Sculptures returned to LeMans lawn

By JENNIFER HABRYCH
News Writer

The exhibit by Chicago sculptor Marcia Kaplan will return to the Le Mans lawn during supervised hours this week before the sculptures move to another college exhibit, according to Doug Tyler, chairman of the art department.

Students and visitors can view the sculptures Sept. 30 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Oct. 1 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. before the exhibit moves to Miami University in Oxford, Ohio.

After one of the four sculptures was damaged, the art department removed them from the lawn Aug. 28 at the request of the Saint Mary's administration.

Faculty will supervise the outdoor exhibit and answer visitors' questions about the sculptures, Tyler said.

Tyler said that the administration gave him three options last Wednesday:

- The sculptures could remain in the Moreau Galleries where they have been displayed since they were removed;

- They could be displayed in the protected courtyard of Moreau Hall, or;

- They could be displayed on the grounds for a brief time. The art department accepted the this option.

"We were working to come up with an answer that would be good for everybody," said Tyler. "Everything is square now."

Because of the damage to one of the sculptures and the issues that arose after their outdoor display, the art department will send a letter to the Saint Mary's community to inform them that the sculpture will be displayed outdoors, according to Tyler.

"We want to make sure there is no shock, and that everyone will get a chance to view the sculptures the way they were intended," said Tyler.

The Saint Mary's Faculty Assembly passed a resolution Sept. 17 requesting the return of the sculpture to the lawn with proper security.

Police raid Commons; 105 cited

By JULIE BARRETT
Assistant News Editor

The Stop Underage Drinking and Sales (S.U.D.S.) task force raided The Commons early Saturday morning, issuing 105 alcohol violation citations to the bar itself and to minors ranging from 20 to 14 years of age, according to Sgt. Jim Moon of S.U.D.S. Two people were taken into custody.

S.U.D.S. received information that minors were permitted to enter The Commons and purchase alcohol, according to Moon. About 1 a.m. Saturday morning, plainclothes officers of the Indiana Excise entered the bar and found reason to raid the bar.

Officers from the Indiana Excise, Indiana State police, St. Joseph County police, South Bend and Mishawaka police departments assisted in the raid.

Give Kids a Chance Coalition announces Childcare Awareness Week

By BECKY BARNES
Assistant News Editor

In an effort to bring attention to childcare needs at Notre Dame, the Give Kids a Chance Coalition has declared this week "Childcare Awareness Week."

The Graduate Student Union is sponsoring a campus forum on childcare Wednesday, September 30 at 7 p.m. in the Foster Room of LaFortune, and the second annual "Bring Your Child to Lunch Day" will be held Friday, October 2, at noon in the Oak Room.

The Give Kids a Chance

Coalition is comprised of graduate students, staff and faculty members who wish to demonstrate the need for a child care facility on the Notre Dame campus and for a parental leave clause in University employees' contracts, said Jennifer Glass, associate professor of sociology and coalition member.

Childcare is currently available to Notre Dame employees and graduate students at the Early Childhood Development Center (ECDC) at Saint Mary's College, but the waiting list for the center is "as long as the number of families served," Glass said. The center is also too expensive for some employees and students, she added.

Most other universities do have childcare facilities, according to coalition member Julia Douthwaite, assistant professor of French. The lack of childcare at Notre Dame is "scandalous seeing how this university stresses family values," she said.

According to Douthwaite, the Coalition would like to see a childcare facility on campus with a high standard of care and with a sliding fee scale to make it affordable to all employees and students.

The location is a key issue because the coalition would like a center with a "high degree of parental involvement," Glass said. The center should be accessible to parents so they can spend time with their children during the day, she continued.

Wednesday's forum will address issues concerning the need for childcare on campus, what constitutes quality child care and how to make this care affordable at Notre Dame.

Speaking will be Reynold Nesiba, a member of the Graduate Students' Union who presented a childcare needs assessment to the Board of Trustees, Associate Sociology Professor Richard Williams, who served on a subcommittee on child care, Jennifer Bracco, a teacher in the ECDC, Glass and possibly Sr. Kathleen Cannon, associate provost, who is currently accessing the childcare needs on campus for the administration.

Friday's lunch will be followed by games on the lawn in front of the Administration Building, and all students are invited to join.

Brain tumor takes life of SMC sophomore

By ELIZABETH QUINLAN
News Writer

Saint Mary's sophomore Danielle Zock died Wednesday morning in Pawating Hospital in Niles, Mich. due to complications resulting from a brain tumor.

Zock was diagnosed in July 1991 and began treatment in the Mayo Clinic. The treatment succeeded in slowing the growth of the tumor, and in February she was hopeful for the future and looking forward to returning to Saint Mary's this semester, according to her friend Christine Juras.

In July, she became too weak to undergo radiation therapy any longer and slipped into a coma.

Zock has left an indelible impression in the minds and hearts of her friends. "I will miss and think of her for the rest of my life," said Emily Garvey, a friend. She added that the loss was more difficult because it was so unexpected.

Effie Vandervoort described her as a generous friend who was always ready to listen. "She made herself available to others despite her own grief or pain, in the last year especially," said Vandervoort. "She's going to be in my heart for the rest of my life."

She is survived by her mother, Kathleen Zock. A memorial service will be held early this week, and memorial contributions can be made to the Southold Dancenter Scholarship, according to Brett McLaughlin of public relations at Saint Mary's.

Professor says older workers will bring changes, challenges to future workforce

By LORI LINDLEY
News Writer

With the rapidly increasing number of people over the age of fifty in the United States comes a changing role of older workers and new challenges for employers, said Ken Milani of the accounting department.

"People are living longer for a variety of reasons, including better nutrition, better personal care and better health care," Milani said during a Friday Forum at the Center for Social Concerns Friday.

In the past, employees have been expected and sometimes required to retire at a certain age, he said. Now, people stay healthy longer and many have no desire to retire.

"It seems like a tremendous waste of a natural resource to me," Milani said, explaining that older workers are still productive and useful to a company.

Ken Milani

Urging people to retire to make room for the next generation of executives may not be the best thing to do, since some older clients may not relate to "the 38-year-old Top Gun young partner," Milani added.

Still, older employees have different needs. "One of the things that we may have to do is to change the work place in response to an aging employee group," Milani said.

This includes reducing the number of working hours and making buildings more accessible to older people through devices such as automatic doors.

"Flexible hours and job-sharing, which are used now mainly for working moms, could also become a possibility now for somebody in their 60's," Milani said.

When a person is ready to retire, the change from working full-time to not at all can be very traumatic. "It's like shock therapy," Milani said.

To combat this problem, Milani continued, companies are now trying "retirement rehearsal" programs that allow an employee to reduce hours gradually or leave for several months before deciding to retire permanently.

Milani said one problem in eliminating mandatory retirement is that often employees may want to remain after they are no longer productive.

INSIDE COLUMN

Expand your consciousness: study overseas

We, as college students, have many opportunities to develop our consciousness of the world, as well as any other forms of consciousness we may experience along the way—semi-consciousness, altered consciousness, unconsciousness, etc.

Mark Krejci
Business Copy Editor

We are able to make choices within this sphere of opportunities which begin to shape our mind and personality. I made a choice freshman year that affected me in this way; to apply for the ND International Study program in Toledo, Spain.

The obvious benefits of international study are the incredible opportunities available to you, which are as follows:

1) A Travel Adventure: Imagine yourself backpacking through Europe by train, visiting castles, cathedrals and museums in the most historically-famous cities and sites of Europe.

Picture yourself spending Christmas at a ski chalet in a picturesque little mountain village in the Austrian Alps.

Think about celebrating New Year's Eve with people from all over Europe in Prague, Czechoslovakia (or the location of your choice).

Imagine yourself laying on the beaches of the Spanish Costa del Sol for Spring Break.

Although this is just a brief summary of my personal traveling adventure, it does not even touch the other incredible possibilities of the ND International Study Programs in Chile, Mexico, Japan, Jerusalem and Australia.

2) Mastering another language: Almost without need of comment, the benefits of being bilingual are virtually limitless.

However, these benefits just scratch the surface of what an international study experience entails.

Your international study experience broadens your perspective of the world. There's something satisfying and truly educational about getting to know the thoughts and opinions of persons from other countries. It can change the way you think.

The experience teaches you to be independent. It allows you to be the mature, young adult you are, capable of making your own decisions. It allows for growth.

The experience challenges you. You will have to respond to unique circumstances.

How do you convince a pesky Moroccan you don't need his help as a tour guide? Answer: You don't. If you wish to keep your sanity, you let him take you to see things. And if possible, settle on a price beforehand. Just don't go into carpet shops (unless you're looking to buy and have a couple of hours to be entertained).

Your experience may not only cause you to appreciate the cultures of others, but if you are willing, you will also form friendships with people from all over the world.

And very importantly, you will always share a special bond with the Notre Dame and other students with whom you share the experience.

International study is not for everyone. However, very few regret it.

