Henri threatens

Hurricane dances off the Mexican coast

VERACRUZ Mexico (AP) -Hurricane Henri started an "erratic dance" off the Mexican coast yesterday, making it hard to pinpoint where it might hit, but the storm appeared to be weakening and turning to the northwest, weather officials said.

In mid-afternoon, Henri was drifting northwest at 10 mph with sustained winds of 75 mph and gusts of over 100 miles an hour. Gales extended 125 miles from the center, located about 150 miles northeast of Veracruz at 2 p.m., the National Hurricane Center in Miami reported. It said satellite photographs indicated Henri, which earlier appeared to be heading toward Mexico's southern coasts with winds of 107 mph, might be weakening.

The center said if Henri's motions continued for 24 hours, hurricane conditions would spread across Mexico's eastern coast on Tuesday, but the storm did not pose a threat to the United States.

In Veracruz, Cesar Luna Abauza, director of weather information, said "With the erratic dance this hurricane is starting, we have altered our initial projections and until we get better information we will not be able to pinpoint the coast areas most likely to be affected."

Earlier Monday, the storm appeared heading toward Mexico's southern coast, pushing before it high tides that backed up rivers and flooded coastal lowlands.

It was then pinpointed at 100 miles offshore, with winds of up to 100 mph, and moving in a southwestward course. It had been expected to hit land near the 400-year-old fishing and pearl-diving port of Alvarado, 40 miles south of here and 500 miles south of the Texas border.

Luan Abauza said rising winds in Veracruz were still "worrying" weather officials in Veracruz. "We also have information that Laguna Verde and Tampico are registering strong gusts." Both cities are north of Veracruz.

Laguna Verde is the sight of Mexico's first nuclear power plant and Tampico is the principal port for oil exports from the state of Tamaulipas, the northern neighbor of the state of Veracruz.

Veracruz port authorities said all navigation in the area was suspended. Marine officials reported that a British ship with 19 persons aboard, the Largo Isabel, was caught by the leading edge of the storm and had to battle high winds and 20-to-25-foot seas before making it safely to port at Coatzacoalcas, 120 miles southeast of Veracruz.

Efforts to cap the runaway offshore oil well in Campeche Bay had to be suspended because of the storm. The well has spewed tens of millions of gallons of crude oil into the Gulf of Mexico in

Two more Bolshoi stars receive asylum

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The U.S. government yesterday granted political asylum to a husband and wife team from the Bolshoi Ballet, federal officials said - the second defection during the Soviet troupe's U.S. tour.

Sue Pittman, a spokeswoman for the State Department in Washington, said the couple asked for and was granted asylum, adding they were under the protection of U.S. authorities.

She identified the dancers as Leonid Koslov and Valentina Koslova. Both are principal dancers with the top-rated Soviet ballet company.

Earlier, Verne Jervis of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Washington said the couple was being interviewed in Los Angeles.

The defection occurred before other Bolshoi members boarded a charter airliner yesterday at Los Angeles International Airport for their return to Moscow. The troupe completed its U.S. tour here Sunday night.

The details of the actual defection were sketchy, but Jervis said he believed the Soviet couple first contacted Los Angeles police who called INS officials. "We're talking with them out there (in Los Angeles)," he said.

And a Justice Department spokesman in Washington, John Russell, said the couple had been scheduled to leave with the company on a jet. "They were not on it," he said. He said he had no information on how the couple left the ballet company, but he said: "Normally if people do come to us, we do make an effort (to help them.)"

In late August, Alexander Godunov defected from the Bolshoi during its stop in New York - the first defection by a Bolshoi ballet dancer.

Toma talks about love and drugs

by Kathy Cawley

David Toma, writer and former policeman, spoke to a captive audience of 175 in Carroll Hall at Saint Mary's. Toma was a policeman in Newark, New Jersey for twenty years before becoming a full-time writer and lecturer. During his years on the force he battled vice, gambling, narcotics, the mafia, and credits himself with never pulling his gun to shoot anyone, though he has been stabbed and shot several times.

Toma grew up in a poor section of New York with immigrant parents and twelve brothers and sisters. He said he knew poverty but remarked quite a few times during his talk that his family never lacked love. He saw five of his nephews become serious drug addicts and decided he wanted to help these people for the rest of his life.

He said that although he met with much resistance from the police department, he pushed to infiltrate the mob to stop the problems where they started. Toma was frustrated with arresting teen-agers for drugs. He wanted to stop those who were selling them to the kids, he said.

Toma soon became a master of disguise. He bought himself wigs, beards, 20-30 different costumes and learned to change his voice "very quickly." Toma's voice echoed in the auditorium, "If I wanted to survive and help these kids I couldn't rely on my gun and my badge."

He proceeded to live in the depths of despair with drug addicts and claims that this was his turning point in life. He said he came to the harsh realization that no one cared. Finally he got on television and spoke his beliefs. When he at last reached his goal of a television series, he was seriously disillusioned with Hollywood. He claimed that money is allotted in the production of any show or film for drugs for the actors and staff.

With constant perseverance he demanded that the show be done his way and he succeeded. Since the show was aired, the mail and telephone calls have never stopped. He said the people plead with him for help.

"I reached out to help someone and I won," he said. Since then he has lectured, written three books and has had two prime-time television shows based on his life, "Toma" and history's worst oil spill.

Henri, fifth hurricane of the Atlantic season, was a tropical depression that developed into a tropical storm and then a hurricane late Sunday west of the Yucatan Channel between Cuba and Mexico. Weathermen said Henri had a diameter of roughly 100 miles.

The last hurricane to batter Mexico's Gulf Coast, Anita, which struck north of here in September 1977 with 120-mph winds, caused an estimated $5 million in damage and forced tens of thousands to evacuate their homes. Only two injuries were reported, however.

Meanwhile yesterday, the immense clean-up continued on the U.S. Gulf Coast in the wake of Hurricane Frederic, which roared through Wednesday.

U.S. federal officials said it probably would be two months before a dollar estimate could be made for the damage. But civil defense officials in Mobile County, Ala., said Frederic probably caused $1.25 billion damage in their county alone.

Food was running short for some victims of last week's storm, which devastated coastal areas from Florida's Panhandle to Louisiana.

Roemer not satisfied with WSND action

by Mary Fran Callahan

Dean of Students James Roemer released a statement yesterday concerning the latest developments in the WSND radio controversy. "I am still in the midst of taking corrective action on the matter. I'm not at all satisfied with the corrective action program proposed in the Observer by the radio station. The University furthermore must consider what disciplinary action should be taken in addition to the corrective action the radio management will finally be willing to take," said Roemer.

