Dem. Long wins 4th district seat

FORT WAYNE-- Local politics overwhelmed even heavy White House campaigning in a special congressional election where Democrats wrested away the seat once held by Vice President Dan Quayle.

Jill Long, a business professor, used two county tax issues in her successful race against GOP opponent Dan Heath, a former city official.

Long's 1,700-vote margin reversed her fortunes from last fall, when she lost the district race by 50,000 votes.

"(Heath) wanted to take the George Bush tax pledge, but he had been in an administration involved in a tax raise," said Brad Senden, a consultant to Long's campaign. "So he was immediately involved in a contradiction."

Heath was safety director under Fort Wayne Mayor Paul Helmke, who recently engineered the passage of a 0.2 percent city income tax and sought annexation of a Republican-dominated county township, a move that would mean higher property tax rates.

Long used both issues in her advertising, claiming the administration's tactics belied Heath's campaign promise not to support tax increases.

In his concession speech, Heath conceded the attacks hurt his candidacy. "There are Graduation tickets ready in April

By CHRISTINE WALSH
Staff Reporter

Commencement tickets for graduating seniors and their families will be available in mid-April, according to David Kil, assistant registrar.

Ticket applications request forms were due before Easter break and are currently being considered. Requests will be honored on a priority basis.

Students could request from one to four tickets each, and enough tickets are set aside for every student to get the maximum of four tickets, said Kil.

Requests for only one ticket will be filled first, and those tickets will most likely be in the lower arena of the Joyce ACC, said Kil. Requests for blocks of four tickets will be filled last.

"It is not guaranteed that those requesting four tickets will receive all four tickets in a block together," although all efforts will be made to make that possible, said Kil.

Other than the priority system based on the number of tickets requested, "seating assignments will be by random selection," he said.

According to Kil, ticket applications that are received late will be considered only after all other requests are filled.

After all ticket requests are filled, a lottery will be held to distribute any extra tickets that become available.

In order to be eligible to receive extra tickets, students will be required to fill out a request form, which will be used for the lottery, said Kil.

Certain seats in the JACC will be "reserved for faculty members and guests of honorary degree recipients," said Kil.

As in prior years, the May 21 ceremonies will be broadcast on closed-circuit television in several rooms in the Center for Continuing Education, according to Office of University Relations.

2 Czech teens hijack plane; later surrender

FRANKFURT, West Germany-- Two Czechoslovak teen-agers shot their way onto a jetliner Wednesday in Prague and ordered it to the United States, but the crew convinced them it couldn't fly that far and they gave up in Frankfurt.

They surrendered when American military would not let them enter the U.S. Air Force base adjacent to Frankfurt's commercial airport.

Police said no one was hurt and the incident ended peacefully less than three hours after its violent start in the Czechoslovak capital, where nearly all passengers were freed.

Witnesses at Ruzyně Airport in Prague said the teen-agers took a woman hostage, crashed through a glass wall of the VIP lounge, fired several shots and threatened a stewardess.

About 100 people were reported to be on Tupolev-154 of the Hungarian airline Malev when the hijackers, aged 15 and 16, seized it about 10 a.m.

Oswald Neumann, a Frankfurt police spokesman, said passengers reported that one youth fired a "warning shot" out the door of the plane before takeoff that "was not aimed at anyone ... went into the air."

Official Hungarian and Czechoslovak news agencies gave the ages of the hijackers and said they initially demanded to be flown to the United States.

The Hungarian agency MTI said Lajos Taba, Hungarian consul general in Prague, boarded the aircraft and Pessimists won't be holding their annual convention this year. The Benevolent and Loyal Order Of Pessimists has cancelled the yearly meeting because it wouldn't have been any fun, and besides, "Traditions require too much optimism," says President Jack Duvall. The group has been meeting each year since 1975 on a weekend closest to April 15, income tax day and also the anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic, which Duvall calls "a monument to optimism." "We just don't think you should get unrealistic hopes up," Duvall said. "You'll only make yourself unhappy." Duvall, which is not his real name, said he didn't want to divulge his identity or have his picture taken because he was worried about losing his job.

Ex-superstars subject of 'what ever became of...'

Andy Warhol once said that everyone is famous for at least 15 minutes of his/her life. In American popular culture, there are thousands of stars continually rising and falling with the passage of time. With only a few exceptions, most performers stay on top for a relatively short period of time.

So what becomes of these stars after their 15 minutes are up?

An interesting question-- and last semester my roommate and I came up with some interesting answers. We developed a weekly display on our door entitled "The Forgotten Star of the Week" which features those persons who were literally famous for 15 minutes or they simply overstayed their 15 minute welcome. Finally, those haunting questions concerning the whereabouts of old TV stars and disco kings could be answered, with the help of our demented imaginations.

For those of you who are unfamiliar with our famous door, here is a sampling of what we came up with to answer the question, "Whatever became of..."

ERIK ESTRADA: Erik suffered from amnesia after a tragic roller-disco accident. He thought he was Julio Iglesias after the mirror-covered glitter ball fell and hit him on the head.

SHAUN CASSIDY: Shaun is getting together with another singer of equal talent-- or lack thereof-- Tiffany. They are going on a world tour entitled "Remakes from Hell."

THE BEE GEES: After the amazing success of their film "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" they continued with the Beatles motif for a documentary film, "Let it Bee...Gee." The film recorded the behind the scenes process of picking out their wardrobe ("Which gold medallion?" "Which huge belt buckle?") for a performance on their baby brother's TV show "Solid Gold."

When Andy Gibb died last year, the Bee Gees sang some of their best loved songs with modified lyrics at the funeral.

THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY: Chris and Tracy were kidnapped by a band of gypsies in 1975. No one realized that they were missing until 1980. Danny was shocked to learn that Reuben was his biological father ("I always wondered why I was the only kid with red hair"). GREG BRADY: Greg married Marcia and had six kids. In order to support his family, he turned to his very lucrative career as Johnny Bravo. He now plays in Las Vegas, weighs 300 lbs. and most people say he looks like the late Elvis Presley.

GILLIGAN AND SKIPPER: They opened a clothing boutique that only sells red jerseys, blue shirts, white pants and sailor hats.

WONDER WOMAN: She is currently George Bush's bodyguard, working for a "kinder, gentler, more sexy nation."

DONNY OSMOND: All of his teeth fell out and he now has a full set of dentures. Look for him on the new Poly-Grip commercials.

CAPTAIN AND TENNILLE: Captain spoke his first words and Tennille got a new hairdo-- a perm!

TATTOO: Tattoo went the way of many forgotten stars: he became a special guest star on game shows. He auditioned for the center square on "The Hollywood Squares" but was too short to be seen.

Well, there you have it. I want to stress that these ideas were a purely collaborative effort; it's kind of a Lennon and McCartney thing. Perhaps 10 years from now, someone else will be featuring forgotten stars such as Vanna White, Tiffany, Debbie Gibson and Madonna. Only time will tell.

Fed. MCorp bailout third largest ever

Associated Press

Washington-- Federal regulators said Wednesday they had seized control of most of MCorp, an $18 billion, Dallas-based bank holding company, pumping in $300 million in what will likely become the third largest commercial bank rescue ever.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. packaged 20 MCorp subsidiary banks into a new, government-owned institution with $15.4 billion in assets and $11.6 billion in deposits. Five still-solvent subsidiary banks and a trust company were left alone.

L. William Seidman, chairman of the FDIC, which insures commercial bank deposits up to $100,000, said the agency will seek buyers for the new institution.

He declined to estimate how much government aid will ultimately be required, saying he did not want to reveal the figure to potential bidders.

