Roemer: Students hope for future

By EMILY HAGE
News Writer

Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students are the hope for politics in the future, said Congressman Tim Roemer (D-Indiana) last night at the Center for Social Concerns.

His speech was one of three preparatory sessions for the Washington Seminar "Poverty and Democracy in America," a one credit theology course offered to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students.

"I think Notre Dame and Saint Mary's people are the best equipped people to come to Washington," said Roemer. "I think the young people have a lot of the answers."

It is important for students to "make the step across the abyss and say, 'I am going to do something about what I feel.' I think that's one of the things that Notre Dame excels at." Roemer encouraged students to use their talents by going to Washington to learn the political system, helping in Appalachia, and volunteering at soup kitchens.

"You are blessed to be smart,

articulate, born into good circumstances," he said. "I think the mission for you is to take risks."

Roemer also stressed family values. "I think that government can help promote family values," he said. Roemer cited the Work Force Development Services, which offers training to the unemployed, as a good example of what the government can do for Americans.

"The best family values are not only caring but having programs to help families get through tough times," he said.

America's economic woes, especially in the Midwest, will have a significant impact on children and families, he continued. In the last 12 years, the percentage of high paying manufacturing jobs has gone from 34 percent to 16.5 percent, which inhibits the country's progress toward a more service-oriented economy and better paying jobs, which encourage family values, said Roemer.

Children and poverty should also be priorities in the government, he said. "Statistically speaking, when you look at children and poverty in this country, you should want to run out and do something about it," said Roemer. One in five children, one in three Hispanic children, and two in five African American children are born into poverty, and one in ten people in the United States are on food stamps, said Roemer.

Roemer supports shifting financial support from B-2 bombers and a $30 billion a year CIA budget to fund technological advancement, including high definition televisions, to support for the middle class, helping families afford college. "We're losing our middle class."

Stancato/Woo confront Whisler/Fedesna in runoff election Thursday

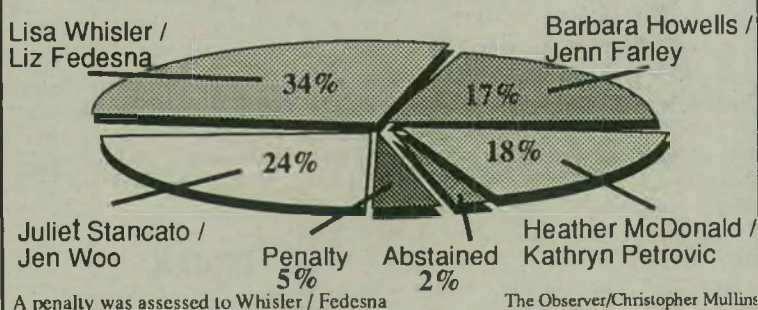

By LAURA FERGUSON
News Writer

Since no ticket received a majority of votes in last night's controversial Saint Mary's College freshman class president and vice presidential elections, a runoff election between Juliet Stancato/Jen Woo and Lisa Whisler/Liz Fedesna will be held Thursday.

The ticket of Barbara Howells/Jenn Farley received 17 percent of the vote, Heather McDonald/Kathryn Petrovic 18 percent, Stancato/Woo received 24 percent, and Whisler/Fedesna 34 percent. Two percent abstained.

Controversy surrounded Whisler and Fedesna's campaign, which was penalized 14 votes because of campaign violations.

According to Becky McLain, election commissioner, friends of Whisler and Fedesna ran a birthday advertisement in The Observer on Friday to wish them good luck in the election. This ad caused Whisler and Fedesna to go over the $50 limit set for campaign expenses.

Although the candidates did not know that this ad would be published, they are held responsible since it involved their campaign. They must count the $14 used to print the ad as a part of their budget.

"I didn't know about the budget. The rules of the campaigns should be posted somewhere," said SMC freshman Mavourneen Michiels, who submitted the ad to The Observer.

The decision to subtract 14 votes was made by a portion of the election committee, Student Body President Tina Carrara and Director of Student Activities Marlene Johnson. Whisler and Fedesna can appeal the decision until 8 p.m. Thursday.

If appealed, the election committee can accept or decline the appeal.

The other tickets of Howells/Farley, McDonald/Petrovic and Stancato/Woo are releasing a formal complaint against the Whisler/Fedesna ticket.

"We want our class to know so that the outcome of the election will be true. Because we don't think that it is fair for some to go out of their way to go by the book and for others to not adhere by the rules," said Stancato and Woo.

Thirteen positions for the Board of the Freshman class were also decided by the election. Since only 13 candidates were on the ballot all will be on the board. From this group the

ND accounting program ranked 6th in United States

Special to The Observer

The undergraduate accounting program in Notre Dame's College of Business Administration has been ranked sixth in the nation in academic quality by a survey in the industry newsletter Public Accounting Report.

"It's gratifying to have our peers recognize the high quality of our faculty, students and programs," said department chairman Thomas Frecka.

ND is normally ranked among the top 10 accountancy programs in the annual survey of accounting faculty and department chairs nationwide.

The University of Illinois ranked first in this year's survey, followed by the Universities of Texas, Southern California, and Michigan, and Brigham Young University.

After Notre Dame, Northern Illinois University, the University of Pennsylvania, Miami (Ohio) and Ohio State Universities round out the top ten.

Frecka said the University's high rating helps the students.

"The public accounting firms, in particular, are focusing on fewer and fewer schools when

INSIDE COLUMN

Aiding suicide can be an act of mercy

He's at it again. You may have heard. This time it was just miles away from us in our neighbor to the north, Michigan. Another death to which this man was a contributing factor—this, I think, his fifth. And yet, though his identity is well known, he is a free man—not behind bars as many believe he should be, but rather walking the streets just like you and me. (To those of you reading this from your jail cell, ignore that last remark. And don't worry, you're not missing much by not being able to vote this fall.)

Brendan Regan
Graphic Artist

All of the aforementioned deceased are women, for what that fact is worth. No, this man is not a rapist, nor does he even display any misogynist traits. Quite the opposite, he is an extremely caring, compassionate and understanding individual who puts his own carefully calculated sense of right and wrong ahead of the conventions of the society that damns him. His name is Dr. Death.

Well, that's his nickname. His real name is Dr. Jack Kevorkian, but most people more readily recognize the former title, one that I feel is most apropos given his recently adopted specialty. Wait a minute, you protest—this columnist, who just finished describing this man as being "caring and compassionate" agrees with the rather morbid nickname given to him? Exactly.

It's all a matter of perception. I'd assume that most of you reading this—as a decent sample of Americans in general—immediately shudder, or have some negative reaction within, when confronted with the subject of death. And that's fair—certainly none of us relishes our own, certainly not any time in the near future. But what's unfair is for us to assume that just because we want to go on living indefinitely, that everyone else does too—and, further, to impose our preference on them.

