Mother preaches tolerance

Judy Shepard doesn't expect her work end anytime soon, although the gay rights activist wishes she were out of a job.

"I know that good things are going to happen," Shepard told a rapt Notre Dame audience Thursday, "and they're going to happen soon. And I'll be out of work, but that's a good thing," she said.

Shepard, whose son, Matthew, died in a highly publicized October 1998 anti-gay hate crime, spoke before a capacity crowd of about 200 students, faculty, staff and South Bend residents.

The University's Standing Committee on Gay and Lesbian Student Needs sponsored the talk to promote campus unity with homosexual and bisexual members of the Notre Dame community.

Shepard on Thursday delivered an emotional speech that inspired tears as readily as it did laughs from the Hesburgh Library Auditorium gathering.

As Shepard read from a victim-impact statement she gave during sentencing of one of her son's killers, many students sobbed openly and wiped tears from their faces.

"I'll never understand why anyone would want to hurt Matt," she read from the April 1999 statement. "Such an act of cruelty is incomprehensible"

Matthew Shepard died after two men beat, robbed and left him tied to a fence in the Wyoming prarie.

Each man is now serving two life sentences in prison.

Shepard said she didn't hold the men ultimately responsible for her 21-year-old son's

"I blame society for what happened to Matt," she said.

Judy Shepard spoke to a crowd of 200 students, faculty, staff and South Bend residents Thursday night about the murder of her son Matthew, who was killed in a highly-publicized anti-gay hate crime in October 1998. Shepard said she blames society for the death of her son and she will not rest until all gays feel comfortable disclosing their sexuality. The lecture prompted a South Bend area man to "come out of the closet."

Nerlinger registered for College JEOPARDY! when he was playing the online game during the summer. He was randomly chosen as one of 1,500 college students picked to try out for the special November series. In August, Nerlinger traveled to Baltimore to take a 50 question test and participate in a mock run of the show.

"It was cool just to pass the test," he said.

Nerlinger's experience with the game show, however, didn't end in Baltimore. The senior received a letter at the end of September inviting him to participate in the two-week college tournament at UCLA. Security/Police arrests fugutive in Roseland Park

By MIKE CONNOLLY News Writer

Notre Dame Security/Police recaptured a suspect behind the Signature Inn in Roseland Park after he fled from police custody at University Village.

Police said the man was charged with possession of stolen property and resisting arrest by flight.

According to Chuck Hurley, assistant director of NDSPD, Security originally responded to a complaint from a woman in University Village that the suspect was attempting to break into her apartment. Security officers responding to the call detained a man matching the description of the suspect on Saint Mary's Road.

The man was taken into custody by Security and brought to University Village. The victim identified the suspect as the man who was attempting to break into her apartment.

While Security officers attempted to handcuff the man, he escaped, ran across U.S. 933 and fled behind Denny's Restaurant. Security, along with St. Joseph County Police and Roseland Police, recaptured the suspect when he was hiding in the bushes in Roseland Park.

When Security searched the suspect, officers discovered items from a wallet that had been reported stolen from Galvin Life Science Center on Monday.

Security will investigate his possible involvement in other campus larcenies.

"He's been here and passed through some campus buildings," Hurley said. "So we are going to be looking into his possible involvement in other crimes."

Hurley said there have been no other recent robberies reported at University Village, but there have been recent thefts from other campus buildings.

The case has been forwarded to the prosecutor's office who will investigate the incident and may choose to press charges against the suspect for attempted breaking and entering.

INSIDE COLUMN

Happily never after

We're told early on, by way of once-upon-atime fairy tales and Disney movies, that the key to success is finding someone with whom you can share your life. Finding true love will break the spell, slay the dragon and cue the "happily ever after" ending credits every time.

As we grow older, however, we're told to forget the fairy tale, that sharing can wait and it's better to focus on yourself and have a good time toasting your own successes. This small contradiction of life's instructions prompts the question:

Better to be single or committed?

It's the double cliché of walking a fine line with a double-edged sword. We want it both ways.

According to any coffee table magazine (Cosmopolitan, Maxim, take your pick), being single is synonymous with being fabulous. With this solo mentality screaming at us from glossy pages filled with toned models and tips on how to "meet 'em and wow 'em," what's not to love? It's all rather enticing. Suddenly, a relationship seems to have the appeal of entering a dragon's lair with neither weapon nor trusty sidekick. It's just not something that you want to do.

Jacqueline

Browder

Scene Copy

Editor

It's the same with television. Tuning into any of the must-see TV shows, leading the single life looks pretty good. Who wouldn't want to be hanging out in the city, drinking coffee and engaging in witty banter?