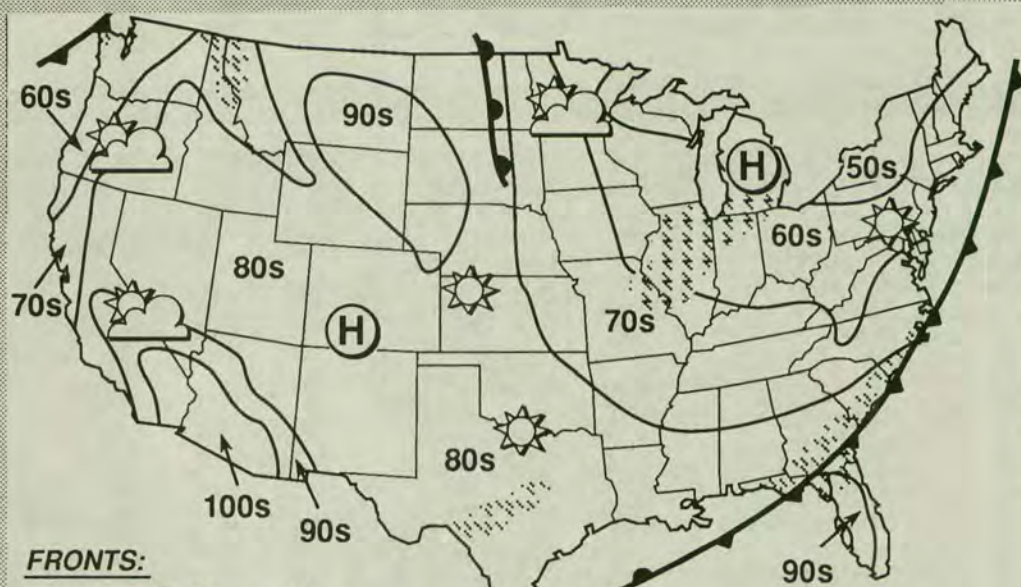

So consider how an international study experience could develop your consciousness of the world and life.

And don't worry, Notre Dame doesn't change too much while your gone. But you will.

BYU has strict dress code

■ PROVO, Utah— It all started with a seemingly harmless concession to modern fashion two years ago, when straight-laced Brigham Young University decided to allow knee-length shorts. Now it's possible to catch a glimpse of thigh on the Mormon campus and students are being warned the rising hemlines on shorts and skirts must subside. President Rex Lee said violators aren't expelled nor is their tuition raised if their hemlines aren't lowered. Encouragement comes from a poster showing young men and women in knee-length shorts standing around a red sports car. The caption says, "Don't sell yourself short." The license plate on the car reads: "2ZNEEZ." Students are encouraged to confront violators and, if necessary, turn them in to the Honor Code Council for counseling.

Company didn't market safe cigarette

■ GREENSBORO, N.C. — A tobacco company developed a cigarette in the late 1970s that posed far less risk of causing cancerous tumors in test animals, then refused to market it, a newspaper reported Sunday. Researchers for Liggett Group Inc., then called Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., isolated the major, cancer-causing ingredient in tobacco smoke and rendered it harmless, said chemist James Mold, the company's former director of research. Liggett's XA Project began in 1954 with the hope of reviving business. By the late 1970s, the Durham company had developed a safe cigarette, but it was never introduced, the News & Record of Greensboro reported.

Pandora's to give out free books

■ South Bend—In observance of National Banned Books Week, Pandora's, Literacy Central, will be offering free copies of banned or challenged books this week. The store, located on 808 Howard St., plans to give customers a free copy of Maya Angelou's "I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings," A.B. Guthrie's "The Big Sky," or John Steinbeck's "East of Eden" or "The Grapes of Wrath." These four books were banned or challenged in some U.S. schools in 1991 because of either vulgar language or explicit themes. Pandora's will also conduct its fourth annual Penny Book Program this week by allowing any student from kindergarten through high school to buy any used book for a penny.

Families of Japanese internees paid

HOLLY, Mich. (AP) — A half century after the United States interned Japanese-Americans in the wake of the Pearl Harbor attack, President Bush on Sunday acted to compensate the spouses and parents of voluntary internees for "one of the darkest incidents" in the country's history.

Congress apologized for the action in 1988 and passed a law that the individuals who were interned or relocated should be paid damages. Bush's approval of an amendment to that law expands redress to others in the amount of $20,000 each.

The amendment increases by $400 million the amount in the initial fund.

"No monetary payments can ever fully compensate loyal Japanese Americans for one of the darkest incidents in American constitutional history," the president said. "We must do everything possible to ensure that such a grave wrong is never repeated."

Bush signed the amendment into law at the end of a two-day whistlestop campaign by train through Ohio and Wisconsin.

Judy Smith, the deputy White House press secretary, said the purpose of the bill is to compensate people who are not of Japanese ancestry, but are spouses and parents of those who were interned voluntarily.

ND economics professor receives Sheedy Award

By JOHN CONNORTON
News Writer

Notre Dame Professor of Economics Thomas Swartz received the 1992 Reverend Charles C. Sheedy Award for excellence in teaching on Friday.

Swartz was presented with the award by Harold Attridge, dean of The College of Arts and Letters in coordination with the Sesquicentennial Convocation.

William Krier, associate professor of English and 1991 Sheedy Award Winner, introduced Swartz, praising him as a man who "does not settle for half measures" and "believes in solving problems rather than writing about them."

Swartz has been a member of the Notre Dame faculty since 1965 and specializes in urban economics.

In addition to receiving the award, Swartz gave a speech titled, "The Rewards of Teaching in a Research University."

Focusing on the delicate balance between teaching and research in a university, Swartz was rather critical of the administration's determination to transform Notre Dame into a national research university.

Specifically, Swartz questioned the discrepancy in the amount of money university researchers receive and the amount teachers receive.

"Are we paying these first-rate teachers the same as our first-rate researchers? How about our second-rate researchers?" Swartz asked.

Protestors in Russia fight police

MOSCOW (AP) — Authorities imposed a 60-day state of emergency Sunday in an autonomous region of Russia where thousands of demonstrators demanding the release of a detained Muslim militant clashed with police, news reports said.

The Interfax news service said at least 20 people were injured, two with bullets, in the confrontation in Nalchik, the capital of the southern autonomous republic of Kabardino-Balkaria, which borders Georgia.

Muslim militants from Kabardino-Balkaria and other regions of the Russian Caucasus, united in the so-called Confederation of Caucasian Mountain People, have been helping separatists from the Georgian region of Abkhazia.

The protesters in Nalchik demanded the resignation of Kabardino-Balkaria's president, Valery Kokov, and the release of the confederation's leader, Moussa Shanibov, Interfax said. Shanibov was detained earlier this month for sending militants to Abkhazia.

Kokov imposed the state of emergency early Sunday after protesters clashed with security guards on Saturday at Nalchik's television center, leaving two demonstrators and one guard injured, Interfax said.

Hours after the state of emergency was imposed, thousands of protesters again clashed with riot police and at least 20 were injured, the opposition Kabardian People's Congress said in a report carried by Interfax.

Interfax quoted Kabardian parliament deputy speaker Mukharbi Ulyashev as confirming some people were wounded and that the ongoing protest rally was of "unpeaceful nature."

The People's Congress said Kokov had agreed to fulfill the protesters' demands as soon as possible, including lifting the state of emergency and freeing Shanibov, Interfax reported.

Meanwhile, Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze made an unplanned stop in Moscow en route from New York to discuss the Abkhazian problem with Russian President Boris Yeltsin on Monday, Interfax and the ITAR-Tass news agencies said.

Georgia sent troops into Abkhazia, a rich Black Sea resort, in August to root out supporters of ousted President Zviad Gamsakhurdia.

anyone under 21 years of age from entering a tavern. Violation of this law is a Class B misdemeanor punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for up to 180 days.

Pasquale Anastasio, owner of The Commons, must appear in front of the Alcohol Beverage Commission in Indianapolis, according to Sgt. Firtl of the South Bend police department.

Depending on the tavern's past record, the Commission could decide to close down the tavern for a number of days and fine Anastasio for Friday's charges.

Bosnian president urges Muslim help; War rages

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnia's Muslim president on Sunday appealed to Muslims around the world to help his besieged people, while new fighting raged around the capital and in the north.

Serb media reported many casualties from a three-day battle in the northeast, and claimed Muslim fighters massacred hundreds of Serb civilians. Two Serb civilians were "impaled and barbecued" in Milici, 50 miles northeast of Sarajevo, the Belgrade-based Tanjug news agency said, quoting Serbian sources.

The massacre report could not be independently confirmed, as is most often the case with stories of atrocities that emerge almost daily from the nearly 7-month-old civil war.

Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic, in Pakistan on Sunday, pleaded with the Muslim world for help one day after peace envoys cited accounts of Serbs forcing Muslims from their homes in the north and attacking them as they fled.

"The Serbians have launched a prolonged, brutal and inhuman aggression against Muslims. The Bosnians have to be saved from annihilation. There is no time to waste," Izetbegovic said Sunday on his arrival in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital, for a two-day visit.

Izetbegovic — the third Bosnian official to visit Muslim Pakistan in a month — said he was seeking moral and financial backing, not weapons, from the conservative coalition government in Islamabad.

The United Nations has banned arms sales to all sides in the civil war.

But his special envoy told newspapers in Pakistan Saturday that Bosnians badly need arms to defend themselves, and getting weapons was a key priority for her government.

"We don't want arms to build up a big army. We only need them to enable our people to defend themselves against the atrocities of the Serbs," Sadzida Silajdzic was quoted as saying.

Diplomatic sources in Pakistan say a powerful religious party, Jammah-e-Islami, already has sent "volunteers" to help loyalist forces.

