THE INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER SERVING NOTRE DAME AND SAINT MARY'S

Changes mark Sorin's 109th year

By DEREK BETCHER
Assistant News Editor

Following an intensive $1.5 million interior renovation over the summer, Sorin Hall re cemented its reputation alongside the Main Building and Sacred Heart Basilica as a historic centerpiece of the campus.

Students returning to the University's oldest residence hall this fall were greeted by refurbishments ranging from freshly plastered walls to rewired electrical and Resnet systems. Central to the changes were improvements made to meet Colloquoy 2000's goals of adding more study space and social space to the University's residence halls.

"Basically, they tore plaster off the walls and ceilings, and they tore up all of the floors. Everything's new from the basement to the third floor — everything," explained Father Steve Newton, Sorin's rector.

From stairwells to drinking fountains to radiators, nearly everything within the 108 year-old building was refurbished or replaced.

"The University designated us a red-zone building, a building sorely needing repairs... The planning process began a year ago, and the personnel on the University's end of matters were great. We were able to be involved in every decision; colors, paint, carpet," Newton said. "It was a very inclusive process."

Some of the more noticeable changes include new dormwide oak trim, freshly painted walls, and the enlargement of the first floor lounge. Where barely room for a pool table and a television formerly existed, a merging of the old lounge with an adjacent room currently holds a full complement of lounge furniture that now also includes a foosball table.

Perhaps benefiting from its status as one of the University's oldest buildings, Sorin's renovation has even resulted in extravagances such as chandeliers in the first floor halls, tiled floors beneath drinking fountains and ice

ND Right to Life challenges veto

By BRAD PRENDERGAST
News Editor

The campus pro-life group is mounting a charge to support the Partial Birth Abortion Ban Act that President Clinton vetoed earlier this year.

After Masses on Sunday at the Basilica of the Sacred Heart, Notre Dame Right to Life distributed over 1,000 postcards urging Congress to override the president's veto when Congress begins its fall session today.

Notre Dame Right to Life will distribute an additional 2,000 postcards in the residence halls during the week, according to Maureen Kramlich, president of the student group. The cards were available at several dorm Masses Sunday evening.

The postcards, part of a nationwide campaign organized by U.S. Catholic bishops, have been circulating at churches around the nation for the last few months.

Kramlich said 1,024 postcards were signed by people outside the Basilica on Sunday. Millions more have been signed nationwide.

"The response has been tremendous," said Kramlich, who interned this summer with the National Right to Life Committee's Office of Federal Legislation in Washington, D.C.. "The House Post Office sent a memo saying the postcard campaign had caused a backlog of mail."

Students who sign the card can send it to either their home representative or senators or to the congressmen from Indiana. Of the Catholics in the Indiana delegation, only Rep. Pete Visclosky, who represents the northwest corner of the state, voted against the ban in March.

Rep. Tim Roemer, who represents the South Bend area, voted in favor of the ban.

A partial birth abortion uses a "particularly gruesome method," according to Kramlich in a press release. The process, used on fetuses 20

Bans irk some students

By CAROLINE BLUM
Saint Mary's Editor

Many students are well aware of the three major policy changes this year's handbook has brought to Saint Mary's: the abolishment of smoking in the dining hall, the prohibition of candles in students' rooms, and a policy mandating written documentation of students publicly or privately intoxicated.

The policy banning candles in the dorm rooms resulted from an abundance of fires in residence halls last year.

"You have to think, is it really worth it?" Student Body President Jen Turbiak explained. "After all those fires last year, something had to be done. It's better to be safe than to burn the hall down. It's a necessity."

Other students disagree. "I had candles in my room last year and I never lit them," junior and Holy Cross resident Emily Broussard said. "I think the fires last year resulted from carelessness. I understand that we need to look out for fires, but I don't understand why we can't have candles for show."

Although candles have become an increasingly popular trend, many students were forced to leave their decorative glow candles packed at the beginning of school. Others did not.

"I still have candles in my room, and I'm not getting rid of them," an anonymous student from LeMans said. "I love candles. They're a decoration piece. I am responsible enough not to catch the room on fire. Even my resident advisor has candles."

Another handbook policy change states that students either publicly or privately intoxicated will be held accountable for their actions. While this practice was administered by several resident advisors in the past, now RAs will be required to document the incident.

"We want to make sure students are safe," LeMans resident advisor Diane Grant said. "If a student needs help or is sick, we want to help them. We want to create a safe environment for students."

Private intoxication includes students, legal drinkers or not, who are

Furthering the Irish Cause

The time has come. We have been in classes for a week now. We have submitted to that ethereal bliss and sublimity of Notre Dame life which allows us to pare our life into small sections of free time, study time, class time, and other. Most of us have allowed our connection with reality to be fed to us by The Observer.

Margee Husemann

The summer is officially over, and the time for action is upon us. This Thursday our football team will explode onto the field with the zeal, enthusiasm, and experience that the legacy of Notre Dame football instills. Proud to carry the colors of our school and confident of their training, they will prepare to recapture glory.

In the past years our fans have wavered between mirth and murder. They have called for the dismissal of coaches and the canonization of players. Under the careful scrutiny of the NBC nation, the team has become an outward symbol of Notre Dame's prestige and a source for a series of ludicrous controversies.

Depending on what poll you are looking at, Notre Dame is ranked fifth or sixth in the nation. The schedule this year appears to be fairly thin, especially with a potentially lackluster Ohio State team to tarnish that rivalry. The stadium is mired under a web of construction. Bitter seniors will realize that their cheering contribution may be tainted by an October 12 GRE date.

What does all of this matter? When the team rushes out of the tunnel and out onto Vanderbilt's field in a few days, we'll all glance up at television screens and feel at least a slight twinge of bliss as the sun glints off those golden helmets.

Football is not Notre Dame, the students are Notre Dame. Football is one of the many things that link the students. For three hours every week, some of the differences between us are allowed to fade. Football is not some metaphysical link between all races and creeds on campus. It isn't a magical world filled with frolicking fairies and prancing ponies. Sure, sometimes the games are filtered through hazes of smoke and alcohol, but that doesn't make it mystical.

Football is America's simplistic way of labeling the University of Notre Dame. People who don't know that Notre Dame is a prominent academic force and that it gains more prestige every year do know that Lou Holtz is the coach of the Fighting Irish. People who don't know that Notre Dame's Women's Soccer Team is the best in the nation do know that Ron Powlus red-shirted his first year. People who don't know that Notre Dame has a strong commitment to service do know that 1988 was the last year that Notre Dame won the National Championship.

Nevertheless, we as the students and faculty of Notre Dame can find pride in our football identity. We can feed on that love/hate relationship with the media. We should support our team as unconditionally as we support the other programs on campus. Football provides us a conduit to show the nation our greatness. It's up to us to create greatness, not only in football but in all that the Irish do.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Northern route decreases Edouard's intensity

BOSTON
Hurricane Edouard plowed slowly north this morning, decreasing in intensity as it headed toward Nova Scotia, but still packing high winds and drenching rain that washed out Labor Day parades and picnics.

"We've seen the brunt of what it's going to give us," said Charles Foley, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service. "It wasn't quite up to what was advertised."

On its heels was Hurricane Fran, which picked up strength as it tracked a northerly course toward the Bahamas and the Florida coast.

Edouard came closest to eastern Cape Cod and Nantucket island causing power outages and coastal flooding.

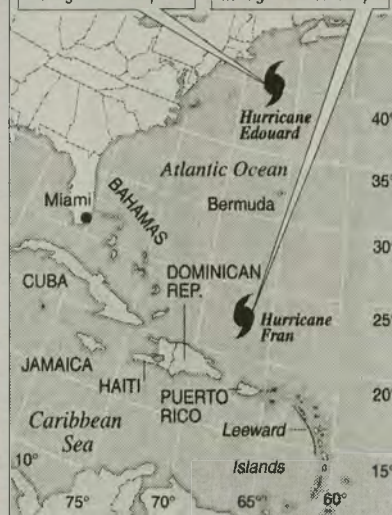

At 10 a.m., Edouard's eye was about 95 miles southeast of Nantucket and moving northeast at about 14 mph, with top sustained winds at 80 mph.

Edouard had passed about 80 miles from Nantucket, where winds gusted up to 75 mph. Forecasters said it was unlikely the storm would get as close to the U.S. coast again as it headed toward the Canadian province.

"By the time it gets up there, it will just be a big rainmaker," meteorologist Jim Notchey said. "We lucked out because the center didn't make land-fall anywhere."

