

The Observer

VOL. XIII, NO. 85

an independent student newspaper serving notre dame and saint mary's

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1979

Food sales encounter operation dilemmas

Editor's note: This is the final segment in a three-part series dealing with campus food sales. Today's article deals with some of the problems which operator's face.

by John McGrath
Senior Staff Reporter

Although they are usually taken for granted, campus food sales operations require much the same attention and responsibility of larger companies--and encounter many of the same problems.

Most food sales are small operations, with an average of two to five employees and a semester's income of approximately $500 or $600. However, some of the larger operations employ over 20 people and take in thousands of dollars each semester.

Some of the biggest problems that food sales operations incur are employee relations, theft, competition, and supply difficulties.

Flanner Food Sales is one of the biggest outlets on campus with a staff of 25 employees. The manager and employees are on fixed salaries with Tony Roberts receiving $45 each week. His workers get $2.25 an hour.

Grace Food Sales appears to be the profit leader among campus operations, however. Grace reported a net profit of approximately $3200 last semester, according to Joe Sherer, one of the three partners in the management group.

Grace, which employs about 17 non-supervisory personnel, splits its profits with the hall, with 60 percent going to the dorm for hall activities.

Sherer explained that his management group utilizes two pay scales. "The guys who work from 6 to 12 get two dollars an hour, and the cooks who work from around 10:30 to midnight get three dollars," he explained.

Morrissey Hall, which made $1400 last semester after paying its rental fee, employs eight workers at $2.20 an hour, while Dillon Food Sales Manager John Peak, who made over $1000 last semester after paying his rent, pays $2.75 an hour to his 10 employees.

Keenan's food sales, known as "Zaland," pays its 13 employees six dollars a night, in addition to one pizza to be split up among the usual three-man crew and one soda for each worker.

At some outlets, thefts are cutting into the profits. Sorin Food Sales manager Nick Zagotta reports that his operation has been experiencing problems for the last three months.

"It (thefts) hurt us to the tune of $100 since Christmas, but we've solved the problems by putting new padlocks on the doors," Zagotta said.

He explained that some students had gotten a pass key and

[continued on page 16]

Longing for the warmth of the summer sun is only in vain during the long, cold, South Bend winter. [photo by Bob Gill]

In Pinto tragedy

Judge denies Ford's appeal

Elkhart, Ind. (AP)- An Indiana judge refused yesterday to allow a pre-trial appeal of Ford Motor Co.'s indictment on criminal charges stemming from a fiery, triple-fatality Pinto automobile crash.

The decision by Elkhart Superior Court Judge Donald W. Jones means the case, representing the first criminal action against an automaker in a defects case, could come to trial

After Jones issued his ruling on the pre-trial appeal, Ford waived formal arraignment and pleaded innocent to the three counts of reckless homicide.

Ford attorney Richard Steinebrown also said he will file a motion within the next 10 days to move the trial out of Elkhart County because of what he called enormous publicity about the case. The trial still would be held in Indiana, possibly in a county adjoining Elkhart.

The indictment, returned by a superior court grand jury last September, charged the automaker with recklessly designing the Pinto fuel tanks. It stemmed from the Aug. 10 deaths of three teen-age women when their 1973 Pinto Sedan exploded in flames after being hit from behind by a van that police said was traveling 50 MPH on a Northern Indiana highway.

The car was among 1.5 million Pinto and Mercury Bobcat sedans made between 1971 and 1976 that Ford announced in June were being recalled because of government tests showing the fuel tanks leaked large amounts of fuel in moderate-speed crashes. The modification had yet to be mailed when the Indiana accident happened.

Jones earlier this month denied a Ford motion to dismiss the charges.

The Judge's approval for review of that decision by the Indiana Court of Appeals was needed because such appeals are normally filed after the trial. Ford argued that it could suffer severe and irreparable damage to its reputation if the case went to trial and the indictment later was determined to be invalid.

At a five-minute hearing yesterday, Jones said he was denying an appeal at this stage because it conceivable could be carried all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, delaying the trial for up to two years.

From chaotic Iran

US readies for massive airlift

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - The United States readied helicopters and big jets yesterday for a massive airlift of thousands of Americans from Iran, where anti-Americanism is running high and the anti-shah revolutionary alliance is splintering into hostile factions.

Bloody fighting raged for the third straight day in the northwest city of Tabriz, where hundreds were reported killed. Unconfirmed reports said rebels seeking local autonomy were battling forces of the provisional government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

In Tehran, Marxist gunmen attacked an apartment building where they said agents of SAVAK, the shah's secret service were holding out. These "urban guerrillas" have rejected Khomeini's call to turn in their arms, distributed or stolen during last weekend's bloody climax to the year-long anti-shah campaign.

Some radicals have denounced the makeup of the 5-day-old government as not sufficiently leftist.

As the 78-year-old Moslem holy man Khomeini struggled to restore law and order in Iran, the monarch he forced out of the country, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, moved from one guest house in Morocco to another, a possible sign he is ready for a long stay abroad.

"We cannot protect American lives in Iran," said the U.S. Embassy's announcement of the evacuation. "You are allowed one suitcase per person. Evacuation planes will begin flying February 17."

The announcement came one day after scores of guerrillas stormed the embassy compound and briefly held 102 Americans hostage.

The Khomeini camp, whose fighters rescued the Americans, identified the attackers as communists and rightists trying to discredit the new regime. Some of the guerrillas described themselves as communists.

There are believed to be 7,000 Americans left in Iran, down from a peak of about 45,000 one year ago. U.S. officials hope to reduce the number to about 2,000 with the evacuation.

Those expected to remain include skeletal staffs at the embassy and at some corporate headquarters, about 100 American journalists and many Americans married to Iranians.

Nehdi Bazargan, prime minister of the Khomeini government, directed that evacuees be given safe passage to Tehran's Mehrabad International Airport and sufficient guards for the movement of 1,000 persons a day.

Turkey gave permission to the United States to send five big helicopters, and six C-130 transport planes to an air base at Incirlik, southern Turkey, for possible use in the evacuation. Two other U.S. transports were standing by in Athens, Greece.

But U.S. officials in Washington said these would be used only in an emergency. The evacuation will begin Saturday with at least two chartered Pan American World Airways jetliners that each can carry about 400 people, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

Khomeini guerrillas invaded the Moroccan Embassy and searched the residence of Ambassador El Ghali Benhima, looking for SAVAK agents. Benhima said none was found and no one was hurt.

Carnival attendance up; revenues down $1000

by John Calcutt
Executive Editor

While Mardi Gras attendance has increased so far this year, carnival revenues have lagged behind last year's totals by $1000, according to John Mc Austin, 1979 Mardi Gras Chairman.

"Attendance is up this year," McAustin commented, "but our revenues are a little down this year. So we're hoping for a big turnout this weekend."

Notre Dame's winter carnival of chance will open tonight at 6 p.m. and close at 2 a.m. The doors will open tomorrow, the last day of Mardi Gras, at 2 p.m. and close at 2 a.m.

At midnight on Saturday, Fr Theodore Hesburgh, Notre Dame's president, will draw two raffle tickets to determine the winners of the 1979 Oldsmobile Cutless Supreme (grand prize) and the 1979 Olds Starfire SX (seller's prize).

Raffle chairman Rosemary Serpent commented, "We've raised close to $18,000 this year, and

[continued on page 16]

'Angry' Carter orders report on ambassador's death

WASHINGTON [AP]-The State Department, acting on the orders of a "very angry" President Carter, wants a full report from the Soviet Union on the "actions by the Soviet advisers involved in" the death of the U.S. ambassador to Afghanistan. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter disclosed Wednesday that Soviet advisers were at the scene of violence in Afghanistan earlier in the day which claimed the life of Ambassador Adolph "Spike" Dubs. "We are angry and upset," said spokesman Carter.

US Justice Department announces Flood retrial

WASHINGTON [AP]-The Justice Department announced yesterday that it will seek to re-try Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., on bribery and perjury charges. Flood's first trial ended in an hung jury on Feb. 3. According to jurors, only one member of the jury held out for acquittal on all 11 counts. The Justice Department said it had notified Flood's lawyer, Axel Kleiboemer. Justice Department spokesman Terry Adamson said that the decision to seek a new trial was not related to a jury-tampering investigation in the case. The lone juror who held out for acquittal, William Cash, had claimed he received confidential information in the case, according to reports from other jurors. Cash later said his claim to have information favorable to Flood from a secret source was "all a joke."

Weather

Travelers advisory this morning. Windy and bitter cold with a slight chance of snow flurries today. Considerable blowing and drifting of snow is likely. Locally heavy snow possible just south and southwest of Lake Michigan. Steady or slowly falling temperatures. Clearing and very cold with diminishing winds tonight. Lows around 10 below. Mostly sunny and cold tomorrow with highs near 10 above.

Campus

Friday, February 16, 1979

3:30 pm--LECTURE, "ockham: divine ideas & God's knowledge," prof. marilyn mccord adams, ucla 715 MEM. LIB.

4:30 pm--MASS, for fr. laurence broestl, c.s.c., DILLON CHAPEL, celebrant fr. hesburgh

5:15 pm--MASS AND DINNER, at the BULLA SHED

6 pm--2 am--MARDI GRAS, featuring jaimie goodrich, mark davis, and "smith & co." STEPAN CENTER

7:30 pm--HOCKEY, nd vs. minnesota, ACC

8 pm--SHOW, ice capades, ACC

8:30 pm--DANCE, "an evening of dance," O'LAUGHLIN AUD., sponsored by nd/smc speech & drama dept.

Saturday, February 17, 1979

10 am--CLINIC, organizational meeting and demonstration clinic for cheerleading tryouts, ACC PIT

11 am--SEMINAR, "family & community in nueces: rural catholics in south texas, 1880-1930," prof. josef barton, northwestern u., 600 MEM. LIB.

2 pm--2 am--MARDI GRAS featuring, "smokey joe" and "the waifs & strays," STEPAN CENTER

7:30 pm--HOCKEY, nd. vs. minnesota, ACC

8 pm--SHOW, ice capades, ACC

8 pm--FILM, "hiroshima mon amour," ENG. AUD.

8:30 pm--DANCE, "an evening of dance," O'LAUGHLIN AUD.

Sunday, February 18, 1979

1 pm--MEETING, nd chess club, LAFORTUNE RATHSKELLAR

2 pm--YOUNG PEOPLE'S RECITAL, LIBRARY AUD.

8 pm--CONCERT, goshen college orchestra, O'LAUGHLIN AUD.

US, Taiwan relations to continue through private corporations

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP)- Taiwan will go along with U.S. plans to handle relations between the countries through private corporations, officials announced yesterday. But they stressed their corporation will have close government ties.

James Soong, director of Taiwan's information office, announced that Taiwan was creating the Coordination Council for North American Affairs to act as the "counterpart to the American Institute in Taiwan."

Washington established the institute to handle American interests in Taiwan after it broke diplomatic relations with Nationalist China and established ties with Communist China on Jan. 1.

Soong said the Taiwan council will have the "qualities of officiality" and that all treaties and agreements with the United States "will remain in full force."

Washington, however, has said it will continue all pacts except for the 1953 mutual defense treaty which will be terminated next year.

Government sources said Taiwan intends to appoint the council members, give them government pensions and support council activities with government funds.

Soong released a statement from Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Ching-Kuo, who said that "reality requires that this time-honored and extremely close relationship be perpetuated, so we must swallow the bitter and handle the situation with all the fortitude at our command."

Chiang, the eldest son of the late President Chiang Kai-shek, said he was deeply moved by "the voice of justice persistently heard in the U.S. Congress and among the multitudes of the American people. This voice has given us warm sympathy and support...and has at the same time indicated that justice still prevails."

He said Taiwan's "fundamental policy of anti-Communism and national recovery will never be changed."

Taiwan had balked at using private organizations to handle its affairs, and had asked that relations remain on a governmental level. But U.S. officials said they could not retain diplomatic ties with Taiwan as long as the United States recognized Peking as the sole representative of China.

The Nationalists, who have refused to deal with Communist China, established their government on the island of Taiwan, in 1949 after they were routed from the mainland by Communist troops. The Nationalists have continued to claim to represent the mainland.

Soong said Tsai Wei-Ping, the director of Taiwan's International Relations Institute, has been appointed chairman of the council. Tsai, 67, has served as Taiwan's vice foreign minister, ambassador to New Zealand and as head of the foreign ministry's department of North American affairs.

Fr. Hesburgh to celebrate Broestl Mass

There will be a special memorial Mass for Fr. Laurence Broestl at 4:30 p.m. in Dillon chapel.

Fr. Theodore Hesburgh will be the principal celebrant, and Fr. Ferdinand Brown will preach the homily. This will provide an opportunity for the many friends of Broestl (students, faculty, staff) to prayerfully gather in his honor.

Broestl taught German for many years at Notre Dame. Even after attaining emeritus status in 1974 and after he became ill with cancer he continued to teach and was scheduled for a five-hour-a-week class this semester.

He directed the Innsbruck program on two occasions, and was director of all the university's programs of study abroad from 1968 to 1975. Much respected by students, he was rector of Dillon hall for many years.

The Observer

Night Editor: Scoop Sullivan
Asst. Night Editor: Pam Degnan, Beth Huffman
Copy Readers: Tim Joyce, Phil Cackley
Layout Staff: Mary Jo Holland, Lynn Tyler
Editorial Layout: Rod Beard, Chris Stewart Tina Terlaak
Sports Layout: Mark Perry
Typists: Mardi Nevin, Mark Perry, Mary Campbell, Lisa DiValerio, Paula Vernon
EMT's: Katie Brehl, Mary McCauley
Day Editor: Keith melaragno
Ad Layout: Sue Johnston, Chris Slatt
Photographer: Bob Gill

The Observer (USPS 598 920) is published Monday through Friday except during exam and vacation periods. The Observer is published by the students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $20 per year ($10 per semester) from The Observer, P.O. box Q, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556. Second class postage paid, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556.
The Observer is a member of the Associated Press. All reproduction rights are reserved.

Sunday Masses

Sacred Heart Church

5:15 p.m. Saturday
9:15 a.m. Sunday
10:30 a.m. Sunday
12:15 p.m. Sunday

Rev. Robert Griffin, C.S.C.
Rev. John VanWolfe, C.S.C.
Rev. Francis T. Cafarelli, C.S.C.
Rev. William Toohey, C.S.C.

7:15 p.m. Vespers

Rev. Francis T. Cafarelli, C.S.C.

Come to the AN TOSTAL committee meeting

7:00 pm Sunday

Little Theatre in Lafortune

Everybody Welcome

Indiana sets deadline for passage of ERA

INDIANAPOLIS [AP] - Indiana's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment would be invalidated March 22 under a plan adopted yesterday by the state Senate.

The resolution, approved on a 29-21 vote, would declare Indiana's ratification null and void if ERA is not part of the federal constitution by March 22, the end of the original seven-year deadline for its approval.

Three more states must endorse ERA for it to become part of the constitution and supporters say there is no chance of that this year.

The Senate vote was along party lines with two exceptions. Sen. James R. Harris, R-Evansville, joined Democrats voting against the proposal and Sen. John Bushemi, D-Gary, joined Republicans to vote for it.

After the vote, Bushemi rushed to the microphone to say he had made a mistake, and had meant to vote no.

"I don't know whether to laugh about it or cry about it," said Bushemi, who added that his mind was distracted when he voted. "We must all stand for equal rights for all people."

Sponsoring Sen. Joan Gubbins, R-Indianapolis, said she proposed the resolution because last year Congress extended the ratification deadline until 1982.

Mrs. Gubbins, an ERA opponent, said, "Congress by extending the time limit for ratification has broken trust with the states. In Indiana, we believe a contract is a contract."

Sen. Julia Carson, D-Indianapolis, said she felt the resolution was a waste of time, because legal authorities generally feel a state has no right to rescind its ratification of a constitutional amendment.

"Frankly, I'm tired of coming back here year after year and having to discuss the Equal Rights Amendment," Ms. Carson said. "I think it is time for the legislature to be about the business of taking care of salient issues on the calendar and in committee."

"I do not believe when we talk about justice and equality that we can impose any time limit."

Harris, a co-sponsor of the ERA ratification resolution, said he felt that Mrs. Gubbins' proposal was an attempt to influence other states to vote down ERA or rescind their approval.

Sen. John Sinks, R-Fort Wayne, co-sponsor of the resolution with Mrs. Gubbins, said he added his name to the proposal because Congress changed the rules in the middle of the game.

"Wouldn't Bobby Knight or Bobby Leonard like those rules changes with one minute left?" Sinks asked. Knight is Indiana University Basketball coach and Leonard coaches the Indiana Pacers of the National Basketball Association.

The ERA proposal now goes to the House.

In other action, the Senate voted 30-13 in favor of a bill to require state agencies to prepare economic impact statements on rules and regulations.

Other bills approved and sent to the House would require public agencies to set aside parking spaces for the handicapped, and would permit Gary to require policemen and firemen to live within the city limits.

