Carter bars future Iranian oil imports

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter halted oil imports from Iran yesterday, declaring that America will not bow to economic pressure or terrorism in its efforts to protect "the lives of our people" held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Carter said he was cutting off Iranian oil imports, which account for at least 4 percent of daily American consumption, "to eliminate any suggestion that economic pressures can weaken our stand on basic issues of principle."

He said the Iranians who have held the embassy and 60 Americans hostage since Nov. 4 are trying "to force unacceptable demands on our country."

The students occupying the embassy have demanded that the United States surrender the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi for trial as a war criminal. The shah is hospitalized in New York for cancer treatment.

The president said it is vital to the United States and the world that diplomatic personnel be protected, "and that we refuse to permit the use of terrorism and the seizure and the holding of hostages to impose political demands."

U.S. officials said earlier in the day that there had been no apparent change in the condition of the American hostages.

In his statement, nationally broadcast from the White House press room, Carter said, "No one should underestimate the resolve of the American government and the American people in this matter."

He then ordered a ban on the purchase of "any oil from Iran for delivery to this country." He said the move must be part of an international effort to secure release of the American hostages.

In announcing the ban on Iranian oil, Carter warned that his action will present a "real challenge" to the nation and will test American strength and determination.

He said he has asked the Energy Department to develop conservation measures and promised to work for fair and equitable distribution of short fuel supplies.

The White House is considering asking the nation's governors to attend a meeting in Washington this week where President Carter would discuss conservation steps that would reduce oil consumption.

Carter said: "America does face a difficult task and a test. Our response will measure our character and our courage. I know that we Americans will not fail."

He praised Americans for their restraint, despite scattered anti-Iranian incidents across the country.

He urged Americans to keep calm "despite the intensity of our emotions." He added: "The lives of our people in Iran are at stake."

Security defends rape map

by Rosemary Mills

Editor-in-Chief

"To the best of my knowledge, the information that is reported on the map is reasonably accurate," stated Glenn Terry, director of Notre Dame security. Terry made this statement regarding the alleged inaccuracy of a map plotting the locations of rapes during the past ten years on campus.

James Roemer, dean of students, and Terry met yesterday with representatives of undergraduate and graduate women from both ND and Saint Mary's.

The group pondered the possibility that students who had been raped were not reporting the incidents to security. A discussion of the procedures followed when a rape occurs ensued.

Susan Tamborini, director of Holy Cross Hall and director of the SMC Rape Awareness Program, also attended the meeting. Tamborini, who did postgraduate study on the subject of rape, explained how important it was that students be aware of what to do if they are raped. "We urge the students to inform their resident assistant (RA) or hall director," she stated.

Tamborini said that rape is the most under-reported crime because of fear of the attacker, embarrassment, or knowledge of the attacker. Roemer concurred with Tamborini that accurate reporting of rapes must go down to the student level.

According to Tamborini,

Responding to visa issue

Schools confer on Iranian students

By Mary Fran Callahan
Staff Reporter

In response to President Carter's recent order for the validation of Iranian student visas, major universities of the mid-west have scheduled a conference of foreign advisors to be held Thursday at Purdue University. The schools are experiencing difficulties in locating accurate records on the status of their international students' visas. Notre Dame had not encountered this problem.

According to Fr. Thomas Tallarida, director of International Student Affairs, all processing of student visas is done by the American consulates in the respective foreign countries. In order for a foreign student to be educated in the United States, he must first be accepted at an American university. In order to gain acceptance, aside from the standard criteria, he must also prove that he is financially capable of paying his tuition bills. Should a university accept a student, it would then send him an I-20 form which is a student visa.

"Many schools send out I-20's like they were candy bars," Tallarida said, "in order to keep enrollment up."

Notre Dame, however, is much more judicious in its distribution. "We act as an agent of the federal government when we issue the I-20," Don Bishop, Admissions counselor commented. According to Bishop, 38 I-20's were sent out the past year. Thirty-six new international students are currently at Notre Dame on those visas. Bishop said that the two I-20's were promptly voided when the applicants chose not to attend Notre Dame.

'Many schools send out I-20's like they were candy bars...'

Once the student is at the U.S. university, the responsibility for maintaining accurate records for the Immigration Authorities lies in the university's hands. Thursday's conference involves all the major universities from Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky. Since the universities are not able to locate accurate records on the status of their international students' visas, many international students are in limbo.

