U.S. strike against Libya studied by Reagan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Reagan was reportedly studying yesterday the possibility of a military strike against Libya, according to the U.S. envoy and ambassador to West Germany.

The ambassador's statement came as the United States compiled evidence that the renegade Arab republic was involved in the fatal bombing of a West Berlin disco.

Ambassador Richard Burt, the U.S. envoy to West Germany, said there were "very clear indications that there was Libyan involvement" in the nightclub bombing that killed an American Army sergeant and a Turkish woman.

When asked whether Reagan favored a military move against Khadafy, Burt said that he was "studying this issue right now."

One U.S. diplomat in the divided city, speaking on condition he not be identified, said: "The Libyan angle is being explored very vigorously. Khadafy is an active suspect."

On his return from a California vacation Sunday, Reagan refused comment when reporters asked him whether he planned to strike at the Libyan leader. He ignored questions yesterday as he left the White House to watch the start of the Baltimore Orioles' season-opening baseball game against the Cleveland Indians.

At the White House, spokesman Edward Djerejian said the administration would "have to reserve final judgment on exactly who was responsible until we make further progress on the investigations."

But he said the weekend explosion in West Berlin and the bombing last week of a TWA jetliner over Greece followed the "pattern of indiscriminate violence which we have traced to the types of terrorist activities that Col. (Moammar)

Survey results indicate ND faculty openness to divestment option

By BETH CORNWELL
Staff Reporter

A majority of Notre Dame faculty responding to a survey by a Faculty Senate committee agreed that the University should divest from South Africa now, or at a specified date in the near future if certain conditions are not satisfied.

A report detailing the survey's results will be discussed at the Faculty Senate meeting tomorrow night.

Ninety-six respondents (34.2 percent) advocated immediate divestiture, while another 79 (28.1 percent) suggested setting a date in the future after which Notre Dame will divest unless South Africa has legally committed itself to both ending apartheid and enfranchising all South Africans, according to the report.

"However, the results of the poll must be used with some care, because many faculty remained silent," said the report's introduction.

"One may regard the results as supportive but not conclusive evidence of a majority opinion on the issues discussed. . . In certain areas, one must say, that evidence seems substantial," the introduction said.

Approximately 930 faculty members received the survey, according to Frank Connolly, author of the report and chairman of the Faculty Senate Committee on South African Investments.

Out of the 281 responded, 209 (74.4 percent) agreed that it was the responsibility of the senate to discuss the issue of South African investments with the Board of Trustees, said Connolly, whose committee conducted the survey.

Forty-eight respondents (17.1 percent) agreed with the policy of continued constructive engagement announced by the Board of Trustees in 1985, said Connolly.

Twenty-two percent said the senate should not discuss South African investments in the first place, the report said.

Forty-two (14.9 percent) favored the current University investment policy, but in conjunction with a reconsideration of that policy when the Sullivan Principles expire in May 1987.

The survey indicates that a heavy majority of the Notre Dame faculty is primarily concerned with the moral implications of the University policy, while they are split over their concern about the financial impact of that policy on the University endowment, said Connolly.

In January it was proposed that the committee bring to the senate a motion on divestment, according to the report. Some senators then voiced concern that this motion might not represent the opinion of the faculty, the report continues. The survey was decided upon to aid in the motion.

Nine to be recipients of honorary degrees

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame has selected nine others to receive honorary degrees at this year's commencement, in addition to Bishop James Malone, the speaker at the May 18 exercises.

Malone, the president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, was announced as an honorary degree recipient and commencement speaker last week.

Joining Malone as degree recipients are:

Gertrude E.M. Anscombe, professor of philosophy at Cambridge University, best known for her work in moral philosophy, philosophical psychology and metaphysics. Author and editor of many scholarly books and articles about the German philosopher Wittgenstein, under whom she once studied, Anscombe has also written and lectured on ethical problems.

Neal Amundson, Cullen Professor of Chemical Engineering at the University of Houston, known for his pioneering work in the application of advanced mathematics to chemical engineering problems. Author of more than 150 technical articles and several books, he was U.S. editor of Chemical Engineering Science from 1955 to 1972.

Lewis Branscomb, vice president and chief scientist of International Business Machines (IBM) Corporation, whose research specialties are the temperature of stars and the physics of negatively charged atoms. Before joining IBM, Branscomb did two decades of research at the National Bureau of Standards, applying his discoveries about atomic and molecular negative ions to plasma physics, chemistry, the study of the upper atmosphere and astrophysics. He is also current president of Sigma Xi, the scientific research society.

Eleanor Burbidge, director of the Center for Astrophysics and Space Science at the University of California, San Diego. Burbidge, who has served as president of the American Astronomical Society and director of the Royal Greenwich Observatory, was one of the earliest investigators of quasars.

Bush finds no 'common solution' on stabilizing volatile oil market

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Vice President George Bush said Monday the United States and Saudi Arabia found no "common solution" on stabilizing the volatile oil market during three days of talks.

He also said the two countries disagree about what oil price level is desirable. From the Saudi standpoint, "the stronger the price for international oil the better . . . That does not coincide with the best interest of the United States," Bush told a news conference in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

He said, however, it is not the role of the United States "to dictate to countries around the world what the price of oil should be."

The vice president later flew to Bahrain on the second leg of a Middle East visit that includes Oman and North Yemen. He was greeted by Sheikh Isa bin Salman al-Khalifa, the ruler of this cluster of islands in the Persian Gulf.

Bush discussed security and economic issues into the early morning yesterday with Saudi King Fahd at his summer palace in Dhahran.

The vice president then ended his visit to the gulf city with a trip to a Saudi air force base to watch exercises involving U.S.-made F-15 and F-5 fighter bombers and a British-made Tornado warplane. Dhahran is a front line of air defense against possible attack by Iran, which has been fighting Iraq for 55 years on the other side of the Persian Gulf.

Discussing the different U.S. and Saudi viewpoints on oil prices, Bush said, "The best way to sort it out is (the) market. So we have not gone in there to fix prices or discuss levels of pricing."

"I was not sent here on a price-fixing mission."

Asked if there was any common ground for stabilizing the sharply fluctuating market, Bush said, "Not really. I hope there's a better understanding on their part. . . . Certainly there wasn't any common solution found."

Oil is a major topic of Bush's trip. Last week, he said national security interests would be threatened by low prices that weakened U.S. producers and energy financiers.

Coed dorms in programs abroad should be tested at home as well

"Hey, did you hear? Even the showers are co-ed" My fellow American dormmates were as surprised as I about the living situation in which the Notre Dame Innsbruck program had placed us.

We lived in an apartment set aside for Austrian students, although foreign students lived there as well. We shared floor and kitchen space with both men and women. We used the same bathroom facilities, including the showers.

Our dormitory had no hall rector, no resident assistants, no hall monitors of any kind. The hall staff consisted of a woman who lived in the basement, acting as little more than the head cleaning lady.

Our program director coordinated academics and organized trips, meetings and other important program activities. He very rarely interfered with our personal lives, meddled in our travel plans or regulated our social affairs.

This is going to be a long shot from campus living, I thought, as soon as I moved into the coed apartment. Total freedom. No supervision. Coed showers. I wondered how life would be without overwhelming rules and how we could save ourselves from our now-released, immoral and irresponsible inner souls.