However, if you look a little closer, the message is unclear. These magazines and television shows may tell you that this mind-blowing single life is where it's at, but the majority of the articles and plot lines dedicate themselves to finding, getting and keeping a relationship. Suddenly, the coin flips (thus the double edged sword mentioned above).

What do we want? Two very differing views of how we should be living our young lives are thrust at us on a daily basis, and we're told to choose the right path.

There's certainly something to be said (or maybe it was something said once upon a time) about sharing your time and self with another person. Yet, we're still told that this is the time of our lives, our best years and as good as it's going to get. Why not live it up? Date around. Meet people. Don't tie ourselves down. So, we don't. We become single.

Yes, the single life. We're young, we're free and ... we're still looking. If it's the thrill of the chase that does it for you, then you're set. Set, that is, until you run out of breath. Suddenly, rather than living this glamorous high life found on the pages of Glamour and in Aaron Spelling dramas, you're alone. But isn't that what you wanted in the first place?

If we don't know what we want, can there possibly be a happy ending? Or at least a happy medium? We can't have it both ways, but eventually we get to live our personal fairy tale, even if it's fractured one.

And no matter how much they'd like to, mass media can't dictate the individual decisions we make. Sure, they can draw that fine line, sharpen the sword and tell you that single life is fabulous. However, they'll never tell you that single is happily ever after.

Displaced NYU students return with caution

NEW YORK Students returned to New York University's Water Street dorm Wednesday with mixed feelings about their safety.

With dust still covering the streets and sidewalks and the downtown area continuing to emanate an acrid smell, students were concerned about returning to the area.

"I'm worried about the air quality. I heard private companies tested the air and found high levels of asbestos and fiber glass," Michelle Napoli, a College of Arts and Science sophomore said.

asbestos?"
However, the University maintains that the air quality is safe. Lynne Brown, vice president of Student Affairs, said Water Street was reopened after utilities were turned back on, the rooms were cleaned, environmental tests were conducted and contaminated rooms cleaned again.

"I don't feel any less safe at Water Street than any other part of the city," CAS junior Christina Hultholm said.

"I would live here again. I don't feel any different because of this not to live here again," General Studies Program sophomore Nabila Sheikh said.

Students also voiced their concerns about getting settled into the school year. "I had such a hard time adjusting to classes because all my notebooks and books were [at Water Street]," Napoli said.

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

Report gauges impact of aid policy

PRINCETON, N..

During an annual report presentation to the faculty on the status of undergraduate admissions last week, Dean of the College Nancy Malkiel said last week that Princeton University's change in financial aid policy last January greatly affected the composition of the Class of 2005. Malkiel noted that 46 percent of the freshman class is receiving financial aid — the highest percentage of all the Ivy League schools and a significant jump from the 40 percent of the Class of 2004 receiving financial aid. Malkiel also said there was an increase in the racial diversity of the freshman class. The percentage of minority students in the Class of 2005 is 28.9 percent compared to 26.3 percent of the Class of 2004. According to President Tilghman, however, it is too soon to conclude what the full impact of the University's financial aid policy change will be on "the spectrum of students who apply to Princeton and those who [are accepted]."

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

Plan to increase diversity postponed

LOS ANGELES

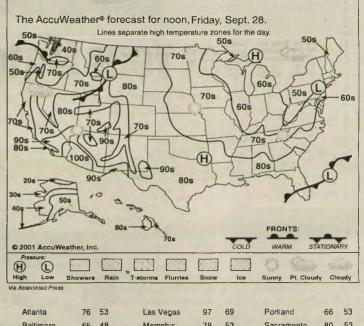

Plans to institute a program designed to increase the number of minority students in the University of California have been put on hold until next year due to lack of funds. The university has postponed the dual admissions plan, citing the state legislature's failure to provide the UC's request for $2.5 million before it went into recess last week. "The legislative clock ran out on us at a time when the state is facing some very bleak budget choices," said Michael Reese, assistant vice president of strategic communications for the UC Office of the President. Because the state legislature is in recess, the UC cannot pursue funding for the program until it reconvenes in January. According to the dual admissions plan, students in the top 4 to 12.5 percent of their high school class would be guaranteed UC admission, provided they complete two years at a community college. It would have taken effect for the class of fall 2003 and transfer students in 2005.

