now if the University does not comply with the Court order giving a statement and hearing, then the University is compelled to reinstate them."

If this new hearing were to result in an unfavorable decision by the administration, the co-plaintiffs would ask the court to review the hearing itself, according to Mr. Wirtheimer. He added that the case was not unique in recent law, "There's a trend in the law, now, which generally favours public employees, or more accurately, probationary public employees."

Zivich and Fabrychy's case drew from an early 1960's case, Cafeteria Workers vs. McElroy, Roth vs. Board of Regents and Shirck vs. Thomas, these last two fairly recent decisions. Mr. Wirtheimer noted that the Seventh Circuit has perhaps the most progressive history in this area. He observed, "It's just two competing versions of the law here, because the university maintains that it needs to have unbridled discretion in hiring and firing decisions to prune a faculty. On the other hand individual professors contend that they've got to have some assurance they won't be exposed to arbitrariness."

"The Seventh Circuit holds that a non-tenured faculty member, or teacher, either in a high school, college or university or elementary school, it doesn't make any difference as long as the teacher is a public employee, is entitled to a statement of reasons and a hearing...why the school proposes not to renew the contract."

Wirtheimer noted that the fact that the decisions rested on the teachers being state employees would affect the application of the law to private universities, "There have been a few cases which have sort of ignored the fact that a school is a private institution, but generally if it's a private institution the Constitution will not apply to as great an extent as it would if it were a public school. There is no question that a private institution can not openly and overtly violate someone's civil rights, but it can be done tacitly or silently, and probably they can get away with it."

The present state of the case is unclear. The University did not meet the Nov. 22nd deadline to "give a statement of reasons," but instead filed a motion to amend or alter the judgement thus delaying the final process. said Wirtheimer,

A major judicial decision on the subject may possibly be given within a year or so, as the basis case Roth vs. Board of Regents has been granted certiorari (grant of review) by the Supreme Court.

Washington--The United States today suspended licenses for all future arms shipments to India and revoked previously approved licenses. SMC Faculty voices support for the boycott

by Maria Gallagher

Joining a rising chorus of student dissent over the suspension of the merger, several St. Mary's faculty members voiced full support for yesterday's boycott of classes.

Sr. Franzita Kane, Professor of English at SMC, voiced full support of the student boycott, saying she ordinarily opposes such action, but in this case it was "the only alternative the students could take to effect a response."

The proposals presented at the afternoon convocation showed a great deal of concern and intelligence on the part of the students, the nun noted, however, she said, that was no guarantee for their success.

"People should never stop trying," Sr. Franzita said, "but they should be realistic enough to see that they may be ignored."

Dr. Anthony Black, associate professor of history, held a more cautious viewpoint. He felt that the boycott would be ineffective, saying "I'm sure the administration will not be affected one way or the other by the fact that you were or weren't in Western Civilization class today."

Black declined to speculate whether the decision could be reversed by any action on the

of a letter (see page 5) saying that no student or faculty member had any part in the decision to suspend unification.

"Not one member of this faculty and student body has had any place among the 'we' of that (Sr. Olivette's) statment, just as no member of this faculty or student body was party to the initial decision to merge," Messbarger's statement said.

Elisabeth Noel, professor of English, was enthusiastic about the boycott, calling it a "good idea; a concrete expression of student solidarity." She cautioned, however, that it could succeed "only if the students are sincere."

Miss Noel lauded the students for "doing things that the administration can't ignore, making them aware of students' existance and their opinions." Although she concurred with Dr. Black that the boycott was not necessarily the most effective means, she felt that "at least it's a start."

Dr. Mark Bambanek, associate professor of chemistry and physics hailed the boycott as "one of the most constructive things I've seen since I've been here." and Dr. Donald Horning, professor of sociology, suggested direct faculty-parent contact for information and action.

Both were active at last night's faculty-student meeting at SMC, and offered students their time and efforts.

The Third Day

"The third day he rose again, according to the Scriptures, and of his kingdom there shall be no end, God Forever and ever amen."

