Groundclearing for new residence hall to begin

by Maribeth Moran
Staff Reporter

Groundclearing of the site for the proposed new residence hall will begin on Monday, September 7, according to Dr. Timothy O'Meara, University provost. The contractor will begin excavation of the ground on which the new dormitory will be built although the final bid for the structure has not been accepted. This action will facilitate the completion of the dorm by the target date, September 1980.

Work on the actual structure may be started as soon as a bid is accepted by the university. Bids will be out in mid-September and O'Meara is hopeful that work might be started by mid-October.

"If the weather is not too severe it should be suitable for occupation by next September," he said.

The new dorm is part of a two structure modular plan that will eventually house an additional five hundred students. According to O'Meara a major consideration in the expansion of housing facilities is due to an anticipated increase in the enrollment of women. "My guess would be that women would inhabit the dorm in September," he said. The dorm will house two hundred and fifty students in doubles, singles and quads. Plans of the structure showed a large amount of social space as well as an adequate amount of study space.

Optimum enrollment for the university is illustrated in the report of the Committee on University Priorities (COUP), "that the undergraduate enrollment be stabilized at 6600. That the proportion of women and of members of disadvantaged ethnic groups at the University be increased." O'Meara stated that these goals are of a philosophical but also a pragmatic type.

He interprets the report to mean that the university will eventually reach a maximum enrollment and stop there. He stated that Notre Dame will never grow into a sprawling school of 20,000 or more as this is not in keeping with either the tradition or the philosophy of education at this school.

The increased enrollment of women would occur over several years and not all at once. O'Meara also said he believes that the second structure of the new housing project will not be completed by September 1980. The new dorm will have a small chapel and there are plans to build another near the site after both structures are completed.

Wall resigns as security director

by John Ferroli
Staff Reporter

The resignation of Joseph W. Wall, Notre Dame director of security, has put pressure on members of the administration and student government to find a suitable replacement.

Wall recently decided to resign because his wife, who lives and works in Richton Park, Ill., has been unable to find adequate employment in her field in the South Bend area.

Interviewers to find Wall's replacement include James Roemer, dean of students, Bill Roche, student body president, Bill Vita, student body vice-president, and Wall himself. After receiving twenty responses to an advertisement placed in various newspapers, the committee has trimmed the list to three applicants.

"We're looking for someone with the experience, the maturity, the savvy, and the education to accomplish the job," Roemer remarked. Roemer, who will make the final decision on the matter, emphasized that the new director must have the ability to deal with students. "The security director encounters hundreds of students every day," explained Roemer, "and it's terribly important for him to be compatible with the student body."

Roemer stated that he was looking for a director who can train and supervise people work well with local law enforcement agencies, and handle "serious

Dean of Students issues alcohol directive

by Rosemary Mills
Editor-in-Chief

Dean of Students James Roemer will issue two directives concerning alcohol use within the next few days. One directive will reiterate the University's concern with alcohol abuse, particularly in the football stadium, while the second directive will specifically outlaw the presence of kegs and pony kegs anywhere on campus.

Both directives are now being prepared for distribution to the students.

Before completing final drafts of the directives, Roemer consulted with Student Body President Bill Roche, Judicial Coordinator Jim Lare, and Hall Presidents Council Chairperson Ellen Dorney. This process is in keeping with a CLC-initiated recommendation passed last spring which demands that students comment on directives concerning student life 48 hrs. before they are issued. According to Roemer, the use of this process is characteristic of the new philosophy towards Student Affairs. "I believe we have made a really conscientious effort to seek student comments," he said.

'I believe we have made a really conscientious effort to seek student comments'

"Each of the three students received drafts of one directive last May," Roemer explained. After incorporating their suggestions into a second draft, Roemer again submitted the directive for comment.

On the recommendation of Roche, the issues of alcohol abuse and the presence of kegs were divided into two different directives. O'Hare expressed concern that the first directive showed a double standard in its treatment of student and non-student alcohol abuse. The final draft of the directive eliminates this double standard.

In September of 1978,

Roemer issued a directive concerning alcohol abuse which caused concern to many students. The directive instituted a $50 minimum fine with possible "separation from the community" for any student caught drinking alcoholic beverages in the football stadium.

Student reaction resulted in a "student rights forum," but the directive was never rescinded.

The new directive contains the same information about alcohol abuse, but extends the University's concern to cover non-student fans. According to Roemer, no fans will be allowed to bring cans and bottles of any kind into the stadium.

Security personnel, consisting of ND security and off-duty police officers hired by the University, will enforce the directives.

Roemer stressed that, in the past, fans have been stripped of tickets and arrested for intoxication by security personnel although the practice has never been publicized.

The printing of this concern merely reinforces the University policy.

According to Roche, the system of obtaining student comment is very beneficial.

"We believe we've had some very good input into the directive," he commented. "Our primary concern is with student input, and I think this is a step in the right direction."

Both Roche and Student Body Vice-President Bill Vita agreed that the process can work. "I think we've avoided a lot of problems by commenting on the directive before it was issued," Roche concluded.

Pope John Paul II plans to visit six US cities

VATICAN CITY (AP) Pope John Paul II will make a whirlwind tour of six cities in one week when he visits the United States in early October, the Vatican announced yesterday.

It disclosed at the same time that the pontiff considered but then dropped the idea of visiting embattled Northern Ireland.

The Pope will still make his planned visit the Irish Republic on his way to the United States.

The Vatican announcement said Pope John Paul flies to Ireland Sept. 29 for a "pastoral visit" to Dublin, Drogheda, Balwa, the shrine city of Knock, Wexmouth and Limerick. He flies to Boston Oct. 1.

A joint announcement here and by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops in Washington, D.C., said the pope, after leaving Boston, will travel to New York, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Iowa, Chicago and Washington.