Toll of NY missing drops to 5,960

"It was chaos. Now it's

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani said Thursday that the official number of people missing at the World Trade Center had dropped to 5,960 after multiple lists of the vic-t i m s were doublechecked. The number of miss-reported to police a d been 6,347 for several days. Giuliani said the through the ruins looking for revision was made after duplications were found on lists provided by some of the 63 countries that lost people in the trade center attack.

The mayor also said 4,620 names have been registered as missing at a city center for victims' relatives. The correct number — the one many fear will be the true death toll — is likely somewhere between the two, Giuliani said.

Authorities so far have confirmed 305 deaths since two hijacked jetliners brought down the twin 1,350-foot towers Sept. 11.

At ground zero, heavier equipment has been moved in to remove rubble from the 16-acre site. Crews have begun assembling a 420-foot crane that can handle up to 1,000 tons.

Since the attack, 128,050 tons of debris - only about 10 percent of what the Army Corps of Engineers estimates is there — have been removed and taken to a landfill on Staten Island for analysis.

More aggressive removal methods and equipment have not been used because of the search for bodies and survivors. Workers are also combing the wreckage for evidence in the criminal investigation of the attack.

Jim Abadie, the site manager for crane owner Bovis Lend Lease, said the larger pieces of debris hauled out of the wreckage will be trucked to a nearby pier and transported by barge to Staten victims, authorities showed the site to small groups of relatives of those missing or confirmed killed.

At City Hall, Giuliani obtained the support of two of the three mayoral candidates for a plan that would allow him to stay in office for three extra months to help the city recover from the attack.

Democrat Mark Green and Republican Michael Bloomberg agreed to go along with Giuliani's proposal, which would postpone the new mayor's inauguration until April. The mayor is supposed to leave office Dec. 31 under a city term limits law.

Across the rest of the city, some commuters faced their first day of mandatory carpooling. Noncommercial passenger vehicles with only the driver inside were turned back during the morning rush hour, causing some traffic delays. The restrictions were imposed as a way of clearing traffic jams in Manhattan caused by the attack and heightened secu-

"It'll be a lot of fun. I'll have my Notre Dame sweatshirt on," Nerlinger said. "It will be an exciting trip."

Nerlinger, who is working on a math and philosophy double major and plans to attend medical school next year, said he is confident despite his lack of preparation for the show. He's hoping that his favorite categories, science, math and theology, will appear on the game screen.

"I didn't prepare at all for the tryout," he said. "I heard about [getting accepted] two weeks ago and haven't had much time with the demands of school."

"You can't cram all the facts you need to win in two weeks," he added.

Nerlinger was on his high school's Quiz Bowl team in Wilmington, Del. As a senior, he was voted most likely to be on JEOPARDY!

"All my high school friends think it's hysterical," he said.

While at Notre Dame, Nerlinger has been active in student government and events with St. Edward's Hall. Last year he joined the fencing team as a walk-on.

"It's the only event where they provide you with the equipment and time to stab people with swords," he said.

Nerlinger is involved in service as well. He recently established a $10,000 charity fund with a grant from the Raskolo Foundation after his grandfather passed away two summers ago. The fund is used to send disadvantaged people to Notre Dame home football games. Next month, three people selected by the Notre Dame club of Delaware from Nerlinger's hometown will travel to South Bend to watch the Navy game on an all-expenses paid trip courtesy of the fund.

"He's the nicest person in the world," sophomore Larry Hofman said of his roommate. "I'm really excited for him. I might actually go out there if I can get a ticket to Los Angeles. No one deserves this more than him."

College JEOPARDY! will air Nov. 7-13, 14-16, 19 and 20. The day each contestant competes will not be decided until they arrive in California for the taping, but Nerlinger hopes the Notre Dame community will tune in for the series.

"It would be cool to have as many people as possible watching the show here," he said. "I want to get the word out."

The acknowledgement drew applause from the crowd.

Shepard, who received standing ovations before and after her hour-long talk, also drew applause with her response to an audience member's question.

"I think it's a no-brainer," she said.
"Every corporation, and a university is a corporation, needs to have a non-discrimination clause in place. Just like in most places, administrators don't want to do that here."

In August 1997, Notre Dame

officials rejected a measure to add sexual orientation to the University's non-discrimination clause.

U.S. warplanes hit Iraqi artillery: U.S. and British warplanes struck two artillery sites Thursday that were a threat to aircraft patrolling Iraq's southern "no-fly" zone, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said. The anti-aircraft sites had posed danger for the planes monitoring Iraq's no-fly zone, Maj. Brett Morris said. U.S. and British aircraft patrol the area to prevent Iraqi forces from attacking Kurds and Shiite Muslims and to provide early warning of any Iraqi troop movements toward Kuwait.

