Student Union plan for change debated

By TIMOTHY GIANOTTI
News Staff

Student Union Director Dave Drouillard said last night he thinks Joni Neal, assistant director of Student Activities, may be "rushing things too much" with her plan to have a major Student Union reorganization proposal ready for a vote in the Student Senate on Monday.

"There are still a lot of grey areas to be cleared up," Drouillard noted after yesterday's meeting of the Student Union Steering Committee.

Calling the proposal "rough," he said that the committee needed more time to investigate before it could forward the plan to the senate.

Neal acknowledged "a few discrepancies" on some specific issues but remained confident that the Friday meeting of the Steering Committee would be the last one needed to finish the proposal.

The original plan was drafted by Neal after consulting Drouillard, Student Union Comptroller Bob Bondi, Director of Student Activities Jim McDonnell and Student Body President Brian Callaghan.

The purpose of the proposal is multi-leveled. Neal stressed one particular objective: social unity. "It appears to me that most of the social activity on this campus takes place in the halls," she said.

The new plan calls for a more campus-oriented social program, replacing present commissions with more comprehensive committees. Including representatives from each hall, these committees would theoretically lead to significant increases in social interaction for the entire campus, said Neal.

She also noted that the new committees would cut out much of the wasteful overlap between current Student Union commissions, thus producing a much more efficient operation.

Another issue the plan addresses is the changing of the Student Government working year from an April-to-April calendar to a February-to-December schedule. This modification would have a great impact on the current election process and political term service.

Drouillard explained that the main reason for this constitutional change focuses on the prevention of "second semester drag" — a problem in student government. "Students just aren't as motivated in their second semester," he said.

Another constitutional change included in the plan is the changing of the comptroller's position to a controller's. This reform is more than a pure semantic twist.

Under this change, the responsibilities of the present office of comptroller would be reduced to a purely record keeping and "paper shuffling" post, said Drouillard. The responsibility of financial management would fall on the director's shoulders, significantly increasing the director's workload.

Drouillard said that changes of this nature are the difficulties of this proposal. Any modification of the student government constitution requires the approval of the Student Senate, the Hall Presidents' Council, and all hall councils. It is in this stage that bills of the past years have run aground, he said.

But Drouillard is optimistic. "We (the Student Union) have a good relationship with Student Government this year," he said. "I think this will go through."

Holding two year's experience in the Student Union, Drouillard is in full support of the proposal. "This is what we think will work the best," he said.

Dave Drouillard, Student Union director, Mark Rolfes and Al Novas discuss the union's planned reorganization at yesterday's meeting of the Student Union Steering Committee. According to Drouillard, "There are still a lot of grey areas" in the proposal. Story at left.

District 2 candidates' views similar

Editor's Note: The following is the second of a five-part series describing the candidates in each of the five Student Senate districts. Today's segment profiles candidates from District 2, which consists of Breen-Phillips, Cavanaugh, Farley, Keenan, Stanford, and Zahn Halls. The series will continue tomorrow with District 3.

By BARBARA HARDIN

District 2 Student Senate candidates Doug O'Brien and Pat Browne hold similar views on the use of alcohol on campus, the final exam policy, and the need to look into bookstore prices.

O'Brien, a Cavanaugh junior, says a decision to restrict alcohol use on campus to those students 21 and older would be "unenforceable and impractical." He adds, "Some R.A.'s would be stricter than others" in enforcing the policy, and this would be unfair.

Browne, a Stanford sophomore, agrees that a change in the alcohol policy would be "totally ridiculous." Browne says, "It would turn R.A.'s into watchdogs, and people wouldn't trust each other." According to Browne, students would simply hide their drinking, and plan "illegal parties" despite the rule.

Both O'Brien and Browne predict more underage students in local bars and an increase in drunk driving accidents as a result of more off-campus parties. Also, both agree that adjustments could be made in party room regulations rather than forbidding alcohol altogether.

In regard to the proposed final exam policy change, O'Brien says, "It makes you wonder what a student is expected to get out of a class when all there is to worry about is the final exam." According to O'Brien, requiring a final exam to account for one-third to two-thirds of one's final grade is unfair. "A steady progression of work throughout the semester is the most accurate way to evaluate a student," says O'Brien.

Likewise, Browne says, "No one's performance can be judged for an entire semester on one test." He adds, "the discretion of whether or not to make finals accumulative should be up to the teacher or the department."

O'Brien, a history major, says, "A good student senator knows what's going on in hall council." O'Brien has been on Cavanaugh's Hall Council for two years as both a council member and a social commissioner, and, if elected, he plans to regularly attend hall council meetings in his district.

O'Brien says, "It's important for the administration to know how the students feel," and he says he intends to relay exactly what the constituents want.

O'Brien says a senator's job is to "analyze and propose new policies," and that it is "unrealistic to promise to change already existing university policies."

According to O'Brien, the Student Union is out of touch with the University, and he says he would like to see more interaction between the two. He also sees a need for more interaction between senators and their constituents. "People trip right over their senators without knowing who there are," he says.

O'Brien says, "We need senators who are not afraid to say what they think." If, collectively, "the senators exemplify strong leadership and voice, as a union we can get things done."

Browne, an accounting major, was a member of the Freshman Advisory Council last year and is presently a member of the Sophomore Advisory Council. He is also a social commissioner on the Stanford Hall Council.

Browne says he likes the idea of District 2 consisting of a quad with the dorms in such close proximity to each other. "I would like to promote unity on North Quad through activities," says Browne. Some such activities would be a "progressive party with just the district and a movie or two shown at Haggard Hall." He says he would also like to "set up a District 2 Advisory Council with hall presidents and random students in which I would compile views of students in the district and carry them to the senate."

ND
Campaign

Browne sees a present problem with student/rector relations. He says he would work towards "better communications between students and their rectors." He would like to "motivate rectors to get involved with the students in their dorm." He says this could be accomplished by encouraging rectors to help students in coordinating social activities.

If elected, Browne says he will do the best job he can do and "make the best of things" himself. Says Browne,

Conclusions same in French, U.S. bishops' letters on nuclear weapons

By JOHN NEBLO
Staff Reporter

"There is no essential difference of opinion between the French and American bishops' letter on nuclear arms," said Father Gerard Defois, former secretary general of the French bishop's conference. "The differences in the letters lie not in the conclusions drawn, but in the methodology used," he said.

