CLC proposes changes in hall party; keg policies

by Michael Onufrak
Senior Copy Editor

The Campus Life Council passed a proposal last night which will permit Notre Dame residence halls to determine their "own policy relative to the use of kegs in and only in 'party' rooms." The proposal was submitted by Keenan hall rector and CLC member Fr. Richard J. Conyers and amended by newly-elected CLC parliamentarian Mickey Turzai.

According to the CLC constitution the proposal must now be approved by Fr. John Van Wolvlear, vice-president for student affairs. Van Wolvlear said his decision will be forthcoming within the next two weeks.

Should Van Wolvlear reject the proposal, under the CLC constitution, it may be appealed to the University provost, and ultimately the University president. Van Wolvlear would not comment on the proposal's chances for approval.

Conyers' original proposal had stated that new guidelines for use of kegs within a given hall be drawn up by the rector and his hall staff. Turzai's "friendly amendment" added the hall council to the decision-making process.

If passed by Van Wolvlear, several problems concerning legal liability and transportation of kegs onto campus will be worked out by Student Body President Roche and Dean of Students James Roemer.

The CLC also passed a proposal which would abolish line 3, part 2 from the University "party" room guidelines. This portion of that document, if abolished, would allow for parties to be held in "party" rooms during the week. At present, parties can only be held in the hall "party" rooms on Friday and Saturday evenings.

Roche noted that this proposal was submitted not to promote large keg parties on weekdays, but to make "party" rooms available for more conservative forms of socialization, such as small birthday parties.

A proposal to amend the CLC bylaws was also passed which will bring these bylaws in line with changes in the CLC's make-up made last spring by the Notre Dame Board of Trustees. These changes increased the CLC's numbers from 17 to 19. Added to the CLC were the Student Judicial Co-ordinator and Off-Campus Commissioner.

Besides the two new members, the CLC consists of the vice-president for student affairs, six rectors, four hall vice-presidents, the SBP, a representative from the Hall President's Council, a representative from Student Union, the Dean of Students, and two faculty members.

ACC violence

Officials conclude investigation

by Tom Hay
Senior Staff Reporter

The University yesterday concluded its investigation into alleged violent conduct by ACC officials against T-shirt vendors, according to Thomas Mason, vice-president for business affairs. Mason declined to discuss details of the investigation at this time.

"The question of possible disciplinary action is between the University and its employees," said Mason. "That is our tradition and policy."

The investigative report, compiled by Joseph Wall, director of security, probed into allegations that ACC officials subjected T-shirt vendors to "both verbal and physical abuse" following the August 30th REO Speedwagon concert at the ACC.

The vendors in question were unauthorized to sell at the concert, and were therefore in direct competition with vendors legitimately contracted by the ACC, according to Michael Plouff, managing director of the arena.

Mason would not comment on the alleged violence, although he did admit that a confrontation took place. "Obviously there was some degree of taking goods from vendors," he said. "They were not voluntarily handed over."

Wall said that South Bend police officers were present at the ACC, but it is unclear if they were involved in the scuffle with vendors.

According to Mason, provisions have been made to return

Over troops in Cuba

U.S., Soviets begin negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and the Soviet Union yesterday began what State Department officials say might be a protracted series of negotiations over Soviet troops in Cuba.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who returned to Washington Sunday to represent the Soviets in the talks, scheduled their first meeting on the issue yesterday afternoon.

Dobrynin has been on vacation in the Soviet Union and has not been in Washington since the announcement last month that the Soviet troops had been discovered in Cuba.

Prior to his first meeting with Dobrynin, Vance met in a closed session on Capitol Hill with members of the Senate Armed Services Committee for discussions of the Soviet Cuban situation. The panel also scheduled private testimony from CIA Director Stansfield Turner.

There was no official word about the bargaining positions Vance and Dobrynin would bring to the talks, but State Department officials said they did not expect anything to be settled in the first session.

Last week, Vance and President Carter both said the "status quo" in Cuba is not acceptable, but they refused to say what changes would satisfy them.

Vance has said the administration realizes that the Soviets have had no military advisers in Cuba for many years. It is the recent discovery that 2,000 to 3,000 of them were organized as a combat unit that is a matter of serious concern, he said.

Key members of the senate have been less restrained. Many have said the Soviet troops must be removed if the new strategic arms limitation treaty is to be ratified.

That kind of pressure will make it more difficult to reach a satisfactory solution to the Cuban problem, administration sources have said.

The Soviets have largely kept quiet about the furor. Unofficially, Soviet diplomats have insisted that the troops are not a combat force but are advisers who have been in Cuba for many years.

They say the Cubans have a right to invite the Soviets to their island, and that there is nothing in U.S.-Soviet understandings of 1962 and 1970 that bars them.