Pope says Mass in Armenia: Presiding over an outdoor Mass, Pope John Paul II called on Armenia's small Catholic community Thursday to help rebuild the economically suffering country. The pope's three-day trip to Armenia followed a four-day trip to Kazakstan, a tour that has put the 81-year-old pontiff's frail health to the test.

State appoints security advisor: Gov. Bob Holden has appointed an adviser on homeland security, making Missouri the first state to follow President Bush's lead in creating a Cabinet-level position on anti-terrorism. Retired Army Col. Timothy Daniel, 51, was named Wednesday to review Missouri's emergency response plans in the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Daniel, a former strategist at the Pentagon and Army Corps of Engineers, will serve as a liaison to Tom Ridge, the newly named national director of homeland security.

FDA approves gene-based AIDS test: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved the first gene-based test to tell quickly whether an HIV patient's virus is mutating to make a particular drug therapy fail, important to know so the person can switch AIDS medications. The test, Visible Genetics Inc.'s Trugene, is one of the most complex genetic test systems to clear the FDA.

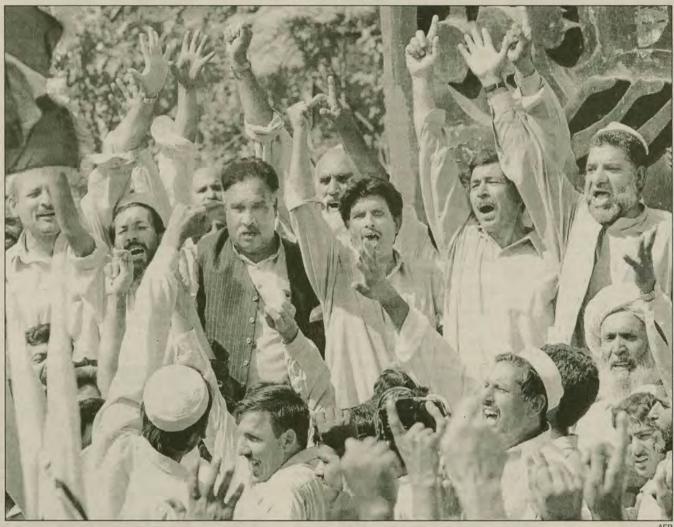

INDIANA NEWS BRIEFS

State faces budget gap: Gov. Frank O'Bannon is freezing the wages of state employees because the state faces such serious budget problems that it cannot afford the cost of pay raises. Revenue from sales taxes, individual income taxes and corporate income taxes in July and August was short of projections, the governor's office said. That is in addition to the two-year budget the legislature approved this spring that spent nearly $600 million more than projected. O'Bannon in July told most state agencies to cut their allotment of state-funded spending by 7 percent in an attempt to close the budget gap.

Officials to meet with Taliban

Associated Press

ISLAMABAD
Pakistani religious leaders leave Friday for Afghanistan, the Pakistani news agency reported.
The delegation may be part of a new Pakistani initiative to open a dialogue with the ruling Taliban on a possible solution to the crisis over Osama bin Laden.

The Pakistan government news agency said

Thursday the delegation would fly aboard a special plane to the southern Afghan city of Kandahar, stronghold of the Taliban leadership, and return Friday night.

Although the dispatch did not say so, it appeared the delegation had the Pakistan government's approval because a special plane was being provided and because the visit was reported in advance by the state news agency.

The visit was announced as the Taliban's ambassador to Islamabad, Abdul Salam Zaeef, said a Sept. 20 decision by Afghan clerics urging bin Laden to leave Afghanistan voluntarily had been delivered to the alleged terrorist mastermind.

Bin Laden is the top suspect in the Sept. 11 terrorist bombings in the United States, and Bush has demanded that the Taliban hand over him and his lieutenants, among other demands, or face retaliation.

The Taliban had said they couldn't find bin Laden. But Zaeef's remarks indicated the Taliban knew where he was and were in contact with him. It also appeared than bin Laden was still in Afghanistan.

The moves could signal a willingness by the Taliban to find a solution to the crisis and avoid American air strikes.

Ex - colonel gets life for espionage

Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla.

The highest-ranking military man ever accused of spying was sentenced to life in prison on Thursday, 50 years to the day after he declared his allegiance to United States as a new citizen.

George Trofimoff, a retired Army Reserve colonel born in Germany, continued to profess his innocence — declaring, "I am not a traitor" — as U.S. District Judge Susan Bucklew handed down the sentence.