Defois, who is credited with writing the bulk of the controversial French bishops' statement, said the American bishops' letter is a "120-page overview of the problem which analyzes theological, scriptural, traditional, and pastoral implications."

U.S. critics of the French letter say the document is too conservative because it does not challenge directly the French government's possession of nuclear weapons.

Defois says such criticism is unfounded. The 15-page letter, he said, was only intended to "make a moral statement about nuclear weapons as a deterrent to war" and to "generate public debate."

The American bishops' methodology was "a deductive process which analyzed Catholic doctrine and then applied it to specific U.S. policies," he said.

Father Gerard Defois

By comparison, said Defois, the French bishops examined "the political realities of today and then inductively arrived at the moral implications of the nuclear weapons."

The crux of the French bishops' position lies in what Defois called the "ethic of distress." According to the principle, the French bishops recognize two moral courses by which to deal with the Soviet "menace." These choices are; a total renunciation of violence as a means of self-defense, or the maintenance of a credible deterrent to war.

According to Defois, the first option requires, "an extreme moral heroism, a saintliness on the order of Gandhi, which simply cannot be expected from the population as a whole." Thus, pacifism on the national scale is a moral non-obligation." However, said Defois, the bishops did insist that non-violence is a morally praiseworthy option for individuals.

Nuclear deterrence is morally legitimate only as an interim solution, said Defois, adding, "nuclear deterrence is not peace, it is only a rightful means of self-defense until a true peace can be realized."

In Brief

Two of three students at the University receive some form of financial aid, according to a preliminary 1983-84 report from the Office of Financial Aid. A total of 6,175 students averaged $5,319 in assistance. Forms of aid, which are expected to total $32.8 million this academic year, include scholarships, grants-in-aid, loans, campus employment, federal assistance programs, Reserve Officer Training Corps awards, and non-federal funds. Total undergraduate assistance ($22.8 million) is $840,000 more than the 1982-83 school year, and graduate student aid ($10 million) is up $236,000. Undergraduate costs — tuition and room and board — average $8,650 at the University. Graduate tuition is $6,270 a year. — The Observer

After violating university policy concerning liabilities, sanitation, and contracts with vendors last spring, Ohio State students came to an agreement with Dean of Students Mitchel Livingston. The problem arose from students illegally selling baked goods in the dorms to raise money. Livingston got vendors to agree to the sale of products they weren't presently offering, and showed students what they had to do to meet the sanitation laws. While the new policy makes food sales possible, it doesn't make them easy. Sales of homemade food are still prohibited. And while fruit, nuts, and popcorn may be sold raw, cookies, donuts, and the like must be individually prepackaged. The policy keeps students from having to buy expensive state and local licenses, but a lot of campus paperwork is involved. In addition, vending machine owners insisted that student food sales be at least 30 feet away from their machines. — The Observer

ND accounting department ranked eighth nationally in recent survey

By REBECCA HETLAND
Staff Reporter

The accounting department of Notre Dame's school of business was ranked eighth nationally in a recent poll of over 400 accounting department deans by Public Accounting Report magazine.

Notre Dame's first top ten ranking is attributed to the increased publicity received by the accounting program, said department chairman Leonard Savoie.

Dr. Norlin Rueschhoff, former chairman of the department, said Notre Dame had previously been ranked in the top twenty, but agreed the department's increased publicity was the key factor in breaking into the top ten.

"In order to be included in such a list, the University must have very good and widespread publicity. No chairman would vote for Notre Dame if we had not proven ourselves worthy for all to see. It has taken us time to get the publicity and this time we did it," Rueschhoff said.

One of the instrumental factors in the ranking, Rueschhoff noted, was accounting student performance. He cited Jane Thompson, who placed third in the nation on her CPA exam in 1981 and, Anthony Thomas, one of five students in the U.S. to receive an Financial Accounting Standards Board internship. Publicity such as this directs national attention to the Notre Dame program.

Also a factor, said Rueschhoff, is the tremendous amount of student and faculty participation in the national Beta Alpha Psi conventions. Notre Dame has gained much publicity for its accounting program through this channel.

Besides national student recognition, a number of faculty members including Chairman Professor Leonard Savoie, Assistant Chairman Associate Professor Ken Milani, Associate Professors Norlin Rueschhoff, David Ricciute, Kevin Misiewicz, and William Nichols, have been regularly published in national accounting journals—and, Rueschhoff noted, serve on national boards and committees which aid in circulating the reputation of Notre Dame.

Notre Dame's accounting department instructs approximately 15 percent of student enrollment with 25 faculty members.

The curriculum offered is comparable to most collegiate accounting programs, but Rueschhoff pointed out, "Notre Dame freshman accounting majors take a common freshman year, so the program is more balanced than a typical vocational program found at some of the larger universities."

The top ten ranking, in order, was as follows; Illinois, Texas, Southern California, Michigan, Ohio State, Brigham Young, Michigan State, Notre Dame, Georgia, and the Wharton School of Business.

Chairman Savoie pointed out that Notre Dame was the only university among the top ten which does not offer a doctoral program in accounting which may have kept it out of the ranking in previous years.

Saint Mary's to elect student body, class officers today

Two candidates on ballot for student body president

By PAM RICHARDSON
Staff Reporter

After a week of hanging posters, handing out platform statements and door-to-door campaigning, Saint Mary's will conclude its election as students vote today for next year's student body president and vice-presidents.

Two tickets are vying for the positions. The first is comprised of: Michelle Manion, student body president; Maureen Karnatz, vice president of student affairs; and Chris Hart, vice president of academic affairs. All three will be seniors next year.

Their platform emphasizes improved publicity of Saint Mary's events. They are proposing a separate publicity committee, in combination with a work-study program, that would pay students to hang posters on the Saint Mary's and

Notre Dame campuses.

Comprising the second ticket are: Lee Ann Franks, student body president; Anne Marie Kollman, vice president of student affairs; and Julie Strazabosco, vice president of academic affairs.

Their ticket is stressing the fact that as student body officers they won't just plan activities, but act as the link between the student body and the faculty and administration. Communication between these three groups is a big part of their platform. Franks said she knew this to be "a big trouble spot at Saint Mary's and we want to be the administrative-student link, by bringing issues to the administration."

Manion said, "We want to recognize student achievements in athletics, art, academics and music."

An in-depth study of the results of the housing changes on campus is planned by the ticket if elected.

