

Crime problems take priority

Mock Convention backs eight platform planks

by Karl J. Blette
Staff Reporter

The Mock Democratic Convention's Platform Committee accepted a plank calling for an "overhaul" of the present criminal justice system and the decriminalization of marijuana at its meeting last night.

The delegates voted to largely uphold the status quo in areas of military spending, national security and campaign reform.

They later adopted a more liberal stance in voting for the decriminalization of marijuana, the establishment of a national health insurance program and the legalization of gambling.

The following planks were voted on and passed by the committee:

Crime Prevention: The most ardently discussed topic at the meeting was that of crime prevention. The final plank called for an "overhaul" of the present criminal justice system, an expansion and upgrading of the penal system, an increase in the number of Federal judges to more efficiently handle the number of court cases and Federal medical aid to the victims of violent crimes. It also called for the decriminalization of marijuana, and the removal of obstacles to state legalization of gambling. A minority plank included the legalization of prostitution with government regulation.

After much debate, the committee voted down a plank which would abolish "victimless" by legalizing the use of marijuana and other drugs, prostitution, gambling and pornography and do away with laws against public drunkenness, disorderly conduct, vagrancy and other so-called "nuisance offenses."

A few of the points were added to the majority and minority planks as amendments, however.

The following planks were voted upon and passed by the committee:

National Defense: Discussion on this topic was continued from Tuesday night's meeting.

The committee supported the establishment of a civil agency to oversee defense spending and defense contracts, the increased reduction of overseas U.S. military forces, a governmental study with the end of reducing bureaucracy and increase efficiency in the military, a rebuilding and upgrading of the present military, and a reaffirmation of our commitment to the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

An amendment for the reduction of spending for the maintenance and development of nuclear weapons failed to pass.

Government Secrecy: The committee voted to put an end to unnecessary secret classification of information or classification which serves individual political needs and provided for automatic declassification of material after a given period of time.

A minority plank included decriminalization of disclosure of classified documents which expose illegal activities.

Security: The committee expressed concern over power abuse by the FBI and CIA and voted to establish a supervisory committee with members from all three branches of the Federal government.

The committee would have access to files in both agencies, and would see that they remain within the guidelines of the law and of their established purposes.

Seniority: This plank called for abolishment of the seniority system to "decentralize power in Congress" and "make committee chairmen more responsive to the ideas of committee members, their colleagues in Congress, and their constituents."

Campaign Finance: The committee upheld the maintenance of limits on individual and corporate campaign contributions and provided for federal aid to candidates, a re-evaluation of the national primary system and a plan to equalize the election chances of incumbents, major-party candidates and independent party candidates.

Lobbyist Reform: Stricter lobby laws were called for including the mandatory registration of all lobbyists and periodic financial reports submitted by lobbyists. These reforms would apply to lobbyists in all branches of government.

Health Care: Legislation was called for to protect doctors from rising malpractice insurance costs, to establish guidelines for malpractice suits, to provide free medical checkups for elementary school children, to subsidize doctors who would practice in free clinics and to establish a form of national health insurance.

A minority plank would set up a more comprehensive nation health insurance program as well as set up Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO'S), groups of doctors and nurses who would function more efficiently than private practitioners.

Discussion by the Platform Committee will continue tomorrow night and possibly into the weekend, committee assistant chairman Mike Meissner pointed out.

Tomorrow night's topics will be school finance, busing, privacy, abortion, family planning and women's and minorities' rights.

Chairman Rick Littlefield noted the discussion will very likely be quite heated and he urged both delegates and visitors to attend.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in Room 127 Nieuwland Science Hall, and discussion of the abortion topic will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m.

Black Caucus drafts political bills

by Mary Pat Tarpey
Senior Staff Reporter

Chuck Wilson, head of the Black Political Caucus, outlined two bills which will be presented to the platform committee of the mock convention tonight. These bills advocate busing and more concentrated action on minority rights and employment.

The pro-busing bill, drafted by Gene Berry, a member of the caucus, cites busing as the hope of a quality education for all people in America. "We choose busing as the only realistic alternative in the implementation of quality education," he stated.

"School financing has been suggested as an alternative. It is a fine goal but it isn't realistic. It's not concrete enough and is too time consuming," Berry added.

Berry said busing children would result in parental concern on both sides.

"They would have a legitimate interest in both inner-city schools and suburban schools. Both would be upgraded and the hope of a quality education could be actualized," he noted.