Senators voted down amendments to a bill that would return the nominations for governor and lieutenant governor to party conventions, repealing the direct primary election for those offices. The bill is now ready for a final vote.

In the House, a bill providing a $600 bonus to families of Indiana soldiers missing in action in Vietnam was cleared for a final vote.

In another area, tow workmen's compensation bills moved through the amendment stage and are now eligible for final action on the House floor. The measures raise the maximum average weekly raises used to compute disability benefits.

The House did not act on any of the 32 bills on the calendar for a final vote.

'Red Heads' to hold Sunday brunch

The Red Head League, a newly-formed group of persons with red hair, will hold a special brunch on Sunday at noon in the East wing of the South Dining Hall. The brunch is open to all red heads as well as anyone else who is interested.

Sunlight streams into Stanford Hall but to no avail as the temperatures remain frigid. [photo by Bob Gill]

In Alaskan pipeline

Reports deny US oil 'glut'

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite reports last year of a possible glut, oil flowing through the Alaska Pipeline has been allocated for U.S. use and cannot fill the gap created by the Iranian oil cutoff, industry analysts say.

"Every bit of Alaska oil that could be produced has been marketed. It's not sitting in tanks someplace," said Pitt Curtis, a spokesman for Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, which controls 53 percent of the oil reserves at Prudhoe Bay, the pipeline's northern end. "There never was a crude oil glut."

The pipeline, an $8 billion project, opened two years ago and is pumping 1.2 million barrels of crude oil a day into the lower 48 states, about 6 percent of U.S. consumption. By law, Alaska oil cannot be exported, except for small amounts to Canada and Mexico.

Oil from the North Slope flows through the pipeline to the Alaska port of Valdez and is shipped to points on the West Coast, where the supply far outpaces demand. This led to fears of an oil glut last summer.

Larry Goldstein, an economist at the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry group, said the term "glut" was misunderstood. "All it means is that the local market on the West Coast can't absorb all it gets, so you send it elsewhere."

The United States consumes about 20 million barrels of oil a day. About half that is produced domestically, including Alaska and offshore fields. About 45 percent comes from foreign countries other than Iran, mainly Saudi Arabia.

Experts say the cutoff of oil from Iran is potentially as serious as the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, especially if the flow of crude oil from Iran does not resume within several months.

The loss of Iran as a source of oil means a lack of reserve oil that might be used in case of an emergency--such as the oilfield fire in Saudi Arabia two years ago. Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary has likened the situation to a "dynamite train heading toward a fire down the tracks."

For further info
call Mitch 4487

Kings Cellar Inc. presents a cotton bowl victory party mardi gras celebration

all the beer you can drink

FREE!

entertainment donation requested

All Welcome!

holiday inn US 31

main ballroom 8pm-2am feb. 16

a smitty production

CHOOSE AUGUSTA !

First mandatory meeting for hall lottery

Monday, Feb. 19 10 pm

in Augusta - bring ID

IMPORTANT open to juniors and seniors

contact students must also attend

DONT FORGET: other mandatory meetings -

Sat., Feb. 24 10 am

Sat., March 3 10 am

Indiana convict requests 'death appeal' withdrawal

MONTGOMERY, Ala. [AP] - A 29-year-old Indiana parolee and convicted slayer who said he wants to die, but agreed nevertheless to appeal his death sentence, is now asking his lawyer to drop the appeal, the attorney disclosed yesterday.

John Carroll of the Southern Poverty Law Center said the condemned man, John Louis Evans III, asked him to dismiss the appeal now pending before the U.S. Supreme Court and also to refrain from any other legal action on his behalf.

Carroll said he forwarded the request to the court but asked at the same time "for guidance." He said he has not heard from the court.

The attorney said he thought there might be ethical problems. He said it amounts to a defense attorney asking for a "meritorious" appeal to be withdrawn which could make the attorney an "instrument of death."

At the same time, he said, a lawyer has an obligation to represent his client in the manner in which the client wants to be presented.

The appeal not only seeks to spare Evans' life but also challenges Alabama's death sentence law.

Even in agreeing initially to the '...instrument of death...'

appeal, Evans, whose home is in Beaumont, Tex., still said he wanted to die rather than serve a life sentence.

But he said he was willing to contest the death sentence as a possible means of forcing the state to abandon the electric chair and choose another method of execution.

First the Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals and then the state Supreme Court upheld Evans' conviction, and he was scheduled to die last Aug. 4. But he was given a stay of execution pending a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Texan was convicted in April 1977 along with a co-defendant, Wayne Ritter, also a parolee from an Indiana prison, of killing a Mobile pawn shop owner, Eddie Nasser. The slaying occurred while Evans and Ritter were on a month-long crime spree.

Ritter also got the death sentence and he, too, has said he wants to die. His sentence is on appeal before the state Supreme Court, which is automatic under Alabama Law.

Another snowplow victim!! [Photo by Bob Gill]

Marine POW could face charges upon return to US

ADAMS, Ind. [AP] - Linda Garwood hasn't seen her brother since he left for Vietnam 14 years ago, but she says if he's coming home just to sit in prison, he shouldn't come home at all.

"He's been in prison long enough," the 19-year-old sister of U.S. Marine Pfc. Robert Russell Garwood said yesterday. "I don't think he should come home and face jail. I wouldn't."

Garwood, 33, of Greensburg, Ind., was captured in South Vietnam in 1965. The State Department, quoting other prisoners of war, said Garwood remained in Communist hands voluntarily.

A report from an unidentified foreign traveler indicated that Garwood, who has not been seen since his capture, wants to come home, the State Department said Wednesday.

U.S. Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., said a special House committee that he chaired in the last Congress had information that Garwood was a defector who led North Vietnamese units against American patrols and harassed American prisoners.

"Let's hope he does come back," Montgomery said at a news conference. "He should be but in jail."

Linda Garwood, who heard about Montgomery's comments from a television report, said she was furious about them.

"He (Montgomery) doesn't know (if Robert actually is a defector). He has no way of knowing," she said as she sorted through family pictures in the Garwood's mobile home in this tiny, eastern Indiana community. "I don't think he should say things like that if he's not for sure."

Linda, who was a fair-haired 5-year-old when her big brother was captured in Vietnam, admits she doesn't remember him well, but the memories she has are special ones.

"The last thing I remember of him was when he came home on leave after he joined up. He threw me up in the air and kissed me, and then he was gone again," she recalled.

Their parents were upset about reports that Robert might return, afraid to raise their hopes for what might turn out to be a false alarm, Linda said.

"Mom's pretty upset. She took it pretty hard. She's very emotional anyway. Dad kept saying it might not be him but just somebody using his tags," she said, adding, "But I think it's him. At least I hope it is."

Meanwhile, the Marine Corps announced yesterday in Washington that Garwood could collect $144,000 in back pay and allowances after returning to the United States.

The corps said Garwood will be entitled to such back benefits "unless it is determined that his conduct while in the hands of North Vietnam forces legally precludes such payment."

Garwood has been officially listed as a war prisoner since he disappeared on Sept. 28, 1965.

The Marine Corps said that "the assertion that...Garwood may have voluntarily remained in Vietnam raises substantial questions about the propriety of his actions."

It is said that information now available on Garwood's "live style" after disappearing from his unit in Da Nang "is sketchy, unconfirmed and not in a form suitable for release."

"The events subsequent to Garwood's disappearance are not known," the Marine Corps said. "Accordingly, no conclusions are warranted with respect to the allegation of desertion."

Garwood's brother, Donald, denied that Robert was a defector.

Garwood was private first class at the time of his capture and remains in that same rank, although other POWs were promoted while in captivity.

The Marine Corps gave no indication of action it intends to take after Garwood returns to U.S. soil.

"As the relevant facts have not been fully developed, it is premature to discuss legal options," the corps said.

"Garwood enlisted in the Marine Corps after reaching the 10th grade level in high school and had served in the corps for almost two years when he disappeared."

Jensen wins Playwrights Award

Julie Jensen, assistant professor of speech and drama at Saint Mary's, has been given the Indiana Playwrights Award of the Indiana Repertory Theatre, Indianapolis.

Her two winning plays, "Milkweed and Cockleburrs" and "Was Birds," will be produced by the professional acting company at the Indiana Repertory Theatre on Sunday.

"Milkweed and Cockleburrs" was co-authored by Mary Roberts and was seen last fall in South Bend at Vegetable Buddies. Miles Coiner, also a member of the Saint Mary's speech and drama department, was the director.

"Was Birds" has been published in the Red Cedar Review but has not been produced in this area.

Jensen has been granted a Faculty Research Award from Saint Mary's to study contemporary British theatre this summer in London. She earned her bachelor and master's degrees at Utah State University and her PhD. at Wayne State University, Detroit.

In 1971 and 1976 she was the winner of the Miles Modern Poetry Playwriting Award. For three years she was editor of Moving Out, a literary and arts journal and in 1976 was a grant recipient from the Michigan Council for the Arts. In 1974 she was resident playwright at the Ossabaw Island Artists Colony. Jensen joined the Saint Mary's faculty in 1977.

Pat Casey wins trip to Ireland

The Rugby team held its "Trip to Ireland" raffle Feb. 1 at Corby's. Pat Casey the brother of an N.D. student, won the trip.

Casey is from Long Island and will be spending his 16th birthday, March 17, in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Dublin, Ireland.

Watch:
The Secrets of Fatima
a 13 part T.V. series
9 AM
Sunday, Jan. 28 thru
Sunday April 22
WNDU-TV
Channel 16

Applications for Senior Bar Managers 1979-80

Any still interested in applying for Sr Bar Mgr for next school year

Please contact one of the following:

Mike Schlageter 1772

Ron Zoromski 3388

Pat Jordan 288-7733

Brian Mullins 288-2129

Arab leftists challenge Khomeini in Iran

TEHRAN Iran [AP]-

Well-organized leftists with ties to radical Arab groups are challenging the authority of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini less than a week after Khomeini's triumph over the Shah.

The leftists, including skilled guerilla fighters of the "People's Fedayeen," had joined with Moslem religious leader Khomeini in ending 2,500 years of royal rule in Iran. But now the leftists seek a greater role in the country than the religious leader apparently plans to give them.

Fedayeen fighters were among the armed civilians whose murderous fire from buildings and rooftops Saturday near Fakhraabad air base forced Imperial Guard troops to retreat and led to the army's capitulation.

Within days of the fall of the Shah-appointed government of Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar, speakers were exhorting crowds at Tehran University to oppose members of the Khomeini backed provisional government, to refuse Khomeini's call to turn in arms and to defy the religious leader's back-to-work order.

Young Marxists envisage a Socialist People's Republic of Iran, but without slavish ties to Moscow. Their literature promises a democracy in which men and women will be equal, a prospect appealing to some educated, Westernized women fearful of what a traditional Moslem state might mean for them.

Khomeini still commands the unquestioned allegiance of the vast majority of Iranians, but some Western diplomats believe it may be only a matter of time before Marxist guerillas and Khomeini's Islamic Warriors, or "Mojahedeen," battle for control of the nation.

The first battle may have already been fought on the grounds of the U.S. Embassy Wednesday. Khomeini Lieutenants and Western diplomats blamed Marxists for staging the attack. The raiders with drew after a battle with the Mojahedeen. The People's Fedayeen have denied responsibility for the embassy attack.

Western diplomats admit having little knowledge of the leftist underground and claim to have no information on its organization or command structure. While Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was on the throne, most of their attention was directed at the larger, better-equipped anti-government guerrillas of the Mojahedeen, whose victims included American advisers and government officials.

The Fedayeen, including many young, middle-class men educated in Europe and the U.S., operate a headquarters in the technical faculty building of Tehran University, a few yards from the university Mosque where the Mojahedeen are based.

Others in the leftist movement include the remnants of the Moscow-oriented, Communist Tudeh Party and its offshoot, the newly proclaimed Iranian Communist Party. All have pledged allegiance to Khomeini, though many Westerners and Iranians see this as a marriage of convenience to take advantage of Khomeini's mass appeal.

With the Shah gone and his Sayak secret police in hiding, various parties have been able to recruit openly for the first time.

Diplomats believe the leftists are probably finding many converts among more radical members of the middle class who are fearful of a loss of power in a religiously oriented Islamic state.

Khomeini's relative silence on the role of opposition groups - all he says is they will be free to express views not "against the interest of the nation" - has been largely responsible for what may have been an inevitable split.

After long nights of 'diligent studying,' many a Notre Dame student finds himself with a severe case of the munchies. (Photo by Bob Gill)

ND-SMC Theatre to perform 'An Evening of Dance' tonight

by Pam Degnan

The ND-SMC Theatre will present "An Evening of Dance" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 in O'Laughlin Auditorium. The performances, consisting of a series of dance routines, will be highlighted by a spirited jazz routine. Admission is free.

The dancers in the presentation are participants of Debra Sedore's advanced ballet class which meets weekly in Washington Hall. "An Evening of Dance" is choreographed and directed by Sedore with the technical supervision of stage manager, Mark Harris.

The first dance piece is a ballet lecture demonstration in which the dancers emphasize their skills at the bar. Entitled, "Un Ballet en Trois Mouvements," this exhibition is composed of a series of fast and slow dance steps.

Performers in this piece include: senior Jacqueline Nanifito; juniors, Andrea Dereng, Taggerty Patrick, Marian Wittenburg, Patricia Kirk and Carin Pacifico; sophomore Mary Beth Budd; and freshmen Melanie Budd, Diane Rosato, Linda Hewitt and Colleen Quinn.

Sedore will perform an interpretive dance solo to "Simple Song," an excerpt from Leonard Bernstein's Mass.

The finale of the program is "Magic Bird of Fire," a lively jazz routine. Background music is arranged by the Salsoul Orchestra.

Commenting on the production of "An Evening of Dance," Sedore said, "Many hours have been given up in preparing for the show. The girls and I have worked tremendously hard and we can promise the audience an evening of both excitement and relaxation."

Hesburgh joins commission

Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, University President, who has been appointed to the President's Commission on the Holocaust, participated in the Commission's first national meeting, held yesterday at the White House Executive Office Building.

President Jimmy Carter created the Commission May 1. It was formally established last November. The Commission's purpose is to make recommendations on establishing and funding an appropriate memorial to victims of the Nazi World War II Holocaust, and to recommend ways for the U.S. to commemorate the "Days of Remembrance of Victims of the Holocaust."

Chairman of the 34-member Commission appointed by Carter is Elie Wiesel. Wiesel is a recognized authority on the Holocaust and a survivor of Nazi concentration camps.

Among the Commission members are distinguished scholars and civic and religious leaders, as well as survivors of the Nazi Holocaust. They are slated to visit Holocaust Memorials in Europe, the Soviet Union and Israel later this year.

The Professional Touring Co. of GODSPELL

Sunday, Feb. 18, 8pm
Century Center Theatre
Info: 219-284-9711
good for .50 off with this ad

BULLA SHED

5:15 mass and supper
this friday and every friday-

audio specialists

AUDIO SPECIALISTS, 401 N. MICHIGAN, SOUTH BEND, IN. 46601. PHONE: 234-5001.

Features

- Direct Drive system with Sony's unique BSL motor
- Two speeds: 33 1/3 and 45 RPM
- Automatic Tonearm lead-in, return and shut-off and repeat
- Front panel play/reject/repeat button
- Machine finished cast aluminum platter
- Newly designed heavy rubber record cushion
- Viscous filled rubber feet
- Strobe light and fine speed adjustment of ±4%
- Statically balanced "S" shaped tonearm with universal shell
- Acoustically dead "low Q" base
- Remote viscous damped cueing
- Anti-skating device with direct reading gauge
- Tonearm with safety clutch mechanism

Today our display model of this SONY component, Regularly $190 is 15 percent off.

The Audio Specialists is running its annual Demo Dutch Auction Sale. The way it works is simple: On February 10 all demos in our Audio & Video departments were marked at 10% off suggested list. Every business day the price will drop 1% per day until a component is sold. Only one of each item will be sold at the sale price. The sale ends February 28th when everything remaining will be 25% off.

The pressure is on! Buy early and get the best selection or gamble and wait for even bigger deals.

All tape prices are discounted by the same amounts during the sale and anyone bringing in this ad will get another 2% off all prices.

Come in and Save!!

NDFC plans Mock Market

by Maribeth Moran
Staff Reporter

The Notre Dame Finance Club will conduct its annual Mock Stock Market this year from Feb. 19 through March 30. The main desk will be in the Business Administration building's lobby, but, during the first week, shares also may be purchased in the Saint Mary's and South dining halls during dinner and in the Memorial Library lobby between 8 and 10 p.m.

An investor may purchase a mock $10,000 account for $1 or three mock $10,000 accounts for $2. He may invest it in any stock listed on the New York or American Stock Exchange. The investment may be either in one particular company or split in any manner desired by the investor.

The investor with the highest total net gain in his portfolio of stocks will receive a prize donated by the South Bend brokerage firm of Thomson and McKinnon.

Prizes to be awarded include the $100 grand prize, as well as three special prizes of $25 each for the best portfolios in specific categories: best graduate student, best undergraduate non-business major and best undergraduate business major.