Manion stressed the student-teacher relationship as being very important. They would like to initiate student-teacher activities such as slave auctions for United Way, along with investigating student input in tenure and curriculum requirements.

On the social side of the platform, Manion's ticket is planning a Saint Patty's Day Celebration, concerts at Saint Mary's, a mock winter Olympics, and a five hall dance during Orientation week.

If elected, Franks would have regular office hours in order to talk to the students. She also said she would like to work more cooperatively with RA's next year.

Franks said the structure of student government at Saint Mary's is continuing to change and they feel they can help this change be a good one.

Two tickets vie for senior class offices

By PAM RICHARDSON

Two groups of candidates hope to lead Saint Mary's class of '85 into their senior year as class officers.

The first ticket is comprised of Debbie Pascente, president; Mary Sue Dunn, vice president; Regina Pinotti, secretary; and Tracy Briggardner, treasurer. All four say they feel they have "helped the building process of our class." They plan to implement further improvements to help make their senior year their best yet.

Pascente said that if elected, they want to get as much feedback as possible from the class, in order to do "what they (the class) want to be involved in." For this reason the ticket is proposing a senior newsletter in order to inform off-campus as well as on-campus seniors of what has been planned.

In the area of social activities the ticket is planning a father's weekend, a luau to open the year, and a senior winter spectacular.

Maureen Galligan, president; Ann Bowler, vice president; Marty Bonich, secretary; and Jane Rauh, treasurer, make up the opposing ticket. Galligan wants to add new traditions as well as maintain those of past senior classes. They will aim for quality and not quantity in their events, and would like to get more people involved in class activities.

Their platform includes a proposal for an off-campus senior board in order to get more off-campus students involved. In the area of campus liturgy, Galligan wants to have more senior Masses and if possible, more retreats.

Academically the Galligan ticket would like to have a career day as well as representatives from graduate schools visit Saint Mary's.

Socially, the ticket would like to see a father-daughter weekend, pig roasts, and happy hours.

Clarification

In an article which appeared in yesterday's Observer, Doug Wurth, a candidate for Student Senate district 1, was quoted as saying "there is not enough information" to take a position on the alcohol proposal. Wurth was referring to the yet-to-be-released proposal being drafted by the Provost's Committee for the Responsible Use of Alcohol.

Wurth said last night that he is opposed to the idea of a dry campus. "Banning alcohol would be an unwise and irresponsible move on the part of the administration," he said.

The article also stated that the administration has a policy to ban alcohol from the campus. In fact, there is yet no such policy. Banning alcohol is only one of many options that the committee is studying, according to the latest statements by Father William Beauchamp, chairman and administrative assistant to the executive vice president.

Decision to remove troops to help Reagan politically despite attacks

Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, CA. - President Reagan's order to move U.S. Marines in Beirut to the safety of ships offshore was a dream come true for political strategists plotting his reelection campaign even though it escalated the U.S. military role in Lebanon.

Suggestions now have been raised that Reagan reneged on his word not "to cut and run" from Lebanon. And Democrats stepped up their attack on him for keeping the troops there as long as he did.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said he would have been reluctant to withdraw; "I think that the consequences of something that is perceived to be an American withdrawal under pressure in the face of the opposite statements that have been made (by Reagan) for weeks is likely to be quite serious throughout the Middle East and maybe other parts of the world."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said, "I'd rather lose a little face than lose a half-million men."

Still, Reagan's decision seems sure to help him politically.

As Election Day approaches, the media will not show Marines in bunkers or stretchers carrying wounded and dead servicemen from bombed-out shelters, but U.S. warplanes streaking over Beirut and warships offshore pounding Syrian-backed artillery positions.

At Reagan's campaign headquarters in Washington, advisers had hoped for just such a decision.

Politically, the Marine presence in Beirut has been a liability for Reagan. During his administration, 264 U.S. servicemen were killed in Lebanon, and polls show a majority of Americans favored the withdrawal. The Democrats have attacked Reagan's Lebanon stand for months, and Democratic presidential candidates have demanded the withdrawal.

The administration recently had been defensive as House Democrats pushed for a non-binding resolution for a prompt and orderly pullout.

In his order Tuesday, Reagan ordered the Marines moved gradually to ships offshore, beginning with about 500 troops within a month. He also authorized air and naval fire in retaliation for any shelling from Syrian-held areas into Beirut. There will be a growing U.S. military role, but the risk of personal danger will wane.

Doctor joins patients in picketing copper co.

Associated Press

CLIFTON, Ariz. - Dr. Jorge O'Leary not only treats his patients' ills, he has become a leader of their strike against Phelps Dodge Corp., the copper company that used to employ him.

He walks the picket line. He offers free medical help to needy pickets. He calls the seven month-old strike by miners "our cause."

"We are on the right track," O'Leary said, "we are hard-working people and I think that sooner or later God is going to help us, or society, or whoever."

O'Leary, 43, runs the People's Clinic in a converted feed store in Clifton, seeing 30 to 35 patients a day, many of whom don't pay.

Only a few months ago, he was a company doctor working at a hospital owned by Phelps Dodge. During 12 years there, he had delivered some 2,500 babies. But, he said, he became radicalized when the company used its hospital and the hospital's medical staff "to break the strike" that has torn this town.

In October, during chaos resulting from the worst flooding in Clifton in nearly a century, Phelps Dodge terminated him from his $50,000-a-year position on its Morenci Hospital staff for what management called his "inflammatory behavior."

He had accused the hospital of charging high fees to strikers and their families, thereby turning away those needing medical attention. He offered to treat patients without charge.

The hospital administration denied the allegations and declined his offer. After he was fired, he said, he was told he could rent office space at the hospital for several thousand dollars a month. He declined the offer. But he retains visiting privileges. He was evicted from his company-owned housing.

Within a week or so of his firing, O'Leary, with the help of strikers, opened the People's Clinic in this town of 4,200 people. While many of his patients pay nothing, O'Leary said his 10 to 15 private patients and those enrolled with the state's experimental ACCESS health care program for indigents have allowed him to become "self-sufficient, almost."

O'Leary, a native of Hermosillo, Mexico, is the son of a Yaqui Indian and an Irishman who ran a large Mexican brewery. He is beloved by his patients, and has also drawn praise from the Arizona medical establishment.

He said he has received hundreds of supportive letters and an estimated $3,000 to $5,000 in donations that have paid for medical supplies and equipment.