Life for many of us, I'd argue, especially here at Notre Dame, has been pretty damn easy. None of us, in all probability, knows what it's like to have cancer spread from our lungs up to our brains, living in tremendous pain every minute of every day, knowing that we have nothing besides this to look forward to for our few remaining months. This was the situation faced by the latest recipient of Dr. Kevorkian's care.

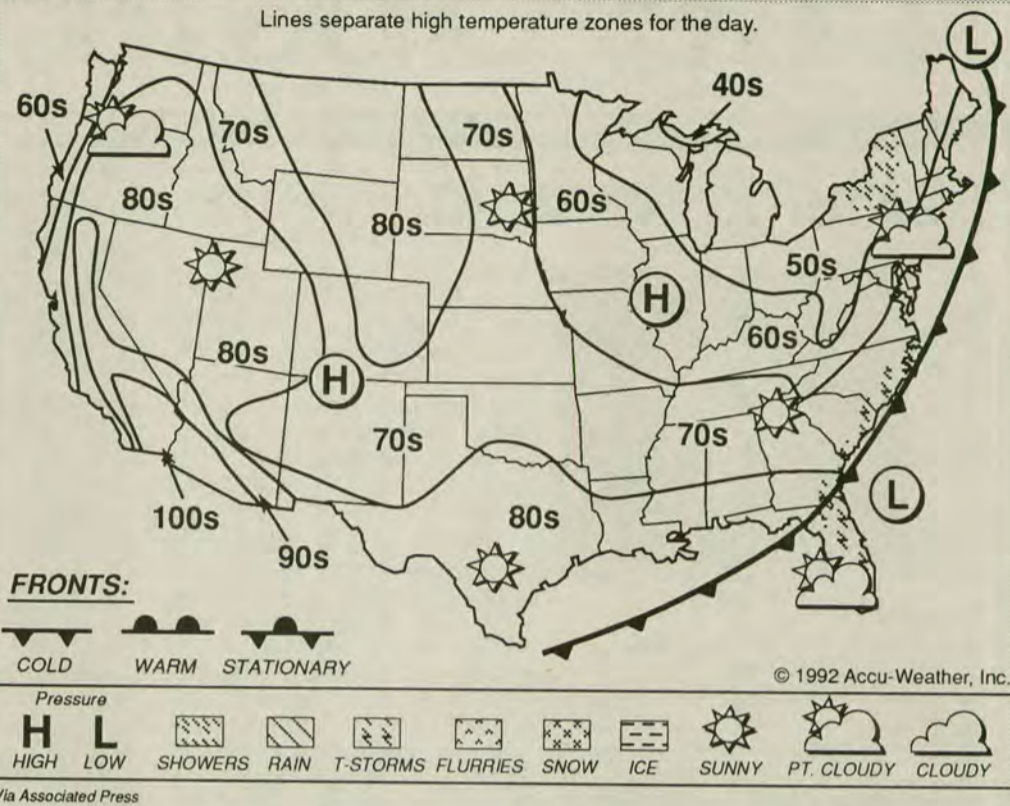

You see, by insisting on the sanctity of life in this situation, we are presupposing that death is undesirable and to be avoided at all costs. I assert that this is not an absolute that transcends all conceivable situations.

But what about the Hippocratic oath? Back in those days there weren't sophisticated (or even primitive) life-support machines that could keep a person alive (very loosely speaking). Not that these advances aren't terrific—they just aren't for everyone.

Think of that next time Dr. Death courageously shows mercy on a terminal case.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Gorbachev declines to testify

■ MOSCOW — Mikhail Gorbachev asked Russia's Constitutional Court on Monday to excuse him from testifying in a trial on his disbanded Communist Party, saying it would worsen the country's political situation. The former Soviet president expressed his objections in a letter to the court in response to its Sep21 order that he testify, ITAR-Tass and Interfax news agencies reported. The 13-judge panel is considering the legality of Russian President Boris Yeltsin's ban on the former ruling party. Gorbachev, the party chief from 1985 until his resignation in August 1991, was among the former Communist leaders ordered to testify. A aide to the chief judge has said the court could fine Gorbachev 100 rubles — about 40 cents — if he refuses to testify. Gorbachev wrote that he respects the court but that his appearance would make him a pawn in a political struggle between two sides which, apparently, he disdains equally.

Accused sorcerer burned to death

■ SUVA, Fiji — Villagers burned to death a man they accused of sorcery and devil-worship, police said today. Residents of Qilia village set the man's house afire as he slept inside and prevented his relatives from helping him after he ran outside with his clothes ablaze, police said, quoting witnesses. The 57-year-old man died as he hid in a nearby forest while his neighbors pelted stones at his smoldering home, they said. Seven men later were brought to court on murder charges. The Daily Post newspaper said the dead man had been warned in a letter from a relative two weeks ago that villagers planned to attack him for indulging in satanic rituals known as "qaravi tevoru".

Tiger mauls magician during act

■ RENO, Nev. — A 250-pound tiger mauled a magician during a casino stage show in what the audience at first thought was part of the act. "But then there were gasps from the audience when they realized he wasn't playing," said Reno Hilton spokesman Brian Lawson. Jonathan Pendragon, 37, was listed in satisfactory condition Sunday after surgery. Lawson said the tiger bit Pendragon's leg and arm during a disappearing act Saturday night. Pendragon had jumped on the tiger's cage after making the animal reappear, and his leg either slipped in or the tiger pulled it in, Lawson said.

Counties report Hepatitis outbreaks

■ INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana is among the top five states reporting outbreaks of highly infectious hepatitis A, with major occurrences in Adams and Marion counties, health officials say. "There are lots of pockets (of the disease) right now," said Lee Chamberlin, an epidemiologist with the acute-disease division of the Indiana Department of Health. "Once it gets into a community, if appropriate precautions are not taken and really strictly adhered to, it does spread and it spreads quickly within households." There were 195 cases reported in Marion County this year through August, compared with 32 cases for the same period last year.

Frosh Class Council elected

By ANALISE TAYLOR
News Writer

Each residence hall selected one freshman to represent it on the Freshman Council yesterday.

The selection process varied in each dorm, according to senior Pete Castelli. After submitting petitions signed by fellow freshmen, some members were appointed by hall staff and others were elected by the freshmen in the dorm.

The council is brought together under the direction of student affairs, and its main functions are raising money for the freshman class, dealing with pertinent concerns of freshmen, and representing the class in student government, Castelli said. Class trips and activities may be planned at the discretion of the council.

