Vote on parietals proposal slated for next CLC meeting

By MARILYN BENCHIK
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

A vote for the proposal concerning changes in parietals was set aside at a closed meeting of the Campus Life Council on Wednesday.

The CLC, which includes rectors, student representatives and administrators, discussed three proposed changes to the parietal policy.

The proposals would extend Sunday visitation hours from 12 a.m. to 12:30 a.m., and morning visitation hours from 11 a.m. to 10 a.m., as well as reduce the penalty for overnight parietals violations.

According to Don Montanero, student body vice president, the proposals were set aside for discussion at the next meeting, which will come some time after fall break.

"There is a lot of stuff to work out with the semantics in the proposals before the next meeting," Montanero said.

If the proposals are passed at the next CLC meeting, they would then need the approval of Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson in order to become official policy.

"The feeling of the council is that there is a better chance of the proposals being passed by Tyson if they are backed by a comprehensive survey of all the hall staff," Montanero said.

"We need to do more research and refine the proposals. We have to speak with all of the hall staffs about changing the phraseology concerning the penalty for overnight parietal violations," Student Body President Mike Switek said.

"They (the rectors and faculty) didn't shut any doors on us. They encouraged us to iron-out the phraseology which would lead one to believe that they're heading in the same direction that we are," Montanero said.

According to Switek, "We're all heading in the same direction."

Brian Holst, student senator for district 1, said, "I'm disappointed with the CLC meeting. It appears the students and the administration have two different conceptions of what the severity of the offense for parietal violations are. We didn't come to any consensus.

"It came down to a discussion of semantics but that was not the main problem at the meeting. The semantics do not matter," Holst said.

"The meeting was good and it was frustrating. On the first two proposals, things looked pretty positive. On the last issue, as a student, it was pretty frustrating," said Steve Viz, student senator for district 4.

"We spent a lot of time on the semantics on the third issue. How we (students on the CLC) felt is that the overnight parietal violation is not as serious as sex and drug violations as it is portrayed in du Lac as of now," Viz said.

Wednesday's CLC meeting was closed to the public because Switek decided there was a need

System of import quotas, licenses proposed by economics professor

By ROB HENNIG
Senior Staff Reporter

John Culbertson, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, criticized present trade policies and called for a new comprehensive system of import quotas and licenses at a lecture given last night in the Hayes-Healy Auditorium.

Culbertson, speaking on the topic, "The Trade Threat to American Labor," said present trade policies are harmful. He said it is delusory to pretend that universal free trade exists or is ever going to exist.

Speaking before an audience of approximately 125, Culbertson added, "Most nations do not practice it and are not going to practice it."

According to Culbertson, the effect of the United States practicing free trade while other nations do not reciprocate is a one-sided movement of benefits.

"If the trade problem is not taken care of, action on other matters will be useless," he said.

Culbertson said that trade policies should be based upon a balanced trade, benefitting both nations involved and not creating political side-effects.

"The United States needs to limit access to its market by setting quotas on imports from other nations then selling the import licenses that effectuate the quotas," he said.

According to Culbertson, a system of quotas and import licenses would reduce the trade deficit. Trade would then be both balanced and mutually beneficial.

After speaking, Culbertson

New appointments to Saint Mary's faculty and administrative staff were announced recently.

Mary Joe Palmieri and Holly Taylor are new residence hall directors. Palmieri recently completed her masters at the University of Pittsburgh. Taylor received a B.A. in education at Bethel College in Mishawaka, where she was Assistant Director of Student Affairs/Residence Director.

Susan Clark, Kathleen Rose, Karen Overly and Jeanne Anselman join the Admission Office as Admission Counselors. Clark was Assistant Residence Coordinator at Indiana University where she completed her M.S. in higher education and student affairs.

Rose, Overly and Anselman are recent graduates of Saint Mary's. Rose completed a B.B.A. in Marketing/Management and a computer science minor. Overly was formerly a coordinator for Saint Mary's Alumnae Admission Council. Anselman taught at Alston Middle School in Summer-ville, S.C. before returning to Saint Mary's.

Ilse Klinkhamer, a native of Germany and a former student at the University of Detroit, works in the department of Modern Languages as Language Lab Coordinator.

Susan Searight joins the Counseling and Career Development Center as a part-time counselor. Searight received her M.A. from the University of South Florida, and has worked as a counselor at Indiana Vocational Technical College in South Bend.

New faculty members in art include: Brian Madigan, visiting professor. Madigan received his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. He was an adjunct assistant professor at the University of Notre Dame.

New faculty members in biology include: Thomas Platt, assistant professor. Platt holds a Ph.D. from the University of Alberta, Edmonton. He was formerly assistant professor at the University of Richmond.

New faculty members in business administration and economics include: Robert Dreves, associate professor. Dreves

ND Security purchases machines to test breath

By MIRIAM HILL
Senior Staff Reporter

Notre Dame Security has purchased breath testing equipment to use in law enforcement and educational programs, according to Director of Security Rex Rakow.

Security officers will use handheld machines called Alco-Sensors to give breath tests to people they suspect of drunk driving. The Indiana Department of Highways awarded the Security Department a $600 federal grant in September to purchase the Alco-Sensors.

Rakow said he did not expect an increase in the number of drunk driving arrests on campus as a result of the new equipment's use.

"We won't be out patrolling for drunk drivers any more than we ever did," he said.