Private analysts have said they expect the failure will cost the FDIC, already depleted by a post-Depression record of 221 bank failures last year, $1 billion to $2 billion.

That would make the transaction the third most costly commercial bank rescue, after Continental Illinois of Chicago in 1984 and First Republic Bank of Dallas in 1988, which required initial government pledges of $4.5 billion and $4 billion, respectively. Both, like MCorp, were holding companies.

The FDIC insurance fund suffered its first loss ever in 1988, declining from $18.3 billion to $14 billion. Seidman said the fund should break even this year, even with spending for MCorp.

As part of legislation to bail out the savings and loan industry, President Bush is proposing to build up the commercial bank insurance fund by nearly doubling the deposit insurance premium paid by banks.

Earlier this year, when the FDIC was trying to sell MCorp in its entirety, the agency had set an April 3 deadline for offers, but Seidman said that may be extended.

"We are going to proceed with the sale as promptly as possible," he said.

In Dallas, MCorp said the five remaining banks and the trust subsidiary "form the nucleus of a new beginning for MCorp," which intends to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

"While the nature of MCorp has been altered dramatically, a solid, healthy core remains," Chairman Gene H. Bishop said.

Seidman said the failed banks opened for business Wednesday and "as far as the customers are concerned it will be business as usual."

MCorp, which has 86 offices, lost $903 million from its banking operations last year. It is the last of the large Texas banks needing to be recapitalized, either through federal rescue or private merger. The bulk of the assets were in the subsidiaries in Dallas, $6.4 billion, and Houston, $3.2 billion.

Until last year, many analysts had thought MCorp, which had not invested as heavily in energy projects as other Texas banks, might survive. But heavy losses on real estate loans eventually dragged it under.

Judicial review procedure studied

By LAURA DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The Judicial Review Board and continuance of campus SYRs were the two issues of discussion at the meeting of the Campus Life Council on Wednesday.

The Council was composed of certain campus rectors, faculty, and members of student government. Student Body President Tom Doyle chaired the committee and said the most time was dedicated to deliberating over the Judicial Review process. "Consensus was that the Review Board needs to be looked at again," Doyle said.

The Judicial Review Board, whose power had been limited this year to approving appeals but not hearing the cases, went virtually unused, said Doyle.

He said that the reason was probably due to the strict regulations regarding grounds for appeals, and the fact that a case that was approved for appeal would end up right back in the hands of Student Affairs, where it had just come from.

Doyle said that a committee had been appointed earlier to re-examine the judicial review process at Notre Dame and suggest possible improvements. Aristedes Feles, student government judicial coordinator, worked with the committee and proposed possible points for change at the Council meeting yesterday. Feles submitted five proposals for change in the Judicial Review Board yesterday, including an expansion of its powers and composition. Doyle said that no ultimate decision was made in regard to these proposals but a subcommittee of the CLC was appointed to do further research on them.

"It was frustrating because we looked like we would cover a lot of ground, but didn't," Doyle commented. "We felt stifled in regard to the Judicial Review Board issue."

Doyle said that SYRs, which were undergoing a trial period this year, were approved for continuance by nearly all members of the Council and will continue in years to come.

Moslem leader killed in Brussels

Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium-- The leader of Moslems in Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg and his aide were shot and killed Wednesday, five weeks after the imam distanced himself from Iran's death sentence for author Salman Rushdie.

Imam Abdullah Al Ahdal, a 36-year-old Saudi Arabian and moderate Moslem, and Salem El Behir, a 40-year-old Tunisian who headed the Brussels mosque's social services and library, were shot at close range in the imam's office in the mosque, police said.

No one immediately claimed responsibility, and no arrests were made. Police said there were no witnesses and that no one heard the gunshots.

The two men each were shot twice, once in the head and once in the neck, police said. Unconfirmed reports said three hooded men were seen jumping from a van, entering the mosque and then coming out again.

The bodies were found by members of the Islamic community early Wednesday evening.

On Feb. 14, Iranian revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini issued a death sentence for Rushdie for "The Satanic Verses," a novel many Moslems consider blasphemous.

In a Feb. 20 interview on RTBF, Belgium's French-language television network, Ahdal agreed that Rushdie's book was blasphemous.

Democrats hail Long's victory in traditionally Republican district

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-- Democrats rejoiced Wednesday over Jill Long's surprise victory in a normally Republican congressional district in Indiana while both political parties turned their attention to elections next month in Alabama and Wyoming.

Neither Democrats nor Republicans claimed any important national trend in Tuesday's returns from Indiana, in which Long defeated Republican Dan Heath by about 1,700 votes to capture the House seat once held by Vice President Dan Quayle.

But Republican Party Chairman Lee Atwater said he was "ashamed" at the loss of the seat that had been a safe one for the GOP, and conceded that the race looked "very tough" next week in a heavily Democratic region of Alabama. Other Republicans insisted their candidate was an underdog in the Wyoming race, even though the seat has been in GOP hands for a decade.

Democratic spokesman Mike McCurry said his side holds the upper hand going into the final week of the Alabama campaign. He said if Atwater is ashamed of the outcome of the Indiana race, he'd be "apoplectic" if the Democrats followed up with wins in Alabama and Wyoming.

In strict numerical terms, the outcome of the three elections will make scant difference in the House, where the Democratic majority will stand at 259-174 when Long is sworn in next week.

But that didn't stop the party professionals from scrutinizing the Indiana returns or vying for public relations advantage in the two elections to come.

"It's hard to read this as a referendum on George Bush but on the other hand absent a strong national Republican agenda, these local candidates don't have much to stand on," McCurry said.

"Obviously, we regret the loss," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. He said that the race "reflected a lot of local issues."

Long

times when one must be sacrificed on the altar of good government, whether it be (tax) or annexation," he said.

Long said her victory was not a rebuff for the White House or Quayle, who campaigned for Heath. "This was just a race between two individuals in northeast Indiana," she said.

Quayle called Long with a message of congratulations. "He wished me well and congratulated me and offered to assist in any way because he's committed to the Fourth District," she said.

Long told Quayle she had gained valuable campaign experience in her losing 1986 effort to deny him a second Senate term. "I believe we will be able to work together well because I believe you have the Fourth District in your heart, just as I do," she told the vice president.

Later, Long seemed to back away even from her campaign's tax issue attacks, saying the city administration's chief failure was not seeking broader resident involvement in the decision. "It's a style of management rather than the issue itself," she said.

Long had lost by landslide margins both in 1986 and in her 1988 effort to oust GOP incumbent Dan Coats. Some Democrats wrote off her political career after the second loss, but Long said she realized immediately that Coats, a former House aide to Quayle, might be appointed to fill his Senate seat. "We kept our campaign headquarters open and assembled a team of private advisers," she said.

When Coats did resign in January to take the Senate seat, Long was ready to go again. While Long had no opponents in the party nominating caucus, Heath, then relatively unknown even in the city, was running in a field of nine candidates.

negotiated the release of 82 passengers, including all women and children, trading himself for them.

Taba was among the 11 passengers when the plane landed in Frankfurt. There also was a crew of four.

MTI said Hungarian authorities were in touch with West German security officials and were considering an extradition request.

Hans Neitzel, chief spokesman for the Frankfurt police, said he did not know the hijackers' motives.

"They said they wanted to go to America, but why they wanted to go, whether they have relatives there or what, we don't know," he said. "Maybe it was just youthful adventure."

He said they were being held for hijacking, but "whether they will be extradited will be decided through diplomatic channels."