About 150 people, many of whom had reservations at beachfront hotels or homes, spent the night at a Nantucket High School resting on temporary beds and eating grilled cheese sandwiches.

"I had a more comfortable sleep here than if I'd stayed at the house. It was scary," said Rem Myers, who had been staying with his wife and three children at a rented house 300 yards from the ocean.

Power was restored to all but 5,000 Massachusetts homes and businesses by midmorning.

Massachusetts Gov. William F. Weld declared a state of emergency and the Red Cross opened shelters throughout the region. The Red Cross reported about 1,000 people went to temporary shelters.

Chicago man buys Papal Escort

AUBURN, Ind.

A 1975 Ford Escort GL selling for $102,000? Well, the option package capped the deal. The Escort was once Pope John Paul II's personal car, and its buyer at Kruse International's annual Labor Day weekend sale gets a free trip to Rome thrown in. There's also a personal visit with the pontiff, who will turn over the keys to the bluish-silver car. A man from the Chicago area, who refused to be identified, made the winning bid Monday at Kruse International's Auburn '96 Collector Car Auction. Included in the trip to Rome is a private Mass in the pope's chapel at St. Peter's Basilica, a picture with the pope and a tour of parts of the Vatican that most tourists never see. The pontiff used the four-door car when he was known as Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, and it's been in storage since he became pope in 1978. Proceeds from the sale will be used for funding the expansion of the Polish Pilgrim Home in Rome and for scholarships and expanding the Catholic University in Lublin, Poland.

Dole promises "bridge to lower taxes"

ST. LOUIS

Summoning the memories of two popular post-war presidents, Republican Bob Dole launched his fall campaign Monday under the Gateway Arch, depicting himself as a "bridge to lower taxes." He and runningmate Jack Kemp called President Clinton's bridge to the 21st century — a phrase the president has used frequently — "a toll bridge" for which "every inch of the way, you pay and pay and pay." Thousands of energized supporters greeted the two GOP candidates at a muggy Labor Day rally under the 630-foot spiral of stainless steel on the banks of the Mississippi River, a monument to the historic opening of the West and America's pioneering spirit. "We're here on this Labor Day to kick off a campaign that is going to be a gateway to a bright and shiny future for the American people," Dole told the crowd, estimated by local Dole supporters at least 15,000 people. It was one of the largest, most enthusiastic crowds Dole has addressed so far in his campaign.

TWA investigation continues

SMITHTOWN, N.Y.

Preliminary testing by Boeing Co. indicates that an explosion of the center fuel tank alone would not have been powerful enough to bring down TWA Flight 800, an investigator told The Associated Press on Monday. Those early findings tend to strengthen the theory that a bomb or missile brought down the jumbo jet, and to weaken the likelihood that the plane exploded because of a mechanical malfunction. While investigators say they do not know enough to declare the explosion a criminal act, the possibility of an accident appears more remote as the evidence mounts. National Transportation Safety Board investigators previously have determined that the center fuel tank exploded. But a critical question has been whether that explosion was the cause of the crash — or was a secondary blast, ignited by another force. After using computer models to simulate pressure within a 747's center fuel tank, Boeing engineers estimated that 30 to 40 pounds per square inch of pressure inside the tank would be needed to do the kind of damage that has been observed so far in Flight 800, the report found.

Smoker faces littering charge

HOBART, Ind.

A city judge will decide whether Stanley Kolze was being considerate or breaking the law. Kolze, 58, is accused of littering. More specifically, he is charged with tossing a cigarette on the city easement in front of his home. He is scheduled to appear in Hobart City Court on Thursday. If convicted, he could face a $100 fine in addition to court costs. Stanley Kolze's trouble began July 31 when Hobart Police Officer Kenneth Gagliardi was called to investigate a verbal dispute Kolze had had with a neighbor. Kolze says he was sitting on his front lawn smoking when Gagliardi asked him to get up and walk over to his patrol car. "Nobody gets into a squad car with a cigarette," said Kolze, explaining that as he stood up he tossed away his lit cigarette out of consideration for the police officer. But the policeman apparently saw things differently. Kolze said the officer picked up a cigarette and then ticketed him for littering. Hobart Assistant Chief Ronald Taylor said it was within the Gagliardi's discretion to cite Kolze for littering.

Volunteer opportunities abound

This is the second in a series exploring volunteer opportunities in the South Bend area for Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students.

By BERNADETTE PAMPUCH
News Writer

For students wishing to combine service for the disabled with a unique personal learning experience, Reins for Life may be just the thing. Founded in 1978, the South Bend-based program allows both the disabled and volunteers a chance to interact with horses.

"We help people with physical, mental and emotional disabilities," said Jo Prout, Reins for Life's volunteer coordinator. She noted that while the program will help people of any age, most are children. Prout said that the opportunity to care for and groom the horses helps the disabled improve their self esteem. Also she mentions physical benefits resulting from riding.

Located 20 minutes west of South Bend, the program originally operated with borrowed horses and facilities. A donation of 20 acres of land in 1991 and subsequent grants have helped Reins for Life grow into the year-round curriculum that it currently operates.

Reins for Life finds its disabled riders in a variety of ways.

"Mostly it's word of mouth. Last year I went out and started approaching institutions," Executive Director Sharon Burnside explained.

According to Burnside, finding volunteers is just as important: the program uses about 250 volunteers a year.

"We are very dependent on our volunteers. We couldn't do what we do without them," she said.

Volunteers do not necessarily need prior experience with horses. "We do an orientation, and our horses are so gentle that all volunteers need to be able to do is walk for half an hour and be able to hold their arms straight (to help with the horses and riders) and be willing to want to help. We teach them what they need to know," Burnside said, adding that transportation is one of the few things her group does not provide for its volunteers.

Interested persons can call 271-8317 for more information on how to volunteer.

Twist of fate strikes Flanner sophomore

By BRAD PRENDERGAST
News Editor

It's a situation that would have been a fitting source of lyrics for Alanis Morissette.

Dave Murphy, a sophomore Flanner Hall resident, last week saved another student's bicycle from being stolen, but had the tables turned on him this weekend when the front wheel of his bicycle was taken.

Murphy was the hero Aug. 26 when, while returning to his dorm about 5:45 p.m., he noticed a suspicious-looking man at the Flanner Hall bike racks.

"He was messing with something. I thought he was unlocking his bike, but when I went over to put down my bike, he walked down to the other rack," Murphy said.

"When I went inside Flanner, I saw through the window that he was still by the bikes," Murphy continued. "I went up to the second floor and looked out the window again. He pulled out a very large black wire cutter and started cutting up the lock on one of the bikes."

Murphy went outside and confronted the man.

"He said it was his bike and showed me a U-lock (that supposedly belonged to the bike in question), but then he got on another bike and took off,"

Murphy said.

As the man fled toward Juniper Road, Murphy examined the lock on the bike and called Notre Dame Security.

"I saw the wire he was cutting, and he had cut into it quite a ways," Murphy called Security from his room and provided a description of the suspect, one resembling a typical college student, Murphy said.

"I was the hero last week, and now I'm screwed."

Dave Murphy

At 6:26 p.m., Security identified an individual that matched the description of the suspect. After Murphy verified the man's identity by looking at a set of police photos, Security took the suspect into custody.

The man, identified as a Mishawaka resident, was later arrested by Security on an outstanding warrant for an unspecified charge.

Murphy may have been the hero one day, but the wheels of fortune turned against him several days later.

On Friday, Murphy locked his own bike outside Flanner and left town for the weekend. But in securing the bike, Murphy locked only the bike's frame to the rack and not the front wheel. When he returned Sunday morning, the front wheel was gone.

"It's kind of ironic," Murphy said, who had two roommates whose bikes were stolen last year. "I was the hero last week and now I'm screwed."

weeks and older, involves partially delivering the baby, creating a hole in the back of the baby's skull, and using a suction tube to remove the brain.

The details of the procedure have led Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., a congressman who has taken a pro-choice stance on previous issues and who did not vote in the original roll call, to tell the Catholic Alliance that he would support the ban because the method "is just too close to infanticide."

Clinton has said he is against the ban because it may be necessary in situations where the mother's life is threatened.

Over 70 percent of a group of registered voters who were polled by the Tarrance Group in December said they were against the ban.

Policy

Although private intoxication is not strictly defined in the handbook, Grant explained that RAs will use their discretion when approaching a student they suspect to be privately intoxicated.

"The policy requires a judgment call," she said. "One RA's vision of private intoxication may differ from another RA's view."

Annunciata Hall resident Carrie Ratke, a nursing major, hopes the new policy will help enforce quiet hours.