The bill also states busing should be conducted only when it is deemed necessary to attain quality education and racial balance.

Cites court case

In stating its position, the caucus cited the 1954 case of Brown v. the Board of Education of Topeka, Kansas. In its decision, the Warren Court stipulated each American has the right to receive a quality education regardless of race. Seventeen years later, schools were still segregated and the quality of education less than adequate, the bill notes.

The busing bill holds the decision of the Supreme Court on equality in education and busing should be upheld and enforced by "whomever should occupy the position of chief executive of the United States."

According to the minority rights bill, drawn up by Wilson, the caucus is, "mainly concerned with racial and ethnic subgroups which have been forceably kept in subordinate positions in both public and private sectors through oppressive policies and practices."

Wilson said all ethnic and racial subgroups have common problems and the most pressing today are unemployment and underemployment.

The bill calls for a full employment economy whose interest is in securing a job for every American citizen. Wilson termed this the most important section in the bill.

He noted, "More black people are out of work than whites and the gap is widening. The unemployment rate is near 13.8 per cent for black Americans."

He further stated 59 per cent of the black youths between 16 and 19 are out of work.

Requests more workers

Related to this, the bill asks for more workers in the health care and related areas such as day care, education and low cost housing. "This is in the interest of expansion of federal help to the needy," the bill states.

The third point mentioned concerning minority rights is "a guaranteed adequate income to all and elimination of waste in such areas as defense spending and tax loopholes."

Finally, the bill requests an increase in manpower training programs to provide more managerial apprenticeships. It calls for government scrutiny of decisions concerning unemployment made by private firms.

These two proposals will be submitted to the platform committee for consideration tonight.

Wilson said he planned to have the completed platform by Friday so the caucus can review and begin to discuss amendments to the platform at the convention.

Wilson also announced plans to meet with the women's caucus in hopes of combining support for the two group's proposals.

The caucus has plans to vote on a Presidential candidate later this week.

Have Your Say

There will be a "town meeting" of the University community tonight at seven in LaFortune ballroom. Featured at this meeting will be such campus notables as Fr. Hesburgh, Bro. Just Paczesny, Dean Roemer and Student Body President Ed Dyne. The meeting is intended to give students, faculty and administrators a chance to talk about campus problems and hear what each other have to say.

Those of you who think that the Administration is maltreating you, come on down and tell Hesburgh, Paczesny and Roemer what you really think of them.

Those of you who think that the folks under the Dome are terrific but maligned, come let them know that someone has something nice to say.

If you think that Student Government has been as active as the mummy of Rameses II come see if you can wake the dead.

But if you believe that Student Government has done a solid job for which no one (including the Observer) gives them credit, then give them the credit they deserve and lambast the ingrates.

If you believe the faculty are ignored and underpaid stick up for their rights.

You who claim that the professors are out to wreck your extra-curricular life (or your sanity) with petty details like tests and papers, come tell them how educational the non-academic side of life can be.

You poobahs who may come under fire tonight, show up to defend yourselves.

If you know the answers to the University's problems but find your solutions ignored, come on down and tell the rest of the University at a meeting where you have a captive audience.

In short, all of you who have gripes, suggestions, questions, brilliant and witty comments, compliments, innovative ideas, pent-up tirades—that is, everyone at this University—come on down, speak out and hear the speaking.

Violinist Gordon to solo with Chamber Orchestra

by Mary Rathburn
Staff Reporter

Violinist Cora Gordon will be featured soloist with the Mid-West Chamber Orchestra, Feb. 14 at 8:30 in O'Laughlin Auditorium at St. Mary's College.

Gordon began her violin studies at the age of eight and gave her first solo performance in New York's Town Hall at 11. By the age of 15 she had performed major concertos of Mendelsohn, Bruch, Mozart, and Bach with the East coast orchestras.

She has performed as soloist with the Marlboro Festival Orchestra under Pablo Casals and the American Symphony under Leopold Stokowski.

Presently on the music faculty of Long Island's Dowling College, Gordon also directs the New Chamber Orchestra of Long Island.

Her concert tours have taken her most recently to Israel, where she appeared with the Israel Pro Music Orchestra. She is currently planning a tour in Sweden.

Highlighting Saturday's performance will be Bach's "Concerto in D Minor for Two Violins and Strings," with Gordon and conductor-violinist Seymour Rubenstein.

Rubenstein's credits as violinist include soloist performances with the Manhattan Orchestra, City College Symphony, and Tenaflly and Hudson Symphonies in New Jersey.