"It's not the most organized system," Tallarida commented. "The immigration authorities have no computerized records and there is also a shortage of manpower. So they get all their information ricocheted from the schools' records," he explained.

One Iranian citizen who is currently studying at Notre Dame had his visa expire in August. He promptly requested a renewal in September. Though he has not yet been notified by the American Consulate, Tallarida said the student is in no danger of being deported since the request was filed. The only dilemma is that the student may not return to Iran until his visa arrives. Should he return to Iran without a valid visa, he would not be able to leave the country.

The other Iranian student at Notre Dame possesses a valid visa.

Since all normal operations have been curtailed at the seized Tehran Embassy, no visas can be processed. No Iranian students then can apply for student visas to leave their country.

Bishop commented, "The biggest problem international students have here is getting in." Citing the fact that the prospective students are legally required to prove that they are financially sound, Bishop indicated that the foreign applicants tend to come from wealthy families. "We have very little problem here. The students that apply to Notre Dame are generally stable, serious students," Bishop explained.

Begin government loses major Parliament vote

JERUSALEM (AP) - Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government lost a major Parliament vote yesterday on the issue of restricting abortions, throwing it into a serious political crisis.

The ultra-orthodox religious party Agudat Israel had threatened to leave the Begin coalition if it were defeated on the abortion issue. The withdrawal would bring down the government. Its leader said a decision would be announced today.

The defeat came on a breathtaking roll-call vote cutting across party lines. The Knesset deadlocked 54-54 with two abstentions on the government bill, which would have removed from the abortion law a clause permitting abortions for social and economic reasons.

"The bill has not been accepted," Knesset Speaker Yitzhak Shamir announced, raising cheers from the opposition labor party at the end of a raucous debate.

The new crisis was the latest in a series of political troubles plaguing Begin's government - concerning settlements in occupied Arab territories, a Cabinet reshuffle and the resignation of Moshe Dayan as foreign Minister.

Dayan, who does not belong to any political party, voted against the government on the abortion bill.

The Agudat Israel party regarded the liberal clause in the abortion law as a violation of Orthodox religious law and demanded a change as the price of its support of Begin's government.

Iranian student held for fatal shooting of youth

DENVER (AP) - While the governor urged Colorado residents to "stay calm," District Attorney Dale Tooley said it could be tomorrow before he decides what charges, if any, to file against an Iranian held in the shooting death of a 15-year-old high school boy. Two other youths, who police said were looking for "some Iranians to hassle," were wounded in the shooting Sunday, which followed several days of demonstrations in Denver and Boulder over the seizure of American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Afshin Shariati, 21, a student at Loretto Heights College, was being held in the city jail. Tooley said Shariati would be advised of his rights at a hearing today. "We're investigating a possible homicide, a possible burglary and several other matters," Tooley said.

Pacer production halts; new Eagle model soars

DETROIT (AP) - American Motors Corp. will end production of its tubby Pacer model Dec. 3 to increase production of its new four-wheel drive cars by 60 percent, the company announced yesterday. AMC said it would boost production of the four-wheel drive Eagle models at its Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant from 250 to 400 a day. Spokesman John Pichurski said a "moderate" number of new employees would be hired, but could give no immediate figures. The Pacer, introduced in 1975, has been in increasingly less demand in recent years.

Brown reimposes odd-even gas sales; promotes solidarity

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said yesterday he will reimpose odd-even gasoline sales in California next week in a show of "solidarity" with President Carter's plan to halt the import of Iranian oil. Brown, a candidate for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, said he supports Carter's action and will not try to second-guess the president while the 60 Americans are being held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

the care of the victim. She calls the hospital emergency room, informing a special nurse and doctor of the event. Health Services is also called, and a student has the option of asking to see a member of the Sex Offense Staff (SOS).

SMC Security, meanwhile, checks the area and is responsible for informing the County police. "Security is asked not to come to the hospital," Tamborini added.

Roemer noted that the SMC program "is excellent," and suggested that Notre Dame follow the same policy. "Basically, we do already (follow the policy)," he said, "but our reports come in differently." According to Roemer, the University is informed of rapes both directly through security and through the halls.