Congressional leaders are worried over use of naval force in Beirut

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders yesterday expressed relief over the planned withdrawal of Marines from Beirut but some worried about President Reagan's broadened rules for the use of naval guns and planes against Syrian-backed forces.

"The situation is still very fluid and very dangerous," said Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. It will "be a matter of great concern to us," he said.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said he has asked his staff and the White House to look into whether naval bombardment of Druse forces in Lebanon under Reagan's new "rules of engagement" requires additional authority from Congress.

Baker told reporters he thinks the bombardment is covered by the war powers resolution Congress passed last fall, but added that he has not examined the question closely. "I have asked White House counsel for a briefing on the subject," he said.

Reagan announced Tuesday that he has ordered U.S. Marines gradually withdrawn from their station at the Beirut airport to U.S. ships standing off Lebanon in the Mediterranean.

He also shifted U.S. strategy to permit naval guns and warplanes to strike at Syrian-backed factions even if American forces have not come under attack. Until now, the Marines fired in self-defense, with the ships authorized to join in the retaliation.

The resolution passed by Congress in September authorized the administration to keep Marines in Lebanon for up to 18 months, but required the president to seek congressional authority for any significant change in the mission of U.S. forces there.

Baker said new congressional authority presumably would be needed for the stepped-up training and equipping of the Lebanese armed forces which Reagan also announced.

The Foreign Affairs Committee has been considering a resolution urging a quick pullout of the Marines.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., praised the decision to withdraw but said he was "dismayed that the withdrawal is being accompanied with increased shelling of Moslem positions by U.S. warships."

Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum, R-Kan., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said withdrawing the troops was at least "a step in a different direction" but questioned whether putting them on the ships "is not just another version of being a sitting duck."

Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr., told the House Armed Services Committee that the U.S. mission in Lebanon "remains one of peacekeeping, there has not been an escalation."

Baker commented, "We're not going to abandon Lebanon. We will support (Lebanon) with naval artillery and airpower."

Asked whether he agrees with some in Congress who say the troops should be brought home, Baker replied, "Maybe so, but I'm not willing to say that yet. I think there is still a chance, maybe a slight chance, that we can have an independent and viable government" in Lebanon.

Who's who in Beirut

Associated Press

Here is an outline of the deployment of troops and militias in Lebanon:

AMAL Shiite militia; the largest of the Shiite Moslem militias has taken control of Moslem west Beirut and the southern suburbs and is joined by Druse militias and defecting units of the Lebanese army. They appear to have stopped shooting, and the militiamen have been ordered off the streets.

LEBANESE army; sixty percent of the 37,000 enlisted men are Shiites. Many of the units appear to have dispersed or defected. Part of the 8th Brigade was in the central mountains battling Druse. The Sixth Brigade has defected to the rebels and said it will assume security duties in west Beirut. The remaining Lebanese soldiers are scattered and refusing to fight.

SYRIAN forces; Syrians occupy the northern and eastern sections of Lebanon and support the Shiites and the Druse in their fight against the government and the army.

U.S. MARINES; 1,400 men in bunkers at their headquarters at Beirut International Airport at the southern edge of the city await orders for redeployment to ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet off the shores of Lebanon.

DRUSE militia; Druse remain in the central mountains overlooking Beirut, and are reported firing on Christian-held east Beirut. Their artillery positions have been reported hit by shells from the U.S. Navy battleship New Jersey. Druse have joined the Shiites controlling west Beirut.

CHRISTIAN militia; the military wing of the Phalange Party, which is headed by President Amin Gemayel's father, controls east Beirut and an area to the north.

ITALIAN forces; some 1,400 are in the Shiite and Palestinian slums of Beirut, north of the airport. On Wednesday Italy ordered a gradual withdrawal.

FRENCH forces; more than 1,800 men, headquartered at the racetrack on the old green line frontier between east and west, remain at their posts but patrols outside their sector have been halted.

BRITISH forces; all 115 men have been pulled out of their suburban position in an abandoned tobacco factory and moved to a Royal Navy ship off the coast.

ISRAELI forces; Israeli troops are deployed in south Lebanon, behind a line at the Awali River in an area inhabited largely by Shiite Moslems.

Legal drinking age of 21 is target of state legislatures across country

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The highway death toll among young drinking drivers, especially under-age youngsters who cross state borders to drink legally, is the target of scores of bills in state legislatures aimed at raising the legal drinking age.

"There is a tremendous amount of interest in raising the drinking age throughout the country," said John Moulden of the National Transportation Safety Board as he scanned a computer printout of alcohol-related legislation being debated across the country.

He estimates more than 200 proposals have been introduced in various state legislatures.

The problem of teen-age drinking was cited by President Reagan's commission on drunken driving, which urged in December after an 18-month study that Congress set a legal drinking age of 21 and cut federal highway funds to a state that fails to enforce it.

"There is evidence of a direct correlation between the minimum drinking age and alcohol-related crashes among the age groups affected," the panel said.

The National Safety Council in Chicago estimates about half the 46,000 traffic deaths in the United States in 1982 were alcohol-related. A report by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found eight states that raised the legal drinking age showed an average 28 percent annual reduction in nighttime fatal accidents involving drivers aged 18 to 21.

Only 19 states have a drinking age of 21 for all alcohol: Alaska, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah and Washington.

Three states, Vermont, Hawaii and Louisiana, have the lowest legal drinking age of 18.

In West Virginia, Gov. John Rockefeller says his primary legislative goal for the year is to raise his state's legal drinking age of 19. Hearings on the proposal are to begin today in the state legislature.

Gov. Richard Snelling of Vermont, which has kept the legal drinking age at 18 since 1971, opposes raising the age to 21. He says the solution to drunken driving among teen-agers is improved education and better enforcement of drunken driving laws.

Snelling says driving deaths have decreased in Vermont.

Although Congress is taking steps to set a nationwide minimum legal drinking age of 21, Moulden says, state laws are "much more likely to be enforced."

Several governors, as well as Jim Burnett, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, oppose any congressional threat to withhold federal highway money as a way of enforcing a uniform drinking age of 21 among the states.

White House spokesman Robin Gray said Reagan has taken no position on the commission's highway fund cutoff proposal.

But Sen. Frank R. Lautenberg, D-N.J., has introduced a bill that would use the cutoff threat to press states into enforcing a uniform drinking age of 21.