The war has claimed more than 10,000 lives since majority Muslims and Croats voted on Feb. 29 for independence from Yugoslavia over the objections of ethnic Serbs. Reports of torture and killing, and people expelled from their homes have emanated from both sides.

In the most recent fighting, the warring forces have sought to establish communication lines before the cold and snow set in.

Intense shelling rocked the center of Sarajevo Saturday at nightfall, and Bosnian territorial forces said Serbs used mortars and tank guns to blast suburbs to the south, northwest and west overnight. Sniper fire was reported hitting many locations in the New Town district.

No casualty figures were available.

Heavy Serb casualties were reported in fierce fighting in and around Milici. Belgrade television late Saturday showed dozens of mutilated bodies and said it was the aftermath of battles in the northeastern town.

IU Bloomington receives endowment for minorities

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Lilly Endowment has given $1.1 million for programs intended to increase African-American and Hispanic students and faculty on Indiana University's Bloomington campus, university officials announced.

The money will pay for projects to make the campus environment generally more supportive of minorities, for a mentoring program, financial aid, minority faculty research, staff and faculty diversity training and better responses to racial incidents.

"These programs are obviously much needed and come at a time that should greatly benefit the campus community," Bloomington Chancellor Kenneth Gros Louis said in a statement.

The grant was awarded before Bloomington students reported several racial incidents early this semester.

Philip Rutledge, special assistant to IU President Thomas Ehrlich, said the initiatives soon will expand to all eight IU campuses, and are intended to make IU's enrollment reflect the composition of the state's population.

"Retention's a key problem," Ehrlich said at the trustees business meeting Saturday. "This grant will help in a number of ways, we believe, enhance retention."

Based on an NCAA report of 1983 and 1984 freshman classes, the graduation rate six years after entering IU in Bloomington is 21 percent for black students compared to 56 percent for white students and 53 percent overall.

Black and Hispanic enrollment at IU in Bloomington this year is 5.6 percent, up from 5.4 percent last fall but not yet at the 7 percent goal for fall 1993.

Valparaiso workers vote for union

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — Valparaiso University's house-keeping, maintenance and cafeteria workers will vote Wednesday whether they want union representation and collective bargaining.

"We're not down on the university," said cafeteria worker and unionist Sue Miller, who earns $6.21 an hour after seven years on the job.

"But I know what unions have done for their members, and I want the security they have,"

she added.

VU President Alan Harre won't comment on the campaign, but the university has hired the Indianapolis law firm of Ice, Miller, Donadio & Ryan to wage a six-month anti-union campaign.

Fliers urge workers to weigh such VU benefits as "departmental parties" and "optional insurance" against potential Steelworkers union burdens such as union dues.

Workers say managers have been urging them in one-on-one sessions to vote against the union.

In response, pro-union workers say unionization is a weapon against bad working conditions and arbitrary promotions.

Union leaders say if they lose Wednesday's National Labor Relations Board election, they will try again.

"Organizing is very difficult under these times," said organizer Sandy Sutton. "But we're not leaving."

ELECTION '92

Clinton will keep playing offense till the end

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Bill Clinton, who sometimes seems to run the cautious campaign of a front-runner, vowed Sunday to "play offense all the way to the end" as he courted votes on the steak-fry and barbecue circuit of Middle America.

"We've gone into areas where Democrats don't normally win," Clinton said, landing in Iowa fresh off a 20-hour day of touring New England states that normally support Republican presidential candidates.

"I've got a good chance to win the Western Plains states," said Clinton, who was heading on to traditionally Republican South Dakota. "So I'm just going to keep running an offensive campaign. I'm going to play offense all the way to the end."

Clinton holds a comfortable lead in Iowa now and his visit to an annual steak fry held by Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin was mostly seen as a returned favor. Harkin, a former primary rival, quickly turned into a faithful supporter for Clinton.

South Dakota has three electoral votes, Iowa seven.

The Democratic nominee boasted about what he called an aggressive last two weeks — noting that he'd stormed through GOP territory, campaigned with Republican business leaders and the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. William Crowe, and flushed out his policies on technology and manufacturing.

Still, he conceded he'd blocked out chunks of time for rest and preparation for the as-yet presidential debates, hoping, he said, to "clear the circuits" and be mentally prepared for a go-round with President Bush.

Clinton is leading Bush in national polls but has been second-guessed lately for slowing down. Clinton sometimes now just holds one big campaign event a day — rather than the round-the-clock hunt for votes he relentlessly pursued during the primaries.

"About the concept of sitting on the lead, that's one way I can lose, that's why I decided to gin it up," Clinton told reporters.

Clinton said he planned a six-day-on, one-day-off strategy for the final five weeks.

The Arkansas governor was scheduled to take a day off Monday, but wouldn't rule out a last-minute trip to Dallas to court supporters of Ross Perot. He was dispatching eight aides to Dallas to make the case that he had the best plan for reviving the economy and bringing down the deficit.

District candidates spar over health care

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Rep. Frank McCloskey and his challenger in the Nov. 3 election, Richard Mourdock, both portrayed themselves as champions of health-care but split sharply over term limits and taxes in a televised debate Sunday.

The two also sharply attacked each other on the question of personal integrity in the last of three scheduled debates in their race for the seat in Congress from Indiana's 8th district.

McCloskey, a five-term Democrat, said a government-backed plan similar to Canada's would solve the problem of rising medical costs which have made health-care coverage unaffordable to many Americans.

He said Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton's "play or pay" proposal stood the best chance of being passed by Congress. Under the plan, employers who do not provide medical insurance for their workers would pay into a government fund to cover their health costs.

"Ultimately, I think we are going to have to have something closer to a comprehensive single-payer type plan, or doesn't necessarily have to be totally single-payer, but in concept ... the major part of the funding could come through the federal government through federal revenues and, ... let's face it, taxes," McCloskey said.

Magic says will vote for Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — Basketball star Earvin "Magic" Johnson has endorsed Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton and implored blacks to vote in November's election.

"We have to make sure that we understand that we can't take four more years of the Bush administration, that we have to now get on the Clinton bandwagon and ride him all the way into November," Johnson said Sunday on NBC's "Sunday Today."

Johnson's comments came after he resigned from the National Commission on AIDS on Friday and accused the administration of ignoring the panel's work.

Zulu leader breaks from negotiations

KWAMASHU, South Africa (AP) — The country's second-most powerful black leader broke off talks with the government Sunday, dampening hopes that South Africa's political crisis can be resolved soon.

Mangosuthu Buthelezi, head of the Zulu-dominated Inkatha Freedom Party, made the announcement a day after his rival, African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, met President de Klerk in a promising bid to restart black-white negotiations.

There is little chance of a breakthrough without Buthelezi's participation.

In what was seen as the most positive development in three months, Mandela and de Klerk met Saturday and said they made substantial progress toward restarting negotiations the ANC broke off in June over mounting political violence.

They announced one agreement to free 150 imprisoned activists Monday. They include Barend Strydom, a white supremacist who gunned down eight people, and Robert McBride, an ANC member who planted a car bomb that killed three people. About 300 more will be freed by mid-November.

They also called for restrictions on carrying weapons and for fences to be placed around migrant workers' hostels. The measures were seen as ANC victories over Inkatha because Inkatha supporters control many hostels and insist on carrying traditional weapons.

The ANC-Inkatha feud is considered the main cause of township warfare that has claimed 8,000 black lives in the past three years.

Buthelezi, in an angry speech at a Zulu rally, said he and his Zulu followers had not been consulted and therefore would not abide by agreements reached between de Klerk and Mandela.

"My view is that negotiation for the future constitution for South Africa cannot go ahead," Buthelezi told 10,000 cheering supporters in KwaMashu, a black township outside the eastern port city of Durban.

"I will withdraw ... from further discussions with the government until I have had the opportunity to consult widely on the way forward," he said.

Inkatha "will reject any attempt by Mr. de Klerk and Mr. Mandela to prohibit Zulus from carrying cultural weapons," Buthelezi said.

Iran starts talks on disputed Persian Gulf Islands

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Iranian and United Arab Emirates diplomats opened talks Sunday aimed at ending a dispute over three Persian Gulf islands that could wreck their newly warming relations.

Iran's claim to the islands has drawn U.S. concern. They lie in the mouth of the strategic Strait of Hormuz, the only gateway to the oil-rich gulf region.

No details were given on the closed-door discussions over control of Abu Musa, and the Greater and Lesser Tunbs. Seif Saeed Saed, director of Gulf affairs at the U.A.E. foreign ministry, and Mustafa Fomeni Haeri, a former Iranian ambassador, led the two delegations.

Iran seized the Tunbs, claimed by the Arab sheikdom of Ras al-Khaimah, in 1971. Iran and the federation of five emirates share control of Abu Musa.

But earlier this month Iran claimed sole sovereignty over Abu Musa, angering much of the Arab world.

Iran used the island to launch attacks on oil tankers and U.S. Navy escorts during its 1980-88 war with Iraq.

Last Wednesday, Acting U.S. Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger warned Iran against using force to settle the dispute after Kuwait raised concerns about Tehran's intent.

Tehran has accused the West of provoking the dispute, saying it tightened control over the island to foil an American plan to build a naval base there.

Pope holds first Mass since cancer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass before 50,000 of the faithful and beatified 17 Irish martyrs Sunday in his first appearance in St. Peter's Square since colon surgery in July.