The results of Alco-Sensor tests are not accepted as evidence in court. Anyone whose blood alcohol level registered above the legal limit, therefore, would be taken to the South Bend Police Department for a breathalyzer test, Rakow said.

In addition to campus roads, Notre Dame Security has jurisdiction on roads adjacent to campus, including U.S. 31, Angela Avenue, Juniper and Douglas roads.

Although the Alco-Sensors will be used for law enforcement, their primary use will be educational, Rakow said. In order to teach students about drunk driving, he said, Security officers will be stationed in campus parking lots one night per weekend and will offer students leaving their cars the chance to take a breath test.

Students are free to turn down the test and those who participate will not be asked to identify themselves, Rakow said.

Students whose blood alcohol levels are above the legal limit of 0.1 percent will not be turned over to campus or local authorities, Rakow said.

Security will not use the Alco-Sensors at raids of off-campus parties and bars.

In Brief

Food for thought. Jim Muensterman of Evansville, Ind., says that if a person can't stomach a brain sandwich, it's all in the mind. Every day, the owner of the Hilltop Inn serves up hot-from-the-skillet brain sandwiches, a popular alternative to hamburgers in southern Indiana and Illinois. Muensterman prides himself on using fresh beef brains, carefully cleaned of their membranes and mixed with a batter of eggs and self-rising flour. "Then you've got to cook 'em so they're crisp on the outside, but still moist on the inside," he said. A properly prepared brain sandwich "has a taste all its own," said Clyde Peckenpau of Henderson, Ky. - Associated Press

Drug testing may impinge on our privacy and civil rights

President Reagan recently signed a far-reaching executive order calling for the mandatory testing of federal workers for evidence of illegal drug use. Under the Reagan plan, all government employees whose work is considered to be important to national security or to the protection of public health and safety will be required to submit urine specimens for chemical analysis.

No one is sure yet how many of the approximately 2.8 million civilians on the federal payroll will be ordered to routinely fill specimen jars as part of their job requirements. Programs of "voluntary" testing are already being instituted in those offices which do not clearly fall within the domain of national security or public safety. This evidence suggests that a considerable portion of the U.S. population, under orders, will soon be standing in line with a warm jar of liquid in their hands.

Federal workers will not be the first to be screened for illegal drug use. Already airline pilots, athletes, military personnel, police officers, and top business executives accept specimen cups as a routine part of their lives.

The Career and Placement Services now maintains a list of major companies recruiting here on campus that require pre-employment drug tests. The precedent set by the Reagan decision is sure to be followed by large corporations, state and local governments, and many other large scale organizations.

In the sports world, drug testing is accepted as the key to greater public respectability and a winning record. Mandatory testing has become the policy of both professional and collegiate teams all across the country, including those here at Notre Dame.

Not many people have deeply objected to this sort of intrusion into athletes' personal lives. Supposedly the interests of the team take precedence over the privacy of the individuals. It seems almost a given that the examination of an athlete's urine falls within the bounds of the team doctor or trainer. After all, the argument goes, if an athlete really objected to the principle of drug testing or sincerely preferred drugs to sports, he or she could always quit the team.

But the same reasoning that justifies drug testing for athletes could be used to institute the tests for the general population as well. Clearly if the Athletic Department finds that urinalysis enhances its respectability, improves its competitive performance, and helps it to enforce discipline among problem athletes, it is only a matter of time before the Admissions Office and the Office of Student Affairs get the same ideas. Frankly, the prospect of filling specimen cups for any administrative reason, whether on a regular or random basis, is not only frightening, it's disgusting.

James Carroll

Photography Manager

In the business world, proponents of drug testing usually justify their position with claims of increased office productivity and greater public safety. We are led to believe that urinalysis will weed out those acting irresponsibly on the job. This argument is flawed in that a positive return on a drug test offers no proof that an employee has been high on the job or has in any way mismanaged his or her official responsibilities.

Traces of marijuana and cocaine appear in the urine for days and even weeks after the psychological effect of the drug has worn off. Such tests reveal who has been breaking the law but not who is negligent on the job. The issue then becomes one of criminal prosecution and not business efficiency. And as a matter of due process, mandatory drug testing seems to be very much in violation of the Constitutional privilege to be free of search and seizure without probable cause.

For centuries western societies have recognized the privacy of certain personal acts as the immutable right of the individual. The Reagan administration's decision to begin urine testing on a massive scale represents a major inconvenience with which all of us are going to have to learn to live. Apart from the indignity of being ordered to urinate for some official inspector, we will be losing a large measure of civil rights and privacy as well.

Bernard Kalb resigns post

Associated Press

-Former newsman Bernard Kalb resigned Wednesday as chief spokesman for the State Department over a reported effort by the Reagan administration to mislead the news media on Libya.

"Faith in the word of America is the pulsebeat of democracy," Kalb told a farewell news conference. He will be succeeded by his deputy, Charles Redman.

Kalb, 64, held the job for nearly two years after a long career with The New York Times, CBS and NBC. He said his choice was "whether to allow myself to be absorbed in the ranks of silence, whether to vanish into unopposed acquiescence, or to enter a modest dissent."

Asked about Kalb's resignation, President Reagan said late Wednesday, "No one on our side has been lying to anyone."