The ballet of devils in Central America

The great tragedy of American foreign policy is that it is formulated and conducted by heartless cynics who masquerade as realists. This is perfectly illustrated in an article on El Salvador by Robert Tucker, a professor of international law and diplomacy,

John Murphy

Guest column

appearing in the October issue of The New Republic.

Tucker states that an American defeat in El Salvador would have no significance for our actual national security, but he asserts that it would affect that amorphous, abstract quantity known as "the credibility of American power."

Tucker weaves his arguments with words like submission, demands, humiliation, condemnation and contempt. He even terms military intervention in El Salvador lasting a year or more a "modest enterprise."

Yet never once does he speak of the consequences for the Salvadorans. Not so much as a tip of the hat to a people who have suffered immense hunger, torture and violent death for years. No consideration of the implications his alternatives would have on human life in the country called "The Savior."

This same cold, rational calculation is seen in the recently released report of the Kissinger Commission. By now the fact that the roots of Central American unrest lie in poverty and social injustice is common knowledge, even to Kissinger. So naturally the report recommends extensive economic aid to the impoverished region, and incidentally to its people. It only makes good strategic sense.

Similarly the commission recommends continued aid to the contra rebels battling Nicaragua; this despite the influence that the contra raids have had on the general well-being of the Nicaraguan people.

As detailed by Richard M. Garfield in the New York Times these "freedom fighters" have killed more than 1000 peasants, created 56,000 refugees and the disease and malnutrition which usually accompany them, and have destroyed 22 rural health posts and hospitals.

In the process of that last one they succeeded in killing 19 health workers and abducting, torturing and raping 26 more. But then it all makes such good strategic sense.

Of course this administration also has displayed its concern over human rights abuses in El Salvador. "Abuses" such as the report that 83 young people and children whose decapitated bodies were found in August 1981 had been beheaded by security forces, as detailed in the 1982 Amnesty International annual report.

So on his recent visit Secretary of State George Shultz stressed to the government that Congress would never approve more military aid unless things like that ceased. Incidentally he added human rights progress would benefit the people too, because "who wants to live in a country where murder takes place on such a scale and isn't punished." It would be funnier if it weren't so pathetic.

Napoleon Duarte, a Notre Dame graduate, voiced some words of wisdom on this subject once. He said, "If the people of my country only believed that tomorrow would be better than today, that their children would live a better life than they did, then the communists could bring all the guns they wanted into El Salvador and there would be nobody to pick them up."

Maybe his people would be justified in believing that tomorrow will be better if only an American politician (or voter) could be found who gave a damn about them.

Instead it's as Gustav Hasford wrote after returning from Vietnam:

"Politics is a ballet of devils, and politicians, with paper roses falling out of their mouths, cannot conceal the blood from distant wounds that stains their neckties — but they do try, and millions do listen and believe, and choose not to see."

Or to care for that matter.

John Murphy is a graduate student in civil engineering at Notre Dame.

Swollen heads

Dear Editor:

The Observer seems to be suffering from swollen heads and myopic eyesight. In Wednesday's editorial, the board implies that it is more important than the student body of Saint Mary's.

The editorial states that The Observer wanted a mutually convenient time to meet the candidates. Unfortunately, in the real world, events don't happen at convenient times.

As it turned out, the "Meet the Candidates Night" was already scheduled. Since elections are today, a news story should have appeared on Wednesday instead of a "Viewpoint" editorial. This would have served Saint Mary's better.

The Observer also seems to think its endorsement is very important to the candidate. However, both candidates seem to think otherwise. In fact, an endorsement by the present board probably is a liability.

While an endorsement is of interest, publication of the candidate's views is important. Someday the editorial board will get a realistic perspective on life. Then students can read news instead of Viewpoint whines.

Joseph Leary

Grading system

Dear Editor:

While reading Keith Picher's column on Notre Dame's grade-point system, I was fascinated by his concept of the difference between an A, A- and B. He looks at an A- and sees a deflated A, when it could just as easily be a benefit-of-the-doubt B.

While no one has the statistics to prove it for sure, I rather believe that deflated B's would tend to cancel out in the A- category, and regard it as merely a meaningless grade overall, rather than a black mark.

Tom MacLennan

Student gov't

Dear Editor:

According to Observer reports, now the Student Government wants academic credit for governing this University. The proposal raises a practical problem. The Academic Code (7.1 — 7.4, and 17.1 — 23.1 passim) does intimate, occasionally, that there is some vague relationship between credit and grades.

Unless that relationship is to be repudiated, some arrangement for evaluating Student Government will have to be voted into the Code by the University's Academic Council when, if ever, the Council next meets.

Simply stated, who will grade Student Government's performance? Shall the Student Body at large submit anonymous Student Government Evaluation Forms each spring? Shall Dean Roemer grade the campus politics — after promising, of course, not to be arbitrary, not to act in loco parentis and not to let Indiana's statute law warp his judgment about Student Government's recommendations?

But why limit extracurricular credit to Student Governors? The Athletic Department could grade football and basketball players — thus solving a lot of other problems — while the Music Department credits the bandpersons who march at halftime.

Fine Arts could grade the cheerleaders, the clubs which show movies and the people who drape signs from dorm windows during Homecoming.

Sociology could award credit to anyone who has an opinion, and Anthropology to anyone who acknowledges his or her relationship to a chimpanzee. Philosophy could evaluate folks who try real hard to think; Economics, anyone with a checking account; Math, anyone who can actually balance a checkbook; Preprofessional, anyone who imagines a $160,000 annual income places one within the middle class; ROTC, anyone who looks macho in khaki; English, anyone who writes for The Observer, Scholastic or the Juggler; and Biology, anyone who has survived puberty.

Theology can grade every born-again soul who wants to do good, unless the theologians finally determine that the predisposition to goodness is utterly predestined, in which case they can just damn practically everybody.

Indeed, why limit credit to students? Other people do nonacademic stuff around here. Earth Sciences can surely evaluate the groundkeepers' performance. Engineering can award credit to the University's steamfitters and electricians, the guy who constantly fixes O'Shaughnessy Hall's broken offset printer, the architect who designed the library's elevator system, the bricklayers who will construct Theology's new building, and the maniacs who sweep snow from the parking lots after everybody has already parked.

The Law 'n' Order School can grade the campus constabulary, and the Business School the secretaries who really run this place. Notre Dame can dump a degree on anybody for anything, if it has the mind to do it.