But the situation really worked well. And we didn't break any records for immorality, either. Without the rules that tried to force us to be mature and responsible adults, we were free to be mature and responsible adults.

In addition to the moral decisions left entirely to us were also the little "freedoms" that accompany living on one's own. Male students had to do their own laundry. The convenience of the dining halls was not available to us: we were on food budgets and had to shop wisely to stay fed.

Finally, several headaches accompanied what was one of the most essential and enjoyable aspects of the year: travel. Visas, train passes, housing, language barriers and other concerns were all part of the preparation required to make a trip safe and successful. We went where we wished and learned to take care of ourselves even in edgy situations.

Yet travel was so satisfying because it was an experiment in independence. When the experiment worked, it was a personal success. When it didn't work, it became a personal lesson.

Of course, it would be impossible to re-shoot this entire scene on campus. The differences between American and European societies cause several of the inconsistencies between study abroad and at Notre Dame. Without the freedom of the year abroad, many of the year's experiences would be stifled.

Tripp Baltz

News Editor

The coed dorms in Innsbruck, London, Israel, and Tianjin represent only the tip of the iceberg. Foreign study is simply different from what happens here at home.

There are obvious reasons why the administration downplays the inconsistencies foreign study programs demonstrate in following du Lac. The main reason is that the experiments in the abroad programs work. If they were unsuccessful, the University would eliminate them.

Not all these experiences can be offered by life in Notre Dame, Ind., the United States of America.

But why not coed dorms?

Most students who return from study abroad will agree they developed healthy relationships with both sexes during the year. Often this was enhanced by living in mixed dorms.

If the University admits that coed dorms work with students abroad, that they are part of a successful experiment, that they promote responsible and mature adult men and women, why can't this experiment be attempted under the shadow of the Golden Dome?

As many students choose to go abroad, many might also opt to live in a coed environment. The University should learn to put its successful ideas into practice at home as well as abroad.

Nicaraguan opposition newspapers find censorship a common practice

Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — For editor Jaime Chamorro and his opposition newspaper, La Prensa, censorship is a way of life.

On one recent day, for instance, the government forbade Chamorro from publishing 18 stories he had planned. It also ordered him to discard four photographs and change the headlines and delete specific paragraphs from four other stories. Not a single page escaped unscathed.

Articles killed by the censor that day included one about Miskito Indians of the Caribbean coast complaining that the Sandinista military had bombarded their villages. Another was about a pastoral letter from Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, one of the harshest critics of the leftist regime.

That day, too, the censor killed an article about Managua taxi drivers complaining about the need for increased fares and the critical lack of spare parts for their vehicles.

Still, in his own way, Chamorro has the final say. Censored articles are tacked outside the office on an old bulleting board for passerbys to see. In the middle of the board is a faded card that reads: "The freedom of the press is the right of the people, not a gift of their government."

Nicaraguans have a limited choice in what they read in the daily newspapers. There is the Sandinista-controlled Barricada, the pro-government Nuevo Diario and the heavily censored La Prensa.

"We are not against social change. We are against the system of today. . . we want changes with freedoms and democracy and not a totalitarian system like this one," Chamorro said in explaining why he continues to publish the 60-year-old newspaper in the face of censorship.

Most days, Chamorro makes the ordered changes and the afternoon newspaper is published, although often it does not reach the streets until after dark.

Contras undergoing shakeup in leadership

Associated Press

WASHINGTON D.C. — The chief U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebel group, concerned about charges of mismanagement, is engaged in a behind-the-scenes reorganization that has put a Miami-based exiled businessman in charge of coordinating financial and political operations.

But Nicaraguans close to the United Nicaraguan Opposition (UNO) say the shakeup has been kept quiet for fear it could jeopardize President Reagan's $100 million aid request by acknowledging existing problems in handling earlier U.S. assistance.

The Democratic-controlled House is scheduled to reconsider Reagan's proposal for military and other aid on April 15, after defeating it last month. Reagan's proposal narrowly cleared the Republican-dominated Senate on March 27.

Leonardo Somarriba, an American-educated businessman who runs a printing company in Miami, was named UNO's secretary-general last month, although the appointment has not been publicly announced. He is prepared plans for an overhaul of the rebel group's internal operations.

In a recent interview with the Associated Press, Somarriba accepted the characterization of his new role as UNO's "chief executive officer" and said he would try to "establish a structure so the three members (of UNO's directorate) can work together."

"... I personally have no political ambitions," he said.

Somarriba's appointment represents an apparent shift in power away from the umbrella group's three publicly known directors: Adolfo Calero, who also heads the chief rebel army, the CIA-organized Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN), and two former Sandinista officials, Arturo Cruz and Alfonso Robelo.

The appointment follows mounting complaints from Nicaraguan exiles that the UNO — created at White House urging last June — had failed to achieve either political or military unity in the war against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government. The exiles also have criticized the UNO for nepotism and its handling of U.S. funds.

The Nicaraguan Business Council, a group of exiled business leader who have worked with the UNO, outlined the complaints in a heated, private meeting with the three UNO directors in Miami on Jan. 18, according to several participants who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Burt, however, indicated the United States had intelligence information before the Berlin bombing that the Libyan embassy in East Berlin was planning a terrorist attack.

Djerejian said one action the United States is seeking, following the two recent terrorist incidents involving Americans, is "the possible closing of more Libyan Peoples' Bureaus known to be the source of terrorist planning and activity."

Although the European allies have declined in the past to go along with U.S. attempts to coordinate the economic and diplomatic isolation of Khadafy, Djerejian said the latest terrorist incidents, "both on European soil, have sensitized the Europeans to the danger, that the danger is really at their doorstep, not only at our doorstep."

Djerejian said that in its various diplomatic communications, the United States is stressing that "it's imperative for the civilized community to work together much more effectively than ever in the past."

Djerejian also said Reagan would express his condolences yesterday to the family of Army Sgt. Kenneth T. Ford of Detroit, the American killed in the bombing of the disco frequented by American servicemen stationed in East Berlin.

Purdue won't divest, despite student protests

Associated Press

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Investments in companies doing business in South Africa in no way indicates support for that country's policy of racial separation, says a Purdue University official.

And despite an anti-apartheid protest during the weekend, Purdue has no plans to divest its holdings in such companies.

Joseph Bennett, director of university relations, said business investments do not mean that the school supports apartheid.

"It's pretty hard to have a sound business portfolio if you try to limit" investments on the basis of where companies do business, Bennett said Sunday. "The university has tried to make its position clear from the beginning. There simply is no basis for saying that Purdue supports apartheid."

He noted that Purdue trustees have voted against divestiture three times.

In a rally Saturday, 22 protesters — 19 of them Purdue students — were arrested when they refused to leave a makeshift shanty built on campus to symbolize the plight of black South Africans.

The demonstrators, protesting the school's reported $10 million invested in companies doing business in South Africa, were all released after the arrests.

Meanwhile, Indiana University trustees voted over the weekend to divest all holdings in two companies doing business in South Africa.

The companies, General Signal and Schlumberger Ltd., have not satisfactorily complied with guidelines established by the trustees at their November meeting in South Bend, the school announced Saturday.