Female emotions lead judgements

By MARY-SARAH REARDON
News Staff

Are women capable of making sound moral decisions, or are they too sentimental to look at moral problems objectively? Leslie Griffin, assistant professor of theology at Notre Dame, raised this question at a lecture on "Women and Morality" Wednesday afternoon in Stapleton Lounge at Saint Mary's.

Philosophers have often represented women as too emotional to make objective decisions, Griffin told the mostly-female crowd of 100.

Aristotle, St. Thomas Aquinas, and Sigmund Freud, for example, all believed that women have trouble making moral decisions because they are less rational than men, Griffin said.

Freud stated this belief most simply when he said, "Women are more influenced in judgment by their feelings." Freud may be long dead but his opinion about women is still widely held, Griffin said.

Griffin said she agrees with Freud, and that the main difference between men and women is that women use more emotion in their judgements.

Because men have dominated philosophy for so long, male standards of morality have been accepted as the correct behavior. Griffin said she believes that women have different standards of morality than men; therefore, if judged according to the male standards, women do appear inferior from a moral standpoint. This use of emotion is not necessarily wrong, according to Griffin, just different.

Griffin used two modern philosophers, Lawrence Kohlberg and Carol Gilligan, to demonstrate her point that men and women make moral decisions differently. Kohlberg put moral judgement into six stages of development. The sixth, or ultimate stage to reach in his scale is justice, the ability to judge objectively.

Gilligan, a modern feminist who wrote In A Different Voice, believes this scale is unfair because it does not apply to women. Instead, Gilligan set up her own scale, in which the woman passes through three stages. In the first stage the woman is often selfish, and she looks out mainly for herself. In the second stage she feels so much responsibility to others that she neglects herself. In the third and final stage the woman finds a good balance of the two. She can balance her responsibility to herself and to others.

Griffin's lecture was the fourth in a series of lectures on "Issues Facing Women In The Church" given weekly at Saint Mary's.

responded to questions from the audience. He said, "I see the basic issue, thus, is one of realism versus unrealism."

Culbertson criticized the Reagan Administration's attempts to reduce the trade deficit by decreasing the value of the dollar. "A reduction in the value of the dollar reduces our standard of living," he said.

Culbertson said, "We need to limit our imports and of course we need to do it in an intelligent way."

He characterized present protectionist efforts as "too little too late." He added a long-term commitment is necessary if American industry is going to benefit and jobs are going to be saved.

Culbertson received his Ph.D. in economics from the University of Michigan. He is an economist with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and consultant to the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, the Subcommittee on International Finance of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Culbertson is the ninth speaker in the Joseph P. Molony Memorial Lector series sponsored annually by the Notre Dame Economics Department and the United Steelworkers of America.

Molony, who had previously lectured at Notre Dame, was a vice-president of the United Steelworkers union.

Summit talks to offer nothing new for U.S.

Well, Dallas beat Miami Vice in their first ratings confrontation much to the dismay to those of us who feel that Don Johnson's acting abilities rival at least those of Oliver's or Stallone's.

Moving on to less pressing matters, the White House announced the dates for a meeting between President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev to take place in Iceland (where else?). All of this comes on the heels of a dangerous precedent set by both countries.

Brian Broderick

sincerely yours

As everybody knows, the Soviet Union kidnapped one Nicholas Daniloff, an American journalist, and accused him of being a spy. This is not a good sign for those of us headed to Moscow for Fall Break. Well, as all of us good, red-blooded Americans know, Daniloff was just an innocent American who happened to be carrying a brief-case full of Soviet maps marked secret. The United States traded a convicted Soviet spy, Gennadi Zakharov, for the release of Daniloff.

Apparently the Soviet Union can kidnap any American citizen and hold him hostage until the United States releases a Soviet spy. Obviously the USSR has stumbled on to something here. What is really mystifying here is that Reagan and his "no compromise" attitude toward foreign affairs has fallen apart in what amounts to an act of terrorism by the Soviet Union.

Can you imagine the frustration and anger of the families that have close relations being held hostage in Lebanon? It almost appears that they have been forgotten. When Daniloff gets kidnapped for bribery purposes it is a national crisis. It should be. However, the lives of those being held hostage are no less important than Daniloff's. The families and the hostages are being betrayed by their own government. Where is the justification?

Now after being used by the Soviet Union to achieve their purpose, Reagan is going to meet Gorbachev to discuss arms control. My spine is tingling already. The last time these two met the major story involved the fashion styles of the wives of the two most powerful men in the world.

Excuse me for being cynical, but recent events and previous meetings between the two superpowers have left a bad taste in my mouth. Both men will sit down and discuss the enormous amount of nuclear weaponry their countries possess. Then they will agree to a minimal reduction (if any) and set a date for the next meeting. What we have are two men who have shown no honest commitment to nuclear disarmament. Instead we have a president who is interested in leaving a mark in the history books and a General Secretary who is attempting to gain an advantage in the propaganda war.

What is the net result of all of the activity of the past few weeks? First of all, the United States has started a dangerous policy of trading spies for innocent Americans. Secondly, the present administration must have alienated any of those who are associated with the American citizens being held hostage in Lebanon. The neglect shown to these innocent Americans is frightening.

About the only result of the upcoming meeting is an assured boom in Iceland's tourism. They picked a good time, I hear it is the slow season in Reykjavik. Will anything of any significance happen in Iceland? Probably not, unless the two ladies appear. As for me, I have a good feeling that Crockett and Tubbs will overtake the Ewings.