Oh, maybe thirteen or eighteen students will be left who still expect to learn things they have not personally experienced, students who want to read books and go to class.

All such eccentrics can become History majors, hunkering about the feet of the one Muse who insists upon teaching trivial irrelevancies about distant and strange people, events and dreams — who insists upon revealing the world beyond the boundaries of this campus and beyond the narrow perspectives of this age.

Once the few remaining scholars become historians, the University can save bundles of money by firing the redundant faculty, shutting down all the other departments, boarding up the Library, selling degrees by mail and converting all the abandoned classroom and office buildings into social space.

On the other hand, maybe it is time for somebody to draw a line. Perhaps the University should even contemplate moving in the opposite direction — say, by adopting and enforcing serious and workable final exam, attendance and grading policies which will communicate the notion that academics matter. Historians suspect that the Age of Aquarius is over.

Prof. Bob Kerby

Correction

Saint Mary's student body president Eileen Murphy was elected in 1981, not 1982 as stated in yesterday's Observer editorial. Kathleen Murphy won the election in 1982 in an unopposed campaign.

Second leading scorer

Parsons setting and getting goals

By JOHN MENNELL
Sports Writer

Adam Parsons came to Notre Dame four years ago to get an education. But he's also getting goals for the hockey team.

Parsons is the second leading scorer on the team, already having netted 18 goals and 26 assists this season, but says modestly, "I'm doing all right."

He still has five games plus the Central States Collegiate Hockey League tournament left to increase those stats.

The CSHL is the third league Parsons has played in with the Irish. "First we played in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association," Parsons says. "That was good. We flew everywhere. It was also the best competition."

The next league for Parsons was the Central Collegiate Hockey Association. "It wasn't that bad, but we had to take the bus a lot," he says.

Parsons' sophomore year had its share of ups (winning the Great Lakes Invitational Tournament in Detroit) and downs (beating Bowling Green in the semi-finals of the CCHA Tournament, only to watch Bowling Green go to the NCAA Tournament while the Irish stayed home). But Parsons had a goal in that upset victory over Bowling Green.

"As seniors we have seen a lot of changes through the years," he says. "The biggest disappointment was the change to club."

"The change hasn't been as bad as I thought it would be. Lefty (Smith) has made it fun. We take it seriously, although pressure-wise, this year has been more relaxed."

Coming into the season Parsons had goals for himself and the team. "I wanted to go undefeated to show the administration," he says. "I wanted to do the best I could personally. I didn't have any particular numbers I was trying for."

"We, as seniors, wanted to go back to varsity just as badly as the rest of the team. I'm glad it's going back. I have a lot of friends on the team."

Parsons sees his role on the team as one of responsibility. "As seniors we try to lead by example both on and off the ice," he says. "We're supposed to be more experienced and depended upon. I always looked up to the seniors and now I accept that role."

Parsons hopes to win the rest of the season's games and the CSHL tournament.

After that his plans aren't so definite. "I'd like to try to play pro hockey. If not I'll try to find a real job," he says. "Lefty has talked about (my) possibly playing in Europe. I'd like to try out for an NHL club and play in the minors to work my way up."

"I just don't want to get a job and wonder five years from now if I could have made it. If I try out at least I can say I tried."

In his four years at Notre Dame, Parsons admits that he has matured, having gotten used to the freedom of college. "I don't think I could live at home," he comments. "Lefty has done some disciplinary things to me. I didn't like them at the time, but it was for my own good."

Parsons chose Notre Dame for more than its hockey program. "I came here because of the education," he says. "A lot of the schools that I talked to talked only about hockey. I wanted to go where I could play and graduate."

Parsons has no complaints about his time at Notre Dame. "I've enjoyed myself," he says. "They say college is the best time of your life but you don't realize it until it's over. I think I've started to realize it."

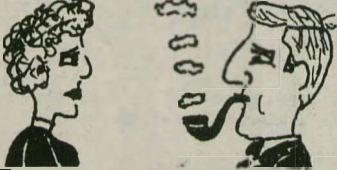

"I've got friends now that I'm going to have for the rest of my life. Sometimes coming over to the rink is a real pain but when you don't have it you really miss it."

Can't afford to lose

Team USA not writing off Czechs

Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — Just one game into the Olympic hockey tournament, Team USA is in an all or nothing situation. After the emotion-packed gold medal performance in Lake Placid four years ago, the 1984 Olympians may not even be in medal contention this time.

Already 0-1, the Americans' opponent today is powerful Czechoslovakia, a close runner-up to the Soviets in the World Championships.

There are six teams in each division in the hockey competition and the two that have the most points in each group will advance to the medals round. For the Americans to move on, they can't afford another loss, and even a tie in any of the remaining four games would probably eliminate them from contention.

Czechoslovakia entered the Olympics as the favorite in the B group.

"They are an excellent team and they should have beaten the Soviets in the World Championships," said U.S. Coach Lou Vairo, whose team dropped its opener Tuesday to Canada 4-2.

Canada lost two players in an eligibility dispute spurred by Finland, but blamed on the Americans, and that turned out to be an incentive in the first game. The Czechoslovaks also have an incentive —

they want to avenge their loss to the U.S. in the 1980 Olympics.

"We are a new team," said Ludek Bukac, coach of Czechoslovakia. "We are not the same team that lost in 1980.

"The Americans have a good team. They did not play their best against Canada. We expect them to play their best against us."

Czechoslovakia belted Norway
10-4 Tuesday in its first game.

In other games today, Canada plays Austria, the Soviet Union takes on Italy, Poland plays West Germany, Finland faces Norway and Sweden opposes Yugoslavia. The Soviets, West Germans, Finns and Swedes also won the openers.

Road

game. Other front-line players will be Steve Perry (4.3 ppg, 4.6 rpg) and Aundra Bell (3.9 ppg, 5.5 rpg).

On defense, the Knights probably will play a match-up zone, and they also may employ a zone press against the Irish.

The Irish will be led once again by captain Tom Sluby. The senior swingman is averaging 16.6 points per game.

Joining Sluby in the Notre Dame lineup will be forwards Jim Dolan and Ken Bartow. Health permitting, Tim Kempton will start at center, and JoJo Buchanan will be back at his point guard position.