---The Apostles Creed

This is the third day after the death of the merger and there is no resurrection in sight. It's not in sight because the nuns of the Holy Cross have decided that St. Mary's, as a small, Catholic, Liberal, Arts College has a future.

It doesn't.

St. Mary's, as it is, doesn't have a future because it does not fit in with the developing trends in American higher education. Co-ed schools--schools with 10,000 or more people, graduate programs and a superior faculty are the institutions of the future.

People are turning away from the small independent college, the college that is unisexual, lacks an adequate library and a graduate school.

The Holy Cross nuns, we are told, called a halt to the merger because they were afraid of being swallowed up by Notre Dame--because they were afraid that St. Mary's and all it has stood for will be swept aside by the megaversity that is developing on the east side of U.S. 31.

Maybe it will, but St. Mary's is going to be swept aside anyway. The very best students at St. Mary's are in the process of applying for admission at Notre Dame. They along with many other SMC women are also writing for applications to dozens of other schools.

If the Nuns of the Holy Cross persist in their decision all their nightmares about St. Mary's being an irrelevant institution, dwarfed by Notre Dame and generally ignored by any student of above average intelligence will come to pass--probably by next September.

Sr. Alma said the other day that the St. Mary's administration wasn't too concerned about losing women applicants to Notre Dame since the number that will be accepted is small.

There are other Catholic Universities in the nation though, most of whom admit women--a larger number of women than are being taken at ND next fall. Women won't apply to St. Mary's if they get turned down by Notre Dame, they'll go somewhere else.

The most grotesque irony of this entire fiasco is that the nuns of the Holy Cross honestly feel that what they are doing is in the best interests of the St. Mary's women. Somehow, some way the good sisters got the idea that St. Mary's girls want their school to remain a small, independent liberal arts college.

They don't.

Women attending St. Mary's were led to believe that they would be attending a school soon to be allied with a major university. They were led to believe that they would be attending a co-educational school. They were led to believe that they would receive their degrees from the most well known Catholic university in the country.

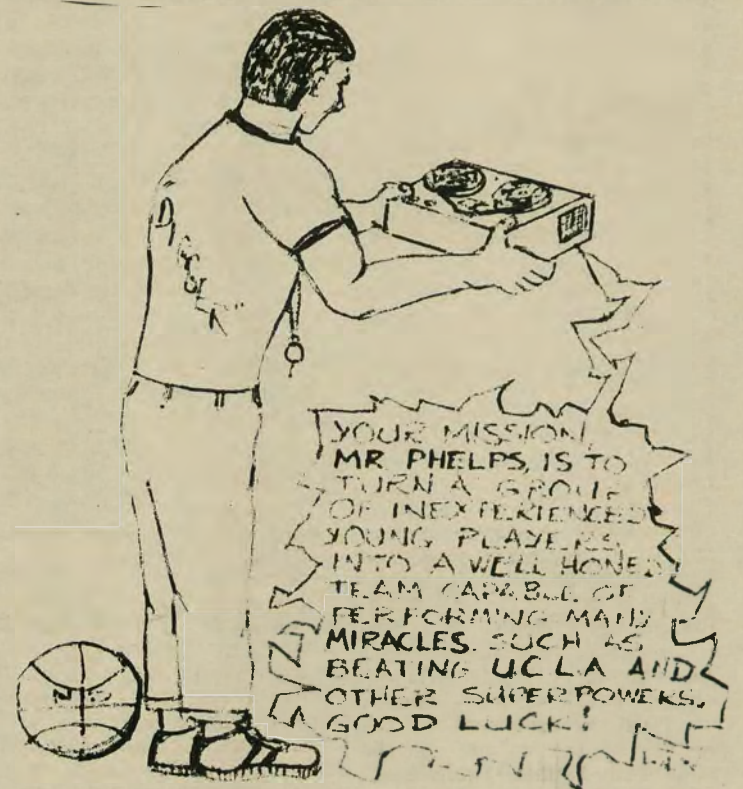

The actions of the past three days are solid proof that the St. Mary's students believe these promises to be true, and want them to be true.