Trofimoff had faced at least 27 years in prison. Assistant Secretary of Defense John P. Stenbit told the judge in a letter on behalf of President Bush that anything less than a life term would be neither adequate punishment for him nor a deterrent to others.

Prosecutors say it is the first time such a letter has been written for a federal inmate.

"Mr. Trofimoff has conducted espionage longer than anyone else we have known of in this country," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Walter Furr. "This is not someone who made a mistake, or who got greedy momentarily. What happened here was someone who set out to live his life as a spy."

Throughout the Cold War, Trofimoff led the Army section at the Nuremberg Joint Interrogation Center in Germany. There, secret intelligence documents were stored and defectors and refugees were interviewed about life, especially military operations, behind the Iron Curtain.

Trofimoff was convicted in June of taking secret documents out of the center, photographing them and selling the film to the KGB for $250,000 over more than 20 years.

He worked through a childhood friend, a Russian Orthodox priest, in a spying career that was noted in KGB archives smuggled out of the Soviet Union as it collapsed.

Trofimoff repeated to Bucklew the claim he presented to his jurors: He only told the undercover FBI agent he was a spy because he needed money to pay debts.

"I am guilty of trying to make a foolish claim," he said. "What it did is really convince me and my friends of my old-age senility. You are condemning an old man who served his country honorably for 46 years."

Trofimoff's attorney, Daniel Hernandez, said he intended to appeal. Trofimoff's wife, Jutta, who has been left bankrupt, did not speak on his behalf and declined to comment following his sentencing.

The judge said she was not swayed by Trofimoff's tale.

"By attempting to explain it away, you lied and lied and lied," Bucklew told him. "Obviously the jury didn't believe it. I don't believe it either."

Letter bomb found at embassy

SANTIAGO Police found a envelope containing explosives on Thursday near the main entrance to the heavily guarded U.S. Embassy, authorities said.

The embassy confirmed only that police were alerted and that they handled the situation. No one was arrested and there was no immediate claim of responsibility, police said.

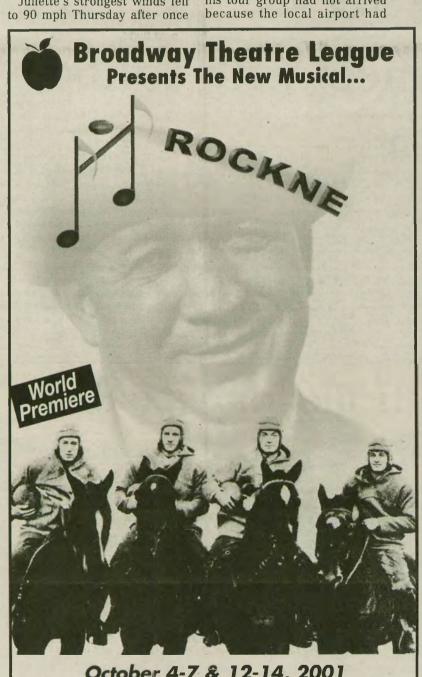

Interior Minister Jose

Miguel Insulza said no one was in danger and that 'while the envelope indeed contained a small amount of explosives, it did not have a detonator." He said the incident would be investigated.

Local radio stations said the envelope also contained pamphlets with insults aimed at the United States but it did not have further details.

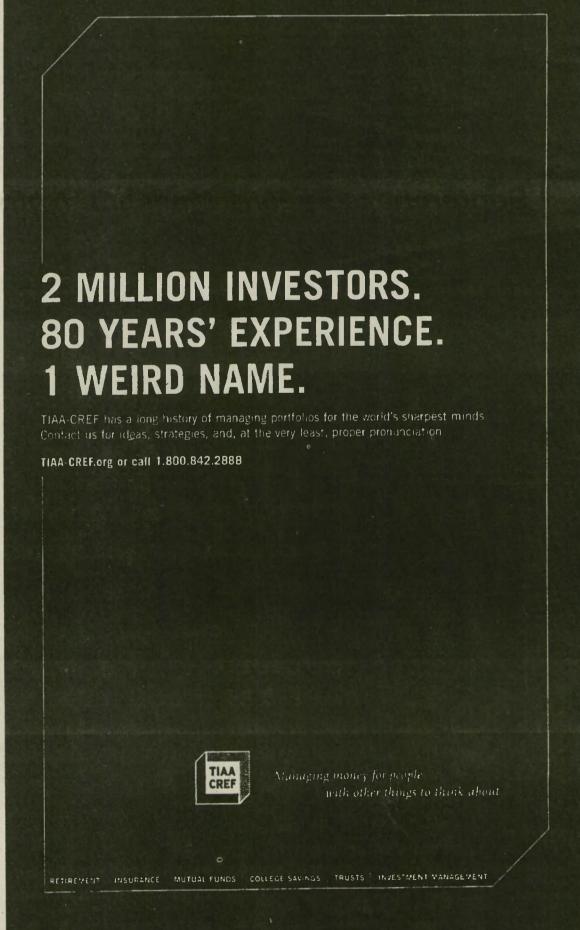

Security was reinforced at the embassy since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