The 72-year-old pontiff looked slightly bowed, and his voice weakened on occasion, but he seemed reasonably strong and in good health during the two-hour service.

In his homily honoring the Irish clerics and lay people, the pope referred to the strife involving Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland.

"God sustained them in their trials," he said of the martyrs, who died during England's attempts in the 16th and 17th centuries to impose the Anglican Church on Ireland.

"May He also sustain those who work for reconciliation and peace in Ireland today," said the pontiff.

Also beatified were two Spanish nuns and a priest — Rafael Arnaiz Baron, died 1939; Nazaria Ignacia March, died 1943; Maria Josefa Sancho de Guerra, died 1912 — and a French nun, Leonie Aviat, who died in 1914.

Beatification is the final step before sainthood.

Since surgery on July 15 to remove a benign bowel tumor, John Paul has slowly been returning to public life. He made a few appearances while on vacation in the Dolomite mountains in August and had his first general audience in his vacation home of Castel Gandolfo on Sept. 9.

Applause rose up as the pope, wearing gold vestments, walked slowly toward the altar on the steps of St. Peter's to begin the Mass.

Corporations discuss their environmental efforts

By KATIE MURPHY
News Writer

How corporate America can take a leading role in solving environmental problems is the main issue to be addressed at a conference held today and tomorrow sponsored by the Notre Dame Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business, according to Father Oliver Williams, associate provost at Notre Dame and co-director of the event.

The conference titled, "Business Leadership in the Environmental Crisis," will highlight the environmental efforts of the McDonald's Corporation, 3M-Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, Indiana-Michigan Power Company, Texaco, Inc. and International Paper.

Following each company's presentation, there will be a discussion with a panel of environmental experts.

"We have a very balanced panel," Williams said. "[The corporations] are going to take some critical hits. We'll have a good dialogue."

Fr. Oliver Williams

Williams and co-director John Houck, ND professor of management, have been planning this conference for almost a year. "We are so pleased to be able to get these five major corporations to tell their stories," Williams said.

The conference will include a keynote address given by Former Secretary of the Interior, Stewart Udall, at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Udall, author of "The Quiet Crisis And The Next Generation," served under the administrations of President John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

"[Udall] is one of the original leaders of the ecology movement, which has slowly evolved to the environmental movement," Houck said.

Other guests and speakers include Jack Lorenz from the Izaak Walton League, Patrick Noonan of the Conservation Fund and Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president emeritus.

The conference is being held at The Center for Social Concerns today beginning at 9 a.m. and ending with Udall's speech at 7:30 p.m. The conference will begin tomorrow at 9 a.m. and end at 12:15 p.m.

Talks continue to end two-day GM strike

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers resumed talks Sunday in an effort to end a two-day strike that has halted production of the auto giant's second-best-selling car.

GM and union officials resumed negotiations at 1 p.m. after meeting for five hours Saturday. There was no immediate word on progress, company spokeswoman Linda Cook said.

About 4,200 members of UAW Local 602 walked off the job Friday at the Lansing body plant that makes the outer body of the Pontiac Grand Am.

The strike over unsolved local grievances quickly forced the shutdown of the nearby Lansing chassis plant where the Grand Am and the slower-selling Oldsmobile Achieva and Buick Skylark are assembled, idling another 3,000 other workers.

Cook said some work would be scaled back at the company's Lansing metal fabrication plant if a settlement wasn't reached Sunday. The fabrication plant makes metal parts for most of GM's car models.

Local 602 workers complain some health, safety and work standards at the plant violate their local agreement.

A major roadblock to settlement is a change in the way breaks are taken that is eliminating as many as 350 "tag relief" workers.

In August, GM switched the plant breaks to "mass relief," in which all workers take breaks at the same time and the production line stops.

A nine-day strike at a parts plant in Lordstown, Ohio, idled nine GM assembly plants before it was settled Sept. 5.

Meanwhile, in Indiana, at Anderson's Inland Fisher Guide Division of GM, negotiations are continuing involving the plant, which makes bumpers and external lighting for most GM cars and trucks. UAW Local 663 earlier this month asked for a five-day intent-to-strike letter from the international union.

Swiss tunnels provide alternate trade route

GENEVA (AP) — Swiss voters in a referendum Sunday convincingly approved their most ambitious tunnel project, a $10.7 billion plan to build two high-speed rail lines under the Alps and better link the country with the rest of Europe.

With the vote, the traditionally independent Swiss cleared a hurdle to joining a 19-nation European free trade area on Jan. 1. Swiss entry into the area, widely seen as a prelude to European Community membership, will be put to a referendum Dec. 6.

A 63.5 percent majority, or 1,297,316 people, voted for the tunnels, and 36.5 percent, or 745,898 were opposed, according to the federal government's final tally. Turnout among the 4.5 million eligible voters was 43.4 percent.

A simple majority was enough to start construction, which the government says would be completed by 2010.

Questions still unanswered in sculpture controversy

Dear Editor:

I have a few complaints to address about the sculptures at Saint Mary's College. I do not want to beat this issue into the ground, but the controversy continues.

I have heard, through the paper and mailings to students, about how the majority of the faculty feels, but what about how the students feel?

We haven't heard any formal response from any of the class boards, nor has the faculty bothered to consult the residents of LeMans Hall.

We must look at this "art" from our windows, as we go to classes, and as we bring our parents to our rooms when they come to visit. I have nothing against the artist's right to make the art or display it, but do I have to look at it? No!

But by positioning the sculptures on the LeMans Hall lawn, I am left with no choice but to see them. Some people may like them, which is fine for them, but I personally do not, and should not have to look at them.

Also, the question still arises, "What were they?" In all of the literature I have read about the sculptures, no one has fully defined what they are or what they represent.

One problem I saw was that when the Art Department displayed these sculptures, they didn't inform the campus as to what they were, or where they came from, and therefore, the community was left in the dark and became upset and angry.

A lot of this could have been avoided if several steps had taken place before they were displayed. Isn't college a place to educate? Well, why weren't we educated as to what they were? Isn't this a democratic society?

Then, after the controversy arose, why weren't the residents of LeMans, or the whole community surveyed as to whether they thought the works should be displayed on the lawn? A small group should not always decide for everyone else, as the art council has done.

Who would know what was best for the students other than the students themselves? I'll let you know my vote now: they're not appropriate in such a populated area. I don't like them.

Guard's judgement was 'poor'

Dear Editor:

Lest the reader think our reply to "Ex-guardsman relates his side of controversy" (The Observer, Sept. 24) is a condemnation of the Irish Guard, let us qualify our forthcoming remarks.

We too have been enamored with the Irish football tradition, and more specifically the Irish Guard, for many years. The Guard is indeed a unique and honorable tradition, which has been the hallmark of the Notre Dame Marching Band.

A football Saturday is not complete without the high-stepping march of the Irish Guard, leading the band in support of the Fighting Irish.

We are, however, greatly disturbed by the Guard's recent actions, which have led to its disbandment.

Maier's pride in the brotherhood of the Irish Guard is surely not unfounded, for he and his so-called brothers represent thousands of Notre Dame fans, whose insolence or physical stature prevents them from partaking in "a fraternity filled with love and brotherhood."

We do not object to this fraternity, which provides such a loving support system, in which the brothers can revel in their own glory and practice that "age-old" tradition of self-aggrandizement; but it is disconcerting to learn that these brothers are sipping "from a traditional drink," while on "the job of being a Guardsman."

Surely, those Notre Dame doctors of which Maier speaks do not sip the nectar of tradition while performing brain surgery. And if they are the type to imbibe on the job, they would probably recommend massive Coke ingestion for patients suffering from the flu, heat exhaustion, and nerves-God only knows the medicinal value of Coke in such desperate situations.

Mr. Maier contends, "I am no longer upset about Student Affairs' poor, unjudicial, and un-American handling of the Irish Guard's situation." He is obviously rather bitter, and his attack on the administration, which he putatively represented as a Guardsman, is a reflection of his own folly.

How can Maier label his dismissal as un-American? After all, we are reasonably certain that every member of Student Affairs is a citizen of the United States.

Perhaps he is referring to the democratic and impartial nature of American justice, which punishes the guilty and upholds the rights of the innocent.

Clearly, the Guard is culpable, and the only thing that is "poor and unjudicial..." is the judgement of the brotherhood.

Our Mother's gift of life cannot be put away

Dear Editor:

I wish to relay to the students, faculty, priests and religious of the Notre Dame and St. Mary's communities a disturbing incident which occurred during Bill Clinton's recent campus visit.

Knowing Clinton's contempt for the sanctity of life of the unborn child, a position in direct opposition to Catholic Church teaching, I held up a small image of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Patroness of the Unborn, during his talk.

This miraculous image given to us from Heaven is also an image of the unborn Savior Jesus Christ. Our Lady of Guadalupe, who told the visionary Blessed Juan Diego in the year 1531 to "know for certain that I am the perfect and perpetual Virgin Mary, Mother of the True God through whom everything lives," is with child!

Is it not tragic that at this university named in Her honor, I was told by Clinton aides that I "must put it away," referring to the small image I was holding up? The nerve of one on a campaign for death to tell me to put away the Mother of God.

Men and women of Notre Dame and St. Mary's, abortion is the modern-day slaughter of the Holy Innocents.