Last Monday, Kempton sat out the game against Vermont with a calf injury, while Buchanan was nursing tendinitis. The two regulars were replaced in Monday's lineup by Donald Royal and Joe Howard, both of whom should see a fair amount of playing time tonight.

Another player who has been playing well off the bench is sophomore Joseph Price, who is averaging 7.1 points per game.

According to Phelps, there are two things Notre Dame must do to stop the Knights.

"We just have to do the things we didn't do on the road last weekend

(at South Carolina)," Phelps says, "which are, one, rebound and get offensive rebounds, and, two, get the reversals and penetration and get it inside."

Another thing the Irish probably will try to do is shut down Battle.
Notre Dame's defense, which is ranked second in the nation, already has shut down several high-scoring players this year.

Most of those fine defensive performances have come at the ACC, however, and South Carolina's Jimmy Foster showed that the Irish defense can be less successful on the road. Foster had 19 points in last Saturday's game.

Phelps is not too concerned that his players will relax against the Knights.

"Knowing that a lot of these guys are coming back home (Kempton and Dolan)," he says, "and that we lost back there last year to Fordham, we will be ready to play."

The Irish women's basketball team got just what it didn't need after a heartbreaking loss to Michigan State last Friday: another tough defeat, this time by a 61-59 count at the hands of Illinois State last night. Larry Burke's story on page 12.

Spirit and dedication

Junior Suess handles her roles well

By DAVE WILSON
Sports Writer

The 1983-84 basketball season has been tough on Saint Mary's, testing the players' efforts on and attitudes off the court. The Belles have struggled to just four wins in seventeen contests, playing teams that are sometimes stronger, and always taller. Elaine Suess, a junior from Grand Blanc, Mich., is one player who has learned to handle the frustration.

"It takes a lot of dedication to hang in there when you lose so much," says Suess. "We're playing teams with more experience and more talent, and that's when you just learn to do the best you can and be happy with that."

Perhaps that dedication has developed from Suess' lifelong interest in sports. A co-captain and starting wing for the Belles (along with senior Cyndy Short), Suess played four full years of both basketball and softball in high school, and received athlete-of-the-year honors her senior year. Following the basketball season, she will switch gears to assume her position on the Saint Mary's varsity softball team.

"I can't imagine not playing basketball," she says. "Being involved in sports means missing out on other aspects of the college experience, but that's how important basketball is to me."

Despite the awkwardness of having to play out of position, as well as the frustration of losing many games, Suess is in the midst of an outstanding season. She has scored in double figures in almost every contest, and recently was named to the SMC Roundball Classic all-tournament team. Last season Suess was named to tournament teams in both Green Bay, Wis., and Hanover, Ind. Furthermore, she has played on the team as not only a wing, but also as a point guard and forward.

"It's tough playing out of position," she admits. "You're forced to score and rebound against players who are much taller, and more used to the position. But as everyone on this team knows, with our height problem or we have been forced to play a somewhat modified offense."

Suess is favorable of Mike Rouse's coaching alternatives, however. At 5-6, she has taken on a demanding task at the wing position and has produced. In evaluating her position as a co-captain, Suess seeks to establish communication not only among team members, but between coach and players as well.

"I'm very happy with Rouse," she says of the second-year coach. "He's implemented a lot of smart tactics, and has really got us moving. He knows the game, and he's looking ahead to future teams at the same time."

"I try and provide some spirit and communication among the players," she continues. "We did a lot of talking on my high school team, and I guess I'm just used to that."

steal to put Illinois State back up by five.

It looked like lights out for the Irish, but Dougherty still had some magic left. The junior guard quickly hit a short jumper, then followed an Illinois State turnover with an off-balance ten-footer to bring the Irish back within one at 60-59.

On the ensuing Redbird possession, Dougherty quickly fouled Turner, who went to the line to shoot one and one with 17 seconds remaining. Turner hit both, but a Redbird lane violation nullified the second shot and gave the Irish a chance to play for overtime.

Dougherty drove the lane, but ran into heavy traffic and the ball deflected off to the right side to Basford. The sophomore guard got off a hurried 20-foot shot that bounced off the side of the rim as the buzzer sounded, signaling another heartbreaking defeat for the Irish.

Dougherty, who for the second consecutive game finished with a team-high 19 points, cited some positive factors in Notre Dame's performance.

"Sometimes when we're in a close game like this one we'll just roll over and die. Tonight, we came back well, even though we were down by five points with only 34 seconds left. We showed a lot of confidence in coming back, and we had a great chance to win. But they (Illinois State) did a good job defensively on the last play."

Nor are the Irish, now 8-12, ready to roll over and die this season, according to Dougherty.

"We're hungry for the next game (Villanova comes to the ACC on Saturday). We're not going to give up on ourselves. We really couldn't win tonight, but we'll still turn things around. Once we win that first really close game, things will start falling our way."

They certainly deserve it after coming up empty last night.

ATTENTION TAXPAYERS!

A new law requiring partial withholding of taxes on interest and dividend income will take effect July 1, 1983.

If you have an interest-earning account or receive dividend payments, this law will affect you!

This is not a new tax. Like withholding on salary checks, it merely changes the way taxes are collected.

Exemptions are available for older Americans, lower income individuals and those with small savings accounts. To see if you qualify, contact your bank, financial institution or the Internal Revenue Service in your area.

Adam Parsons completes a hat trick by scoring this unassisted goal at 6:05 of the third period as the Notre Dame hockey team defeated the Foresters of Lake Forest last night at the ACC, 6-4. The victory avenges the only Irish loss of the season and ups the team's record to 20-1-0.

Irish avenge only loss against Lake Forest

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

The Lake Forest Foresters did not rank high on the popularity list of the Notre Dame hockey team after they handed the Irish their first loss of the season Jan. 25 at Lake Forest. Last night at the ACC, however, Notre Dame got its revenge by defeating the Foresters, 6-4. The win also enabled the Irish to reach the 20-win plateau as they upped their season record to 20-1-0.

Adam Parsons scored the hat trick for the second game in a row to lead Notre Dame scorers. Bob Thebeau added two goals, and co-captain Brent Chapman had a goal and two assists.

The Irish hopes for revenge looked bleak early in the game as Lake Forest grabbed a quick 2-0 lead on goals by Ken Spencer and Mike Browne.

Notre Dame finally got on the scoreboard at 14:43 of the opening stanza as Thebeau raced in all alone on Forester goalie Stuart Frye and put a backhand over the sliding goalie's outstretched stick.