Katie Kearney, assistant rector of Farley Hall and director of the student legal aid society, emphasized that RA's and rector's at ND are not trained to handle rape in the manner which the hall staffs at SMC are. Dearney, Tamborini, and Pia Trigiani, president of the SMC student body, noted it is important that RA's know the hospital procedures and the security procedures associated with cases of rape.

"Student Affairs should provide efficient and practical training," Kearney said strong-

PLO halts Iranian negotiations

(AP) - A Palestinian delegation many regarded as the best hope for winning freedom for the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran gave up its efforts yesterday and left the Iranian capital, a Palestine Liberation Organization official announced in Kuwait.

Work of the PLO's apparent failure to end the impasse came as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime and the Moslem militants holding 98 hostages at the Tehran embassy reaffirmed their determination to face down the United States in the tense confrontation.

A three-man negotiating team gave up its efforts and left Tehran. But Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Khomeini's foreign affairs chief, announced that Iran's Revolutionary Council would discuss "a proposal concerning the American Embassy."

Radio Tehran did not describe the proposal, saying it would be divulged once the council approves it.

Bani-Sadr and other Iranian leaders reaffirmed their country's central demand - that the United States hand over the exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to stand trial in Iran for his life.

A PLO source reported over the weekend the Palestinians were negotiating with Iranian officials and student representatives. But yesterday the PLO's No. 2 official, Salah Khalaf, told reporters in Kuwait that the envoys had given up their mission and left Tehran.

It was not known whether the Tehran ambassadors from Syria, Pakistan and Turkey, said to have joined with the PLO in the weekend talks, were still pursuing the negotiations.

ly. Kearney said she had been trying to organize a rape awareness program for hall staffs since 1977, her first year as an RA. "I'm sick of being put off," she said.

Pre-Law hosts Minorities Night

The Pre-Law Society will hold a Minorities Night tonight at 7 p.m. in room 101 O'Shaughnessy.

Guest speakers will include Prof. Rudolph Sandoval of the Notre Dame Law School, Grandville Cleveland; librarian at the the Notre Dame Law School and Asst. Dean Robert J. Waddick; Pre-Law Society Advisor.

BALSA and LaRaza will be discussed.

'Premier' staging set for tonight

This semester's Playwrights Premier will be staged tonight, at 8:00 p.m. in the Little Theatre at Saint Mary's. There is no need for reservations, and admission is free.

On the program will be five student-written plays, each fully produced.

Tamborini noted that the women's hall staffs are "only half the battle." "Men have to know what to do, too," she said. Tamborini, however, agreed with Kearney that a program for women was necessary.

Kearney then explained that she had bypassed the Office of Student Affairs and had set up a presentation for all women hall staffs this Sunday night in Farley Hall. The program will include presentations by a nurse from the emergency room, a member of SOS, a rape victim, Tamborini, and Kearney, who will discuss the legal aspects of rape.

Christian Lawyers plan meeting

Please note that the November meeting of the Christian Lawyers Forum will be held today at 4:00 p.m. in Room 101 of the Law Building.

The speaker will be Andrew Plodowski, a partner of the law firm of Plodowski & Sanford in Mishawaka. His topic, "The Christian Lawyer as Family Counselor", will focus on the problem that divorce law presents for the Christian attorney, and the role he can play when his client seeks a divorce.

There will be ample time for discussion of this issue, but the meeting will end by 5:00 p.m.

As are all Christian Lawyers Forum meetings, this one is open to the public.

As the discussion on the reporting of rape ended, Trigliani, and Shannon Neville, off-campus commissioner, offered suggestions on rape prevention. Trigliani presented five suggestions made by the SMC Board of Governance. The Board suggested that the patrol on Saint Mary's Road be evaluated. "The road has been better patrolled recently," Trigliani noted, "but I don't know how long that will last," she said.

Terry responded "I don't have a system of logging when cars go down that road. We don't tell them (security) any particular time." Both Terry and Roemer noted that the road patrol could be evaluated.

Trigliani also relayed suggestions that more lights be installed along the road, a guardhouse be built on the intersection of 31, better education be offered about rape, and that a buzzer or emergency phone system be set up along the road.

Neville, relaying suggestions from the Off-Campus Council, suggested that a student escort service be set up, possibly using the Library as a dispatch center. Roemer noted, "The University would support that idea enthusiastically."