NYC mayor may seek term extension

NEW YORK

Rudolph Giuliani got the support of two of the three mayoral candidates Thursday for a plan that would allow him to stay on at City Hall for an extra three months while he guides the city through the aftermath of the World Trade Center

But Bronx Borough President Fernando Ferrer, one of two Democrats still in the race, declined to support the idea, saying he was worried about the precedent it would set.

Democrat Mark Green and Republican Michael Bloomberg agreed to go along with a proposal after meeting privately with Giuliani.

Green spokesman Joe DePlasco said Thursday the Democrat would support legislation delaying the inauguration of the new mayor for up to three months "given the unprecedented World Trade Center catastrophe, the urgent need for a seamless transition and the importance of a united Ferrer said in an interview on the local cable news channel NY1 that he would name Giuliani to head up an entity to oversee reconstruction and rebuilding efforts.

Ferrer and Green, the city's a nonpartisan, nontraditional approach to encourage unity and planning," DePlasco explained.

In front of the news cameras Giuliani has remained focused on the massive recovery effort in downtown Manhattan.

But behind the scenes, the mayor and his aides have been engaged in a furious lobbying effort to keep the term-limited Giuliani in City Hall after his term expires — all in the name of political unity, according to more than a dozen government officials, business leaders and other people close to Guiliani.

Details about how Giuliani's proposal would work are still unclear. It would likely need approval from the state Legislature as some type of emergency measure.

"We would certainly be inclined to support an extension if that's what we would be asked to do to provide for an orderly transition," said John McArdle, a spokesman for GOP state Senate Majority Leader Joseph Bruno.

On Wednesday, the mayor placed a call to Democratic state Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver asking for his support. Silver has been cool to the idea, but pledged to bring up the issue with his members.

In Albany, Republican Gov. George Pataki said it was premature to say whether he would sign legislation to extend the mayor's term, "but obviously I would be supportive of any such effort.'

Questions have been raised about the legality of the proposal. Democratic U.S. Rep. Charles Rangel, a Ferrer backer who represents Harlem, said the plan would need Justice Department approval because it would affect minority voters, who are protected under the Voting Rights Act.

Chechen envoys suggest disarmament

Associated Press

Chechen rebel envoys have contacted Russian officials about possible disarmament talks, a Kremlin envoy said Thursday, in the first step toward peace negotiations in two years of war.

The tentative overture was announced just before President Vladimir Putin's 72hour offer of talks - his first such serious proposal expired. Putin had repeatedly rejected Western calls for a political settlement, insisting the rebels should be eliminat-

Kremlin envoy Viktor Kazantsev, appointed by Putin to oversee negotiations, said a representative of rebel leader Aslan Maskhadov approached his delegation in Chechnya. He provided no details.

"We have just barely started," Kazantsev said on RTR television Thursday from a plane to Moscow. "I'm not saying they're ready; they have doubts.

Kazantsev, who has been shuttling around Chechnya and nearby southern Russian republics since Putin's offer Monday, claimed that several dozen rebel commanders and fighters had "contacted" pro-Moscow Chechen officials. He did not elaborate.

"Discussions are under way.

There will be a result, I am certain," he later told ORT television in Moscow.

His deputy, Nikolai Britvin. said in a telephone interview from the Chechen capital, Grozny, that a small number of rebels had already surrendered, but did not say how

"The process has started and it will continue tomorrow and for some time," Britvin

There was no immediate response from the rebels.

Formidable obstacles remain to any peace settlement. The Russian military is desperate to avoid a repeat of its humiliating troop withdrawal at the end of the 1994-96 war in Chechnya, which resulted in de facto independence.

The Kremlin also wants to maintain a strong presence in the region and avoid the lawlessness that blossomed after the 1996 withdrawal - the main reason cited for sending troops back into Chechnya in

That invasion came after Chechnya-based rebels invaded the neighboring region of Dagestan, and after deadly apartment bombings in Russia blamed on the rebels.