This year's stock market is co-chaired by Mark Jachec and Ken Ostrowski. Jachec stressed that the stock market is not meant as an opportunity for business majors to test their investment skills in a realistic manner. He pointed out that, two years ago, an Arts and Letters student won the grand prize, and three years ago, it was won by a science major.

Besieged with insanity, this Stanford resident opened his window, removed his shirt, and turned on his electric fan 'to cool off.' [photo by Bob Gill]

Meet Someone New
at

THE RAMROD

free admission with college ID

★ dance floor

★ pool table

511 S. Michl St.

(downtown)

★ DJ Buddy King

every Fri & Sat night

open till 3am.

We only put on one show this week at the nazz..

..and what a show it is!

Saturday 9:30-1:00

Tim Ellison & paul hatem
(folk music and guitars)

Tours village

President Carter visits Mexico

Mexico [AP]-President and Mrs. Carter flew here yesterday for tour of a showcase agricultural village of the sort the Mexican government hopes will keep its peasants down on the farm.

In this little pig farming village, about 100 miles south of here, Carter was to tour a first-grade classroom, join local farmers for a buffet lunch and receive a briefing on the village's progress under a rural development program, financed in part with U.S. tax dollars.

The town center, with new road signs installed for the president's visit, was decorated with brightly colored streamers. A mariachi band added to the festive atmosphere.

Before departing for the village Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo spent about 3 1/2 hours yesterday discussing illegal immigration, trade barriers and Mexico's newfound oil and gas riches.

Lopez Portillo, who surprised a irritated U.S. officials a day earlier with pointed public criticisms of the United States, greeted Carter on the steps of "Los Pinos," his official residence.

The two spoke in Spanish as Lopez Portillo showed Carter inside, where they stopped briefly to examine a huge showcase filled with pistols before beginning their discussions.

After the talk Carter left by helicopter for the trip to the village, whose name means "The place where they have black eyes" in the language of the native Nahuatl Indians.

The town of 3,500 was the last holdout of followers of Emiliano Zapata, who led a peasant army in the 1910 revolution.

Carter, who flew to Mexico Wednesday, returns to Washington today. His absence from the capital led him to ask Vice President Walter F. Mondale to cut short a skiing vacation in Vail, Colo., to keep developments in the area of Iran "under careful review" at the White House, vice presidential press secretary Albert Eisele said. Mondale had planned to fly back to Washington this weekend.

After giving Carter a correct but cool reception Wednesday, Lopez Portillo used unusually blunt language in his toast at a state luncheon.

Noting the economic independence expected to flow from Mexico's oil and natural gas, which may rival the reserves in Saudia Arabia, Lopez Portillo said, "Mexico has...suddenly found itself the center of American attention - attention that is a surprising mixture of interest, disdain and fear."

He warned against "surprise moves and sudden deceit," a reference to a natural-gas deal which Washington cancelled last year on grounds that Mexico's price was too high, and against "insensitivity, ambition, fear or selfseeking manipulation" in dealings between the two nations.

Carter did not respond publicly, but an administration official traveling with him told reporters: "A certain amount of this is, I suppose, permissible for home consumption given the history of the relationship. But one would hope they wouldn't get carried away with that."

Augusta organizes

The first mandatory meeting for Saint Mary's students who are interested in living in Augusta Hall next year will be held Monday night in the Augusta TV room 10 p.m. A general description of the dorm will be given as well as pertinent information concerning the hall lottery.

There will be a total of three mandatory meetings in the next two weeks open to all interested students who will be juniors and seniors next year. Contact students for friends abroad must also attend all three meetings. Students must bring their IDs.

The second meeting will be Saturday, Feb. 24 at 10 a.m. Kathleen Rice, dean of Student Affairs, will discuss Augusta as a self-governing dorm at the meeting. A question and answer period will follow.

The final meeting will be Saturday, March 3 at 10 a.m. Sr. Leo Anthony of the College Convent will present a history of the hall and the hall officers will discuss their roles.

Augusta, which is primarily a senior dorm, has been an experiment for the college during the past six years. There are 33 singles, six triples, two quads and two doubles. As a self-governing dorm, the directors of the hall are the hall officers and one resident advisor.

For further information or questions concerning attending the meetings, please contact Karen Mitchell at 4487 or at 321 Augusta.

ND K of C elects, installs new officers

The Notre Dame chapter of the Knights of Columbus, the largest and oldest college council in the nation, recently elected and installed their officers for the upcoming year. The elections took place Feb. 13. The new officers are:

Grand Knight - Tom Leibowitz
Deputy Grand Knight - Francis D'Eramo
Chancellor - Mike Gilroy
Recorder - Roman Macia
Treasurer - Geoff Mosher
Trustees - Tom Pepke, Bill Alban, Eli Shaheen Advocate - Rob Patchen
Lecturer - Mark Rigotti
Warden - Tom Hunt
Inside Guard - Tim Linehan
Outside Guard - Francis Tisak
Outgoing Grand Knight Bob Bellissimo was presented a plaque for a job well done. The council is currently the largest organization on campus.

The Student Union

RECORD SALE

Records Priced at Cost!!

●February 19-23

●From Noon to 5 pm

Second Floor LaFortune - Room 2-d

This will be the only time the records will ever be priced this low!!

a SOUND Deal!

Class of 1962

Rico Valentino
"The Campus Locomotive"

Major: Romantic Languages. Always has a date...wears iridescent slacks...from the wrong side of the tracks...been on "American Bandstand"...still cruises local high school for chicks.

Zelda Woofenbite
"Gums"

Major: Library Science. Watches "Queen For A Day" and cries...studies a lot...always in curlers...dependable...makes popcorn every Friday and Saturday night...uses nasal spray...probably will be "left on the shelf."

Peaches N. Kreme
"Hot Stuff"

Major: Elementary Education. Pure as the driven snow...pert...style galore...a real knockout, especially in sweaters...likes "mature" men...voted year-round "Ice Princess."

Roby Farnsworth Harrington III
"Moneybags"

Major: Micro/Macro Economics. "Lack of money is the root of all evil"...chauffered to classes...wears penny loafers with dimes in 'em...Mark Cross luggage...plans to start at the top (of his father's corporation).

B.M.O.C.
"He only had one thing on his mind"

Freud Ian Slipp
"Eggy"

Major: Nuclear Physics. Actually finished "Ulysses"...wears coke-bottle glasses...popular around exam time...knows the difference between "inductive" and "deductive" reasoning...turned Harvard down.

Bettina Putschnik
"Pinky"

Major: Art. Ban the Bomb...dresses in black...recites blank verse poetry in coffee houses...met one of the Limelighters...can slip into a trance...proud of her Holden Caulfield type brother...wants a pad in the Village...bongo drums...really hep.

Tilton Sideweys
"Tilt"

Major: Motel Management. Sings along with Mitch...the original clone...wears white socks and ripple-soled shoes that squeak...frequently "ditched," even by parents...can burp the "Gettysburg Address"...permanently out to lunch.

Jim Shoe
"Twinky"

Major: P.E./Interior Decorating. A complex person...plays varsity everything...an opera buff...sometimes misunderstood... "once more, and I'll grind your face into the concrete"...sensitive...favorite color: chartreuse...a neo-Renaissance Man.

SMC Placement Bureau

RECRUITING DATE	NAME OF ORGANIZATION	POSITIONS AVAILABLE	MAJOR/CONCENTRATION
Feb. 20 (Tues)	Winters National Bank	Management Trainees	Liberal Arts Business
Feb. 21 (Wed)	GAB Business Services	Insurance Adjuster Trainee	All
Feb. 22(Thurs)	B.F. Goodrich	Marketing/Sales Rep	Business
Feb 23 (Fri)	Whirlpool Corp.	Acct., Mangt., Mark. Genl. Supervision	Business Mark/Soc

In $7 million capers

French uncover 'gambling band'

PARIS (AP) - An audacious band of crooks, using screwdrivers and bits of rubber to doctor roulette wheels, has collected about $7 million in one of the most ingenious international gambling capers ever uncovered. Police sources say about 20 suspects have been arrested, but dozens more could be at large judging by the scope of the racket which is believed to have been going on for up to three years. Twelve casinos in France, the fabled Monte Carlo gaming house in Monaco, and others in Yugoslavia, Italy, South America and Africa have suffered losses, French press reports say. Sources close to the investigation say the crooks operated by loosening the screws that hold in place the tiny walls between each number on the roulette wheel. The slightest loosening of those walls increased the "elasticity" of the number picked for doctoring, and heightened the odds on it winning. An additional trick involved inserting a sliver of rubber under plaques bearing undesirable numbers so that the ball would bounce off it and favor the number with the loose screws. Police and the French gambling control office are being discreet about the affair, still hoping to catch the masterminds behind the racket. But with the affair being discussed in French newspapers, and a judge in Nice preparing to hear evidence, there appears to be little hope left for more major arrests. The press reports say the ring-leader is a Czechoslovak living in West Germany. He has not been caught. Gambling authorities estimate the crooks' total haul at 30 million francs, or $7.05 million. First suspicions arose in January 1976 when several French casinos informed Roger Saulnier, director of the gambling service in France's Interior Ministry, that they had noticed "unusual gambling patterns" being used by certain clients. The gamblers would play only on one particular roulette wheel. They would bet only on certain numbers, which won with a regularity that defied the law of averages. If the wheel was closed, the mysterious gamblers would leave. It took investigators more than a year to discover the secret. Only in July 1977 did the loose screws come to light, when the Casino de la Siesta in Antibes, on the French Riviera, conducted a thorough examination of its roulette wheels. A number of suspects are employees of the casinos hit by the ring. In Monaco, a 44-year-old carpenter and two security men have been arrested on suspicion of helping to doctor the wheels. "The change caused by the loosened screws and the rubber was almost imperceptible," one source said. "But a good roulette wheel in so finely balanced that the slightest change can alter the odds.

Oil prices to soar 7 percent

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) - The United Arab Emirates and Qatar announced oil price hikes of about 7 percent today for various grades of high-quality light crude, oil industry sources reported. The sources said Saudi Arabia is expected to take similar action. The increase would boost the current price of $14.10 per 42-gallon barrel for premium low sulphur crudes to $15.12. That rate went into effect Jan. 1 following the decision by the organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise the 1978 price for all types of oil by 5 percent. The rise could increase American gasoline retail prices by about a cent a gallon. These prime crudes are fetching as much as $20 per barrel on the spot market as a result of the shortage created by the continuing closure of the Iranian oil fields. Local oil industry officials denied that the 7 percent hike applicable to premium crudes only would have an overall effect of pushing oil prices higher. The international oil companies are already making up to $7 extra per barrel.

HEW secretary takes stand

Califano refuses to ban Darvon

WASHINGTON [AP] - HEW secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. refused yesterday to ban the key ingredient in the popular prescription pain reliever Darvon but announced steps he said would ensure public welfare while the product is studied. Califano ordered the Food and Drug Administration to issue a special drug bulletin to one million doctors within the next 30 days that would spell out the risks of using propoxyphene, the ingredient in question. He also ordered the FDA to hold a public hearing April 6 to discuss whether propoxyphene should be placed under more stringent federal controls. And he said the FDA would recommend by June 1 whether that step should be taken. "It is imperative that these warnings be given...and that doctors think and count to 10 before they prescribe these drugs," the secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said. Darvon currently is the third most popular pain reliever prescribed by doctors. Califano's decision met with a mixed reaction from Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of the Health Research Group. That group, founded by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, had asked the FDA to ban propoxyphene or to place it under more stringent controls. Wolfe said after Califano's news conference that "thousands of people will die unnecessarily because they (the department) are not acting now." But Wolfe also contended it was the first time the government "has taken a position that Darvon is dangerous." Califano told a news conference that propoxyphene is "generally not dangerous" when taken as directed but noted it now ranks second with barbiturates as the prescription drug most often associated with suicides. He said it also had been implicated in some accidental deaths, particularly when mixed with alcohol or tranquilizers. Propoxyphene is the key ingredient in Darvon, the trade name used by Indianapolis-based Eli Lilly and Co. The chemical also is sold simply as propoxyphene and also is an ingredient in such pain relievers as Darvon Compound and Darvocet N, Califano said. Lilly issued a statement from its Indianapolis headquarters calling Califano's decision proper and responsible. The statement said Lilly issued additional warnings to physicians almost three years ago. "The company is deeply concerned about the misuse of any of its products and will continue to work with the government and the medical profession during the review of propoxyphene," Lilly said. "Lilly is confident the evidence will again confirm that propoxyphene is both a safe and effective analgesic." Califano said the FDA review would seek to determine the risks of propoxyphene, the extent to which it is associated with suicides and with other abuse, and its effectiveness. He said the best evidence so far indicates "propoxyphene is no more effective - and may be less effective - than aspirin, codeine and other pain relievers." The secretary's announcement follows two weeks of hearing on propoxyphene by the Senate Small Business subcommittee on monopoly. Propoxyphene now is available under regulations that place no limits on its production, allow a physician to order a prescription by phone and allow up to five refills every six months. The Health Research Group had asked that the drug either be banned or that its manufacture be limited, that written prescriptions be required and that refills be abolished.

Fr. Hesburgh appoints O'Shaughnessy

The appointment of Eileen O'Shaughnessy, 136 De-Windt Road, Winnetka, Ill., to the Library Advisory Council at the University of Notre Dame has been announced by Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C. president. Her husband, John J. O'Shaughnessy, was a longtime member of the Arts and Letters Advisory Council before his death in 1971, and her father, the late I.A. O'Shaughnessy, was a trustee and benefactor of the University. The University's advisory councils consist of between 30 and 40 business and professional leaders who meet annually with deans and other academic administrators to discuss the development of Notre Dame's colleges, as well as its Law School, library and art museum.

PREPARE FOR:

MCAT • DAT • GMAT

PCAT • GRE • OCAT • VAT • SAT

NMB I, II, III • ECFMG • FLEX • VQE

NAT'L DENTAL BQARDS • NURSING BOARDS

Flexible Programs & Hours

Visit Our Centers & See For Yourself

Why We Make The Difference

GRE GMAT

Classes

now forming

call 291-3150

Our 40th year

Stanley H. KAPLAN

EDUCATIONAL CENTER

TEST PREPARATION

SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

off-campus presents!

tennis party

FRI., FEBRUARY 23RD 7-11pm

All You Can Drink

Racquetball

Jacuzzi's & Saunas

Tickets $7.00

South Bend Racquet Club

for tix & info. call Shari 234-1996

Janet 287-3804

ND - SMC to sponsor essay contest

The Committee on the History of the University will sponsor the annual prize competition for essays dealing with the history of the University of Notre Dame or Saint Mary's College. A prize of $50 will be awarded during commencement weekend. All graduate and undergraduate students at the two schools are eligible to participate. There is no requirement as to length, and entries will be judged by a subcommittee of the Committee on History of the University. Dr. Philip Gleason of the Department of History is accepting entries through April 16.

Editorials

Friday, February 16, 1979 - page 9

P. O. Box Q

A Brighter side to philosophy

A recent Observer article, "The Problem of Philosophy", noted a seemingly popular attitude among college students required to study Philosophy--that Philosophy is nothing more than a futile attempt to understand age-old arguments on the meanings of life; a process that not only incapacitates the human brain but also prompts one to question the sanity of those who proposed such nonsense. These are precisely the kind of feelings I carried with me into Dr. Loux's Introductory Philosophy course on the first day of class.

No, I don't want to proclaim how a single course in Philosophy has shaken me from the pitiful domain of ignorance and has directed my senses toward a more fulfilling and satisfying life (although Socrates would probably say, "Then what good is it to you?"). I simply want to say that my Philosophy class at Notre Dame has dismissed the negative way in which I previously viewed the subject. I didn't learn how to explain the afterlife or discover why evil exists in the world. I didn't even find a sound proof for God's existence. But I can say, if nothing more, that the class was interesting. Dr. Loux presented some basic philosophical issues in such an enthusiastic and pleasing style that I feel even the most matter-of-fact engineering major would have felt inclined to speculate upon some of the topics discussed.

Everyone has something to say about God, life, death, evil, etc. To express an opinion on such topics is part of what Philosophy is all about. To learn something about them is the pure wisdom Socrates refers to as being the greatest possible good that one can attain.

Sure, there will always be those who see Philosophy only as an added burden to an already over-loaded curriculum. But I'm not the only non-Philosophy major who appreciated the course. My thanks to Dr. Loux and the Notre Dame Philosophy Department.

Michael Meisch

Some disputes about justice

Virtually all of us become involved at some time or another in disputes about justice. Sometimes our involvement in such disputes is rooted in the fact that we believe ourselves to be victims of some form of injustice affecting them. Sometimes the injustice at issue seems to require for its elimination a drastic reform, or even a revolutionary change, in the political system--like the change from free market capitalism to worker-controlled socialism. Sometimes it seems to require for its elimination only some electoral pressure or administrative decision--what might be required say, in ending a war. But whatever the origin and whatever the practical effect, such disputes about justice are difficult to avoid, especially when dealing with issues (like the distribution of income, the control and use of natural resources, and the distribution of educational and employment opportunities) that have widespread social effects.