Ballentine to present lectures

Dr. Rudolph Ballentine, director of the Biofeedback and Combined Therapy Programs of the Himalayan International Institute in Honesdale, Pa., will present two lectures tomorrow at 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. The first lecture, entitled "Medicine East and West-How They Stack Up In Terms of Modern Research," will take place in the Angela Room of St. Joseph's Hall on Notre Dame Ave. The second lecture, entitled "Wholistic Therapy," will be held at the Recital Hall of the South Bend Century Center. The lectures are sponsored by the Wellness Support Center of South Bend.

THE GREAT AMERICAN SMOKEOUT.
American Cancer Society.

Who Bears The Blame?

The recent takeover of the U.S. Embassy and the holding of 60 American hostages in Tehran has touched off violent reactions in the United States. Demonstrations supportive of the Ayatollah and the takeover by Iranian students in the U.S. have provoked anti-Iranian demonstrations on campuses across the country and have caused in any instances anti-Iranian feelings to replace logic. The Observer believes the Iranian students are violating simple rules of hospitality and breaking our cultural traditions which, by their presence in this country, they should respect. But we also question the reaction of the American people.

The Iranians demand the extradition of the Shah, and Iranian students in the U.S. support this demand. The students believe the Shah has no right to remain in the U.S. However, one must question if these students are not denying a person the same right they are enjoying. While the Shah may be a thought of as a criminal in Iran, the U.S. can not pass judgement on him without evidence. Thus he has the right to live and, at this time, that right necessitates the medical treatment he is being given. Can these students who have been allowed to live in the United States dare the government to deny anyone else this same privilege?

Residing, by choice, in a foreign country, means the acceptance of that country's traditions. We do not believe that aliens in America should declare their allegiance to another country during a conflict with that country. This is especially true when such a declaration goes beyond foreign allegiance and becomes, as exhibited in the demonstrations, anti-American. While America allows the demonstrations of beliefs in mass action, the violence which these demonstrations arouse is unacceptable.

Unfortunately, this violence is not solely attributable to Iranian students. The throwing of bottles, bricks and rocks, and the hurling of insults and hostile phrases, only adds to the violence and expresses illogical rage. Other actions, such as the refusal to service Iranian airplanes and freighters and the boycott of Iranian oil better dramatize American sentiment. Meeting violence with violence is more a manifestation of Iranian tradition than American freedom.

The Iranian students are wrong to demand the extradition of the Shah. They are also hypocritical to enjoy the benefits of a country and to riot against it simultaneously. But the Americans are also wrong. Not only have they reacted violently and wrongly so against Iranian students, but they have stereotyped all Iranians in the United States. Americans have been guilty of retaliating in a way they view as wrong for others to act. And who must bear the blame when both parties are at fault?

The Shame of Iran

Christopher A. Stewart

"It is the stillest words that bring on the storm."

-Friedrich Nietzsche

I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it anymore.

The U.S. penchant for masochism in foreign policy continues unabated. Numerous parties have taunted, abused and vilified us in the past 15 years, and we've been only too willing to acquiesce. First it was North Korea, with the Pueblo. Then Cambodia, with the Mayaguez. And we all know how stinky that Might Mouse of Indochina, Vietnam, is. They flex their muscles by evicting their own populace to a watery grave while starving a neighboring Cambodian population into submission for expedient political gain.

Now, Iran is once again center stage in the global theatre of the absurd. The Lunatics-of-the-Month Traveling Troupe is firmly entrenched in Tehran, where reactionary religious guttersnipes juxtapose their 5-a-day prayers to Allah with terrorization of innocent people.

The seizure of the US Embassy is the latest insult in a long series of neanderthalish tactics orchestrated by the grand maestro of this Mid-Eastern Stonehenge, the Ayatollah Khomeini. His zealous, belligerent sycophants evoke parallel images of the obsequious hordes who followed a nihilistic despot of the not too distant past, one Adolf Hitler. In Khomeini's case, I give credit where credit is due. He kills, plunders, pillages and tortures in the name of Allah, whereas Hitler did it merely for the Reich. Even Egypt's President Sadat is nauseated by the latest Iranian outrage, calling it "a disgrace to Islam." I wonder what the prophet Mohammed is thinking.

By seizing the embassy, and using hostages as a bargaining chip for the return of the deposed Shah (recuperating from cancer treatment in New York), the Iranians have tacitly declared war on the U.S. Their despicable actions undermine the sanctity of international law, which includes the notion of diplomatic immunity. By acting in this fashion, Iran has given the world a telltale sign of its refusal to abide by the ethical precepts that safeguard the cohesive interaction of nations within the international community.