The conflict involving the Administration and WSND station management was spurred last week over the radio program "Sex at Notre Dame." The phone-in talk show resulted in a live uncensored broadcast of obscenities and abusive language.

Roemer is meeting with station management this afternoon, and officials at WSND will meet tonight to discuss the course of action they will take.

Americans released; State Dept. denies deal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Four Americans held in Cuban prisons since the mid-1960s were released yesterday and were to be flown to Miami later in the day, the State Department said. In announcing the release of the four Americans, State Department officials denied that there was a "package deal" involving the release last week of four Puerto Rican terrorists from U.S. prisons. The Americans were identified as Larry Lunt, sentenced to 30 years in 1965 for espionage; Juan Tur, sentenced to 30 years for "counter-revolutionary activities" in 1963; Everett Jackson, sentenced to 30 years for espionage in 1967; and Claudio Rodriguez Moralez, sentenced to 20 years in 1966 for smuggling people out of Cuba.

Justice Dept. dismisses H-bomb publication suit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government yesterday abandoned its efforts to stop publication of news articles describing construction of the hydrogen bomb, although it had contended such information could compromise national security and lead to the spread of thermonuclear weapons. The Justice Department announced that it would seek dismissal of two suits it had filed in an effort to stop publication of H-bomb data. Those suits were filed against the Progressive magazine of Madison, Wis., and against the Daily Californian, a student newspaper at the University of California at Berkeley.

Pope's Mass, pro football vie for T.V. air time

NEW YORK (AP) - Pro football games scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 7, will be broadcast by CBS and NBC without interruption, despite Pope John Paul II's celebration of Mass in Washington, D.C., that afternoon, officials of the two networks said yesterday. ABC, with no conflicting sports programs, will carry the Mass live at 3 p.m. EDT network officials said. CBS will broadcast two pro football games that afternoon, as it does most Sundays during the season, while NBC will carry one and perhaps a second. The first football game starts at 1 p.m. EDT, with the second scheduled for 4 p.m. The Mass would cut into the end of the first game and the start of the doubleheader contest.

Weather

Mostly sunny and mild today, with highs in the mid and upper 70s. Fair and chilly tonight. Lows in the low and mid 40s. Partly sunny and cool tomorrow with a high in the upper 60s.

Companies say no freeze on heating oil prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two major U.S. oil companies told Congress yesterday they can't endorse President Carter's request for a freeze on heating oil prices and a third refused to testify entirely.

The holdout, Texaco, was immediately threatened with a subpoena. The subcommittee scheduled session today to determine whether the firm should be forced to appear.

Both Gulf and Sun Oil companies told the House Government Operations Committee's energy subcommittee that while they plan to hold prices as low as possible, they can't make any promises.

Energy Department officials, meanwhile, made public a conditional pledge from Mobil Oil Corp. to hold the line on home heating oil prices through the end of the year.

"At this time and barring unforeseen circumstances, we do not anticipate any increase in home heating oil prices for the rest of the year," Mobil said in a telegram it sent to President Carter last Friday.

At the same time, the Energy Department released a telegram from Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) in which the company refused to rule out price increases in the coming months.

"While we hope that prices will moderate, continued upward pressure on foreign crude prices, as well as the need to continue to augment supplies in the high-priced spot market, make future necessary price moves impossible to predict," the company said in a telegram to Energy Secretary Charles Duncan.

Duncan has been meeting in recent days with officials from oil companies, attempting to secure pledges that home heating prices will remain stable in the coming months. He saw Jerry McAfee, chairman of the board of Gulf, on Monday.

A Gulf official, testifying before the House subcommittee, said a mild winter might actually mean a slight drop in consumer prices from the record high current levels of around 80 to 83 cents a gallon. But he cautioned congressmen against being overly optimistic.

The holdout, Texaco, was immediately threatened with a subpoena. The subcommittee scheduled a session today to determine whether the firm should be forced to appear.

Texaco previously announced it intends to freeze heating oil prices this winter - winning the praise of the President, who held Texaco up as a standard for the industry.

But a congressional staff official alleged Monday that Texaco actually may raise its prices in January despite its public line-holding assertions. And the oil firm refused to show up to defend itself against the claim.

The subcommittee chairman, Rep. Toby Moffitt, D-Comm., said that, of the 11 major oil companies he had asked to testify, Texaco was the only one that flatly refused to do so.

Heating oil prices have already risen more than 50 percent since last winter and the

New president in Afghanistan says he eliminated radical "oppressors"

NEW DELHI India (AP) - New President Hafizullah Amin of Afghanistan confirmed in a broadcast speech last night that persons he called oppressors were "eliminated" in his lightning seizure of power.

In a state radio broadcast monitored here, the 50-year-old Amin, who rose from prime minister to president and chief of the ruling party Sunday, said nothing about the whereabouts of his predecessor and former mentor, Nur Mohammed Taraki. Amin retained the prime ministry and control of the regime's defense system.

It was not clear whether the sudden takeover was approved by the Soviet Union, which props up the Marxist government with money and with arms to fight right-wing rebels trying to overthrow what they call the "godless" regime.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass reported President Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin had sent a telegram to Amin congratulating him on his "election." It quoted the message as saying in part, "We express confidence that fraternal relations between the Soviet Union and Revolutionary Afghanistan will be further developed."

Diplomatic sources in Kabul had said before the upheaval there were indications the Kremlin leadership was not satisfied with Amin and had considered seeking ways to replace him.

The state-controlled radio reported four persons were shot dead Friday but identified only one - former security chief Major Syed Daoud Tarun, who often served as Taraki's personal bodyguard. He was given a state funeral, it said.

"Those people who saw their greatness in the oppression of the people have been eliminated," said Amin. The same word, "eliminated," was used to report the violent death of Taraki's predecessor, President Mohammed Daoud, in the coup of April 27, 1978.

Amin promised an end to personality cults, an obvious reference to the enormous effort made to project Taraki's image as the classless liberator of Afghanistan.

"The 16th of September ushered in the beginning of a better socialist order," the American-educated leader said.

"Those people who did not appreciate the toiling masses have been eliminated."

Amin did not mention Taraki by name nor did he explain his sudden removal.

The state radio reported Sunday that the 62 year-old poet-journalist had "resigned" from the presidency and leadership of the ruling Khalq Party, because of a nervous condition. Taraki appeared fit during a recent stopover in Moscow following the Havana non-aligned summit.

Amin said he had the support of the "brave army of Afghanistan" and pledged to maintain good relations with all nations, "especially the Soviet Union," ease strained ties with Iran and Pakistan, and respect Moslem institutions.

Referring to the regime's human rights record, Amin promised: "All atrocities by members of the government will no longer be tolerated." All political prisoners "unnecessarily" arrested will be released, he added.