The State Department conceded the latter point last week, saying the agreements that settled the 1962 Cuban 'Missile crisis and the 1970 Cien-fuegos submarine base crisis covered only offensive weapons systems and not combat troops.

A hint about the possible Soviet position emerged over the weekend when an official Soviet radio commentator made mention of the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

The commentator noted that the United States has persistently refused to discuss abandoning the base, which it has held since 1903 on an indefinite lease.

The commentator did not say whether Soviets would offer to withdraw their troops in return for American withdrawal from Guantanamo.

DIA predicts greater arms flow into Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Defense Intelligence Agency has predicted a "steady flow" of new weapons to Cuba, aimed at increasing the firepower of Fidel Castro's forces.

In a heavily censored version of a report to Congress, DIA experts said, "The weapons could be used equally well in any arena."

The Pentagon's intelligence agency estimated that Russia has given Cuba more than $1.6 billion in free military aid since 1960.

"The state of readiness of the Cuban army continues to improve," the DIA said. "This is because of increased combat experience in Africa, intensified training at home and delivery of a new weapons system."

The report given behind closed doors to a House Subcommittee last April and released recently, said Russia may send Cuba bigger assault guns, mobile surface-to-surface missiles, interceptor versions of the advanced MiG-23 jet fighter, larger troop transport helicopters and additional ocean-going combat vessels.

The censored version of the report made only indirect references to Soviet military personnel in Cuba and said nothing about the Russian ground combat brigade there whose presence was recently confirmed by the Carter administration.

House Budget Committee advises increased spending

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the House Budget Committee yesterday recommended increased spending for energy, defense and anti-recession programs. He vowed to resist any tax cut for 1980. The package outlined by Rep. Robert Giaimo, D. Conn., would raise the deficit by $10 billion above the $23 billion level anticipated just four months ago. Most of the proposed spending increases were blamed on lingering inflation and the new recession. Even as Republicans pressed for a major individual and business tax cut, Giaimo told a news conference "It would be the absolute height of folly" to cut taxes at this time. "It would be a disaster."

O'Neill contends Kennedy could have nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill contended yesterday that his fellow Massachusetts Democrat, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, could have the 1980 presidential nomination if he decided to challenge President Carter for it. "I don't think that he could be denied the Democratic nomination if he were to run," O'Neill told reporters at his daily news conference.

But O'Neill said he is still going under the assumption that Carter will be renominated and that Kennedy will not enter the race.

house price tag

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) - She may be one of the world's richest people, but shipping heiress Christine Onassis Kauzov says $6 million is too much to pay for a house. Mrs. Kauzov, the 22-year-old daughter of the late shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, was shocked when she was told about that price tag for a local house during a party last week in this Southern California beach resort. "Who could afford to pay that much for a house?" said Mrs. Kauzov, whose fortune is believed to be about $500 million. "A boat maybe. But not a house."

Pig manure gives added texture to gridiron

NORTH CONWAY N.H. (AP) A New York team has won the annual Mud Bowl football game, which left the players talking more about the texture and aroma of the field than about the score. The New York Hamslammers of Holland patent, slipped by the defending champion Mount Washington Valley Hogs 6-0 in overtime Sunday, in knee-deep mud that also contained a little pig manure. "It (the manure) gives better texture and a nice aroma," said Bob Gnaka of the Hogs. "Playing in the mud is also a warm feeling."

Brown speaks in New Hampshire

Nashua, N. H. (AP) - California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. arrived in New Hampshire yesterday with a political road team that bore all the trappings of a presidential campaign except for a formally declared candidate.

More than 200 reporters, photographers and video and film cameramen from six nations were on hand for Brown's 12-hour trip to seek support for an expected bid for the 1980 Democratic Presidential nomination.

New Hampshire is home of the nation's earliest primary each presidential election year. This year it will be held Feb. 26.

Brown, 41, opened his visit with a sharp criticism of President Carter and his handling of surveillance of Cuba, where the presence of a Soviet combat unit was recently discovered.

Placement Night moved

Richard Willemin, director of placement, has announced that Placement Night for students in Arts & Letters has been moved from Sept. 10 to Sept. 17.

Other events will unfold as scheduled.

Pre-Law schedules meeting

Tomorrow the Pre-Law Society will hold a special meeting from 7-9 p.m. in the Library Auditorium for all Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors interested in law school.

Robert J. Waddick, ass't. dean of the college of arts and letters and pre-law advisor, will speak on preparation for law school and answer any questions.

In a meeting with prominent state Democrats, he castigated the president's handling of the nation's problems, saying Carter tried to do too much and accomplished too little.

In addition to his scheduled visits with party leaders, Brown planned to attend two political picnics, including the traditionally well-attended Hillsborg County event in Nashua that also drew Lillian Carter, mother of President Carter.