"Maybe now people will drink responsibly when they go out," Ratke commented. "They may think twice before coming home and waking the entire hall up with their obnoxious behavior."

However, senior and 21-year-old LeMans resident Abby Fleming expressed concern about this issue.

"I am a responsible 21-year-old," Fleming commented. "I think this rule is a bit ridiculous. I know how to drink responsibly, I've been around for four years. I don't think that if I have a beer at a bar, I should have to worry about being accused of private intoxication when I get home."

maker, and even curtains.

"We talked about an elevator, but the University said no, so then we decided not to approach them about Jacuzzis," Newton joked.

In addition to decorative changes, numerous structural changes were also made; pairs of undesirably long and thin rooms formerly left for freshmen were merged to make spacious one room quads; four singles were converted into two air conditioned study rooms; and the first floor study lounge was moved into a larger area. Furthermore, to create more space, two quads were redesignated triples. Sorin now houses 157 men, down seven from last year.

On the building's exterior only the repainted front porch, shaded to match the Main Building's new color scheme, belies the interior improvements. However, Sorin's food sales area, its chapel, and its bathrooms - which were renovated twelve years ago - were the only interior areas escaping the contractors' efforts.

Calumet Construction won the bidding for the restoration. While they have been working on the University's architecture building for over a year, the Sorin renovation was their first completed project for

Notre Dame. Newton feels that in attempting to earn consideration for future University projects, Calumet renovated Sorin with exceptional care.

"They did not skimp anywhere, I'll tell you that. The craftsmanship is excellent," he remarked.

In addition to the quality of their work, Calumet finished their project within a narrow time frame: All of the work was finished in twelve weeks over the summer. Newton reports that for the demolition stages of the job, the contractor committed two shifts a day for seven days a week to finish on time.

Eric Anderson, one of Sorin Hall's co-presidents, explained that while the changes were first met by Sorin's residents with some ambiguity, returning this fall and seeing the changes in place swayed the naysayers' opinions.

"There were sure a lot of holes in the walls and the lounges weren't too good either. Sentiments were mixed though, because last year some people could just say 'well its already beat up so we don't have to be too careful,'" Anderson explained. "A lot of people were worried that it wouldn't get done in time. Now all we can say, though, is that it's just a lot nicer," he said.

"Alumni, even a few who once lived here, came late this summer and said they just loved the changes, as do the vast majority of the students who live here now," Newton added.

Renowned vocalist to perform at ND

Special to The Observer

The India Association of Notre Dame, in conjunction with The Asian Indian Classical Music Society of Michiana, is sponsoring a performance by renowned classical vocalist Shweta Jhaveri.

Considered one of the foremost artists in Hindustani vocal classical music, Jhaveri's performances have won critical and popular acclaim, in addition to a number of awards.

She has conducted musical workshops in both Canada and the United States, including one dealing with jazz music — befitting the first Indian Classical singer to perform with a jazz group.

Jhaveri will perform in the LaFortune ballroom on Sept. 7 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets will be sold at the door for $5, but students will be admitted free of charge.

For more information, contact Professor Rajib Doogar at 288-4652.

SMC activities night draws large crowd

By LESLIE FIELD
News Writer

A large turnout highlighted the Saint Mary's Activities Night, which was held last night in Angela Athletic Facility.

Biology Club Treasurer Erin Luedecking's reaction typified those of her fellow exhibitors, "It was a great night. We didn't expect to have this many people sign up. We're looking forward to a very fun year."

Many felt that the event's 9 p.m. starting time was a key factor in the evening's sizable turnout.

According to Saint Mary's freshman Emily Junius, "I'm glad it was held at that time. It didn't conflict with anything else. I signed up for a lot of different clubs, like Toastmasters."

"It's a good way for freshman to get involved," she explained.

Although the activities fair wasn't punctuated with the debut of any new clubs this year, students claimed that the holdover organizations seemed stronger than ever. Evidencing that opinion, most booths boasted lines of students waiting to obtain information.

Notre Dame's activities night will take place at 7 p.m. tonight in the JACC.

■ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hesburgh survives Rightist attacks

Dear Editor:

As returning students, faculty and staff will know, Right Reason published another issue of its far-rightist propaganda at the very end of the spring semester, so editorial response at the time was virtually impossible. Moreover, the paper's lead story was yet another attack on Father Theodore Hesburgh, this time by the notorious Fred Kelly (remember, 'native Americans were all sinful savages')—a junior transfer student whose moral credit on campus, ironically, is about the opposite of Father Hesburgh's. This continued attack on one of the most widely revered Catholic leaders in the United States cannot go unanswered.

Let us begin at the beginning, with the previous February issue of Right Reason, which bears the infamous masthead "Liberals from Hesburgh to Hitler." I think I speak for most of the Notre Dame community in saying quite frankly that to liken Father Hesburgh to Hitler in any way is so outrageous an insult (both to Hesburgh and to the real victims of fascism) that it is barely conceivable. The mere suggestion demands a serious apology to Hesburgh, Notre Dame, and the local Jewish community. When questioned about this, editor Dan Moloney had the temerity to suggest that this masthead did not imply anything negative about Hesburgh.

Inside the February issue, we find that the masthead item refers to an article entitled "Liberal Fascism" by Josh Hochschild, with a picture of Hitler labeled "liberal." The reference here seems to be to the prevalent neocon myth repeated nationally by far-right columnists that 'political correctness' is a new McCarthyism or 'fascism of the left'—a ploy through which racists like Dinesh D'Sonza have tried to paint conservatives as embattled victims on our campuses. Hochschild's own vocal support for Pat Buchanan and the confusion that equates 'freedom' with anarchic antifederalism—the mainstay of today's rising militia and white supremacist terrorist movements.

This February issue at the end in the "Notebook" section there is a short paragraph making fun of Hesburgh's participation in Clinton's Legal Defense Fund, and implying that he might try to divert Notre Dame money to this cause. When I asked him about this paper, Father Hesburgh laughed most of it off, but he did take umbrage at the jibe about the Legal Defense Fund. As he pointed out, most Americans feel strongly that a sitting U.S. President should not be subject to civil law suits that hamper his time for public commitments while still in office. Hesburgh declared in strong terms that it was this principle that motivated him to support the Legal Defense Fund, just as he would if a Republican President were threatened with the same nuisance law suits.

Then in the most recent April issue, along with laughably ignorant speculations by Moloney about homosexual psychology, we find Fred Kelly's article, whose title very misleadingly reads Hesburgh's involvement in the pro choice movements (p.6). Kelly's argument is apparently that since the Rockefeller Foundation gave money to the Population Council, which supported the dissemination of contraception and world population control (at a time when many Catholic theologians also supported them), and other groups that supported the legal right to an abortion, Father Hesburgh should not have accepted or kept his position on their board—despite all the support for famine control, disease eradication, arts, humanities, and many other vital causes he thereby helped support.

The strangest of all is the implicit premise in Kelly's argument that if a foundation, government agency, college, institution, or any other public group ever has anything at all to do with contraception, abortion, or sex education, then a Catholic must entirely reject all participation in it. Such an absurd principle could only have the consequence of isolating Catholics, eliminating the Catholic voice from almost every influential public organization in the country (even the United Way), and preventing Catholics from working together with other pro-choice religious and civil leaders for other common causes of great importance. We should be thankful that Father Hesburgh was never deceived into such a narrow exclusionist vision of the potential Catholic role in American public life.

The real reason why Right Reason authors have it in for Hesburgh is clearly that, contrary to their own blend of fundamentalism and New Right political mythology, Hesburgh both emphasized the real meaning of 'love thy neighbor' and opened Notre Dame to the non-Catholics, combining its religious role with greatness as a research university.

In conclusion, it is always a disgusting thing to see the petty and hateful who have contributed nothing to their community try to denounce men and women whose record establishes their commitment to goodness. Hesburgh remains an exemplar for both Catholics and non-Catholics concerned with social justice in the U.S. and abroad. By contrast, Fred Kelly, and his fellows at 'Trite Treason,' are example only for those who hope for a career in the gutter press.

Partial birth abortion requires full response

Pro-life and pro-choice factions support similar restrictions

Dear Editor:

A partial birth abortion is a procedure in which the abortionist partially vaginally delivers a living baby before killing her and then completing the delivery. The procedure was developed by abortionists as a substitute to the "Dilation & Evacuation" (D&E) method for later abortions, abortions 20 weeks and later. Dayton abortionist Martin Haskell developed the partial birth abortion technique because it made his performance of later abortions, "easy" (Cincinnati Medicine, Fall 1993).