Just as Clinton's aides cared nothing for the Mother and Her Son, Bill Clinton cares nothing for today's mothers and their unborn children. Do we really want this man as the next President of the United States?

Our Lady of Guadalupe and Our Lady of the Golden Dome, pray for us.

Shame on Clinton for 'manipulating' Catholicism

Dear Editor:

Two weeks ago, Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton delivered a speech to students and faculty at the University of Notre Dame.

In it, he praised his brief Catholic schooling and quoted liberally—in more than one sense of the term—from Catholic social teaching.

The crowd of mostly University students cheered lustily as Clinton talked about how his Georgetown education caused him to be "deeply drawn to the Catholic social mission."

He drew even more applause when he evoked the memory of Catholic icon John F. Kennedy, recalling the late president's words, "Here on earth God's work must truly be our own."

Echoing a basic tenet of Catholic social teaching, Clinton said, "Our individual rights flow from our essential dignity as a creation of God. But each of us reaches our fullness as a human being by being of service to our fellow men and women."

Later he added that "all of us must respect the reflection of God's image in every man and woman. And so we must value their freedom, not just their political freedom, but their freedom of conscience—in matters of philosophy and family and faith." Again, more cheering.

Not once in his speech did Clinton mention the "A word." He didn't have to. Clinton cleverly—if not shamelessly—employed the church's social teaching to defend the radical pro-choice stance of his party.

But what's worse, nobody in the rah-rah Notre Dame crowd seemed to notice—or to care!

To be fair, Clinton did say some encouraging things about how he would assist those most in need in our society.

That's a theme both candidates need to speak more about, especially in these hard economic times where programs for the poor and underprivileged are being cut in the name of "personal responsibility."

However, when Clinton tried to legitimize the pro-choice viewpoint through references to Catholic social teaching, someone should have been there to say, "Wait a minute. I know Catholic social teaching. Catholic social teaching is a friend of mine. And Mr. Clinton, that's not Catholic social teaching."

But nothing was said because, sadly, 101 years of modern Catholic social teaching have passed mostly unnoticed by the majority of "good Catholics." (Does anyone even remember the name of the social encyclical released by Pope John Paul II a year ago May 1st?)

In a nationwide teleconference last year, Archbishop Rembert Weakland called Catholic social teaching an "essential part of preaching the Gospel." Catholic social teaching, he said, was the church's effort to take the gospel message and "apply it to new situations and new problems."

In this problem-rich election year, Catholics would likely benefit by reading Catholic social teaching, or at least hearing it from the pulpit.

Unfortunately, we seem to be content to accept a distorted version from someone who has a preferential option for the ballot box and not for the poor, the poorest of whom are the unborn.

Shame on Bill Clinton for manipulating Catholic social teaching to serve his own ends. But shame on us, too, for standing by and cheering him as he did it.

Editor's Note: Catholic social encyclicals and documents are available from the United States Catholic Conference, 3211 Fourth Street NE., Washington, D.C., 20017-1194 or call (202)541-3090.

'Prohibitive' du Lac may be erasing ND's character

Dear Editor:

Having witnessed three years of activities, social functions and traditions at Notre Dame, the headlines and articles on the front page of yesterday's Observer came as a great shock.

But perhaps more shocking than the specter of losing the Irish Guard was the implied message that the administration sees fit to abolish such a long-standing part of Notre Dame tradition, not to mention an essential feature of the country's oldest University marching band, to make a point about the disciplinary policy.

We feel that the implementation of an effective alcohol policy should not have to come at the expense of Notre Dame's unique collegiate character.

The current problem being addressed by the University administration seems to be that of the inappropriate infiltration of alcohol into the University functions.

The administration is justified in its pursuit to alleviate the preponderance of alcohol in student social activities, and to eliminate behavior that is disgraceful to the University's 150 years of tradition.

But the current attitude in the administration seems to be one of trying to distill out the alcohol by eliminating the functions and traditions themselves. (as Patricia O'Hara was quoted in The Observer, Sept. 23, the University is reportedly "calling into question the very existence of the (Irish) Guard.")

This attitude is self-defeatist and unjustifiable. Reducing the number of supported social functions and activities will only compound the reliance of an increasingly bored student body on alcohol.

The prevailing question, then, seems to be whether it is acceptable for the current administration to weigh sanctions against the entire University, past and present, for the alleged actions of at most ten individuals.

The unfortunate result felt by the average student here at the University of Notre Dame du Lac is that we're seeing less and less of the character of Notre Dame, and more and more of the prohibitive force of du Lac.

Clinton's past insults war veterans

Dear Editor:

This is in response to Brian Posnanski's letter (The Observer, Sept. 14) concerning whether or not Governor Clinton's draft record is relevant to the Presidential election.

I disagree with Mr. Posnanski's position, and argue that this debate reflects on Clinton's character and on his qualifications to be Commander-in-Chief.

Although it can be argued that World War II was a justifiable cause and Vietnam was not, that does not matter. The fact is that when George Bush was eighteen and was asked to fight for his country, he put service above self and risked his life as a naval aviator.

When Clinton was in college and the same request was made of him, he ran off to England, smoked pot ("but didn't inhale"), and enjoyed the blessings of youth, while 500,000 of his underprivileged peers endured the hell of Vietnam.

Bush's actions were those of a patriot, and Clinton's were those of a coward. Clinton was asked to serve his country, but he put his own interests first.

If Clinton has no prior military experience and is guilty of draft-dodging, then how can he relate to the forty million Americans alive today who have worn the uniform of the U.S. Armed Forces at some time in their lives?

How can he morally justify ordering young men and women to die for their country when he himself was unwilling to make that same sacrifice?

Constitutional responsibilities aside, why should the men and women of the armed forces risk their lives obeying the orders of a Commander-in-Chief who displayed cowardice by dodging the Vietnam War draft?

The draft issue is relevant because it reflects that Clinton was a coward in the face of danger. It also demonstrates that he is morally unqualified to order men and women into battle because he was unwilling to take that same risk.

Good leaders would not order subordinates to face dangers they themselves would be unwilling to confront. In this regard, Clinton would be an unfit Commander-in-Chief.

The election of Bill Clinton to the Presidency would be a disaster for the U.S. Armed Forces. Not only would he be an insult to the living and dead veterans of the Vietnam War, but also to the countless millions of other Americans who served their country in wars past.

He would be unworthy of walking in Arlington National Cemetery and of reading over 58,000 names on Vietnam Veterans' Memorial. Clinton's election would be an endorsement of cowardice in the face of danger and would make a mockery out of the blood that has been shed in the name of American freedom.

Cries for pro-life fell on deaf ears

Dear Editor:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

If Democrats have the right to launch obscenities and broccoli projectiles at our President with impunity as he tours Wisconsin, and Notre Dame student security can tell their fellow classmates to "shut up" why can't true Roman Catholics (loudly but peacefully) demonstrate their first amendment rights at a Catholic university, by asking for the redress of 27 million dead children?

Beckie Brothers and Daniel O. Myers, with their emotional tirades (The Observer, Sept. 16), have tarred and feathered pro-lifers lately, calling them "intolerant, immature, unprofessional, rude, offensive, embarrassing, and disgusting," and have claimed that the television screens of America would reflect poorly on those individuals involved and on the Notre Dame community.

This has not happened in the least. In Milwaukee, Chicago, and Boston for example, networks merely broadcasted that "Clinton faced opposition as he stopped at the University of Notre Dame."

This statement of fact is actually a tribute to the University. For it shows that Notre Dame students had the courage and morals to stand up to injustice in the face of adversity.

If people will turn away from a commitment to life because of a thirty minute experience on a Friday afternoon, they obviously have not deeply contemplated the issue at hand.

If they will turn their backs on the murder of babies because they disapprove of "the actions of a few," aren't they obligated to scrutinize the actions of Bill Clinton under the same paradigm as they have the pro-lifers'?

How then can they justify supporting a man who has used narcotics, avoided serving his country, and publicly stated that he would ratify radical legislation which would require even Catholic hospitals to perform convenience abortions on demand for any female, regardless of her age or of the consent of her parents or spouse? (Freedom of 'Choice' Act 1992-93).

In closing, pro-lifers sent up a cry for help for the preborn on Friday afternoon, a cry which fell on deaf ears. For their actions, pro-lifers were branded immature extremists.

Yet, as Barry Goldwater's Sept. 16 "Quote of the Day" so aptly put it, "Extremism, in the defense of liberty, is no vice. And moderation, in the pursuit of justice, is no virtue."

Cassino's serves up New York-style pizza to South Bend

By EMILY HAGE
Accent Writer

For genuine New York style pizza, go to Cassino's Pizza of New York on the corner of Jefferson and Main streets in Mishawaka.

A family-owned business, not a franchise, Cassino's offers a homey atmosphere and home-made pizza. Their specialty is a unique thin crust pizza of New York. "We make them the real way," said owner Lou Pappas.

The menu also includes calzones, subs, stromboli, meat breads, soups, salads, and a wide range of appetizers, including breadsticks. They also offer three to six-foot party subs, and ask that customers call 24 hours ahead.

Prices suit the college student budget. Pizzas range from $7.45 for a medium thin crust pizza to $15.75 for "The Works," thick crust Sicilian pizza, and the rest of the menu is also inexpensive for the size and quality of the portions they serve. "If you're used to Eastern-style pizza, it's nice to find a place like home," said Pappas.