The regime under Taraki admitted it held about 1,100 political prisoners, although reliable Afghan sources said the number was in the tens of thousands. Pul-i-Charkhi

Prison on the outskirts of Kabul, reportedly the scene of torture and summary executions was holding about 23,800 persons, many of them political prisoners, the sources said.

Frick appoints Regan director

Brian C. Regan has been appointed a regional director of development at Notre Dame by Dr. James W. Frick, vice president for public relations and development.

A 1961 Notre Dame alumnus, Regan returns to the University's public relations and development operation where he served eight years before joining the staff of Saint Mary's College as assistant to the president for college relations and, later, director of development. He will direct Notre Dame's fund-raising activities in an 11-state area in the south and southeastern United States.

Regan received the "Man of the Year" award in 1978 from the St. Joseph County Notre Dame Club for contributions to Notre Dame, Saint Mary's, the church and the community. He served from 1962-65 in the Marines and is a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserves.

"Baretta." He is now in the process of filming a show in which he will star, and a movie about his life and work.

Now he visits two or three schools a day around the world. Seventy percent of all grade school, high school and college students seriously misuse alcohol and drugs, Toma stated, he rattled the crowd as he told of an eight-year-old girl who came to him after one of his talks at her school. As she sobbed, she told him that she shot Morphine everyday. While the audience gasped he shouted that he hears these stories every day without exception. Angel dust, heroin, cocaine and pills prevail in every aspect of our society he shouted, "We are in a helluva mess."

He knocked schools as places where children get book education, but no teaching on common sense. "These kids have no idea about the dangers of drugs," he said.

Once more, he demanded the crowd's attention as he yelled "Listen to me, you are all involved." He stated some very startling facts about a drug in common use - marijuana. He said that marijuana is the most unpredictable drug on the market. One-hundred chemicals make-up this, "seemingly harmless" drug. How it is grown, where it is grown, and in what temperature it is grown all effect its potency, he claimed. The only chemical in marijuana that makes the smoker "high" is THC and the degree to which it effects one is varied every time one smokes, he said.

Toma said he had government proof that in all 50 states pot is now being cut with parsley, rat poisoning, and other chemicals. "Sure your joint could be clean but how can you risk your mind and health on an assumption."

Then he cited specific examples of doctors, lawyers, politicians, college professors and everyday people who use overwhelming amounts of drugs each day. He told of more cases where people have come to him in ruins. "They told me that they smoked for years and one day they smoked and now have no feeling in their arms or legs."

Toma appealed to each young man and woman to be an individual. "Don't use drugs to be 'in' or 'cool.' You don't realize what you are doing to yourselves." Many listeners were in tears as he told of what pot smoking can do to a mother's unborn baby. "These babies can be born without arms and legs," he claimed. He appealed especially to girls, stating that it takes between one to three months for THC to leave a smoker's body. It settles in a woman's mind and reproductive organs, possibly causing permanent damage, he said. He also emphasized the early age at which drug users begin. The audience was shocked and amazed through the entire speech.

Nigeria considers oil price increase

Oil no problem here

University prepares for winter

by Brendan Brawn

Despite the beautiful weather conditions the South Bend area has been experiencing in the past few weeks, University officials are already making preparations for the coming winter months.

Usually, Notre Dame receives about sixty-eight inches of snow each year, however the past couple of winters have been especially severe. Last year 101 inches fell while the year before, the University found itself buried under 172 inches of snow.

Under such conditions, proper heating in dormitories and classrooms is essential. All seventeen dormitories are heated by a central heating plant located near the Grace and Flanner towers. The chances of the University being without heating fuel are very slim since the plant can burn oil, coal, and natural gas. What is used depends on the price and

NEW YORK (AP) - Nigeria has told oil companies it is considering raising the price of some of its crude oil above the $23.50-a-barrel OPEC ceiling, industry sources said yesterday - a move experts said could trigger another round of oil price increases.

Nigeria is the second-largest foreign supplier of crude oil to the United States, after Saudi Arabia, accounting for about 15 percent of the oil used by U.S. refiners.

Because Nigerian oil is among the best in the world, it is particularly valuable in making gasoline. But it is currently unclear what effect the proposed price increase would have on prices at the gas pump in the United States.

Sources at oil companies that do business with Nigeria said the Nigerian government has proposed an increase of $3 to $5 in the price of a barrel of Nigerian oil, which is currently pegged at the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ceiling price of $23.50.

"They told us they are contemplating a $3 to $5 premium on the oil they sell to us," said one such buyer of crude oil from the African nation. "It's still at the negotiation state."

The buyer - who asked not to be identified - said the chances of the Nigerian proposal taking effect were "50-50," but added: "The market is tight, and they probably have more buyers lined up there to buy than there's oil to sell, and they think they can make it stick."

The proposed increase, which would be effective Oct. 1, would cover only what is known as "buyback" oil - oil produced by oil companies in Nigeria for the government there, and then sold back to the companies. Companies also produce "equity" oil in Nigeria, which is theirs to use as they wish.

Sources estimated 600,000 barrels of the 2.2 million barrels of oil produced daily in Nigeria is buyback oil, and would be affected by the proposed price hike. But one industry source hinted that if the price went up on part of the Nigerian production, the price of the rest would soon follow.

Experts agreed the key issue in the proposed price increase was its seeming violation of the OPEC agreement not to raise prices above $23.50 a barrel at least until the cartel meets again in December.

That ceiling, set last June, consists of an $18-a-barrel base price, a maximum of $2 in premiums, or surcharges, and as much as $3.50 in differential to take into account varying quality of oil. OPEC nations that produce lower-quality oil are charging prices below the ceiling, and Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest and most moderate member, sells most of its oil at $18-a-barrel.

availability of the fuel. Coal is the most popular.

For the second year students will be able to adjust their own room temperatures according to their needs. With the installation of thermostats in each room, the University hopes to save 20 to 30 percent of the fuel it consumes. Fr. James Riehle, director of the Energy Conservation Department, said that instruction sheets on the use and proper treatment of the thermostats will be distributed soon.

In the spirit of "Carter-hood," the department will also issue pamphlets encouraging students to save energy by turning off lights, radios, and televisions when not in use, closing windows and drapes, and disconnecting refrigerators and other appliances during vacations.

Tuition-free teacher training program

by Theresa Rebeck

The Notre Dame Department of Mathematics will offer a tuition-free teacher training program this year for secondary school (grades 7-12) mathematics teachers from the eastern Indiana area.

Organizational meetings for this year's program will begin this week.

This program, funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation, will operate Resource Centers in Fort Wayne, Gary, and South Bend. The mathematics teachers who participate are required to develop individual projects which refresh or update their knowledge of mathematics and apply directly to their work in the classroom.