The guidelines include compliance with the Sullivan Principles and other measures designed to help end policies of discrimination in South Africa.

Switek, Montanaro vow to listen to 'brethren'

It's for real. Crazy! Is this Russia? This isn't Russia. Gee Beav, it looks like we finally got a coupla swell regular guys as Student Body President and Vice President.

Mike Switek

So now what? Good question. When people heard that we were going to stay here in rockin' South Bend over break to get the hang of this student government cheese, they had one of two reactions: some laughed and called us fools, others expressed a feeling of pity. All were operating under the outdated assumption that this student government stuff is a chore. We had fun here over break, (what?!), and we will continue to prove that these jobs can be entertaining. Now calm down all you crazy politicians - that does not necessarily mean that we are going to sit up in our offices giggling senselessly.

We were catapulted straight from our couches into office. We're not some kind of political machine; we don't even compare to a well constructed wind-up toy. We are regular guys, and we wonder about the same things that most other regular guys (and gals) wonder about, namely, "Why is everybody staring at the sidewalk instead of saying hello or even (gasp!) smiling?"

For those who have previously operated under the delusion that student government here at Notre Dame resembles any type of real world governing body, it's time to admit that we are not likely to change the world radically. However, we can change the day to day life of the average student, and we will.

Surveys have indicated that the student body happiness ratio goes up significantly in response to the playing of loud music on the quads on Friday afternoons; so we will see to it that either a band or a deejay is making noise every Friday (depending on the crazy South Bend weather patterns, of course). Nutty Cuckoo Dave! Nutty Cuckoo.

Now, we will never be able to pull this whole thing off if we lose touch with our beloved couch brethren; so we are going to go to extremes to make ourselves accessible. Sometime in the near future you will be noticing some strange-looking individuals sitting behind desks out in the middle of the quad somewhere. We are going to bring the whole show out into the open, doing whatever it is we do right out there where you can see us, talk to us, advise us, trip over us. (Relax Grandma, it's just the crayon guys).

We ask you to keep in mind that until a few weeks ago we made a habit of doing exactly what you do - sit around and complain about the quality of life around here. We hope that now that there are a couple of regular guys in office you will do what we never did - lean forward, pick up the phone and call us. We're almost always either in our room or in the student government offices (the numbers are in the book), so why not give us a call and scream unrealistic demands in our ear? We want to hear from the rest of you.

Oh, about this woman controversy. Some of you may have heard that we garnered few females votes in the election (282 was the official count). That's OK, we don't hold grudges. In fact, in order to increase our awareness of feminine issues and concerns we are happy to announce the new "Take the Student Body President and Vice President to Lunch" program. Women wishing to really impress us may get fancy and bring us to the South Dining Hall.

Well kids, you're going to be seeing an awful lot of us in the next year, (scary thought, we know). Look for the new student government logo (the crayon); when you see it you'll know where your money is being spent. Look for us in the next few days - we'll be roaming the dining halls with petitions championing the ever important Cheese and Macaroni cause. That's all for now from the Hall of Justice. Beam us up Scotty!

Mike Switek is the 1986-87 student body president at Notre Dame. Don Montanaro is serving as student body vice president.

SMC officers: 'We are excited for next year'

We have been student body officers for one week now, so far, so good! We realize that it is too late to back out now, so here goes. Student government awareness is our main goal for 1986-87. We represent you, the student body, and we want students to be aware of the services that student government provides. We address every aspect of Saint Mary's community life: educational, spiritual, social and physical through commissioners who sit on the Board of Governance and the Programming Board.

The Board of Governance is chaired by the student body president and provides a forum for discussion of issues and policies concerning students. This board consists of the vice president of student affairs, the hall and class presidents, and the following commissioners: elections, Sandy Cerimele; Sheila Coyne, secretary; Kathleen Daily, public relations; Mary Fisher, judicial; Jill Gillig, treasurer; Rebecca Hetland, Campus Ministry; Mary Kim Koch, Notre Dame Student Senate liaison; Lori Lohman, publications; and Allyson Salzman, Freshman Council advisor. The Board of Governance met with and fostered good relations with almost every area of the College in 1985-86. The 1984-85 Board of Governance was responsible for the change in parietal hours.

The Programming Board is chaired by the vice president of student affairs and is responsible for coordinating all student activities on campus. This board consists of hall and class vice presidents and the following commissioners: Mary Carol Cahill, calendar; Chris Didonato; Haggar College Center; Kim Drahota, athletic; Louise Foley, foreign studies; Smith Hashagen, Notre Dame Hall Presidents' Council liaison; Lisa Lawler, traditional events; Sue Miller, secretary; Suzanne Ritger, publicity; Kelly Nieves, publicity assistant; Jill Tiefenthaler, off-campus; and Eunice Tornetta, entertainment.

The 1985-86 Programming Board sponsored weekly coffeehouses called "That's Entertainment" and was responsible for Little Sisters' Weekend and the St. Paddy's Wagon.

The Student Academic Council represents and acts upon the views of the Saint Mary's student body in relation to the academic affairs of the College. The Council is chaired by the vice president of academic affairs and college relations and consists of student representatives from the following committees: Health and Counseling, Library, Cultural Affairs, Teacher's Education Admissions and Scholarship and Curriculum; and also a student representative from each academic department. The 1986-87 Council will be reviewing the minors program and registration procedures and will be focusing on increased faculty involvement.

We are eager to take a step in a responsible direction. You can help define our 1986-87 goals by contacting us. We have mailboxes in the Haggar Student Activities office, offices on the third floor of Haggar where we can be reached at 284-5373, and we will be sponsoring a Gripe Night on April 20 to hear your comments, suggestions and complaints. It's not too late to get involved. Hall officer elections are April 23. We are excited for next year. Remember, we wear students' shoes!

Jeanne Heller is student body president at Saint Mary's. Sarah Cook is vice president of student affairs. Betsy Burke is vice president of academic affairs and college relations.

Teaching birth control is not condoning it

Dear Editor:

After reading Shirley Cushnie's fire-and-brimstone letter condemning contraception being taught in St. Mary's recent sexuality series, I shuddered to think that such archaic drivel was printed at an institution of higher learning such as Notre Dame.

Though I agree with Cushnie that sexuality is a gift from God, and use of this gift should be carefully considered, I disagree with her position on birth control vehemently. Teaching the existence of contraception is not a satanic evil or a direct attack on the teachings of the Catholic Church. Indeed, doesn't the much heralded Natural Family Planning method achieve the same end?

Cushnie stated strongly that "evil cannot be fought by evil." I submit that evil cannot be fought by ignorance. Making students aware of latent facts in no way serves to condone or even encourage the use of contraceptives. Instead, it makes them more clearly aware of the moral choices that are before them.

'Cheers' actor has roots at Notre Dame

features copy editor

George Wendt may just be the most famous person to drop out of Notre Dame.

The actor who plays Norm on the NBC hit comedy "Cheers" has come a long way from receiving a telegram from the Registrar that he had been dismissed from Notre Dame for having a 0.0 GPA.

Wendt's experience with Notre Dame began long before that moment. His father, a 1943 graduate, took Wendt to Notre Dame football games when he was a child. In 1967, Wendt entered the University as a student. He lived in 133 Breen-Phillips as a freshman and in 30 Pangborn as a sophomore.