Brown came amid wide speculation that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., soon would enter the 1980 White House campaign. Kennedy let it be known late last week that his family had dropped objections to his seeking the presidency.

President Carter has not said formally that he will seek second term and neither Kennedy nor Brown has made an official announcement of presidential intentions.

Moments after Brown arrived at a Bedford hotel, he sped off to a nearby Roman Catholic church for a folk Mass.

the confiscated goods to the parties involved. "We have notified the complainants that they can pick up their goods upon identification," he said.

Mason predicted that the incident may result in certain policy changes concerning security at concerts. "Out of the last concert came a need for reviewing procedures for the future," he said. "We must decide who is to do what."

Wall said he would meet with Notre Dame security, South Bend police, St. Joseph County police, and the South Bend prosecutor's office sometime this week. "We will discuss our arrest authority and what our powers will be," he said.

Wall explained that a combination of Notre Dame, South Bend, and St. Joe County officers patrol the ACC, the Stadium, and Steppan Center during public events.

Roemer appoints new bar managers

by Stephen Sharp

Dean of Students James Roemer has appointed Craig Zebold and Dick Wallach to fill vacant posts at the Senior-Alumni Club. Zebold is now the club manager, and Wallach steps in as inventory manager.

According to Tom McGrath, the club's general manager, Zebold and Wallach, both finance majors, have worked at the club as bartender-bouncers since last spring's Junior Night at Senior Bar. When the two managerial positions opened up they expressed their interest to McGrath.

"I chose Craig and Dick from the rest of the staff because they showed the most interest and were most qualified to fill the positions. They know how the bar runs," said McGrath.

Traditionally, Roemer appoints the inventory manager in the fall and the club manager in the previous spring. This summer, however, a problem arose.

Although Roemer had approved Joe "Shaz" Sherer as club manager last April, he withdrew his approval in July after learning of some "irregularities" in the Grace hall food sales operation which Sherer managed last year. "After appointing Sherer on the strength of his food sales management, we discovered that the operation left something to be desired," said Roemer.

Sherer was unavailable for comment.

After interviewing Zebold, Roemer approved his application for club manager to replace Sherer. "I'm sure that Craig and Dick will do an excellent job at the club this year," Roemer emphasized. "They are both well qualified."

As club manager, Zebold is responsible for setting up "club night" reservations. Any group or firm interviewing on campus may reserve the bar for a Monday or Tuesday night, and Zebold's responsibility is to drum up reservations and advertise specials. He also handles the staff payroll, while McGrath handles all liquor and beer orders.

Inventory manager Wallach is responsible for keeping tabs on the club's food sales and all other bar supplies.

... Cuba

It said that Cuba's military, economic, and political ties with the Soviet Union are "closer than ever" and that deliveries of Russian military equipment "greatly increased" in dollar value last year.

"Traditionally, Cuba has had to settle for older systems while other Moscow client states received more recent production," said DIA analyst Martin J. Scheina.

"Of late, however, in line with the professionalization of the military, Cuba has been taking deliveries on systems comparable to those received by Moscow's other allied states."

In addition to Cuba's extensive involvement in Africa, DIA reported "a noticeable increase in Cuban support or Latin America insurgents."

The report linked what it described as a "resurgence" of Cuban activity in Latin America particularly to the then-raging battle by Sandinista rebels to overthrow the Somoza regime in Nicaragua.

But it also spoke of close Cuban relations with Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley and of ties with Guyana.

At last night's meeting all were present except for the faculty representatives who have not yet been chosen.

The Board of Trustees also ruled that the vice-president for student affairs and the dean of students will attend all CLC meetings and become full voting members. In the past, these two members had attended every third meeting. The bylaws were amended to allow for this also.

In other business, the CLC elected Roche CLC chairman, marking the third consecutive year the SBP has been elected to the position.

The meeting, which began at 7 p.m., was adjourned at 9:15 p.m. The CLC's next meeting will be held in the Grace hall basement, Sept. 20 at 6:30 p.m.

Stepan Center hosts annual activities night

by Tricia Beaujean

Activities Night took place at the Stepan Center last night, drawing a large number of students to a carnival-like atmosphere filled with information booths. All conventional as well as novelty clubs were represented.

Activities Night allows Notre Dame and St. Mary's students to get an overall look at all the clubs and organizations open to them. Over 80 booths were set up with interests ranging from non-denominational religion to water polo.

One of the new organizations is "Gamers." According to its president Joe Wheaton, "Gamers" is a referral club which will attempt to match partners for war games and other games of Wheaton's design. Another game organization is the Euchre and Rook club for strategy card game players with or without experience.

There were as many member-alluring approaches as there were organizations. A small demonstration by the Tve Kwon Do club attracted a crowd and a round of applause. The sky-diving photo section attempted to convince spectators of the sports glory.