The unborn children and their mothers who fall prey to these types of abortions are the most vulnerable members of the human family. Among the reasons why women have late abortions are lack of money or health insurance, social-psychological crises and lack of knowledge about human reproduction. Such abortions are elective abortions as they are not medically indicated and, for Haskell, they amounted to 80 percent of the later abortions that he performed. Haskell admitted in interview probably 20 percent are for genetic reasons. And the other 80 percent are purely elective.

Besides the poor women and their healthy babies who are targets for later abortions, are the babies who are less than perfect, those babies who have genetic defects of one kind or another. In some instances, these defects, such as cleft lip, are minor and others are non fatal defects, such as, down syndrome. Some babies do have fatal conditions, such as body stalk anomaly. But this is no reason to end their lives prematurely by stabbing them in the back of the neck. These babies call for our love and compassion all the more because of their "defects."

H.R. 1833 is the sort of legislation that even people who identify themselves pro-choice should support. H.R. 1833 places a modest restriction on abortion.

Having a berry good time

I found my thrill at the Plymouth

By ASHLEIGH THOMPSON
Associate Accent Editor

Plymouth, Indiana might not be a tourist hot spot during the year, but on Labor Day Weekend all of that changes. Over half a million people venture out to Centennial Park in this small town just south of South Bend on Route 31, and participate in the third largest festival in the state. Indiana bills it as one of the top five must-see events in the state, and the U.S. includes it as one of the top one hundred. Marshall County's Blueberry Festival draws crowds from all over the country, and this year, the festival's 30th annual gathering, proved no exception. Even Elvis made an appearance.

Over 500 craft booths, whose vendors traveled from all over the country, sold everything from bread cutters to holiday outfits for plastic ducks, jewelry to baseball caps that kept time with clocks strategically stitched into the bill. Over one hundred food booths offered such treats as gyros, elephant ears, homemade root beer and alligator meat. Jazz bands, gospel groups and country music vocalist Ken Mellons were some of the performers to grace the two sound stages, and women and children cried and screamed for a grinding, dancing Chris T. Young, who likes to refer to himself as the "World's #1 Elvis Performer." Even an Ecuadorian wind instrument ensemble showed up. Carnival rides, a rodeo, tractor pulls, arm wrestling, a parade and fireworks entertained some, while others preferred to simply walk around, enjoy the atmosphere and people watch.

According to Mike Woolfington, a Blueberry Festival Volunteer and the Marshall County Director of Tourism, the festival began as a get-together for local folk, who had such a good time thirty years ago that they decided to have another one. Then another. The festival grew to include not just Hoosiers, but families from all over, with events spanning a delicious three day period. And to reign over such an exalted occurrence? None other than Marshall County's Amanda Renee Hayes, the 1996 Miss Blueberry Festival Queen.

Miss Hayes would not have been the only teenager in attendance, though. The Blueberry Festival seemed like a great place to bring a date, and hoards of area youth showed up with significant others in tow. To the pleasure of the dessert vendors, families probably comprised the largest contingent, and kids ran and screamed and kicked and whined, while the ones with not enough sugar coursing through their veins decided to take a nap. The majority of the AARP crowd were vendors, but grandparents played with babies or sometimes just sat and observed the masses. Tattoos and Harley Davidson attire competed with Bulls or Pacers jerseys, and everything else just blended into the colorful mix of it's the blueberry fields in Plymouth and nearby Lapaz, or the blueberry harvest that ended about two weeks ago. The blueberry stomp contest may have seemed more appealing than one for a Coconut Festival. Perhaps it's a local favorite, an exaltation of the earth or the simple things in life. Might just be a great logo for a fun T-shirt design.

Whether a concrete reason for choosing the blueberry as the festival's namesake exists or not is surely unimportant, because the spirit of the function transcends specifics. Anyone who has never attended a county or state fair in the Midwest might not be able to understand the general feeling of good will that it emits. Visitors were greeted personally when they came, and thanked when they left.

Children with catsup-stained faces smiled and ran on to ferris wheels. Parents could forget the real world for a few hours and enjoy what is still fun and uncomplicated in the world. The nation's heartland threw a party and all were invited, and for one brief moment, a festival-goer might even think this is what life is all about. Who cares if it's really hot and extremely crowded, or even if the money inside a wallet dissolves into nothing but corn dogs and cotton candy? Memories remain. All that exists now of the Blueberry Festival is being swept up on the grounds of Centennial Park and thrown away. The carnival rides have thrilled their last child and the hot air balloons have landed. Lost, scared little kids have found their parents and gone home. Chocolate milkshakes replace their fruity, blue cousins, and Plymouth's high school playing fields are no longer being used for parking lots. Somewhere in Indiana however, someone thinks of next year, and hopes that the 1997 blueberry fields will hurry up and blossom.

A sea of choices at Activities Night

By MELANIE WATERS
Assistant Accent Editor

After a full week of classes, meetings, assignments and socializing, one question remains: what to do with all that extra time on your hands? Student activities has the answer at Activities Night 1996 tonight at the JACC. Freshmen and upperclassmen alike can meet representatives from over 200 student clubs and organizations, as well as enjoy demonstrations from campus athletic groups and performing ensembles.

According to Student Activities Programming Director Gail Spencer, this year's activity fair will feature demonstrations from eight groups, including the Tae Kwon Do and Judo clubs and the Ballet Folklorico Azul Y Oro. Student groups registered to participate in Activities Night last spring, making this year's event once again filled to capacity.

Activities Night offers opportunities for everyone, from musicians to athletes and everything in between. While some exhibitors may have already held auditions or sign-ups, most of the organizations will be actively recruiting enthusiastic new members. The gymnastics club, rowing club and ski team, for example, rely on the turn out at activities night as they assemble their respective squads for the year.

According to junior gymnastics club member Paul Burke, the team is one of the largest athletic groups on campus and always welcomes new members. "We encourage absolutely everyone to join," Burke said. "We even provide coaching regardless of skill level, and the chance to compete at Nationals in the spring." At their first trip to Nationals last year, the men's team placed 7th in the country, so the team has high expectations once again this year.

Students looking to become active in an academically oriented group will have an array of options to pursue, including the Marketing Club, the Arts & Letters Business Society, the Notre Dame Council on International Business Development, the Pre-Law Society and the Physics Club. Multicultural organizations are also diversely represented, including the African Students' Association, the Asian International Society, the Japan Club, the Italian Club and La Alianza.

For students in search of a musical outlet for the stress of academic life, ensembles of all sizes and specialties will be on hand to greet prospective auditionees. From the Voices of Faith Gospel ensemble to the song and dance of Shenanigans to the chimes of the handbell choir, students can explore travel opportunities, practice times, and musical samples of groups they might be interested in joining.

Or, students can waltz over to the Ballroom Dance club, which usually maintains over 60 members and offers weekly lessons by a professional instructor, according to member Ed McCoul. This might be helpful to note if you weren't one of the lucky few who actually got into social dance in gym. The swing really does come in handy at SYRs!

As far as volunteer opportunities, Campus Ministry and the Center for Social Concerns will have information concerning many service projects and programs, such as Urban Plunge, Summer Service Projects, the Neighborhood Study Help Program and the Northeast Neighborhood Association. Other community service programs include the Logan Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, the Center for the Homeless and Habitat for Humanity.

Finally, many campus media organizations will also be looking for new contributors. The Observer, Scholastic Magazine and the Dome are recruiting writers and editors, and WSND, Notre Dame's FM radio station, is hoping to find interested announcers and newscasters. Station manager Nate Rackiewicz said, "It's a great opportunity for people to chase down their dreams. There's no experience necessary, and we really encourage people of all backgrounds to get involved."

Feeling overwhelmed at the vast expanse of choices? Spencer's advice to Activity Night novices is to think about your interests in advance to avoid wandering aimlessly amid the sea of tables. "Think about what you want to do first," Spencer said. "Don't sign up for 20 things, but instead talk to a bunch of people, then go home and make your final choices."

WEB SITE OF THE WEEK

WEB THE VOTE '96

By JASON HUGGINS
World Wide Web Correspondent

As much as I hate politics and political parties, this will be my first opportunity to have a 1/250,000,000 voice in picking our next president. Like most of the country, I have completely ignored the election coverage in the media for the last year. But this is sort of a big decision, so starting today I will start caring.

Okay, so I care, what now? The first thing I need to do is register to vote. I had a tough time registering two years ago for the California state and federal senate election. Being far from home, I didn't know where to get the registration form, who should send it to me, and where to get the information. I'm sure if I wasn't worrying about failing my first Chemistry exam, I might have had the time to find the answers.