If the decision not to merge becomes final, as it now appears, than there will be no winners--not the girls, who will be forced to transfer to other schools and not the nuns of the Holy Cross, who will find themselves scrambling around for dull, incompetent students to fill their school.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE?

The Merger

Mike Robison

THE MERGER (With apologies to Poe)

Once upon a school year dreary, while I pondered weak and weary,

Over many a quaint and curious irrelevant tome,
While I plodded, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping,

As of someone gently rapping, rapping at my golden dome.
'Tis some student, I muttered, just some student tapping at my golden dome

Only this and nothing more.

Ah, distinctly I remember, it was in the bleak November,
And each failing student wrought his curses upon my door.
Eagerly, I wished the morrow, for vainly I had sought to borrow,
from my banks sums of money, to complete the merger,

Held supreme forevermore

Then open here I flung the shutter, when, with many a flit and flutter,

In there stepped a raven of the saintly Holy Cross.

Not the least apology made she, not a minute stopped or stayed she,

But petitioned for a payment, payment of a thousand grand, one cool million, nothing more

Shocked was I, and undertaking to placate the students making demands for a combination, Pacified them with conciliations, and brought our demands to the Board.

There we strove, begged and pleaded, but our efforts went unheeded, for as to the merger sorely needed;

SMC students meet to try to save merger

by Ann McCarry and Jim McDermott

Over 1300 students, mostly from St. Mary's College, met in O'Laughlin Auditorium yesterday to prepare a coordinated move against the breakdown in the Notre Dame-St. Mary's unification.

The meeting had originally been designed to allow students to meet with members of the College Board of Trustees. All trustees meet with members of the College Board of Trustees. All trustees in the area were invited as well as members of the SMC administration.

With the exception of Dr. Mary Alice Cannon, vice-president for student affairs, and Sister Jeanne Finske, academic dean, no administrators or trustees addressed the students.

Dr. Cannon read the statement that Mother Olivette Whelan, chairman of the St. Mary's Board of Trustees, had sent to the faculty of the college. In the statement, Mother Whelan said, "I realize that it was a mistake to go forward until basic negotiations took place and agreements were reached."

Mother Whelan, in the statement, called for assistance in meeting the "new and challenging era" facing St. Mary's. She deferred all other questions until after the trustees meet this month.

In answer to questions, Dr. Cannon emphasized that the decision had been taken jointly by the Notre Dame and St. Mary's trustees. She also said that steps are now being taken to insure that St. Mary's students will receive a quality education.

Commenting on the statement, that had been released to the faculty yesterday in Carroll Hall, Dr. Paul Messbarger, chairman of the faculty assembly, that "before we can review our confidence in the integrity and the future of this college, we must have some assurance that the leadership of this institution will be changed, that men and women will be named to the Board and to the executive offices of the college who have the confidence of the faculty and students."

Messbarger commented on the "unreal structure of authority" at SMC, noting that trustees and administrators are "so far removed from the life of this community as to be incapable of reflecting its true interests." He deplored the fact that college faculty and student body had no part in any of the final considerations to breakoff the planned merger.

Messbarger hoped for a united effort on the part of the students and faculty to totally re-orient the college. He called for a "review of the corporate relationship of the college and the Order of the Sisters of the Holy Cross."

Dr. Messbarger's letter to the SMC Board of Trustees

The following is the text of a statement I would like to direct to the St. Mary's Board of Trustees, along with an account of the faculty support it enjoys. If you agree with the sentiments, would you please sign this document and return it to the box in your mailroom by Wednesday evening. I will inform all of you of the actions I take; if necessary I will convene the Faculty Assembly for an emergency session Thursday or Friday.

Letter to Chairman and Members, SMC Board of Trustees

Dear Sisters and Gentlemen: The faculty (and student body) of St. Mary's College view the announced decision to suspend merger negotiations with the University of Notre Dame with great disappointment. The statement of Mother Olivette, Chairman of the Board, to the College faculty on Nov. 30, and her refusal to answer questions following the statement, only compounded our distress.