Class officers will be elected from the twenty-five members, said Castelli.

Students selected for this year are Lisa Schultz from Walsh; Sara Ford from Pangborn; Missy Deckard from Pasquerilla West; Jim Dowd from Morrissey; Jim Feldmann from Sorin; Ted Donnelly from St. Edwards; Fernando Carreira from Stanford; Amy Newman from Howard; Amy Gardner from Knott; Lonnie Limon from Flanner; and Kristi Kolski from Farley.

Also selected were Lauren Aimonette from Breen-Phillips; Joshua Hodge from Cavanaugh; Ryan Bohr from Zahm; Oanh Vo from Lyons; Eric Schultenover from Grace; Stacey Kielbasa from Pasquerilla East; Michaela Kendall from Lewis; and Vishal Pahwa from Keenan.

Results from Dillon, Alumni, Badin, Carroll, and Fisher were unavailable at press time.

Senate approves resolution

By KENYA JOHNSON
News Writer

Student Senate approved the nomination of former SUB External Relations Commissioner Jean Hazard to SUB director of relations and passed a resolution concerning drainage problems on the Notre Dame campus at last night's meeting.

The position of SUB director of relations was formerly held by Ellen Zahren, who was nominated last week for the position of SUB director of programming.

In other business, Jim Penilla, Sophomore class president, and Jason Coyle, Hall Presidents' Council co-chair said a primary concern of students is the campus drainage system, which is "wholly incapable of effectively dissipating large amounts of water." The problem of drainage directly confronts students because "faculty and administration don't see the problems, so they don't understand the problems," said Marianne Ravry, HPC co-chair.

The Senate recommended designating a committee to assess the drainage problem and suggested solutions to the Notre Dame Administration.

BOG discusses spending

By JENNIFER LACKEY
News Writer

Members of the Saint Mary's Board of Governance expressed concern about several aspects of campus life at last night's meeting.

A central topic of discussion was the distribution of money for student activities and programs. Students questioned the small sum of money designated for actual use by student groups.

Members also expressed frustration regarding the lack of communication between administration and students. According to board members, many changes in campus life have been implemented without student input. "Residence Life has not told or notified students about any of the decisions," said board member Hollye Harrington.

Saint Mary's College President William Hickey was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

Professors awarded grants

Special to The Observer

The University of Notre Dame received $1,291,681 in grants during August for the support of research and various programs.

Research funds totaled $1,171,652, including:

- $210,000 from the National Science Foundation for research on thermal front propagation by Hsueh-Chia Chang, chairman and professor of chemical engineering, and Eduardo Wolf, professor of chemical engineering.

- $121,950 from Purdue University for research on infrared and microwave magneto-dissipation in superconductors by Walter Tomasch, professor of physics, and Jacek Furdyna, Marquez professor of physics.

- $120,000 from Purdue University for research on critical current density in superconducting molecules by Paul McGinn, associate professor of electrical engineering.

- $115,609 from the National Science Foundation for research on subtle tests of the standard model by Ikaros Bigi, professor of physics.

- $113,651 from the National Science Foundation for halophile research by Robert Irvine, professor of civil engineering and geological sciences and director of the Center for Biotechnology and Pollution Control.

- $108,000 from Purdue University for studies of compositional modulation in high temperature superconductors by Krishna Choudhary, assistant professor of electrical engineering, and Steven Ruggiero, associate professor of physics.

- $90,170 from the National Science Foundation for undergraduate integrated optics research by Biswajit Das and Michael Lemmon, assistant professors of electrical engineering.

- $84,000 from Purdue University for research by Howard Blackstead, associate professor of physics, on microwave dissipation in high temperature superconductors.

Awards for service programs totaled $29,679 from anonymous benefactors for various programs of the Institute for Pastoral and Social Ministry.

Awards for other programs totaled $48,000 from the U.S. Department of Education for the Jacob Javits fellowship program administered by Peter Diffley, assistant dean of graduate studies and research.

Man denies killing opponent's wife

MAITLAND, Fla. (AP) — A legislative candidate Monday denied any involvement in the shooting of his opponent's wife, although police said they found a gun hidden in his apartment and a bullet-riddled blanket in his car.

Police said Eric Kaplan has so far declined to cooperate in their investigation into Sunday's shooting of attorney Judith Starks, wife of Republican state Rep. Robert Starks.

Kaplan's attorney issued a statement saying Kaplan denied "any involvement and knowledge concerning this matter." Kaplan is the Democratic candidate for the suburban Orlando seat.

Mrs. Starks was shot through the calf early Sunday as she sat up in bed when five shots were fired from the back yard into the couple's home. Starks, 47, was treated at a hospital. No arrests were made and authorities were awaiting crime lab results.

"It appears that we're building a very strong case against Kaplan. We hope that the crime lab tests will solidify our case against him," Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said Monday.

Proechel said an eyewitness followed Kaplan's vehicle to Kaplan's apartment complex in Casselberry, where police recovered a five-shot .38-caliber revolver and a handwritten note with Starks' address on it.

In Kaplan's car, deputies found a blanket riddled with five bullet holes, apparently used to muffle the gun, authorities said.

Detectives attempted to question Kaplan late Sunday, Proechel said, "but he isn't cooperating," and has hired a lawyer.

Kaplan, 28, didn't immediately respond to messages left on his telephone answering machine.

The statement issued by attorney James Russ said Kaplan "expresses his sincere concern and sympathy for the family of Robert Starks. The reported attack upon them in their home — particularly if politically related — is indeed a tragedy for them and for the entire central Florida community."

On Monday, Starks spoke with reporters while propped up in bed with pillows and a bandage on her left leg.

"I really believe that God protected me. It gives me even greater confidence in his protection," she said. "For that reason, I'm not fearful for whatever might happen in the future, whatever Bob decides."

Interior Dept. could open national forests to mining

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department is close to approving rules that could open national forests and, in some cases possibly national parks, to strip mining unless the government buys the mineral rights.

But Interior spokesman Steven Goldstein insisted Monday that there are no plans to allow strip mining in national parks because in each of those cases the government would buy up mineral rights or arrange for a land exchange.

Goldstein said the policy change involves "fundamentally a constitutional issue" over the right of those holding mineral rights to be compensated.

"The rule change makes it very clear there will be no mining in the parks," added Goldstein.

Nevertheless, any hint of the government possibly allowing strip mining within national park borders or national forests that often are adjacent to parks has caused ripples of concern among conservationists.

"This could be the most disastrous action taken by any administration in the 76-year history of the National Park Service," Paul Pritchard, president of the National Parks and Conservation Association, a private advocacy group on park issues, said in a statement.