You don't have to thank me now, but I'm helping you out this year. Through the Internet you can now register online by accessing NetVote'96 (netvote96.mci.com). It's the first major online voter registration site on the web. You simply select what state you're from (i.e. California, if you're from California), complete and submit the online form, and in two to three weeks you'll be sent your official voter registration application card via snail-mail. Once you sign it and put it back in the mailbox, THAT'S IT!

The wonderful people to thank for this cool idea are the 102nd Congress, President Clinton and the Motor Voter Coalition, a collection of non-partisan groups, such as Rock the Vote, the League of Women Voters, HumanServe, the NAACP and others. The Motor Voter Bill finally allows one uniform voter registration form than can be used to register voters in all the 50 states. That means it's now REALLY, REALLY EASY!! So do it!

I'm registered. What now? Election coverage on the 'Net. I was surprised when I found PoliticsNow (www.politicsnow.com). This site has an impressive collection of news, opinion, and commentaries from around the country. This site also has enough public opinion polls, statistics, graphs, and analysis to make my statistics professor jump up and sing "Happy, Happy, Joy, Joy!" Of course, all news is biased, so shop around for your online political information.

To be fair, I have to mention the official home pages of the candidates. Even though the sites are blatant propaganda, they do offer cool free stuff. At the Clinton/Gore'96 home page (www.cg96.org), be sure to download your personal copy of the Clinton/Gore'96 screen saver. And while visiting the Dole/Kemp'96 home page (www.dole96.com) don't forget to read "The Bob Dole Story." I laughed, I cried... I laughed some more. And last, but not least, if Perot ever figures out what to do with his life, you can track his political escapades at the official Perot/Powell wonder-page (www.perotpowell96.org).

My favorite election site of all, however, has to be the Political Futures Market at the University of Iowa (www.biz.uiowa.edu/iem/). Here you can legally bet real money on the outcome of the '96 election and other political events. When people put their money where their mouth is, you see a far more accurate voter poll.

In the 1992 Presidential election, the Iowa Political Futures Market accurately predicted Clinton's total vote percentage within .01%. Also, if your favorite candidate wins, you win, too.

As He-Man once said, "I have the power!" You, too, have the power—the power of knowledge to make an informed voting decision. Happy voting. And don't forget to register!

MEDICAL MINUTE

Allergy alert!

By LARRY WARD
Medical Minute Correspondent

For millions of people across the country, and for hundreds of students, back to school time means back to the long, dreary, dismal days of yet another allergy season. Unfortunately, this year is going to be no exception for allergy sufferers. Yes, that means that many of us are going to wake up each morning to a throbbing headache, an incredibly stuffed-up nose, watery eyes, and maybe (if we are really lucky) some wheezing or some dry skin and chapped lips.

These symptoms are the sign of the official peak of the allergy season which hits during the months of September and October in our area of the country.

An allergy is an abnormal reaction that a person has to one or a combination of several substances (such as foods, colognes or soaps) or environmental conditions. The key to an allergy though is that the conditions which cause the allergy in one person are completely harmless to most other people. Thus, allergic reactions are referred to by doctors as "hypersensitivity" reactions.

Allergy attacks are initiated when a person comes into contact with something known as antigens or allergens. Allergens are proteins which are water-soluble. Thus, these allergens easily penetrate our mucous membranes and the skin.

Most people tend to believe that allergy attacks occur upon first exposure to any particular allergen. False! Allergy attacks occur after a person has become sensitized to a particular allergen after exposure to it over a period of weeks, months, or even years. Sensitization is the term that physicians use to refer to this time period.

Unfortunately, after one has become sensitized to a particular allergen, allergy symptoms will develop every time that the allergy sufferer comes into contact with the pesky little allergen. In fact, once a person has completed the ever-important sensitization period, it takes only a trace amount of the allergen to trigger an allergic response; hence the reason why so many of us wake up perfectly fine each morning and about one minute later it feels like we are breathing through mud!

How do allergens gain entrance to our bodies? Actually, it is very simple; we either inhale, swallow or absorb them through our skin or mucous membranes. Since pollens are easily inhaled, respiratory allergies occur. Doctors commonly refer to this condition, which is properly known as allergic rhinitis, as hay fever since the "sickness" is the direct result of plant pollen.

Our bodies are fully equipped to respond to allergens. Specialized white blood cells known as lymphocytes are used in our body's defense against allergens. Two types of these lymphocytes exist to combat allergies. The T lymphocyte operates by completely surrounding the foreign invaders and then secreting chemicals to mediate and destroy the invader. Then the T lymphocyte recruits additional white blood cells to the affected area resulting in a full out combat on the allergen.

The other lymphocyte that our body uses to battle allergens is the B lymphocyte. Upon stimulation by an allergen or antigen, B lymphocytes transform into a different kind of cell known as a plasma cell. These plasma cells have the capacity to produce and release antibodies into the blood stream. Antibodies work rapidly to render the allergens inactive and hasten the removal of antigens from the body.

What exactly is the underlying root of the peak of the allergy season during the end of the summer and early autumn? As mentioned earlier, pollen, microscopic, fertilizing, cells used in the reproductive cycles of many plants and trees is the main cause of allergic rhinitis. However, mold spores are also a dominant cause of respiratory allergies.

Mold spores are part of a parasitic organism known as a fungus. Unfortunately, mold grows on corn, wheat and oats which are the primary vegetation in the grain-producing Midwestern states. During the end of the summer and the beginning of autumn, the amount of pollen and mold spores spread through the air tends to be particularly high. This is why so many of us tend to have more severe allergic responses this time of year.

Scientists and meteorologists are predicting an above allergy season for the Midwest and the East Coast this fall; in other words, allergy symptoms will likely be worse this year for sufferers than in previous years. To help your body combat this allergy season, you can buy any of the numerous over-the-counter medicines, such as Tavist-D or Tylenol Allergy and Sinus, or if your allergies happen to be particularly severe, you can ask your physician to prescribe a more potent medication, such as the new drug Claritin.

Cone hurls gem in comeback

By ROB GLOSTER
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. As he walked off the mound after each hitless inning, David Cone looked above the Yankees' dugout to catch the gaze of his dad. It was a sight he says he'll never forget.

Cone's first start since aneurysm was removed from his pitching arm four months ago was dramatic — and nearly historic. But he says his last memories of the game will be those images of his father.

Cone, coming back from shoulder surgery that some thought might end his season, pitched seven hitless innings Monday in New York's 5-0 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

His chance to join Mariano Rivera on the first combined no-hitter in the major leagues since 1991 was ruined when Jose Herrera beat out an infield single with one out in the ninth.

Ed Cone, who coached David in Little League, flew from Kansas City to Oakland to watch his son's comeback game. David didn't know until Sunday night that his dad would be at the game.

"I can't remember a major-league game where I could make eye contact with my dad," Cone said. "I felt, 'Oh geesh, there's my dad,' and I kept wondering if he was going to yell at me for hanging a pitch or something. I'm going to remember my father being in the first row more than anything."

Cone, whose fingers were numb and blue after his previous start on May 2, struck out six and walked three before Yankees manager Joe Torre and pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre decided to remove him after 85 pitches.

Cone (5-1) had been on a 100-pitch limit, but allowed two hard-hit balls in the bottom of the seventh after the Yankees had a long inning while scoring three in the top of that inning.

"If Joe was going to leave the decision to me, I'm going back out there and throwing caution to the wind," Cone said. "I think Mel and Joe did the right thing, trying to protect me."

Torre said his decision wasn't difficult.

"I could not let the no-hitter cloud what we set out to do," Torre said. "If I leave him in and he throws 105 or 106 pitches and wakes up with a sore arm tomorrow, I'd never forgive myself for that."

A couple of fine defensive plays in the seventh kept the no-hitter alive. Third baseman Charlie Hayes dived to his right to snare a grounder by Mark McGwire, and Bernie Williams reached over the center-field fence to rob the next batter, Geronimo Berroa, of a homer.

Rivera retired the A's in order in the eighth and got Mike Bordick on a grounder to shortstop on his first pitch of the ninth.

Herrera, a speedy rookie, then slapped a grounder that went under a diving Hayes at third. Shortstop Derek Jeter made the throw from the outfield grass and first baseman Tino Martinez stretched for it, but Herrera slid into the base with the A's only hit.