They will meet weekly with their instructor and other participants from their area to discuss and present their projects.

Mario Borelli, director of the program, explains that each participant earns three credits each semester, up to a total of six credits. The mathematics teachers may also earn up to six credits by participating in the second phase of the program taken during the summer months. This program consists of intensive course work as defined by Borelli.

Although Notre Dame does not offer a Master's Degree in Education, these credits are partially transferable to other universities.

Notre Dame's program is only one of approximately 150 such programs funded by the National Science Foundation. According to Borelli, however, Notre Dame's academic year program is unique because it forces its participants to define their own projects by changing the content of the program from city to city.

Projects have ranged from developing a set of special lectures for use in the classroom to compiling comprehensive mathematics exams for graduating high school seniors.

by Ellen Buddy
Saint Mary's Editor

John M. Duggan, president of Saint Mary's, will be one of 50 women's college presidents meeting with Patricia Harris, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, today in Washington.

Saint Mary's is a member of the Women's College Coalition, a Washington-based organization which represents 67 women's colleges across the nation. Today's meeting is the result of the Coalition's earlier attempts to seek closer contact with HEW officials.

The purpose of the meeting is to explore the country's current role in meeting national goals for equality in education for women. The sessions will touch on policy and program issues that concern the presidents as executives of institutions in higher education for women.

Secretary Harris will speak at the opening session. Other HEW officials will chair discussion sessions throughout the day.

Accompanying Duggan is Joan Holland, assistant to the president.

Hill, Knowlton seminar

Am Stud chooses seminar attendees, Scholars

by Jim Soisson

The American Studies Department and its Chairman Donald P. Costello have two reasons for being choosy these days.

The department selected 29 American Studies majors Friday to attend a "Career Seminar on Public Relations, Public Affairs, and the Arts and Letters Student."

Professor Costello, also chairman of Notre Dame's Luce Selection Committee, will likewise help nominate three members for the Luce Scholars Program. This program, unlike the former, is for all majors and is still open to applicants.

Hill and Knowlton Inc., "the biggest public relations firm in the country," according to Elizabeth Christman, an associate professor and former editor from New York, will be sending some of their "best people" to give six different seminar sessions. The sessions begin today and continue every first and third Tuesdays of each month until December 4th.

The seminar was initiated by Costello, who is hopeful that the "pilot program" will be a success, but will only be able to determine the value of it after a few sessions have been conducted.

The Public Relations/Public Affairs Counsel from Chicago is conducting the seminar at no cost to the University. Christman anticipates that the program will be "very enlightening" to the students, many of whom anticipate pursuing careers in public relations or related fields.

The Luce Scholars Program, started by the Henry Luce Foundation in 1973, sends 15 students from 60 universities to the Far East for professional apprenticeships under the guidance of leading Asians. Generally speaking, participants in the program are recent college graduates, however undergraduates as well as faculty are encouraged to apply.

The program is experiential rather than academic in nature, with no academic credit involved. It encourages the person to explore the different cultural experiences in their assigned nation and allows for practical experience in various fields.

The field placement arranged is based on individual career interests, experience, training and general background. Prior scholars have been attached to such varied apprenticeships as an architectural firm in Tokyo and a newspaper in Hong Kong.

According to Costello, "the nominating schools are selected from a rotating list of some of the more distinguished institutions in the country." Harvard, Princeton, Stanford, Yale, UCLA, Michigan and USC are a sample of those schools participating.

"If those schools don't have a winner in 3 years, then they rotate off the list," Costello added.

Notre Dame's last winner, William Wilka, was selected in 1976 and went to study law "informally" in Singapore in 1977. He studied law at Georgetown University.

The program runs 11 months overall with an orientation week in late August at Princeton University, a series of seminars in Hong Kong, and the program itself runs from mid-September until June. A final evaluation session at a site elsewhere in Asia follows the program.

The Luce Scholars receive a significant basic stipend, economy class air transportation for all travel required by the program and an allowance for the shipment of personal effects.

Knowledge of an Asian language is not a criterion for selection, but all scholars should be willing to take a language course both prior to their departure for Asia and in the country.

Applicants are required to submit certain documents as well as transcripts, photographs and letters of recommendation. All completed material must be received by Costello no later than Monday, November 26.

After selection by Notre Dame's Luce Committee, all documents for the three Notre Dame nominees will be sent to the Henry Luce Foundation for final selection. All Notre Dame candidates will be notified of the nomination decisions in early December.

Christ talks today

Dr. Daryl Dean Christ, associate professor of pharmacology at the University of Arkansas College of Medicine will conduct a seminar on the "Effect of Catecholamines on Ganglionic Transmission," today at 4:30 in the Galvin Life Sciences auditorium.

Refreshments will be available before the seminar, and all students are cordially invited to attend.

Air Canada jet limps into Logan

BOSTON (AP) - An Air Canada jet flying at 25,000 feet with 42 persons aboard lost its tail cone yesterday and experienced a rapid drop in cabin pressure, authorities said. The jet made a safe return landing at Logan Airport but a stewardess was slightly injured.

"The pilot noticed that the tail cone was missing after they landed," said Jack Campbell, programs officer in the control tower at Logan.

The DC-9 was over the North

Atlantic 11 minutes into a mid-day flight from Boston to Yarmouth and Halifax, Nova Scotia, when the pilot noticed the plane was depressurizing, the airline said.

Flight 680, landed safely just before 1 p.m.

"The cabin became depressurized, so the captain decided to return to Logan," said Air Canada spokesman Steve Pisni.

He attributed the emergency to "trouble with the tail cone," which is the section at the rear tip of the plane. Pisni, in New York, said he did not know specifics of the problem.

He said the craft was about 60 miles east of Logan when the trouble developed.

Neither the airline nor staff at Logan was able to identify the injured stewardess or describe her condition.

"They underwent an explosive decompression in the fuselage," Campbell said.

Thirty-eight passengers and four crew members were on the plane.

P. O. Box Q

Notre Dame spirit has become offensive

Dear Editor:

As a 1977 graduate and third-year law student, I am starting my seventh year at Notre Dame. I am also beginning my third year as a dining hall checker and wish to note the events following the ND-Michigan game last Saturday evening.

Most frightening was the fact that a student worker was assaulted and injured by another student.

Unfortunately, this kind of behavior is not an isolated incident, either last Saturday or in years past. In the South Dining Hall that same meal, one student was arrested by ND Security and an entire side was closed down twenty minutes after opening for fear of creating a more riotous atmosphere than already existed.

Last year, 27 ID's were taken after the Purdue game, representing only a small number of those actively taking part in a massive food fight. After all the talk in this community of our special Notre Dame "spirit," I think it appropriate to point out that all too frequently this "spirit" is beginning to mean drunken and adolescent behavior.