Most booths, however, relied on information leaflets along with friendly smiles to recruit new members.

Cleveland court orders school desegregation

CLEVELAND (AP) - After years of delay and vows of resistance, Ohio's largest city began court-ordered desegregation of schools yesterday by busing 3,100 pupils to classes. Officials reported minor confusion and attendance slightly below normal.

However, William Tonko, principal of John Marshall High in a white neighborhood, said yesterday's experience "was not any kind of test" because not all students were scheduled to be in class. Meanwhile, in Columbus, the second largest district in Ohio, a more extensive busing plan entered its third day yesterday with no problems and a full complement of students in class. In Dayton, where busing for desegregation is in its fourth year, no mishaps have occurred.

In Cleveland, opening days were staggered for the various grade levels, with all students scheduled to be in class Thursday.

That was a 76 percent turnout at those schools. On a normal first day, an 85 percent attendance would be expected, he said.

In Cleveland, there were mix-ups on bus assignments and confusion over the staggered starting schedule and one anti-busing group urged parents to keep their children home.

The group, Citizen's Opposed to Rearranging Kids, managed to attract about 100 people, 60 of them children, to an all-day, stay-out-of-school picnic, but police said there were no major incidents.

Some students spent up to an hour on rides from either the mostly white west side to the predominantly black east side, or vice-versa, in the industrialized Lake Erie port city of 600,000.

"As long as it's no problem, I'm going to stay. It's no big thing. I just want to get through school," said Elvin Towns, a black who was bused to John Marshall High which had more than 90 percent enrollment last year.

The school was the scene of one of the few demonstrations yesterday. Fifteen young adults claiming to be members of the Revolutionary Communist Party shouted pro-desegregation slogans.

Ohio's largest public school system has an enrollment of 88,000 students, two-thirds non-white. Of that total, about 26,000 pupils in 26 elementary, four junior highs and three high schools were affected by desegregation, and only 9,500 will be bused to achieve desegregation by the time all classes are in session Thursday morning.

A Closer Look at 'Townies': Breaking Away

Mark Perry

Life after high school can be a trying time for some people. While most prep graduates go on to further education, the college life is not meant for everyone.

"Breaking Away," one of the surprise movie hits of 1979, centers on the lives of four teenagers in their first year out of high school, and their attempts to sort out their lives in a college town.

Based on a screenplay by Steve Tesich, a graduate of Indiana University, "Breaking Away" was filmed in and around the campus of Indiana University. The film focuses on the lives of the 'cutters', a name given the 'townies' in Bloomington, Indiana because many of the adults in the town worked cutting stone from the nearby quarries when they were younger.

The main character is Dave, played by Dennis Christopher. Because of his fascination with bike racing, Dave imagines himself as an Italian racer, the best in the world. He transforms himself into an Italian, talking in Italian at home, playing Italian music, and even shaving his legs like the Italian racers do.

Needless to say, Dave's actions disturb his parents quite a bit. Dave's father (Paul Dooley), a former stone cutter and now a used car salesman, is especially concerned, worried that his son is going to turn out to be a no-good bum. Dave's mother (Barbara Barrie) is more concerned about what Dave's fantasies are doing to her husband's health and to the family.

The relationship between these three characters provides some humorous moments, but also gives us some of the movie's most tender moments.

The leader of this group of "cutters" is Mike (Dennis Quaid), a former high school quarterback who is having trouble adjusting to the fact that he is not the star anymore. The source of Mike's frustrations are the college students, because Mike believes he is just as good as they are, but he begins to have doubts when it seems that the students are always the winners.

The other two members of this quartet are Cyril (Daniel Stern) and Moocher (Jackie Earle Haley). Cyril must contend with his father, who thinks of his son as a failure and enjoys giving Cyril sympathy.

Moocher's problem is that he is short, something that he does not enjoy being reminded of.

While Dave is cruising past the high school, he encounters a pretty college girl, Kathy (Robin Douglass), and succeeds in convincing her that he is an Italian exchange student. He falls in love, and convinces Cyril to play guitar while he serenades Kathy outside her sorority house. Kathy's boy friend, Rod (Hart Bochner), is informed of the proceedings, Cyril is left behind after Dave and Kathy take off for a bike ride, and is roughed up by Rod and his friends.

This incident leads to a confrontation between the "cutters" and the college students at the local bowling alley, and college officials are forced to deal with the conflict. It is decided that the "cutters" will be allowed to have an entry in Indiana's annual "Little 500" bicycle race. For Dave,

Mike, Cyril, and Moocher, the bike race is a chance to prove themselves at last.

Students here at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's often encounter "townies," and tend to look at them with some degree of contempt. "Breaking Away" gives us a humorous, touching, and entertaining look at what life is like for a young adult in a college town. This is a movie worth seeing, and may give you an education that you can't find in college.