Women priests offer advantages to Church

No one has ever given me a single theological reason why women should not be allowed to become priests. At best, the reasons why they should not be allowed are based totally on tradition, not on anything rooted in doctrine.

Chris Julka

in plain english

Is it that men are better befit the Eucharist, because they are somehow intrinsically more "holy" than women? If anything, it could be argued that the opposite is true, at least in terms of orthodoxy: polls show, for instance, that more women oppose abortion than do men.

Does the reason women cannot become priests today lie in the historical fact that Jesus did not make any women his priests? This does not have to mean anything. Jesus never said it did. At most, one can only validly attribute his decision to either pure coincidence or to the dominant role of men in the society of that time. Not only, for instance did Jesus appoint no women to the original apostolic offices, but he also appointed no Gentiles. Has the Church taken this to mean that no Gentiles could ever become priests? Of course not. If it had, Father Hesburgh and most of the members of the Holy Cross order would be out of a job, and instead of being the "Home of the Fighting Irish," Notre Dame would have to be called "Home of the Fighting Jews."

If no one wants historical precedence, look at Jesus' mother and Mary Magdalene, for starters, both of whom had an active role in the early Church. Look at the long litany of canonized women and female mystics. Look at Mother Theresa today. If certain prelates are worried that the clergy might somehow become ruined if women were allowed to become priests, one might ask if the clergy can really become that much worse with women than it already is with only men.

Some of the most diehard conservative, fundamentalist Christian sects allow women to become priests. Even the Anglican Church, which is in many ways today like the Catholic Church was before Vatican

II, has said that there is no theological reason whatsoever why women should be barred from the priesthood: what stands in the way is simply ecclesiastical tradition, which exists because of accidents of history. If the Catholic Church could do away with many of the traditions which have had no theological foundation in the Second Vatican Council, why can it not do the same with this particular tradition as well?

The advantages to the Catholic Church of admitting women to the priesthood would be many. By doing so, for instance, the Church would demonstrate dramatically that it is not just a gentleman's social club, as many claim, but a genuine Church of God, which takes its commission from God so seriously that it is willing to constantly re-evaluate those traditions which merely happen to be comfortable at the time to see if they are indeed in accord with what God has revealed to us. Appointing women to the priesthood would be an acknowledgment of the indispensable role which women have played and continue to play in the Church. And this would enable the Church to show that it does not make its pronouncements against abortion and adultery simply because it is a man's Church, as many groups masquerading as the representatives of the majority of women would

To show that I am not simply a voice crying in the barren wilderness but have something concrete and practical in mind, I would like to make the following proposal. If Notre Dame has the boldness to spurn the Vatican on the issue of abortion, by having Father Hesburgh get chummy with Mario Cuomo, a political supporter of abortion, and feels free to contradict the Vatican on the issue of faith and morals, by reappointing a gay atheist as a theology professor for graduate students, why can't it take a single, simple initiative with regard to admitting women to the priesthood? The condoning of abortion, homosexuality, and atheism contradicts the very doctrine of the Catholic Church; allowing women to become priests, on the other hand, would be simply to break with a tradition, for which no one can give a single theological reason why it exists in the first place.

International experience through Circle K

The Observer/Fred Doble
Scott Bearby is the new international secretary for Circle K.

The Observer/Fred Doble
Scott Bicha was appointed the new international trustee.

GINA CAMERENA
features writer

For the first time in almost 25 years two members of the Circle K Club from a single university have been elected to international positions. Junior Scott Bearby was appointed to the club's International Board of Trustees as international secretary and senior Scott Bicha was appointed as international trustee.

Circle K is the world's largest collective service and leadership development organization, incorporating 750 clubs with a total of 10,000 members. Basically, the club helps to promote leadership skills and techniques by serving the community. Circle K members visit nursing homes, give leadership lectures and help to organize additional Circle K Clubs. The Notre Dame chapter of Circle K offers their services at the nearby Logan Center and has, in previous years, helped with the handicap service carts for the injured on campus.

'You can develop your own leadership skills by giving to the community and campus.'

However, one of the Club's main objectives this year is to assist at the Special Olympics International Games which will be held on the Notre Dame campus next summer. The Club hopes to help through fund raising and volunteer work.

Both Bearby and Bicha's careers as international officers began when they were elected to their positions during the annual international convention which was held in Boston this year. The convention itself serves to vote on proposed programs, award club members for their services and to elect new officers.

'Anyone can join to develop themselves and serve others.'

Circle K performs on the local, state (district) and international levels. As international officers, Bearby and Bicha are each responsible for monitoring three club districts from their international office in Indianapolis.

Circle K is the collegiate level of the high school Key Club and it is also in conjunction with the Kiwanis Club. Bearby first became involved with the Key Club early in high school before later becoming a state officer and now international secretary. "A natural progression," said Bearby.

Bearby counsels three districts: Pacific Northwest (Alaska, Washington, Oregon, North Idaho, British Columbia and the Yukon); Missouri and Arkansas; and West Virginia. Since fall marks the travelling season for the international members, Bearby spends his weekends visiting his districts to keep the members informed of international programs and supervises the club's activities. Over October break he will travel to Washington to visit part of the Northwest district.

As international secretary, Bearby is the student representative for budget and finance. He helps to develop guidelines for the upcoming year and works with the high school Key Clubs.