Torre argued with first base umpire Larry McCoy that Herrera failed to beat the throw, but Cone — who showed no emotion in the dugout as Herrera got the hit — said McCoy's call was correct.

Tony Batista struck out and Jason Giambi hit into a game-ending fielder's choice.

After a sluggish first inning in which he walked two, Cone overwhelmed an A's team on pace to break the major-league record for homers in a season. He overpowered the A's with fastballs and sliders, and fooled them with breaking pitches that had some Oakland batters totally off balance.

Cone, who had two rehabilitation starts in the minors late last month, threw just 11 of 17 pitches over the plate in the first inning, but got McGwire to pop out to end the inning.

Cone got stronger after that, finishing the second by striking out Terry Steinbach on a slider. He needed just nine pitches in the third, and struck Berroa out to end the fourth after he walked Giambi with one out.

Cecil Fielder hit his 33rd homer, a solo shot in the eighth, and drove in another run when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded in the sixth. Fielder reached 100 RBIs for the fourth time in his career.

Hayes hit a solo shot as the Yankees scored three in the seventh. It was Hayes' first homer since joining the Yankees last Friday in a trade with the Pittsburgh Pirates. He had 10 homers for the Pirates.

Ariel Prieto (4-7) allowed four runs on eight hits in 6 1-3 innings for the Athletics.

Oliver, Reds rally to beat first place Braves

By JOE KAY
Associated Press

CINCINNATI

Curtis Goodwin drove in the go-ahead run with a bases-loaded bunt single in the seventh inning as the Cincinnati Reds overcame a five-run deficit Monday night and beat the Atlanta Braves 7-6.

Cincinnati fell behind 5-0 in the second inning before rallying for only its third victory in its last 18 games against Atlanta.

Joe Oliver tied the game 5-5 with a two-run homer in the fifth and had a single in the Reds' go-ahead rally against Greg McMichael (5-3). Eduardo Perez's leadoff single, Oliver's hit and an intentional walk to Lenny Harris loaded the bases.

Goodwin, the fastest player on the Reds' roster, came to bat with two outs and bunted up the first-base line. McMichael fielded the ball with his bare hand and rushed an underhand throw to first baseman Fred McGriff, who could not handle the high toss. Goodwin was safe with a single and Oliver continued home on McMichael's throwing error for a 7-5 lead.

Jeff Shaw (6-5) pitched a perfect seventh inning to get the win. Lee Smith gave up Terry Pendleton's solo homer in the eighth, and Jeff Brantley pitched the ninth for his 37th save in 42 chances.

The Braves could have been up by much more than five runs early, but stranded eight runners in the first four innings — five in scoring position.

Cincinnati rallied as unbeaten Terrell Wade lasted just 2 1-3 innings. Wade gave up two hits, including Perez's solo homer, but walked seven, including four in a row in the third inning to cut the lead to 5-2.

Dean Hartgraves gave up an RBI single to Goodwin in the fourth, and Oliver hit a game-tying two-run homer in the fifth off Joe Borowski.

Marquis Grissom had four hits to emerge from an 0-for-12 slump and help the Braves get the early lead. Atlanta batted around for four runs in the first off Giovanni Carrara, who lasted just 1 2-3 innings. Grissom tripled, Terry Pendleton doubled and Chipper Jones and McGriff followed with singles for a 2-0 lead with no one out.

Left fielder Kevin Mitchell then tried to make a knee-high basket catch on Ryan Klesko's sinking liner, but missed the ball for an error that allowed two more runs for a 4-0 lead.

Grissom led off the second with his career-high 20th homer.

Notes Braves right fielder Jermaine Dye reached over the right-field wall to rob Bret Boone of a three-run homer in the first. ... The Braves activated pitcher Steve Avery, who had been on the disabled list since July 19 with a pulled muscle in his side. ... Greg Maddux will miss his start scheduled for Tuesday because of a tender hamstring that forced him out of his win last Thursday against Pittsburgh. Mike Bielecki will start instead. ... Eric Davis was out of the Reds' lineup with a sore left elbow. He was hit by a pitch Sunday, but X-rays were negative.

Bears bash 'Boys, 22-6

By MIKE NADEL
Associated Press

CHICAGO

The Dallas Cowboys' season-opener was already lost. Then the defending Super Bowl champions really lost Monday night, as four-time NFL rushing champion Emmitt Smith was carted off the field with an injury.

By the time Smith got hurt while diving over the top of defenders after a fake handoff with 3:41 to go, the Cowboys already were beaten by the Bears. Chicago used two trick plays and an intense defensive effort to win 22-6.

The initial announcement was that Smith had pain up and down his back but had movement of all his extremities as he went for precautionary X-rays.

Deion Sanders lived up to his reputation as a prime-time player in becoming the NFL's first two-way starter in three decades. Even his participation in 107 plays wasn't enough, however, to keep the Cowboys from losing their opener for only the second time in seven years.

Raymont Harris caught three passes for 103 yards and was on the receiving end of both of Chicago's trick plays. The Bears' defense contained a Dallas offense that obviously missed suspended receiver Michael Irvin and injured tight end Jay Novacek.

The Bears, whose defensive collapse cost the team a playoff spot last season, held Smith to 70 yards on 18 carries and hounded quarterback Troy Aikman all game. The defense clinched the victory with 8:47 to play, when Aikman fumbled as he was sacked by blitzing Kevin Miniefield and Bryan Cox recovered in the end zone for a 22-3 lead.

Smith got hurt on Dallas' next possession, landing on his neck and shoulder as he came down to the Soldier Field turf. The game was delayed for about 10 minutes as medical personnel immobilized Smith's body and carefully lifted him onto a motorized cart.

It was a horrible ending to a horrific game for the Cowboys, who played nothing like champions and failed to score a touchdown in a game for the first time since the 1991 playoffs.

And twice, Dallas was easily fooled by the Bears' trickery.

Chicago took a 7-3 lead when Harris caught a 33-yard touchdown pass from receiver Curtis Conway, a high school quarterback, with 3:31 left in the first half. And punter Todd Sauerbrun found a wide-open Harris for a 47-yard pass to set up Carlos Huerta's 31-yard field goal to make it 10-3 at halftime.

After a scoreless third quarter, Huerta made a 42-yard field goal to put the Bears up 13-3. Sanders, who played almost all game, then made his critical mistake, fumbling as he reached with the football for extra yardage after catching a short pass from Aikman.

Walt Harris, the Bears' top draft pick, made the tackle and recovered the fumble to set up Huerta's 34-yard field goal for a 16-3 lead.

The victory came in Chicago coach Dave Wannstedt's first game against his former club. He was Dallas' defensive coordinator under Jimmy Johnson before taking the Bears' job in 1993.

Chris Boniol's 28-yard field goal put Dallas ahead in the first quarter. It was his 26th straight dating to last season, tying him with Norm Johnson for the third-longest streak in NFL history. But the streak ended in the second quarter when he was wide left from 43 yards.

Two 11-yard passes by Erik Kramer put the Bears on the Dallas 33 and Chicago pulled off its first bit of chicanery.

Conway took a handoff on what appeared to be a reverse, stopped, and heaved a pass down the left sideline. Harris simply waited for the ball to come down, caught it at the 2 in front of linebacker Darrin Smith, and backed into the end zone.

Aikman was then intercepted by Marty Carter, who returned the ball 29 yards to the Dallas 39. The Bears failed to gain on three plays and lined up for a punt. Instead of a punt, however, it was Trick Play No. 2. Sauerbrun took the snap and passed to Harris.

The Observer/Rob Finch

Irish alumnus Jim Flannigan helped Chicago's defense to deny the Cowboys a touchdown for the first time since the 1991 playoffs.

Kicker

PAT's attempted on the season. Consequently, when Holtz blamed the kicking game for three of the five losses, Cengia was the one on the hot seat.

Following the 1994 campaign, the Irish did something they had not done in years — they signed one of the nation's top kickers in Florida native Kevin Kopka.

Kopka's commitment seemed to spell the end of Cengia, especially when Kopka won the starting job early on in 1995. But like Schreffner, Kopka also struggled, and one more time, Cengia stalked to the rescue.

Beginning with last year's Boston College game, Cengia handled all field goal and PAT duties in phenomenal fashion, converting three field goals against Air Force to finish five-of-five on the season and 12-of-12 on extra-point attempts.

However, the accolades earned by Cengia never stopped Irish recruiters from searching for another kicker. When national signing day came around in February of 1996, Notre Dame had landed another quality marksman, Jim Sanson, and Cengia found his job in jeopardy again.

"I had heard about this freshman Sanson who would be coming and I wanted to work hard. I wanted the team to know I was best for the job."