Another Step on the Stairway

Michael Lewis

In Through the Out Door, Led Zeppelin's new album, represents another step forward in their musical journey. The album cannot be compared to past Zep LPs. Zep has followed one successful album after another with "surprise" changes in sound and theme. (What other band can claim blues/rock cascades like "Communication Breakdown" and almost mythical cuts like "Stairway to Heaven" and "Achilles Last Stand".)

The album is complex, just as the musicians' talents are complex, and In through the Out Door need to be judged on its own merit. Several of the cuts are simply fun to hear, while others display subtle textures and variations which add to the instrumental emphasis of the album.

"In the Evening," opens the album, showing off the Zeppelin sound they've been exploring since Houses of the Holy. The song is basically hard rock/blues, which gives guitarist Jimmy Page ample opportunity to show off his talents. One of the world's premier guitarists, Page's searing solo evokes violent, vibrant images, yet he also moves smoothly into controlled, soaring riffs to accompany the "I need your love" theme of the song. In fact, Page's guitar is often able to tell more than Robert Plant's lyrics.

"All My Love," is probably the best cut on the album. Although the title of the song suggests an anemic love song by Barry Manilow, the listener is in for much more. Mellow organ swells provide a soft, controlled opening to the song, but the band takes the sound and poetic lyrics further. "Should I fall out of love/to chase a feather in the wind/within the glow that wears a cloak of delight/there moves a thread that has no end." A beautifully woven instrumental bridges the two halves of the song, with acoustic and electric guitars taking the lead.

Not as vague as "All My Love," "Fool in the Rain" is a mirthful number, well structured musically with fun lyrics. The story is basically about a paranoid lover, who cherishes his girl above all else, yet wonders if she will be true. It could be an over-sentimental piece of trash, but it's not. The young man is waiting on the corner to meet the girl, but she's late, and his doubts begin to grow. He finally decides to wait ten more minutes before he gives up. The listener doesn't know the outcome until the final lines. "I'll run in the rain 'til I'm breathless/when I'm breathless I'll run 'til I drop/thoughts of a fool's kinda careless/I'm just a fool waiting on the wrong block." Okay, it's not "Stairway to Heaven," but it's fun.

The same can be said for "Hot Dog," a funny yet caustic satire of country music. A honky-tonk piano starts the song while Page plays stereotyped county guitar licks. But Page is using just enough distortion to let us know something is up.

Plant then goes into a humorous Jerry Lee Lewis imitation, and manages to keep a straight face while singing lyrics like: "I took her love at seventeen/a little late these days it seems;" and "I took her word I took it all/beneath a sign that said 'U-Haul.'" Beautiful.

"Carouselambra" is the most ambitious cut on the album, but suffers from two major defects. First, the son's instrumental theme changes dramatically and not always harmoniously. Also, Plant's vocals are mixed on the same level with, and sometimes below, the horns which carry the major musical theme. As a result, the listener gets bits and pieces of almost epic lyrics, but most of them are lost to the instruments.

Like all Led Zeppelin albums, this one must be met on its own terms. The band has never been static, but always explores new musical horizons. And although this step isn't as noteworthy as "Stairway to Heaven" or the experimental Presence album, it's quite pleasant, and worth the trip.

A Low Budget Record Review

Michael A. Korbel

I thought that writing the review of the Kinks latest album, Low Budget, would be fun; everyone wants to be cool and write album reviews, right? Well, it was a lot harder than I imagined. I'm not too sure I'm doing the right thing. I could quote a lot of lyrics, or reveal the deep, mysterious significance of the words, or act like I know the performers and divulge their personal and musical secrets.

Instead, I guess I'll just tell you what I think about the album, and see if it sounds interesting to you. If not, there's always Molarity.

I'll admit it; I'm prejudiced. I've liked the Kinks for a long time. But that doesn't mean I can't be honest. The most popular (or actually most over-played) song on the album is "(Wish I Could Fly Like) Superman" --my first impression was that this was the Village People doing the theme song from the movie. The more I heard it, the more I hated it, and still do. In concert three weeks ago, the Kinks underplayed the disco aspect by adding a lot of guitar work; yet their usual over-loyal crowd sat strangely (not really) quiet.

Now for the good news: "Attitude" leads off side one as one of the best rockers the Kinks have done in years. Ray and Dave Davies pull out all the stops on this one (Oops, that's a cliché, sorry) and remind the listener that his attitude can help him overcome just about anything, except maybe University alcohol proclamations.

Mood shifts quickly with "Catch Me Now, I'm Falling." This song tells the story of one who was always willing to lend a hand, yet is rejected when he needs the favor returned. The lyrics hint that the friend in need is America, but I'm not about to start analyzing lyrics now. The saxophone work, which recurs throughout the album, is interesting, yet not overpowering.