But if we can hardly avoid getting involved in disputes about justice, how can we resolve such disputes in a reasonable way? Certainly, if we all share a common conception of justice--if we all agree, for example, to such principles as that justice requires that social goods be distributed "from each according to his choice, to each according to his contribution" (or "from each according to his ability, to each according to his need," or "from each according to his choice, given his assets, to each as he is chosen," or something else instead;--then it would seem that the only problem we shall confront in resolving our disputes about justice is the apparently manageable one of applying our shared conception of justice to the various areas of concern.

But what if we lack such a shared conception of justice? What shall we do then? As a first step, we should explore whatever we do hold in common; that is, we should explore whatever assumptions and distinctions regarding justice we do hold in common even when our conceptions of justice differ. Such assumptions and distinctions will, in fact, constitute our very "concept of justice," that which makes our alternative conceptions of justice alternative conceptions of justice. Thus, one of these assumptions will be the principle that justice requires giving each person his due: while alternative conceptions of justice may differ over just what constitutes a "person's due," (see, for example, the alternative principles mentioned in the last paragraph), all will yet hold this principle in common.

Next, of course, we should undertake a critical evaluation of the available alternative conceptions of justice. We should, that is, carefully consider and compare whatever reasons have been, or might be, advanced in favor of these conceptions of justice. Hopefully, through this process of critical comparison and evaluation, something approaching a common conception of justice will begin to emerge. But even in areas where this does not occur, those who have carried out this process of critical comparison and evaluation cannot reasonably be held blameworthy for applying whatever conception of justice they have come to regard as the best available.

In sum, reasonably resolving disputes about justice in cases in which we lack a common conception of justice requires us to 1) explore the assumptions and distinctions belonging to the concept of justice and 2) critically evaluate the available alternative conceptions of justice. Indeed, we can hardly be held exempt from this procedure even in those cases in which we do share a common conception of justice. For the above procedure ensures a resolution of our disputes about justice based on the most reasonable conception of justice available, and this may not, after all, be the conception of justice that just happens to be commonly accepted.

This is not, of course, to suggest that the task of carrying out this twofold procedure is an easy one. Indeed, few of us are confident of having a firm enough grasp on the assumptions and distinctions belonging to the concept of justice, and fewer still are confident of having successfully carried out a full critical evaluation of the available alternative conceptions of justice. Nevertheless, what we can do is periodically reflect upon the relationship of questions of justice to our courses of study and research here at Notre Dame. And, happily, the Justice Teach-in scheduled for February 21-22 is designed to help us do just that. On the days of the teach-in, all faculty and students should, therefore, take some time out in their classes to reflect upon the questions of justice related to whatever they happen to be studying. For only through activities such as these, can we hope to reach reasonable solutions to those disputes about justice in which we are involved.

James P. Sterba
Assistant Professor of Philosophy

'Belonging to everybody'

Fr. Theodore Hesburgh, University president, made the comment during a recent Phil Donohue Show that he felt that becoming a priest would allow him to "belong to everybody." It is obvious that Hesburgh spreads his time around generously to many organizations and national leaders. However, his comments in the Donohue program recall to mind that he may not belong to the students here at Notre Dame.

The ground for this opinion are based upon the apparent policy of Hesburgh and his associates of not giving a straight answer to any question that extends beyond "Have you ever wanted to get married, Father?", specifically as exhibited by Hesburgh on the Phil Donohue Show.

Upon close inspection of last Thursday's Observer article relating Hesburgh's appearance on Donohue's show, one cannot find a direct answer by Hesburgh to Donohue's questions regarding student rights and position within the University. The questions dealt with parietals, students' claims to adulthood, and communication between administration and students.

Regarding the parietals issue, Hesburgh remarked that "You have restrictions all through your life, and I think it's good to start learning a few of them in school."

When Donohue asked, "Are you communicating with the students on these issues?" Hesburgh's answer was, "One of the greatest things we can do is draw a few parameters."

Finally, Donohue wanted to know Hesburgh would respond to students who say: "Father, we're adults now. You're treating us like children." Hesburgh replied, "I think it's an effort to have some guidelines. And I think most youngsters want some guidelines."

The last time I looked, honesty was defined as "fairness and straightforwardness of conduct." To respect someone was to consider that person worthy of high regard.

Fr. Hesburgh appears, in this light then, to disrespect the students, Donohue, and the members of Donohue's audience. Nor are we worthy of honest answers to good questions.

Of course, Notre Dame students can also be cited for failing to listen openly to administration views regarding questionable policies. And it may not have been a good idea to put Mr. Donohue up to asking questions regarding campus life in front of a national audience. But to some extent, this is understandable.

Students are getting used to some administrators giving insubstantial answers to these policy questions. In a situation such as this, students will naturally stop listening, or else take extraordinary means to force the administration's hand.

Do students need rules to live by? Sure we do; and we are provided with them in 22 pages of appendices in the most recent edition of du Lac. However, some of these rules, such as those dealing with parietals, need to be debated.

This campus could use some honest conversation between the administration and the student body. But more essential is a new attitude on the part of both administration and student body. Unfortunately, if Fr. Hesburgh won't adopt the policy of respect and honesty toward students, little progress will be made.

Ray McGrath

DOONESBURY

The Observer

Box Q Notre Dame, IN 46556

The Observer is an independent newspaper published by students of the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and as objectively as possible. Editorials represent the opinion of a majority of the Editorial Board. Commentaries, opinions and letters are the views of their authors. Column space is available to all members of the community, and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

EDITORIAL BOARD

Editor-in-Chief . . . . . Tony Pace
Managing Editor . . . . . Steve Odland
Executive Editor . . . . . John Calcutt
Executive Editor . . . . . Barb Langherry
Editorial Editor . . . . . Rosemary Mills
Copy Editor . . . . . Phil Cackley
Saint Mary's Editor . . . . . Ellen Buddy
News Editor . . . . . Ann Gales
News Editor . . . . . Mike Lewis

News Editor . . . . . Diane Wilson
Sports Editor . . . . . Ray O'Brien
Features Editor . . . . . Chris Stewart
Photo Editor . . . . . Doug Christian
Production Manager . . . . . Mardi Nevin
Business Manager . . . . . John Tucker
Advertising Manager . . . . . Bob Rudy

The Hesburgh Interview - Part II

Theodore Hesburgh: The Priest, Educator and Politician

Chris Stewart and Tony Pace

This is the second installment of a two-part series. Editor-in-Chief Tony Pace and Features Editor Chris Stewart interviewed Fr. Hesburgh on issues of concern to the students of Notre Dame.

Stewart: Does a liberal arts education have any real value? With the problems of cost, what will happen to the university system? Will the smaller schools continue to dry up, as they have with increasing frequency in states as New York?

Hesburgh: There've been over 100 small universities and colleges go under in the past five years, but there have been a few new ones started to offset some of the losses.

As far as the value of liberal arts education, I think it is the most important component that any university gives. It should be a part of all the education that any university gives.

In other words, I don't care if someone around here is in science, engineering, business, architecture or whatever, they should have some liberal arts content in their education. If they don't, they're going to be half people, lacking people.

It's only through a liberal arts education that you learn how to think—clearly, broadly and ultimately, if you will, to get at the heart of questions and not just wander around the periphery.

Secondly, thinking critically, and expressing those thoughts, is only gotten in its ultimate fashion through a liberal arts education. It's only through the things you study in liberal arts that affect your way of expressing yourself—your sense of history, your sense of the philosophical and theological dimension of things, the sense of the beauty of English expression in literature, art, poetry or whatever.

It's really only in a liberal arts education that you ask questions deep enough to position yourself as you are: as a person, as a man or a woman, a black or white, a Westerner or Easterner, a Christian or non-Christian. We have all these types on our campus. One has to come to terms with what he or she is.

Lastly, I think it's only through a liberal arts education that one gets at values. You don't really get values directly out of the study of chemistry. There, you get some values about how your mind works, in precision, in hard work and dedication.

Fundamentally, values come through life stories. They come through exemplification of persons: heroes or villains. They come through some sense of what war and peace, love and hate, beauty and ugliness, truth and falsehood are all about. Without that dimension in your life, you don't really think in the broad range of thinking that a human being is capable of in a world and universe like this. Worse yet, you don't really learn how to be what you should be as a human person.

All other kinds of education, and this university has those other kinds of education, teach you how to do something—how to be a doctor, an engineer, a business person, a lawyer. These are all good things, and one has to study hard to learn how to be a good one.

But to learn how to be a human being, not just learn how to do this or that, which makes you an engineer, a lawyer, a teacher, a priest or whatever, to learn how to be a human being is the most fundamental of all. If you're not a good human being, a good human person, you're not going to be a good lawyer, a good engineer, or a good doctor.

To get back to your question about can you be a good businessman without a conscience: I say you can't be a good businessman if you don't have a conscience.

Stewart: As an influential educator who is well-connected politically, what do you foresee on the international scene?

Considering the rapid increase in instability throughout the globe, what are your thoughts about the church's role in these events? In what direction, if any, is the world going? Could present worldwide events culminate in international anarchy, possibly precipitating a nuclear confrontation?

Hesburgh: First, let me say that there are two great troubled areas in the world today. One deals with the equilibrium between the might powers—Russia, the United States and now China. Not that China is mighty militarily, but it's certainly mighty in manpower. The relationship between these three powers is going to be enormously important for the future of mankind. That is why SALT is important on the one hand, and the Chinese connection is important on the other. Those things have to be brought into some kind of equilibrium and it's often a very difficult and frustrating process.

Secondly, the whole Middle East is a super power keg. God only knows what direction it's going. If I were Egypt or Israel, I'd make peace tonight. Peace would be one element of stability in this terribly destabilized area. Recent developments in Iran, compounded by our energy and oil needs, and what all that means to the industrial growth of the world, reveal the importance of peace in the Middle East.

The third point is the whole question about what we do about the one-fourth of humanity that is really living sub-human existences. A billion people who don't have enough to eat any day of the year, half of whom are actually malnourished and will die from the effects of it sooner or later; a billion people who don't know how to read or write, and are just cut off from the total progress of humanity; a billion people who are poorly housed, poorly clothed; a billion people who get practically no education and no access to medical care. These people do not see a doctor from the day they are born to the day they die.

In a word, a billion people without hope.

Now, the fact is we could eliminate the effects of such dire poverty between now and the year 2000 with an expenditure of about $30 billion a year. We're now spending $15 billion a year on human development around the world (we being the developed countries) and the socialist countries very little (capital expenditure on human development).

In any event, $15 billion is spent totally on human development worldwide. The terrible thing is that we're spending over $400 billion a year on armaments, which is completely dead capital. You might as well take the money and throw it in the St. Joe River, except the St. Joe River couldn't hold that much money.

It is just incredible that one-tenth of the money we spend on armaments could clear up this terrible problem of one-fourth of humanity living in subhuman conditions, worse than farm animals in America. American farm animals have better places to live, more food to eat, and receive better care than these people.

What I'm saying is something has to be done about that, the problem of the disparity between the rich nations and the poor ones.

The church has certainly been more involved in these areas, and must become more involved in the future. I think the developed world must forge a new contract with the South, with the underdeveloped world. That's what our conference in Vienna will be about (Fr. Hesburgh will be in Austria this summer attending a major conference concerning relations between the industrial and third world nations).

I think those in leadership must keep this problem on the front burner because it always tends to slip to the background. One of the more horrible footnotes to all this is that there is no underdeveloped country that I know of (we call them LDC—Lesser Developed Countries) that is not spending more on armaments than they are on education and health for their people. That is really criminal.

Stewart: With that kind of expenditure, what's to prevent mankind from slipping into a nuclear holocaust?

Hesburgh: Well, it's always a possibility. That's why I've come out for SALT II. People think I'm crazy to do it because there are many people on the other side who oppose SALT.

The reason is that right now both we and the Russians have the ability to destroy the whole world seven times over; put that together and that's fourteen times destroying the whole world. Now, the crazy thing is, even with these two countries ability to destroy the world fourteen times over, we're still sitting up nights thinking of ways to do it more often, better, quicker, and more efficiently.

All SALT II does is try to put a little lid on those efforts. It doesn't put a lid on it completely. But it's at least a beginning of some attempt to slow down or put a ceiling on the amount of nuclear arms...

...I don't know many weapons mankind has devised which he sooner or later hasn't tried to use. That's even true of nuclear energy.

Stewart: Which would indicate to you the likelihood of some eventual deployment?

Hesburgh: There's always the danger that some idiot will come along and use them. We don't like to think of ourselves as idiots but we're the only country on earth that has used atomic weapons.

Stewart: I'd like to make a transition here, and ask what you consider, looking back over the entirety of your life, to be your greatest achievement?

Hesburgh: Well, I would think the one central point in my life is just being a priest, and all that it has meant in many different contexts—relationships with other people, relationship to the church, relationship to secular organizations, the US government, the world.

I try to do everything I do as a priest, with the concern of a priest and hopefully some of the dedication of a priest, for the kingdom of God, a better world, and also against the dimension of a better eternity for everyone.

No one in his right mind would presume to say he's been a good priest. That's not to say he didn't try. At least it's been conscious in my mind that there was nothing else I'd rather be.

So, I think if there's anything worthwhile in the years past, somehow I hope it's been in the function of priesthood, even though it may have seemed rather secular-like civil rights, world development, poverty, or whatever one gets concerned about.

Priesthood is the central core around which the rest revolves. That's the hub of the life I've had. Everything goes out from there.

Pace: Well, that about covers it all.

Stewart: Thanks very much.

Hesburgh: Thank you both. Tony, Chris, I wish you all the best.

Heroes Anonymous

Vi 'Hiya Honey' Bobelyni: The Huddle's Spirited Hero

Cate Magennis

Standards on which we base our priorities are often so blindly misplaced that in the haste of day-to-day survival we lose sight of our most precious assets. Fortunately for the students of SMC and ND, there exists a constant reminder that our worth is not equivalent to our GPA; that our entire future does not rest on tomorrow's exams; that what is truly important is our ability to smile, enjoy and take each day in stride.

Vi Bobelyni, known more affectionately by most as Mom or Honey, encompasses a wealth that may never be obtained through a certified degree; that that too few take time to seek. She possesses a sincere love of life.

The other day, I had the opportunity to sit and talk with Vi. Indeed it is a fact that her job at the Huddle has employed her for six years and that she recently was moved from counter cashier to the new deli. Yet in all the persons I've met in my life, I've yet to meet up with a match to Vi. Her spontaneous smile and contagious laugh flow without restraint as her words of unrehearsed emotions fill each moment with pleasure.

Intrigued and in awe I sat, absorbing her vitality and engrossed in her nostalgia. "You should have seen me, I have had more fun with these kids. Some would call me Mom, they'd tell me about how hard their tests were and I'd tell them just go get it! You can do it!... and they graduated too, Honey. You know, I can tell what they're thinking, and how they're feeling. I wouldn't even have to ask if they had been out the night before, I knew!"

Due to her new location in the Deli, Vi feels much more removed from the students, her friends. "I like the deli, but it doesn't allow me to get close to my students. I don't see and talk to as many as I did before."

It had become quite obvious by this point in our conversation that she is more than a friend to many. Granted, her words told me so and her actions convinced me, but the real sell were the students passing by. Not a single one went by without a good word for Vi.

"These kids, although I don't like to call them 'kids,' are great...they're all crazy like me! Actually, honey, let me tell you, there isn't a single shadow on this campus, everybody here shines in their own way. No one acts like he's any better than the others. The football players are just like everybody else...I goof around with Montana too!"

Her escapades could fill a novel with each chapter more enjoyable than the previous one. A glimpse of one page would begin, "A few years back a student, for initiation into the Irish Guard, was required to ask an ugly girl to a party. Well, he didn't want to hurt anybody's feelings, so he asked me. And I went! What a good time it ended up to be! You see, honey, when we first got there everybody was just standing around--I can't stand still when music is playing, so by the end of the night I had everybody dancing."

Another time she was asked to play Aunt Gussey in the Student production of "Come Blow Your Horn!" Again, she was able to help out her students and at the same time give them reasons to smile. "All was going well, I said my few lines in each performance, but the last night when I got out on stage I just burst out laughing, couldn't even say one single word." For her performance Vi was given a standing ovation at curtain call.

Every spring time her seniors begin their goodbyes their thanks and well wishes. Often they'll bring their parents into the Huddle to introduce them to their "campus mom," then at commencement sentiments begin to flow. "These kids mean something to me. Every graduation believe me, there are tears."

No portrait could capture the beauty of Vi. Vividly alive, she embraces each moment, giving to others a chance to relax, a chance to release, a chance to enjoy her friendship. "Tell them all that the deli is where it's at! Super sandwiches with Vi's special touch--" and a smile to boot.