To say more than this - to assess blame, to insist on redress - is to risk a judgment that may be rash. Yet that is a risk we have to take. Because there is almost no possibility that we shall ever know sufficient facts about the negotiations to make a perfectly reasoned judgment. Worse, even if we knew the fullest account of all sides to the negotiations, there is no way that we could know it to be true. That adds up to a description of our present situation even more desperate than what has occurred because of the failure of the merger.

In her statement, Mother

Olivette recorded a part of the history of the merger discussions. At one point, she said, "we realized" that "we had made a mistake." No member of this faculty and student body has any place among the "we" of that statement, just as no member of this faculty or student body was party to the initial decision to merge. Whether or not the negotiations can be resumed, or whether we withdraw into ourselves to rebuild this institution, the fact of the matter is that we have reached a point in our institutional existence when critical changes are necessary. (What has brought us to our present crisis and what will necessarily frustrate any effort to rebuild this school is an unreal structure of authority. The men and women who direct the fate of this school (the Board and academic officers) are so far removed from the life of this community as to be incapable of reflecting its true interest.

We have been asked to accept a great deal of frustration, to absorb a great deal of pain. It seems to us that before we can accept this condition with any degree of willingness, before we can renew our confidence in the integrity and the future of this College, we must have some assurance that the leadership of this institution will be changed, that men and women will be named to the Board and to the executive offices of the College who have the confidence of the faculty and students. Moreover, we feel that because of decided and inevitable conflict of interest, steps should be taken to review the corporate relationship of the college and the Order of the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

During the meeting a letter, written by the freshmen class, that will be sent to the Board of Trustees and freshmen parents, was presented by Sue Hooks and Trish Steele.

They cited the second page of the Freshman Manual, which says "Because of the recent unification of Saint Mary's College in the Fall Semester of 1971 will have available to them all of the bachelor degree programs of the University of Notre Dame as well as those which have existed at Saint Mary's and which are not duplicated by Notre Dame programs."

They felt that "a promise has been broken, and no confidence in the Board or its decisions can exist at this time."

Along the same lines, Student Body President Kathy Barlow, re-emphasized Messbarger's disappointment that the students and faculty had not been consulted in the decision to stop the merger after the work and effort they had expended on the Inter-Institutional teams.

Barlow reiterated the demands of the student body that were decided on Tuesday night. They demanded: justification for the decision, reversal of the decision, and the appointment of outside arbitrators to resolve differences between the two schools con-

About crooks

Editor:

A note for your executive editor:
Dear Mr. Treanor:

In the spirit of Ecumenism I would suggest the following which was sent to me by the National Laymen's Council of The Church League of America.

Cordially yours,
John T. Balfe '20

How to Raise a Crook

1. Begin from infancy to give the child everything he wants. This way he will grow up to believe that the world owes him a living.
2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. It will encourage him to pick up "cuter" phrases that will blow the top off your head later.
3. Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is twenty-one and then let him decide for himself.
4. Avoid the use of the word "wrong". It may develop a guilt complex. This will condition him to believe later when he is arrested for stealing a car that society is against him and he is being persecuted.
5. Pick up anything he leaves lying around--books, shoes, clothing. Do everything for him so he will be experienced in throwing the responsibility to others.

6. Let him read any printed matter he can get his hands on. Be careful the silverware and drinking glasses are sterilized, but let his mind feed on garbage.

7. Quarrel frequently in the presence of the children. Then they won't be too shocked when the home is broken up.

8. Give the child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as tough as you had them?

9. Satisfy his every craving for food drink, and comfort. See that every desire is gratified. Denial may lead him to harmful frustrations.

10. Take his part against neighbors, teachers and policemen. They are all prejudiced against your child.

11. When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourselves by saying, "I never could do anything with him."

12. Prepare for a life of grief--you will have it.

Sr. Gerald refused to comment on the student demand for third-party arbitration of the problems.

Directing herself to the question of SMC academically suffering by the Notre Dame coeducation move, Sr. Gerald reported said, "Then Saint Mary's takes the blame. There is no reason why they should suffer."