Two days into spring drills, Cengia was struck with a fever of "unknown origin," as team physician Dr. Moriarity called it. He lost 20 pounds, and was forced to sit out most of the spring.

After being in the hospital and recovering from the mysterious virus, Cengia life-guarded during the day, then worked out often with his brother and his dad at a nearby gym, trying to improve his distance and accuracy.

"At Culver, Jim [Sanson] and I competed each day, waiting for the final nod. I won the job recently, but whether I'm kicking or Jim's kicking, as long as we win the national championship, I'm happy."

Solid placekickers breed national champions. The last time Notre Dame had a solid kicker was 1993, when the Irish decimated the first-ranked Seminoles on the way to an 11-1 season. Scott Cengia is back, with confidence.

Favre proves critics wrong in opener

By ARNIE STAPLETON
Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis.

Brett Favre impressed even the president of the United States.

President Clinton was in Wisconsin on a campaign tour Monday and took a quick detour to Lambeau Field, where he met briefly with the Green Bay Packers.

Clinton chatted with Favre, who battled an addiction to painkillers in the offseason.

Patting him on the shoulder, Clinton commended the quarterback for his ability to "show up and do your best" on Sunday, when Favre threw four touchdown passes against Tampa Bay in the season opener. Favre figures the two will meet again — at the White House if Clinton wins re-election and the Packers win the Super Bowl.

Clinton told the Packers they were a lot like him: favored to win it all. But he warned them not to get cocky or complacent.

"He's right. It's a long season," flanker Robert Brooks said. "But Brett is back and he's the same ol' Brett, just like we said he was."

Favre couldn't wait to show all the doubters that his 46-day stay in a drug rehab center for his addiction to Vicodin didn't sap him of the qualities that made him the MVP last season.

"I think that question is answered. I had no doubts about myself," Favre said. "I had no doubts about myself. I told you a long time ago, 'Bet against me.' Well, I don't know where your money is."

Not even the president would take that wager.

Granted it was only the Buccaneers he dissected 34-3, but Favre, who was rusty in the preseason, resembled the MVP quarterback who took the Packers to the cusp of the Super Bowl last year.

Favre completed 20 of 27 passes — and three of those were drops — for 247 yards. He was undaunted behind an offensive line that came in hobbling, was loose in the pocket, located his third and fourth receivers and didn't throw an interception while putting his trademark zip on his stinging passes.

■ MEN'S SOCCER

Wildcats provide Irish with golden opportunity

Berticelli and company look to remain unbeaten

BY DYLAN BARMMER
Assistant Sports Editor

There's an old familiar saying that goes something like "Home is where the heart is." Last season, this saying couldn't have been more true for the Notre Dame men's soccer team.

The Irish posted an impressive 8-3 record at the friendly confines of Alumni Field last season, while tallying a disastrous 1-7 record on foreign soil.

While these highly contradictory records stymied the Irish last season, it is important to note that the new-look Irish are looking to the present without dwelling on the past.

"Our focus right now is to play as well as we can," commented head coach Mike Berticelli. "We're taking things one game at a time."

This approach has proven successful to the Irish so far this season, allowing them to perhaps exorcise some road demons and iron out a few kinks with an impressive 1-0 shutout of Big East rival Providence in Rhode Island last weekend. Now the Irish begin a four game homestand with their match against Northwestern tonight at Alumni Field.

The less than spectacular Wildcats, who finished 4-13-1 last season and are off to an 0-1 start this season, should provide a solid opportunity for the Irish to continue to decide on their lineup, as well as begin to establish a home field advantage for the season.

"It's good to get off to a good start at home," commented sophomore goalkeeper Greg Velho. "It's important for us to win our first game at home and set a standard for the season."

Berticelli, while agreeing on the importance of playing well at home, is not looking past the Wildcats, and maintains that what is important is getting the most out of his team.

"You always tend to be at an advantage playing at home," said Berticelli. "Our biggest concern right now, however, is establishing who is going to play where on the field, not whose field we're going to play on."

The starting roles throughout the Irish lineup remain up in the air, with most, if not all, of the certainties being concentrated in the backfield.

The defensive combination of Velho, sweeper Brian Engesser, marking backs Peter Gansler and Alan Woods and defensive midfielder Matt Johnson seems pretty much a lock at this moment, especially after a very solid performance against Providence. Their continued solid play and eventual progress will be a key element in the team's success this season.

"We need to keep playing good team defense to be successful," commented Velho, who registered the fourth shutout of his collegiate career last weekend. "Every game, we want to continue to play better defense."

Berticelli agrees with his goalkeeper, and seems confident in the defense's potential this season.

"I'm confident that we will be organized and strong defensively," stated Berticelli. "Our goal down the road is to establish a strong defense, which will lead to a successful offense."

Much of the remainder of the lineup, particularly at the forward position, remains uncertain, with the only sure thing being that Berticelli has many options to choose from.

"We're going to jumble things around until we come up with the best combination," commented Berticelli.

Chances are that combination may include freshman forward Ryan Cox, who has been hampered a bit by a preseason ankle injury.

"Ryan Cox is a talented kid," said Berticelli of the high school Parade All-American. "He will certainly evolve into a key player for us."

Berticelli remains confident that the entire team will evolve along with Cox, eventually developing into a team that will be successful - both on the road and at home.

■ WOMEN'S SOCCER

Defending champs dominate

Women shutout
Eagles, FriarsBy KATHLEEN LOPEZ
Sports Writer

This weekend the women's soccer team started their trek back to claiming the NCAA title. If there were any doubts about the defending national champions defense, this weekend they were silenced. The Irish shutout both Providence and Boston College, and showed that yet again they will be a major powerhouse.

On Saturday, the Irish took on the Friars and came out victorious, 14-0. The Irish defense showed its strength by not allowing the Friars to take a single shot the entire game.

The squad followed up their victory on Sunday by dismissing the Eagles on their home turf, 6-0. Senior goalkeeper Jen Renola did manage to get some form of a workout in this game, posting six saves.

This weekend the team was paced by senior forward Amy VanLaecke. VanLaecke racked up five goals this past weekend. She had a hat trick against Providence, followed by two goals against Boston College.

"She played awesome," stated sophomore Monica Gerardo. "She is a really hard worker and she is very talented. This weekend she put away all her opportunities."

Notre Dame's main goal was to focus on their defense. Freshman Jen Grubb stepped into the starting line-up this past weekend at the sweeper position and the defense was trying to coordinate and work out the problem areas. Grubb immediately showed her versatility by being solid on the back line and scoring in the Boston College game.

"We were solid defensively," stated head coach Chris Petrucelli. "We were not tested that much. The few times people did break through, we shut them down rather quickly."

The other top scorer this weekend was Gerardo, who also had a hat trick against the Friars to go with two assists in the BC game. Last year Gerardo paced the Irish in scoring with 20 goals.

Petrucelli discussed Gerardo and VanLaecke's performance.

"It was a good weekend. These games gave us a great deal of confidence. Also we showed that we are a talented group."

Grubb was not the only freshman making an impact. Freshmen Jenny Streiffer showed no qualms about her collegiate debut as she posted two goals and five assists on the weekend.

"I was pretty nervous because

The Observer/Mike Ruma

Senior forward Amy VanLaecke led an unstoppable Irish attack this weekend with five goals in two Big East games.

I changed positions," said Streiffer. "The team knew what I was going through, so they helped me out."

Her teammate, freshman Kara Brown, also had an impact. Brown assisted in two of the goals against Providence. Also freshman Jenny Heft managed to get in on the action by chalking up an assist and a goal.

"It was hard to judge ourselves, because of the opponents," said Gerardo. "After this coming weekend, we will be able to judge ourselves."

The Irish are already looking ahead to their next opponent. The home opener is set for this Friday against the Wisconsin Badgers. The Irish will have a tough weekend because on Sunday, they will face thirteenth-ranked Washington.

Veteran Cengia overcomes early season adversityJunior kicker steps up to win starting role over underclassmenBy T. RYAN KENNEDY
Sports Writer

November 12, 1994 was a grim day for kicker Scott Cengia and Notre Dame football. The Irish, on the verge of stifling the Seminoles for the second straight year, had knotted the game at 16 with less than five minutes to play. Cengia trotted onto the field for the extra-point attempt, but he booted the ball off the upright.

The Irish momentum vanished as quickly as Ron Powlus had zipped the tying pass to Derrick Mayes in the corner of the end zone, and the Seminoles danced to victory 23-16.