Rubenstein earned a doctorate of music from Columbia University and received conductorial training from Jonel Perlea of the Metropolitan Opera and Richard Lert of the American Symphony Orchestra.

After conducting New Jersey's Hudson Symphony for 12 years, he became conductor of the South Bend Symphony. In the spring of 1975 he took over the direction of the newly-formed Mid-West chamber Orchestra.

Saturday's "Violinist Showcase" will also include Mozart's "Concerto No. 3 in G" Corelli's "Suite for Strings," William Walton's "Henry V: Two Pieces for Strings," and Bartok's "Roumanian Folk Dances."

Tickets for the concert are available at St. Mary's box office or at the door. General admission is $4.50 and student tickets are $2.50.

CIA denies involvement in Angola

CAMBERLEY, England (AP) - Questions about where the money came for the ill-starred British mercenary effort in Angola have brought reports and denials of Central Intelligence Agency involvement.

Les Aspin, managing director in charge of pay and administration for Security Advisory Services - SAS - which recruited the mercenaries, tells newsmen the money comes from the pro-Western National Front - FNLA. The soldiers were sent to aid that faction in its battle against the Soviet-supported Popular Movement - MPLA in Angola's civil war.

Some newspapers and SAS spokesman John Best say it comes from American sources involving the CIA and the American Embassy in London. The U.S. Embassy says it has nothing to do with the recruiting of mercenaries.

John Banks, a 33-year-old ex-paratrooper who recruited for the Angolan operation, said Wednesday the money has been coming from a man in the northern city of

"In this business, it doesn't pay to ask too many questions," Banks said in an interview here.

His apartment 35 miles south-west of London served as headquarters for the SAS until recent developments, including return of 50 of the mercenaries and reports that 14 of their comrades were executed after demanding to go home.

Architect sees present bathrooms dangerous

AP Newsfeature

Think "old age" when you plan to build or remodel a bathroom. That way you may reach some conclusions that will benefit every member of the family.

"Things that are necessary in the bathroom for the elderly are necessary for all," says Alexander Kira, professor of architecture at Cornell University. "It is just that younger people are more tolerant of inadequacies and are likely to single out necessary things as being geriatric devices or solutions."

Although in the past few years bathrooms have improved, it is still the most single underdeveloped area in the average house, Kira says.

Burdened with arthritis, eyesight problems, back problems or other physical disabilities, some older persons may find the bathroom ceasing to be a convenience. They shun it because it may be unsafe, poorly lighted, unhygienic and a mechanical failure with fancy faucets that are difficult to manipulate. In fact, some older people may resort to sponge baths in the kitchen, he said.

Kira was discussing his book, "The Bathroom," which has been revised and reissued. First published 10 years ago, it took seven years to write and includes the social and psychological aspects and design criteria for cleansing of the body, as well as other aspects of the subject.

He contends that every tub or shower should have grab bars at the entry and on the sides so that there is something to hold on to when you step in and out and get up and down...nonslip bottoms which almost every manufacturer can supply or for which decal strips may be used...controls that are opposite the shower head and that are placed at the entry and at standing height.

"Unless there is an enormous amount of room," Kira says, "the lavatory should be built into a counter with storage below and storage above. There you can put cleaning supplies...hot water bot-

Noted actor dies

LOS ANGELES AP—Lee J. Cobb, a character actor most noted on the stage for "Death of a Salesman," in films for "On the Waterfront" and "The Virginian" in television, died Wednesday, a county coroner's spokesman said. Cobb was 64.

A coroner's spokesman said Cobb died at his suburban Woodland Hills home at 11:42 a.m. of an apparent heart attack.

Cobb was a leading actor over a long period of American theater, film and television, rising to the heights of his professional career with his 1949 performance in Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" on the Broadway stage. He acted the same role on television in 1968.

Miller himself declared, "Lee is the greatest dramatic actor I ever saw."

tle...cleansing tissues...sanitary supplies. Why should one run to the kitchen or basement for that stuff?

"If one is doing a bathroom from scratch, I would not use the typical solution of installing a shower head in the tub. Some elderly persons might want to take a shower sitting down and even some of the one-piece molded plastic units have built-in seats and other built-in features. A hand shower also is extremely helpful.