The four also reported concern on the part of Sr. Gerald that "there will be much closer communication between the Board of Trustees and the students."

"There aren't," Sister was quoted as saying, "communication links there that should be there. There are some, but there should be more."

As far as student and faculty representation on the Board, Miss Anderson said that Sister Gerald had promised to take the issue before the Board at the earliest possible opportunity.

Miss Anderson also noted that Sister had agreed to recommend to the Board that they meet with a student convocation on December 18.

As for the overall effect of their meeting last night, the four expressed some dissatisfaction. "With regard to the meeting," said Miss Anderson, "it was pretty much what the student body expected. I think its grossly insufficient for present needs, but in regard to long range progress, I think this was one way in which to open new channels, channels needed to create long-range rapport between the Board and the students.

"I wish, however, that this could have been directed more to immediate needs," she added.

Cathy Hicks said, "As far as Sister Gerald is concerned, she doesn't see any emergency. This tonight was all she could do until the 18th. We will be there the 18th."

Michigan spoils Digger's opening

by Vic Dorr '74

The scene outside the Notre Dame dressing room after last night's 101-83 loss to the Michigan Wolverines was an unusual one. "Moose" Krause, the University's Athletic Director, and Roger Valdiserri, the Sports Information Director, were both smiling broadly and puffing on fat cigars as they waited to see the Irish ball club.

And inside the dressing room, in the tiny press cubicle, the scene was just as unusual. Coach "Digger" Phelps, despite the fact that his team had just suffered an 18-point setback in its season opener, was telling anyone who would listen:

"I'm pleased with those kids...I'm very proud of them. I couldn't have asked for more."

But perhaps this behavior wasn't so unusual after all. The Irish were beaten, and they were beaten fairly decisively. But the 101-83 final score was no indication of the kind of game it was, and it was certainly no indication of the kind of game the ND varsity played.

Phelps' squad had been overwhelming underdogs going into the contest. The Irish were younger, smaller, badly out-manned by a Michigan squad that boasted 6-4 Henry Wilmore, 6-6 Wayne Grabiec, and 6-8 Ernie Johnson.

From the opening tipoff, though, it was clear that the Irish were not going to play the game like underdogs. The all-sophomore starting lineup of Bob Valibus, Tom Hansen, Tom O'Mara, Gary Novak, and Chris Stevens put unexpected pressure on the Wolverines—both on offense and on defense.

The two teams volleyed throughout the first period, and the Irish who had not been impressive on offense in their pre-season game against the freshmen, were able to grab the lead from the nationally-ranked Wolverines on two occasions—once at 13-12, and again at 17-15. Other than this, the Wolverines managed a slight advantage throughout the initial period, and were able to sneak out at the halftime break in possession of a 49-47 lead.

The halftime figures were both revealing and surprising. During the first period, the Irish attempted 45 field goals to 34 for the Wolverines, and hit on 21 of them, as opposed to 18 for Michigan. But the slight lead that the Irish held in the field goal department was more than erased by Michigan's performance at the free-throw line. The Wolverines hit on 13 of their 19 charity throws—as opposed to five of five for ND.

The most surprising first half statistic was that of rebounding. For during the first 20 minutes of play, the scrappy Irish squad outrebounded their taller and heavier opponents, 20-19. And it was this, more than anything else, that enabled Notre Dame to stay as close as it did for as long as it did.

Phelps' team began the second half the way they ended the first, and when the Irish edged to a 59-56 lead with 15:11 remaining, ND fans in the crowd of 9,586 began to hope for an upset.

But the Irish, determined as they were, simply ran out of gas as the second half wore on.

Michigan closed the gap to 59-58 on a bucket by 6-5 forward Dave Lockard, pulled ahead on an Ernie Johnson jumper, and never trailed again. Notre was able to keep things close until the seven-minute mark, when three back-to-back field goals by the 6-6 Grabiec eased the Wolverines into an 85-73 lead, and really put the game away.