Hungary's news agency and CTK, the official Czechoslovak agency, said the flight crew convinced the young hijackers the plane could not cross the ocean and they then demanded to be taken to Barcelona, Spain.

After entering West German airspace, however, the youths told the pilot to land at Frankfurt because they wanted to deal with the Americans at nearby military facilities, said Hans-Ulrich Ohl, head of the federal flight safety office in Frankfurt.

U.S. military authorities refused to allow the Hungarian jet onto Rhein-Main Air Base. Roland Desch, a police investigator, said a military truck was driven onto the taxiway to prevent them from entering the base.

Karl-Heinz Wagner, another police spokesman, said the teen-agers carried a sawed-off shotgun, a rifle and a fake hand grenade.

Charity Ball nears fund-raising goal

By MISSY WEBER
News Staff

The fundraising goal of $7,000 for the Notre Dame/ Saint Mary's Charity Ball has nearly been reached, according to Shannon McAuliffe, ball committee chairman.

All proceeds will go toward Catholic Relief Services and the Food Bank of Michiana.

"We have received a lot of community and corporation support, and the majority of our success is due to their cooperation," said McAuliffe.

The ball, the fourth such event to be held here, will take place on Friday, March 31 in the South Dining Hall. No charity ball was held last year.

The Junior and Sophomore classes are sponsoring the ball with cultural clubs on campus contributing expository displays.

The ball's theme "We are one World" has been carried over from past years.

"The Notre Dame/ Saint Mary's Charity Ball began as a small flickering idea shared by a number of students in 1985. After pondering the various roles they could assume in the world hunger crisis, they opted for a joint campus family response and devise the concept of a charity ball," said McAuliffe.

The inaugural event raised several thousand dollars for Catholic Relief Services to aid in alleviating hunger internationally. This year, that tradition continues and extends to the local community by donating 50 percent of the proceeds to the Food Bank of Michiana, said McAuliffe.

McAuliffe said she had two goals in organizing the event. "The first was to raise money for these worthwhile organizations, and the second was to insure that Notre Dame/ Saint Mary's students enjoy themselves at a charitable event so that ten years from now when they are approached for similar events, they will not associate a negative connotation to the word charity and they will help others as much as I have been helped in my efforts."

Doctors OK helping the terminally ill to end lives

Associated Press

BOSTON-- Doctors can ethically help terminally ill patients commit suicide by prescribing sleeping pills or other drugs and telling them what dose will end their lives, a panel of prominent doctors concludes.

Doctors assisting patients in suicides "is certainly not rare," although they don't often talk about it, the group said.

It added, however, that if doctors ease the way for death by carefully attending to the comfort and dignity of their hopelessly ill patients, requests for suicide should be rare.

The suicide guidelines were part of a report outlining doctors' responsibilities toward their dying patients. Among other things, the paper urged doctors to give such patients as much pain medicine as they need to relieve their suffering, even if it hastens their deaths.

"We really think that the physician has a responsibility to be actively involved in creating an environment in which a peaceful death can occur. That does not just happen," said Dr. Sidney H. Wanzer, principal author of the report.

The report, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, is the second from a 12-member committee chaired by Dr. Daniel D. Federman of Harvard Medical School, former president of the American College of Physicians. The committee was convened by the Society for the Right to Die, a New York-based group.

Its first report, issued five years ago, also dealt with the ethics of obeying patients' final wishes.

Judge orders South Bend landfill to close

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND-- A federal judge ordered an Indianapolis company to close its northern Indiana hazardous waste landfill Wednesday and pay nearly $2.8 million in civil penalties.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Miller Jr. ruled that Four County Landfill in Fulton County had been operating illegally since 1985, and ordered an immediate halt to the storage and disposal of hazardous wastes at the 61-acre facility.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency filed suit against the landfill in 1987, claiming it was operating in violation of the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976.

A group of residents, calling themselves Supporters to Oppose Pollution, or STOP, joined the suit later that year.

Several STOP members maintained a prayer vigil outside the landfill Wednesday morning, awaiting the judge's ruling.

"I hope I've seen the last toxic trucks driving past my front window," said Dixie Sechek, who lives near the landfill and is president of STOP.

Academy Awards.

"Cruelty might be human and it might be cultural, but it's not acceptable, and that's what this movie is about," said Foster, a former child star who won her first Oscar.

"I'm supposed to be jaded by this time, but I'm not," said Hoffman, who also won the award for "Kramer vs. Kramer" in 1979. He embraced loser Gene Hackman while on his way to the stage, where he received a standing ovation.

No single picture dominated the first half of the show, with "Rain Man," the odds-on favorite for best picture, coming up short in four categories. It lost the Oscar for film editing to "Who Framed Roger Rabbit," while "The Milagro Beanfield War" won for best score, "Dangerous Liaisons" won for art direction and "Mississippi Burning" for cinematography.

"Liaisons," an ornate drama of drawing room seductions in pre-Revolutionary France, also won for its opulent costumes.

"Bird" won the Oscar for best sound, "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" for sound effects editing and "Beetlejuice" for makeup.

Named best song of the year was Carly Simon's "Let the River Run" from "Working Girl." The academy could find only three songs to nominate this year, instead of the usual five, and didn't see fit to have them performed during the show.

The year's best foreign language film was Denmark's "Pelle the Conqueror" about an exploited farmworker and his son.

With Wednesday's ceremonies, the Academy dropped the traditional line "The winner is . . ." in favor of "And the Oscar goes to . . ." The intent was to soften the sense of competition.

Ordinance limits student living

Editor's note: The following is a letter from James Roemer, director of Community Relations, to Student Body President Tom Doyle.

Dear Tom:

Thanks for sending me a copy of your letter to Father Malloy. You have raised several issues which are important to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students. These are also important issues for the good people who live full time in this historic northeast neighborhood. This is their home away from home. They are often victims of crime and the police have not been able to keep their homes secure. This is regrettable.

This neighborhood is also home to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's faculty personnel, both active and retired. Just as important, many of the people who staff our University have lived there all their lives, whether they be maids, maintenance workers, plumbers, carpenters, dining hall employees, or other important and loyal people who devote their careers to working with students and with this University.

How do I know these people? I was born in this neighborhood. I learned how to play all sports with the whites and blacks who live near us around Ruetz field and the "big" field where houses on East Peashway have now taken that space. I went to high school (Holy Cross Seminary) here at Notre Dame and I attended undergraduate school and law school at Notre Dame. I practiced law in South Bend and was City Attorney for this city in the morning and was General Counsel for Notre Dame in the afternoon. In this manner, I have had one foot on campus and the other foot in the northeast neighborhood for my entire life. So I know both communities and their peoples as well as anyone else.

These neighbors have a right to set limits on the student population that live next to them. For many, their homes are their only financial investment. They don't mind 800 students. They want a mixed neighborhood of old and young, black and white, students and retired people, widows and kids. They don't want all elderly or all white or all black or all students! This is healthy and the mixture makes for an attractive neighborhood that is appealing to everyone, not just to one segment of the population.

They have a right to set reasonable limits and, frankly, I think the ordinance which was passed by the South Bend Common Council and was signed by the Mayor was such a reasonable limitation.

This ordinance changed a small portion of their neighborhood to "A" residential. Only two students can live in a home in an "A" residential neighborhood. That's not unreasonable when you consider that they have "grandfathered" all the current residences where students live in excess of two per house. So all student group homes in that entire neighborhood can remain as group homes indefinitely, unless the owner refrains from renting to a group of students for more than one year. I doubt that many landlords will give up such lucrative locations, and so I think that we may lose only a handful of nearby student homes over the next five or ten years.