Although it had not been previously announced, the Pope was considering a side trip to the Northern Ireland city of Armagh, seat of Ireland's Roman Catholic primate, the Vatican said. But the recent Irish Republican Army murders of 18 British soldiers and Earl Mountbatten of Burma forced him to abandon the plans, it said.

"With deep regret, due to the dreadful murders of recent days, it has now been decided not to include a venue in Northern Ireland in the papal itinerary," said the statement read by chief Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Romeo Panciroli.

The IRA has been fighting to end British rule in Northern Ire-

Judge chooses to try Gacy on all charges collectively

CHICAGO (AP) - Thirty-three murder charges against John W. Gacy, Jr., will be tried together rather than one-by-one, as prosecutors had asked, a judge ruled Tuesday. Circuit Court Judge Louis B. Garippo said at a pretrial hearing that piecemeal prosecution would be time-consuming, repetitive and costly and would not serve the ends of justice. Gacy was indicted on charges of murdering 33 young men and boys with whom he allegedly had sexual relations. Twenty-nine bodies were unearthed on Gacy's property just northwest of Chicago and four were recovered from area rivers. Garippo set Jan. 7 for the opening day of Gacy's trial.

Former Green Beret receives murder conviction

RALEIGH N.C. (AP) Jeffrey Macdonald, a former Green Beret captain, was convicted of murder Wednesday in the slayings of his wife and two young daughters 9½ years ago at their Fort Bragg home. A judge sentenced him to three consecutive life prison terms. Asked whether he had anything to say, Macdonald told U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. with tears in his eyes but in a steady voice, "Sir, I'm not guilty. I don't think the court has heard all the evidence. That's all I have to say." A federal court jury deliberated six hours and 35 minutes after a 7 week trial before finding Macdonald, 35, guilty of first-degree murder in the bludgeoning and stabbing slaying of his 2-year old daughter, Kristen. The jury convicted him of second-degree murder in the deaths of his pregnant wife, Colette, 26, and daughter, Kimberly.

Department to investigate Marble Hill happenings

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The Justice Department will investigate allegations that concrete flaws at the Marble Hill nuclear construction site were ordered covered up by supervisors. U.S. Attorney Virginia Dill McCarty said she will meet Thursday with FBI agents and inspectors from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission to determine how her office will investigate the matter. Mrs. McCarty said she and other attorneys from her office will add interviews on the Marble Hill construction problems to the agenda of a previously planned trip to New Albany tomorrow.

Catholics to honor St. Francis of Assisi

WEST PATERSON N.J. (AP) To honor St. Francis of Assisi, patron saint for animals, a Roman Catholic priest here is among those asking parishoners to bring their cats, dogs and parakeets to church. The Rev. Albert Gorayes, pastor of St. Ann's Byzantine Catholic Church, will bless all kinds of pets Sunday during a dedication ceremony for an outdoor shrine in the Saint's honor. The parish intends to make the blessing of animals an annual event bringing attention to man's responsibility "for all God's creatures," said Anne Esses, a parishoner coordinating the activities. St. Francis of Assisi, whose feast is Oct. 4, founded the Franciscan order. In 1208, in his Canticle of the Sun, he called animals his "brothers and sisters."

Mestrovic period

Work begins on major archival

Final work is in progress at the University of Notre Dame Art Gallery for a major archival project centering around the American period of Ivan Mestrovic, the noted Croatian sculptor who served on the faculty between 1955 and his death in 1962. Phase two of the project, his Yugoslavian period, is expected to be completed in advance of a major exhibition noting the 100th anniversary of the artist's birth in 1884.

Financing for the project, which includes written, photographic and artistic material, comes from University funds matching a $3,000 grant from the Indiana Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. Assisting Dr. Dean A. Porter, project director, are Diana Matthias and Denise Dupres of the University Art Gallery Staff.

Mestrovic was the first living artist to be honored with "one-man exhibitions" at both New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and London's Victoria Alber Museum, and was described by Rodin as "the greatest phenomenon among the sculptors of the world." Among his more famous works are "The Descent from the Cross" (Pieta), in Notre Dame's Sacred Heart Church and the Indians astride horses at the entrance to Chicago's Grant Park.

Winds up to 140 mph. Hurricane threatens Carribean

San Juan, Puerto Rico (AP) - Hurricane David moved over the Caribbean yesterday lashing three small islands with heavy rains and winds up to 140 mph. The storm was headed toward Puerto Rico, 350 miles to the northwest. The hurricane, one of the most dangerous ever to strike the region, passed between Martinique and Dominica yesterday afternoon after skirting east of Barbados. The U.S. National Weather Service said. David missed population centers and there were no reports of casualties, serious damage or unusual flooding. U.S. Coast Guard officials here said they were worried about 10 people posted at a weather station on the tiny Venezuelan island of Aves, about 100 miles due west of Dominica and in the hurricane's path. "The island is right at sea level" a spokesman said. "If it hit there, it could be trouble." Hurricane force winds radiated

50 miles from the center of the storm, and gale winds of up to 74 miles an hour reached 150 miles from the hurricane, which was moving northwest at 14 mph. The Coast Guard said the storm could approach the southeast coast of Puerto Rico by late Thursday. Telephone communications to many islands in the Lesser Antilles were out yesterday, including lines to Barbados, Martinique, St. Lucia and St. Vincent, officials of the Puerto Rico Telephone Co. said. If David, now located about 1,300 miles southeast of Miami, maintains course it would pass south of Puerto Rico and hit the Dominican Republic on Hispaniola Island. However, hurricanes are known to shift direction erratically. Oil Clark of the National Hurricane Center in Miami said it was "too difficult to tell" where David will go. "It's coming toward the United States. That's all you can say now," Clark said. As the storm moved over the Caribbean, weather officials extended the hurricane watch to Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands, located about 1,000 miles southeast of Miami and 1,600 miles from New York. "We've given a code two for the south coast, which means we have begun to alert residents in the zone to make the necessary preparations, said a Coast Guard spokesman on Puerto Rico.