By resorting to such primeval modes of intimidation, Iran belies its religious affectation and reveals its true nature: a 'state' composed of self-aggrandizing rogues, brigands and knaves. Their extant cultural chaos, judicial barbarity and unspeakable cruelty (over 700 people slaughtered in public executions since the Ayatollah took over) is an atavism to the grisly glories of Genghis Khan. Iran now joins the ranks of modern outlaw nations, a misfit amalgam of terrorist states which includes Vietnam and Cambodia, the only two nations on earth adept at the art of self-genocide. Welcome to the nightmare Iran.

With the exception of Sadat, the roar of diplomatic protestation is strangely reminiscent to the deafening din accompanying the recent atrocities of Pol Pot's Cambodia: zero. Which just goes to show how cowed and spineless the international community is toward any oil-producing regime.

"Why, those blazing-eyed derbies might turn off the oil if we protest, or double the price. Then where would we be?"

So moan the oil-importing nations, from Japan to West Germany. Nope, can't stop that oil. Progress, progress. Profit, big, juicy profit, remember? And they learned it all from that old sap, the U.S. of A.

After seizing the U.S. Embassy, the theocratic vanguard arrested the senior U.S. diplomat at the Iranian Embassy. Never known for their hospitality, the Iranians didn't want anything as miniscule as diplomatic protocol spoiling their latest rancid feast of anti-imperialist propaganda. The feverish pitch of hatred and demagoguery ran so high that one frenzied student immolated himself. Talk about blazing temper! In the U.S. some festive foreigners, including four Iranian students, celebrated by trying to kidnap the governor of Minnesota last Friday. Maybe they thought he was the Shah, incognito, being trained for a return venture to his Persian kingdom? Only Allah knows for sure.

Friday's Observer contained a remarkable interview with an Iranian student at Notre Dame, who assured us that the U.S. papers are "sensationalizing" Khomeini's comments. Quaint observation, but erroneous. Also, he claimed to know (how? Through SAVAK?) with "100% surety" that "Khomeini doesn't approve of the seizure of American hostages." Don't make me laugh. A terrorist is a terrorist. If the Ayatollah doesn't furtively sanction these aggressive actions, why hasn't he acted? Why didn't he intervene immediately, denouncing the students, and safeguarding the lives of the hostages? Actions speak louder than words, and Khomeini's actions are a whisper, even in contrast to that other well-known Arab humanitarian, Yasser Arafat.

We must remember that the lunacy call Iran is not a democracy, where a semblance of law prevails, but a theocracy, where God himself (aka The Great White Wonder Beard) ultimately decides. And theocratic henchmen have no love for capitalist, non-Islamic, secularized, decadent Westerners (aka Americans).

The U.S. has induced this disgraceful state of affairs by neglecting to formulate a coherent foreign policy since the fiasco in Vietnam. However, it is high time that the U.S. Government set about reestablishing its ethical and political prerogatives in an increasingly hostile world. If this alteration of the American political psyche entails justifiable deployment of non-nuclear military forces, so be it.

Finally, should the students murder the hostages, I wholeheartedly endorse massive military retaliation. Barbaric regimes only understand brute force, and the Iranians have yet to prove themselves responsible members of the human community since their truculent "holy man" ascended to his throne last January. If terror's their game, fine. We'll see how tough their mullahs are against the Marines.

In New York City street lingo, it's called "kickin' ass." It's about time the U.S. started using its boots, and let the sandals fall where they may.

PS: For those students who find it difficult to stomach the "murderous" presence of ROTCites on campus, I pose this query: if your father, mother, or uncle were held hostage, whom would you delegate the responsibility of rescuing your loved one, if all diplomatic channels had proven fruitless? A college educated Notre Dame alumnus? Or maybe the PLO?

P. O. Box Q

A Chicano at ND

Is Still A Chicano

Dear Editor:

In response to Al Alba's article on "The Chicano Chameleon" (Nov. 6), I would like to say that a Chicano at Notre Dame is still a Chicano. Personally, I am proud to be a Chicano from California and I am comfortable with this name. It is easy to lose your roots here at Notre Dame, especially when your own people shy away from their heritage.