When students get drunk, throw food, assault other students, or attempt to create violent or uncontrollable situations, they are degrading themselves, violating rights or others, and most sadly, being inconsiderate to the other student workers who must respond to the selfish actions of their peers. And that reality is not changed just because they happen to be shouting the Fight Song or chanting "We're No. 1" or because John Belushi did it in "Animal House."

When I was an undergraduate, I believed in Notre Dame as value-oriented education and sometimes felt that we should demand to be treated more like adults. Unfortunately, after working three years in the dining hall, I believe ND students would be hard pressed to demonstrate an adult capability to form or live values. In this light, to demand that the Administration treat them like adults is nothing less than laughable.

What I really resent, however, is that the spirit of Notre Dame, taken for what it has obviously become, is offensive to me. I don't want it to be, but I can't ignore obvious facts. I hope the students don't ignore them either, as they reflect on these incidents and their lives at Notre Dame and beyond.

Call for a beginning of perception, thought and activism

Paul Lauer

The gilded dome sitting on its extended drum as it does, strikes me as a phallic symbol. In a profound irony this phallic symbol is crowned with the Virgin Mary.

The Virgin Mary is of course an archetype of Christian purity; not only for women but also at times for men. (Do you remember that the Sir Gawain of the Arthurian romance had "on the inner part of his shield her image portrayed"?)

The building as phallic symbol has as its archetype the Tower of Babel: as it stands in its unabashed solitude, it is a paradigm of hubris - that overweening pride that sets man against the gods, resulting in tragedy.

The irony is complete when we see that the phallus is firmly rooted in the Administration Building. This conjunction of Christian ideal and a bold phallic assertion of masculine power seems to me at times quite appropriate as a symbol of the administration policy of Notre Dame.

If I need to be even more clear, I mean that while the Virgin Mary in all her very real splendor is made prominent, underneath, indeed displaying her, is something very, very different. To be colloquial; the gilt statue is the symbol, the awkward mass of yellow brick, the reality.

The phallus and the Virgin are in contraction and so is the University, especially, but not only the administration. (Students have their own peculiar and destructive set of contradictions, but that is outside this essay: to the extent that we are passive, we assert in that very proportion to administration policies.

There are, it seems, two classic types of contradiction that the administration has engaged in. The first is its often liberal policies. The liberal contradiction is a result of an often genuine concern, for example to bring about justice coming into conflict with an inability to make the structural changes that would realize that concern. Liberal policy can be seen as a salve, concerning itself with the symptoms of the disease while at the very same time refusing to diagnose, much less treat, the cause of the disease.

Notre Dame's continued investment in South Africa is a perfect example. To withdraw these investments in an effort to bring about the fall of the apartheid regime is seen as too radical. (In an effort, probably fruitless, to dispel some of the fears and misunderstandings that have grown up around the work "radical," thus making conversation difficult, let me quote the Oxford dictionary: 1.a. of the root[s], 4. Affecting the foundation, going to the root, etc.). Notre Dame would prefer to work "within the system," thus supporting it, in spite of continued appeals by Africans to end political, economic, military and even nuclear ties with South Africa.

There is a second type of contradiction, far more serious as it is not merely the result of a naive political ideology (of course, I do not intend to downplay the very serious consequences of this self-deception) because it centers around the question of honesty. The University's recent action in deciding the tenure appointments smacks absolutely of duplicity. There is a direct contradiction between the highly touted and self-styled image as a Christian university and its refusal last May to tenure certain professors who during their years here have been so important in creating that very Christian atmosphere. And obversely; do the professors that they have retained evince those qualities that we ought to look for in a Notre Dame professor? If you do not know of whom I am speaking, I ask you to look about yourself at the professors you care most for and to find out if they are tenured or were given tenure last spring. Due to a cruel kindness within the system, most of those dismissed will be with us another year - reminding us how very much we need them.

Let me pose this question: Is the University here in order to educate students, or are we here in order that academics may earn a living? If it is the former, then I suggest that we have certain rights - one of them is a right to have a voice that will be heard, that will be carefully considered when our professors are being tenured. It is not only a right, but a duty that we speak up in protest at the dismissal of some of our best professors. Who else will speak for them? Shall they leave in silence?

If we look closely then at administration policies we will see, I think, a pattern; that there will consistently be alapse, a falling away from what Notre Dame stands for. In light of this I suggest that we reinterpret our symbol; after all, the phallus and the Virgin explain more than the Virgin ever did alone.

Let me close this essay with a call for a beginning; a beginning of perception, thought, discussion and activism. And activism.

Gas line thoughts

Dear Editor:

This past summer I had plenty of time to think about the "energy crisis" as I waited in line for gas or as I waited for my speeding ticket. The following is a list of my more important thoughts.

1. If government allocation systems are so good, why did New Yorkers wait hours for gasoline while nobody waited in rural Illinois?

2. How do laws like the 55 mph speed limit get passed if no one supports them?

3. Isn't a monopoly when a large portion of Fortune 500's top ten corporations are automotive-petroleum businesses?

4. Has anyone thought of gasoline as an investment? (The yield is now 30% per annum.)

5. Does any one single person know all the government oil regulations?

6. Why didn't Canada have a gasoline problem?

7. How long do I have to drive before I've burned between $5.00 and $10.00 worth of gas?

8. Whatever happened to the basic supply and demand situation I learned about in Economic Problems?

9. How much to policemen make anyway?

10. Will I have to go through these gas lines again next year when the precious stuff sells for $1.50 per gallon?

Adjustments made for sporadic N.Y. Times

by Kevin O'Brien

Due to heavy student demand, 20 additional copies of The New York Times are now available on campus. A strike by a freight airline in New York, however, will mean that delivery of the Times to Notre Dame may continue to be sporadic.

Dusty Roach, manager of Pandora's Bookstore, which distributes the Times to the campus, said that the number of daily copies going to Notre Dame will be raised to 60, with 30 copies going to both the Huddle Deli and the South Dining Hall's pay cafeteria.

"Between the time the papers leave the printers in New York at 10:30 p.m. and the time they arrive here at 9:30 a.m., there are eight to twelve pressure points, each of which must be met if the copies are to get here," said Roach. "Since the freight airline went on strike, some of those points have been missed."

Roach said that the Times is flown from New York's Kennedy Airport to Chicago's O'Hare during the night and is transported to South Bend by Greyhound bus. "If the papers are on the bus out of Chicago at 5:15 a.m., they'll be here at 9:30 a.m. But if the papers miss that bus, they don't get here until 3:30 p.m., and when that happens half the copies delivered to campus are returned," said Roach.