situations." Vita stressed the importance of a "commitment from the security director to attend to student needs." As representatives of the student body, Vita believes that he and Bill Roche must know the problems of the students and the frustration they subsequently encounter with security officers. "We're looking for someone with a good degree of adaptability and flexibility in his view of the job - someone who will protect the students, not police them," Vita said. Through his own experience, Wall sees the need for the security director to have both a sense of humor and a sensitivity to students. Wall, however, thinks the new director may need more than that. "My biggest headache as security director has been trying to get more money appropriated to enlarge parking facilities," Wall remarked. Echoing the views of the other committee members, Wall conveyed a strong commitment to improving the training of security officers. He said that the present force is "greatly improved over last year," owing to a thirty-hour training program which they participated in over the summer.

Soviets claim U.S. influence major factor in Bolshoi dancer's defection

MOSCOW (AP) - Bolshoi Ballet defector Alexander Godunov was lured away from his homeland "by a whole team of instigators promising him mountains of gold and a sea of free whiskey," a Soviet newspaper charged yesterday. But in New York, the dancer told a different story.

Literaturnaya Grzeta, a prominent weekly, said the plan by U.S. "provocateurs" worked and on Aug. 23, Godunov disappeared without saying a word to his ballerina wife, Ludmilla Vlasova.

It claimed the dancer held off the "siege" he was under until these trappers of men's souls decided to strike at his psyche, planting in the American press dirty slanderous rumors about his wife in order to persuade the husband to leave her and to break him spiritually."

But Godunov himself, at a New York news conference Wednesday, said his defection was a spur-of-the-moment affair. He said he went to American authorities after missing a curfew for the ballet troupe. He said he knew his tardiness would mean he would not be free later on to approach U.S. officials.

The ballet star told reporters he acted "solely for artistic reasons."

Of his wife, who returned to the Soviet Union after a three-day stalemate at New York's Kennedy Airport over whether she was being forced to go home, Godunov said, "I think that everything is going to be all right. I hope so."

The Literaturnaya Gazeta report was the first account of why the 29-year-old Bolshoi star went to U.S. officials and asked for asylum Aug. 22.

The Soviet press had carefully avoided reporting Godunov's defection until Tuesday, when Tass reported he had dropped from sight and said the circumstances around the incident "are not yet clear."

Godunov's defection set off an international incident when U.S. officials kept an Aeroflot jetliner carrying Miss Vlasova from leaving New York last Friday until she could be questioned by American authorities. A compromise was reached Monday and the plane flew to Moscow.

Literaturnaya Gazeta accused U.S. agents with beginning their attempts to win Godunov to the American side as early Aug. 1 when the 150 member Bolshoi troupe began its New York tour.

In an interview with Literaturnaya Gazeta Miss Vlasova was quoted as saying she began trying to return to the Soviet Union as soon as Godunov disappeared from the company, fearing something "awful" would happen to her.

Although a brief rainstorm damped many of today's activities, the sun, nonetheless, continues to shine.

Members of liturgy planning committees, diocesan liturgical commissions, directors of religious education, and other interested persons are invited to attend the workshop at Fatima Retreat House on the University of Notre Dame campus.

Junk mail bombards California man's doorstep

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP)-M. Douglas Carothers says his doorstep was bombarded by 7,000 pieces of junk mail in a year long silent war with a neighbor that started over the planting of an olive tree.

Vincent Luigi Napoli, a computer engineer, was in jail yesterday after being booked for investigation of a charge stemming from the fusillade of letters, technical manuals and gadgets delivered to Carothers' house.

The war zone for this suburban battle 45 miles south of San Francisco was a common property line, where it is alleged that Napoli planted an olive tree about a year ago.

Postal inspector Bob Kong said Carothers, an attorney, objected and won the first round when the tree was moved over to Napoli's side of the line.

Not long after that, Carothers says, he started being deluged by unwanted mail and Napoli

"stopped talking to me."

"I certainly hadn't asked for any of the mail," said the attorney. "It went on for a year...I estimate I got about 7,000 pieces. I had a 3-foot stack in my bedroom."

"We got to know the truck drivers pretty well," he added ruefully.

Carothers said he was getting at least 20 pieces of junk mail a day, and at one point tried to fight the flood with a form letter advising the companies he didn't want their goods and asking them to quit sending him stuff. "I spent more than $100 on postage," he said.

Carothers said that while he was scratching his head over the unwanted flood, piles of material arrived at his house--books of all kinds, electronic and architectural manuals. He said some actual goods also arrived "which I turned away at the door."

Emmons' haircare center provides up to date styles

by Robbie Moore
Staff Reporter

Joe Emmons believes that "hair is basically a unisex item--what works well for a man also works well for a woman." His new unisex haircare center, located in the lower level of Badin Hall, is designed to cater to the needs of a fast-growing segment of today's society--that set who does not have a lot of time to spend on their hair, relying instead on the haircare specialist for "maintenance."

Typically a part of this group is college students, male and female alike.

Emmons is a graduate of Indiana State and a resident of Mishawaka. He has been cutting hair since he set up shop in his dorm room in 1963.

He found hairstyling "so exciting" that he left his studies in pre-med and geology to become a full-time professional hairspecialist.

Emmons saw a lot of untapped business at Notre Dame. He decided to capture the market, but not in "beauty parlor style." His shop is pleasant though plain, arranged in booths for a private yet open look. And Emmons has room for expansion.

At the moment, he is operating the unisex center under the care of Cindy Berger, his shop manager. In the future he plans to take on two more master stylists--one man and one woman. In proper keeping with the unisex theme, this move will maintain the staff in equal male to female ratio.