The University has built four new residence halls in the past few years. If more off-campus housing becomes necessary in future years, the University may consider additional graduate and undergraduate residence halls.

Tom, the neighbors and their associations acted in a very responsible fashion by asking for an informal written referendum before the matter went into a series of public hearings. All of this was well-covered by the media at various stages. When they contacted me for a University opinion, I wrote Father Tyson, the vice president of Student Affairs, with my recommendation in favor of the neighborhood stabilization at the present group home level. Basically I believe that the neighborhood had the right to say that they wanted to stay at the present level of the student population and that additional group homes of students should not go into that particular area. (There is no limit to the amount of homes that can rent to two students per house.)

Father Tyson wrote back and agreed with that position. So Sister Jean Lenz, the assistant vice president for Student Affairs, and I represented that position in subsequent neighborhood meetings. (She was on the Neighborhood Housing Services Board as Pat Doran, the assistant director of Residence Life, is now.) Students were invited to attend those N.H.S. and Northeast Neighborhood Association meetings and the few who were interested did attend.

I believe that social justice and fairness prevailed. These northeast neighbors, who also are Notre Damers in the true sense of the word, are proud of the fact that more than 800 of our students live among them and tutor their kids, shovel their walks, visit their sick, and will paint their homes on April 8. Tom, this is a great South Bend neighborhood and Notre Dame is a proud part of their history and tradition-- past, present, and future.

Closing of labs hindered all

Dear Editor:

I am writing to address the fact that the three computer facilities on campus were closed for three consecutive days. I recognize that the closings were honoring a religious holiday, but I feel that this could have been implemented to a lesser degree. Perhaps those who decide whether the computer labs stay open or closed could have left one lab open during the Easter weekend. Another option would have been to leave the labs open Friday and Saturday, or just Saturday.

These closings have hindered those who do not own computers and those who do not have access to computers. In the future, I urge those who open and close the labs to consider options other than a three day closing of all labs on campus.

Students closed out of labs

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my concern about the scheduling of computer labs over the Easter break. This is the second year that all computing facilities were closed for the greater portion of that weekend.

In a university that is committed to excellence in research and that has recently invested a great sum in its computing facilities, it is unacceptable that the computer labs be unavailable for a period where so many of its students remain on campus, hoping to work. Many students, both graduate and undergraduate, found this to be a disturbing and insensitive action that hindered their study plans.

If the pool room in LaFortune Student Center can remain open during the break, this is surely true of the computing lab. Otherwise, where are our priorities?

Nazz entertains music lovers

Dear Editor:

The Observer usually does a fine job, overall, of reporting campus-wide events, but an unfortunate oversight has recently occurred in your decision not to cover "The Nazz," Notre Dame's annual talent show. I'd like to rectify that.

"The Nazz," traditionally, is a chance for campus bands to play for the students, in the format of a "battle-of-the-bands" competition. Every year, anywhere from 10 to 20 bands perform at Stepan Center, playing at their best, just to be heard and recognized by the community. And every year it's free: four hours of free rock-n-roll jazz, pop, and blues. Also, every year at least 200 to 300 or more people attend this musical fest.

This year's Nazz took place on March 18, involving close to 20 bands. It was a glorious four hours of music, starting at eight (not nine, as was listed in the Observer), and boasting such solid acts as The Groove, Catholics in Bad Standing, After Hours, Dead Horse, and many more. It is also a rare opportunity to hear original material, and some good honest "jamming."

It is my sincere hope that next year's Nazz will be covered. There are many readers, I'm sure, who have never even heard of it before this letter. Without any reporting, everyone loses out on the fun-- the bands, the audience members, and the community of music lovers who are unaware of this great opportunity. Look for it next year. It's a lot of fun!

CAVANAUGH HALL PRESENTS: 'DON'T DRINK THE WATER'

KERRY COSTELLO
accent writer

Cavanaugh Hall's production of "Don't Drink the Water" opens tonight in the library auditorium.

The play, based on Woody Allen's "Don't Drink the Water," takes place in an eastern European embassy. The ambassador departs on a trip and leaves his son in charge of the embassy. Meanwhile, an American couple and their daughter are chased to the embassy, where the ambassador's son continually makes their situation worse.

According to Steve Danek who is in charge of public relations for the play, there will be no admission charge, but donations will be accepted in the name of Andy Sowder, Cavanaugh Hall's president in 1979, who died of spinal meningitis before he graduated.

When Sowder died in 1979, Cavanaugh established a scholarship fund in his name. The past seven plays have been performed in order to raise money for the scholarship, which is awarded to a Cavanaugh resident, usually from Texas where Sowder's family lives.

Directing "Don't Drink the Water" is Maggie McDonald who performed in last year's Cavanaugh production of "The Best Man."

The role of Axel McGee, the ambassador's son, will be played by freshman Nate Fitzgerald. Senior Martin Schubert is cast as the American father, Walter Hollander, with Roseanne DeBenedetto playing his wife, Marian, and sophomore Kerrie Anna Shannon as their daughter Susan.

"Don't Drink the Water" will run through April 1.

XTC's bittersweet new album 'Oranges and Lemons'

JOHN LANE
accent writer

XTC has recently released a new album, entitled Oranges & Lemons. Although it is a good, solid effort by the veteran English pop stars, Oranges & Lemons is somewhat disappointing because it is not quite as good as past albums.

XTC is a rather unusual and very eclectic group that writes about a variety of subjects and applies them to many different sounds. The result is usually successful, as in the case of Oranges & Lemons.

In this album, the members write about such topics as coups by the military, insecurity and apathy, and cynicism. However, the main theme of this album is love, not just between a man and a woman, but also between a family and between enemies. XTC seems to hold the view that unconditional love is the solution to the world's problems.

The real accomplishment of this album is the band's mixing of the lyrics with the music. It uses all sorts of 'Never been near a university. Never took a paper or learned a degree. And some of your friends think that's stupid of me. But it's nothing that I care about.'

'The Mayor of Simpleton'
-XTC

sounds and instruments in a variety of ways which are reminiscent of its English Settlement days.

Oranges & Lemons contains 15 songs, spanning nearly 60 minutes. "The Mayor of Simpleton," "One of the Millions," "Hold Me My Daddy," and "Merely a Man" are terrific, typical XTC pop songs. "King For a Day," "The Loving," and "Miniature Sun" are also good songs, and are slower, a bit more relaxing, tunes.

There are also quite a few bizarre songs. "Across This Anthep" and "The Garden of Earthly Delights" are hard-rock songs that involve several instruments. "Here Comes President Kill Again," "Cynical Days," and "Chalkhills and Children" are mellow, somewhat depressing songs. Finally, "Poor Skeleton Steps Out," "Scarecrow People," and "Pink Thing" are a bit mysterious.

Oranges & Lemons fails in a couple of areas. First of all, in terms of pure listening enjoyment, it does not match some of XTC's past albums, such as Skylarking and Black Sea. Oranges & Lemons does not flow as well as these albums. Secondly, the overuse of background vocals and repeated lyrics is annoying. Many of the songs would have been better if background vocals had been reduced or even left out altogether.

Nevertheless, Oranges & Lemons is a fine, interesting album and a solid effort by XTC.

St. John's takes record fifth NIT championship

Associated Press

NEW YORK -- Jayson Williams made 11 of his first 12 shots and had 28 points and a career-high 18 rebounds Wednesday night, leading St. John's to a record fifth National Invitation Tournament title, 73-65 over St. Louis.

Williams, named most valuable player of the tournament, was scoreless in the first 10 minutes, but after that he continually got free inside against the smaller Billikens, who won their only NIT title in 1948.