Some Post-Valentine Deliberations, Poetry, and Napalm

A Real Fun Story

Cupid At The Threshold

Joe Ryan

I have a friend who thinks of this Valentine's Day as his golden opportunity. You see, he's head over heels (a very abnormal state) in love with an unsuspecting freshman coed who's walking around the N.D. campus unaware of her grave danger. Finally, Nort did something assertive, but not overly smoothly. That's not Nort's style. So, if you saw someone sneaking through the bushes and falling down around Walsh Hall Tuesday night, it was Nort with a very special cargo. He's spent long hours in the past week studying the style of William Shakespeare's love sonnets; assonance, onomatopoeia, the whole shmeer. But most of all, Nort was fascinated by Bill's descriptions of his lady's physical features. That settled it for Nort. By hook or by crook, he was going to show the goddess he's been worshipping from afar his true feelings.

I watched him as he wrote it, tears welling up in his throat, choked with emotion. I just hope the lucky (?) girl who's won Nort's undying affection will realize the effort and thought that went into composing her love sonnet.

Nort's feelings for her are timeless, and best summed up by telling you something he once told me. It went something like this: "She doesn't know I'm alive." Nort's changed all that, though. Now she knows.

He didn't want me to put his poem in print, because he was afraid the guys would razz him. Actually, I think it leaves a little to be desired, but decide for yourself. If you like it, read it to your sweetheart--it may throw a whole new light on your relationship.

MY LOVE

Your kiss is sweeter than Ambrosia, the sweet nectar of the gods falls,

The Oracle of Delphi, the Sphinx and the Taj Majal

Your lips are as the redwoods, their opening a chasm.

Your nose twitches like my foot half in slumber, a heavenly spasm.

My love's teeth chatter like the heated squirrel's disgust;

CUPID WITH NAPALM.

Her chin's sweet foliage stirs notions of lust.

Thy jagged teeth glisten as the petals of the yellow daffodil,

Your bosom's sight will the bravest man kill.

Thine thin brow besmircheth mine obsequious lunar modules;

Thy swart-complexioned breath exhumes thine odorous nodules.

Your eyes beleager the tiny newt without a care

As he drowns in their twin pools, choking for air.

Your coral-like celestial cheeks are incisive to the touch;

Your fledgling nostrils reveal you love for me so much.

See what I mean?

California Valentine

I wish for you an evening of soft smiles, remnants of our life together. We were physically together for only scattered moments of the morning, but ever since the dawn came, and the sun shone upon our hearts, we fused with its warmth changing the early morning mist into nourishment for the coming brilliance--our day of existence.

Yes. Brilliance.

Innocence is the foundation on which the goddess of your love trickled forth.

Where do the oceans start? From where come the mighty redwood? For love also is not instantaneous, but the growth of a mountain; the blossom of flowers; the making of a world; an evening of soft smiles--remnants of our life.

Andy Pizskin

Letters to a Lonely God

The Eye of the Hurricane

She was a young woman, and she wasn't a fool. She knew what she wanted; at least she said she did. I tried to tell her she was rushing into things that could hurt her. She said she was hurting now, and that it was the waiting that hurt her. Finally, I got annoyed with the uselessness of the conversation.

"We have reached an impasse," I said coldly, meaning that I was tired of the argument. "You will probably do what you want to do, and you would like my approval, but there is no way I can ever give it." After an impasse has been reached, the only decent thing you can do is hug each other, and say goodbye. "Please try to understand," she whispered, and then she was gone. The final words made me feel I had lived through a scene as eternal as a passion play.

Sometimes, as the campus chaplain, I feel in over my head. Sometimes I feel as though I had spent entire afternoons doing something nearly as foolish as trying to trap the power of the wind into a paper sack from the A.&P. There's no way you can bag the wind, even if you knew what the wind looks like, the direction it is moving in, and the games that the wind plays before it blows things apart.

"It is not just that we want to cater to sexual desire," the young woman had said. "Fulfilling sexual desire is the least personal part of the relationship. Sexual desire could be dealt with in the arms of a stranger. I just want to feel that I'm a part of this man's life, and that his life is a part of me. Sexual intimacy is the comforting way that two people express the oneness they feel in belonging to each other."

"But you don't yet belong to each other completely," I point out. "Therefore the sexual intimacy that says you belong to each other completely would be telling you a lie." At the mention of belonging, images of deeds being signed, and keys handed over, enter my mind, and a picture of property owners taking possession of their house. Suddenly, the sheriff appears with a bill from the bank.

"Pay what you owe," he says; "otherwise, you're trespassing on property you can't afford."

I think: "I'm opposing passion with the pale legalisms of a celibate's logic, and it isn't fair that I should have to play the role of the bloodless heavy." Then, scornful of my own analogy, I reflect: "What in the hell do I know about home financing?"

How does a cleric speak to the urgency in a woman's voice when she says: "I just want to make love, and feel loved, with the full freedom to allow the flesh to act out the heart's desire"? It is humiliating to insist: "I understand what you're saying, dear. I, too, am a creature of flesh and blood. I understand how the body pleads to be cherished as a partner in the projects of passion planned by the mind," as though, by God, the cleric had to establish the credentials of his soiled humanity before he could warn: "Cool it, honey, or you're going to set the bedroom on fire."

The most that the cleric can do is to offer the gentle arguments: "Look here, little love, with the stars in your eyes. Neither you nor the boyfriend is really willing or able to give the other an unconditional first place in the lives you've planned for yourselves. Both of you have bank loans to repay; both of you have careers you want to start on. I would love to celebrate your marriage: your declaration to the world, and to one another, that you are truly making a union of your lives, with hearts and minds touching more possessively than any love-making your bodies can express. Right now, I can't celebrate that union; neither can you, I suspect, or why are you bothering to ask a priest's approval for taking the risks that can break your hearts." I know the words aren't adequate. But words are all the weapons that a priest has to use.

Reverend Robert Griffin

She was a young woman, and she wasn't a fool. I felt like the fool trying to argue with her. In cases like hers, I will always argue, hating the need for arguments; knowing the times when the arguments are useless; wondering dismally whether it wouldn't be more profitable trying to package the wind. Experience has taught me, in my twenty-five years as a priest, that love is patient. The best love, that is, is patient; the love that is needed for a bedrock to marriage. Love is patient; meaning, it trusts itself; it is not impulsive; it does need to rush off madly in all directions.

Saying that love is patient seems like a washed-out insight when you're dealing with hurricanes.

"Love is patient," you yell into the teeth of the storm that new love stirs up.

"Love is not selfish," you shout again. Just when you get the feeling that no one is listening, the contradiction is borne back on the breeze.

"You are wrong, outdated priest. New love is in a hell of a hurry. New love hasn't got time to wait."

Your final mood is discouragement. "Why am I bothering," you think, "to be out here on this stupid beach by myself, playing games with the elements?"

Dave Gill

"This Column Has No Title"

PBS (Channel 34)

"Journalist's Privilege"; February 18, 6 pm. Former Governor of Massachusetts Michael Dukakis moderates the debate on whether journalists have the right to protect their sources. Witnesses include Daniel Schorr (pro) and Nicholas Von Hoffman (con).

"FYI: Legacy of Vietnam"; February 18, 8 pm. Now that a decent interval has elapsed, an examination of the fallout from the war is made. Included is a look at the American veterans and how the war affected their lives.

"Academy Leaders"; February 19, 9 pm. Norman Corwin hosts a look at the art of short subject films. Included are the films "Hunger," a 1974 computer animation about a gluttonous society and Robin Lehman's Oscar-winning "The End of the Game," an involving view of depleted African wildlife.

"Silk Stockings"; February 20, 9 pm. Fred Astair and Cyd Charisse star in this 1957 classic film adaptation of Cole Porter's Broadway show. A forbidding Muscovite woman, Ninotchka, meets her match in an irresistible young American film producer.

"Monet"; February 21, 10:30 pm. The paintings of the French impressionist Claude Monet, presented without lengthy explanations of his work and allowing viewers to enjoy Monet's vision in their own way.

...AND THIS IS MY IMPRESSION OF CLAUDE MONET...

"Always For Pleasure"; February 22, 10 pm. An insider's view of the day-to-day activities of Mardi Gras gives way to an intensive study of the music and traditions supporting the annual celebration. Included is a look at a jazz funeral with a brass band blowing dirges to the graveyard and then cutting loose on the way back.

Movies Off Campus

California Suite; Forum I. Starring Walter Matthau, Jane Fonda, Michael Caine. Neil Simon's comedy is in its 8th week in the South Bend area. Vignettes of five couples at a resort hotel in California. Mixed reviews from everywhere.

Ice Castles; Forum II. Starring Robbie Benson. The stereotypical plot of tragedy

Superman; Town & Country I. Starring Marlon Brando, Gene Hackman, Valerie Perrine. The whole story of the Man of Steel's incredible flight from Krypton and his subsequent role as chief crime-fighter in Metropolis. I still can't believe they spent $40 million to make it.

Richard Pryor, In Concert; Town & Country II. One of America's funniest people brings his often raunchy, always funny nightclub act to the cinema. Don't take your mother to see this one or you both may be a bit embarrassed.

Every Which Way But Loose; Forum III. Starring Clint Eastwood. Eastwood and his pet orangutan go from town to town, fighting and parodying Eastwood's spaghetti westerns and his Harry Callaghan tough-guy image.

Halloween; River Park. I've never seen Psycho and I can't put this in a category with Hitchcock thrillers, but I have to admit, I have never jumped, jerked, or felt as tense in any other theatre watching any other movie. Be sure, if you go, to be in some control of your faculties, because you'll need them.

The Warriors; Scottsdale. No idea except that it's a look into gang wars in big cities.

The Grapes of Wrath; February 18, 8 pm. IUSB Little Theatre. Starring Henry Fonda.

Movies On Campus

Hiroshima Mon Amour; February 17, 8 pm. Engineering Auditorium.

Silent Movie; February 19, 20, 7,9,11 pm. Engineering Auditorium. Starring Gene Wilder, Mel Brooks. Not quite as good as Young Frankenstein, but the Brooks-Wilder team does get an 'A' for effort and imaginations.

Performance Off Campus

South Bend Symphony; February 17, 8 pm. Morris Civic Auditorium. Adrian Bryttan, guest violinist. Tickets available at the door.

Vegetable Buddies; This week--Muddy Waters with the Vanessa Davis Band, February 16, 17 $6; Lamont Cranston, an R & B band from Minnesota, February 21, $2; Airborne, rock and roll, February 22, no cover.

Performance On Campus

An Evening of Dance; February 16, 17, 8:30 pm. O'Laughlin Auditorium. Admission free.

Ice Capades; February 17, 12 noon, 4,8 pm. February 18, 2,6 pm.

William Cerny, pianist; February 21, 8:15 pm. Library Auditorium and Lounge.

Heart; February 22, 8 pm. ACC. The Wilson sisters bring some much needed female-led rock and roll to du Lac. It will have to be good, especially when you consider the talents of the warm-up band, Exile.

Sports

Hockey; ND vs. Minnesota. February 16, 17, 7:30 pm. ACC

Basketball [men]; ND vs. Oklahoma City. February 21, 8 pm. ACC.

by the Associated Press

Americans who leave their cars home and take public transit instead to save fuel—as President Carter suggested—may find that even if the switch is possible, it isn't always practical.

An Associated Press spotcheck showed that buses, subways and trains in many major cities already operate at or near capacity. The AP also found that while mass transit is usually cheaper than driving, it is almost always slower and more inconvenient, and is generally geared to those who work a standard nine-to-five day.

Earlier this week, Carter urged people to use public transit, along with carpools, to conserve energy. And the prospect of higher gasoline prices makes the idea of saving fuel even more attractive to many drivers.

But will it work? To find out, the AP asked staff members in about a dozen of its news bureaus who normally drive to work to take the bus or train instead. All except one managed to make it to the office without unusual delays; all reported some trouble.

Department of Transportation figures show that almost 72.7 million people a day commuted to and from work by vehicle—public and private—in 1978. Of those, less than 5 million, or just under 7 percent, used public transit. A little more than 20 percent rode in carpools. The majority—over 70 percent—drove to work alone.

"There's a tremendous capacity there," said department spokesman Ed O'Hara, referring to the empty seats in private cars.

Mass transit, however, presents a trickier problem. "Overall, there is a limited capacity for public transit to handle additional passengers, with some exceptions," said O'Hara.

The exceptions, he said, include cities which already have extensive transit systems—Chicago, New York and Boston, for example. During the 1978 February blizzard, transit ridership in Boston was 39 percent higher than normal, O'Hara said, proving that capacity can be increased in a pinch. "Of course the cars were packed," he added.

The Los Angeles area has the third largest public transit system in the United States, after New York and Philadelphia. But it still handles less than 3 percent of the commuters each day. And it already is operating at 90 percent of capacity at peak hours.

Switch to public transit can prove impractical

Although the snow fall has been heavy the dedication of students to get to class has worn down many path across campus. [Photo by Bob Gill]

Disco dominates Bee Gees top 21st Grammys

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - The Grammys' 21st birthday celebration turned into a disco-flavored party last night as the Bee Gees and other top disco singers won most of the major awards.

Billy Joel struck the major non-disco note of the evening, winning record of the year and song of the year honors with his hit, "Just the Way You Are."

The Bee Gees, a veteran rock group, took four awards—including album of the year, producer of the year, pop vocal performances, and best arrangement for voices—for their work on the sound track of the hit disco movie, "Saturday Night Fever."

The sound track is one of the biggest selling albums of all time.

Barry Manilow was named top pop male vocalist for "Copacabana," his disco-flavored ballad about a fading showgirl. The top female vocalist was soft-voiced Anne Murray for "You Needed Me."

Donna Summer, widely acclaimed as the queen of disco, was voted the top female rhythm and blues performer for her recording of "Last Dance."

The best new artist of the year went to a dark-horse candidate, A Taste of Honey, the group whose disco song, "Boogie Oogie Oogie," was a big hit.

In country music, veterans Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings were chosen for best vocal performance by a group for "Mamas, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys."

Nelson, who didn't attend the nationally televised show of the national Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, was also honored as the best country male singer for "Georgia on My Mind."

Dolly Parton's recording of "Here You Come Again" won her the best female country performance Grammy.

Former president Richard Nixon came up a loser in the early awards. He had been nominated in the best spoken word category for the album version of his televised interviews with David Frost. But Orson Welles won for a recently released sound track of "Citizen Kane."

In the rhythm and blues, Earth, Wind & Fire won best vocal performance by a group for "All n' All" and best instrumental performance for "Runnin'." Maurice White, a member of the group, also won an individual Grammy for best arrangement accompanying vocalists—an Earth, Wind & Fire recording, "Got To Get You Into My Life."

In Jazz, Al Jarreau won vocal performance for "All Fly Home" and Chick Corea took best instrumental honors for "Friends."

For the second straight year, Steve Martin won the comedy award, this time for his album "A Wild and Crazy Guy."

Martin delighted on-lookers by clutching the Victrola-shaped trophy and shouting repeatedly, "What is this? What the hell is this?"

Other nominees in major categories this year included Chuck Mangione, Gerry Rafferty, Neil Diamond, Barbra Streisand, Jackson Browne, the Rolling Stones, Olivia Newton-John, Carly Simon, Gino Vanelli and Dan Hill.

The Bee Gees' nominations were particularly gratifying to the group because "Saturday Night Fever" won no nominations in any musical categories of last year's Academy Awards.

Goddard Lieberson, a long-time record industry producer and head of CBS records who died last year, was named recipient of the academy's trustees award, a special honor that has only been presented nine times previously.

The award is for those whose contributions are too broad to fall into any of the regular Grammy categories and was last presented two years ago to the late Thomas Edison and Leopold Stokowski.

In addition to a star-studded list of award presenters including 96-year-old Eubie Blake and last year's best new artist, Debby Boone, the lineup for the highly promoted, two-hour CBS special featured performances by host John Denver and several nominees.

The Grammy Awards are determined by balloting among 4700 academy members in seven chapter cities. A record 52 Grammys were voted on this year, but most were awarded prior to the telecast.

NDHS schedules meeting

The Notre Dame Historical Society will meet tonight from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Library Lounge. This month's presentation will be a debate between Marvin O'Connell, chairman of the History Department, and John Lyon, chairman of the General Program. They will discuss "The Place of History in a Liberal Arts Education." Interested faculty and students are invited.

NDFC plans career night

The Notre Dame Finance Club has scheduled a "Careers in Finance Night" on Mon., Feb. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 122 of Hayes-Healy. Students interested in the career possibilities available to business majors, are encouraged to attend.

The program will begin with lectures by speakers from various areas of finance. Following the lectures, there will be a reception at the University Club.

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
FEBRUARY 16th, 17th

MUDDY WATERS

$6.00 GENERAL ADMISSION

Vegetable buddies

234-1431
129 NORTH MICHIGAN STREET
1 BLOCK SOUTH OF THE MORRIS CIVIC AUDITORIUM
ON RIVER BEND PLAZA DOWNTOWN SOUTH BEND

TICKET LOCATIONS

VEGETABLE BUDDIES RIVER CITY RECORDS (US 31 N)
RIVER CITY RECORDS (BELLEVILLE PLAZA, WESTERN AVE)

Presented by

Vegetable Buddies & River City Records

River City Records &
Celebration Productions Present

THE OUTLAWS

IN CONCERT

special guest Wireless

Friday March 2 8:00pm

Morris Civic Auditorium

Advance Tickets $8.00/7.00 and go on sale

Sat. Feb. 10 at River City Records

50970 US. 31 N. 3 miles north of campus and at the Morris Civic Box Office

call 277-4242 for further information

Now comes Miller time.