Customers certainly feel comfortable in Cassino's clean, comfortable atmosphere. Decorated with a wooden ceiling, warm lighting, and a Mexican-style tile floor. It is a pleasant place to eat and even catch the baseball game on television.

After opening on June 1, business has been steady at Cassino's and Pappas attributes their success to the fact that they offer the New York pizza, which is hard to find in this area. "We fill a niche that's kind of unique," said Pappas.

They have received flowers and letters of gratitude from customers, one of whom said that her 14-year quest for real New York pizza in the area was over. By offering carry-out pizza and pizza by the slice, Cassino's models the pizza joints that are "a way of life" in New York, said Pappas.

They are applying for a beer license and should be serving it by the end of October, and they are also considering delivering pizzas.

They are opened seven days a week, Monday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday and Saturday 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., and Sunday from 4 to 9 p.m.

Cassino's is the only area pizza joint to serve real NY-style pizza. The restaurant boasts great pizza and reasonable prices, as well as a loyal following.

Wash and play

W.G. is much more than just a laundromat

BY JOHN FISCHER
Accent Writer

In the largely separate town and school communities that are South Bend and Notre Dame, there is at least one place where both residents and students can be found shooting pool or playing darts in between the wash and spin cycles.

The W. G. (World's Greatest) Laundromat, at 1813 South Bend Avenue, (in the Campus Shoppes strip center right across from Domino's Pizza) is the first of its kind in the Michiana area, according to Patty DeLeon, an attendant at the laundromat.

Whereas a magazine rack is the extent of the diversions offered at most laundromats, one does not even realize that one is in a laundromat at W. G. until the washers and dryers become visible beyond the pool tables and row of video games.

Indeed, if the word laundromat did not appear in the name of the establishment, a person could conceivably mistake it for a game room in a bar. Besides the pool tables and video games, there are dartboards, four televisions including a big-screen, and a snack bar complete with breakfast rolls in the morning, popcorn and chips all day, as well as a beverage selection ranging from Clearly Canadian bottled water to Sharp's non-alcoholic brew.

According to DeLeon, W. G. has been open since mid-August of this year, and has enjoyed a brisk business from both students and residents ever since. Starting with a two-week free wash promotion upon opening, W. G. has had a steady stream of customers ever since, if the business on a Sunday afternoon in late September is any indication.

DeLeon has begun noticing several regulars at W. G., and word-of-mouth has increased the number of customers since opening. With $1.25 washes and $.25 dryers, rates are competitive with on-campus laundry facilities. Besides all the distractions, W. G. is a full-service laundromat, complete with a drop-off service and dry cleaning.

Among most patrons, however, the extras are the reason for going.

Michael Batz, an off-campus senior, is a regular at W. G. He says that W. G. "is catering to students who want more than just a laundry experience." On this Sunday, Batz was glad to be able to do laundry and not have to miss any NFL action, thanks to the big-screen TV.

Like a growing number of students, Batz and his housemates patronize W. G. frequently. "Our landlord promised us a washer and dryer, but he hasn't delivered yet, so we all come over here to do our laundry. It's a really cool place," he says.

For those who for whatever reason must go outside the household to get their boxers and socks clean, W. G. is increasingly becoming the laundromat of choice.

The Observer/John Bingham

Pool tables and video games dominate the front area of W.G. Laundromat. The entertainment-oriented business is the first of its kind in South Bend, and has become increasingly popular since opening in August.

Hall's scoring catch leads Tampa Bay past hapless Detroit, 27-23

Tampa Bay couldn't win on the road, and Detroit couldn't lose at home. Until Sunday.

The Buccaneers came out on top of a wild, 24-point fourth quarter when Vinny Testaverde's 14-yard touchdown pass to Ron Hall with 49 seconds left gave Tampa Bay a 27-23 victory.

It was the first loss at the Silverdome for Detroit in 12 games and ended a 15-game road losing streak for Tampa Bay (3-1).

Mel Gray scored on an 89-yard kickoff return, Detroit's first since 1982, but Testaverde completed five of six passes for 52 yards in the winning drive, an 80-yarder that ended when Hall found himself wide open in the left flat.

Bears 41, Falcons 31

Jim Harbaugh passed for two touchdowns, and Neal Anderson ran for two more as Chicago snapped a two-game losing streak and even managed to score in the seconds half.

Chicago led 31-7 at halftime, then held on. Outscored 41-0 in the second half of their last two games, they were outscored 24-10 in this one, but the Bears mounted a clinching, 80-yard drive with Brad Muster going the final 14 yards for a 38-21 lead.

Packers 17, Steelers 3

In his first NFL start, Brett Favre threw two touchdown passes after Pittsburgh mistakes, and Green Bay (2-2) handed Pittsburgh (3-1) its first loss. Gary Anderson's field goal early in the first quarter gave Pittsburgh a 3-0 lead, and the Steelers couldn't score again.

Favre, meanwhile, capitalized on a blocked field goal attempt for a 76-yard scoring pass to

Sterling Sharpe in the second quarter, then hit Robert Brooks with an 8-yarder in the fourth quarter after a muffed Pittsburgh punt.

Vikings 42, Bengals 7

Rich Gannon ignored the pain from a chipped bone in his right hand and threw for a career-high 318 yards and four touchdown passes for the Vikings (3-1). He passed for 212 yards in a 28-point first half.

Close shave costs Miami top ranking

(AP)-Washington replaced Miami as the No. 1 team in college football Sunday following the Hurricanes' unimpressive 8-7 win over Arizona.

The Huskies had the weekend off, but were boosted to the top spot in The Associated Press poll when the Hurricanes barely survived against 27-point underdog Arizona, which just missed a 51-yard field goal attempt on the final play of the game. Washington (3-0), which shared the national title with Miami last season, received 44 first-place votes and 1,525 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Miami (3-0) was second with 12 first-place votes and 1,471 points.

It was a dramatic reversal from the previous week, when Miami received 43 first-place votes and Washington 15.

"I'm surprised," Washington coach Don James said. "It wasn't as a result of anything we did; it's because of something Arizona and Miami did. I know it will motivate two groups of people. I know it will motivate our opponents, and I hope it will motivate our team."

"It's hard to respond with anything colorful because it doesn't mean anything until the end of the year. We still have to go out and beat USC this week."

Miami coach Dennis Erickson wasn't surprised that the Hurricanes fell to No. 2.

"That's probably how I would have voted, too," he said. "We should have dropped in the polls playing a game like that."

Things don't get any easier for Miami in the next two weeks, when the Hurricanes play No. 3 Florida State and No. 8 Penn State.

"This game between us and Florida State is more important than being No. 1," Erickson said. "There are a lot of games left."

It is the first time Washington has been ranked No. 1 in the AP poll since 1984, when the Huskies held the top spot for four weeks before losing to Southern Cal. Washington finished first in last year's USA Today-CNN coaches' poll, but Miami won the AP championship.

Florida State (4-0) received four first-place votes and 1,431 points in this week's poll after beating Wake Forest 35-7.

Michigan (2-0-1) remained No. 4 after routing Houston 61-7, idle Texas A&M (4-0) stayed No. 5, and Notre Dame (3-0-1) remained No. 6 after blanking Purdue 48-0.

Tennessee (4-0) moved up one spot to No. 7 after clobbering Cincinnati 40-0, and Penn State (4-0) climbed one notch to No. 8 with a 49-13 rout of Maryland.

Alabama (4-0) dropped two spots to No. 9 after struggling to beat Louisiana Tech 13-0, and Colorado (4-0) stayed No. 10 after beating Iowa 28-12.

Texas A&M and Alabama each received one first-place vote.

UCLA is 11th, followed by Ohio State, Florida, Virginia, Nebraska, Georgia, Syracuse, Stanford, Oklahoma, Southern Cal, North Carolina State, Boston College, Georgia Tech, Mississippi State and Clemson.

Georgia Tech (2-1), which dropped out of the poll after losing to Virginia last week, moved back into the Top 25 after beating Clemson 20-16 Saturday. The loss dropped Clemson (1-2) nine spots to No. 25.

Idle Mississippi State (2-1), which was unranked last week, rose to No. 24. Kansas (3-1) fell out of the Top 25 after losing to California 27-23.

The loss drops Notre Dame to 3-3-1 for the season, with all three losses at the hands of teams in Soccer America's Top-15. They dropped tough matches to No. 4 UCLA and No. 13 Duke before Friday's loss at Indiana.

With six sophomores and two freshmen in the starting lineup, inexperience has been the main problem for the Irish early in the season.

Although their future is bright, they still have strides to make if they hope to contend for an NCAA tournament berth this season.

"First of all, we have to score some goals," Tricoci said. "We also have to get better organization defensively, but we are starting to move the ball better."

Despite the disappointment of Friday's loss the Irish remain confident about their chances to win the Midwestern Collegiate Conference title and earn the NCAA tournament invitation that goes along with it.

"It would have boosted our confidence if we had beaten a UCLA or an Indiana," Tricoci added. "But we still believe that we are the best team in the conference and now we just have to play that way."

You may not know our name, but we've been a cornerstone of America for 125 years.

We wouldn't be a bit surprised if you didn't recognize our company name—Cargill. But we've been in business since 1865, helping America's farmers feed the world.