Like Cindy, Emmons' new stylists will both be qualified beauty school graduates, with advanced education in clinics and seminars. "You fade out if you don't keep up in this field," Emmons said.

He intends to keep his staff up to date on all current trends in haircare by sending them to the various shows and clinics available.

One of the more recent developments in haircare offered by Emmons is the foam permanent. It provides soft curls and "is ideal" for ND jocks, according to Emmons--with towel-drying and a quick fluff with the fingers, it's ready to go. Emmons "recommends it for the bad hairline and promises it will not burn the hair."

Another popular development is called "tortoise-shelling," a current trend in coloring. A type of highlight-

On Oct. 4, he will fly to Des Moines for several hours, then to Chicago, where he stays until Oct. 6, flying then to Washington for a two-day stay. A scholar who knew the value of friendship

Dear Editor:

Amid the rush of classes beginning once again, Professor Joseph Evans was buried this week. He was a quiet scholar, and I never knew him, but my daughter Fran did. She never studied philosophy, but in two short weeks she learned much about the art of friendship from him.

Fran worked in the cafeteria this summer and she sat and talked with Professor Evans when he ate his dinner alone. The simplicity and warmth of his friendship lit up her summer. Now Fran is in Mexico for her sophomore year. She doesn't know that her friend is gone, and it will be a real sorrow for her when she gets our letter.

I am writing this for her so that Professor Evans' other friends may remember to say a prayer of grateful thanks for the gift of a man who was a scholar, and yet knew the value of friendship and gave it to those around him.

Friends for Life oppose upcoming conference

Editor's Note: The following letter refers to a National Conference on Abortion which will be held at Notre Dame, October 15-17. The conference is sponsored by the Center for the Study of Man in Contemporary Society.

Dear Editor:

Announcement of the University of Notre Dame's upcoming uncluttered abortion debate prompted me to write Rev. James Burtchael, conference Convenor, to ask if any other subject would get the same kind of "neutral" treatment the abortion debate is scheduled to get.

Using the conference brochure and substituting the word "sacerdicide," or the "killing of Catholic priests," for abortion I asked if a totally unemotional, uncluttered discussion of that issue would fit into their format:

The question of killing of priests entails issues of social welfare, human and civil right, ethical value, public funding policy, emotional integration, professional probity, health care and political dissent. The debate about sacerdicide has at times been shrill and intemperate, but in a certain sense it has been timely and in a good way, provocative. We are pushed by it to consider and to negotiate some issues close to personal conscience and the national welfare that we might otherwise be tempted to ignore.

Notre Dame's Center for the Study of Man in Contemporary Society is, for this reason, convening a conference on the killing of Catholic priests. Speakers at the conference have been invited with two purposes in mind: first, to provide information or interpretation that might help to unclutter the national debate of unfounded assumptions or misconstrued facts; second, to address some important policy issues that the killing of Catho- lic priests debate stirs up but cannot resolve.

What are the circumstances and given motives of men and women who secure the killing of Catholic priests? What is known psychologically about these women, and about others who experience the burden of unwanted clergy but do not choose to kill their priests? What is the reliability of reports, abundant but conflicting, of social science research regarding sacerdicide?

Amid different polls and conclusions, what is the best verifiable sense of public opinion regarding the morality, the legality, or the funding of sacerdicide? Is there any avenue of ethical inquiry down which parties on opposing sides might journey together?

Speakers hold a variety of personal and political positions on the acceptability of sacerdicide. Each has been invited because he or she has cogent and articulate things to say which can contribute professionally to anyone's thinking on the subject of the killing of Catholic priests from whatever perspective.

Inflation in the nursery

by art buchwald

The opening of the school year and the tight money situation are working hardships on many parents throughout the country. My friend Block was in despair when I saw him the other day. "When Roger was born," Block said, "we immediately took out an insurance policy for his education. Now because of inflation and the high cost of schooling, we've used it all up, and Roger still has six months to go." "College is that expensive?" I asked. "What do you mean, college?" Block said. "Roger goes to nursery school." "Nursery school, huh?" "Twenty-five hundred dollars a year, not counting the year-book or the prom," Block said. "I guess our big mistake was sending Roger to prenursery school. You start a kid at three in school, and then you have no money left for his serious education when he becomes five. If I had to do it all over again, I would probably let him stay in his sandbox, but Alice was adamant about his getting a good, solid background."

"Couldn't you borrow some money from the bank to let Roger finish out nursery school?"

"Well, we did borrow a thousand dollars at the beginning of the summer."

"What happened to it?"

"We used it to send Roger to day camp."

"At least the money wasn't wasted," I said. "Aren't there any government grants for kids who want to finish out nursery school?"

"I looked into it. Most of the grants available are in graduate work for children who are either in the fifth grade or above. The particular nursery school that Roger goes to could have gotten a large grant from the government if it was willing to do research in germ warfare. But the headmistress said she wouldn't allow her children to do any research at the school that couldn't be published later."

"I guess scholarships are out?" I said.

"You don't understand," Block said. "It just isn't the tuition that kills you in nursery school. It's the school bus, finger paints, clay, and chocolate milk that really mounts up the cost. You have to add another $1,500 for that."

"It's like a yacht," I said. "It isn't the initial cost but the upkeep that counts."

"Exactly. I went to Yale for what it's costing me to send Roger through nursery school. But when I tell him this, it doesn't seem to faze him at all. Kids take everything for granted these days."

"You haven't suggested to Roger that he could wait on tables to earn part of the tuition himself?"

"Alice is against it. She says nursery school should be a happy time for a child, and a kid shouldn't have to worry about working just because his father hadn't made adequate plans for his education."

"You do seem to be in a spot," I admitted. "But I guess the day Roger graduates from nursery school, you'll realize all the sacrifice and agony were worthwhile."