Mr. Alba, I would like to thank you for your efforts to inform the Notre Dame Community of the presence of the Chicano at Notre Dame. Also would it be possible for one of your future topics to express to all of the Latinos at Notre Dame that M.E.C.H.A. is not a four-letter word?

Gracias,

Josephine Nevarez

LaFortune features nuclear concerns film tonight

Tonight in the LaFortune Little Theatre (first floor), the film "Suicide or Survival" will be shown by the Student Committee for the Investigation of Military and Nuclear Disarmament. It is a 25 minute documentary color film dealing with the strategic military forces of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. Times of the showings will be noon, 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. There is no admission fee.

The film gives an overview of the current nuclear crisis in both nations, with highlights of two actual nuclear alerts, the '62 Cuban crisis and the '73 Mid-East crisis. A simulated war-game scenario depicts how a local feud in East Germany could escalate into a full nuclear exchange between the super-powers.

Film footage from Eisenhower to Carter acquaints the viewer with modern efforts to minimize the likelihood of nuclear war, chiefly through the channels of international diplomacy and arms control agreements. Focus is given to U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations in non-military domains, including joint scientific, technological, medical, trade and cultural exchanges. The film culminates with an explanation of the present SALT talks, a demonstration of U.S. verification capabilities, and the significant role of the U.S. Senate in ratification of the SALT II Treaty.

An excellent contingent of officials, leaders and specialists appear in the film, including Secretary of State Vance, Secretary of Defense Brown, Senator Frank Church, President Carter and Soviet Chairman Brezhnev.

This film was produced by the Committee for the East-West Accord, a non-partisan American group concerned with disarmament. For more information, or if you cannot make these showings but would like to see the film, call 3091.

Belles end season on sour note

by Kate Huffman
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's College volleyball team rounded out its season last weekend in state tournament pool-play at Earlham College. The Belles were defeated in a close opening match by Taylor University, whom the Belles had defeated earlier in the season. Match scores against Taylor were 11-15, 18-16, and 16-14.

In their second match of the day, the Belles were defeated by Marion, 15-8, 15-6. In what turned out to be its final match of the season, Saint Mary's lost to Huntington College, 7-15, 15-7, 15-8.

In the first game of the match against Taylor University, the Belles scored 15 kills on 24 attempted spikes. After losing the second game, the Belles seemed to be heading for a victory in the third game, as they scored their 15th point and won the match. But the umpire called for a replay on the final point because a ball had rolled onto the court. Taylor went on to win the match on the replay.

The Belles' second match was even more discouraging to Coach Erin Murphy. "The next match against Marion we played immediately following the Taylor match," said Murphy after the loss. "I think the girls did not have enough time to mentally recover from the loss against Taylor."

In spite of the loss, Murphy commended freshman Peggy Pieschel on her aggressive defensive play and Mary Laughlin, also a freshman, on her excellent job setting for the Belles.

In the final match, Saint Mary's held a comfortable 12-1 lead over Huntington College. The Belles went on to take the game 15-7 but Huntington rebounded and took the next two games to win the match.

pus the rest of the way. Both teams advanced to the title game with close calls in their semi-final matches. Cavanaugh took Flanner all the way to a shootout session before bowing 1-0. Off-Campus got a ticket to the final with a 2-1 squeaker over Dillon.

Flanner wins second straight title

The interhall soccer season came to a conclusion Friday afternoon and in spite of dismal weather conditions, Flanner Hall eased to its second consecutive campus title with a 2-0 triumph over Off-Campus. It also marked the fourth championship in the last seven tries for the Flanner residents.

An early season 1-0 loss to Off-Campus prompted Flanner captain Jim McKee to remark, "We had to be able to control the middle of the field to win this game and we did."

Although the rain and cold hampered offense on both sides, the slippery astro-turf on Cartier Field seemed to have less influence on Flanner.

"We don't have any excuses," commented Off-Campus Pete Lichtenfeld. "They had to play on it (the wet field), too. Flanner played a really good game and deserved to win."

The breaks went against Off-Campus early in the game. Fifteen minutes into the match, a foul call awarded Flanner's Ed Kennedy a free kick just outside the penalty area. Kennedy took the opportunity to blast the slippery ball into the net for a 1-0 lead.

Only five minutes later another foul call resulted in a second free kick from close to the Off-Campus goal. Dan Cushing took a turn this time and fired the ball on the ground past a wall of Off-Campus defenders for the insurance goal that clinched the victory.