Defense reverts back to days of old

By ROLANDO DE AGUIAR
Associate Sports Editor

For the past two years, Notre Dame's defense has been the recipient of criticism from Irish-watchers everywhere. Notre Dame's seemingly nonexistent pass rush and perennially inexperienced secondary made for high-scoring slugfests and long afternoons.

Nothing seemed to have changed in 1992 until Purdue left South Bend on Saturday, victims of a 48-0 Irish stomp.

The Boilermakers, averaging 35 points per game, came into Notre Dame Stadium Saturday morning with upset written all over their faces. Two weeks after dumping 17th-ranked Cal, Purdue knew it had the firepower to put scores of points on the board.

The Boilermakers figured that the Notre Dame defense, ranked 96th among the 106 Division I-A teams, would be easy picking for their explosive attack.

But the Boilermakers figured wrong.

Notre Dame's defense, angered and inspired by its low statistical standing, played like Irish defensive units of yore on Saturday, holding Purdue to 13 first downs and zero points in one of the weekend's most thorough thrashings.

"Defensively, I thought we played well," said Irish coach Lou Holtz. "We covered kicks well, we hit well, and we broke on the ball well."

Holtz approached his defense last week to discuss their low statistical standing, which left the Irish ten spots from the bottom of the Division I totem pole.

"We made a few changes (last week)," he said. "We had a little meeting."

That meeting inspired the Irish defense, and especially captain Demetrius DuBose, who was embarrassed by the team's statistical showing, to bring its game to a new level on Saturday.

"Coach Holtz let us know how we were doing," said DuBose after Saturday's game. "He took us to the side and said 'Here's the situation.' We were 96th in the country, and that's now the way it is around here."

The high standards set by past Irish defenses have been out of reach in recent years. But the young Irish defense, which includes only 3 starting seniors, has grown consistently over the past year, and finally came into its own during Saturday's shutout win.

"Let's give credit to our defensive coaches and our defensive football team," said Holtz. "They've taken a lot of criticism."

Much of that criticism was quieted on Saturday, when the Irish scored their first shutout since last year's 38-0 win over Navy (a team which has not yet scored in three games this season).

Purdue drove to the Notre Dame goal line in the fourth quarter, and seemed to score on a dive into the end zone. But the ball was spotted on the one, and a Matt Pike fumble gave the Irish the ball, preserving the shutout. DuBose could be seen leaping for joy after the Irish gained possession.

"When you play any team, your ultimate goal is going to be a shutout," DuBose said. "I think if they had scored, we would have been disappointed like it was a loss."

Reggie Brooks' 205 yards rushing made him only the sixth Irish back to top the 200-yard plateau. The last to do it was Allen Pinkett, who had 217 yards on 36 carries against Penn State in 1983.

Notre Dame's 458 yards rushing was the most by an Irish team since 1974, when Army surrendered 545 in Notre Dame's 48-0 win.

Kicker Craig Hentrich's streak of 130 consecutive PATs was snapped yesterday after Mirer's touchdown. The last time he missed was against Purdue in 1989. Hentrich was 27 short of Carlos Huerta's NCAA record of 157.

Notre Dame's last shutout was November 2, 1991, when the Irish whitewashed Navy, 38-0. In three games, Navy has not scored this season.

Bryant Young, who went down in the second half with a minor ankle injury, was able to return on Notre Dame's next defensive series. But when coach Lou Holtz first saw that his star defensive tackle had gone down, he seemed anxious.

"I started to run out there, because I thought it might have been a knee. And I was worried, because he's a pretty good player," Holtz said of the junior, whom he has called "one of the best football players in the country."

Some worried that Young's injury was a leg fracture like the one he suffered against Air Force last season. But Holtz offered a cryptic insight into last year's injury.

"I don't know what he broke last year. All I know is that if he was a horse, I would have shot him," Holtz said.

possession to do so, as Brooks took a handoff on the first play and broke an 80-yard touchdown run to make it 42-0 and put him over the 200-yard mark.

"Reggie did a tremendous job," Holtz said. "Jerome and Reggie are like thunder and lightning back there."

Though Bettis was overshadowed by Brooks' performance, the junior fullback does not mind sharing headlines with his backfield mate.

"When it's Reggie call, my eyes light up as much as if it were my run," Bettis explained. "He's made it so teams no longer key on me up the middle."

Kevin McDougal capped the Irish scoring when he took a quarterback draw 15 yards with 8:37 left in the game.

The Notre Dame defense dominated Purdue from the outset, as the Boilermakers did not get a first down until the 9:06 remaining in the first half.

Purdue's only two scoring threats were dashed by turnovers. John Covington picked off an Eric Hunter pass in the end zone and, Brian Hamilton recovered a fumble at the Irish one-yard line.

"This game will go a long way toward helping our defense believe in itself," defensive lineman Bryant Young said.

Notre Dame led 13-0 at half-time, as it scored on its first and last possessions of the half. Bettis took it in from five yards out to finish a nine-play, 76-yard drive to open the scoring, and Mirer kept the ball on the option and scored on a six-yard run 15 seconds before the intermission.

The domination of the Boilermakers left everyone in the Irish locker room happy, especially Holtz.

"This was as complete a game I have seen at Notre Dame in a while," Holtz said. "It was not just the way we played, but the intensity we played with."

"We had a real difficult week (of practice), and the team responded beautifully."

Final home appearance a successful one for Carter

MONTREAL (AP) — Gary Carter went out a hero in his final home game with the Montreal Expos.

Carter's seventh-inning RBI double stood up as the winning run in Montreal's 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"You couldn't write a Hollywood script for Gary Carter and let it come out like today was," Cubs manager Jim Lefebvre said. "The fans' reaction when he was on second sent chills up and down my spine. Not too many players end their careers the way he did."

The 41,802 fans gave Carter, who is retiring after the season, a standing ovation, and he pumped his fists in the air as he stood on second. He was replaced by Tim Laker, who is expected to be the Expos catcher of the future.

"It was really appropriate that Laker would replace me. He's the catcher of the future and I hope he carries on for 18 years in the majors like I did."

Despite the win, the Expos were mathematically eliminated from the race for first place in the National League East.

Carter, an all-star catcher in his heyday with the Expos, hugged Laker as the phenom ran out to second.

Larry Walker started the seventh inning with a walk, sending Carter up.

As the crowd cheered, Cubs pitcher Mike Morgan (15-8) went ahead in the count 0-2 before Carter connected to the opposite field.

"I hit the ball pretty good and as Andre (Dawson) was running back, I was saying: 'Please, don't catch it.' Then when the ball went over his head, I said: 'This is awesome.'"

Mel Rojas (7-1) pitched one inning for the win and John Wetteland struck out three of the four batters he faced for his 36th save in 45 opportunities.

Morgan, who is 1-6 lifetime against the Expos, carried a one-hitter into the seventh. He finished with a two-hitter, struck out three and walked one.

Irish

the third-year coach. "In the second half we played great, but we just didn't put away any of the chances we had."

"We're disappointed. We felt going into the game that had a chance to win, and we played well enough to win. But we didn't."

The lone Irish score came with only 26 seconds remaining. McCarthy avenged her close miss early in the half, by scoring on a direct penalty kick, that deflected off of a Duke player before finding the left side of the goal.

Earlier in the half Duke had raised its lead to 2-0, when freshman Kelly Walbert headed in a free kick past Lodyga.

Blue Devil coach Bill Hempen was overjoyed to leave South Bend with a win, but gave credit to Notre Dame, realizing that his team had clearly been outplayed.

"In a lot of ways Notre Dame had a lot of the play, the majority of the play," he said. "We're lucky to get out of her with a win."

Notre Dame had only a day to reflect on the most disappointing loss of the season before beginning preparation for Portland, and one of the country's top scoring tandems.

Forwards Tiffany Milbert and Shannon MacMillan rate second and fourth nationally in scoring, with 22 and 17 points respectively. The duo has led Portland to a 6-0 record which ties North Carolina for the best Division I record.

Petrucelli has high respect for Portland's potent offense, but stresses that his team will not just try and neutralize their attack.

"I believe that Tiffany Milbert is the best collegiate forward in the country," he said. "They are explosive, but we are not going to back down and just defend them."

Offensively Petrucelli plans to let loose his offense, utilizing his team's speed to combat the defensive effort.

"They are solid defensively. They haven't given up too many goals," said Petrucelli. "They put so much pressure on you offensively that their defense isn't challenged too much."

"They are a fast team, but so are we."

More of a concern to Petrucelli than the facets of Portland's game is the response he will get from his team after such an emotional setback.

"We really struggled after the Duke game emotionally, and I am wondering if we can get up to play again," he said. "The loss to Duke gives us a feeling of desperation, but I think that's a positive."

"We know that this game is very important, and the games the rest of this week as well."

Contests with second-ranked Stanford and 13th-ranked Wisconsin loom on the horizon, and a winless week would dampen Notre Dame's hopes for post-season play, and probably drop the 16th-ranked Irish from the polls.

"I was disappointed, we all were, after the Duke game," commented forward Regan Coyne. "It (the loss) made us realize how good we are, and that we can beat the best teams."

The sixth-ranked men's cross country team crushed all opposition this Friday at the 1992 National Catholic Championships, beating the field of 20 schools by over 40 points.

Marquette and Loyola, two teams expected to give the Irish some trouble, didn't even come close. Marquette finished second with 42 points and Loyola captured sixth with 138 points.