Bearby feels Circle K is a very active and independent club on campus. "We either succeed or fail on our own," he said.

This year he is working on the "Plus 1987" project hoping to initiate 1,987 more members to bring the membership close to 12,000. Bearby is also helping to revise the club's constitution to meet 1980's standards.

"I'm going through an exciting time and can see the improvements," said Bearby. "You can develop your own leadership skills by giving to the community and campus."

Like Bearby, Bicha became involved in Circle K through the Key Club. He was further inspired to join the organization when he attended a district convention in Spokane, Washington.

"I decided then that I really wanted to get involved," said Bicha. He currently serves as one of the nine trustees on the international board.

One of Bicha's goals this year is to make a larger impact on the college campus.

"If you were involved in the Key Club," said Bicha, "Circle K is a good way to get involved in a college club because you already have knowledge of how the club functions. Anyone can join to develop themselves and serve others." The Circle K Club meets every Wednesday in St. Ed's Hall in the lounge.

'I'm learning more through Circle K than from any book because I'm living the education rather than reading about it.'

Through Circle K Bicha said he is learning leadership skills, public speaking and working with peers.

"I'm learning more through Circle K than from any book because I'm living the education rather than reading about it," said Bicha.

Does anybody care? University Counseling Center does

PAUL ANDREW CIMINO
features writer

As one approaches the third floor landing in the University Infirmary, a profound quiet is noticeable and it hangs in the air like a great weight about to fall. Yet, on the other side of the door at the landing lies a world filled with caring people who are ready to serve the Notre Dame community - if given the chance. This is the image which the newly crowned University Counseling Center (formerly Psych Services) is trying to project.

"Basically it (the name change idea) started as a marketing project that six business students were working on last year," said Patrick Utz, director of the center. "They worked on a project to market the center and this is one of the ideas they came up with."

The students originally did not plan to suggest a name change. However, as part of the project the suggested name change was determined to be beneficial to the center's image among students.

Eventually a poll was taken of both students and faculty to find a suitable name. Suggested names had to emphasize the broad counseling orientation the center offered as well as show a flavor for what students themselves thought best. Certain unusable ideas were quickly cut ("Joe's Place" being one) and after some deliberation the name University Counseling Center was chosen.

Utz feels that the new name is a more correct appraisal of the services offered by the center. "I want us to be seen as highly competent, interested and caring professionals. Everyone on the staff comes from the doctoral level and they represent the top schools in the country," he said. He also said that the center wishes to be seen as covering a broad spectrum of problems and that it is specifically for the Notre Dame family.

"We only see students for individual counseling," Utz said. "However, we have programs for everybody. So, for example, faculty and staff call us for consultation. We'd like to think that faculty members would call us into the classroom to do a program on stress management or other topics."

Utz also mentioned some of the different problems for which the center offers counseling. "People come to us to get help for many problems," he said. The problems include such things as deep depression, alcohol abuse and advice on interpersonal and family relationships. Many people have realized the center's value as is evident from Utz's full schedule of appointments. Even so, Utz was quick to note that the center is not usually thought of as a viable option by many students.

Whether the agency's image, with help from the name change, is being perceived from a better educated viewpoint is not yet discernable.

"I think more and more students are seeing us as a positive resource and in this respect the name change is consistent with our philosophy," said Utz.

The center has also undergone some other, purely physical changes during the past year. Alcohol counselor Peggy Cronin retired and three others left for other opportunities, leaving the staff somewhat short-handed.

"I think we brought in a really high-powered staff," Utz said. "The staff change was not planned but just became necessary for various reasons. I am very delighted with our team and I think the new people are going to fit in well."

The center has also begun a Doctoral Internship Program in conjunction with the Oak Lawn mental health facility in Elkhart. The program allows prospective clinical and applied psychologists who wish to work in a university environment to intern at Notre Dame for three days a week. On the other two days, the interns work at Oak Lawn while finishing their doctorate dissertations.

"In terms of the University, having this internship is a great thing," Utz noted. "We may be able to get approval from the American Psychological Association this year which would recognize us as a first-rate service facility and a training agency."

A 13 year-veteran of university mental health, Utz said he finds it very satisfying when a person with some difficulty is able to conquer it with a little counseling.

"It's nice to get a letter back and have someone say they are doing just fine," Utz said.

The University Counseling Center is located on the third floor of the Infirmary and open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Services are usually by appointment and all contacts are confidential.

'Crimes of the Heart' a criminal success

features writer

The Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theatre began its 1986-87 season last night with a delightfully entertaining production of Beth Henley's Pulitzer Prize winning comedy, "Crimes of the Heart."

Henley's play, a comedy, was brought to life by a small but extremely exuberant cast of actors. Not a moment stood still. From the very opening scene of "Crimes" the audience was catapulted into the not-so-tranquil lives of the three Magrath sisters, Babe, played by Jeannie O'Neil, Meg, played by Holly Becker, and Lenny, played by Jenny Rode.

Babe, the youngest of these three southern-belle sisters has just shot her husband, Senator Zackery Botrelle, as the play opens. She has been bailed out of jail and is returning to her childhood home which is currently occupied by her plain and practical older sister, Lenny. The wild and rebellious middle sister, Meg, is also returning home after unsuccessful years spent trying to make a name for herself in Hollywood. The girls hire lawyer Barnette Lloyd, played by Mark Costanzi, to clear Babe's name. In the process of his questioning the audience discovers the very amusing details surrounding Babe's crime.