Maskhadov, a rebel commander during the 1994-96 war, played a key role in negotiating a peace deal and has repeatedly proposed negotiations in this war.

National guard to secure airports

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Governors pledged Thursday to mobilize National Guard troops against terrorism at airports, where jobs are drying up because of travelers' jitters. The Pentagon said it has authority to a t t a c k hijacked airliners as a last resort.

Bush

Talking about military pilots' new rules of engagement in the war against terrorism, outgoing Joint Chiefs Chairman Gen. Henry Shelton said, "The last thing in the world that one of them wants to do is engage a commercial aircraft."

"Don't get the impression that anyone who's flying around out there has a loose trigger finger," he said.

Sixteen days after attacks that killed thousands, the Bush administration moved on several fronts to calm a still-fearful nation, bolster the U.S. economy, identify the killers and forge a wartime coalition of disparate nations.

"Others will tire and weary; I understand that. But not our nation," Bush told hundreds of flag-waving airline workers in Chicago, their industry and jobs in danger because of the Sept. 11 attacks.

Amid a swirl of diplomatic activity, Bush met with European Union leaders, who cautioned him to retaliate with precision and focus. The president, by contrast, has talked about a broad war.

Despite words of caution from Europe, there was fresh evidence that Bush is fashioning a unique anti-terrorism coalition of disparate nations. A U.S. official disclosed that Sudan, long accused of harboring terrorists, has quietly rounded up as many as 30 foreign extremists since the Sept. 11 attacks.

Secretary of State Colin Powell was busy, too. He met with the foreign ministers of Belgium and Turkey as well as King Abdullah II of Jordan.

Adding his voice to the mix, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson said he had been invited by the ruling militia in Afghanistan to take a "peace delegation" to the region. The White House discouraged Jackson, and the Taliban militia said they had not asked him to come.

Powell said point-blank: "We have nothing to negotiate."

In Afghanistan, where prime suspect Osama bin Laden is believed to be, Taliban leaders warned Afghans not to expect the United States to overthrow their hard-line rule.

"Those Afghans who want to seize power with the help of America are just like those fools who tried to stay in power with the help of the Russian army," said Taliban chief Mullah Mohammed Omar.

The statement, distributed by the Afghan Islamic Press,

"The last thing in the

Gen. Henry Shelton

Joint Chiefs Chairman

referred to the Soviets' unsuccessful military efforts in the 1980s.

There were protests against the United States in Japan and Malaysia while extremist Islamic groups in Indonesia threatened to attack U.S. workers in the country.

In the United States, more arrests were made of Middle Eastern men who obtained bogus licenses to haul hazardous materials. The FBI said those men were not connected to the hijackers, but there were concerns nonetheless of follow-up terrorist attacks.

Attorney General John Ashcroft released photographs of the 19 hijacking suspects and asked Americans to help identify those who are still in doubt.

"A national neighborhood watch," he called it.

In neighborhoods all over America, the economic impact of the attacks continued to grow.

Jobless claims rose to a nineyear high, in part reflecting the ripple effect of strikes against the World Trade Center in New York and the Pentagon outside Washington.

David Nowacki, an American Airlines worker on hand for Bush's speech, said he and his said he and his friends are worried about their jobs.

"Things are on edge," Nowacki said. "No one is calling in sick."

The Bush administration has balked at Democratic calls for relief to airline workers, promising instead a broader package to revive the economy — one that likely will include tax cuts.

While his advisers met in Washington to weigh the stimulus plan, Bush tried to rally Americans into patriotic spending ing.

"Get about the business of America," he said.

Though business is down across the board, Bush focused on an airline industry jarred by a dramatic decline in passengers since the attacks.

"Get on the airlines," Bush implored. "We will not surrender our freedom to travel."

He sought to coax Americans into planes with a $500 million plan to secure cockpit doors and a wide range of other proposals, including having the federal government oversee security at airports. Democrats and union leaders joined him for the O'Hare International Airport event

The crowd sang "God Bless America" as Bush shook hands.

Several mayors said the package wasn't tough enough. Some governors moved quickly to heed Bush's call to mobilize National Guard troops at airports.

Minnesota Gov. Jesse Ventura, a former member of the Navy special forces team, said he didn't think twice. Colleagues in Michigan, California and several others states followed suit. Rhode Island's governor said the Guard wasn't needed – not yet, anyway.

anyway.
"When you're in a time of war, you don't question the commander in chief," said Ventura.