An association spokeswoman, Kathy Westra, said the issue of compensation should not be dealt with administratively, but left to the courts, and that the proposed Interior policy change could strain the department's fund for handling compensatory claims.

Strip mining has been prohibited on federal protected lands for 15 years, ever since Congress enacted broad-reaching strip mine legislation in 1977. But the law exempted those mining interests that held "valid existing rights" to coal deposits prior to enactment of the law.

Pakistani jet crashes Drug kingpins caught in Rome

All 167 aboard are missing

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A Pakistani jet filled with Europeans — including mountain climbers and missionaries — plowed into a pine-covered hillside Monday, and rescuers searching the burning wreckage reported no survivors among the 167 aboard.

Officials said one American was also on board the Pakistani International Airlines Airbus A300 when it crashed on a landing approach, the second air disaster near the capital in as many months.

The pilot had given no indication anything was wrong before contact was lost with the plane, and the weather was normal, officials said.

Airline sources in Pakistan said the plane may have been flying too low as it approached this city ringed by Himalayan mountains thousands of feet high. The sources, speaking on condition anonymity, said the plane was flying at 7,500 feet when it should have been at 9,000.

The airline has had a poor safety and service record in recent years.

A Thai Airbus crashed into a snowy peak near the capital in July, killing all 113 people aboard.

The Pakistani jet, on a flight from Karachi, Pakistan, crashed 14 miles south of Katmandu's airport, said Nagendra Prasad Ghimire, deputy chief of Katmandu airport.

Rescue crews that reached the site by helicopter said the plane was on fire. An airman lowered himself on a rope for a closer view, but found no evidence of survivors, Ghimire said.

Army and police personnel cordoned off all approaches to the crash site.

The state-owned Nepal Radio announced that the bodies of victims found by rescue teams would be handed over to relatives at Katmandu airport on Tuesday. Monday's accident occurred at the start of Nepal's tourist season, when dozens of mountain climbing teams fly into this picturesque land to climb the world's highest peaks.

Airline officials said at least 89 of the 155 passengers were Europeans and that the jet had a crew of 12.

Thirty-five Britons, including a missionary family with three children, were among the passengers, the Pakistani airline reported in London. Most of the other Britons were headed for climbing vacations in the Himalayas, the airline said.

The missionaries were identified by the college where they trained as Andrew Wilkins, 38, and his pregnant wife, Helen, 36. They were traveling with their children, Hannah, 10, Naomi, 8, and Simeon, 6, All Nations Christian College in Ware, England reported.

Airline officials in Karachi said the passengers also included 12 Dutch citizens, 29 Spaniards, 10 Italians, two Swiss, one German, 10 Nepalese, two Bangladeshis, and 12 Pakistanis. Aside from the missionary family, none of the names of those aboard were made public.

ROME (AP) — Two alleged drug kingpins who walked out of an ice cream parlor in the heart of Rome were the first rounded up in a vast dragnet that authorities Monday said smashed a worldwide drug and money-laundering operation.

"Operation Green Ice" caught some 200 people over the weekend in the United States, Italy, Britain and Costa Rica, Italian authorities told a news conference. Tens of millions of dollars in cocaine, cash, jewels, securities and property were seized.

Achille Serra, a top police official, said the ring sent cocaine from Colombia through the United States and Spain for distribution in Italy and other European countries.

George Terwilliger, a deputy U.S. attorney general, called the case "truly a crippling blow to the Colombian cartel."

While officials in Rome said 201 people were nabbed, U.S. officials held a news conference in Arlington, Va., and put the number of arrests at 153. The discrepancy could not immediately be reconciled.

Authorities in Rome reported 34 arrests in Italy but gave no breakdown of the others.

Robert Bonner, head of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, said seven people arrested account for "most of the key financial operations" for the Cali cocaine cartel in Colombia.

Authorities said the operation also struck a deep blow to organized crime groups in Sicily, Naples and Calabria, which have a stranglehold on southern Italy.

"Never has there been a strike of such importance against the Mafia, Camorra and 'ndrangheta," national police Chief Vincenzo Parisi said, referring to the mobs in those areas.

Perot still refuses to announce if he will campaign

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot coyly refused Monday to say if he would rejoin the presidential race but most of his top supporters said overtures from President Bush and Bill Clinton had not quelled their desire for Perot to make a late entry.

On a remarkable day even for this tumultuous political year, Bush and Clinton courted Perot and his backers by sending high-level delegations to lobby for the support of his volunteers and to convince Perot to stay on the sidelines, where he has been since quitting the race in July.

"There is no messianic drive here to have a candidate or to have me as a candidate," Perot told reporters. "If the volunteers ... feel that it's appropriate that I run, certainly I am going to honor their request. Then, I will give it everything I have night and day."

Perot has complained that neither Bush nor Clinton had a credible deficit-reduction plan and has said he would enter the race if his supporters so desired, enabling him to push his own deficit-reduction plan.

The Texas billionaire said he hoped to make his decision Thursday based on word from his supporters, although he said it could slip to Friday. In an evening appearance on CNN's "Larry King Live" he announced a new toll-free telephone number where those not already working for him could register their support.

Near the close of the show, Perot's wife and three of his five children joined him in the studio, all saying they would support him if he decided to run.

Perot may aid Republicans by flirting with campaign bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ross Perot's flirtation with a renewed presidential bid could provide the distraction — and the break in Democrat Bill Clinton's momentum — that Republicans have been seeking.

That's the best-case analysis from the Bush camp on the latest developments in Dallas.

The worst case, from the GOP view, is that Perot will not run but will keep praising Clinton's economic policies as closest to his own.

Some Perot insiders were promoting the latter scenario on Monday, a day when the Texas billionaire and supporters from all 50 states heard presentations from the camps of both major-party candidates.

Democrats are advancing the notion that a Perot candidacy at this time would make it harder for Bush to carry two of his must-win states: Texas and Florida, which together have 57 of the 270 electoral votes needed for victory. Thus, they argue, a new Perot candidacy would help Clinton the most.

But no one seems able to say for certain how Perot's re-entry might play in tossup states and those where much of Clinton's support reflects an anti-Bush protest vote.

Bush — way down in the polls with just five weeks to go to Election Day — needs something dramatic to help break him out of a rut.

And the Dallas billionaire's latest maneuverings are at least diverting some attention from the president's continued poor standing in the polls.

A formal Perot candidacy "would reshuffle the deck and cause everyone to take a new look," said Bush political adviser Charles Black.

Furthermore, Black and other GOP operatives argue that since more Perot supporters went to Clinton than to the president when Perot "withdrew" last July 16, Clinton now has more to lose than Bush if Perot returns.

In states such as California, Michigan, Colorado and New Mexico, a Perot candidacy could absorb some of the anti-Bush vote that Clinton now enjoys.