Complicating the situation even more for the sisters is the presence their hilarious and ridiculously overbearing cousin, Chick, played by Mary Kay Sheid. Adding to the confusion is Doc Porter, played by Duane DiFranco, an old boyfriend of Meg's who managed to acquire a limp during dubious circumstances involving Meg and a hurricane. As if this all weren't enough to make for an amusing storyline, the sisters are also continually haunted by the memory of their mother who hung herself and the family cat simultaneously and by a pushy grandfather who is (finally!) dying in the hospital.

"Crimes of the Heart" is a wonderfully funny performance and well worth seeing. The actors and actresses convey the intricacies of their complex relationships well and it is refreshing to see how much they all seem to enjoy their roles.

"Crimes of the Heart" will be showing at Saint Mary's O'Laughlin Auditorium Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 8:10 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the O'Laughlin box office.

The Irish won't have much time to relish the victory since they play host this weekend to Ohio University on Friday at 3 p.m. and Purdue on Saturday at 9 a.m. All matches will be played at the Courtney tennis courts behind the ACC.

The Irish have never faced

Ohio, members of the MAC conference, so Gelfman is not sure what to expect. But she is sure of her game plan.

"We can't underestimate anyone," said Gelfman. "We've got to play to the best of our ability. That's what we've done all season and that's what we'll

A win over Ohio would give the Irish some much-needed momentum against Purdue. The match with the Boilermakers is expected to be very close, but the Irish have an excellent opportunity of evening up their record.

Notre Dame is like the Green Bay Packers because
1. Both teams last had great seasons under Dan Devine
2. The subsequent coaches at each place had no coaching experience in their new league
3. Paul Hornung did great things at both places
4. Green Bay, like ND, can only beat teams from their home state
5. Both teams often use several QB's in the same drive
6. ND is also negotiating for Jim Everett
7. Knute Rockne was born in Norway; Green Bay is also north of civilization

Boston wins wild one with Angels to even AL series

Associated Press

BOSTON - Dwight Evans' fifth-inning popup fell for a tie-breaking double and the Boston Red Sox won the battle of bad hops, blunders and bizarre plays to beat the California Angels 9-2 yesterday to even the American League playoffs at one game apiece.

Every ball seemed like an adventure in Fenway Park's late afternoon sun and the swirling wind, and Evans' lucky double in the fifth put them ahead 3-2. The Red Sox broke the game open with three runs in the seventh, helped by three errors, and three more runs in the eighth, capped by Jim Rice's two-run homer, to gain a split at home in the first two games of the best-of-seven series.

Game 3 is scheduled for tomorrow night in Anaheim, site of the next three meetings.

The Red Sox bunched seven hits in the first two innings, including a leadoff triple by Wade Boggs and a following double by Marty Barrett, who had three hits, but managed only a 2-0 lead. Then, as the shadows crept across the infield, the Angels began creeping back into the game and they eventually tied it in the fifth on Wally Joyner's home run, the first ever by a rookie in a playoff game.

But in the bottom of the fifth, with two outs and Bill Buckner on first base, Don Baylor drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch from starter and loser Kirk McCaskill that barely missed outside.

Evans, hitless in the series, followed with a high pop fly behind second base. Shortstop Dick Schofield and second baseman Bobby Grich converged on it, both taking turns looking at the ball and each other. At the last moment, Grich lunged backwards for the ball, but it dropped for a two-base hit that allowed Buckner to score.

The luck that enabled Boston to take the lead stayed with them in the top of the sixth. With one out, Grich singled and took second on Schofield's single off starter and winner Bruce Hurst.

Bob Boone, the Angels' best career hitter against Hurst, lined a single to left and Rice came up throwing. Grich rounded third in full stride, but suddenly stopped as third baseman Boggs cut off the throw. Boggs then threw to shortstop Spike Owen, nailing Grich as he scrambled back the base.

Grich sprang to his feet, screaming at third base coach Moose Stubing. Grich threw his hands up in the air before slamming his helmet to the ground.

Mellow, not yellow

Spence fights his way to ND, top

By TERRY LYNCH
Sports Writer

A mellow competitor.

Somehow, there shouldn't be such a thing, but to deny that such a thing exists would eliminate the presence of Marv Spence from the secondary of the Irish football team. It would also deprive Notre Dame of one of its biggest success stories.

You see, it takes a lot of extraordinary circumstances to make a competitor mellow, and Spence has been through a lot of them. Chester High School, his alma mater, is one of them. Not very many of his classmates went on to college, much less a college like Notre Dame. Spence, however, made it through.

"My mother was a big influence during high school," says the 5-11, 180-pound senior. "She sat on me and made sure I hit the books. A lot of the guys at Chester had the talent, but instead of studying they would rather hang out in their groups."

"I was different because I was mellow. I didn't let them get to me. I just couldn't conform to the norms."

Surviving that type of environment not only takes some non-conformity, but a whole lot of concentration. It's a word that is heard often when talking to, or about, Spence.

"Marv works hard to do things right," says secondary coach Terry Forbes. "He doesn't make big mistakes. The only mistakes you'll see him make are the ones that great athletes and great teams can take advantage of."

"He's an aggressive player that likes contact. He can cover the wide-out well, which any cornerback has to do well. He concentrates as well as anybody back there."