Masked players perform mimes at SMC

by Sue McGury

The group Mummenschanz--loosely translated "play behind masks"--entertained an enthusiastic audience last night at O'Laughlin Auditorium.

Andres Bossard and Bernie Schurch, two Swiss mimes, joined by Italian mime Floriana Frassetto appeared to enjoy the performance as much as the audience did as they portrayed the development of life, from primordial ooze to the complexities of modern man in 19 brief sketches.

The first half of the program began with a single spotlight brought up to reveal a pulsating blob on stage. The audience gradually became aware of the fact that the movement of this mass was caused by the three performers.

The audience was quickly caught up in the spell of the drama and became a part of it, reacting to the expressive body movements on a number of different levels. By the eighth sketch, many spectators were attempting to toss a large orange balloon back to the stage where the mimes were awaiting it behind the mask of an eight-foot silver periscope.

During the intermission, several of the younger members of the audience obligingly supplied the mimes with faces of multi-colored yarn pressed on blocks of black cardboard.

Backstage after the performance, the players explained that audience interaction is a crucial element behind the success of the show. Each of the sketches is open to a wide range of interpretations running from the whimsical to the philosophical. Its charm is that it can be enjoyed on several of these levels simultaneously.

One of the few elements of traditional mime adhered to by Mummenschanz is silence.

Schurch pointed out, "We create our own music with our movements and we are in control. A dancer floats or swims with his music. I prefer to make it my dancing partner."

He emphasized the group's need for spontaneity in the creative nature of the four to seven minute scenes. The term "mime" is applied conditionally to this trio, for although their backgrounds are in mime and acrobatics, their performance ignores almost all the rules of the disciplines.

Unlike mime, the three use a variety of props such as notepads, rolls of toilet paper--used quite effectively as flowing tears--and a flower and watered paste, out of which they fashioned several innovative masks which they eventually ate.

The group opened at the Bijou Theatre on Broadway in 1974 for what was to have been a 30-day run. Their success was such that Mummenschanz is now placed fourth in the list of longest running Broadway shows.

A new theme is being planned for a show opening sometime next year. Bossard explained that their idea was to develop "our own language--we appeal on a basic level to today's generation." If the standing ovations at O'Laughlin last night were an accurate indication, the message of the Mummenschanz was understood and appreciated.

Mummenschanz, the traveling mime troupe, performed last night in O'Laughlin Auditorium. [Photo by Bob Gill]

Almost 50 below

Old Forge proves coldest in US

OLD FORGE, N.Y. [AP] - Every morning Daryl Carman bundles up and trudges out in waist-deep snow to check his weather instruments in this frigid Adirondacks mountain hamlet.

And time and again in his 12 years of dutifully reporting to the National Weather Service, Carman's thermometers have shown that Old Forge was the coldest place in the nation, such as this week when the mercury hovered at almost 50 below zero.

But the television weathermen always give the credit to some other town, and Carman is getting hot under the collar about it all.

The problem is, the weather service says a town must have a population of at least 1,000 to be an official reporting station. Old Forge had only 850 at the time of the last census in 1970.

"What the devil have I been doing this for 12 years for if this is not an official station?" asks Carman, a policeman in this town which has more snow-mobles than cars in the winter.

On two successive days this week Carman reported readings of minus 48 and minus 47, but still no mention in the national news. "That's when I got a little hot under the collar," said Carman, who gets no pay for his weather work.

But there is a good chance that Old Forge will find its place in the news reports. When Carman started complaining this week, the weather service told him that if the town clerk verifies the town has more than 1,000 residents, and sends a letter saying so on official town stationery, it will change the status of Old Forge to an official station.

But counting the number of people in Old Forge could depend on when you do the counting.

During the snow season, the town is teeming with snowmobile enthusiasts taking advantage of about 500 miles of well-broomed trails. "There's more snowmobiles than cars on a weekend here," Carman said.

In the summer, it's a typical mountain resort, luring tourists to the surrounding mountains, lakes and campsites.

"I'd just as soon not have the publicity myself, but if the town has the low in the nation, then let's get the recognition."

For the record, the temperature in Old Forge rose to minus 24 Thursday morning.

"We've got a real scorcher today," remarked Carman.

Hesburgh announces council appointments

The recent appointment of two South Bend residents to the advisory councils at Notre Dame has been announced by Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president.

Robert H. Michaud, midwest regional counsel for Bendix Corporation, has been named to a three-year term on the Law School Advisory Council. He received a Juris Doctor degree at Notre Dame in 1951 and resides at 52744 Brooktrails Dr.

John R. Cooke, vice-president for corporate staff personnel of Clark Equipment Company and a resident of 52677 Brooktrails Dr., has been named to a three-year term on the College of Engineering Advisory Council. He received undergraduate and graduate degrees at Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Notre Dame's Advisory Councils consist of between 30 and 40 business and professional leaders who meet annually with deans and other academic administrators to discuss the development of the University's colleges, as well as its Law School, library and art museum.

Tales in American

The Special double-issue of

Juggler '79

is still reviewing manuscripts for publication. Writing about America of special interest. Poems, stories, essays, etc. 309 O'Shag 3rd floor LaFortune

The Trimilitary Council wants to start your weekend off Right

Happy Hour at
The Goose's Nest
Friday Feb. 16th

Drafts 3/$1.00 Mixed Drinks $.50

ALL ARE WELCOME

RIVER CITY RECORDS

South Bend's Largest Record and Tape Selection

$1.00 OFF
coupon

$1.00 off any album or tape with this coupon. Limit 1. Now thru March 11. Not good on cut-outs, imports or other sale items. Coupon must be presented before purchase is rung into cash register.

- ND-SMC check accepted for up to $20.00 over purchase amount.
- 17,000 albums and tapes in stock now!
- Why wait to choose from a small selection? River City Records probably has it in stock now.

RIVER CITY RECORDS

50970 U.S. 31 North, 3 miles north of campus. Open 10 to 10, 7 days a week. 277-4242.

Council foresees possible recession in 1980

WASHINGTON [AP] - The nation's economy probably will sink into a mild recession this year, with rising unemployment and an inflation rate stuck at a high level though 1980, a group of the nation's top business leaders said Monday.

Even as the Business Council issued its pessimistic economic forecast, the government reported that industrial output increased only 0.1 percent in January, the smallest amount in a year.

And Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal had additional bad news for Americans, saying further increases in oil and gasoline prices are both inevitable and necessary.

"I think the price of oil will go up for all kinds of reasons and should go up so that we conserve more," Blumenthal said in a television interview.

In its economic forecast, the Business Council did not use the word recession but referred instead to "a mild setback" for the economy that will last over several quarters of the year.

A recession is commonly defined as a contraction in economic growth extending at least two quarters.

"No one foresees a deep setback, certainly nothing like 1974-1975," said Clifton C. Garvin, Jr., chairman of Exxon Corp., referring to the deep recession earlier this decade.

But he said nearly half of the Business Council's economic consultants, who prepared the forecast, feared that an economic slowdown and slow progress in reducing inflation "will induce an impatient government to shift to mandatory wage and price controls."

The Business Council's forecast for overall growth in the economy during 1979 is for growth of under 1 percent, down sharply from its own forecast last September of 2.5 percent growth. The Carter administration is forecasting growth of 2.2 percent.

Because the economy is expected to grow at a rate of near 5 percent in the first quarter, the entire rest of the year would have to show little or no growth if the council's forecast is met. But a council source said the economic slowdown will be mild and should not be a cause for concern.

The administration has been adamant in its predictions that a recession can be avoided this year, although officials have admitted the risk of a downturn if inflation is not controlled. The economy grew by nearly 4 percent last year, a healthy rate of growth.

N.D. STUDENT UNION Presents and special guest star

EXILE

Thursday Feb 22

8pm Notre Dame ACC

All Seats Reserved

$8.00 & $7.00

Tickets on sale at ACC Box Office

SUNSHINE & CELEBRATION

THE ND
SMC
THEATRE

An Evening of Dance

February 16 & 17

8:30 pm

O'Laughlin Auditorium

Admission is free

SENIOR CLASS

Pre-Hockey Game

Happy Hour

NICKIES Sat. Feb. 17

4-6pm

3 drafts/$1.00

50¢ 7&7's

SENIOR CLASS

Food Sales provide an important and profitable source of revenue for many Notre Dame halls. [Photo by Bob Gill]

... Halls

[continued from page 1]

we're close to our goal." Augusta Hall leads in raffle sales with a 67 percent return and Keenan follows in second with 43 percent.

As of Wednesday night, the carnival had generated total revenues of roughly $17,000 with moderately active gambling taking place last night.

Dillon and McCandless are leading in carnival revenues with Holy Cross (ND) following closely behind.

Glen Killoren and Andy Pavelko, Zahm Hall's booth chairmen, expressing the sentiments of all the booth workers, said, "We'd really like to see a lot of students out this weekend because it's a good way to support your hall, in addition to being a lot of fun."

Ken Kraft, entertainment chairman, commented on the weekend's lineup of talent, "We've got a really great magic act along with Smith & Co. (a local South Bend band) for Friday night. Saturday will be highlighted by Smokey Joe, a folk singer, and an Irish band called Waifs and Strays with an award-winning bagpipes player."

Bob Morin, coordinator, added "We're happy the Student Union dance went well, and we hope the entertainment this weekend will be just as enjoyable."

... Food sales

[continued from page 1]

were removing items from the room while the operation was closed.

Most managers agree with Sherer, however, in their opinion that most students are honest. Sherer described the effects of thefts at Grace as "negligible."

A few managers are confronted with the problem of employees "eating up the profits," and in isolated cases shortchanging the operation. Several outlets have taken steps to counter the problem.

"Our prices are more or less set where that's taken into consideration," commented Don Schweighart, manager of Zahm Food Sales.

Mark Razzano, a partner in the St. Ed's Food Sales operation admitted, "Employees get as much as they want to eat, because the way I figure, it's just that much a part of the cost."

All managers available for comment agreed that, as a rule, they trusted their employees' handling of money.

"I know I can trust all the guys I have working the (money) box," Peak said of his Dillon workers.

Customer shoplifting can also be troublesome. At many outlets, sales are made from behind a counter, but some operations such as Stanford, Grace, Breen-Phillips, Dillon, and Alumni feature a walk-in format similar to a small convenience store.

Flanner used to operate with a walk-in format, but to combat shoplifting, it has switched to a counter.

"We've been where we are now for two years," remarked employee Matt Brunyansky. "By moving behind the counter here, we've cut down on rip-offs and increased profit."

Zagotta pointed out a new problem that is adversely affecting his Sorin operation and that may also be cutting into sales at other outlets.

"I think the Huddle is gonna hurt us," he explained. "They've (sales) slacked off lately due to the opening of the new delicatessen. It's only a five minute walk away."

Another difficulty that sometimes plagues campus food sales operations is the relationship with South Bend who supply merchandise.

Louanne Snellgrove, manager of Lewis Food Sales, commented on her relationship with the suppliers by saying, "It's not bad at all. We have a pretty good credit rating with the suppliers in town."

When asked if there were any actual delivery problems, she pointed out that most of the delivery men have keys to the food sales room. "I never have to worry about opening up for them...I just have to worry about stocking the shelves," she added.

According to Schweighart, most of the dorms have the same suppliers and order in bulk quantities to get a lower price.

He added that at his operation soda supplies are usually replenished every four weeks while milk and orange juice suppliers renew stocks every week and pizza and sandwich supplies are replaced twice every week.

A partner in the Fisher operation, Geoffrey Raynor, reported dissatisfaction with his suppliers, however, commenting, "Individual deliverymen aren't very consistent sometimes, but overall, it's pretty decent service."

St. Ed's Food Sales, one of the smaller outlets, sometimes incurs problems with the quantity of items in stock.

Razzano described his situation, commenting, "sometimes our orders are too small to have the wholesalers come in, so we have to wait and then order in bulk, so sometimes we run short on certain items."

ND women's swimming underway

by Michael Ortman
Sports Writer

It is finally going to happen. Since women were first accepted at Notre Dame, numerous efforts have been made to organize a swimming team for the ladies, but each seemed to fizzle out before it really got off the ground or, rather, into the water.

However, this Saturday afternoon it's finally going to happen. The Notre Dame women's swim team, although not yet even a club sport, will take to the water for the first time in an inter-collegiate meet. The Irish will join the Belles of St. Mary's and the DePaul Blue Demons in a double-dual meet at Rockne Memorial Pool at 2 p.m.

"I've been here now for five years," said Astrid Hotvedt, Notre Dame's Coordinator of Women's Athletics, "and during that time the women have tried a number of times to get pool time to practice and haven't been able to. This is really the first break that they've gotten. They had a marginal break a few years ago but things never materialized."

For the ladies to gain varsity status, they must go through a rather long procedure. First they must attain club status. "To be granted club status," explained Hotvedt, "they must first compete with other schools until the athletic department feels that there is enough sustained interest in the area (neighboring states).

The team would then petition the Director of Non-Varsity Athletics who would pass it on to a review board. If all went well, the team would be granted club status." The next step up would be the varsity level. The procedure for this is similar but with more documentation.

The most recent effort to create a women's team was initiated by Senior Karen Tweedell. After a pre-Christmas organizational meeting, the ladies returned in January ready to work. Volunteer coaches Jim Severyn and Scott Jessup, graduate students in the College of Business Administration and former Irish swimmers themselves, have been working with the team every night from 7:00 to 8:00.

"We've got about 30 regulars every night," said Severyn, the captain of last year's varsity. "These girls really have something to shoot for. It seems that people around here often put down women athletes. Scott and I know what they need to express themselves just like the guys."

Varsity Coach Dennis Stark, who has been instrumental in coordinating the women's efforts, had praise for the hard-working group. "These girls have shown quite an interest," said the veteran coach of 21 years. "I really feel that they warrant consideration. What we have here is the nucleus for a varsity team of the future."

The team will have to do with out the services of diver Betsy Shadley and distance freestylist Jeanine Blatt, the two females currently on the Irish varsity. NCAA regulations forbid them from competing on two rosters at the same time. "If we could have them," wished Severyn, "...WOW!"

The Irish will be led by a number of talented swimmers. Heading up the list of ladies are the Fitzsimmons sisters, Josie and Terri. Their older brother Ed twice was selected Most Valuable Swimmer of Notre Dame's varsity. Freestylists Kim Parent and Rita Harrington will be counted on in the long and short distances respectively. Harrington will also be swimming in some of the butterfly events along with freshman Kathy Latino. Leading the Irish diving corps in both the one and three meter events will be freshman Jane Brown.

Following Saturday's meet, the Irish women will begin preparations for their meet next Saturday at Valparaiso.

It is finally going to happen.

Goalie Dave Laurion and his Irish teammates can't afford to let either of this weekend's games at the ACC slip by them. [Photo by John Macor]

... Icers

[continued from page 20]

assists....Meredith has tallied 22 goals and is providing sparkling leadership...Weltzin and Michael lead Notre Dame in assists with 25, while Schneider has 23...The Irish were so confident in last week's overtime win that they tried to predict who would get the game winner. Weltzin wasted no time in doing the honors...This is Hockey Parent's Weekend. The Blue Line Club will hold a reception for players, parents and Blue Line members following Saturday's game.

... WCHA

[continued from page 20]

To do it, the team Notre Dame has to stay ahead of is Wisconsin. The Irish took a big step towards doing that, three points ahead as a matter of fact, by sweeping UMD last week and timing it with a North Dakota sweep over the Badgers in Madison. That is not to say the Irish could not do any better than fourth, or worse for that matter. There is no sure fire way to predict who will finish where.

North Dakota has to start losing to drop any, and that does not appear likely. From there it is a toss-up of a many sided coin. If Notre Dame is to continue gaining ground, they will have to win. Otherwise home ice will probably be decided on the last weekend of the season, and that series will take place for the Irish in the unfriendliest of territories, Madison, Wisconsin. There are only two things Badger fans up there hate more than Wisconsin hockey opponents: death and taxes.

It's obvious Notre Dame does not have an easy road ahead of it, but that's what they were saying before the season began, and look where the Irish are now.

Fans see the real 'Magic' Johnson now

EAST LANSING, Mich (AP) -The grin hasn't slipped from Earvin Johnson's face often this year, even when he and his Michigan State teammates in their drive for a second straight Big Ten championship.

But the affable sophomore star remains under intense pressure as the conference race enters the home stretch--pressures from his coach and teammates to lead the squad, from fans to dazzle them on his way to victory like last year, and from the community to spurn the pros and stay at Michigan State at least one more year.

Outwardly, Johnson give little indication of any tension. His effervescent personality and loose-goose style of play remain unchanged. But this season has been a far cry from the magic the "Magic Man" brought to Michigan State basketball last year.