The Irish threatened only once more. After Wilmore drew his fifth personal with slightly less than five minutes remaining, Tom O'Mara sank a free throw to make it 89-80. But ND's shooters hit a two-minute cold spell after this, and when the Irish finally did score again, at 1:17, the Wolverines had stretched their lead to 97-82. O'Mara's free-throw with no time remaining ran the score to its final 101-83 tally.

"They're a defensive club," said the ND coach after the game, "and they did a good job of controlling the boards. Besides, we were getting a little tired there at the end. But this was the best we've looked all year," continued Phelps, "and we were very good at changing our defenses."

"Our kids learned a lot tonight," he said. "We didn't get beat because they were quicker than we were. We got beat because they were a physical team, and because they could shoot. They just wear you down but if we had to play 'em again, we'd play 'em the same way."

Michigan's Wayne Grabiec led all scorers with 26 points, and he was followed by teammates Wilmore and Lockard, who notched 21 and 17, respectively.

Tom O'Mara's 25 led the Irish, but he was pressed for team honors by Gary Novak, who scored 23. Novak and O'Mara also led the Irish in rebounding, with 10 and seven, and Lockard (17) and Wilmore (13) paced the Wolverines in cleaning the boards.

Coach Phelps and his Irish cagers will attempt to even their record at 1-1 this weekend, when they go on the road for a Saturday (8:00 pm) game at Valparaiso.

Slow start topples frosh

by Joe Passiatore '74

The Notre Dame freshmen basketball team was the victim of some first half sluggishness last night as they were defeated by Michigan's frosh, 89-77. Down by fifteen points at intermission, 47-32, the Irish came back to out-score Michigan in the final half. However, Michigan's early supremacy left the issue little in doubt.

The baby Irish fell behind 15-10 at 12:33 of the first half when the pressing defense of the Wolverines forced them into some costly turnovers. The situation worsened when the combination of 6'7" Campy Russell and guard Joe Johnson started to click. With Russell dominating the defensive boards and Johnson frequently penetrating the Irish defense with scoring drives, the baby Wolverines opened up a 27-19 margin at 7:36 of the first half.

Some cold shooting by the Leprechauns further aided Michigan in the opening period. For the first twenty minutes Notre Dame hit on only 33 per cent of its shots. Michigan, meanwhile, was ripping away at a 55 per cent clip.

Gary Brokaw began to open up in the second half and by virtue of his offensive prowess the Irish began to peck away at their deficit. Notre Dame, however, was unable to seriously threaten Michigan's superiority in the contest. This was due somewhat to their lack of movement on offense and their tendency to rely too much on Brokaw.

A full court press was employed by Coach Frank McLoughlin with 11:32 left and Notre Dame trailing 60-47.

However, Campy Russell continued to dominate the boards with what at times seemed to be excessive aggressiveness, which went unchecked by the referees. With 2:22 left, the score had closed to 80-70 because of some aroused board play by Peter Crotty and Bedford Bruno. The Wolverines then reverted to their productive first-half style of play, and kept Notre Dame from entertaining any notions of a comeback.

Brokaw concluded the game 9 of 26 from the field, and 10 of 11 from the charity stripe for a total of 28 points. Crotty turned in a 13 point effort along with 14 rebounds and Bruno had 12 points, 13 rebounds.

The Wolverines were headed by Johnson and Russell, who had 32 and 26 points respectively. Russell was the leading rebounder with 14.

Ironically enough both teams shot 40 per cent from the field, however, Michigan was able to get off 7 more shots. The difference wasn't rebounding as ND won that battle 52 to 47, but turnovers. The Irish committed 23 offensive errors to Michigan's 15. The absence of guard Dwight Clay was partly responsible for this. Clay is out of action with a broken finger.

Editor: Let me make this suggestion. If ND wants money for its minority recruitment program, and if it would like to make this money by playing in Bowl games, and if ND would always like to play whom it would like to play, then I suggest the First College Bowl north of the Mason-Dixon Line: The Rockne Bowl! It will give us an excuse to build a new stadium! It will give alumni and friends of the university another chance to see the ND team in action. It will give a visiting southern team a chance to see snow. South Bend might be inspired to renew its face (or perhaps visitors could stay in Chicago overnight!). The team won't have to spend practice time away from home; they can invite their family here! Since there are so many bowls on January 1st, and it might be hard to acquire TV coverage maybe we'd like to change the entire concept. Paint a town Green and hold the Rockne Bowl on St. Patty's Day!