"I probably would, but Roger has already indicated he wants to go to first grade."

Nine Lives Tour - 1979

Review by Mark Perry

The ascent of various rock and roll bands to the top of the heap has taken a dramatic turn in the late 1970's, as several bands have enjoyed the proverbial "overnight success." Bands like Boston, The Cars, Dire Straits, Foreigner, and several others have made it platinum on their very first attempt, some without benefit of a tour, and this trend doesn't seem to be letting up.

One of the exceptions to this rule visited the ACC last night to provide the first concert of the fall semester. REO Speedwagon has been around quite a few years (I can still remember when they played high schools in the Chicago area), and had to pay their dues before they finally made it to the big time. Live performances gave them the recognition that they needed, as their "Live--You get What You Play For" album gained national attention, and they haven't looked back since. Last night's show was solid evidence that they haven't forgotten their roots.

Their present tour has been designed to promote the latest Speedwagon production, "Nine Lives", and most of the first half of the show was devoted to cuts from this album. "Only the Strong Survive" stood out as possible Top 40 material, but most of the tunes seemed to follow the same formula: a couple of verses with a catchy chorus, a solo by lead guitarist Gary Richrath, the chorus again, and then the big finish. It may be formula, but it seems to work.

But the crowd came to hear the REO classics, and the boys delivered. "Roll With the Changes" kicked off the second set, featuring a fine organ solo by keyboardist Neil Doughty and some dynamic guitar work by Richrath.

After another song from the new album, REO devoted the rest of the show to cuts off their live album. Lead singer Kevin Cronin added some new twists to the old favorites, as he provided some of the stories related to these songs as he pranced around in his sky blue tights.

Favorites like "Keep Pushin'", "157 Riverside Ave." (featuring the musical phone conversation between Cronin and Richrath), and "Ridin' the Storm Out" had the crowd screaming for more. The band finished with two encores, including a fantastic version of "Golden Country" that made the album cut seem minor and a version of "Rock and Roll Music" that would have made Chuck Berry proud.

Watching a band like REO perform is proof that overnight success might not be the best way to the top. The Speedwagon is a band with a few years of seasoning, and the intensity of last night's concert was a sound indication that a little seasoning doesn't hurt in rock and roll.

After talks stall

Clerks strike Rock Island Line

CHICAGO (AP) - About 1,800 clerks struck the Rock Island Line Railroad yesterday, disrupting movement of grain, perishable produce, coal and industrial goods on its 7,200 miles of track in 13 states.

The union's picket lines were honored by other workers throughout the system and only one train got out after the strike began, said Chris Knapton, vice president for public relations. The strike was called at 6 a.m. after talks broke down in a long-standing wage dispute.

Knapton said 60 to 70 veteran engineers were flown from Chicago to get the trains moving again and supervisors would take over as switchers and brakemen.

The railroad normally operates 100 trains a day in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee and Nebraska.

In Washington, E.C., the National Mediation Board rejected a request from the railroad to study the dispute.

Chairman Robert O. Harris said the board does not believe the strike threatens to deprive any section of the country of essential transportation service. He said he does not "now expect that a presidential emergency board will be appointed." Appointment of such a board would automatically end the strike for 60 days.

Fred J. Kroll, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks union, called for "rolled up sleeves collective bargaining" by management. He said the walkout was prompted by Rock Island's failure "to negotiate realistically" on pay issues and its rejection of binding arbitration of the dispute.

Knapton said the current wage rate, "which averages about $7 to $8 an hour," is not the issue. "It's retroactive pay back to early 1978 that amounts to about $14 million and we just haven't got it."

He said the rail line would attempt to get the trains moving again within the next few days.

"We'll haul grain to Kansas City and use other carriers to take it to the Gulf Coast," Knapton said. "Twenty-five percent of all grain we carry is for overseas shipment--a $3 billion business. The corn harvest is almost here, but some has been stored and waiting shipment since 1977."

"The soybean harvest is a month away. Wheat harvest was in late June and early July in Oklahoma and Kansas. Much of it is stored awaiting shipment," Knapton said.

The nation's grain shipments already had been threatened by a strike by grain millers in the Midwest, now in its eighth week, which has all but halted shipments from Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis. Talks were to resume yesterday.

Knapton said supervisory personnel will get coal from Colorado to utilities in Nebraska and Iowa, and priorities also will be given to "hot cars" with perishable produce and other items which need quick shipment.

U.S. Navy initiates moves against racism ; seeks to attract more black recruits

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Navy ordered a crackdown on "racist activities" yesterday and said it is seeking to increase black recruitment with special training.

The two-pronged action came in response to strong criticism of Navy policies by black congressional leaders and because the Navy is failing to meet its overall recruiting goals.

Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations, sent all of his ship and shore commanders a strongly worded order to use their full powers to "deal effectively with racist activity."

"Prejudice and preparedness are incompatible," Hayward told his commanders while hinting that their careers will be affected by the way they handle racial problems.

"Recent incidents within the Navy involving racist organizations highlight the need for every commander... to be fully aware of command responsibilities for enforcing anti-discrimination policies," the Navy's top admiral said.

Hayward did not specify the organizations, nor did he detail the incidents. But there have been reports of Ku Klux Klan activity aboard at least two Atlantic fleet ships.

Last month, Kathleen Carpenter, the Pentagon's civil rights chief, expressed concern about "a dramatic increase in manifestations of KKK activity," among off-duty service personnel.

While Hayward's order was being made public, the Navy announced a new "upward mobility" program. Under the plan, those recruits who failed to score high enough on test scores to enter Navy specialist training schools will be given remedial education in reading, writing and arithmetic, so they can qualify for such schools.

Officials denied any lowering of standards, saying the purpose is to make blacks and others eligible for better jobs in the Navy rather than limiting many of them to such menial tasks as deckhand and cook.