Trying to please everyone, "Pressure" is the Kinks attempt to join the New Wave. It brings to mind the Stone's "Shattered". (Oh no, I'm starting to drop names now, stop me, please), although I doubt it will achieve the same cult status. I like the New Wave, but it's not the Kink's strong point. The topic is true to their style though, as the confusion and problems of everyday life is a recurring topic.

After a humorous but weak song titled "National Health", "Superman" 's disco beat washes out side one, leaving the listener a little confused as to expectations for side two.

The title cut brings us back to reality. "Low Budget" tells the familiar story we know all too well, that of never having just enough ready cash to do, dress, and dine as we please. This was extremely good in concert, with Ray Davies playing the crowd interaction for all he could get.

The weakest cut is probably "In A Space", a song about being lost in the great big crowd known as the world.

"Little Bit of Emotion" (listed on the cover as a new Kink's classic) sums up the stories of people who are afraid to show some emotion, lest they allow others to know their real selves. This is a recurring Kink's theme, too, occurring in past releases Misfits and Sleepwalker.

"A Gallon of Gas" reworks the blues theme, and tells how coke and hash are easier to get these days than gasoline.

"Misery" is straight forward Kink's, well done but not exceptional. "Moving Picture" ends the album on a quasi-disco note, conveying the same theme as "Life Goes On" from Sleepwalker. Sleepwalker tells the story much better, but this seems to be the Kink's most important point, and they like to stress it.

Thus ends not an overwhelmingly impressive album, but an interesting one, with many different styles to offer. Diehard "Lola" fans may not love it, but the times change, and the artists change along with them. Life Indeed Goes On.

Students from Notre Dame and St. Mary's had to take their pick of picnics over the weekend as seniors, engineers, CILA, and even the dining halls held outdoor fetes.

Seniors devoured over 2000 charcoal-roasted ears of corn during Saturday's senior corn roast. The corn, roasted in the shucks, was soaked in salt water during the morning.

Loan funds available to students

by Laura Vasquez

The Morrissey Loan Fund, in use here since 1956, is once again open and offering assistance to students who need short term loans.

Loans must be repayed in 30 days, and a one percent interest is due at that time.

The $25,000 Memorial Fund is one of the few monetary grants students actually see, and once students decide for themselves how it can be put to good use.

Provisions of the grant specify it be used "for the purpose of making loans to needy and worthy undergraduates and law students of the University of Notre Dame to service their emergency needs during any academic year." It was given in memorial to John A. Morrissey.

Eric Diamond, manager of the Morrissey Memorial Fund, clarified the provisions. "The student must be from Notre Dame. St. Mary's students are ineligible. Other than that, all that is needed is a current ID and a clear credit record."

Diamond emphasized that once a student fails to repay the loan within the one month allowed, the student will then have the borrowed amount, plus any accumulated interest, added to his account, consequently making him ineligible for any loans in the future.

On the other hand, any student who has taken out a loan and has paid it without any problems will automatically be granted loans in the future, Diamond said.

A student may borrow as much as he feels he needs. A student who needs a bit of cash to tide him over constitutes sufficient and acceptable need, according to Diamond. Any student capable of repaying within a month can almost be guaranteed a loan of anywhere from $20 to $200.

Last year was a record year in which 1,219 loans were granted, according to Diamond. The maximum amount was increased from $150 to $200 because of the increasing number of loans taken out by students.

All a student has to do is fill out an application form from the Morrissey Loan Fund office, which is located in the basement of LaFortune, Monday through Friday, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and the check will be there the next day.

Diamond added that senior accounting majors are managers of the fund and junior accounting majors are assistant managers. Applications for the positions are available in April.

German Club to hold dinner

The German Club will hold a dinner tonight at 5pm in the faculty dining room of the South Dining Hall. It is the first meeting for German Club members and those who wish to join.

Day School schedules meeting

Sr. Marita's Primary Day School will have an organizational meeting tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. in the amphitheatre in La Fortune. All students interested in tutoring children between the ages of 7 and 11 are encouraged to attend.

It won't prove you're 21, but...

... this card will let you call long distance from your room faster and at less cost than any other way.

If you live in a residence hall, making a long distance call can be a hassle.

You either have to call collect (and that costs extra), or wait in line at a pay phone with a couple of pounds of change in your pocket.

Well, there's a way around all that. Get your free STUDENT BILLING CARD from Indiana Bell. A Student Billing Card lets you make long distance calls from the privacy of your room, and at direct-dial rates. That's a lot easier and more economical than any other way. Besides, there's no waiting in line, and you keep the change. To get your STUDENT BILLING CARD just call 237-8182.