Wendt moved off campus for his junior year, "Which may or may not have lead to my leaving Notre Dame," recalled Wendt.

What did Wendt remember most about his years under the golden dome?

"Parties," said Wendt. "I went to a Jesuit prep school and compared to that Notre Dame seemed like Sodom and Gomorrah. We were like racehorses coming out of the gate. The gun went off and boom, off we would go."

Did he ever see Father Hesburgh while he was here?"

"Never."

And, being the most poplar barfly on television today, where did he go when he wanted to sow a few oats?

"Corby's," answered Wendt.

What about Nickie's?

"If I had been there my senior year (when Nickie's first opened), I would have been there, too."

Did he have Emil Hoffman for a class?

"No, but I heard about the guy."

But the event that stands out in Wendt's academic career at Notre Dame is the road trip he took to Denver. Unfortunately, this road trip coincided with finals, hence the 0.0 GPA.

Wendt was eating pizza with two friends at a local restaurant when the idea struck. "It was on a whim," explained Wendt. "The best road trips are the ones that aren't planned." Piling into an MG, the trio headed west towards Denver, only getting stopped once by police in Illinois. Then came the telegram from Leo J. Gorbci, then Registrar for the University.

"It said, 'We never want to see you at Notre Dame again. Don't even think of crossing the Indiana state line.'"

So what did this ex-domer do after Notre Dame?

After graduating from Rockhurst College in Kansas City in 1971, Wendt spent the next few years in southern Europe "bumming around and meeting others from England, Australia and all over. It was a good way to meet friends."

Only when the money ran out would Wendt return home and work for his father, a prominent Chicago businessman, helping the secretaries and doing "girl Friday" work. Finally deciding that he should do something with his life, Wendt considered what he liked. "I didn't like math, (six credit hours of required calculus) and I didn't like teaching. What I did like was the Second City troupe. So I became an actor."

Life on "Cheers" wasn't always smooth sailing. In its first season, "Cheers" was near the bottom of the Nielson ratings and constantly in danger of extinction. "We knew we had a good show," says Wendt about that time. "Fortunately, Mr. Cosby has taken care of that," he said in reference to the strong lead-in given by "The Cosby Show."

Do the other actors on "Cheers" ever comment about Wendt being the most famous drop-out of Notre Dame?

"No," said Wendt. "College doesn't really mean that much when you're an actor."

When Wendt is free from his commitment to "Cheers," he turns to movies. Two movies that were released this past month, "House" and "Gung Ho," feature Wendt in major roles and are doing well at the box office. In the movie "Gung Ho," Wendt was directed by Ron Howard ("Splash," "Cocoon") and co-starred with Michael Keaton ("Night Shift," "Johnny Dangersously"). Wendt enjoyed the experience. "I liked working with them. Michael (Keaton) is a very funny fellow."

George Wendt, who plays Norm on 'Cheers,' toast Notre Dame

Does this former domer still follow Notre Dame sports?

"You bet," said Wendt.

Wendt expressed a sentiment felt by all Notre Dame football fans when asked about the past season.

"I'll say one thing, I want Miami bad," referring to the 56-7 shellacking the Hurricanes gave the Irish. "It looked like they were badmouthing us after every play."

What does Wendt think of new coach Lou Holtz?

"I hope he's more of an animal. All those witty things he says make for great copy, but I hope he's more of an animal as a coach."

Wendt also liked the hiring of Foge Fazio. "Holtz and Foge, I kind of like it." He was also happy when informed that Holtz had brought Joe Yonto back to the coaching staff. Would Wendt return to Notre Dame someday?

"Only if they give me an honorary degree."

Who knows, maybe the administration will.

CATHERINE COFFEY
assistant features editor

"It goes through stages. When I first got here it was longer than this. Then I got a cut and left this long but shaved it all around. I've had it about a month, but didn't shave the sides bald right away. Then I just did it. I got a total mohawk," said freshman Mike Bender.

Unique haircuts abound on the campus this year, ranging from long spikes to virtually no hair at all. It is no longer unusual to see flattops, mohawks and brushcuts in the dining halls. And with the warm weather, the shorter cuts will probably become even more popular. But this hasn't always been the case.

"Last year this haircut was a lot less common," said sophomore John Keegan, whose flattop is modelled after basketball player Matt Beuwsaert.

Freshman Paul Bentinger, whose hair now resembles that of musician Charlie Sexton agreed, saying "I noticed that a lot of people are getting a bit more risque. At first only a few people did something with their hair. But now, there are a lot of people with different haircuts."

But why look for such unique styles? Why so extreme? Because they want to make a personal statement? Because they're punks? Freaks? Wierdos? According to some, the answer is no.

Most of these people are just looking for something to add bounce and shine to the otherwise flat, dry and brittle life enjoyed at Notre Dame. They want to express their creativity and extroverted personalities.

Commented Megan O'Reilly, whose spikes were sculpted by Matt at Jan's Hairum. "I always express myself- verbally, emotionally. My being different comes out in earrings, jewelry, hair, the way I dress, the way I look, everything."

"I'm not trying to say anything by it or make a statement," said Bender. "It's just a thing to do. I mean, I'm 18, why not? If I don't like it, it grows back in what, three weeks?"

Some, however, do think the cuts stand for more than just an outgoing personality.

"My mother told me I couldn't come to Florida if my hair was cut like this. She thinks people's hair should be 'normal'," said Keegan.

"My dad made comments," said O'Reilly of her spikes. "I know my parents don't really care for it, but I'm five hundred miles away and I don't see them that much."

Although parents are the most likely to comment negatively on the extroversion of these students, their peers surprisingly, also are adverse to the students' displays of creativity.

"I think my girlfriend might be afraid to go out with me with my hair cut like this. She says it's funny, but I know she'd never go anywhere out in public with me, with the exception of an occasional SYR," Keegan said.

Are the students 'shafted' by faculty members? Apparently not. In fact, professors have been the

You've finally decided to get your hair cut and styled. You may even have decided how you want it to look when it's finished. Now you must decide where to go for the job.

Several factors must be considered in selecting a hair salon. The talent and experience of the staff must be taken into account, of course, so talking to friends about where they have their hair styled may be a good idea. Other factors, such as prices and services offered, also must be considered. And, for most students, transportation can be a problem if the salon is far from campus. The following list of salons — in alphabetical order — is by no means a comprehensive list of salons in the South Bend area. It is, however, a guide to some salons which are easily accessible to most students. They are, for the most part, on campus, within walking distance of campus, or at University Park Mall, which may be reached by bus.

L.S. Ayres

The full-service salon at Ayers is located on the second floor of the department store. It is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. Most of the customers — 70 percent of whom are women — make appointments with a particular stylist, but walk-ins are accommodated when possible.

Haircuts start at $9, but may cost more, depending on the type of cut. A shampoo costs $2 and blow drying is $5. The salon manager says a customer can expect to pay about $20 to $22 for a haircut, shampoo and styling. No discounts are available for students. For an appointment, call 277-4661.

Campus Hair Crafters

The Saint Mary's salon, which is located in the basement of LeMans Hall, offers a full line of salon services, including tanning beds.