The bathroom usually is the first place people go in the morning and the last place they go at night, he points out. If it is cheerful and it works, it can be a pleasant way to start the day. We should want to bathe and enjoy it. Soaping, lathering and scrubbing serve useful massage purposes as well as removing dirt. They can improve blood circulation, nourish the skin and help maintain muscle tone.

Lighting is important to the whole scheme and good light is particularly necessary if one has failing eyesight. Older people may need to adjust contact lenses - some may have cataracts and need special mirrors.

The floor should be considered, not only as a matter of safety; it can be made warmer with bath mats. And every bathroom should have a night light or night switch.

"People often spend a good deal of money in bath boutiques and what they are doing usually is decorating the bathroom after the builder has left," Kira says. "They buy additional bath racks, mirrors, trays, special holders, whereas many of the necessary items could have been built in. They succeed only in having a good deal of clutter that doesn't really solve their problems.

"It is like applying a little adhesive bandage to a bad cut. Real luxury should be something that works. You need a place for your hair blower, water pick, toiletries, and any number of other things necessary to personal comfort."

Kira is particularly concerned with the plight of many older persons who live in rent-controlled apartments with antiquated bathroom facilities. Landlords simply won't spend the money to remodel these buildings. Sometimes it costs a little more to get the proper fixtures, but such things are not really expensive, he maintains. It is just a matter "of using your wits" when you put the bathroom package together.

"You can go to a discount place and buy the whole works - tub, lavatory and toilet for maybe $100, even though you can also spend $600 for a bathtub if you can afford it," Kira remarked.

Swede attacks nationalism at Winter Olympics

INNSBRUCK AP- Outside, the 12th Winter Olympic Games were winding down their carnival of ice and snow. Inside, a tall Swede with a flowing yellow mustache sipped from a beer stein at a corner table and pondered the worth of it all.

"Medal ceremonies, anthems, national aggrandizement-- what does it mean," he commented in a solemn tone. "It is like a page from pagan Rome. The gladiator must spear the lion. The lion must devour the Christian. The spectators scream for blood."

The man picked up an Austrian paper and read a small dispatch from Moscow: "The Moscow newspaper Sovietsky said the Soviet medal harvest reaffirms the indisputable advantages of the socialist system of physical education."

Sports and ideology

"Look at it," he said. "This big country stakes its ideology on the waxing of its skis and the razor-like blade of its skates."

"There is a little girl of 12 wearing the hammer and sickle of the USSR. Already she is aged beyond her years, surrounded by coaches, trainers, and officials. She should be playing hopscotch or skipping rope with her young friends. Instead, she is a prisoner of a system. She will never know a childhood."

The poor man's philosopher from Scandinavia recalled an American report that U.S. athletes were disturbed because their bland informal attire was not as magnificent as Russia's sumptuous furs.

"Now," he said with a bewildered shrug, "another great nation measures its magnificence by the thread of its hat folly. Are we, after all, peacocks? Or are we sportsmen? Isn't it the Bible which says, 'Pride goeth before a fall'?"

The mustachioed Swede reached across the table for a biscuit and a slice of cheese.

Financial considerations

"In your country, the president appoints a commission to study Olympic sports," he continued. "Maybe he spends a million dollars, maybe less. Yet I read so many men are out of work. So many people don't have good houses or enough food.

"Is it so important that you must win more medals than your political enemies? What has happened to sport? Why cannot men contend against each other in good humor and without bitterness?"

The man took a pencil and drew two sharp lines on the tablecloth.

"This is the East," he said. "The Soviet Union, East Germany, the satellites, Socialist republics. Sport is very important to them. It is a great propaganda weapon. The rationale is: If a man can run the fastest, throw the farthest, skate the best, then he is best qualified to cure a people's ills."

"What rubbish. It is actually a means of keeping a people under thumb of the government, building pride on muscle and speed, still giving them little chance to breathe free."

Fantasyland of sports

The big man from the roof of Europe was not ready to let the western world-Britain, France, Austria, the United States, and Canada, the free democracies-escape his edged analysis.

"The West-they are bad, too," he continued. "Sports, to them is a fantasyland. It is like Disneyland. Sports are an opiate. People wrap themselves into sports and close their eyes to all the social evils that confront them."

"They don't want to know about injustices. They shut their minds to their poverty, their bias, their failure to meet modern problems head-on. It is like being on drugs."

"It is indeed a tragedy. They spend billions for sports, create idols, pay athletes fortunes of kings. Sports are wonderful in their proper framework. But what of housing, schools, food, greater opportunities for blacks and the impoverished."