"There are only two things that can turn it around for Bush: Perot's re-entry or the debates. The foundation has settled and voters have basically made their choices. For Bush to win, he's got to shake that up," said GOP pollster Frank Luntz, who has done polling for Perot.

If Perot becomes an active candidate — no means a certainty — it also could change the dynamics of presidential debates.

With the Bush campaign so far resisting a debate format favored by Clinton, there is the possibility of a debate between Perot and Clinton. That could resemble the 1980 debate between Republican Ronald Reagan and independent John Anderson. President Carter sat that one out.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SMC art controversy smells of Stoogery

They're outside and damaged. They're inside, under lock and key. Now they're outside again, with their own faculty security guards.

The weird will get weirder tomorrow at Saint Mary's when the Great Bulbous Sculpture Controversy takes a final turn and the artwork heads back to the great outdoors. Evidently the College now feels the community should be allowed to view the sculptures — but only for selected hours during the final two days of the exhibit.

The three-week old story has Stoooge-like qualities and is indicative of a image complex within Saint Mary's administration. Four untitled pieces by Chicago sculptor Marcia Kaplan were put on display on the Le Mans lawn at the beginning of the academic year, to the dismay of some who found them to resemble male sex organs or human feces, or others who found them just ugly. Many simply viewed the display as the sculptor intended: Creative, expressive art.

Hard times—or maybe a hard body—fell on the sculptures just one day after their debut. Saint Mary's Security has few clues about who vandalized the display or why, although some have speculated that a visitor might have caused the damage by sitting on it.

In a highly uncharacteristic move Saint Mary's administration came to the rescue, but only after an unconvincing denial of prior knowledge of the design of the sculptures. To this day the community can only assume the sculptures rendered the administration speechless or mortified, since no one will go on record stating exactly what the display is intended to represent.

The decision to move the sculptures looked foolish and reactionary, especially considering that only one person had complained to the Art Department about the display. In the valiant leap to save the community from the great big balls of polyurethane, the administration tripped over their own feet.

Students and faculty had a vested interest in the placement of the sculptures and should have been involved in the decision. The administration's hasty and indecisive moves showed ignorance about the role of art in the community, and ignorance of the community itself.

We can only hope that the next time (God forbid) the administration won't look so much like Larry, Curly and Moe.

Goodwill is about America

Dear Editor:

I am writing to thank Rolando de Aguiar, and to express appreciation for his advocacy of Goodwill, in the Inside Column of Sept. 16, 1992.

I am grateful for his remarks, and for the business of every Notre Dame, Saint Mary's, and Holy Cross College student.

You may be interested to know what happens to the money spent at Goodwill Stores.

Our mission is rehabilitation of disabled and disadvantaged men and women. In 1991, Goodwill evaluated, trained, and found competitive jobs for 101 persons in Michiana.

Goodwill is able to pay our clients and employees from revenues generated through sales of donated clothing, books, toys, shoes, lamps, kitchen wares, usable household appliances, drapes, furniture, and so much more, in our seven area Retail Stores.

We also do contract work with local business and industry, and receive philanthropy for Capital Projects and annual funds.

I urge all members of the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's/Holy Cross community to shop at Goodwill, and to donate items no longer wanted to Goodwill.

Please do not leave junk by our Collection Center. While it may be convenient, it costs Goodwill about $60,000 annually in hauling fees. This money could be better used to help people.

Every usable item given to Goodwill is turned into money to help our neighbors who are temporarily in need of help.

Goodwill is the Ultimate Recycler. Because of Goodwill, our clients are able to earn a paycheck with dignity and pay taxes with pride.

That is what Goodwill is all about. To me, that is what America is all about.

Notre Dame must stand for family values

Dear Editor:

While the demographic realities have yet to hit most Notre Dame students, they are just around the corner - over 80 % of American workers with dependent children are single parents or part of dual-earner families.

Many students are already thinking about how they are going to combine work and family needs.

The American Catholic Bishops recognized the need for economic institutions (particularly Catholic ones) to be more supportive of families with child care problems in their pastoral letter on the economy.

I am very encouraged by the recent child care needs assessment sent out to all employees at ND, and see it as a positive first step for Notre Dame.

However, the second step will be more difficult - finding a way to provide care that nurtures rather than replaces parents, at a price that low-income staff and students can afford.

There are many staff and graduate students with family incomes below $15,000 a year.

The week of Sept. 28-Oct. 2 has been designated "Child Care Awareness Week" to promote discussion and attention to the needs of parents on campus.

Several ideas have been suggested to make quality child care also affordable on campus.

One is to use more undergraduate students as classroom aides for course credit or as work/study assignments.

Another is to call on the entire campus community to monetarily support an endowment for child care scholarships for needy families, a sort of "United Way" appeal for the Notre Dame family.

Are we united enough, and charitable enough, to really mean it when we say that Notre Dame stands for family values?

There will be an open forum on child care issues Wednesday night in the Foster Room of LaFortune Student Center.

I encourage all students to come and make their voices heard.

"Comedy caravan" brings Stand-Up Humor to ND/SMC in its act at Shenanigans

By STEVE TANKOVICH

Accent Writer

Earlier this month Carrot Top performed at Washington Hall. Last year, Howie Mandel was able to bring his show to Stepan Center. But when looking for comedy on a weeknight, what is a student to do?

Comedy Caravan, a comedy troop out of Bloomington, Indiana, will be performing at Club Shennanigans this and every Wednesday evening to meet the comedy needs of Notre Dame, Saint Mary's and the South Bend community.

The show begins at 9:30 and lasts for about two hours. There is a $3 cover charge to get in. Club Shennanigans (not to be confused with the popular Notre Dame and Saint Mary's musical group) has an open bar, so no one under 21 is admitted.

Comedy Caravan is made up of several groups who tour together for 4-6 weeks. The group has a large following on other campuses, particularly Indiana University in Bloomington.

A different group of three comedians will perform every week at Club Shennanigans. The Comedy Caravan organization consists of many different comedians who perform in groups of three throughout the country.

Various members of the group have appeared on televised comedy specials such as the MTV Half-Hour Comedy Hour and HBO comedy specials.

The club also has other events on the schedule. These include several musical groups from around Michiana and encompass a variety of sounds.

The band Harlot, a rock band from Saginaw, Michigan, will perform this Thursday. On Friday, the mood will change to alternative music, when Blah Blah Blah, a group from Indianapolis will perform. Saturday will feature the music of Elwood Splinter's Blues band.

Club Shennanigans is located on Emmons Road in the Georgetown Shopping Center, which is within one mile of campus. An updated recording of the latest events happening at the club is available 24 hrs a day by calling the Club Shennanigans hotline at 277-1727.