The result of the special new training, officials said, will be to upgrade the qualifications of more blacks for such specialties as machinists mate, electricians mate and similar technical jobs.

The latest available manpower report shows only 9.4 percent of the Navy's enlisted personnel are black - the lowest of any of the armed services. Blacks had about 43,000 of the Navy's 462,000 enlisted men and women.

Navy manpower officials acknowledged Wednesday that the new "bootstrap" programs were necessary because it appears the service will fall about 4,500 men and women short of its recruiting goals in Fiscal 1979, which ends Sept. 30.

Summer days are over as students once again settle into college life at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame.

IRA steps up sectarian violence

LONDON (AP) - The Irish Republican Army's assassinations of Lord Louis Mountbatten in the Irish Republic and 18 British soldiers in Northern Ireland mark a new and bloody escalation in the IRA's guerrilla war to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

British security chiefs say the guerrillas, the successors of generations of Irish rebels who fought the British, now are better armed and organized than at any time since they launched their campaign in February 1971, with connections to terrorist groups around the world.

And military intelligence officials warn the guerrillas are expected to intensify their campaign, including assassinating prominent Britons and renewing bombing of English cities.

They note the guerrillas may soon beef up their increasingly sophisticated arsenal of weapons with SAM anti-aircraft missiles - adding a chilling new dimension to the Irish conflict.

The assassinations made Monday are one of the worst single days of violence since sectarian fighting erupted in Northern Ireland 10 years ago, and climaxed months of mounting attacks by the IRA's "Provisional" wing and other IRA factions against security forces and prominent Britons.

So far this year, 50 British regular army troops, militia men and police officers have been killed by the Provisional IRA and its smaller, but deadly, offshoot, the Marxist-oriented Irish National Liberation Army.

Mountbatten, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth II and a national hero, was the most prominent Briton to die at the hands of Irish nationalists since 1862. When assassins killed Lord Frederick Cavendish, then secretary of state for Ireland, in Phoenix Park.

While fishing in Georgia

President fends off attacker

WASHINGTON (AP) - There are fish stories and then there are rabbit stories, this is a rabbit story.

It also is a president story, which is why there isn't any published picture of the rabbit. Or the president. More on that later.

It seems that President Carter fishing near his home in Plains, Ga., last spring, was attacked by a swimming, hissing rabbit, which made for his canoe.

He beat the beast back with a canoe paddle.

Carter was unharmed. There was no word on the fate of the rabbit.

The rabbit, which the president later guessed was fleeing in panic from a predator, actually toward the canoe from which Carter was fishing in a pond.

It was hissing, teeth bared and nostrils flared, as it headed straight for the president. Carter drove it off with the paddle. But when Carter told the tale of the aquatic attack rabbit, some of his closest aides scoffed. "Everybody knows rabbits don't swim," said one former skeptic.

The president had proof. A White House photographer had made photographs of the president fishing and fending off the bunny last April 20.

Carter ordered a print of the photograph to show the doubters. Even that didn't convince them at first.

"You could see him in the canoe with his paddle raised, and you could see something in the water," said the doubter. "But you couldn't tell what it was. It could have been anything." So the president ordered an enlargement of the photo. "It was a rabbit, all right," said the staff member, after looking at the enlarged photo.

Another aide agreed. "It was a killer rabbit," this aide said. "The president was swinging for his life."

The White House has refused to release the photograph.

"There are just certain stories about the president that must forever remain shrouded in mystery," said deputy press secretary Rex Granum.

District judge named to Board of Trustees

George N. Leighton, U.S. district judge of the Northern District of Illinois, has been named to the Notre Dame Board of Trustees.

Leighton entered Howard University in 1936 as a 24-year-old student whose formal education had ended without a high school diploma. He was graduated with honors in 1940 and went on to Harvard Law School, from which he was graduated, after an interruption for Army service, in 1946. After two years as an Illinois assistant attorney general, Leighton started a law practice which was to become one of the nation's largest predominantly black legal firms.

In 1964 Leighton was elected judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County in Illinois. In 1969 he was assigned as appellate judge on the Illinois First District Appellate Court and the next year was elected to a 10-year term as a justice on that Court, a position he left in 1976 when appointed by President Gerald Ford to the federal bench.

Leighton's appointment brings to 43 the number of Notre Dame trustees.

Faculty awarded fellowships

Two University of Notre Dame faculty members have been awarded fellowships from the American Council of Learned Societies for research projects in the humanities and related social sciences.

Dr. John H. Van Engen, assistant professor of history, was one of 30 recent Ph.D. recipients from nearly 300 applicants to be awarded a fellowship. The title of his research project is "The Life and Works of Rupert of Deutz."

Dr. Elisabeth S. Fiorenza, associate professor of theology, will continue research on "Exegetical-Historical Commentary on the Book of Revelation." She was one of 69 faculty members to receive fellowships for periods of six months to one year.

The American Council of Learned Societies is a private federation of 43 national scholarly associations devoted to the advancement of humanistic studies in all fields of learning. The fellowships are funded by grants from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, Ford Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Jazz bands to hold auditions

Auditions for the Notre Dame Jazz Bands and Combos will be held on Sunday, September 2nd at 1:00 p.m. in the Jazz Band Loft (opposite the Huddle).

There are openings for all jazz related instruments--trumpets, trombones, saxophones, pianos, guitars, drums and especially basses. Anyone with any experience in rock or jazz on electric bass or string bass will be especially welcome.

As springslowly ebbsits way into South Bend a softball tournament and Olympic Week will headline the calendar. Olympic Week will pit individual against individual and team against team in a fun but competitive spirit. Teams will be organized to represent each dorm at Saint Mary's.