St. John's, 20-13, which shared the record of four NIT titles with Bradley, was making its 25th tournament appearance after a disappointing season in which the Redmen finished eighth in the nine-team Big East Conference.

St. Louis, 27-10, got 21 points from Roland Gray but had foul problems at both ends of the court. The Billikens missed 12 of their first 17 free throws, and Monroe Douglass, who scored 25 points in a semifinal victory over Michigan State, missed most of the game with foul trouble and finished with two points.

Jason Buchanan, one of three freshmen in the St. John's starting lineup, scored a career-high 21 points.

With St. John's leading 44-39 with 13:18 left, Williams scored seven of the next 12 points as the Redmen extended the margin to 56-45. The Billikens got no closer than five the rest of the way, the last time at 70-65 with 33 seconds to go after a 3-point goal and free throw by Jeff Luechtefeld.

Two 3-point goals by Luechtefeld gave St. Louis a 23-19 edge with 6:34 left in the first half, but the Billikens scored only one point in the next 5:41 as St. John's took a 32-25 lead.

A 3-pointer by Gray got the Billikens within four with 52 seconds to go, but Williams, who scored all 12 of his first-half points in the final 9:23, got inside with a second remaining, giving the Redmen a 34-28 advantage at halftime.

the team with 25 RBI in 18 games, and he is 12-for-22 with 15 RBI in his last six games.

Catcher Ed Lund also enjoyed a successful day at the plate, raising his average to .300 by collecting three hits in four at-bats and scoring two runs.

"I said before the season that Sass and Lund have to play," said Murphy, "because we know what we're going to get out of Pesavento and (Dan) Peltier. (Mike) Moshier is steady, and we know our pitching staff is not real talented but steady. We need to get those guys to perform, and so far they have."

Moshier and Pat Eilers both had solid days at the plate, with Moshier going 2-for-4 with one RBI and Eilers going 1-for-2 (a double), walking twice and knocking in a run.

With the Irish up 4-1 in the seventh inning, Notre Dame scored three runs on four hits. Pesavento hit a two-out double to left, and Sass singled him home.

Lund then singled to left, sending Sass to third, and he took second on the throw. Junior Dan Peltier then ripped a single to right, scoring Lund and Sass.

Peltier now has 19 RBI on the season and 127 in his career. He needs only two more runs batted in to become Notre Dame's all-time leader. Tim Hutson, a 1988 grad, currently holds the team record with 128 RBI.

Shaffer resigns as MCC Commissioner

Special to The Observer

INDIANAPOLIS -- James W. Shaffer, the Midwestern Collegiate Conference's first full-time commissioner, announced his resignation today to accept a position as vice president of public affairs at Butler University.

"Jim Shaffer brings strong credentials in public relations, and has a proven record in management," said Dr. Geoffrey Bannister, Butler University president. "We've seen the results of Jim's energy and imagination in the MCC and we know he will play an important role in further strengthening the university's joint commitment to academic and athletic development."

As vice president of public affairs Shaffer will report directly to President Bannister and have primary responsibility for all public relations and public affairs matters concerning the university. This will include all press and media relations, government relations and responsibility for internal communications with faculty members, students, alumni and Trustees.

Shaffer also will have oversight of the university's athletics and publications departments.

"Our reaction to Jim's resignation is one of mixed emotions," said MCC President Jeffrey H. Fogelson, Xavier University director of athletics. "Selfishly, we are very sorry that he is departing. He has provided outstanding leadership to the MCC."

"The growth of the conference culminated this year with our most successful tournament ever, two teams in the NCAA Tournament and Saint Louis competing for the NIT Championship," Fogelson continued.

Shaffer assumed his position as MCC commissioner in September, 1984. During his tenure, the conference expanded to nine members with the addition in the past two years of the University of Dayton, Marquette University and the University of Notre Dame. The MCC has broadened its base as a Division I conference by adding women's athletics, and has increased its sports sponsorship to 15.

"This is an outstanding opportunity for my family and career," Shaffer said. "It has been a privilege to serve the MCC as its first full-time commissioner. The conference has only positive growth ahead of itself. I have enjoyed working with first-class people at each of the MCC institutions and have appreciated their support of the conference staff."

Jose will get the chance to become Oakland's fourth straight Rookie of the Year. Jose hit .317 with 12 homers and 83 RBIs in 133 games at Tacoma last year.

Other big guns back for Oakland are Mark McGwire (.260, 32, 99), All-Star MVP catcher Terry Steinbach, outfielder Dave Henderson, 1988 Rookie of the Year shortstop Walt Weiss and veteran third baseman Carney Lansford. Dave Stewart (21-12 last year) leads the pitching staff, while Dennis Eckersley is coming off a 45-save season in the bullpen.

Those chasing the A's have their work cut out for them. The Kansas City Royals are the team of the 80s in the West and could be due to challenge again.

George Brett and Frank White are still the cornerstones of the Royals. At 35, Brett hit .306 with 24 homers and 103 runs batted in. In order to contend, Kansas City needs a strong performance from Bo Jackson and a comeback from pitching ace Bret Saberhagen.

The Minnesota Twins won more games last year than when they won the World Series in 1987, but that was still not good enough to beat the A's. Frank Viola, Gary Gaetti and Kirby Puckett have been three of the most consistent performers in baseball during the last few years.

Down in Texas, the Rangers have a new look, having shocked baseball with a series of trades at the winter meetings. They acquired two .300 hitters in first baseman Rafael Palmeiro and second baseman Julio Franco. That should help their scoring woes, as they scored just 4.0 runs per game in '88.

Texas hopes two old veterans still have some life in them. The Rangers signed fireballer Nolan Ryan and designated hitter Buddy Bell to contracts during the off-season.

The California Angels are getting the most attention of any team this spring because of one-armed rookie pitcher Jim Abbott. The Angels need comeback years from Mike Witt and Wally Joyner to mount any challenge.

At the bottom of the division are the Chicago White Sox and the Seattle Mariners. Both teams are gearing for the future with the Mariners boasting rookie hopeful and John Kruk, and second baseman Roberto Alomar.

Ken Griffey, Jr.

Projected order of finish: Oakland, Kansas City, Minnesota, Texas, California, Seattle and Chicago.

NL West

The Padres quite possibly have the two finest catchers in the majors in Benito Santiago and Sandy Alomar, Jr. Santiago is unparalleled in throwing out baserunners, and Alomar can be used as trade bait in San Diego's quest to find a quality third baseman.

If the Padres can avoid their propensity for slow starts, they should be able to hold off strong challenges from Cincinnati and Los Angeles to take the pennant.

Cincinnati has finished second the last four years in a row. Better make that five.

Strong pitching and offensive firepower will propel the Reds to the brink of first place, but manager Pete Rose's gambling problems and the ever-intrusive personality of owner Marge Schott will hold them back.

Outfielders Eric Davis and Kal Daniels are determined to shed the label of "potential superstar" this season, and John Franco will prove beyond a doubt that he is the best left-handed reliever in the National League.

How far Los Angeles goes in its quest to repeat as World Series champions will depend in large part on Gibson's right knee. If he is healthy, the Dodgers are capable of pulling off inspirational victories like those in last year's World Series.

If he is not, the focus will fall on two grizzled veterans: first baseman Eddie Murray and second baseman Willie Randolph (who will replace the departed Steve Sax).

Hershiser once again will win 20 games for the Dodgers, and catcher Mike Scioscia will continue his steady play behind the plate, but a repeat of last season's stunning playoff drive is improbable.