He looked at a man's Olympic press tag.

"And you," he added, "you help grease the wheels. It is the media which creates these sporting giants. They are really figments of our imagination. They are unreal fantasies. But we made them. Now we must live with them."

Marijuana has 'clean bill of health'

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The government says marijuana still be given a "clean bill of health," but a new report issued Tuesday concludes research is turning up promising new medical uses for the drugs.

The report said that in some instances where in alcohol is considered harmful--such as driving--the same is true of marijuana. And the two together may be more harmful than either alone.

The fifth annual "Marijuana and Health" report to Congress said pot smoking "poses significant hazards" for drivers, pilots and factory workers if their psychomotor performances is impaired.

Research conducted since last year's report failed to support the concern that chronic marijuana use leads to genetic damage, lower fertility rates or more serious impotence problems, the report said. Results at this time are inconclusive on those points, it said, because studies involved small numbers of persons and would not detect rare adverse reactions.

On the plus side, the report said marijuana or some of its chemical constituents may eventually have some value in treating glaucoma, cancer and asthma patients.

Marijuana has had a demonstrated value in reducing internal eye pressure in glaucoma patients, relieving vomiting in cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy, and dilating pulmonary air passages in asthmatics.

Eventual medical applications are likely to use synthetic compounds, however, and some problems are anticipated because chronic use appears to develop a tolerance to marijuana, it said.

Kelley warns against restrictive FBI guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) - FBI Director Clarence Kelley said Wednesday that too much restrictive legislation over the agency's domestic intelligence activities may hamper its ability to investigate terrorist groups in the future.

Kelley, in testimony to a House Judiciary subcommittee, said he endorses FBI guidelines proposed by the Justice Department, but added that restrictions should not go too far.

"I want to emphasize that these domestic intelligence investigations are not undertaken for the purpose of collecting information on those who hold unpopular or controversial political views," Kelley said.

"Their focus is on conduct, not ideas - conduct that involves or is likely to involve a violation of federal law," he noted.

The proposed FBI guidelines prohibit the commission or instigation by the FBI of criminal acts; the dissemination of information for the purpose of holding an individual or group up to scorn, ridicule, or disgrace; the dissemination of information anonymously or under false identity; and the incitement of violence.

Kelley stressed that domestic security cases are undertaken primarily to thwart illegal activities, not to prosecute.

"As a consequence, intelligence work involves the gathering of information, not necessary evidence. The purpose is to insure the government has enough information at its disposal to either frustrate or minimize the consequences of the intended harm," he said.

"If we are to accomplish these objectives, the FBI must initiate the investigation in advance of the crime," Kelley declared.

He said terrorist acts are growing in the United States. In fact, Kelley said, four recently published issues of the Weather Underground's newsletter contained this threat for the Bicentennial: "The rulers have set the time for the party; let us bring the fireworks."

In that light, Kelley asked, "what would you have us do about the presence of revolutionary organizations in our society?"

"Should they be totally ignored on the premise that somehow government will receive an adequate warning that violence is imminent and will be able to take the necessary measures to prevent the crime or at least to minimize its consequences?" he said.

Subcommittee member Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., announced at the hearing he is filing a House resolution asking for rejection of the proposed FBI guidelines on grounds they are not tough enough.

Guatemala tourist trade to resume despite quake

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) - The government said Wednesday it plans to have Guatemala's tourist trade back in full swing in two months, despite the ravages of the earthquake and aftershocks that killed an estimated 17,000 and left one-sixth of the population homeless.

Guatemala Tourist Institute director Jose Senn Bonilla told a news conference that most of the centuries old Maya ruins are largely undamaged.

"We are doing everything possible to return to normality," he said.

Two months of repairs

He said it would take two months to repair some of the damage, principally to the main hotels in Guatemala City.

Most of the luxury hotels in the Guatemalan capital of 1-1/2 million people underwent extensive superficial damage, but their structures were not affected and they can easily be repaired, Bonilla said.

He said a large part of the damage was windowpanes and pipes shattered by the heavy vibrations unleashed by the earthquake and after-tremors. The smaller hotels which cater to the Central American tourist trade suffered much less damage "and practically have not interrupted their services."

Crisp swing-like weather and the archaeological remains, some of the foremost in Latin America and renowned worldwide, are the two main tourist attractions of this mountainous Central American nation of six million people.