Flanner goalies Nat Walsh and Bob Goyette blanked Off-Campus.

Red dumps Stanford; suffers no letdown

by Chris Needles
Sports Writer

Dillon head coach Jerry Bridges was a little concerned about how his team would perform in its interhall semi-final playoff battle with Stanford. The defending champions had been unbeaten, untied, and unscored upon for the past two seasons until last week, when arch-rival Alumni played them to a 6-6 tie. But any fears of a continued letdown were quickly dispelled Sunday as Dillon scored on their first three offensive possessions and went on to defeat Stanford 26-0 at Cartier Field. The Big Red racked up a whopping 294 yards against a fine Stanford defense. Stanford was able to muster 133 total yards of its own, but as player-coach Rich Ward put it, "Our mistakes just killed us," in reference to the 45 yards in penalties and two turnovers his team committed.

Dillon took a quick 6-0 advantage in the first quarter as the Big Red moved 65 yards in eight plays, with Dana Crowley scoring on a 13-yard run. The key play in the drive was a 19-yard pass from quarterback Brian Crowley to brother Dana on a third-and-eight play.

On its first possession, Stanford picked up two first downs, but a costly clipping penalty put a halt to the drive.

The Big Red took over following a Stanford punt at its own 14-yard line and on the next play, tailback Kevin Kenny burst down the left side for a 66-yard gain to the Stanford

"We knew they were weak on that side of the defense," Bridges said, "and that's why we ran that way most of the game."

Five plays later, Brian Crowley sneaked into the end zone from three yards out. With the two-point conversion, Dillon led 14-0.

Then, Dillon recovered a Stanford fumble at its own 42 and once again they struck quickly. Brian Crowley lobbed a perfect pass to brother Dana who was streaking down the left sideline. The play covered 57-yards to the Stanford one-yard line. On the next play, Kevin Kenny went over for the score to put Dillon in command 20-0 at halftime.

Ward's reading of the riot act to his team at halftime seemed to charge up his troops in the second half as Stanford's offense, led by the gutty running of fullback Pat McDivitt, recorded three straight first downs. But another penalty, this one for offensive holding, ended another threat for the North Quad champions.

Late in the game, Dana Crowley scored his second TD of the contest when he caught a 30-yard pass from reserve quarterback Mark Nasca to increase Dillon's lead to 26-0.

Bridges was obviously pleased with his squad's recovery from the tie with Alumni.

"I'm nappy with our effort today - we had a good week of practice. We knew Stanford was a fine football team and there was always the chance we could have another letdown."

Morrissey rolls past Holy Cross

A stalwart defensive effort plus two touchdowns by Jack McCarthy pushed Morrissey past Holy Cross 18-0 in an interhall football semifinal played Sunday afternoon.

The fierce pass rush of Morrissey's defensive line harassed Holy Cross freshman signal-caller Dave Pairitz, who was playing on a badly-pulled hamstring, and forced the Hogs offense into numerous miscues, one of which led to the first tally of the contest.

Paul Blackowicz, who along with Joe LaVigne played outstanding defensively, intercepted a Pairitz aerial at the Holy Cross three and McCarthy plunged over to make it 6-0 Morrissey.

It stayed that way until midway through the third quarter when McCarthy capped a sustained drive, again bolting in from the three to give Morrissey a twelve-point bulge. It seemed to take the wind out of Holy Cross' sails. Tom Boxche capped the scoring to start the fourth quarter with a 1 yard plunge to account for the final of 18-0.

An understandably dejected Matt Hankau, captain of the (5-1) Holy Cross club, admitted the team didn't play as well as he had hoped, but stressed a ray of optimism for next season.

"This is the best season our hall has had in years," he exclaimed, "We're only losing three players so we have a lot to look forward to."

On the other side of the filed, Morrissey's captain, Dan Buckley, was praising his standout defensive unit and looking ahead to Dillon. "Everyone is really looking forward to playing them again. They beat us the first time, but this one's for all the marbles."

Buckley also hoped that the final could be played at the Stadium. "We had over 400 to watch last year's game. Hopefully a few more than that will come to watch us play next Sunday."

There's more than winning

Forget, if you will, about winning and losing; about point spreads and injury lists; tickets and travel squads. Indulge yourself for only a moment because this is one about having fun.