San Francisco also could challenge San Diego, Cincinnati and Los Angeles for the pennant, but the Giants might have peaked too early when they won the division title in 1987.

First baseman Will Clark and centerfielder Brett Butler key what's left of the Giant offense.

Houston again boasts one of the finest pitching staffs in the majors, but the Astros did nothing in the offseason to improve their offense.

Atlanta finds itself in the midst of yet another rebuilding year, but the Braves will require major renovations in 1989 if they are to escape the NL West cellar.

team. Sometimes I think she worries too much. But she takes her responsibilities very seriously, both as a fencer and a captain. Janice is the definition of dedication."

It has been exactly that dedication which has allowed Hynes to lead the women's team back into the national spotlight. After winning the NCAA championship two years ago, the Irish finished second last year to Wayne State.

But this year they have rebounded with unexpected suddenness. As captain, Hynes has set the example for a young group of fencers whose top four spots consist of two seniors, a sophomore and a freshman. Yet the squad soundly defeated the defending national champions from WSU in both dual meets this season.

"I feel that our chances are as good as anyone," said Hynes. "We have a good, solid team this year and have already beat some top contenders. I know a lot of people on some of the other teams, but I can only think of one or two top people while we have three solid fencers."

In the past two weeks, the Irish women have spent time training with some very elite fencers. Former national champion and Irish captain Molly Sullivan helped prepare the women's squad. In addition, All American Caitlin Bilodeaux, featured in a Sports Illustrated article when she won the gold medal while at Columbia, worked out with the women's team during their NCAA preparations.

"It has been a long two weeks, but I don't think that it hurt us," said Hynes. "I think that we're finally unified. It all started when we beat Wayne State. Since then, we've been performing as a team."

This year will be Hynes' last chance to lead the Irish to the championship. Nothing would be sweeter than to see four long years of hard work and determination pay off with a national title.

"It's definitely a nice way to finish," said Hynes. "And at this point, I'm planning on it being that way."

didn't execute that well, so that was a good strategy," Petoso said.

Nonetheless, it looked as if the Falcons might fly away from the Irish with 10:04 remaining in the third quarter. Air Force broke loose from a 3-3 halftime score to tally two goals in 30 seconds and grab momentum.

But the Irish answered a minute later in a man-up situation on freshman Chris Nelson's goal. They then tied the score on a transition goal with 2:55 left in the period.

On that play, freshman Mike Sullivan sprinted down the field and passed to an open Olmstead on the left of the crease. Olmstead then whipped the ball across the crease to junior Brian McHugh, who finished off the picture-perfect fast break goal by beating Air Force goalie Michael Parent.

But Air Force scored with :40 left in the third quarter to take a 6-5 lead and set-up the big Irish finish.

Notre Dame came out fast in the final quarter, scoring three consecutive goals to earn a 8-6 advantage.

Olmstead chipped in the third goal of that run with 8:04 remaining when he fooled a Falcon defender by turning inside towards the goal.

"(Irish assistant coach) Gerry Byrne was noticing how they were overplaying my right hand and he said I should be able to roll inside -- and it worked," Olmstead explained.

But Air Force wouldn't go away. Falcons' leading scorer John Dimento tallied his fourth goal of the game on an outside bounce shot with 3:42 remaining, and it was then that the Irish had to keep their composure.

Olmstead led the late charge by tallying two more goals to put the game out of reach. The first of those goals came off the faceoff following an Air Force score which had cut the lead to 8-7.

On that play, Quigley scooped up the successful John Capano faceoff and raced downfield, drawing away Olmstead's defender before assisting the fourth all-time Irish scorer for the ninth Irish score.

other year. They're in the World Series one year and in the second division the next season.

Well, if things hold true to form, the Redbirds will return to the Series in '89. The problem is that in those other World Series years, the Cards had a legitimate power hitter in Jack Clark and a solid pitching staff.

An aging Pedro Guerrero is no Jack Clark. In the starting rotation, Danny Cox is sidelined for the season with an elbow injury. Nonetheless, Joe Magrane (last year's earned run average leader) should emerge as a star this season, and no Whitey Herzog team could have two bad years in a row.

If the Cards do return to form, New Yorkers had better look out. As powerful as the Mets are, they still have not proved they can win a close divisional race.

The Pittsburgh Pirates showed last year that they are a reputable ballclub, but they also gave every indication that they choke in big games.

Every time the Bucs came close to the Mets, they would lose a series to New York and fall back with the rest of the pack.

Unless they correct that, the Pirates will finish behind the Mets and a rejuvenated Cardinal team.

No matter where you pick the Montreal Expos, you always underestimate them. The biggest underachievers of the late '70s and early '80s have become major overachievers.

But with Pascual Perez back in a drug rehabilitation clinic, it's hard to picture big things coming from Montreal this season. And even if Tim Lincecum returns to form, can you really imagine Rex Hudler and Otis

Nixon playing as well as they did in '88?

Is the Chicago Cubs' decision to release Rich Gossage and Al Nipper a sign that they have decided these pitchers are stiff or that they finally have realized their 1986 trades with San Diego and Boston were big mistakes?

Either way, the Cubs made the right decision. Unfortunately, you can't take back those trades, and Lee Smith still pitches for Boston.

In 1950, the Philadelphia Phillies called themselves the "Whiz Kids" as they won the National League pennant. For the last few years, the Phils have played like the "Diz Kids."

Things shouldn't be too different in Philly this summer.

Catcher B.J. Surhoff will recover from his sophomore slump, and won't be back at third base unless perennial All-Star and perennial DL member Paul Molitor gets hurt again and moves to DH. Despite injuries, Molitor hit .312 last season, scoring 190 runs, driving in 60 and stealing 41 bases.

Not joining him on the infield is Robin Yount, who will again play outfield for the Brewers. Yount hit .306 with 91 RBIs in 1988. The veterans are joined by a cast of young, talented players and a little-known manager who led Milwaukee to a surprising third-place finish last season.

The Boston Red Sox are still smirking at the Chicago Cubs over the Lee Smith-for-Al Nipper-and-Calvin Schiraldi deal last year. The Cubs just released Nipper, and Smith is going to save 40 games and lead the Red Sox into a tight race with the Brewers for the AL East crown.

Manager (The Other) Joe Morgan came in and put the once-floundering Sox into the American League Championship Series. Morgan won't have the services of lefthander Bruce Hurst, who signed on with the Padres, but the pitching is still on par with the rest of the division.

The Margo Adams / Wade Boggs thing won't affect the Red Sox much, especially if Boggs gets traded, which is what General Manager Lou Gorman wants. But remember, Gorman has gotten the best of his recent trades.

The Toronto Blue Jays will come close once again, but the title will stay in the states. The Jays are on the way out, and haven't done much to replace the worn spots in the lineup, and a team can put up with a whiner like George Bell for only so long.

The once awesome outfield is getting more and more mediocre, but the infield is getting better, especially first baseman Fred McGriff, who was second in the league with 34 home runs last year.

Once again this year, the Yankees will pretend to be as good as they think they are, and once again, they will fail to prove it on the field.

Detroit is okay. They have a terrific manager in Sparky Anderson, but he doesn't have the talent this year to battle with the Brewers, Sox and Blue Jays.

Cleveland and Baltimore probably won't be as bad as last year, but that's not saying much. It's a battle for the bottom for these two.

Edwards leaving college early to pursue professional career

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.-- With his selection as Big Ten Conference player of the year and a second-team All-American, Jay Edwards felt he "had nothing more to accomplish" at Indiana, assistant athletic director Steve Downing said Wednesday.