In varsity competition Saint Mary's will be competing in the newly-created Division III category. Division III schools offer 0-10 percent of scholarships based on athletic ability. Division II schools offer 10-50 percent athletic scholarships while Division I offers over 50 percent.

Saint Mary's belongs to no league or conference, thus they will compete as an independent school against various Division II and Division III opponents.

An added attraction to this year's agenda begins February 29, when Angela Athletic Facility will be the sight of the Division III State Basketball Championships.

The list of Jerry Dallessio's and Erin Murphy's accomplishments continue as they leave 'summer camp' and plunge into their 'rookie' seasons head-on.

But with their creativity and motivation, Saint Mary's athletic fever will continue to expand daily.

NBA votes to limit coaches' movements

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Basketball Association's Board of Governors voted to limit the movement of coaches and trainers, during games, to a 28-foot area between the baseline and a hash mark to be placed 19 feet from midcourt, League Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Wednesday.

"There was concern that coaches and trainers were roaming too far away from their benches and interfering with the functions of the scorers' table," said O'Brien.

The new rules permits coaches and trainers to go to the scorers' table only during timeouts or between periods, and then only to check statistical information. Violations of the rule will result in a technical foul called against the offending party.

Harn said Robbie "is really

Earlier this year, Harn met with Robert Irsay, owner of the Baltimore Colts, but discounted the latter's comments about possibly moving here.

Central except that the west has the Rams and they should win enough games to get back to the playoffs and lose to Dallas. But the Rams need a few things to insure that their annual cakewalk through the division won't get sidetracked. Coach Ray Malavasi needs to establish either Pat Haden or Vince Ferragamo as his starting quarterback. I'd go with Ferragamo but maybe that's why I'm not coaching in the NFL. The retirement of all-pro Tom Mack will hurt the offensive line-probably more than the loss of middle linebacker Isiah Robertson will upset the defense. Bob Brudzinski will take over for the dissident Robertson and that may even help the Rams.

The Atlanta Falcons will be looking to return to the playoffs and I'm betting they'll be successful. Quarterback Steve Bartkowski has a great arm and, if he can remember that he has running backs as well as receivers, the Atlanta Falcons might win the west. Defensively, they are solid in every department with such stalwarts as Fulton Kuykendall, Greg Brezina and Robert Pennywell returning from last year's 9-7 squad.

San Francisco and New Orleans should fight for the cellar spot with that honor remaining up for grabs until the waning weeks of the season. Neither team shows any sign of improvement from last year but the Saints may have the edge only because San Francisco keeps trading away talented players that they can't afford to lose.

Predicted order of finish: 1. Los Angeles; 2. Atlanta; 3. New Orleans; 4. San Francisco.

Playoff tix printing begins

NEW YORK (AP) Baltimore, California, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Houston were given permission by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Wednesday to print tickets for the league championship playoffs and the World Series.

Baltimore and California are the division leaders in the American League, while Cincinnati and Pittsburgh lead the National League divisions.

None of the five teams was involved in postseason play last year. California and Houston never have been in a league championship playoff or World Series.

The commissioner's office said additional authorizations for printing tickets will be given should the situation dictate.

The league championships begin Tuesday, Oct. 2, and the World Series on Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Dallessio stresses spirit

by Beth Huffman
Women's Sports Editor

Catch the Spirit! No, this is not a medium screaming at a seance. This jargon is the new motto of the Saint Mary's athletic office. Spearheaded by Jerry Dallessio, who is in his first year as the Director of Athletics and Recreation; the campaign was initiated to instill enthusiasm and active support for Saint Mary's varsity and intramural sports, along with individual enjoyment of recreation.

Dallessio, a Notre Dame graduate who replaced former Athletic Director Kathy Cordes, is not an entirely new face on Saint Mary's campus. Last year he served as the Belles basketball coach while teaching at Saint Joseph's High School. Assisting him in his drive for spirited, united sports will be Erin Murphy, a recent graduate of Lewis University in Illinois. Murphy brings with her valuable experience working with the Chicago Recreation Department.

Relying on the hope that "more athletic awareness and involvement will bring support for varsity teams," Dallessio has set two major goals for his office this year. The first aim of Dallessio's plan is to improve intramurals while step two is to simultaneously boost the overall publicity of Saint Mary's athletics.

To aid Dallessio and Murphy in their scheme, they have established the Student Athletic Council (SAC). The council, as defined by Dallessio's office, serves the "purpose of developing and maintaining high-quality athletic programs for student of all interest and abilities."

The SAC will act as a vital link of communication between the students and the athletic office. Publicity for all sports, varsity and intramurals, will also be a chief responsibility of the council. This group will also assume the responsibility for organizing and coordinating non-varsity recreation. Along with its other duties the SAC will function as advisors to Dallessio and Murphy.

Kari Meyer, the commissioner of athletics appointed by Saint Mary's Student Body President Pia Trigliani, will chair the SAC. Joining Meyer on the council will be the Commissioner of Public Relations, Mary A. Shannon, Sports Information Director Cheryl Sweeney, dormitory athletic directors from each of Saint Mary's five residence Halls and four members at large. Shannon, Sweeney, and at-large member Karen Hertz form the council's Publicity Committee while the remaining at large members make-up the Intramural Committee while the remaining at large members make-up the Intramural Committee.

The intramurals and recreation programs have already taken a leap forward, with new programs already on the calendar. Flag football, co-recreational volleyball, a jogging club, and an exercise and weight control program have been slated to begin in September.

A monthly newsletter, complete with an up-to-date calendar, will be published by the SAC to keep students informed of coming events. In keeping with the athletic office's new theme, the newsletter is entitled Spirit.

Ping-pong, pool, and golf tournaments are just a few new intramurals already planned. Also slated are spring and fall tournaments for tennis and racquetball.