Wrestlers begin well; sweep two-match set by Pete Winkler '75

In the past two nights, the Notre Dame Wrestling Squad has gotten the 71-72 season off to a flying start.

Last night in the first home match of the season, against De Pauw University, the Irish won an overwhelming victory, setting three records in the process: most pins in a match with 7, most points with 45, and widest point spread with 36, tying a record set the previous night at St. Joe's.

Last night's results looked like this: 118 - Mike Martin, Pin in 7:39 over Mike Borgman. 126 - Steve Moylan, Pin in 6:33 over Tom Stevens. 134 - Rich Esposto, Pin in 6:28 over Dale Oldis. 142 - Curt Bramble over Bruce Hamilton, 6-0. 150 - Ken Ryan, Pin in 3:50 over George Ball. 158 - Bob Bennet, Pin in 2:49 over Gary Roberts. 167 - Mike Kemp lost by a pin to De Pauw's Neil Oslos. 177 - Rick Komer, pin in 2:52 over Doug Wood. 190 - Al Rocek lost, 2-0 to Jim Johnson. HWT - Mike Fanning, Pin in 7:50 over Jack Vanderschilren.

The final score was 45-9. Tuesday night saw another Notre Dame victory—this time over St. Joe's, 42-6. Six pins, by Martin, Moylan, Esposto, Komar, Rocek and Fanning, paved the way for this win, Moylan's pin just missing the school record for quickest by one second at 26. In addition, Ryan and Bennet scored victories on points, while Bramble and Bill Moran dropped their matches. These two victories leave Ryan only 11 short of the all time record.

Overall, the team looks strong, coming off their best opening in the history of the sport at Notre Dame. This weekend, they head for the New York Invitational, their first tournament of the season. Then, next Thursday, December 9, they play host to traditional rivals, Wabash University, in what should prove to be one of the most exciting encounters in the 1971 wrestling season.

Afro-American

Society fights

Sickle Cell

By Millard Arnold

Officials from the Afro-American society last night announced that proceeds from next Saturday's Black solidarity dance will go to the fight against Sickle Cell Anemia, a disease which primarily effects Blacks.

The Society asked for contributions of "at least fifty cents" for the dance, which is scheduled to go on between ten Saturday evening and three Sunday morning. The Sound Service, a South Bend musical group, will be the featured artists.

The idea for the benefit grew of a letter which Rick Smothers, the Notre Dame representative to the Indiana advisory council of Black Student Unions, received from the foundation.

The letter stated in part that the Black Greek Council of Indiana University had contributed $800 to the foundation and inquired as to what could be accomplished at Notre Dame.

Olatemi Simmons, who is helping coordinate the affair, immediately took to the idea when Smothers approached him with the proposal.

"We had already planned a party for Saturday evening," Simmons said, "it was just something to be doing. When Smothers asked about our giving the dance for sickle cell, I said 'yea, why not?' I see it as something that should have been done long before."

Simmons is one of the ten percent of Blacks in America who carries the sickle-cell trait.

The actual disease itself occurs in one out of every 500 Blacks in this country. It is a killer. Few who have the disease live past 30.

SBP Kathy Barlow stressed the need for widespread personal support, and both she and Sr. Franzita Kane (SMC English Prof.) spoke of the need for all students to be well-informed on the issues and facts.

Students said that there was widespread interest in the story among national papers, and that teams from NBC news would be on the SMC campus Thursday.

It was announced that activities Thursday would include the setting up of an information center, and the establishment of checkpoints in the SMC dining hall to poll students on whether or not they had sent letters to their parents or taken other recommended actions.

The meeting was preceded by a silent march by a body of about 500 students to Bertrand Hall which served as an escort to the four representatives who were scheduled to meet with Sr. Gerald, and was an attempt to emphasize student support of them.