The problem with the Times was exhibited yesterday, when the newspapers never reached South Bend. "I was up into the night, trying to guide the papers here," said Roach, "but they were not put on the first plane and could not get on another flight. The commercial airlines will not wait for the Times like the freights will."

Roach added that most of the Times newsstand cost, 35 cents daily, $1.50 on Sunday, is attributed to these transportation costs.

Once they reach the deli and the Oak Room, the papers usually sell quickly. However, the inconsistent time of arrival does cut down sales. "People want the paper if it's there but they won't go back over and over again," Roach said.

The Deli's Carrie Miller said, "It usually gets here by 11, but it's been coming late, especially on Mondays." Miller added that some customers ask her to "hold" a copy of the Times if it hasn't arrived yet, "but they don't pick them up and we are stuck with extra papers."

Roach could not guarantee that an end to the strike would insure the Times' arrival. "We cannot control all of the possible problems, and even if the papers eventually get here, they don't sell as well when they are late."

G.P., gynecologist

Saint Mary's expands health services

by Kit Bernardi

This year Saint Mary's Health Service has extended its service by adding General Practitioner Dr. Kristine Stoll to its staff. Gynecologist Sam Bechtold will also be available now to Saint Mary's students on a regular basis.

The reason for hiring Stoll was that Saint Mary's students expressed a desire to have a female doctor," explained Kathleen Rice, Dean of Student Affairs. Rice explained that Stoll was hired because of her extensive training in the fields of gynecology and mental health.

This is Stoll's first semester with the health service. She also is a physician at the South Bend Clinic.

Saint Mary's also now employs the service of gynecologist Dr. Sam Bechtold. Bechtold is also employed by the Notre Dame Health Services. He will offer workshops on dimensions of health care to women students on both campuses.

He will have office hours every Thursday by appointment from 10 a.m. to noon.

Saint Mary's hopes to offer a gynecological clinic to women students in the near future.

Dr. Harvey Breckle, a family practitioner, and Verna Woods, a registered nurse, also serve on the health service staff. Breckle has been with the service for 12 years, while Woods has served on the staff for ten years.

Run unopposed

All St. Mary's candidates win

by Mary Jo Russo

Student Assembly elections were held yesterday at Saint Mary's, with all candidates running unopposed.

Student Assembly positions for LeMans Hall went to Cecilia Boyle, Louise Enyedy, Colleen Farrell, and Maria Frigyesi, while Ann McCarthy, Mary Anne Moore, Sue Murdock and Donna Trauscht represent Holy Cross Hall. Elected from McCandless Hall were Kathy McGrath, Jean Ramker and Jill Shomsky. Jody Bertino, Pam Kelly, Carol Knych, and Meg Scanlon gained positions from Regina Hall. From Augusta Hall Julie Marous was elected and Julie James will represent Off-Campus. Suzanne Ellsworth was elected last spring to represent LeMans Hall for the upcoming year, and Janet Miller was elected from Off-Campus.

According to Election Commissioner Mary Mullaney, there was a good turnout for the election, although percentages were not available.

Candidates are elected by their respective residence halls. One representative per every hundred students holds a position in the Student Assembly.

Due to the lack of time and candidates last spring, the majority of representatives were elected yesterday.

The candidates needed at least fifty-one percent of the votes in order to be elected to the Assembly. However, since the number of candidates vying for office did not exceed the available positions, everyone that ran was elected. The student body had the choice of abstinence, thus it was not mandatory to vote for the given number of candidates. According to Mullaney, all won by an overwhelming number of votes.

The Student Assembly is the law-making body of the Saint Mary's student government. Other duties include allotting money to clubs and organizations and voting on the school charity. Mullaney stated, "One of the main goals of the assembly this year lies in making itself better known to the student body."

Bells undergo renovation

by Ryan Gorey

The 25 bells of Sacred Heart Church are undergoing renovation this week to repair the effects of aging. The overhaul process began today and should be completed by the end of the week.

The bells are North America's oldest carillon. They were cast by Bolle and Fils in LeMans, France, home of the Congregation of the Holy Cross. Father Edward Sorin, the University's founder, had the bells sent here, and in 1856 they were installed in a wooden tower which stood in front of the "old church."

Each of the bells have their own personality. They have all been named, baptized, confirmed and anointed with chrism. They also vary in size, the largest of which, Saint Anthony of Padua, weighs seven tons. Now only rung with a hammer, it is said to have been heard in Elkhart in the days that it was swung.

The bells may be played in two ways: automatically, with a player piano type console; or manually, which requires a partial climb up the 218 foot tower.

Sandoval evaluates Fellowships

by Donna Marie Pawlikowski

White House Fellowships, initiated by President Johnson in 1964, offer a valuable opportunity for young Americans to become involved in national government. Each year, 14 to 20 persons are selected from approximately 2,000 applicants - to work with a Cabinet officer, the vice-president or a senior member of the president's staff.

A majority of the candidates have college degrees, and many have professional or graduate training. All exhibit potential for leadership and contribution to the community. The program seeks to develop this potential.

Rodolpho Sandoval, professor of law at Notre Dame, qualified as a national finalist for a White House Fellowship both in 1974-75 and 1978-79. He said the program offers a chance to witness the "interaction of the dynamics of law, economics and politics."

He added that experience was an invaluable aid in broadening his outlook and enabling him to meet many politically prominent individuals. The experience also gave him "an appreciation of how education fits into society in general, and a feel for leadership in society."

Sandoval noted that on a regional level applicants are judged on their credentials - what they've done - whereas evaluations of national finalists are based on potential - what applicants might do.

"It is important that the applicant exhibits a plan or order to his life; that he knows where he fits in the scheme of things," he stated.

Sandoval believes Notre Dame can add a unique dimension to the program - a "moral fiber for society." He feels Notre Dame can provide the academic rigor and competition of Harvard or Stanford, but also adds a certain spiritual strength.

He sees the sense of community and service to others found at Notre Dame as just the sort of attitude the fellowship program was designed to foster.

subcommittee is attempting to determine whether the industry will heed Carter's appeal for a price freeze.
Eight other oil companies also failed to show up at yesterday's hearing on heating oil prices, but these all promised to send representatives to a subsequent session, Moffett said.

In a Sept. 14 letter released by the subcommittee, Texaco President John K. McKinley told Moffett:

"as you know, Texaco has already announced its heating oil plan . . . We do not believe it would be appropriate for us to participate in discussions with competitors regarding their future heating oil pricing policies and related plans."

John Galloway, subcommittee staff director, told the panel that Texaco's promise to freeze heating oil prices was misleading. He noted that the "promise" only covers the rest of this year - before the heaviest part of the heating season gets underway.