Concentration on the football field for Spence is not so much a matter of pride than it is of survival. But then again, it's always been that way off the field for him as well.

"I like to rely on my quickness, but I've got to have a high level of concentration on each play," says Spence. "One breakdown in the secondary means the offense scores on us. The linebackers can miss a tackle, but if you don't back them up, it's all over."

Marv Spence

"The biggest thing for me is being able to maintain the concentration. Everybody who came out for the team when I was a freshman had the ability to compete, it's just that the guys who stayed could maintain their concentration on every play."

As a senior, Spence is trying to pass on his aggressive style of play and mild-mannered demeanor on to younger players.

"I try to be a leader on the field by example," says Spence. "I go out and perform to the best of my ability, and hope from there that the rest will take care of itself."

So far, Marv Spence has done just fine.

Darryl Strawberry was the only Met to reach third. He singled with one out in the ninth for New York's final hit. He stole second and moved to third when Mookie Wilson hit a hard groundball that Davis made a diving stop on and threw to Scott covering for the out. Ray Knight struck out for the last out, giving Scott at least one strikeout in each inning.

The Astros loaded the bases with one out after Davis' homer, but Gooden wriggled out of further trouble despite being wild high with the fastball.

Kevin Bass doubled into the right-field corner, and Jose Cruz fled out to shallow center field. Gooden then walked Alan Ashby on a 3-2 curveball, and Craig Reynolds blooped a single into shallow right field, loading the bases. Gooden struck out Scott for the inning's second out, and Billy Hatcher grounded into a forceout at third. That ended the inning, one that could have been much more lucrative for the Astros.

The Astros wasted three baserunners again in the fourth, and they saw chances to score go by the wayside in the fifth and sixth innings against Gooden.

It's sort of like Rodney Dangerfield, we don't get respect," said Lambert. "But the program is in it's infancy and the only way to get respect is to beat people."

If the Irish continue their winning ways, especially on the road for the next two weeks, don't expect Lambert and his players to open a Comedy Store in search of respect. They'll get that, and a possible post-season tournament bid, from their play on the court.

First, however, they must face the task at hand. The Irish will head south this weekend to face Louisville and Kentucky with hopes of keeping their winning streak rolling.

Sophomore blocker Zanette Bennett (left) and the Notre Dame volleyball team upped their record to 13-4 Tuesday with an easy win over Illinois State. Brian O'Gara has details of the match at right.

Volleyball team makes it 7 in a row with quick victory over Illinois St.

By BRIAN O'GARA
Sports Writer

The statistics are impressive. Seven consecutive victories, three consecutive matches without losing a single game, and a 13-4 record, the best start in Notre Dame volleyball history. This is the stuff that breeds confidence, yet Irish head coach Art Lambert retains a strong sense of cautious optimism.

"The program is improving and there is no doubt that the girls are improving," says Lambert. "I love their enthusiasm and their intensity in approaching practices and matches."

Yet in the same breath, Lambert admits that there is still work to be done if the Irish are to succeed in the next stretch of the schedule.

"We need to work on all aspects of our game," he says. "We're not where we've got to be to do the things we need to do."

The task ahead is an imposing one. The Irish are now in the midst of eight consecutive games on the road, five during the week of October break. But this challenge got off to a great start on Tuesday evening as the Irish took another Illinois team to school. After routing DePaul at home on Saturday, 15-2, 15-0, 15-4, the Irish traveled to Illinois State and once again came out on top with a 15-4, 15-13, 15-3 victory.

The Irish, as was the case in recent games, jumped ahead at the outset and took game one with ease, 15-4. Another quick start in game two followed as the Irish went up 14-6. A few lapses in concentration and a seemingly endless line of side-outs for the home team allowed Illinois State to get back into the game. Faced with the possibility of losing their first game in three matches, however, the Irish finally managed to score that elusive 15th point. This clinched the second game for Notre Dame, and set it up to finish the evening with a 15-3 performance to once again sweep its opponent three games to none.

Lambert was happy with his team's performance.

"We passed very well and blocked off the left side extremely well," said Lambert. "But our weakest point is transition. We need to make the switch from offense to defense and defense to offense quickly. If we can do that, we'll be in good shape."

If you can't tell, Lambert is not content with just beating Illinois State, the 7th-ranked team in the Midwest pre-season poll, and winning seven straight matches. He has loftier goals in mind, including greater recognition for Notre Dame in the volleyball world.

"Nobody knows who we are."

Houston takes the 'Shootout' win as great Scott out-powers Gooden

Associated Press

HOUSTON - Mike Scott prevailed in the heralded Shootout at the K corral with Dwight Gooden, equaling a playoff record with 14 strikeouts and throwing a five-hitter as the Houston Astros defeated the New York Mets 1-0 last night in the first game of the 1986 National League playoffs.

Glenn Davis' home run leading off the second inning was all Scott, who led the major leagues in strikeouts with 306, needed.

Gooden, the major-league strikeout leader the past two seasons, gave up seven hits and struck out five in seven innings while working in and out of trouble as the Astros wasted numerous scoring chances.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series tonight will match Houston right-hander Nolan Ryan, 12-8, baseball's all-time strikeout leader, against left-hander Bob Ojeda, 18-5.