The salon, which is staffed by three women, is open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday. Appointments are necessary.

A haircut with shampoo and styling costs at least $15 for women and $13 for men. A dry trim for men is $9 and "area trims" (such as bangs) cost $5. Blow drying and styling starts at $8, and a shampoo and set starts at $8. Perms range from $25 to $45, and coloring starts at $18. For an appointment, call 284-5363.

Hudson's (Glemby)

The salon in the Hudson's store at University Park Mall is operated by Glemby, a national chain which prides itself on the training and talent of its hair stylists. Customers may choose either a "stylist" or a "master" to cut their hair. The masters are those stylists with the most skill and experience.

The salon is open during regular mall hours (10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday). Most customers reserve a time with one of the seven women stylists at the salon, although walk-ins may be accommodated.

All salon services are available. Haircuts cost $9 ($10 for a master), finishing costs $8 ($9 for a master), perms are $40 to $50 and coloring costs from $10 to $19. Students pay full price on their first visit, but they are entitled to a 25 percent discount on all services thereafter. For an appointment, call 277-6206.

Jan's Hair-Um

Since it is located on U.S. 31 a few miles from campus (143 Dixie Way South), Jan's Hair-Um is accessible only to students who have their own transportation. Nonetheless, many Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students make the trip. The salon offers a full line of services, including tanning beds. Jan's is open from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekdays and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. As long as there is a demand for the tanning beds (probably through May), the salon also will be open for a few hours on Sunday. Appointments are suggested, although walk-ins are accommodated when possible by the staff of seven. Afternoons are best for walk-ins.

Haircuts cost from $9 to $12, depending on the style. A haircut with finishing costs from $16 to $20. Perms start at $29.95, and coloring starts at $18.50. Students receive a discount of 20 percent on all services. For an appointment, call 234-5350 or 277-0505.

Master Cuts

Master Cuts, which is operated by Regis Hairstylists, offers only haircuts and perms, no styling or shampoo, etc. The advantages for the customer are lower prices and quicker service. Located in University Park Mall, the shop is open during regular mall hours. No appointments are made, but the staff of five men and women usually can accommodate all walk-ins. The best time to go is in the morning when there are the fewest customers.

Haircuts cost $8, and blow drying is an extra $3 to $5. Students are entitled to a discount of 20 percent on all visits.

J.C. Penny

A staff of 36 people wields the scissors at the hair salon at J.C. Penny, so there usually is no problem for walk-ins. The salon at University Park Mall is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Appointments are made for those who wish, and weekday afternoons are the best times for walk-ins.

Haircuts start at $8.50 and blow drying costs $8. Perms start at $35. No discounts are offered, but some services occasionally go on sale.

Regis Hairstylists

This full-service salon at University Park Mall is operated by the Regis national chain. The salon is open from 9 a.m. Monday through Saturday, and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Most customers do not make appointments, and the staff of 15 men and women quickly can serve them. Most of the customers are young people, and a discount of 15 percent is given to all students.

Haircuts start at $11. Men's haircuts with styling cost $13, and women's haircuts with styling cost $16. Perms start at $45, and coloring costs from $17 to $30. For an appointment, call 272-1168.

Sears

Although it operates under the Sears name, the salon at the University Park Mall Sears store actually is run by Glemby, the national company with a reputation for excellent hair cutting. The staff of 11 welcomes young people, and the salon even has a special students' night. The salon is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Most customers make appointments, but many also benefit from spontaneous specials which are announced over the store's public address system.

A shampoo and haircut costs $10, and blow drying is an extra $8. Men's haircuts and blow drying cost only $10 on Wednesday night, which is men's night. Men's perms cost only $19.95 on men's night, while the regular perm prices are from $35 to $50.

A special attraction for students is students' night, which is from 4 to 8 p.m. every Thursday. Students may get a shampoo, haircut, blow drying and styling for just $5. The staff members of the salon speak fondly of the several groups of regulars who come in for students' night.

University Hair Stylists

Conveniently located on the first floor of Badin Hall, the University Hair Stylists see their share of students, both from Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. All salon services are offered by the eight-member staff. Hours for the salon are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and appointments are taken. Walk-ins usually fare best on weekday mornings. Manager Jeff Emmons says the salon may increase its staff and hours of operation when it opens in its new location in LaFortune Student Center next fall.

A haircut, with shampoo and finishing, costs $10. ROTC students may have their hair cut for $6. Perms start at $40. For an appointment, call 239-5144.

The Varsity Shop

Located at the corner of Edison Road and State Route 23, The Varsity Shop is an easy walk from campus, and many students have their hair cut and styled there. The shop is open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., and it is possible to make appointments. Many customers do not make appointments, however, but at least one of the staff of 10 people usually is available for walk-ins.

Haircuts cost $6, and an extra charge of at least $2 is tacked on for blow drying and styling. A shampoo and set is $7, and perms start at $25. Streaking and frosting costs from $10 to $30. For an appointment, call 277-0057.

One factor in choosing a salon is hard to quantify: the atmosphere. Here, again, asking around may be the best idea. Some salons such as the Glemby salon at Hudson's and the shop at Ayres are very luxurious, but they are also rather expensive. Others, such as the salons on the campuses, The Varsity Shop and Master Cuts, offer less atmosphere and lower prices. Then there is the shop at Sears, which attempts to make the salon fun, with students' night and valuable discounts announced only to customers in the store.

And if all of this seems like a lot of fuss over getting a haircut, "ROTC" Joe D'Angelo offers good haircuts for $5.50 in the campus barbershop on the first floor of Badin Hall. Appointments, which usually must be made about three days in advance, may be made in person or by calling Joe at 239-7624.

Mary Ellen Harrington contributed to report.

que' individuality

most supportive, commenting on the students' strength in expressing themselves and asserting their personalities.

"I've had professors say they really like the fact that I'm not afraid to walk around like this and exert my individuality," said O'Reilly.

Other faculty members merely poke fun, not meaning any harm.

"My Seminar class went out for pizza at the end of the last semester, and my professor said, 'I think we'll call you "Boy Paul." I got along with him pretty well,' commented Bentinger.

One advantage of the haircuts is their versatility. Most of the styles can be tamed for those times when they need to look "Normal" and the ones that can't such as the mohawk, grow out so quickly that they're not inhibiting. Since the cuts are all in fun, the students compromise no principles when they make their cuts more conservative.

"Right now I could get out of the shower, and with the exception of the V's in back, I could part is on the side and it'd look normal," agreed Bentinger, who will enter the College of Engineering next year.

O'Reilly, a government major who plans to attend law school, feels the same way.

"I can wear it down, part it on the side, or swoop it in front," she says of her cut.

Then there are those who don't have to worry about looking normal.

"I work construction during the summer so nobody really cares what my hair look like," Keegan said.

He, however, did admit that he would "never go to a job interview" with his present "do."

Another highlight of the novel looks is the notoriety they create. But these extroverts don't seem to mind, although none of them admit to getting the cuts to help their social life. Keegan actually thinks it may be hurting his, citing that with his look, "you don't get too many chicks."

"A lot of people come up and talk to me that I didn't know well before — a lot of acquaintances. Even when people bust you about hair, they notice. I guess I don't mind being noticed, even if it might be unfavorable," he said.