Indoor, outdoor track to hold organizational meeting

All students interested in participating in either indoor or outdoor track this year are required to attend a meeting today at 4 p.m. in the Athletic and Convocation Center auditorium.

Wrestling team to meet

All students interested in joining the Notre Dame wrestling team are required to attend a meeting tomorrow at 4 pm in room C-14 of the ACC.

Rugby club takes three matches from Dayton

The Notre Dame rugby club triumphed over Dayton in all three squad divisions Saturday in home game action. The Irish A-squad defeated the Flyers 21-4 with tries by Matt O'Brien, Beef Connor, and Brian Tucker. Mike Allair added the three conversion attempts and a field goal to round-off the scoring. The B-squad defeated Dayton 12-0 with a try by Andrew Orton and two by Ken Ross. Val Trinkley and Joe Witchger each added tries for the Irish C-squad to push that team to a 8-0 win over the Flyers.

Sailors to host Intersectional

After finishing second in last weekend's regatta in Madison, the Irish Sailing Team hosts the Notre Dame Intersectional this weekend. Such teams as Utah and Navy will participate in the competitive regatta.

Any sailors interested in joining should call Phil Reynolds, or attend Wednesday's meeting at 6:30 p.m. in room 204 O'Shag.

starting rotation and this fall will give me a chance to look over the prospects," explained Kelly.

"Yet with the number of games we play, as well as doubleheaders and other games under less than ideal conditions, we need a strong relief staff as well. Thus, I'll get input not only on the development of a starting rotation but on the establishment of a consistent bullpen."

There are many rookies among those remaining from the 115 players who reported for the opening of practice 1 ½ weeks ago, and Coach Kelly anticipates a lot of work for them, too.

"Although it is early to tell, several of the freshmen show promise. We'll have to work on fundamentals with them and then try to acclimate them to our system," asserted Kelly.

Despite the valuable experience gained in fall practice, Coach Kelly sometimes wishes that the games counted for more.

"We went 9-3 last fall, and that sure would have looked nice added to our season record!"

Irish nine concentrate on fall exhibition season

by Bill Marquard
Sports Writer

"Usually our fall tryouts and practices are very quiet because of the competition for positions and places on the squad," explained Irish baseball coach Tom Kelly.

"But this fall the players have been really enthusiastic, pulling not only for people at other positions but for guys at their own as well. If there is anything which distinguishes this year's team, it's healthy competition."

With these optimistic words, Dr. Kelly embarks on his 5th fall season as head mentor of the Notre Dame baseball team.

And optimistic he should be, for the Irish are returning 23 players from last year's squad, which finished 14-19 during the regular spring schedule.

Although the fall games are all exhibitions and do not figure into the team's record, Coach Kelly still sees the autumn games as valuable, particularly this season.

"With so many players returning from last year, it makes fall practice more competitive this year. Whereas in the past we had a lot of new people to work with, most of this year's crew are reasonably familiar with our system, which is a major advantage."

"Although we are naturally concentrating on fundamentals, we seem to have more time this fall to work on situational baseball: cutoffs, backing up, base-running and the like," explained Kelly as he prepared his charges for the 14-game, 5-doubleheader, month-long fall schedule.

Heading the squad of season veterans is team captain Dan Voellinger, a senior catcher. Outfielder Mike Jamieson and third baseman Mark Simendinger should return to pack the explosive offensive punch they did last season.

The pitching staff, although fairly round, is nonetheless promising. Mike Deasey, Bob Bartlett, Greg Kot, Tim Handrich and Mike Kenahan, among others, all saw duty last spring and should form the nucleus of a stronger pitching staff this fall.

"We have to have a strong

Under new coach

SMC volleyball opens season

by Kate Huffman
Sports Writer

Under the leadership of first-year coach Erin Murphy the Saint Mary's volleyball team is preparing for its season opener this Friday night at Vincennes University. The Belles, however, won't take with them an abundance of experience.

In spite of their lack of experience and a very young team, Murphy has high hopes for the squad. "It is hard to tell the outlook so early," she said, "but I am very impressed with their caliber of play, and I think, after a few weeks of practice together, the team should jell."

The list of returning players includes last year's captain, junior Kathy Monahan, and sophomore Amy Morris, both of whom Murphy feels will contribute immensely to team play. Also back this year for the Belles will be sophomores Amy Terry and Terry Walters. Murphy feels the two "will see a lot of action and will perform as key defensive players."

Mary Beth Hosinski and Ellen Hoyer will probably be Murphy's big hitters this year. Also returning for Saint Mary's will be junior Marianne Diltz.

Included on the roster this fall will be five freshmen with Mary Laughlin leading the way. Laughlin came as a big surprise to her coach. "She came in as a walk-on freshman," Murphy stated, "She has very refined skills already and she will be a great asset to the team because she is a very diversified player."