Comedy Caravan will perform Wednesdays at Club Shennanigans.

Humor, style, subject of "Husbands and Wives" parallel Allen's real life

BY PETER BEVACQUA

Film Critic

"Husbands and Wives," the 22nd film written and directed by Woody Allen, is a tale of two married couples confronted with change and forced to review and re-evaluate questions about marriage, friendship, fidelity, romance, trust and love.

Allen's latest film blurs the distinction between fiction and autobiography. The relationship between Gabe Roth (Woody Allen) and his wife, Judy (Mia Farrow), is very similar (to say the least) to the estranged couples' real life perversities (of which I am sure the reader is quite familiar.) The film captures a sense of stark reality through the utilization of camera techniques reminiscent of French New Wave film: jump-cutting and a hand-held camera.

However, whereas the goal of these techniques in the pre cam-corder world of the French New Wave was to attach an unmistakable filmic quality to a work, Allen's use of these subtleties forces the viewer into the narrative.

If you are able to overcome a feeling of nausea due to the wobbling camera,

Husbands and Wives

Produced by Robert Greenhut

Woody Allen

(out of five)

you will realize that the perspective of the photography enables you to become involved in every scene. Allen, therefore, asks the audience to judge the immoral actions of the characters...and let he/she who is without sin cast the first stone.

If this is your first Woody Allen film (and if it is...where have you been your whole life?) I am hesitant in recommending it—to truly enjoy "Husbands and Wives" one must have an understanding of Allen's pessimistic and cynical "humor." As he has in many of his previous films, Allen blends his styles of comedy and drama in this film.

It explores with irony and humor themes Allen has been concerned with over the years—contemporary relationships, commitment, change and resistance to change, disruption and regeneration, and the many facets and complexities of the human heart.

One cannot deny that Allen's films serve as a cathartic mirror for the modern societal psyche—a mirror which softens the sting of the director's views with a gentle gloss of wit. Allen's constant search for love and friendship in a world void of morality is a subject the film, if not the man, successfully undertakes. Woody Allen's astute knowledge of people, complimented by a wealth of great acting performances, results in a wonderful film.

Jackson, Veris to join new teams

(AP)—Keith Jackson and Garin Veris, two of the four former holdouts who were given free agency by a federal court, took advantage of their freedom on Monday to change teams.

Jackson, a three-time Pro Bowl selection at tight end for Philadelphia, agreed to a four-year deal with Miami. The Dolphins said he would arrive Tuesday to sign the contract and hold a news conference.

Veris, a former New England defensive end, signed a two-year pact with the San Francisco 49ers.

Jackson, who made $300,000 in 1991 and reportedly was seeking $1.5 million per season, said at halftime of ABC's "Monday Night Football" said Miami's offer "blew Philadelphia's out of the water by a lot. Philadelphia's bid was not very competitive."

He also said his decision "had a lot to do with the offense. I'm going to leave a great quarterback, but I'm going to a team with another great quarterback. I think I can fit it a lot better in Miami."

He feels he can contribute quickly.

"Hopefully, I'll be in uniform this weekend," he said. "I'm going down to meet with the coaches and try to learn the offensive scheme. Last year, about four games in, Roy Green came to us and had a big game. I hope I can do the same."

Eagles president Harry Gamble said he was disappointed that Jackson decided to leave.

"Keith is certainly a very talented player and in this business, you never like to lose talented players," he said in a statement. "At the same time, however, I feel very comfortable in saying that the Philadelphia Eagles made an extremely attractive contract offer to Keith. Apparently, Keith has made what he considers to be a decision that is in his best interest."

Dallas and Detroit had expressed interest in Jackson while the Washington Redskins earlier had pulled out of the bidding.

The ruling that gave the four players their freedom had come in the aftermath of a federal court striking down the NFL's Plan B system.

Jackson went to court last week, along with Veris, wide receiver Webster Slaughter and running back D.J. Dozier. A federal judge declared them unrestricted free agents and barred interference from their former teams, which had claimed exclusive negotiating rights with the four even though their contracts had lapsed.

"It was just about what I considered a basic freedom," Veris said. "I just felt they (the Patriots) had a grasp on me and that I couldn't go any where. The court was the only way I could win my free agency."

Braves' magic number is one

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, whose big lead dwindled during a road trip as the second-place Cincinnati Reds staged a last-gasp winning streak, are ready to clinch the NL West title at home.

The Braves' magic number is two with seven games to play. They once had a 10 1/2-game lead, but the Reds closed to 4 1/2 on Friday as they extended their winning streak to nine games.

Braves fans were able to relax a little when the Reds lost in San Francisco Saturday and the Braves pulled out a pair of 10-inning, 2-1 victories at San Diego over the weekend.

The Braves host the Giants on Tuesday night and can clinch the title if they win and the Reds lose to Los Angeles.

"We didn't want to get to where it's the last week," said pitcher John Smoltz, who started Sunday's game.

MSU's Perles upbeat despite an 0-3 start

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — His Michigan State team is 0-3, but Coach George Perles refuses to even think about excuses.

"I think we've been very consistent on that. We're always optimistic. We don't talk about the negatives, we don't talk about the shortcomings, we talk in positive terms," Perles said Monday at his weekly media briefing.

"I am the supreme optimist, never will I go to Chicago (for the season media kickoff) and talk about anything negative that would give a player an excuse or give me an excuse not to do well. No sir."

That's why hopes were fairly high for the Spartans this season, even though they were coming off last year's 3-8 disaster. The Spartans fell 14-0 Saturday to Boston College, which moved up from No. 25 to No. 22 with the victory.

Perles stuck to his traditional "no excuses" approach in looking back at the loss, the third straight shutout for Boston College.

"Defensively, there was some improvement, not enough to win and that's what it's all about, so there's no use talking about improvement and those kinds of things, winning is the name of the game," he said.

"We did not do well offensively. The credit belongs to Boston College. They're a good football team. My prediction is that Boston College will play in a big-time bowl game this year. I think they're that good of a football team.

"To have three shutouts is unusual in any league, to do that is very exceptional. When you have that kind of success, it really is a great motivator to the defense."

Perles, still looking on the bright side, said the good news for the young Spartans — six seniors out of 22 starters — is that Big Ten play begins at home Saturday against Indiana.

"We have done well in the Big Ten. There are very few years that we haven't ranked in the top half of the Big Ten. We've won the championship a couple times. We've been in second place and third place," he said.

"We look forward to playing in the conference. We all go into the conference 0-0. It's a beautiful thing about being in the conference if you've had a slow start. We've had a few times when we've had a slow start and recovered during the Big Ten season.