The second semester will be highlighted by a basketball

LA hopes to pirate Dolphins

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Kenneth Harn, chairman of both the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors and the Coliseum

Commission, said Wednesday he was confident the Miami Dolphins would move here in 1980 or 1981.

He told a news conference that if there were a betting man, "I would bet heavy" that the Dolphins would become Coliseum tenants.

The Los Angeles Rams move their National Football League team from the Coliseum to Anaheim in nearby Orange County in 1980 and the Local arena is seeking another NFL team to replace them.

Harn said he held a meeting in San Francisco on Tuesday night with Dolphins owner Joe Robbie, who has been having disagreements with city officials in Miami and has threatened to move.

Harn refused to give details of his session with Robbie but said it was "a good, productive meeting. We had fine rapport, and he told me that he was not sluffing...that he was serious about coming to Los Angeles." Harn has headed the search for a professional football team to come to Los Angeles.

Harn said Robbie promised to Predictions - 1979

Eagles, Lions, Rams to lead NFC

I guess I've always been a little skeptical of the so-called "experts" who make their reputation (as well as a comfortable living) predicting who will win a football game. It's not the predictions that bother me--everyone's entitled to his opinion. What irritates me is the way they pompously proclaim that their predictions are one-hundred percent "on the money." They never make a mistake...or at least not before the season.

Consequently, I try to avoid making "absolute sure thing" predictions. But, with NFL football a little more than 48 hours away, I will stick my neck out far enough to say that this is the way the three divisions of the National Football Conference look like they might come out. Maybe.

NFC EAST

I remember seeing Philadelphia play Washington on a Monday night football game in 1976, and I said to myself then that the Eagles were a team of the future. I don't think that anymore.

Because the Eagles' future is now. Coached by crafty Dick Vermeil, the Eagles are coming off a 9-7 season complete with a post-season playoff appearance that many detractors labeled "dumb luck." And it's true that the Eagles got a few breaks--but they took good advantage of them, and that, some say, is the difference between the good teams and the great ones. Match Vermeil with quarterback Ron Jaworski, receiver Harold Carmichael, halfback Wilbert Montgomery and defensive superstar Bill Bergey and the prospect of the Eagles edging out perennial Eastern champion Dallas doesn't seem so crazy after all.

But the Cowboys will be tough (what's new?) again. Coach Tom Landry has had more than his share of injuries and retirements. All-pro safety Charlie Waters is expected to miss the season with a knee injury while Ed "Too Tall" Jones has quit to become a pro boxer and Jethro Pugh has just plain quit.

Offensively, Dallas still has Roger Staubach and Drew Pearson, although there has been no definite word yet as to when all-pro halfback Tony Dorsett will return from a toe injury sustained when he dropped a mirror on his foot. (That's the truth, I swear!)

Dallas' old rivals, the Redskins, have plenty of problems as well. It seems head coach Jack Pardee is committed to wiping out former coach George Allen's legacy of old men and no draft choices. So Pardee is cutting and waiving until his pen is about to run out of ink. But he better make sure he has the youngsters to replace such talent as Harold McClinton, Chris Hanburger, and Bill Kilmer. Some of the old-timers were consistent winners, and, until Pardee can make that same claim, he'd be wise to keep a little experience around the nation's capitol.

Frank

St. Louis did better than anyone expected last season--especially the people who thought Bud Wilkinson would never win an NFL game. Will, I never said that but I will say that he'll never win an NFC East title--or, at least not for a long time.

And that will still be a few years before the New York Giants.

Predicted order of finish: 1. Philadelphia; 2. Dallas; 3. Washington; 4. St. Louis; 5. New York.

NFC CENTRAL

This is an interesting division in that there are five teams that can win it but none of them really should, and very few people care who does. Call it a toss-up, but take a look at these facts:

- 1) Minnesota needs a quarterback.
- 2) Chicago needs a quarterback.
- 3) Green Bay has a quarterback.
- 4) Green Bay needs a defense.
- 5) Detroit has a defense.
- 6) So does Tampa Bay.
- 7) Detroit has an offense.

Predicted order of finish: 1. Detroit; 2. Tampa Bay; 3. Green Bay; 4. Minnesota; 5. Chicago.

NFC WEST

This division is almost as bad as the NFC

McEnroe, Nastase win before downpour hits U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) John McEnroe got through his opening round match against Pavel Slozil of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 Wednesday in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

McEnroe, playing in highly humid conditions, finished his work before afternoon showers started. Those showers washed out much of the afternoon program and all the night action.

Evonne Goolagong Cawley, returning to the U.S. championships for the first time since 1976, was battling little known but tough Kay McDaniel Wednesday.

They were interrupted twice by rain. The second time, they tried to resume play after a 45-minute delay but were chased back inside by another fast hard downpour. McDaniel had won the first set 7-6, Goolagong had taken the second 6-4 and was leading 4-2 in the third.

At 6:30 p.m. with the rain still falling but some sunshine beginning to break through, officials announced that the Goolagong-McDaniel match as well as the others scheduled for Wednesday afternoon would be finished Thursday morning. Those matches included one between 11th-seeded Brian Gottfried and fellow American Van Winitsky.

The Wednesday night matches between third seeded Tracy Austin and Argentina's Ivanna Macruga, and between fifth seeded Roscoe Tanner and Australian John Marks, also were to be played Thursday.

Eddie Dibbs, the ninth seed, was among the few to finish their matches Wednesday. He struggled and got by hard-hitting Tim Wildison 4-6, 2-5, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3.

Ilie Nastase, who was prohibited from playing last year while under suspension for oncourt misconduct, beat Finland's Leo Paliln, who retired with a pulled leg muscle after losing the first two sets 7-5, 7-5.

Nastase, who is still carrying on his love-hate relationship with spectators with his temper and his wit, is set to play McEnroe, and another temperamental player, in the next round.