"Marquette and Loyola didn't present the challenge that we had anticipated," said Notre Dame head coach Joe Piane.

When the starting gun fired 140 pairs of cleats leapt on to Burke Memorial Golf Course. Marquette came out strong in the first 300 meters behind senior Jack Lopresti.

As coach Piane had predicted the Warriors picked up the pace early to vie for position going into the first turn. Yet after the initial sprint, Notre Dame formed a lead pack of five runners that Marquette could only follow.

"We were dictating the pace from the start," said Irish senior captain John Coyle.

After three miles Notre Dame was 50 meters ahead of the field. Despite the lead, the Irish pack never let up. The group spent the entire second half of the race widening their lead from the rest of the field. After four miles it was only a question of in which order would the group of runners would finish.

The Irish runners did not pursue individual glory but instead finished together. Junior Mike McWilliams, senior captain John Coyle, and sophomore standout Nate Ruder won the race with a time of 25:02.

This victory brings Notre Dame's record to 2-0 and it provided a showcase for a promising future.

"This victory is another step toward the NCAA," said Coach Piane.

The younger runners continue to have impressive performances. John Cowan comprised the Notre Dame pack that held the top four places and Ruder actually finished even with the two All-Americans Coyle and McWilliams.

"Nate Ruder and John Cowan have made the step up from last year," said John Coyle.

Riley, Jensen help Irish to best finish of season

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's cross country team breezed past 21 other schools to capture the National Catholic Cross Country Championships Friday at Burke Memorial Golf Course,

The Irish had six of the top seven finishers led by sophomore Sara Riley who won with a time of 17:59, two seconds ahead of second place finisher Julie Keller from Loyola.

Following Keller was five Notre Dame runners. Stephanie Jensen finished right after Keller, followed by Emily Husted, Eva Flood, Becky Alfieri, and senior Lisa Gorski.

Notre Dame's placing total was nineteen, with the closest competitor being the University of St. Thomas who accumulated 99 points.

"We really like running in this meet," commented Jensen. "It's at home, and there is usually good fan support."

"There were a lot of runners, and I thought it would be difficult for us to stay together, but it really wasn't."

Despite the usual success

Notre Dame has in the tournament, Jensen points to the strong performances as an indication of equal success in the future.

"A lot of the girls had personal bests, and everyone seemed to show great confidence," added the sophomore.

"When you look at all the high finishes we had it may seem a little weird, but we are really good, and it should be that way every meet."

Sophomore Kristi Kramer finished tenth, rounding out the top finishers for Notre Dame.

Dolphins battle past Seahawks

(AP)- Dan Marino, making his Seattle Kingdome debut, passed 15 yards to Fred Banks for Miami's only touchdown with 2:15 left, rallying the Dolphins (4-0) over the Seahawks (1-3).

Marino drove the Dolphins 80 yards in a dozen plays with the help of backup AFC EAST quarterback Scott Mitchell. Mitchell came in and threw an 18-yard pass to Tony Martin to the Seattle 16 with 3:44 left on a third-and-10 play after Marino was knocked woozy. Marino came back for the next play.

Pete Stoyanovich kicked field goals of 53, 31, 36 and 27 yards for the Dolphins.

Rams 18, Jets 10

Kevin Greene and Larry Kelm came up with key defensive plays, and the Los Angeles Rams kept the Jets winless.

Greene inspired the Rams when he sacked Jets quarterback Browning Nagle for a safety just before halftime, then set up one of Tony Zendejas' three field goals with a fumble recovery in the fourth quarter.

Kelms' interception of Nagle in the final period set up Zendejas' last field goal and gave the Rams (2-2) some breathing room.

Bills 41, Patriots 7

Jim Kelly threw for three touchdowns as Buffalo scored 35 points in the second half in their second straight rout. The Bills (4-0) beat Indianapolis 38-0 last week and missed their second shutout when Hugh Millen threw a 4-yard scoring pass with 8:41 to play.

Unknown players play valuable role in Irish success

Most of the soggy fans still in Notre Dame Stadium for the fourth quarter of Saturday's game, probably never heard of most of the guys in the game, unless they were students who had classes with them, lived in the same dorm, or had met them socially.

You don't see their names in The Observer, and some have to share their numbers with someone else. NFL teams won't be calling them, but they practice just as hard as the players who will be called.

They are the members of Notre Dame's prep teams. They run the offensive and defensive formations of the opposing team in practice so that the starters will be prepared for the game on Saturday.

Most people don't realize the importance of the players. It is their job to make sure that the starters are ready for the game. Guys like Mike Lalli, Matt Adams, Mark Andrzejewski and Deswood Etsitty, who aren't on scholarship, and who aren't as big or as fast as the starters, can help them improve.

Their presence at practice enables the starters to become familiar with plays that the opponents might run as well as allow the Irish to work on new plays and new defenses.

Most of the prep players will only have a few seconds of actual playing time to tell their children about. Those who dressed for the game against Purdue probably never thought that they would get to play on Saturday.

Usually, prep players only get to play in the senior game in their senior year and only Dan "Rudy" Ruettiger will have his few seconds in action on the field immortalized in a movie.

It is a credit to Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz that he found a way to get everyone into the game. Some might not have been at positions that they were used to, but they played. For some it was probably the only time all year that they will get to play in a game.

Hopefully, the Irish will be able to dominate more games this year as they did on Saturday, and Holtz will continue to get as many people as possible into the games. It makes the game memorable for the players, their parents, and the fans who know them.

Brooks, defense down Purdue

By MIKE SCRUDATO

Entering this season, most looked at Notre Dame and saw two Heisman Trophy candidates—Jerome Bettis and Rick Mirer.

On Saturday, a third entered the picture as Reggie Brooks rushed for 205 yards on only 15 carries to lead the Irish to an impressive 48-0 shutout of Purdue.

However, it was definitely not a one-man show.

■ Irish defense gains long awaited shutout/page 16

Great blocking by both the offensive line and the receivers keyed big runs all day.

A perfect example of this was Brooks' 63-yard touchdown run off the option in the third quarter, which put the Irish up 21-0 and started the offensive onslaught.

"Rick made a great pitch, and I got terrific downfield blocking from the wideouts," Brooks explained. "The only thing I had to do was outrun the defense."

Ray Griggs, whose blocking played a crucial role all day, felt it was the receivers obligation to help the running game.

"Today (Saturday) it was rainy and it was pretty hard to throw and catch the ball. We had to make our mark somewhere, and fortunately it was blocking," the senior flanker said.

Following one of many Irish defensive stands, Notre Dame got the ball on the Purdue 25. Two plays later, Bettis, who had 93 yards on 18 carries, took it 24 yards to give the Irish a 28-0 lead.

In the Irish's next possession, Brooks scored his second touchdown of the afternoon to stretch the lead to 35-0.

At this point, Irish coach Lou Holtz planned to take the first team out of the game, but the Irish got the ball on their own 20, one of the few times they had poor field position.

"I wanted the first-team to go in and get a couple first downs," Holtz commented. "Then, put the second-team in there."

Holtz, however, had to wait until Notre Dame's next

#5 Portland awaits after loss to Duke

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Writer

"Disappointed" and "desperate" were the words that came to Notre Dame coach Chris Petrucelli's mind when he talked his women's soccer team.

The disappointment comes from the 2-1 setback at the hands of 14th-ranked Duke on Friday night, and the desperation comes from the must win situation the Irish are in as they play fifth-ranked Portland today at Alumni Field at 3 p.m.

Against Duke, Petrucelli's squad started slowly, but outplayed the Blue Devils for the majority of the game.

The sluggish beginning resulted in a 1-0 deficit for the Irish when forward Meegan McMillin beat Irish sweeper Ashley Scharff and then goalkeeper Michelle Lodyga with a little over fifteen minutes remaining in the half.

"At the half I was concerned with the way we left the field," said the Irish coach. "We were acting as if we lost, and the game wasn't over. I just wanted to stress at half that we were not out of the game."

Petrucelli's halftime speech ignited the Notre Dame offense which exploded to start the half, and maintained that pace for the rest of the game.

The intensity of the Irish offense resulted in many opportunities but little success.

Shot after shot couldn't find the net, with the most glaring example coming at the 66:37 mark, when midfielder Michelle McCarthy's shot deflected off of the left goalpost, then careened off of the right post before it fell into Duke goalkeeper Melissa Carr's arms.

After the game, an emotional Petrucelli reflected on his team's missed opportunities.

"I don't know how to feel," commented

Hoosiers' offense lethal in 3-0 victory

By JASON KELLY
Sports Writer

It was the kind of game that turns good teams into great teams.

Friday's game against fifth-ranked Indiana was an opportunity for the youthful Notre Dame men's soccer team to burst onto the scene as a national power.

But it didn't quite work out that way. Indiana jumped out to an early lead and never looked back as they dumped the Irish 3-0.

"We just didn't play well and they played a perfect game. They caught us on a bad night," Notre Dame captain Mario Tricoci said. "But I don't think they're a better team than we are."

The Hoosiers were the better team on both sides of the ball Friday night.

Steve Keller began the scoring less than 17 minutes into the game on an assist from Tim Hardy. Keller then assisted Brian Maisonneuve, who converted a header at the 30:38 mark to give the Hoosiers a 2-0 lead.

Indiana was equally impressive defensively, holding the Irish to just one shot on goal.