"I've been 0-4-1 and been to a bowl (the Gator Bowl after the 1988 season)."

Diego Maradona set to return to soccer league

SEVILLE, Spain (AP) — Diego Maradona hoped to put his infamous suspension for drug use behind him today with his debut for F.C. Sevilla in an exhibition game against the German club Bayern Munich.

The Spanish first-division team bought the Argentine star's transfer from Napoli last week for $7.5 million, ending a three-month drama over where he would play after he refused to return to Napoli.

An expected capacity crowd of 70,000 at Sanchez Pizjuan stadium and a worldwide television audience will get the first glimpse of the new Maradona in the match, but it's likely to be several months before he returns to playing shape.

Women

game as the second-rated scorer nationally, and was defended well for the majority of the game by Irish defender Andi Kurek.

"I think Andi did a good job, the only goal she scored at the end was not her fault," added Petrucelli.

Kurek acknowledged the defensive job on Milbert, but credited the entire defense for holding her scoreless for so long.

"I think I played real well," she said. "She's really fast, but I got a lot of help from the rest of the defense in controlling her."

Portland coach Clive Charles respected the defensive effort displayed by the Irish, but never lost confidence in his high-scoring offense.

"It's going to be very difficult to shut them (Milbert and McMillian) out," he said. "It takes two goals to beat us, because we know one of them will score."

The solid defensive effort couldn't overshadow the second consecutive loss in a game which Notre Dame should have won. Last Friday, 14th-ranked Duke visited Notre Dame and left with a win by the same score as yesterday's setback. The Irish had outplayed the Blue Devils for most of the game, but failed to capitalize on their scoring chances.

In addition to the missed scoring chances, injuries also plagued Notre Dame in yesterday's loss. Forward Allison Lester was forced to miss part of the game with respiratory trouble, and defenders Julie Vogel and Gennifer Kwicksowski also missed time due to physical ailments.

"With each game we come more and more desperate," commented Petrucelli. "Somewhere along the line, we're to take advantage of the opportunities and make someone pay for this. We're too good to continue losing."

Mornay Sauce wins Lyons Volleyball Tournament

By KEVIN DOLAN
Sports Writer

Sunday's Lyons Hall Volleyball Tournament was "a learning experience," according to tournament co-chairperson Wendy Holthaus, but it was also a success. Held on South Quad, the tournament featured lots of sun and music and drew 21 teams. The tournament's final match saw Mornay Sauce, led by Aleks Mitrius, defeat the Crunch-Berries in three games, 15-7, 10-15, and 16-14.

Sunday's final was not the first meeting of the two teams. They met in an off-campus volleyball-league match on September 25, and, according to Crunch-Berry Josh Schafer, Mornay Sauce "kicked our butts"—15-0 and 15-3, to be precise. But on Sunday, the Crunch-Berries had emotion their side.

Throughout the match, they rallied each other with shouts of "Portia!" in honor of Crunch-Berry Jeff Holland's dog, Portia, who will be put to sleep on Monday. Another factor that worked towards the CB's advantage was the return of Holland, who missed Friday's match to be with his dogs.

However, the day belonged to Mornay Sauce. The combination of Mitrius, Jake Cervantes and Joe Schuller was stellar all afternoon, with rocket spikes and consistent blocking. Teammates Dan Jensen, Ann Lilly and Kelly Crawford also played solidly in all matches.

The final match started much like Friday's match ended, with Mornay running off 7 straight points behind Cervantes' serves in a game that ended 15-7. However, the CB's regrouped in the second game and jumped out to a 10-1 lead. Holland, Mike Hartmann and Elaine Cassidy led this run, and it looked like Mornay wouldn't score again.

But Mornay quickly ran off 6 points of their own behind some sharp spikes by Schuller, Cervantes and Mitrius. The game ended with the CB's winning 15-10. In that run, the CB's got a huge emotional lift when Hartmann stuffed a Mitrius spike to make it 13-10. CB's Mitrius didn't recover and put two balls out of bounds to seal the victory for the CB's and tie the match at 1-1.

The third game was an emotion-filled game, with both teams playing all-out volleyball. With the score 12-6 in favor of Mornay, the CB's came back to tie, led by Brian Murphy's sheer hustle.

On one point, Murphy ran yards out of bounds and dove to save an errant set, and the CB's took the point. However, with the score 15-14, CB Hartmann dove out of bounds and put the ball right into Joe Schuller's line of fire, and after the last of Schuller's rocket spikes, Mornay had the title.

After the game, both teams agreed that it couldn't have been a better match. "Sheer intensity," said Hartmann. It was a match in which there were no losers, a fact Mornay's Mitrius agreed with. "They played a lot better today. . . having (Holland) helped them. Plus, they were playing for revenge." He added, "We started to break down a bit mentally, but we were just clicking today."

The tournament staff was equally pleased.

"We really didn't know what to expect," said Stephanie Gallo, Lyons' co-president. "The best thing that happened was that our dorm really came together. People were working at sign-ups all week, and almost the whole dorm bought t-shirts."

Wendy Holthaus was most pleased with the weather and location.

"The day was gorgeous, and playing on South Quad really made a difference. When it was in Stepan, no one could really see it. Today, people could just come by to hang out and listen to music or get some sun."

The tournament, now in its fourth year, was held in memory of Karen Whitman, a Lyons Hall resident who died July 23 of a heart attack during an aerobics class. The tournament raised $500 for the American Heart Association, and some just stopped by to donate money.

"There's a lot to improve on," said Holthaus, "but it was a good day and I hope it works as well next year."

O's break record for sell-outs

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles had their 59th consecutive home sellout on Monday night, matching what is believed to be a single-season major league record by drawing 45,663 for the 1992 finale at Camden Yards.

No official record is kept on the subject, but the Orioles' sellout string is believed to have tied the streak of 59 sellouts by the 1990 Toronto Blue Jays at SkyDome. Toronto made it 60 straight on opening day, 1991.

The Orioles, playing their first season in their new ballpark, had 67 sellouts in 80 dates this season. They would have had the single-season record for consecutive sellouts, but Friday's game against Boston was postponed by rain.

Still, team officials had little to complain about.

"I don't think we could have asked for a more exciting season," said Janet Marie Smith, the Orioles' vice president for stadium planning and development. "The stadium itself was a draw, but it was wonderful that the team played so well."

Notre Dame's Title IX efforts worthy of praise

As I consummated my weekly ritual of reading the latest issue of Sports Illustrated this Friday, I came across something disturbing.

No, it wasn't the fact that Penn State's underwear they call uniforms was rated as the top college uniform over our classic blue and gold, that was a couple weeks ago.

No, it was a large article about the controversial Title IX, the longtime federal law that bans gender discrimination in college sports.