YOUR EDUCATION DOESN'T STOP HERE

Your education doesn't stop with a baccalaureate degree. It begins there. Once you enter the world of work, you will gain valuable experience and really discover what it's all about to use what you learned in college.

Take the Air Force for example. As a commissioned officer you'll be handed executive responsibility on your very first job. You'll manage people and complex systems. You'll be expected to perform well, and you'll be paid well, too. It's worth working for.

You can get there through the Air Force ROTC program. In fact, we have a scholarship plan that will net you $100 a month tax free and pay for all tuition, books and lab fees. And that will free you to concentrate on your studies so you can get well prepared for where you're headed.

Check it out. Find out how you can get into a "graduate" program like the Air Force. It's a great way to serve your country, and possibly find your formal education extended at Air Force expense as well.

Giannis 6-4, 6-1. It took SMC's Smith and O'Brien three sets to take their Valpo opponents, Tebert and Weil, 6-4, 4-6 and 6-1. At the final spot, third doubles, Bracken and Dvonch of Saint Mary's downed Wilson and Peterson 6-3, 6-4.

Saturday the squad will travel to Purdue as the Belles set out to defend their 2-1 season record.

Well, after the game some of the coaches were in tears of joy. Now that's emotional.

Then there was the celebrating outside the stadium in Ann Arbor, the near riot in the dining halls for Saturday's dinner, and that greeting the team received upon returning Saturday.

We had just gotten back from Ann Arbor and were driving up Notre Dame Avenue when the start of the crowd swarmed my car. Neither Mike, Bill, Chris or I could believe it.

Yeah, there was definitely something special about Saturday's win.

And now, in closing, I would like to pay special

Boston Red Sox great Carl Yastrzemski, who last week became the first American League player to collect 3,000 hits and belt 400 homers in a career, was named the league's Player of the Week, AL President Lee MacPhail said Monday.

Also Monday, Pete Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies was named the National League's Player of the Week, league President Charles Feeney said.

SMC Volleyball team looses

The Saint Mary's volleyball team lost its season opener Friday to Vincennes University. Although the match scores were disappointing (15-7, 15-11, 15-3), coach Erin Murphy was not discouraged with her team. "The team looks promising," she commented, "but they need more work."

Murphy credited Marianne Viola with an excellent night at the net. Viola spiked 14 percent for kills on the evening.

Murphy also complimented Kathy Monahan for her effectiveness at the service line for the Belles, and this year's co-captains, Amy Morris and Terri Walters, for their leadership in the match against Vincennes.

The Belles next match is tonight at Hope College one short of what he needed to tie Lundgren. His strong showing earned him the silver medallion for second place.

McGuinness, a returning member of last year's golf team, has also earned the praise of Noel O'Sullivan, the Irish golf coach. While McGuinness made the team in his sophomore year, he received very little playing time at first. But his good attitude and tremendous desire to improve his game prompted O'Sullivan to give him a shot at playing in competition.

"Bill's positive attitude and loyalty to the team told me to give him a chance to play," O'Sullivan said, "and neither I nor the team have regretted this decision."

O'Sullivan went on to say that McGuinness possesses the qualities that he looks for in a player. "I'm not interested in only numbers. I'm also interested in the player as a person, and Bill McGuinness exemplifies the type of individual that I want on my team."

Capturing the bronze medal for third place, five strokes behind McGuinness, was sophomore Bob Horak who came in with a solid 287 for the tournament. Horak, along with seniors Bob Gibson and Eric Bauwens, and freshmen Tom Svete and Stoney Ferlman, will join the five returning members of last year's team to make up the 1979-80 Irish golf squad.

Coach O'Sullivan, who served as director of the Notre Dame Open, expressed some thoughts about this year's tournament. "I was pleased that so many players (25) finished all 72 holes in the tournament. Even the guys that knew they didn't have a chance to win a medal finished because they wanted the tournament experience."

O'Sullivan also credited Joe Harlow, the manager of the Burke course, and his staff with contributing to the success of the Open by keeping the course in such fine condition for the players.

The 'B' team fought back gallantly to tie Michigan, 10-10, when Joe Gill converted with only two minutes left. F. J. Brosnan and Hank 'Kerchief' scored tries for the Irish to lead the comeback charge.

Another defensive struggle found the 'C' clubbers losing a tough 7-0 decision to the Wolverines. All three teams travel to West Lafayette for encounters with Purdue next Saturday.

tribute to some people:

To the guy with the beard sitting in my section behind the end zone - good job orchestrating all those cheers, but I'm kind of glad that one didn't catch on. It was a might vulgar.

To that one busload of people, whoever they were, who the student body swarmed halfway down Angela Saturday night - oops, sorry, but all those buses look alike.

To the guy who climbed atop the lead bus Saturday night and rode shotgun down Notre Dame Avenue - how did you get up there anyway?

And lastly, to a Irish fan named Mary Pat - she was sitting in the Michigan student cheering section, and since she was being so "obnoxious," got passed up a few rows. Let's, er, give her a hand.

Like Marty said, it was a student body victory. Onward go the Irish.

Ruggers drop match, lose players

by Mike Previte
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame Rugby Team (A) dropped a nip and tuck 18-14 battle at Michigan on Saturday despite two tries by Jim "Bowman" Bowers. The loss looms as a costly one for the Irish who may have lost kicker Mike Allair with torn knee cartilage.

The Ruggers managed to dent Michigan's armor in the first half when Bowers ambled over from ten yards out following a penalty kick. Allair's two point conversion kick kept ND close (down 10-6) at the half.

The Irish also saw Okie O'Connor (15-stitch cut) and Mike McGlynn, Jr., injured early in the game. Only one substitution was allowed, so McGlynn got a chance to show some true fortitude in the second half. He scored the second Notre Dame try to narrow the deficit to five, then set up Bowers' second tally of the contest to account for the final of 18-14.

"Losing Mike (Allair) was definitely the turning point," said Bowers, noting the fact that his presence on the last two kicks could have tied it up. "We held those guys to only one try!" (The Wolves had 4 field goals.)

Irish nine sweep twinbill

by Bill Marquard
Sports Writer

It may only be fall practice, but you certainly can't tell that to the Notre Dame baseball team.

The Irish diamond men, paced by both strong hitting and stingy pitching, swept a twinbill from Tri-State by 11-0 and 8-1 counts on Sunday afternoon.

"What pleases me most of all is that we used so many players today," commented Irish head coach Tom Kelly.

Juniors Mike Deasey and Marty Vuono combined for a 3-hit shutout in the opener as the offense, aided by 8 Tri-State walks, posted 11 runs on 10 hits.

"Deasey had very good control, he didn't walk a single batter in his five innings," noted Kelly, entering his fifth year as Irish sandlot mentor.