It started at 9 a.m. on the day of the Notre Dame - Navy game when I found myself shivering on the sidelines of a well-kept cow pasture, gulping McDonald's coffee and waiting for a soccer game between two teams of South Bend women to begin. I guess I was there for a variety of reasons; I had promised a friend I'd come and watch and I'd heard from others that the games were good and the people were better. I wasn't disappointed on either count.

The game I'd come to see was between the Flyers and the Angels and, even though the Flyers were heavy favorites, they could only manage a 1-0 win. With the score knotted at zero late in the second half, I began to pray that someone would score. You see, I have this thing about overtimes. As I was standing there, I noticed Terry Phelps coming toward me kicking a soccer ball. Slightly impressed that the mother of three could find the time (and energy) to play soccer for two hours on a Saturday morning, I asked her about her involvement in the newly-formed league.

"I played team sports in high school," she told me. "And I've always missed the great thrill that being part of a team offers. Unfortunately, most women never get a chance to experience that."

Waiting to play the next game, Digger's better half pointed out that there were six teams in this league, each with a roster of 20 women.

"And there's a long waiting list," she added.

As the game progressed, I noticed that, unlike many team sports that women have taken up, women's soccer does not digress that much from the level of skill evident in a game between two teams of men.

"We don't want to imitate the men," Phelps stressed as she greeted a teammate and passed her a loose ball. "We want to do it our own way. Obviously we can't be as physical as the men, but I think we rely a bit more on finesse. In that respect, I think our games are just as exciting." Just then the Flyers scored that one goal I mentioned earlier and the eruption on the field prompted Phelps to point out:

"Camraderie. That's what's so great about it. There are girls on my team from the ages of 15 to 53 and I consider everyone of them my friends. The feeling achieved by playing on a team crosses all boundaries - age, color, interests. When you're on a team you have to care about each other."

I wondered out loud if there could ever be that same camaraderie between men and women on the same team.

"Sure. I think so," Phelps responded. "My daughter plays little league baseball and at first she was just the girl on the team. But then the boys realized that she could hit and field and they accepted her. It's funny because she bakes cookies for the team and then goes out and hits a home run to win the game. It proves that both men and women can get involved and not have to give up their identities."

"I play because it's fun and because it's also terrific exercise," she concluded before running off to join her teammates.

"Hey, does Digger ever come to your games," I couldn't resist yelling after her.

"Oh sure," she said. "He comes to quite a few of them. But he doesn't scream or yell. Of course afterwards he'll tell me I didn't hustle..."

"But, the other night he went with me to a team party and after observing the great friendships that had evolved between teammates he said that's how sports should be. No egos, no big money - just people having fun."

And like I told you, that's what this one's all about.

Harriers wrap up season

The Notre Dame cross-country season came to an end Saturday as the Irish finished 10th at the District IV Championships in East Lansing, Mich. Indiana finished first, followed by Wisconsin, Cleveland State, and Michigan. These four schools will represent District IV in the NCAA Championships next weekend in Bethlehem, Pa.

Irish coach Joe Piane was not discouraged by his team's performance. After the meet he said, "Finishing 10th wasn't all that bad. It was just that the other teams were stronger. This year's competition should prove to be good experience for the future."

Notre Dame's top finisher Chuck Aragon, followed by Tony Hatherly, Aldo Bartolini, Marc Novak, and John Filosa. Notre Dame's most consistent runner, Filosa, suffered a lower finish after he had fallen on the snow-covered course.

As to his opinion of the rest of the race Piane said, "We got good performances from Chuck (Aragon) and Aldo (Bartolini)." Piane had hoped earlier in the year that his team could strongly contend for a place in the NCAA Championships, but as the season wore on, it became apparent that the Irish were in the rebuilding stages. To further problems, last year's top returning runner Pat Sullivan did not compete this year due to an injury. Two freshman runners were used for most of the meets, which will provide needed experience for next year. The Irish are only losing two of their top runners, senior co-captains Marc Novak and Pete Burger.

Swim team seeks timers

Those interested in timing varsity meets for the 1979-1980 swimming season are invited to attend an organizational meeting. Saint Mary's students are to meet tomorrow evening at 7:00 p.m. in LeMans Hall. Notre Dame students are to meet on the second floor of the Rockne Memorial on Thursday at 6:30 p.m.