No matter what people think, these students and others on campus sport their 'dos and will continue the practice despite public reactions. Although most would think their unorthodox locks go against the traditional university standard of "If you don't look good, we don't look good," the faculty seems to enjoy the view. These four certainly are enjoying themselves. So who knows? Why not take advantage of that anonymous saying, "hair today, gone tomorrow" and rush right over to ROTC Joe in Badin for a flattop, or Matt at Jan's Hairum for spikes? It should prove to be a hair raising experience.

Sather, Oilers remain very cautious

Associated Press

Glen Sather is uncomfortable and Wayne Gretzky is uneasy as the Edmonton Oilers prepare to defend their National Hockey League title, beginning this week in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"If I had my choice, I'd rather sneak up on someone who didn't know what was happening," said Sather, coach of the two-time Stanley Cup champions. "But we haven't been able to sneak up on anybody since Wayne (Gretzky) started to play for the team."

Gretzky, the NHL's individual point-scoring champion for the sixth straight year, with a record 215 points, feels the Oilers can't take anything for granted despite a strong finish in the regular season.

"It gets tougher each year because people want to knock off the champions," he said.

Those people include the Vancouver Canucks, the Oilers' opponents in the Smythe Division best-of-five semifinal opener tomorrow night at Edmonton. Best-of-five divisional semifinals also will begin tomorrow night in the Norris, the Adams and the Patrick divisions.

The other Smythe semifinal battle will be between Calgary and Winnipeg. In the Norris, it's Chicago against Toronto and St. Louis vs. Minnesota. The Adams playoffs feature Quebec against Hartford and Montreal against Boston.

To make matters worse, The Hammers won the game easily, 21-6, while playing with only four men. They were led by Mike Vabganin's 10-of-19 from the field. Tina Chou screamed the loudest for the losers, scoring two baskets on seven attempts.

The brickshooting award for the day went to Tom Tracy as he failed to help Teachers in Space with an 0-of-14 shooting performance against Lay Down, I Think I Love You. John Koselka refused to lie down but instead scored nine points in leading his team to a 21-9 victory.

Bookstore veteran Jeff

Masciopinto provided one of yesterday's best shooting performances as he shot 9-of-14 to propel 5 Stiffs Gently Ribbed for the True Feeling of Love past Flaming Buttresses, 21-6. John J. Kennedy completely dominated the boards with 25 rebounds to help White Dudes slip past 5 Guys Who Like Hot Pies, 22-20.

The well-balanced scoring of Oriental Express proved too much for We Scared O' the Goofaman as the Express rolled to a 21-18 victory. Gao Tse-Chiang, Hung Rendy and Yeh Ting-Jiang each scored five baskets for the victors.

It took The Snackers 84 shots to put away Chief Big Head and the Baals, 21-14. Pat Collins and Tom McHugh took the most shots, shooting 4-of-21 and 2-of-18, respectively.

"Fatigue and a basic lack of basketball skills played a large part in our performance," said McHugh. "But we'd like to thank our fans and also the other team for serving us Bloody Mary's at the halftime. It gave us a needed lift."

The drinks seemed to help Mark Howell the most, as he shot 5-of-10 to lead The Snackers. Chris McClean scored nine for the Isoers.

In today's big games, varsity football player Tim Brown leads Much More Manhood, a Final Four team last year, against Five Seniors with Big Loads on Stepan Court 1 at 6:15. Also, Tofu Chaka Khan, a final 16 team last year plays G*A*S*h* at 5:30 on Bookstore Court 10.

But Sarah reinvited Tom and Lynn reinvited Ed. (Eric still did not reinvited himself)

Then Lynn uninvited Ed again and Mary Lynn in desperation is considering inviting Mikey, James, or Larry but not Doug. Is Senior Formal really worth this?????

Indiana beats track team

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame track team dropped a close match to Indiana, 77-74, as the squad's dual-meet season got underway. Although the loss was tough to take, Irish head coach Joe Piane was happy with his team's showing.

"It was a good meet and on the whole the kids performed well," said Piane. "I was surprised to see Tony Ragunas win the 100 meters and I hadn't expected Mike Brennan's second place in the intermediate hurdles."

Ragunas won the 100 with a time of 11.01, just .03 of a second ahead of the Hoosiers' Albert Robertson. Ragunas also finished second in the 200 meters. Brennan's time of 54.8 put him .4 of a second behind Indiana's Scott Hacker.

In other track events, Rick Mulvey won the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a time of nine minutes and 29 seconds, a new meet record. Ron Markezich also picked up a meet record in the 5,000 meters with a time of 14:37.71.

In field events, Brian Driscoll won the javelin competition, while Joel Autry won the triple jump with an effort of 43-5.

Next up for part of the Irish squad is the Dogwood Relays in Knoxville, Tenn., this weekend. Another contingent of the team will head for West Lafayette for the Boilermaker relays, also to be held this weekend.

Brown leads the charge

Receiving corps keeps improving

By MARTY BURNS
Assistant Sports Editor

Notre Dame defensive players might not believe it, but flanker Tim Brown is not always in a big hurry.

Just because Brown has cut and slashed his way with abandon through the defense over the spring practice season does not mean he's counting the days until the fall season. On the contrary, Brown seems to be enjoying himself immensely as he leads an experienced and talented group of Irish receivers that has looked solid throughout the spring sessions.

"Things have been going really well and I'm just having fun out here," said Brown after yesterday's practice. "It's not like the real thing because we're only playing against ourselves, but I like the practices. I've certainly been learning a lot, especially out of the backfield."

Brown himself, though, has taken more than one opposing defender to school when he lines up in the wishbone. This change, along with the changes in coaching staff, have not served to slow the sophomore speedster but rather to add fuel to his competitive fires.

"It's different running from the backfield but I like carrying the ball so I can't complain," said Brown. "It's also a new situation for the simple fact that we have a new coach. Everybody has a little more incentive to go out and impress him."

For Brown, who reported to workouts fresh from track competition, it was not difficult to attract the attent of new head coach Lou Holtz. Brown's condition, intensity, and attitude, along with his outstanding ability drew immediate admiration from Holtz and receivers' Coach Pete Cordelli.

"I can't say enough about Tim Brown," said Holtz. "His work habits have been outstanding."

"He's a super athlete," agreed Cordelli. "He came in here ready to play. Like everyone else he has some things to improve, but he has been great."

Tim Brown

Brown's consistent and frequently dazzling play is not the only reason, however, that observers are tabbing the Notre Dame receiving corps as one of the nation's best. Much of the respect accorded to the unit will fall on veterans Milt Jackson, Reggie Ward, Alvin Miller and Tony Eason.

Although split ends Jackson and Miller both missed last season with injuries, the two potential stars have shown enough in the workouts to allay most fears. Miller has been slowed a bit in his recovery by an experimental trial at tight end and by a minor toe affliction which kept him out of yesterday's practice, but Jackson has continued to progress.

"Milt Jackson has been a great addition to the team," said Cordelli. "He's doing very well as a player, and he's also been a real leader for the team."

Along with flankers Brown and Ward, and split ends Jackson, Miller and Eason, freshman Ray Dumas, Steve Alaniz and walk-on Brad Alge also are receiving a good look from the Irish coaching staff.