The 6-foot-4 sophomore, who averaged 20 points a game and led the Hoosiers to the Big Ten title, announced his intention to pass up his final two years of college eligibility and make himself available in the June 27 NBA draft, Downing said.

In a statement released by the Indiana sports information office, Knight said: "I wish Jay the very best and hope his decision works out well for him."

The only other underclassman to leave early to play professional basketball during Knight's 18 years as coach was Isiah Thomas, who departed eight years ago after leading the Hoosiers to the second of their three NCAA championships under Knight.

Edwards led Marion High School to three straight state tourney titles from 1985-87 and shared the Indiana Mr. Basketball award with Hoosier teammate Lyndon Jones.

Bill Green, who coached Edwards and Jones at Marion and McGinnis at Indianapolis Washington 20 years ago, said Wednesday after learning of Edwards' decision: "Jay's not physically ready to go to the NBA. Talent-wise, he has the talent. It's going to be a learning situation for Jay in the next few years."

Comparing the 6-foot-8 McGinnis, who weighed 235 pounds when he left Indiana, with the 185-pound Edwards, Green said, "George had the body to go to the NBA when he left IU, but Jay's just not that developed."

Green left Marion after the 1987 season and currently is coach at the University of Indianapolis.

Edwards, who also was the Big Ten freshman of the year in 1988, had a two-year career average of about 18 points a game.

"Jay told me today he is going to the NBA and apply for hardship," Downing said in a prepared statement. "He felt he had nothing more to accomplish at Indiana. He said with his player of the year honor in the Big Ten, he would never be any hotter (as an NBA prospect) than he is now."

Edwards, who said on Tuesday he expected to make a decision within a week, declined further comment. He has had academic problems at Indiana and underwent a drug rehabilitation program last fall.

He was suspended for five games in December 1987 because of grades, and his athletic scholarship was revoked last summer because of more academic problems and unpaid library fines.

In September, after testing positive for an undisclosed drug, Edwards was suspended from the team. Knight never officially announced his reinstatement, although Edwards was back with the team when practice began in October.

Indiana's 6-4 sophomore standout Jay Edwards, who averaged 20 points per game this season to lead the Hoosiers to the Big Ten title, said he "had nothing more to accomplish" at IU and has decided to enter the upcoming NBA draft.

Olympian, and six-time Ottawa provincial Junior champion.

Few items are left on the awards list of things to do for Nowosielski. Except a national championship or a gold medal.

"Leszek is a great fencer," said Irish head coach Michael DeCicco. "He works both on a personal level when trying to win circuit events and individual competitions and on a team level when he travels with Notre Dame. Leszek continues to amaze me by his never ending improvement as a fencer."

After completing his second undefeated season, Nowosielski became the number one seed out of the Midwest Region.

"As far as I'm concerned, he's the number one sabre seed for the whole tournament," said DeCicco. "A lot of people are looking for him to take the gold medal this year."

However, implicit in all of Nowosielski's international and circuit competitions are commitment and discipline. But during the last two weeks while the Irish had at their disposal the likes of former Irish All Americans Mike Sullivan and Tim Glass, Nowosielski found himself elsewhere and unable to benefit from a workout with the fencing alumnae.

"Experience counts for a lot in fencing," said Nowosielski. "But college is still quite different from the international level. On a given day, anything can happen. I think that the outside help recently has helped the team quite a bit."

Despite this, his training was conducted at an equal or higher level of intensity at the World Cup tournament in New York City, in addition to time off over Easter.

"For me, the training has not been that difficult," said Nowosielski. "I feel ready. Usually, I find that taking a weekend off clears my mind and makes me want to fence."

Thus, the biggest obstacle that Nowosielski has had to face has been the allotment of his time between fencing, classes and his other competitions which are held year round. For such a young fencer, the organization of these priorities is critical.

"While I've really improved this year, it's been a matter of adjusting and coordinating training and classes. Yves Auriol has really been helpful in doing this and allowing me to also compete internationally."

With the national spotlight about to shine down upon him, it would be understandable that the young Canadian should feel the heat. But on the contrary, he says that he has not felt much pressure at all.

"I know people expect me to win, but they've pretty much left me to myself," stated Nowosielski. "I'm asked quite a bit about my chances. I'm trying to keep it all played down."

While the Irish are certainly looking to Nowosielski to carry the weight and set the tone as they attempt to return to championship form, he will probably not be slighted by the additional pressure. Instead, he will most likely continue winning until another banner is hung in the JACC.

Always a national power, Irish head for NAAs

By CHRIS FILLIO

The Irish men's and women's fencing teams will close out their respective seasons as they travel to Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., for the NCAA Fencing Championships, to be held from March 30 to April 4.

This will mark the fifth year in a row for which the men's squads have qualified a maximum field of six fencers, two in each weapon. In his twenty-fifth season as head coach, Michael DeCicco has compiled a won-lost record of 547-41, including a perfect 21-0 mark this year.

It could be the year that the Irish men put it all together after finishing second last year. They boast experience, talent and a team which has been eagerly anticipating this weekend.

"I am extremely pleased with the caliber of fencers who make up the team for this year's NCAA's," said DeCicco. "We should be definite contenders at Northwestern."

The sabre team will be represented by the sophomore duo of Leszek Nowosielski and David Kirby. Nowosielski has a vast wealth of experience on the international level, and finished his second regular season undefeated at 24-0, upping his career record to 48-0. Kirby as well had an outstanding season at 17-1, bringing his two-year total to 42-2. This will be Kirby's first trip to the NCAA's, and Nowosielski's second.

"David has performed up to my highest expectations this season," said DeCicco. "He has developed into a major force on the sabre squad and should prove to be a formidable asset to our team at the NCAA's. But I see Leszek as the definite favorite entering this year's competition. He is expected to win top honors at the tournament."

The newest force on the Irish appeared this season as Derek Holeman. The junior foilist out of Beaverton, Ore., will make his first showing at the tournament after a solid 25-1 record.

"Derek has been primed all season for this competition," said DeCicco. "He has worked extremely hard and should put on quite a show."

Holeman will be joined by senior three time All-American Yehuda Kovacs (31-1). At last year's matches, Kovacs placed fourth overall.

"Yehuda has been and continues to be a key element of this team," stated DeCicco. "I am hoping that this year not only will he repeat as an All-American but take first place in the overall competition. I believe he has the talent to compete with the best that the other schools have to offer."

In the epee competition, the Irish will send two seniors in team captain Ted Fay (33-2) and Todd Griffie (39-8). Last year, Fay placed 18th overall while Griffie was the silver medalist. DeCicco noted that the key to an Irish championship could lie in the performance of the epee squad.

"Ted is improving with each year," said DeCicco. "I believe that if he wants it badly enough, he will be a highly competitive force at the NCAA's this year. Todd Griffie could be the catalyst for this year's team. If he performs like he came around at last year's NCAA's, we could win the whole thing."

Head women's coach Yves Auriol has already garnered a national championship and two second place finishes in his first three years. This year's team is in excellent position to once again make a run at the title.

Leading the way for the women will be senior captain Janice Hynes (30-6). After a year's absence, Hynes has returned to post impressive victories including wins over defending national champions Wayne State. Competing with Hynes will be seniors Kristin Kralicek (27-6) and Brenda Leiser (33-10), both members of the 1987 national championship squad. Freshman Heidi Piper (30-5) and sophomore Lynn Kadri (38-8) will add fresh talent to an already veteran team.

"We could have had a better season," said Auriol despite a regular season record of 18-1 with but one loss at the hands of Ohio State. "But we are going to the NCAA's with a very strong team. People will not be surprised if we win the title or end up in the top three."