The shutout was the first in the NL playoffs since Rick Sutcliffe and Warren Brusstar of Chicago combined to beat San Diego 13-0 in Game 1 of the 1985 series. The last individual shutout by an NL pitcher was Bob Forsch for St. Louis, 7-0 in Game 1 of the 1982 playoffs against Atlanta.

Danny Jackson of Kansas City pitched a 2-0 shutout in Game 5 of last year's American League playoffs against Toronto.

Scott became only the third NL pitcher to strike out 10 or more in a playoff game, the most recent being John Candelaria, who also struck out 14 against Cincinnati on Oct. 7, 1975 while with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Detroit's Joe Coleman in 1972 and Baltimore's Mike Boddicker in 1983 also struck out 14.

Davis, who became only the second Astro to hit 30 or more homers in a season with 31 this year, hit a 1-0 pitch from Gooden to straightaway center field to lead off the second. Center fielder Lenny Dykstra was at the wall waiting, but there was no chance. It was over the fence with plenty to spare, and the Astros had the first league championship playoff homer of their history.

Jim Wynn twice topped the 30-homer mark for the Astros, who lost a five-game series to Philadelphia in 1980 in their only previous championship playoff appearance.

Women's tennis team overcomes Marquette

By SHEILA HOROX
Sports Writer

Prior to Tuesday's match with Marquette, the Notre Dame women's tennis team was still looking for its first victory in dual competition.

An 0-3 record, however, was not enough to discourage the Irish, who promptly went to Milwaukee and defeated the Warriors, 6-3.

The Irish took five of six singles matches and one doubles match. While it is the usual procedure to play singles matches first, Marquette requested and was granted permission to play doubles first in an attempt to speed up the overall play.

Despite being down 2-1, therefore, as the Irish began singles action, Notre Dame head coach Michele Gelfman still was not worried.

"I wasn't concerned after the doubles because I knew we had a strong singles line up," Gelfman said. "We knew we had

Andrysiak runs his way into starting role

Notre Dame quarterback Terry Andrysiak may have been running for his life last Saturday, but he seems to have run himself into a starting role in the process.

Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz gave a strong hint Tuesday that Andrysiak, the 6-1, 181-pound junior back up to Irish regular Steve Beuerlein, would get the starting nod Saturday when 2-2-1 Pittsburgh comes to Notre Dame Stadium for a game with the 1-3 Irish.

While neither Beuerlein nor Andrysiak had a particularly good day on the stat sheet against Alabama Beuerlein was 5-of-16 passing, for 66 yards and one interception; Andrysiak was 8-of-18, 90 yards and an interception - both made several outstanding plays to avoid the ferocious Tide pass rush.

Yet Beuerlein, who suffered a concussion in the first quarter on a sack by the Tide's Cornelius Bennett, simply could not scramble out of the pocket enough to satisfy Holtz. Holtz, therefore, sent in the smaller, more light-footed Andrysiak and was pleased overall with his performance.

The question, then, is whether or not this decision to start Andrysiak had more to do with Andrysiak's feet or Beuerlein's head. Beuerlein has not taken a snap in practice this week, presumably because his head still hurts, and even spent Saturday night in the hospital as is customary for a concussion sufferer. He has been at practice all week, however, watching Andrysiak and reserve Steve Belles line up behind center.

"Terry made an awful lot of fine, fine plays against Alabama," said Holtz. "He has tremendous maneuverability, and is a much better game player than he is a practice player. Eliminate his mistakes, and in that type of (pass rush), I think he gives us the best chance to win.

"Beuerlein, on the other hand, suffered a concussion and cannot have contact. Andrysiak just does some things in football games that warrant him receiving more playing time."

For Andrysiak and Beuerlein, therefore, this Saturday's game may be one of immense importance to their careers. Andrysiak started one game last year in similar circumstances, but was back at number-two a week later. Beuerlein, a starter since his freshman year, now appears to have a serious challenger for the first time in awhile.

"I'm glad to have the opportunity to play," said Andrysiak. "We need to get something going and I just hope I'm the right person. The most important thing is to get the win."

For Andrysiak, this is a chance at least to get off the rollercoaster ride he has been on for the past two seasons. Last year he played in nine games, leading his number-two unit to scoring drives in several, piloting the team to its consecutive drubblings of USC and Navy and even directing the team to its only scoring drive in the fiasco at Miami. Yet Notre Dame head coach Gerry Faust always returned to the vastly-experienced Beuerlein as his starter.

This season Andrysiak had appeared only briefly up until the Alabama game when Holtz freely shuffled the two in and out. While that situation no doubt frightened the two signal-callers as much as the Irish fans, this vote of confidence may be what Andrysiak most needs.

"Last year, I think the coaches just felt I'd be more efficient off the bench or something," said Andrysiak. "This might be week-to-week, or depending on my performance it could be permanent."

"It's very hard to get consistency, though, alternating in and out with another quarterback. But I'm always thankful for the opportunity to play. Coach Holtz has to know what's better for the team, and I just hope he stays with me a bit."

It is likely that Andrysiak will get that chance this time, for Holtz still talks as though he is adverse to the idea of shuffling his quarterbacks on a regular basis.

"In a football game, you would like to have one starting quarterback," said Holtz. "And then you want another who can play. I don't believe you want to jump up and down with your quarterbacks. Right now, Steve Beuerlein is our starting quarterback, no doubt. But Pitt puts tremendous pressure on the passer (the Panthers have registered 21 sacks already) and Terry's pretty good when he's scrambling."