While this unit has looked impressive for the most part in running patterns and hanging onto the football, Cordellis stresses that is in other areas where improvement must come.

"We're a long way from midseason form," said the first-year coach. "In an area such as run-blocking, we're not quite there. To get better we'll need more strength, more intensity, and we'll have to improve our concentration. If you don't have those, you get the mental mistakes."

"But this is a talented group. They're all good athletes with good awareness and good instincts. They are going to do some good things."

EXTRA POINTS — Besides Miller's injury, the Irish were without the services yesterday of Joel Williams, Matt Dingens and Shawn Heffern because of minor ailments.

Tennis

But the team came back strong against some stiff competition on Saturday when it hosted Michigan State and won 5-3. The Spartans challenged the Irish in some singles matches, but were overcome by the aggressive doubles play of Susie Panther and Michelle Dasso and the duo of Mary Colligan and Izzy O'Brien. The third match of doubles was suspended due to rain. Senior Colligan, sophomore Dasso and senior O'Brien also captured the second, third and fourth singles respectively.

Notre Dame continued its domination Sunday, when the Irish dominated Eastern Michigan 6-3. It was a pleasant finish to a grueling weekend of tennis.

"It finally all came together," says Gelfman. "The aggressiveness of our doubles teams was the key. Our number-one team of Panther-Dasso had the most aggressive match I've seen in a long time, and the number-two team of Colligan-O'Brien is like a rock for me. I can always count on them."

Gelfman also was pleased with the play of the third doubles team consisting of junior JoAnne Biafore and freshman Natalie Illig. According to the coach, the couple has finally pulled it all together and used effective net play to outlast their Eastern Michigan opponents 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

The team now has a week layoff until it takes to the road to meet Western Michigan (April 15), Ohio State (April 19) and Miami of Ohio (April 20).

"These next matches will be barn burners," adds Gelfman. "Nothing will be easy from here on out. But if we maintain the aggressive play and momentum we had this weekend, we should meet with positive results."

Regional, and were ranked third by UPI and fifth by AP in the final polls.

Brokaw still stands 29th on Notre Dame's all-time scoring list with 1,001 points in 58 games for a 17.3 average.

He is perhaps best remembered, though, for scoring 25 points to lead the Irish in Notre Dame's 71-70 upset of UCLA in 1974 to end the 88-game winning streak of the Bruins.

A native of Brunswick, N.J., Brokaw played five years in the NBA with Milwaukee, Cleveland and Buffalo.

Irish freshman guard Mark Stevenson was surprised last night to find out that Brokaw was leaving Notre Dame. He had looked forward to working with Brokaw for three more seasons.

"He's going to be missed a great deal next year," said Stevenson. "I really like him a lot. He talked to me when things were going bad for me this season. He understood the things I was going through, having played for Coach Phelps himself."

"It's kind of saddening for me to see him leave, and I'm sure the rest of the fellas feel the same way, but it's a great opportunity for him. I think he really deserves a head coaching job."

Brokaw, who earned his bachelor's degree in sociology from Notre Dame in 1980, should have a good amount of job security at Iona. The New Rochelle, N.Y., school maintains a policy of not firing its coaches, whatever the sport.

Brokaw's wife Renee, who is pregnant with the couple's third child, remained in South Bend for the announcement.

Men's tennis team splits matches

By RICK RIETBROCK
Sports Writer

Notre Dame had a busy tennis weekend which saw it add a win and a loss to its record, while adding more experience which should prove very valuable to the development of Tom Fallon's young squad.

On Saturday, the Irish had to battle not only Western Michigan but the elements as well. After two singles matches, the action had to be moved indoors to the ACC courts, but the change in environment did not affect the Irish, as they thumped Western Michigan, 9-0.

Fallon expressed great pleasure with his team's performance while pointing out that the score was a bit deceptive.

"I thought we just played exceptionally well," Fallon said. "Any time you beat a team as good as Western Michigan 9-0, you've really accomplished something."

"We won some very close matches, so the score seems a little wider than it really was. It looks like a blowout, but it really wasn't."

Setting the tone for the Irish right off the bat was sophomore Dan Walsh, who recovered from an opening set loss to defeat Mike Kiewiet 4-6, 6-1, 6-4. The freshman parade took over at this point, as Brian Kalbas (6-4, 7-6), Tim Carr (7-5, 6-2), Tony Cahill (6-0, 6-0), and Dave Reiter (6-2, 6-2) registered victories before senior Joe Nelligan capped the singles competition with a 6-2, 6-1 triumph.

The number-one doubles team of Walsh and Paul Daggas clawed its way to a 6-7, 6-3, 7-6 victory. Carr and Reiter teamed for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 win, while Cahill and Nelligan combined for a 7-5, 7-6 victory.

Sunday, the Irish got a little more badger than they could handle, however, and dropped a 7-2 match to Wisconsin. Despite the loss, Fallon said his team had once again performed well.

"I thought Wisconsin played an outstanding match," the Irish mentor said. "We played pretty well ourselves, but they just did a little more. They are playing excellent tennis right now. They just beat Ohio State 5-4, and Ohio State is recognized as one of the top teams around so we have nothing to be ashamed of."

Walsh lost the number-one singles match, 2-6, 7-5, despite playing well, especially in the second set, according to Fallon. Kalbas and Carr also lost before Cahill got the Irish in the winner's column with a 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 win. Reiter followed with a 6-2, 7-5 victory, but then Joe Nelligan dropped a very tough decision, 6-0, 2-6, 7-6.

Wisconsin swept the doubles matches, including a particularly grueling 6-7, 7-5, 6-4 win by Tim Madden and Jim Schnider over Notre Dame's team of Cahill and Nelligan.

Fallon said the loss to Wisconsin is, by no means, a discouraging one.

"We played well, but small things were big," he said. "Walsh played well but he couldn't get over the hump and the number-six match (Nelligan and Schnider) was a difficult one to lose."

"It's just a case of experience, and we have to go through these losses and hope they help us later on."

Next up for the Irish is Ball State today. According to Fallon, that match will be anything but a picnic.

"Ball State beat Wisconsin early in the year, 8-1, so that gives an indication of the type of team we will be facing," Fallon said. "(Wisconsin's) coach told me that his guys weren't playing well then, but Ball State is definitely a top-notch opponent. There's no place for us to hide from teams like Ball State, Indiana State and Ohio State that are coming up."

The Irish are now 12-6 for the season. Game time for Ball State today is 3 p.m. at the Courtney Tennis Courts.

Brokaw takes head job at Iona

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Writer

Gary Brokaw, Irish assistant basketball coach the past six seasons, will accept the head coaching job at Iona College late this morning. The Observer has learned. Brokaw, who also played for Notre Dame, replaces Pat Kennedy, who resigned the post to become head coach at Florida State.

Iona has scheduled a press conference for 11 a.m. today to make the announcement of Brokaw's selection.

"There's been a good foundation laid at Iona by Jimmy (Valvano, who left for N.C. State after the 1979-80 season) and Pat," said Brokaw. "Basically, I have to revive the talent here and move forward."

The Gaels, who play in the Metro-Atlantic Athletic Conference, were 14-15 this year under Kennedy after finishing 26-5 the previous season.