Now almost two years later, Scott Cengia remains Notre Dame's number-one placekicker. He has watched walk-on after walk-on attempt to claim his position. He has watched Notre Dame recruit the nation's top high school placekickers in Kevin Kopka and Jim Sanson. He sat back as Kopka took his turn, then Sanson. Yet still, Cengia is "the Man."

"Basically it was just a matter of settling down," said Cengia. "The position [kicker] is 70 percent mental. But I know I have to go in and make a kick no matter what. I can't worry anymore. I'm just doing my part."

Like his predecessor Kevin Pendergast, Cengia also walked on from the varsity soccer team, securing the back-up slot behind Stefan Schroffner. But when Schroffner muffed a 21-yarder against Purdue in the fourth game of the 1994 season, Holtz gave Cengia the nod.

Though Cengia hit a 31-yarder later in the same game, he went on to hit only 5-of-8 field goals attempted and 4 of 7

With expertise provided by Notre Dame faculty on various issues facing the American electorate, the series will be a vehicle for dialogue and discussion. ## Computer cluster access to directory of Center for Social Concerns service programs

There is a complete hypercard directory of service groups and community agencies on the Notre Dame computer network. The service projects are arranged according to type of service. It is menu driven so that you can select programs that are interesting to you. Anyone can access this by following these directions:

- On all Macintosh computers in the computer clusters there is an icon in the upper right hand corner labeled CMS A. Open that icon.
- Open the file called Courseware
- Open the file called Other

- Select the file labeled The Center for Social Concerns
- When you then open the file called A Guide to CSC Programs. If you will receive a message that the environment does not support color, just click OK and proceed with the interactive program.

Information about various programs at the Center for Social Concerns is available on this program. For the community service directory, select Service and Social Action Groups from the main menu.

ACADEMIC COURSES/EXPERIENTIAL SEMINARS

All courses and the experiential and service-learning seminars listed on this page are developed and coordinated by Center faculty and staff. They are offered through these academic departments: Theology, American Studies, Gender Studies, Peace Studies, Psychology and Sociology. Information meetings for the courses will be announced. Contact the Center for more details.

THE CHURCH AND SOCIAL ACTION (THEO 365C) ("URBAN PLUNGE")

This course includes a 48-hour immersion into the kind of life most Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students seldom see. Over 358 students made an Urban Plunge during early January 1996.

The purpose of the course is to experience injustice, apathy and poverty; to increase awareness of people who are working to improve these situations; and to witness and reflect on ways to address Gospel concerns regarding the oppressed. (1 credit)

APPALACHIA SEMINAR (THEO 361)

Each Fall and Spring break approximately 110 students travel to the Appalachia region of Kentucky and West Virginia. Students spend the week working side by side with the people of the mountains. Through physical labor and person-to-person contacts, students experience the cultural richness of the area and begin to understand and analyze the social forces that influence the lives of the mountain people. (1 credit)

WASHINGTON SEMINAR (THEO 363, GOVT 496)

Approximately 22 students travel each semester break to the nation's capital to explore crucial issues of the day from a variety of perspectives. In Washington, they meet with the decision-makers, members of congress, ambassadors and church leaders. On-campus preparation, on-site experience and follow-up reflection combine to create a unique learning opportunity. (1 credit, Theo. or Govt.)

CULTURAL DIVERSITY SEMINAR (THEO 362, SOC 362)

This seminar explores the rich cultural heritage of Chicago's ethnic neighborhoods and immigrant tradition. The corresponding problems of urban life and racism also are examined during the semester break experience. (1 credit, Theo. or Soc., Fall semester)

SOCIAL CONCERNS SEMINAR: L'ARCHE COMMUNITY (THEO 368)

This seminar centers on participation over break in the L'Arche Community (founded by Jean Vanier). Students explore issues of disability through active involvement. (1 credit, Spring semester)

LEADERSHIP ISSUES SEMINAR (THEO 369)

The Leadership Issues Seminar is designed for students working in a leadership capacity promoting community service or social action. (1 credit)

MIGRANT EXPERIENCES SEMINAR (THEO 368)

Offers a unique immersion into the lives of migrant farm workers in Florida during the spring harvest. Students work in the fields, live with migrant families, and assist agencies that serve workers. (1 credit, Spring semester)

MEXICO SEMINAR (THEO 366)

Provides an international service opportunity through a two week Immersion (during the last two weeks of May) in Oaxaca, Mexico. (1 credit; applications available in Fall)

EL SALVADOR SEMINAR (THEO 371)

Provides an international service opportunity through a two week immersion (during the last two weeks of May) in El Salvador. (1 credit; applications available in Fall)

ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES SEMINAR (THEO)

Provides opportunities for students to challenge and deepen their understanding of environmental issues through direct experiential involvements. (1 credit, Spring semester)

OTHER SEMINARS include East Africa and Holy Cross Seminar. (1 credit each)

REFLECTIONS ON SERVICE (THEO 360) (SUMMER SERVICE PROJECTS)

The Summer Service Projects are eight week sessions of community service facilitated by Alumni Clubs all over the country. During the summer of 1996, 175 Notre Dame students took part in this experience. A tuition scholarship is awarded to each participating student, provided by the Alumni Clubs, the James F. Andrews Endowment and other endowment funds. Students work in shelters for the homeless, soup kitchens, homes for abused children, spouse abuse shelters, Headstart programs, camps for inner city children, etc. (3 credits)

THREE CREDIT COURSES BY CENTER FACULTY

In addition to the many seminars graded (S/U), there are multidisciplinary courses by Center faculty in various departments:

Reading and reflection on issues raised by service experiences. Courses include:

Don McNeill, C.S.C., Ph.D. and Staff - Theology and Community Service (THEO 273)

Theology and Social Ministry (THEO 274)

Study and analysis of contemporary issues of justice and peace. Courses include:

Jay Brandenberger, Ph.D. - Children and Poverty: Developmental Implications (PSY 405)

- Learning for Change: Alternative Pedagogies and Moral Imagination (PSY 406)

Kathleen Maas Weigert, Ph.D. - Introduction to Peace Studies (IIPS 320)

Power and Change in America (AMST 493, IIPS 493)

PEACE AND JUSTICE PROGRAMMING

The Center sponsors or co-sponsors a variety of creative peace and justice programs throughout the year, including films, panels, invited speakers and performing arts. Each opportunity focuses on an important issue of social concern (e.g., racism, poverty, the environment).

POST-GRADUATE SERVICE OPPORTUNITIES

Workshops, seminars and other meetings enable seniors to consider the integration of service into their chosen careers and/or the advantages of a year or two of volunteer service, e.g., Peace Corps, Holy Cross Associates. Contact Maureen Skurski (631-5293).

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

... include, as resources allow, service-learning trips to the rural south, and to Holy Cross Mission sites in the U.S., Mexico, and Africa. Student leadership plays a key role in developing unique learning opportunities.

THE FACULTY AND CENTER ACTIVITIES

The special focus of our opportunities designed for faculty during the 1996-1997 academic year will be on "service-learning" and the ways in which it can be incorporated into courses and research. Through one-on-one consultation, class visits and a fall "Service Learning Fair." We hope to work with those faculty who want to link their teaching and/or research with community collaborators. Faculty will have the opportunity to participate with students in the Social Concerns Seminar: Appalachia over Fall and Spring breaks.

Faculty are a vital resource to the CSC as well. They serve as facilitators for the course, The Church and Social Action ("Urban Plunge"), opening their homes for a one-evening gathering to provide students with an occasion to reflect on and extend their analysis of the "Urban Plunge" experience. Many faculty serve in a similar role for the course, Reflections on Service (Summer Service Projects). They are speakers for our various cross-listed experiential learning courses, advisors to the service and social action groups, and offer directed readings on related social concerns topics.

Faculty interested in getting involved in any of these opportunities are encouraged to contact Dr. Kathleen Maas Weigert (phone: 631-5319 or e-mail: Kathleen.M.Weigert.2@nd.edu).

CSC, CAMPUS MINISTRY, ALUMNI ASSOCIATION COLLABORATIONS

The desire for a deeper integration of faith and action in the lives of Notre Dame students and alumni/ae has led Campus Ministry, the Alumni Association and the Center for Social Concerns to work towards more creative and public collaborations. In moving towards this goal, Rev. Mr. Jim Lies, C.S.C., serves as Campus Ministry's liaison with the Center and Jim Paladino as the Center's liaison with Campus Ministry, and Ed Trifone, Director of the Alumni Community Service Programs coordinates Alumni Association interaction with the Center's Sue Cunningham.