"For a moment I was going to be down, but that's not me," Johnson said as the eighth-ranked Spartans, precariously in the title race, prepared for a crucial six-game finishing charge.

"People come and to see the real me," Johnson said without boasting. "The last five games, they've seen the real me and the real Michigan State Basketball team."

Irish cruise past Manhattan, 86-63

by Lou Severino
Sports Writer
and Mark Perry
Assistant Sports Editor.

NEW YORK-Kelly Tripucka and Bill Hanzlik combined to score all of Notre Dame's points in a 10-2 outburst at the start of the second half, leading the Irish to an easy 86-63 win over Manhattan in basketball action last night at Madison Square Garden.

Playing before a near-capacity crowd of over 18,000, the Irish were outrebounded by Manhattan in the first half, 16-6, and only led 30-27. Jo Jo Walters kept Manhattan in the game, scoring 13 points in the first half.

Manhattan used what amounted to a four-corner offense throughout the game, leaving Walters to go one-on-one with however was covering him.

But the Irish came out with tight defense at the start of the second half, as Hanzlik forced several turnovers, scoring seven quick points in the opening spurt.

The Irish built the lead up to 31 points, 74-43, with four minutes left, as Phelps emptied the bench. Mike Bruno scored eight of his ten points during the last minutes, cutting the Irish lead to 80-59.

Tripucka led a balanced Notre Dame attack, scoring 18 points on five field goals and 8-10 at the line. Also scoring in double figures were Tracy Jackson, 15 points, Hanzlik, 13 points, Rich Branning, 12 points along with eight assists, and Bruce Flowers, 10 points.

Walters led all scorers with 24 points, but Bruno was the only other Manhattan player in double figures.

GAME NOTES: The Irish finally got their shooting percentage near their season average, as they hit on 50 percent of their shots, 32-64....Manhattan outrebounded Notre Dame in the game, 30-24....Tracy Jackson was selected MVP for the game, and received an award from the Notre Dame Club of New York....Notre Dame travels to West Virginia this weekend tot ake on the Mountaineers beginning at 8 pm, Lowes Moore, who scored 40 points in Notre Dame's win at the ACC last year, is back for West Virginia. The game will be broadcast on WSND-640.

Solid defense by Bill Hanzlik helped key Notre Dame's second half outburst. [photo by John Macor]

Olympic volleyball team plays exhibition match

The USA mens olympic volleyball team will bring a group of 40 inch super-leapers in the first visit ever of a USA Olympic Team to northwest Indiana. Team USA is scheduled to play an exhibition match at 4 p.m. Sunday at Michigan City, in Indiana's spacious 7,000 seat Rogers High School Gymnasium.

Notre Dame, in its first year of competitive volleyball at the club level, will play Purdue University in a preliminary match at 3 p.m., South Bend time.

Members of the ND basketball team will be selling tickets for the match. Students may buy tickets by contacting ND volleyball coach

Mel Goralski at 272-2444 or any member of the ND volleyball team.

Volleyball players are the highest jumping athletes in the world, next to high jumpers. One of the best examples of this ability is 5'11" Rick Nunez of Northwest Indiana's LaPorte County.

A good example of a developing trend, Nunez used the sport of volleyball to develop superior quickness and jumping ability which he applied to high school basketball as the 19 point a game guard and Most Valuable Player for the Westville, Indiana Blackhaws.

Please snip along dotted line and mail today!

YOU'RE INVITED TO

LONDON

1979-80

LEARN

- Business in the British University System
- Drama with the Staff of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts
- Fashion Design and Merchandising and many other—

Traditional Programs at University of London Colleges (e.g. London School of Economics, Queen Mary, Kings)

LIVE

in fully-furnished, centrally-heated flats in SoKensington

Reservations available for one semester or for a full year.

RSVP

to the long-established, fully-accredited, coed program

STUDY ABROAD, MARYMOUNT COLLEGE,

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. 10591 (914-631-3200)

Name _____

Address _____

CROSSWORDS

ACROSS

1. Stupid person

4. Thick slice

8. Warble

12. What person?

13. Political conservative

14. Salver

15. Biggest

17. Groom one-self carefully

18. Mirth

19. Aspects

20. Ancient invention

22. Forehead

23. Small amount

24. Scheme

25. Tree juice

28. Old-fashioned parlor game

31. Favorite

32. Sharpen

33. Tantrum

34. Tie

35. Re punishment

36. Recollection

39. Supply of money

40. Oak fruit

41. Place to exercise a horse

44. Strong metal

45. Crew

46. Adversary

47. Dandy

48. Wild spree

49. Mist

DOWN

1. Big-eyed bird

2. Word of surprise

3. Never mind! 2 wds.

4. Shade of gray

5. Misplace

6. Knack

7. Near

8. Dried grass

9. Eye part

10. Entitle

11. Swindles: slang

16. Collect bit by bit

17. Picture

19. Investigate

20. Thin fragment

21. Wish (for)

22. Combine

24. Fake: slang

25. Tie or draw

26. Seaweed

27. Rind

29. Source of irritation

30. General movement

34. Carried

35. Chubby

36. Damsel

37. Pale tan

38. Frame of mind

39. Long canine tooth

41. Stock value

42. Soft sound

43. Barrel

45. Depart

POSE AND TRAP

ARCS WOO MULA

LOOK DAGGERS AT

WIRY ELATES

BALMY LADS

OLIO SOREHEAD

RAN COVER RAY

ENGULFED CURE

LOTS PAPER

CHESTS JOLT

HIT THE CRILING

ERNE LIE TOBE

TRAB LAP ONCE

Yesterday's answers

Iowa over Purdue; Indiana St. nips SIU

IOWA CITY, Iowa [AP] - Fourteenth-ranked Iowa overcame a 36-point performance by Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll and defeated the 13th-rated Boilermakers, 75-72, Thursday night to remain in the first place in the tight Big Ten Conference basketball race.

Iowa let a 14-point lead dwindle to three late in the game, but the Hawkeyes hit eight straight free throws in the final 2:07 to stay ahead. The Hawkeyes did not score a field goal in the last 4½ minutes.

Iowa, beating Purdue for the second time this year, moved to 17-5 overall and 10-3 in the Big Ten. Purdue, which had won seven straight, fell to 19-6 and 9-4.

Steve Krafcisin led five Iowa players in double figures with 17 points.

MSU 59, Indiana 47

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. - Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored 15 points as eighth-ranked Michigan State used balance to overcome a 25-point effort by Indiana's Mike Woodson and post a 59-47 victory in Big Ten College Basketball.

The Spartans, 17-5 overall and 9-4 in the league, scored eight consecutive points to break a 30-30 halftime deadlock as Indiana went more than five minutes without recording a point.

Jay Vincent and Johnson each contributed two points to the streak, which ended with a Greg Kelser making a pair of field goals.

MINNEAPOLIS - Sophomore center Herb Williams scored 26 points and hauled down 12 rebounds to lead 17th-ranked Ohio State to a 74-68 Big Ten basketball victory over Minnesota Thursday night.

The victory boosted the Buckeyes' conference record to 10-3, keeping them tied for first place with Iowa, which defeated Purdue.

Minnesota, which lost its seventh straight game, fell to 4-9 in the Big Ten and 9-13 overall.

Indiana St. 69, SIU 68

CARBONDALE, Ill. - Larry Bird scored 20 points and Steve Reid sank two free throws in the final 14 seconds to seal top-ranked Indiana State's 69-68 Missouri Valley Conference victory Thursday night over Southern Illinois.

Southern Illinois' Richard Ford hit two free throws with 6:56 remaining to give the Salukis a 62-61 lead, but Bird countered with a pair of free throws 27 seconds later to give Indiana State the lead for good.

Bird hit a jump shot with 5:59 to go to give the Sycamores a 65-62 advantage and 20 seconds later, Carl Nicks, who had 19 points, hit a jumper to make it 67-62.

Southern Illinois' Gary Wilson hit a jumper with 4:50 left to cut the lead to 67-64 and following an Indiana State turnover Wilson hit a hook shot to make it 67-66.

Indiana State went into a delay game and with 14 seconds left, Reid was fouled intentionally and made the first of two free throws. Bird grabbed the rebound on the missed second shot and Reid was fouled again with 10 seconds remaining. This time, he missed the first shot but hit the second to make it 69-66.

Wilson led Southern Illinois with 16 points. Abrams and Milt Huggins added 16 and 15, respectively.

Indiana State, which led 38-31 at halftime, improved its record to 24-0 and 14-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference. Southern Illinois fell to 12-11 overall and 6-7 in the conference.

Illinois 81, Wisconsin 64

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - Illinois, placing five players in double figures, scored an easy 81-64 win over Wisconsin, handing the slumping Badgers their ninth straight loss in Big Ten basketball play Thursday night.

Illinois rolled to a 40-25 halftime lead in the sloppily played game, with both teams combining for 31 fouls in the first half.

The balanced Illini attack was led by Mark Smith with 14 points. Rob Judson scored 13 with Neil Bresnahan adding 12 and James Griffin and Eddie Johnson each collecting 10.

Michigan 78, NU 67

ANN ARBOR, Mich. - Michigan's freshman guard Keith Smith led all scorers with a career-high 22 points Thursday night to pace the Wolverines to a 78-67 Big Ten basketball triumph over Northwestern.

Michigan, 7-6 in conference play and 13-8 overall, led only 43-42 midway through the second half before Smith sparked a 16-3 blitz that put the game away.

Molarity

Michael Molinelli

Hoffecker to direct orchestra

The Goshen College Orchestra, under the direction of David Hoffecker, will perform at Saint Mary's at 8 p.m. Sunday in O'Laughlin Auditorium. The concert is being presented by the SMC department of music. The public is invited to attend.

Goshen College soloists during the concert will be Jane Glick, piano; Dennis Brown, cello; Rebecca Zellner, soprano; and Steve Martin, trombone.

The Goshen College Orchestra has 65 members. The College's music department, with 60 music majors, is particularly noted for its string program.

David Hoffecker, the orchestra's conductor, has bachelor and master of music degrees from the Eastman School of Music and a master of divinity degree from Gordon Conwell Theological Seminary.

Noddy

Jim Canavan

Volleyball team entertains basketball players

The University of Notre Dame, in its first year of competitive volleyball at the club level, generated a good deal of excitement during a 15-12 one game victory over number one seeded and eventual tourney champ Purdue University at the First Annual Notre Dame MIVA Club Invitational Volleyball Tournament a couple of weeks ago.

Among the small covey of onlookers was Athletic Director, Ed "Moose" Krause, sporting his Texas-sized Stetson, and Father Jim Riehle, Football Chaplain.

Even more important perhaps was the whole basketball team of the number one ranked Fighting Irish, who had just come from a film watching session of the evening's opponent.

The brown ball guys took to the action, first with curiosity and then with enthusiasm, as the white ball teams attempted to read 100 miles per hour spikes.

Tracy Jackson kept asking, "Who's number five? Who's number five?" Over on court two, Rich Parry of the LaPorte YMCA Men's Volleyball Team kept pushing his body upwards of 30 inches off the ground as he hammered on perfect sets. Yes, Parry sports a white number five on his blue jersey. Jackson just couldn't believe that Parry, at 6'5", could jump almost 30 inches off the ground. And yes, Jackson did meet Parry.

Meanwhile, Bruce Flowers and Bill Hanzlik were so impressed with Notre Dame's handling of Purdue, they asked a couple of high school girls to teach them how to hit the little white ball. The basketball guys seemed to have more than a little trouble hitting the smaller ball, but their teachers loved it. Wonder why?

I guess you know by now that the Notre Dame basketball team won their evening contest against the University of Dayton by a score of 86-71. Funny, how everyone kept looking at Hanzlik's heavily-taped thigh. Good thing for him, because they all missed his cherry red forearms!

Cheerleading tryouts Saturday

There will be an organizational meeting and demonstration clinic for those interested in trying out for the cheerleading squad tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. in the ACC pit. If there are any questions, call Kevin Ryan at 8540.

Classifieds

All classified ads must be received by 5:00 p.m., two days prior to the issue in which the ad is run. The Observer office will accept classifieds Monday through Friday, 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. All classifieds must be pre-paid, either in person or through the mail.

Notices

The Senior Arts Festival is looking for photographers. Any interested seniors can submit their work to Sybil Young, 317 Badin, or Kevin Pritchett, 124 Keenan.

Applications for Student Union Director and Comptroller are now available in the S.U. offices, 2nd floor LaFortune. Applications must be returned by February 20. Interviews will be held on February 27. If you have questions, or would like a copy of the rules for the selection process, please call 7757.

Gay Students of Notre Dame/St. Mary's Gay Information line 8870

Call Fri., February 16, 10 PM-midnight Saturday, February 17, 10 PM-midnight

or write P.O. Box 206

Interested in learning more about the life of a Brother, Sister, or Priest in the Church today? Come to a discussion and film in the Farley Hall lounge, Thursday, February 15, 1979, at 9:30 PM or talk to the Indiana Campus Renewal team in the library foyer Wednesday evening or during the day on Thursday.

Attention all Logan volunteers and interested students!

This Saturday, February 17th, is the annual ND-SMC council for the retarded trip to the Ice Capades! The magic, clown acts, cartoon characters, and fine skaters of the ice capades! Everyone meet at Logan Center at 10 AM on Saturday. Bring some munchies or a few coins to buy lunch at the show! Questions, call Mike or Sue, 1371 or 4-1-4832. Lots of help needed so bring some friends! Tickets are provided free of charge for volunteers and mentally handicapped kids!

NOCTURNE NIGHTFLIGHT* WSND-89 FM* JOE CAREY FEATURES THE MUSIC OF STANELY TURRENTINE TONIGHT.

Lost & Found

Lost: one pair of basketball shoes at the Rock on Tuesday, Feb. 6. Please call Marty, 8334.

Found: one Sharp calculator at the ACC locker room. Call Pat at 3898 to identify.

Found: Keys Friday night between Zahm and Farley. Claim at Lost and Found in Ad. Building.

Found: Brown, light brown, and off-white scarf in Farley on Screw Your Roommate night. Claim at Lost and Found in Ad. Building.

Lost: set of keys (8) on a CAPRICORN key ring. Please call 288-1893 and ask for Dave or Mark.

Lost: At ND a sterling silver Mexican bracelet with 4 sections. Please call Meg at 4781.

Lost: one college class ring, St. John Fisher College. Call 272-9841.

Lost: one crutch outside the Library about a week and a half ago. If you've seen this crutch alive, call Mike at 1678.

Lost: to the person who "found" my book and notebook in room 202 Business Bldg., please return. Call Pat, 1474.

Lost: ND class ring. Lemans lobby or Parking lot. Black Onyx stone. Reward. Call Bill, 1247.

I lost a beautiful grey scarf at Senior Bar about two weeks ago. If found call Bob at 1817. You'll have my undying gratitude.

Lost: a black down ski jacket with green and blue stripes on the shoulders at the South Dining Hall on Sunday, Feb. 11. Keys and prescription sunglasses in the pocket. Reward offered. Call 6322.

For Rent

Need really big sound for your next party? Two Peavey loudspeakers with 300w. mixer/amp. Adapts to any system for great sound magnification. Call Bob at 3634.

Immediate Occupancy! Room for one, with private phone and use of the entire house. On the river, near campus. Call 234-2662.

Big Country House for rent. Furnished, eight to ten minutes travel, for next school year. 277-3604.

Furnished four bedroom house for rent. Couple blocks from campus for next school year. 277-3604.

Wanted

OVERSEAS JOBS- Summer/year round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia, etc. All fields, $500-1200 monthly. Expenses paid. Sightseeing. Free info.-Write: IJC, Box 4490-14, Berkeley, CA, 94704.

Need ride to U of Mich. on March 2 and ride back after the game on the 4th. If you can help, call Mike, 3889.

Interested in Summer Camp Jobs? Counselors-instructors wanted for prestige private boys and girls camps near Kalamazoo.

Lawrence Seeger
1765 Maple
Northfield, IL
60093

Need ride for 2 to Chicago this Friday. Call Marty at 8635.

Looking for a ride to Iowa City or Dubuque area Feb. 17th or 24th. Will share expenses. Call Ann at 4-1-5165.

Need ride to Chicago Feb. 17. Call Barb at 4-1-5183.

2 girls need ride to Mardi Gras (New Orleans). Can leave anytime after Wed. Feb. 21. Will share everything. Call SMC 4394 or 4680.

For Sale

Stereo: Must sell, baby on way. Sansui 9090 receiver, 125 watts per channel, 2 pair of speakers, Teak 250 recorder, dual turntable, Pickering XV15 cartridge. Call evenings, 6-9:30, 232-1711.

VW Bus- excellent collegiate car. Best offer, call 3489 for details.

For sale: Rugged winter boots. Excellent condition. Dark brown, size 8 1/2. $25, call Jeff at 1525.

77 MGB green. 7000 miles. full factory warranty, perfect condition. $4850. 289-1482.

OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS! Full size (6ft.) refrigerator for sale, $80. 1787, ask for Peter.