Iona Athletic Director Rick Mazzuto had narrowed his choice down to three candidates: John Griffin, head coach at Siena College; Dave Magarity, an assistant at Iona, and Brokaw. Mazzuto, who received approximately 80-90 applications for the job, offered it to Brokaw late yesterday.

Brokaw, who worked primarily with the guards, became the top assistant of Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps after Pete

Jim Baron and Matt Kilcullen are the two remaining assistant coaches.

"I'm very happy for Gary," said Phelps. "He's earned the chance. His experiences made him a tremendously-valuable member of our staff. He has seen it all. He had an obvious impact on our program in areas like recruiting, game preparation and individual work with players."

Brokaw was a member of Phelps' first freshman class at Notre Dame in 1971, playing for the Irish for three seasons before skipping his senior season to turn pro. He earned all-America honors his junior year, averaging 17.1 points per game.

That Notre Dame team, which also included John Shumate and Adrian Dantley, finished 26-3. The 1973-74 Irish placed third in the Mideast

Tough Bookstore action continues

Tough, physical play and close games replaced many of the weekend gags as Bookstore Basketball XV continued yesterday. All four seeded teams playing yesterday faced tougher than expected tests as the random scheduling system provided the fans with unusually exciting first-round games.

The tournament's top seed and defending champion, Fun Bunch Finale, faced a tough Good No Go team featuring three varsity defensive backs, Troy Wilson, Marv Spence and Jim Bobb. Good No Go took an early 4-3 lead and trailed by only three at the half. Fun Bunch wore them down in the second half, however, as Greg Dingens' 9-of-13 performance helped them to a 21-11 victory. Bobb led the losers with five points.

Tim Kempton shot 9-of-17 from the field in leading The Embarrassing Stains to a hard-fought 21-18 victory over Too Muck and Futch. The losers played most of the game with only four players, but sparked by Mark Nigro's 10 points, they stayed close throughout.

Of the other two seeds, Dan Michelini paced Four Fags and A Zahmbie past 5 Packages that the Postman Can't Deliver II by a 21-12 margin. Michelini shot 7-of-15 from the field, and teammates Rich Whalen and Chris Campilli added four buckets apiece. Freshman sensation George Baldus' 11-of-16 shooting and 17 rebounds led Keenan Inmates II to a hard-fought 21-16 victory over King Ortega and the Four Seasons. Greg Ripple had 7 baskets for the losers.

A group of melodious muses from the chapel choir could not help their team, 5 Screams from the Loft, against The Hammers, in what was unquestionably the sweetest-sounding game thus far. On of the Screams, Dave Klos, expressed some of the frustration of losing Bookstore games.

"In three combined years we haven't scored enough points to win a game yet," he lamented.

Women's tennis wins three, improves team record to 12-3

By TRISH SULLIVAN

The Notre Dame women's tennis team upped its record to 12-3 after a long weekend of action at the Courtney Courts. But as the Irish head into the most difficult part of their schedule they can look back on this weekend as one that produced more than just three wins.

"Overall, the team's play was just outstanding," commented Head Coach Michele Gelfman. "I could see the team get better as the weekend went on. Some of the losses were ones that could have gone either way, but the team is learning a lot about each other and their ability to play."

The squad started the weekend a little rough on Friday with some sloppy play against Toledo. Although Gelfman feels the Irish took their opponent a little too lightly, they came away with a 6-3 victory.

Water Polo club wins tourney over weekend

The Notre Dame Water Polo Club held its annual Spring Invitational Tournament over the weekend at Rolfs Aquatic Center. The Irish emerged as champions of the two-day tournament by winning three games.

Friday night the team faced the seventh-ranked Ramblers of Loyola (Chicago). Due to transportation problems, Loyola did not field its complete team, and Notre Dame easily won, 9-4.

Saturday morning Notre Dame defeated Cincinnati in overtime, 12-11. This set the stage for Saturday night's game against Ohio State.

"We haven't beaten Ohio State and Cincinnati since 1983," noted player-coach Mike Roberts. "But we played well this weekend."

The match was close all the way, with the score tied at the half, 8-8, and after the third quarter, 12-12. But in the fourth quarter, the Irish built up a 16-14 lead on the strength of Marty Watts' two goals.

In an exciting finish, Notre Dame was penalized with a minute left in the game, and the Buckeyes scored once in the man-advantage situation. But the Irish held the ball for the last 30 seconds to preserve the victory.

The club also fielded a "B" team which defeated Purdue on Friday, 13-10, and lost to Louisville Saturday, 10-7.

The team will participate in one more tournament this season, April 11-12 at Ohio State.

Before break the Volleyball Club split a pair of matches. Without its middle blocker, Mark Trautman, the team lost to Purdue in five games on March 18. The following day the Irish dumped Western Michigan in four games.

Tonight the entire campus is encouraged to attend the team's contest against IUPUI-Fort Wayne. The club is trying to break the Midwest Intercollegiate Volleyball Association's attendance record of 1500. This game against the 11th-ranked Mastadons is the team's final home game of the season. The game will be played in the ACC Pit at 7:30.

Notre Dame will then defend its MIVA championship this weekend at the University of Michigan. The Irish have been given the second seed behind Wisconsin by virtue of their two regular-season losses to the Badgers.

At the Northwestern Rugby Tournament last weekend, the Rugby Club showed the Chicago Rugby Union why it is a serious contender for the Midwest Championships by shutting out all three opponents.

The A side destroyed the University of Chicago grad school, 46-0. Gary Flanagan had the hat trick and Tim Brannigan scored two tries for the Irish.

Steve LaChance had the only try and Kevin Whelan made the conversion as the B side downed Northern Illinois B side, 6-0. And the C side also beat Northern Illinois, 12-0.

"Our scrums played well," said LaChance on the three shutouts. "They won most of the scrum downs and line outs."

The team will play its only home match of the spring this Saturday against the South Side Irish of Chicago.

The game starts at 1 p.m. at Stepan Field.

Armed with only six runners, the Women's Track Club placed seventh in the 10-team Manchester Invitational Saturday. Julia Merkel placed second in the 1500-meter run and fourth in the 3000-meter run with times of 5:04 and 10:52, respectively.

Kathleen Lehman placed seventh in both the 1500 and the 800-meter runs. Anne Attea and Nancy Laughlin finished sixth and eighth respectively in the 5000-meter run, and Laura Gidley took fifth in the long jump.

This Saturday, the team will participate in the Hillsdale Invitational against top NAIA teams.

If you are looking for something to do on the water under the great South Bend sun this weekend, the Rowing Club will be holding its second annual regatta. The races will start at 9 a.m. at the Margaret Prickett Marine Park on the St. Joseph River in Mishawaka.

Steve Blaha, racing commissioner for the club, said that nine teams will be racing in 11 divisions.

The club trained in Austin, Tex., over spring break, in preparation for the spring season. The lightweight boat of the men's varsity team has been especially impressive, defeating Texas and Minnesota in an informal race in Austin.

And finally, the Women's Softball Club has yet to play this spring, having four games cancelled last week. But this week the team travels to Purdue for a game tomorrow and to Valparaiso for a tournament this weekend.