"Dan Voellinger really pulled the trigger at the plate, but the team, as a whole, put the hits together when they had to."

Voellinger, a senior catcher/designated hitter went 4 for 6 on the day, scoring 3 runs.

The Rockford, Illinois native cracked a home run in each game, barely missing a third which went foul by inches. Junior Jim Montagano also smacked a round-tripper in the nightcap.

Bob Bartlett, Bryan Smith and Tim Handrich combined to limit the Tri-Staters to four hits in the night cap, while Irish bats drove in eight runs on the wake of a 14-hit attack.

"Bartlett had pitched only a couple of innings in practice prior to Sunday," commented Kelly. "We gave 5 members of our pitching staff some work, so we'll probably go with an entirely new crew of pitchers for Friday."

The Irish face Valparaiso in their next single-game test on Friday.

Not only did the Irish sandlotters display offensive prowess and pitching depth, but their defense came through as well.

"We played a steady defense. We're new up the middle, at short, second and center, but we didn't give up much there. The team hasn't done much work at all with a set lineup, so it was gratifying to see them gell together so well."

As long as that gell doesn't freeze over the winter, spring baseball prospects look good for the Irish.

Saint Mary's netters recover from opening loss

by Beth Huffman
Women's Sports Editor

A loss in the season opener is enough to discourage anyone, but a good team won't let it get them down. Saint Mary's tennis team, after losing its first match with DePauw, came bouncing back in their second to overpower Valparaiso 8-1 on Tuesday, and Indiana State University 8-1 on Friday. The two victories, pushing the Belles' record to 2-1, set the stage Saturday for a first place tie at the ND/SMC Tourney on the Irish courts.

Saint Mary's tied the Irish with 18 team points to lead a field of eight in the tourney. Patsy Coash, competing at first singles, defeated Linda Hayer from Notre Dame in a match the Belles' coach Sandy Frey said Coash "won easily." Frey continued to say the freshman stand out has yet to face true competition--"she has been far and above better than anyone she has faced."

Karen Smith and Jane Dvonch, in second and fourth singles, respectively, won third place in the consolation bracket at the tourney. The doubles team of O'Brien and Fitzgerald topped the team from Saint Francis to win 6-4, 7-5 in their third place consolation bid. Terri Bracken and Mo O'Brien finished second in their doubles division behind the St. Francis team.

The Belles dropped just the first doubles category on Friday against Indiana State to win 8-1. ISU's Acton proved no match for Coash who won 6-0, 6-0. SMC's Fitzgerald, Smith, Manza, M. O'Brien, and Mo O'Brien rounded out the singles wins without losing a set.

Indiana's only win was recorded when Acton and Glass came back after losing the first set to Terri Brack and Jane Dvonch 2-6 and notched 7-5, 6-4 wins. Gasynor McCown and Nella Dominici paired to win 7-6 in the first set and then by default in the second over the ISU second doubles team of Mosson and Barnhorst. Belles Janice Sacchari and Linda Radler topped ISU's Stevens and Grieseg 6-2, 6-1 to finish the match.

After the Indiana State match coach Frey complimented her team's play and stressed that all twelve of the Belles team

The Belles won five of the six singles match-ups and all three doubles contests on Tuesday against Valparaiso to take a 8-1 victory. Patsy Coash, a freshman head lining the SMC line-up at first singles, put away her Valpo opponent 6-1, 6-1. Maureen Fitzgerald stopped Tebert of Valpo 6-3, 6-2 while Karen Smith at third singles polished off Hoizenga 6-1, 6-2. Weil of Valparaiso fell to Maureen O'Brien 6-3, 6-4 while Mo O'Brien, also a Belle team member, took Genny 6-3, 4-6, 6-3. Camel Manza, who holds the fourth singles berth at SMC, fell prey to Peterson 6-4, 6-2 for the team's only loss.

In doubles action Coash teamed with Fitzgerald for the Belles to take Sanders and

Lundgren takes ND Open

by Bill McCormick
Sports Writer

Since the first Notre Dame Open was played in the early 1950's there has only been a select number of golfers who have won the tournament in consecutive years. Now that the 1979 Open has come to a close, another name must be added to that select list.

Senior John Lundgren, who led for the entire tournament, finished with a 72-hole total of 281 to win his second straight gold medallion, the award presented to the Open champion. John's 281 is seven shots off the Open record of 274 set by Jim Culveyhouse in 1975.

Lundgren was able to hang on to the victory despite a fine performance by junior Bill McGuinness. McGuinness fired an impressive, 3-under par, score of 68 in his final round to finish at 282, only one stroke off Lundgren's winning total.

Lundgren had already completed his four rounds when McGuinness still had his last round to play. Asked about his feelings going into the final eighteen holes, McGuinness replied, "I knew it would be tough to catch John after his hot start(136 after 36 holes). I was just trying to shoot the best score that I could."

McGuinness' round of 68, a personal low for him on the Burke Memorial course, was

After weekend win

Campus erupts in victory spirit

The majority of people who were at Michigan Stadium Saturday, I'd guess, have regained about 80 percent of their voices by this afternoon. Those who were among the throng of over 4,000 which greeted the team back to campus Saturday night probably got the use of their vocal chords back yesterday.

Why? Why, at a school where the football team ranks as the most famous one in the world, did everyone go so nuts over a 12-10 victory at the unfriendly Roman coliseum they call Michigan Stadium?

Well, for openers, we were all here. Two years ago, when the Irish beat USC, October break for most students began right after the game. No one really had the time to hang around to celebrate the 49-19 thrashing.

Then, later that season when Notre Dame won its national championship via a 38-10 hooking of the horns in the Cotton Bowl, most of us were watching it on CBS while home on Christmas vacation.

Ditto for last year's come-from-behind win at that icebox down in Dallas.

I've been here for three years now and it was kind of nice to see the football team time an emotional victory with the presence of the student body on campus. It just creates a better atmosphere.

I found it kind of hard to get excited back home on Long Island the last two years when Notre Dame won the Cotton Bowl. I mean, most of my friends go to St. John's and they could care less about a football game down in Dallas.

My freshman year I was one of those poor unfortunates who had to stay here for October break, and there was just not enough people around for anyone to get excited.

You've got to understand. For me, it is a little different. I have watched every home football game the past two years from the press box. Saturday's game at Michigan was only my second Notre Dame football game as a spectator. Maybe I am being naive through a lack of experience as a spectator, but there was something special about Notre Dame's win Saturday.

Why? For the first time in five years, opening against a major power, the Dan Devine coached Irish wasted not time in coming up with a big win. Forget about turning things around four or five games into the season - start out the year with a bang. That's what the Irish did Saturday.

How emotional a victory was it?