An estimated 412,000 tourists visit Guatemala every year, 114,000 of them Americans. The State Department estimated there were 5,000 U.S. citizens in the country, counting visitors and residents, when the earthquake hit before dawn Feb. 4

Tourist trade revenue

The tourist trade earned Guatemala $85 million last year, making it this country's largest single source of revenue after coffee which netted approximately $130 million.

Authorities said the biggest immediate problem for restoring the tourist trade as well as bringing life back to normal is clearing the roads of landslide. Rocks and debris from mountainsides have cut the country's major thoroughfares.

A 20-man road construction team due in from tourist-conscious Mexico, Guatemala's neighbor to the north, is expected to speed up the work. The United States also has expert teams helping open up the roads.

California's Jerry Brown

Unorthodox governor wins wide voter support

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP - Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is winning broad public approval in California with an unorthodox politics of pessimism and a rejection of the traditional of governors.

Brown's message is that things are getting worse every day, and that he can't do much about it. He says he's trying to make people face reality, reject a preoccupation with material possessions and work harder to get less in return.

His style is described even by some friends and supporters as abrasive and brusque. For call him arrogant, calculating and cold.

The 37-year-old Democrat known as Jerry, has scrapped gubernatorial protocol, angered state and national leaders of his party and made himself a symbol of antipolitics, 1975 style.

He rejected the mansion, limousines and executive jet that go with the job. His personal schedule is chaotic. His working hours are long and unpredictable. He makes few promises for speeches or appointments with more than a day's notice.

But Brown likes to drop in unannounced at public events or in state offices. And telephone calls from the governor at midnight - or even 2 a.m. - are reported by people involved in issues that catch Brown's personal attention.

Brown has stunned the liberals who helped elect him last with a tighter budget than his conservative Republican predecessor, Ronald Reagan. And he has annoyed conservatives by giving top state jobs to people they consider ultra-liberal or radical.

But after just a few months in office, the intense, serious-minded bachelor is enjoying the greatest personal popularity of any California governor in modern times.

Several national publications and columnists now are touting him as a dark horse democratic candidate for president in 1976. That's a role Brown says he is not thinking about. Still, he does not reject it either.

But last November, Brown was elected governor by the narrowest margin in generations-just 2.3 per cent.

He was front-runner from the day he entered the race, due largely to name identification with his father, Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, who was governor from 1959 through 1966.

By avoiding controversial stands, Brown lost his commanding lead in ploys. He squeaked through to a 178,694-vote victory in a state in which Democrats have a 2.1-million voter registration edge.

But as governor, Brown quickly struck out to make his own mark, different from his father's.

The father is an amiable, handshaking politician who advocated progress, growth and new programs.

The son is aloof, disdainful of much of the politics he grew up with.

The younger Brown says many of the social programs liberals supported in the last decade have failed and should be abandoned.

"We have got to learn you don't solve a problem just by throwing money at it," he says.

And maybe some problems can't be solved at all, he adds.

"Lower your expectations of what government can do for you," Brown said. "Lower your expectations about more of the kind of never-ending accumulation of possessions people have gotten used to."

"I don't offer a great promise of a rosy tomorrow. I think we're going to have to work very hard just to stay where we are."

As governor, Brown has pursued a mix of conservative and liberal goals.

He joined Democrats in control of the state legislature to enact liberal programs which had been stalled in the Reagan years.

They reduced marijuana penalties, repealed laws against homosexuals, plugged so-called tax loopholes for business and extended unemployment benefits to farm workers.

But Brown's top priority was a pledge there would be no general new tax increase. He also supported and signed legislation for mandatory prison terms. He attacked state bureaucracy in terms reminiscent of Reagan's most severe criticism of big government.

cent of Reagan's most severe criticism of big government.

Brown's state budget grew by only 6 per cent compared with an average 12.2 per cent annual increase in the Reagan years.

He set a dozen legislative goals for his first year in his inaugural address and achieved 11, including a landmark farm labor election measure.

Paterno and Irish bomb Villanova

by Rich Odioso

Like Lon Chaney in "The Mummy's Revenge," Bill Paterno returned from the netherworld last night and wrecked havoc on an unwary opponent. Digger Phelps took the wraps off the Blond Bomber for his longest playing stint of the season (34 minutes) and Paterno responded with a nearly faultless performance as the Irish entombed Villanova 84-57 in a satisfying, albeit unspectacular, game at the ACC last night.