Murphy also commented that all of the freshmen show great potential and have the ability to break into the starting lineup. The list of freshmen joining Laughlin includes Maura Kahn, Peg Piechel, Marianne Viola, and Pat Zanolli.

The Belles, members of the AIAW, may have a tough season ahead of them, but Murphy is especially anxious for the team's five home events. Included in the home matches is an eight-team tournament, which will be held on Saturday, October 13. Participating teams include Bethel, Benedictine, Indiana Tech, IUPU-Fort Wayne, Northeastern Illinois, Southwest Michigan, St. Joseph's College, Notre Dame, and Saint Mary's.

Murphy, who is also Assistant Director of Athletics and Recreation at SMC, is no stranger to the volleyball court herself. She brings with her a list of credentials which includes participation in nine national tournaments, the Junior Olympics, and some experience on the international level.

Murphy had some encouraging final words about the young team. "I think everyone will be surprised," she said. "Volleyball is a very competitive sport and Saint Mary's will be right up there on the top."

Meyers finds going tough in Pacer's rookie camp

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The first day of practice, held before 10 television cameras, convinced Ann Meyers that becoming the first woman to play in the National Basketball Association will be more difficult than she thought earlier.

"I'm a lot slower than the other guys," Meyers said after her first two-hour workout at the Indiana Pacers rookie-free agent camp Monday. "They're a lot more physical than the women I've played against and I can't do a lot of the things against the men as I've done against women."

Meyers, 24, signed with the Pacers last week. However, she must earn a spot on the club's roster - a fact repeated Monday by coach Bobby Leonard and Pacer owner Sam Nassi.

The appearance of the former UCLA women's All-American overshadowed the performances of the club's top two draft selections, Dudley Bradley of North Carolina and Tony Zeng of Ohio State and six other men participating in the drills and scrimmage.

"I think she did excellent," said Leonard when asked to evaluate Meyers' performance at Hinkle Fieldhouse on the Butler University Campus. "It just shows you what kind of competitor she is...She got knocked down a few times, but I thought she competed very well."

Judge reaffirms sentence; extradition seems unlikely

SAN JUAN PUERTO RICO (AP) - Basketball coach Bobby Knight, back home in Indiana, had his six-month sentence reaffirmed Monday after he refused to appeal his conviction of assaulting a Puerto Rican police officer during the Pan American Games in July.

The Indiana University coach, who said in a news conference Sunday at Bloomington, Indiana, that he has no intention of ever returning to Puerto Rico, formally was sentenced by District Judge Rurico Rivera. Knight also was ordered to pay a $500 fine, the maximum for a misdemeanor charge. Both the sentence and fine

The first decision on retaining Meyers may come Thursday when the rookie-free agent camp concludes. Leonard said he probably will only invite two or three persons to the club's regular training camp which opens Friday.

originally were announced when Knight was found guilty in absentia last August 22.

The judge immediately issued an arrest order. It was not expected, however, that Puerto Rico, a U.S. Commonwealth, would attempt to extradite Knight back to where he coached the U.S. Basketball Team to a gold medal in the Pan American Games.

Governor Carlos Romero Barcelo said after Knight was found guilty that he would not consider extradition for a misdemeanor charge. Indiana's Gov. Otis R. Bowen also said he would block extradition.

Women split week-end tennis opener

by Mark Hannuksela
Sports Writer

This weekend, the Notre Dame women's tennis team opened their 1979 fall season by splitting a pair of matches, losing the opener 5-4 to DePauw, then coming back to record a 9-0 whitewash of IUPU.

On Saturday, visiting DePauw, who finished second to the Irish in last year's state championship tournament, gained revenge by taking two of three doubles matches after splitting six singles matches with Notre Dame.

The deciding match was third doubles, where Lynn Williams and Maggie Wilder took identical 7-5 sets from Paddy Mullen and Sheila Cronin. Until that time, however, Coach Jory Segal's younger players kept ND in the match. Freshmen Linda Hoyer and Carol Shukis and sophomore Tina Stephan were all singles winners for the Irish, while Stephan teamed with Cindy Shuster to record the lone doubles win.

Sunday, the Irish made IUPU pay for their opening setback. Using a slightly revamped lineup, Segal's netters breezed to an easy victory. In singles, Mullen, Stephan, Molly Walsh, Sheila and Laura Cronin, and Stacey Obremsky all won, while each of the doubles teams posted straight set victories.

Notre Dame will again be in action on Wednesday, when they travel to Goshen. The match is slated to begin at 4 p.m.

ABC plans to film pep rally

A pre-Michigan pep rally will be held at 7:00 p.m. on Thursday. ABC-TV will be on hand to film the rally. Speakers will include Irish coach Dan Devine, and captains Vaga Ferguson, Tim Foley, and Dave Waymer. The rally will be held on the steps of the Administration building.