It has been in the news quite a lot lately, as administrators and writers like SI's Alexander Wolff have demanded that schools adhere to the mandate, despite the many hurdles against it. The biggest and most obvious hurdle being the fact that football and men's basketball pay for much of the other sports' expenses, being basically the only sports that produce revenue. Football obviously requires more money than any other sport, due to the large outlay for equipment and the sheer number of scholarships required.

But throughout the article, the thing that disturbed me was that Wolff lambasted schools across the board, failing to mention some of the schools that are trying their best to leap these many hurdles and give women's college sports a chance, like Notre Dame.

Notre Dame athletic director Dick Rosenthal and the athletic administration should be commended for trying to bring women's sports at Notre Dame up to par with their counterparts at larger state schools.

In my first two years here, I have seen a school devoid of state funding, a school that just twenty years ago didn't even admit women, boast a NCAA Tournament women's basketball team, top-20 rankings for its women's soccer and volleyball teams, and highly competitive women's cross-country, swimming, and softball teams, just to name a few.

Notre Dame has had to start from scratch in many sports, making their accomplishments all the more impressive. The women's soccer team originated in 1988 and the softball team just three years ago, in 1989.

But yet, there has been sacrifices. The main reason the men's wrestling program was cut was to free up more scholarship monies for these women's teams.

It is telling that Sports Illustrated can't recognize a school that is trying to make a difference, but it did give the thumbs down to our school for cutting the wrestling program.

Dropping the program was, of course, an injustice that should have been avoided at all costs, but it was for a good cause, if that says anything.

This is the plight of the universities. No matter what schools do, whether it be cutting non-revenue men's sports, or doing what SI suggests and cutting football scholarships, it will never be

Irish volleyball still away from home

By DANIEL PIER
Sports Writer

The heat and humidity at this weekend's William and Mary High IQ Classic gave the Notre Dame volleyball team almost as much trouble as did its three opponents.

Fortunately for the Irish, it wasn't much. Notre Dame breezed to the tournament championship by defeating Northeastern 15-7, 15-11, 15-11, William and Mary 15-8, 15-11, 16-14, and Georgetown 15-11, 3-15, 15-8, 15-11.

"We showed perseverance," said Notre Dame head coach Debbie Brown. "We played 3 matches in 26 hours under rather difficult conditions. I was very pleased that we hung in there."

The tournament victory helped Notre Dame (12-1) hold its 20th spot in the national Volleyball Monthly poll. In the newly released NCAA Midwest Regional ranking, the Irish are listed fourth behind Illinois, Nebraska, and Penn State. The regional rankings, since they determine NCAA tournament bids, are even more important than national lists.

On Saturday, Notre Dame rolled over Northeastern, giving Brown an opportunity play most of her reserves. Molly Stark garnered seven kills and seven digs to lead the offense and defense.

Notre Dame then unleashed a balanced assault on William and Mary, led by Nicole Coates with 14 kills, Jessica Fiebelkorn with 13 and Christy Peters with 12. Fiebelkorn also tallied 17 digs and five block assists.

Sunday, Irish struggled some against Georgetown due to the long weekend and difficult conditions. Notre Dame prevailed, however, and Fiebelkorn starred once again with 15 kills, seven digs, and three blocks. Brown was impressed with the play of her senior middle blocker.

"Jessica had a bit of a slow start this year," Brown commented, "but I was pleased with her this weekend. She had better timing and played very strong at the net."

Notre Dame has a current five-game winning streak to go with its season-starting seven-game string, which was broken by Florida. There is no rest for the road weary, however, as Notre Dame travels to Illinois State tonight for its seventh straight match away from home. The Cardinals (10-2) are ranked fourteenth in the Midwest. Last year's squad topped the Irish in five games at Notre Dame.

"We would definitely like to return the favor," Brown said of that match. "Illinois State is traditionally a very strong defensive team, and they don't give up. We anticipate an excellent match."

DePaul will face pumped up Irish soccer

By JASON KELLY
Sports Writer

This time they'll be ready to play.

After a lackluster performance against Indiana on Friday, the Notre Dame men's soccer team hopes to regroup today against DePaul in Chicago. Game time has been moved up thirty minutes to 4:30 p.m.

"Nobody was pleased with the way we played (against Indiana)," Irish coach Mike Berticelli said. "But we have to become a better team after a game like that. I can't predict the outcome of the (DePaul) game, but I do know that we will be ready to play."

They will have to be. DePaul is a potent offensive team, and the Irish defense has struggled lately.

"They have a couple of very dangerous players and we will have to shutdown their attack," Berticelli said. "They also have a small field and that will force us to be more aggressive defensively."

Offensively, the Irish have been up and down this season. In their three wins, they have totaled 14 goals, but in their three losses, they have managed just one goal.

The quality of competition is certainly a factor in that discrepancy, but in early-season losses to Duke and UCLA, the Irish missed some key scoring opportunities.

"With a break or two we could easily be 6-1," Berticelli said. "But that's all part of being young."

Instead, they head into today's game at 3-3-1, focusing on improvement rather than wins and losses.

Six sophomores and two freshmen fill the Irish starting lineup, and most of the key reserves are underclassmen. But they have shown flashes of brilliance against some top teams.

"Other than the Indiana game, I am not disappointed with our performance this season," Berticelli added. "Our younger guys are really just starting to get a feel for game situations. Our goal is to be a better team in October than we were in September and I think we will be."

Women's soccer falls to fifth-ranked Portland, 2-1

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Writer

For the second straight game, the Notre Dame women's soccer team lost a game it deserved to win, falling 2-1 to fifth-ranked Portland yesterday at Alumni Field.

"They difference in the game was that they didn't have too many opportunities, but the ones they did they stuck in," said Irish coach Chris Petrucelli, "whereas the opportunities we had, we failed to take advantage of."

Both teams did take advantage of mistakes in the first half. Defensive miscues by both teams knotted the halftime score at 1-1. Notre Dame capitalized on the first error when a Portland defender allowed forward Jodi Hartwig to slip behind the defense for the game's first goal, a perfect shot beating keeper Erin Faley to her right.

Notre Dame returned the favor minutes later when Tiffany Thompson attempted to pass the ball to Irish goalkeeper Michelle Lodyga, and Portland forward Shannon McMillian intercepted the pass resulting in an open-net goal knotting the score.

The start of the second half featured missed opportunities by both team. Sterling defensive play by Lodyga, who stopped three consecutive threats with impressive saves, dwarfed Portland's attack, while Faley held her own against the speedy Notre Dame front line.

The stalemate ended at the 84:10 mark on a goal by high-scoring forward Tiffany Milbert on a pass from McMillian. Milbert entered the