"Everyone has some good nights," shrugged Paterno afterward following his 14 point, four assist and four blocked shot effort. "Digger kept me in there after the ten minute mark and I really got in the flow of the game. I was really tired near the end but since I was playing well, it got the adrenalin pumping to hang in there."

"On a couple of the shot blocks I was lucky. They beat me on the baseline and I had to recover. If I'd fouled those guys instead it would be a different story."

Paterno's picture shot has been in-and-out all season but it shows signs of returning to its once magnificent form after his seven for nine display of last night.

Paterno played the entire second half at forward, a position he played his first two years at Notre Dame. "I suppose I'd rather play forward but actually I haven't really been playing guard all season but more of a swing position," he explained. "I feel I'm quicker than a lot of forwards. I've really been working on my guard play this year and my ball-handling has improved a lot, although I'm still a long way from Duck and Dice. My quickness in comparison to the Villanova forwards really helped tonight.

Phelps praised Paterno's play but didn't indicate whether Apple would be at forward more in future games. "Whether Billy plays forward depends on the situation," he said.

On the other hand the Villanova zone that opened the door for Paterno frustrated Irish All-American Adrian Dantley. A.D. was held to only four shots and two points in the first half. Dantley recovered to score after intermission and finish with 18 points, good for team honors for the 20th straight time this season.

"They did a good defensive job," Dantley explained afterward.

"They sagged some on me and kept forcing the ball to the left. That set up Bill and Duck and they came through. As long as we win the game it's okay with me." A.D. finished 5 of 13 from the field and 8 of 9 from the line.

It was Dantley who pumped in eight points in the opening five minutes of the second half as the Irish pulled away quickly from a 34-27 score at the half. Paterno and Duck Williams then took over as the Irish burst to a 20-point lead.

Two fine passes from Paterno to Dantley foiled a Villanova comeback bid as the Irish pulled away down the stretch.

Digger was pleased afterwards with the Irish defensive effort which limited the Wildcats to 57 points, the fewest Notre Dame has allowed so far this season. "We continued the intensity and pressure we showed in the first half into the second," he said. "Our big men had some foul trouble inside but otherwise I was very pleased. We've got to keep working on defense."

"We're a little tired," he continued. "We need a break. We're going to take off tomorrow. We've been preparing for games for two straight weeks. We will come back strong on Friday to prepare for West Virginia."

The Irish broke to an early lead using balanced scoring to move in front 25-12. Notre Dame was lethargic for the next couple of minutes allowing the Wildcats, behind Reggie Robinson, to close to 28-25 with two minutes remaining. Dantley returned to the lineup at that point and Notre Dame outscored Villanova 6-2 the rest of the half to take the seven point halftime lead.

Villanova quickly fell out of the game early in the second half but Phelps sounded a word about the Wildcats. "That was a fine young team. They are a lot better with Larry Herron in the lineup." Herron, Villanova's second leading scorer, missed the contest with a sprained wrist. "We play them next year in Philadelphia and it will be a lot tougher," asserted Phelps.

IRISH ITEMS -

Notre Dame won the battle of the boards for the 20th straight time 40-26. Dantley topped the Irish with seven caroms...Toby Knight fouled out after playing 13 minutes...Notre Dame finished with 33 of 60 from the floor for .550...Keith Herron topped the Wildcats with 19 points while Reggie Robinson added 16... The Irish conclude the four game homestand Saturday at 1 P.M., hosting West Virginia...Notre Dame is now 16-4 while Villanova goes to 13-6.

Getting psyched for ND hockey

by Paul Hess

Pep rallies are, and always have been, an integral part of the Notre Dame mystique. Since the days of Knute Rockne and the Irish emergence as an athletic power to be reckoned with, the traditional Friday night psyche sessions have become as much a part of The Football Weekend as the game itself. More recently, with the arrival of Digger Phelps to the basketball scene and the subsequent rise of Notre Dame roundball prowess, the pep rally's scope has been broadened to include the more pivotal basketball games, a la UCLA and Maryland.

Two weeks ago, Coach Phelps consistently, often vehemently extolled the virtues of the Notre Dame Student Spirit. "you've gotta do it for us...you've gotta make things happen," he excitedly proclaimed on the eve of the annual UCLA upset. "This is your game," he concluded, and he was right.