That cut the Lake Forest lead to 2-1 just 19 seconds after it had capitalized on a powerplay with Joe Bowie of Notre Dame off for charging.

Sloppy play was a problem for the Irish through most of the first period as they tried to adjust to the fast, scrappy Forester style of play.

"At the beginning we were having a tough time adjusting to the quickness of Lake Forest," said Head Coach Lefty Smith. "It takes some time to get on track after playing some of the slower club teams that we do."

Notre Dame knotted the score at 4:53 of the second period when Parsons tipped home a pass from Chapman on a two-on-one break.

Just over three minutes later Lake Forest's Steve Pinciak stole the puck from Irish goalie Tim Lukenda and put it in the net to put the Foresters back in front, 3-2.

Thebeau and Parsons both picked up their second goals of the night to round out second period scoring and give Notre Dame its first lead of the night at 4-3.

As things turned out, the lead was never to be relinquished. Two Irish powerplay goals in the third period provided a 6-3 margin with just six minutes remaining in the game.

Parsons completed the hat trick with an unassisted goal at 6:05 putting Notre Dame up 5-3. Chapman then banged a rebound off Frye's pads at 13:42 for the final Irish tally of the contest.

"Revenge is sweet," said Chapman. "We owed this one to them. They were laughing at us after the game up there last time."

Tim Locke picked up the fourth Lake Forest score on a powerplay at 14:32.

"Getting psyched up had a lot to do with the last game against them," said Mark Benning. "(Tonight) it was a hard-hitting game, and you can really get into a game like that."

Lukenda had 21 saves in earning the victory. Frye had 42 for the losers.

Lake Forest now drops to 9-9-1 on the season.

The next action for Notre Dame is this weekend as the team travels to Penn State to take on the Nittany Lions.

Another heartbreaker

ND women fall short of Illinois St.

By LARRY BURKE
Sports Writer

Coming off a heartbreaking 73-72 loss at Michigan State last Friday, the last thing the Notre Dame women's basketball team needed was another narrow defeat.

That's exactly what they got last night, however, as the Redbirds of Illinois State thwarted a spirited Irish rally and held on for a 61-59 victory at the ACC.

This defeat was especially frustrating for Notre Dame because they were forced to play catch-up from the outset. In the opening minute, the teams traded baskets as Illinois State guard Cathy Beesely hit a 12-foot jump shot and Notre Dame's Laura Dougherty scored on a layup. But then the Redbirds' Dawn Hallet scored three straight baskets and the Irish were down 8-2.

Junior center Mary Beth Schueth, who finished with 15 points, then got things going for the Irish, scoring Notre Dame's next three baskets, but Illinois State was up to the task. Beesely hit a 15-foot jumper to put the Redbirds up 15-8, and it looked like the beginning of a long night for the Irish.

Notre Dame hung tough, however, and began to chip away at the lead. With 3:09 left in the half, sophomore guard Lynn Ebben hit Carrie Bates with a pinpoint pass underneath. Bates, who had 15 points on the night, converted the layup to bring the Irish back within two, 25-23.

The Redbirds regained their composure, however, and scored the last six points of the half to take an eight-point lead.

The Irish made things even more difficult for themselves in the second half, letting Illinois State score the first six points for a 37-23 lead.

But once again Notre Dame regrouped and started to come back. At the midway point of the second half, the Irish went on a 6-0 spurt (four by Bates) to pull within five, 49-44.

The Redbirds regained command at that point, and took a seven-point lead into the final three minutes of play. The Irish refused to quit, however. Dougherty hit a 15-footer and backcourt mate Denise Basford converted a layup off a steal, and suddenly Notre Dame was within a point at 56-55.

Following a Redbird timeout, the visitors regained the momentum as Hallet hit a short bank shot and guard Tammy Turner scored off a

The 1984 Recruits 17 prospects sign with Gerry Faust

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

Yesterday was the first day that high school seniors could sign letters of intent to play football at the college of their choice and Notre Dame once again received commitments from some highly-recruited prospects. However, unlike the past three years, Gerry Faust did not rule the recruiting world. He got signatures from 17 players, far below the levels of previous years. He also grabbed four Parade Magazine All-Americans, a high number for most colleges, but the lowest total of his four years of recruiting.

There is no reason to panic, though. With three excellent recruiting years in a row, Faust did not really need another great year. Also, while the number was lower than usual, the incoming players fill some important holes at linebacker, defensive back, and fullback.

"Our freshman class for 1984 features quality instead of quantity," said Faust. "We didn't have as many immediate needs this year because of the number of players coming back and the depth we have at certain positions. Consequently, we had fewer individuals visit and we didn't expect a large class in terms of numbers."

The four players who were honored by Parade are defensive back Brandy Wells from Montclair, N.J., fullback Frank Stams from Akron, Ohio, wide receiver Reggie Ward from Long Beach, Calif., and linebacker Cedric Figaro from Lafayette, La. Another player to watch is linebacker Matt Dingens, the brother of current Irish lineman Greg Dingens.

It is also possible that a few more recruits could sign in the upcoming days.

The Notre Dame men's basketball team has definitely had its problems on the road this year. In fact, only one of the team's six losses this year has come at the Athletic and Convocation Center.

Tonight the Irish will be on the road, again — this time against Rutgers at the Byrne Meadowlands Arena.

Notre Dame has never won a game at the Meadowlands in three attempts, but the 15-6 Irish have a good chance to end that streak tonight.

The Rutgers Scarlet Knights are a relatively young and inexperienced team compared to last year's 23-8 squad, which played two games in the NCAA Tournament.

Tom Young's Knights have only a 8-11 record this season, and his team has dropped five of its last six contests.

Rutgers still poses a threat to the Irish, however, according to Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps.

"Tommy Young has always done a lot of good things with Rutgers' basketball program," Phelps says, "to have it where it's one of the teams in the nation that can give anybody a battle on a given night."

"And I'm sure tonight will be a given night for Rutgers," the Irish coach continues. "This is a game where they'll come into it with everything to gain and nothing to lose, knowing that if they win, a win like this would give them nothing but momentum."

Trying to gain some of that momentum will be the Knights' leading scorer, junior John Battle. Battle has averaged 20.1 points per game this year on 51 percent shooting from his guard position.

Rutgers' other scoring threats are guard Brian Ellerbe and forward Chris Remley, both of whom are averaging almost ten points per