For sale: Hockey skates, pads, etc. Good quality and condition. Call Don 1684.

8-track tapes for sale. Most popular artists. Only $2. Call Brad at 6931.

For sale: Epiphone steel string acoustic guitar with case. Only five months old-$150. Call Bob 1803.

USED BOOK SHOP. Wed., Sat., Sun. 9-7 Ralph Casperson 1303 Buchanan Road Niles.

Tickets

Want one LaSalle ticket. Call Paul at 8505.

Wanted: 2 GA LaSalle tickets for parents threatening to cut off tuition and move! Padded seats together, please call Jerry at 8719.

Need two padded seat student or GA tickets for Oklahoma City. Call Mary Fran at 6724.

Need 4 GA LaSalle tickets. Call Karen at 6889.

Urgently need 2 GA tickets to LaSalle basketball game. Call Kerry at 289-6543.

Urgently require 2 GA tickets for LaSalle. Call John "JK" Julien at 1771.

Need 2 GA tickets for LaSalle basketball game. Call Tim at 8440.

Wanted: 2 GA LaSalle tickets. Call Maribeth at 3845.

Help! Urgently need 2 GA LaSalle tickets. Call 6725.

Help! Need 20 Minnesota hockey tickets. Call the Daves at 8405.

Personals

PAT* Happy 21st birthday! Love, Trish

Bill Swift, Thanks for working overtime last night; I really appreciate it. Mardi

Today marks the last day of John McGrath's masochist writing spree. Six articles in five issues-I've had it!! [at least for a day] I don't know, but I think I am addicted.

Dear News Editor Ann; Sorry about the slightly inaccurate news tips we gave you lately. But after all, what is writing about?

Senior Freshman Masochist Reporter

Happy Birthday D.C. from 3850 Tunlaw.

Carey Ewing, How can we top body paints as a birthday present? Love and kisses...

My surreptitious Spector: Your clandestine behavior is working. I couldn't sleep last night. Put my mind to rest. Anxiously Awaiting Senior Hockey night Saturday at 7:30, Irish face Minnesota. Happy hour at Nickies before the game from 4-6.

Mike L. Thank you for your thoughtfulness on Valentine's Day. Sorry I didn't make it to Mardi Gras last night. How about going over tonight? Sheesh

Beer me, Roy!

THE ADVENTURES OF A BORING PERSON [Chapter Eight]

While munching heartily on white carnations, the sophisticated infant refused to respond to the silent scoldings of distant relatives. If it wasn't for the lack of neural impulses transmitted through Ma Bell, communication might have been possible. (To be continued.....)

Paul, Happy 19th birthday. We hope it is a good one. Love, Sue, Jayne, and Sue

We could be anywhere...But, WE ARE HERE!!!

Flusette and Sexe Pistolettles are alive and well and living (NOT IN PARIS) in the ND$SMC community. Members of the b-ball team--Flusette was at Digger's bash on Sunday. The question is, DID YOU SEE HER? (How about you, M.K.?) Look for us, we could be in a dorm near you! Fluse, Sexe, and Disco-L's Helene, Happy birthday! With love from your fellow coordinators.

Watch for Beyond Our Control every Sunday at 6 PM on Channel 161!

Gary Donar, I don't need Valentine's Day to tell a celebrity like you that Jackson, Bruce, Starsky, and Mork can't possibly compete! Confuse me Roy. Love, Me (Who?)

Lost: two mental patients from the Matton Club Dungeon that were last seen on the front page of last Tuesday's Observer. If found, please keep them. No reward if found before finals.

This week's tragedies: 1) one stats quiz 2) one econ test 3) one finance test 4) one accounting test 5) one depressing call from home 6) two new zits 1) many, many beers in the 911 club. Scoop

Seniors: Happy hour this Saturday from 4-6 at Nickies. Beer, three for a dollar, and Seven and Seven's for fifty cents. Be there!

Dear Scoop, Thanx for being my friend. You will always have a special place in my heart. Love, Pam

P.S.-Are you going to abuse me???

Dear Mary Pat, With you as my friend, I know I'll never be alone. We've weathered many storms--will we finally see the rainbow?? Thanx for caring!!! Love, Pam

P.S. Knock 'em dead in France!!

RED HEADS--Sunday's the big day. 12 noon brunch in the left side of the South Dining Hall. Everyone worth their red be there.

Bonnie Brahl The beginning of an uglyman dynasty!!

DHF- Would it be me if it wasn't late? Champagne and animal crackers and secrets. 3. Happy Valentines Day!! LHK-C

Glenn, Sorry, but I forgot which Connelly(?) didn't show up!! Just abuse me some more. Kim

Kim, Draw two more, yellow!!! Paula

Paula, Draw two, blue. CJ

WELCOME BACK TO NOTRE DAME* LUNDA MILLHOFF. I HOPE YOU ENJOY YOUR STAY. YOU'RE SUCH A FOX!!!

Augusta--Closer to Heaven

Attention: Anne Bialek Fanclub Anne Bialek wishes it be known that her phone number is 4686. She is tired of not receiving any calls from guys, so give her a ring a say "hi!"

BP and Howard Carnations and Pom-poms, Inc. Thanks for a successful business venture. Beth and Rosey

P.S. Thanks for the flowers, Keith.

Mac and "Herb" Thanks for the flowers. Rosalita and Co.

P.S. Now do I get the hat? Beth.

Mental Ward's Pam Thanks for being so sweet. Love, US

RED-HEADS: Brunch. Sunday. To be discussed: 1) Tee-shirts, 2) Redhead happy hour, 3) Logo. Be there!!

Windchimes, Thanks for carnation. Bruised Skater

AURAL SEX--DON'T BOTHER TO CALL. WE WILL BE ABLE TO HEAR YOU COMING.

Margie B. Going to Mardi Gras this weekend?? Mr. Bill

G.T. This year has been everything I could have wanted. Love, always, L.T.

P.S. Is this what you were looking for?

Paul Lewis is the father of eleven healthy babies. Call him at 8505 and congratulate him.

To Jodie J. J'aime deux choses dans ma vie, la rose et toi. La rose pour un jour et toi pour toujours. XXOOXX Love, Mike

Have a happy Valentines Day.

Dear Barb the tramp, I'd love to break parietals with you. I could look into those beautiful warm brown eyes all night long. Love, HW

P.S. -I hope this brings that wonderful smile to your angelic face.

To the entire AROTC Drill Team: You're the best--you'll see Saturday. Your CO

P.S. Mike P.--hang on for one more day, ok?

Girls: Stop by the Huddle 10-1 Saturday night and watch "Burger Bob" throw his meat around.

Great Moments in Augusta Literary Dorm Life! Episode 4 Elizabeth Barrett Browning says: "How do I love thee, Augusta? Let me count the ways."

Barb Brock is visiting from sunny Minnesota. Call her at 1209 and give her a warm Notre Dame Welcome.

Dan "Darling," The name fits--thanks for the flower! But maybe I don't know you well enough to call you "Darling." Karen Hey Good-Lookin', Thanks for dinner and my Valentine. Love ya, Your better half.

Sweep puts Irish in 2nd

Icers face Gophers at ACC

by Mike Henry
Sports Writer

The Minnesota Golden Gophers invade the ACC this evening for the opener of a pivotal two-game series with the Fighting Irish. A duplication of Notre Dame's sweep last week against the Bulldogs of Duluth, at the time the top-rated team in the nation, would pull the icers into a second place deadlock with the Gophers in the competitive WCHA. Game time for both contests is 7:30.

Herb Brooks' Gophers were just about everyone's choice to capture the top spot in the league before the season, and although they trail North Dakota by one point entering this weekend's action, they close the season at home against the powerful Fighting Sioux. Brooks, who will guide the 1980 U.S. Olympic Team, believes the Gophers are on the verge of exploding over the next three weeks but realizes they have to do more than step on the ice to win.

"What we have done to date means little if we do not continue on with solid, smart hockey," he cautions. "I've said many times that you have to win on the road to be a WCHA contender."

"Notre Dame appears to have regained its early season form and will be ready for us in South Bend. We were fortunate to split with the Irish at home in November. I'm not sure we'll be as lucky this time out. Notre Dame is awfully tough at home—it should be a great series."

The Gophers have rebounded strongly to win their last four outings after a double dose of defeat three weeks ago in the rarefied air of Denver. They crushed Colorado College last weekend, paced by junior wing Eric Strobel's five goals, four of which came in a 9-2 laughter Sunday. It was Strobel's third career hat trick, and it enabled him to become one of four Minnesota skaters to surpass the twenty-goal barrier this season.

Co-captain Steve Christoff is enjoying another banner campaign, as he leads the club in scoring with twenty-seven goals and thirty-one assists. He is virtually a certainty to become the first player in his school's history to top thirty goals for two straight years. Joining the Minnesota scoring parade are fellow third-year students Don Micheletti and Tim Harrer, who have accumulated 23 and 21 goals, respectively.

Senior Steve Janaszak, who at 5'9", 175 pounds is built along the lines of Notre Dame's Dave Laurion, is expected to see action in the goal both nights. This year has developed into one of the top netminders in the league, holding opponents to somewhat meager output of 3.49 goals per game. His back-up, rookie Jim Jetland, has started three WCHA contests and won them all, limiting rivals to under three tallies a game.

This weekend's series takes on an added importance for the Irish when you look at their remaining schedule: trips to Denver and Wisconsin, outfits that have discouraged past Notre Dame teams in recent years. Even though coach Lefty Smith's crew has sewn up a play-off berth, they realize that a high finish in the league standing will give them the valuable home ice advantage. And, after last week's twin-killing of the lordly Bulldogs, the Irish seem to have recovered from a puzzling mid-season "slump" JUST in time.

Laurion will start in goal, and the diminutive youngster is as responsible as anyone for Notre Dame's strong showing this year. He has rejected 86 percent of the opposition's shots, and this coupled with his flair for the dramatic save makes the easy-going freshman as entertaining as the Ice Capades.

Smith, after shaking up the lines in an effort to snap his skaters out of their doldrums, has returned to the units that clicked successfully the first half of the season. The first line to see action will most likely be the Pangborn Connection of captain Steve Schneider, center Ted Weltzin and Greg Meredith. They'll be followed to the ice by Tom "Opie" Michalek's line that includes Kevin Humphreys and Jeff Logan.

Then it's the all-freshman line centered by top Irish scorer Dave Poulin and manned by Jeff Perry and Bill Rothstein. The three have startled the staid WCHA with their savvy and know-how and show no signs of stumbling over the rocky terrain that lies ahead.

Defensively, Notre Dame will alternate among the tandems of Jeff Brownschidle and Jim Brown, John Schmidt and John Friedmann, and Scott Cameron and John Cox. All played exceptionally well in last week's opening 7-3 victory over Duluth.

"We've had good practice sessions all week and are ready to go," Meredith said. "We'd like to end up among the top two teams in the league, and two wins this weekend would start us in the right direction."

SHOTS ON GOAL...Poulin continues to lead the Irish in scoring, with 23 goals and 24

(continued on page 17)

John Friedmann and the Notre Dame defense will have the task of stopping Steve Christoff and the league-leading Minnesota offense in this weekend's crucial WCHA series.

WCHA watch

Is home ice an advantage?

Some time ago, somewhere along the line, somebody came up with a nice little formula for success in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association. "To win in this league, you have to win at home and split on the road."

Granted, if you wanted to pack everything into a convenient little nutshell, it's not a bad formula. But like with most formulas there are times when the elements just don't mix and the reaction doesn't come out quite right.

The Notre Dame hockey team seems to have come up with a new formula for success in the WCHA. The elements about winning at home and splitting on the road? Forget them. Just take two parts highly touted freshman skaters, mix with one part talented sophomores, juniors and seniors and one part smart coaching and recruiting, place on a frozen hockey rink, drop a puck, sit back and watch the reaction.

It's a formula that has given the Irish a 15-10-1 league record, a current share of third place in the WCHA, a current national ranking of seventh, and a former no. one national rating. Hmmm, not bad when you consider the fact Notre Dame was written off to finish tied for eighth in the preseason poll.

Not bad? Well, let's examine the record a little further. Out of its 15-10-1 league mark, the Irish have posted a 7-4-1 record on the road and an 8-6 mark at the ACC. You're not supposed to have a better winning percentage on the road than at home (63 percent to 57 percent), but then again Notre Dame was supposed to finish two spots above last.

But it hasn't been exactly smooth sailing all the way for Smith and company. After posting a 9-4-1 league record heading into the Christmas break and establishing itself as the surprise team in the nation for the first half of the year, Notre Dame skidded, went into a tailspin, slumped, whatever. The Irish were missing something.

Was their youth catching up with them? Had the bubble burst? Was it already past midnight for the Cinderella icers? No one was able to come up with an answer. Lefty Smith started changing things around, and shook up the offense and defense in an effort to break his team out of its slump. Then, gradually, he began moving things back, and two weeks ago, in the second game against Colorado, the offense was restored to its first half form. The Irish have won three straight since.

"I would certainly like to think we are over the blabs," said Smith, "and winning like we did both nights at Duluth last week certainly was encouraging. We were more disciplined on the forecheck and moved the puck around better. Friday night, when we won 7-3, it was just a total team effort, everyone played super. I'm not pleased with the fact we lost a 6-4 lead Saturday, but we keep our composure and came on for the win in overtime. We didn't give up, that's important."

Brian Beglane

Yes, it was important. They were the Irish of old, the Irish that lost by more than one goal only once over the first half of the year, the Irish that scored two goals in eight seconds in the final 30 seconds out in Colorado to tie it, the Irish that had won five in a row on their way to the top spot in the nation.

"Yes, we have been playing better hockey recently," says Smith, "but we can't just settle for that. We have to keep moving, improving. The playoffs are only three weeks away, and we finish the last two on the road. That is no easy task. We just have to concentrate like crazy down the stretch."

This weekend's series with Minnesota, which is currently second behind North Dakota, could be the last home appearance for seniors Steve Schneider, Brian Burke, Kevin Nagurski and Tom Farrell. It could not, though, if the Irish finish in the top four in the standings March 3 and gain home ice for the playoffs. That would mean another home series March 6-7.

(continued on page 17)

IRISH HOCKEY STATISTICS
(Overall 16-13-1; WCHA 15-10-1)
PLAYER-POS.	GP	G	A	TP	P-M	PP	SH	GW
Poulin-C	29	23	17	47	14-28	8	0	1
Meredith-W	28	22	25	39	7-14	5	0	4
Michalek-C	30	13	23	38	9-18	4	2	0
Schneider-W	30	12	25	35	25-58	5	0	0
Weltzin-C	30	10		35	15-30	1	0	4
Humphreys-W	29	12	18	30	17-37	2	5	1
Rothstein-W	27	14	13	27	4-8	1	0	1
Logan-W	30	13	12	25	2-4	1	0	1
Schmidt-D	30	5	15	20	12-24	0	0	1
Brownschidle-D	28	5	15	20	15-30	3	0	1
Friedman-D	30	3	15	18	17-34	0	0	0
Perry-W	29	8	10	18	12-24	0	0	0
Brown-D	29	4	6	10	17-34	0	0	0
Olson-W	17	2	5	7	7-14	0	0	0
Burke-C	27	2	5	7	2-4	0	0	1
Lucia-D	17	0	5	5	2-4	0	0	0
Nagurski-W	27	4	1	5	7-14	0	1	1
Cox-D	13	0	3	3	6-15	0	0	0
Cameron-D	25	0	3	3	29-61	0	0	0
Farrell-W	7	0	2	2	0-0	0	0	0
DuBois-W	3	1	1	2	0-0	0	0	0
Devine-W	10	1	0	1	1	0	0	0
Laurion-G	24	0	1	1	1-2	0	0	0
Collard-W	7	0	1	1	2-4	0	0	0
Gagnon-D	2	0	0	0	0-0	0	0	0
Kania-D	1	0	0	0	0-0	0	0	0
NOTRE DAME	30	154	245	399	223-455*	30	8	15
OPPONENTS	30	149	256	406	205-472	38	1	13

*Includes one bench minor penalty

GOALTENDER STATISTICS
	MIN	GA	AVG	RECORD	SVS	PCT
Laurion	1400	106	4.54	13-9-1	648	.859
Rosenthal	346	34	5.89	3-3-0	170	.833
Schores	70	7	5.98	0-1-0	40	.851
Notre Dame	1816	149*	4.92	16-13-1	856	.852
Opponents	1815	154	5.09	13-16-1	976	.864

WCHA STANDINGS

	W	L	T	TP	GF	GA
North Dakota	15	8	0	36	141	93
MINNESOTA	17	8	1	35	148	94
NOTRE DAME	15	10	1	31	138	122
Minnesota-Duluth	14	9	3	31	140	118
Wisconsin	13	11	2	28	129	121
Michigan Tech	12	12	2	26	130	113
Denver	11	14	1	23	119	148
Colorado	10	14	2	22	127	153
Michigan State	8	18	0	16	95	152
Michigan	6	20	0	12	98	151