Unfortunately, there is no such hoopla surrounding the crucial hockey games. In fact, many die-hard Irish football and basketball addicts readily admit to never having seen a Notre Dame hockey game. Their reasons range from "I just don't like hockey" (having never been to a game, it's hard to figure how they'd know) to "I can't afford it" (student ticket prices are admittedly exorbitant at a buck and a half, or somewhat less than a pitcher of beer at Corby's) to "I've gotta study" (on Friday night?). At any rate, whatever the reason, it is all too easily apparent that the vast majority of students just don't support hockey as they could, or perhaps they should.

Nonetheless, there is cause for enthusiasm as this weekend approaches and, for once, it appears as if the long dormant student body is at last taking notice of its ices. Which brings us to the subject at hand--the pep rally. For on Friday night at 7:30, Coach Lefty Smith's crew of hopefuls takes to the ice for the opener of a two game series with the nation's #1 team, the Michigan Tech Huskies. And an hour earlier, outside of Gate 3, the traditional frenzy that precedes basketball and football games will become a part of the hockey scene for the first time ever. Ernie Torriero, Sports Information Department Student Assistant supreme, is the catalyst of this latest innovation in delirium, and Indefatigable Italian promises a good time for all. And, as Lefty is quick to point out, student support is important, even vital. "It really means a lot to the players having their peers there," he says, candidly.

At present, Notre Dame is in fifth place in the perennially tough WCHA, the nation's #1 collegiate conference, likened by Smith to college basketball's ACC. A look at the standings clearly illustrates his point--from first place (Tech) to sixth (Colorado College) there is a difference of only seven points, / or three and a half games for you baseball fans. There are eight games left in the regular season for the Irish, the upcoming six at home, and Lefty's goal right now is to win five of those next six.

The task is a mammoth one to say the least, as #2 ranked Michigan State invades the Irish lair next week, but Smith feels that his troops are up to the challenge. In preparation, he took them to Ohio Tuesday night for what might be called a "warm-up" against a less highly rated team--#3 ranked Bowling Green. They came home with a 5-4 overtime victory and "showed a lot of character," as Lefty puts it, winning despite the absence of three regulars.

The stage is set, so to speak. Not it remains to be seen if the students will "show their character" tomorrow night. "We'd really appreciate all the help we can get," the coach anxiously concludes in a Phelpsian appeal for student support. He, like his basketball counterpart, believes in the students as much as his players. It's up to us not to let him down.

Irish track team on road again

For the third week in a row, the Notre Dame track team takes to the road as they travel to West Lafayette Friday for the Indiana Big State Meet. Slated to get underway at 6:00 p.m., the meet will feature Indiana, Indiana State, Purdue and Ball State along with the Irish.

This past weekend, Notre Dame coach Joe Piane and his thinclads journeyed to East Lansing for the Michigan State Relays. A number of Irish competitors left their mark among the field which included some of the best in the midwest. Jay Miranda, a standout freshman middle-distance runner, placed third in the 1,000-yard run. His time of 2:13 was only two-tenths of a second off the winning time. The distance medley quartet of Bill Allmendinger led off the race for the Irish, running the half-mile in the excellent time of 1:54.5. Another victory for Notre Dame came in their heat of the mile relay which they won in a time of 3:24.4. Members of the medley crew were Chris Haines, Jim O'Brien, Chuck Wills and Joe Nicholson.

Saturday's meet will also present a strong contingent of athletes including Rich Hyatt of Indiana in the 1,000-yard run and teammate Steve Heidenreich a sub-four-minute miler. Notre Dame's prospects for victory have been bolstered by the return of distance man Dennis Vanderkraats and shot thrower Mike Meyer.

On Saturday, a two-mile relay team of Miranda, Allmendinger, Yates and Reinhart will travel to Cleveland for the Knights of Columbus meet.

ND wrestlers lose to W. Michigan

The Notre Dame wrestling team was defeated yesterday by Mid-American Conference rival Western Michigan. The Broncos tallied seven decisions, one of them a five-point superior decision, in registering their 25-11 victory.

For the Irish, only Pat McKillen at 150 and Bob Golic at heavy-weight were winners by of a decision and pin respectively. McKillen's win raises his record to 13-3-1 on the season, while Golic remains unbeaten in nine matches.

Joe Pszeracki was responsible for the other Irish points, as he and his Western Michigan opponent battled to a draw.

The Irish, now 4-13 in dual meets, will be on the road this weekend as they will travel to Illinois State University for a tri-meet with Illinois State and Indiana State Universities. The Irish will be in action at home, next Wednesday, February 18th, when National Catholic Champion John Carroll University comes to the A.C.C. in a 7:30 p.m. start.