Most indications are that the men's team from Columbia have the edge to emerge victorious once again and defend their title. Other contenders include the Irish, Penn, and Penn State. However, a recent dispute between Penn sabremen Chris Owen and his head coach has led Owen to withdraw, and will severely affect that team's chances.

For the women's foil competition, both Columbia-Barnard and the Irish are heavy favorites. Last year's winners, Wayne State, should also make a run at the title along with Penn.

Hynes back in form

Junior captain sets sight on medal

By CHRIS FILLIO
Sports Writer

It has been over a year since Janice Hynes has competed in an NCAA competition of this caliber. Yet for all that time away from the sport, she has emerged in prime form.

"That was the year that I got everything together," said Hynes. "Right now I'd have to say that I'm at the top of my game. This is the best I've ever felt about fencing."

Head women's coach Yves Auriol has already guided the Irish to a 77-3 record and one National Championship in his first four seasons at Notre Dame. Right now, he likes the women's chances with Hynes at the forefront.

"Janice has a realistic chance to win a medal this year," said Auriol. "She's more mature after taking a year off from competition. Without a doubt she's strong and has the proper material to be a champion, if she fences up to her potential."

After sitting out during her junior year, the senior from Peabody, Mass., posted an excellent 30-6 season mark.

Despite playing second-fiddle to four time All-American Molly Sullivan, Hynes appears poised and ready to make some waves of her own. But now she finds herself in the driver's seat of a team which has been worrying many a coach from other championship contenders.

"I have great faith in Janice that she can lead the team," said Auriol. "She cares a great deal about everyone on the

Nowosielski leads with perfect record

In over fifty years of Irish fencing, no individual has matched the career start of sophomore Leszek Nowosielski. In light of the numerous championships, All Americans, and other honors which have been bestowed on the Irish, that's saying quite a bit.

Indeed, it's hard to believe that the Ottawa, Canada, native is only a sophomore when looking at his unprecedented 48-0 regular season record over the two years. But when considering Nowosielski's background, it is obvious to see that he is a breed apart.

Irish baseball gets 7-1 home triumph over Chicago State

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame baseball team opened its home season at Jake Kline Field to the tune of a 7-1 victory over Chicago State behind pitcher Brian Piotrowicz's 10 strikeouts and James Sass's four hits.

Despite the seven runs on 14 hits that the 13-5 Irish compiled, Head Coach Pat Murphy was not impressed with the offensive output in a game where the Irish scored only four runs in the first seven innings.

"It wasn't a real impressive victory by any stretch of the imagination," said the second-year coach, "but a lot of credit has to go to our pitching and defense."

Pitching and defense seem to be the mainstays for this Irish team that sometimes lacks offensive firepower. True to form, the pitching saved the Irish on Wednesday when junior Brian Piotrowicz went eight innings to improve his record to 3-2.

The North Liberty, Ind., native and South Bend Washington High graduate improved his team-leading earned run average to 1.91.

"I kept inside on my fastball and was going with a changeup and a slider," said Piotrowicz. "My slider was real sharp, and that was pretty much my strikeout pitch the whole day. The key was getting ahead in the count and keeping in the inside part of the plate."

Chicago State's hitters sometimes were forced to swing at bad pitches because of Piotrowicz's effective pitching selection.

"We thought we could have done a little better job, but that was a good pitcher on the mound," said Chicago State coach Kevin McCray. "He's pretty crafty, and I can't take anything away from him."

The Irish had an errorless game defensively, highlighted by senior shortstop Pat Pesavento's seven assists and two putouts.

Outfielder James Sass again provided Notre Dame's offensive punch. Sass went 4-for-5 on the day with three RBI. He signed home Mike Coss and Pat Pesavento in the third inning to put Notre Dame up 2-1, and the Irish led the rest of the way.

Sass picked up his third RBI of the day when he singled to center in the eighth inning, scoring Pesavento from second base.

In the process, Sass raised his season average to .390. The Louisville, Ky., resident leads

The Notre Dame baseball team raised its record to 13-5 Wednesday with a 7-1 victory over Chicago State at Jake Kline Field. Pitcher Brian Piotrowicz led the way with 10 strikeouts for the Irish.

ND lacrosse takes a step toward an NCAA bid

By PETE LaFLEUR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team took a big first step towards an NCAA tournament bid with a spirited 10-7 victory over Air Force at Edward W. Moose Krause Stadium Wednesday.

The Irish (3-3) hit the low point of their season when they lost their first three games. But they have bounced back with three straight wins, and yesterday's win against last season's NCAA western representative best symbolizes the quick turnaround the team has experienced. "I told our kids from the first week that the best thing this team has going for it is the character of the players," Irish head coach Kevin Corrigan said. "It says a lot to come from 0-3 to this (the Air Force win). They've worked hard and now it's starting to pay off for them."

The Irish outscored the Falcons 5-1 in the fourth quarter to secure the win. Air Force attempted only 13 shots in the game as Notre Dame combined a patient offense with consistent ball control and a harassing defense to frustrate the Falcons.

Victories against Division I western teams Michigan State and Ohio State are apparently all that stand between the Irish and their first trip to the NCAA tournament.

"What it comes down to is that (the win) doesn't mean we are automatically going to the NCAA's, but it is the first step," said senior tri-captain John Olmstead.

"I don't think we've ever accomplished the first step before and now we know we can get the bid. This win is by far one of the biggest games ever for the program."

Olmstead led the Irish with four goals and an assist while junior midfielder Mike Quigley added a goal and three assists. But according to Olmstead, the play of many role players was the key to the win.

"What won it for us was that so many people did so many things for us today," Olmstead said.

"John Titterton did a great job killing penalties and Scott Musa came up with good faceoffs when we needed them. But you really can't single out anyone because everyone contributed."

"That's the kind of contribution we need. We don't need one guy scoring eight goals, but we do need 10 guys out there playing well at all times," he continued.

Air Force coach Scott Petoso cited Irish intensity and pressure as the key differences between this year's squad and the Notre Dame team that Air Force beat 14-8 in Colorado Springs last year.

"The only thing that they did differently this year was put more pressure on us, and we

It's the division on the decline. The once dominant American League East is falling on hard times and the West is moving from the laughable half to the feared half.

But somebody's got to win it. Either that, or they'll be a three-way tie for the division title.

The Milwaukee Brewers will either win the division of fall apart trying. If the Brew Crew can stay off the disabled list, you'll be seeing them in the American League Championship Series. The Brewers are the only team in this division that is on the way up.

There's no way the New York Mets can defend their National League East title. The Mets just have too much controversy surrounding them and will not recover from last year's playoff collapse.

AL West

To repeat as a champion at any level is considered one of the most difficult tasks in professional sports. But don't tell that to the Oakland Athletics.

After winning the pennant last season, the A's are the team to beat in the American League West this spring. They have the nucleus back from a team that won the division by 13 games a year ago.

It may not be as easy for Oakland this season, as the West is challenging the East for American League supremacy. Many of the teams have revamped their lineups in hopes of catching the A's.

Oakland might have a head start, but the loss of Jose Canseco could take some of the punch out of the lineup.

NL West

Don't look now, but the National League West is quickly emerging from the shadow of its eastern nemesis, and looks to provide one of the closest pennant races in 1989.

It is no mere coincidence that last season's World Series champion (Los Angeles), Most Valuable Player (Kirk Gibson), Cy Young Award winner (Orel Hershisier) and batting champ (Tony Gwynn) all came from the West. Five of its six teams finished above .500 in 1988, and five of the top seven exhibition records this season belong to NL West teams.