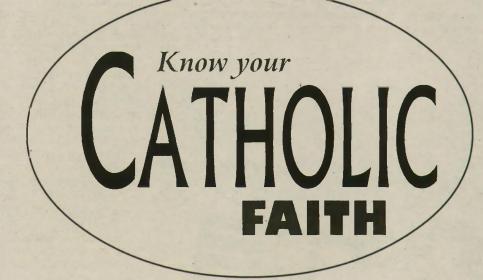

Bush dispatched his Cabinet to travel on various commercial flights to demonstrate the safety of the skies. Even his father, former President George H.W. Bush, pitched in.

"I have every confidence in the airlines," the elder Bush said before boarding a flight in Boston with several Secret Service agents.

Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said Americans may see "some dramatic military engagements," but warned in a New York Times article that victory won't be easy nor clear and the war will be unconventional.

"Forget about 'exit strategies,'" he wrote. "We're looking at a sustained engagement that carries no deadlines."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Alumni should curb hypocrisy

There have been a number of letters and even an Inside Column published this week that relate back to the Michigan State game and, more at the center of controversy, what happened following it. As a recent alum, I'm siding with the students on this one. The question of class and loyalty should not be directed at the students but at their predecessors.

First of all, there was booing at post-game. Can't deny it, it happened. Lt. Dan Cook called the booing a break in tradition. Tim O'Connor made an excellent point in his response that the booing was simply a way of showing the growing frustration that many Domers, past and present, are feeling right now with the program.

Angela Campos's Inside Column called for more support in the senior section and asked them to act more like their underclassmen peers. And I agree. Cheer. Do those push-ups. Yell your part of "We Are ND" when the cheerleaders cue you. Be as into the game as the cheerleaders and the band are, who, no matter the odds, will cheer like we're up 24-3 even if it we're not.

But to the students who left before the band, who crossed their arms during the 1812, who even booed, I cannot blame you. You were just following another example, not one from your peers, but one from your elders. After the game, the students are the only section that doesn't clear out and head for dinner reservations, more tailgating or to the bookstore to beat the rush. Or whatever the reasons are that alums leave. So can you blame the seniors for following in their footsteps?

The next time an alum calls for tradition and then accuses the students of being classless, or forgetting who they are, or even where they are, remind the alums that they were once students too. That they had tradition. Ask them why they leave now, why they don't stand anymore and why they set such a bad example.

To those alums like me who want to stand, who yell

To those alums like me who want to stand, who yell the cheers, who stay to the end and still act like students—thanks. If only the rest of the alumni would follow our example.

Expressing thanks to Notre Dame

This weekend some friends and I traveled to South Bend to see our Spartans take on your Fighting Irish. When we got here we were astonished by the awesome atmosphere that surrounds this University and its great football tradition.

The bands coming together for the halftime show was a chance for the nation to see that no matter what happens in these games we are all Americans. For the most part we felt very welcome here and enjoyed the day no matter what the outcome would have been. I thought the staff and ushers were great and further enriched the atmosphere.

I am thankful that we have build such a solid tradition and look forward to facing each other in the future. I wish the best of luck to you this season.

Falwell mirrors bin Laden

PITTSBURGH

M. Derek Care

The Pitt News

"I really believe that the pagans, and the abortionists, and the feminists, and the gays and lesbians who are actively trying to make that an alternative lifestyle, the ACLU, People for the American Way — all of them who have tried to secularize America — I point the finger in their face and say, 'You helped this happen," Rev. Jerry Falwell said.

Osama bin Laden and Saddam Hussein have found an ideological friend in Jerry Falwell. The above, delivered by Falwell during the Sept. 13 broadcast of the Christian television program "The 700 Club," is the type of statement that is more often associated with Middle Eastern dictators than with Christian television.

Later in the same show, Falwell further blurred the lines between his beliefs and that of the Sept. 11 attackers by saying that, because of the previously mentioned groups, God had allowed "the enemies of America to give us probably what we deserve."

This is the type of offensive drivel that gives self-righteous, hate-mongering loud-mouths a bad name. It's hardly surprising that Falwell had the audacity and tastelessness to say such things just two days after the attack.

This is, after all, the same man who during the course of his career tried to "out" Tinkie-Winkie, the purple Teletubby, and announced that the Antichrist was living among us in the form of a Jewish man.

Though unsurprising, Falwell's latest comments are more than just another embarrassing incident from the former leader of the now-defunct Moral Majority. They signal that Falwell, like bin Laden, believes that there is currently a jihad (holy war) being fought and that God is on his side.

Nor is this the first time that Falwell's rhetoric has echoed bin Laden's. Bin Laden began his holy war by issuing a fatwa (religious edict) which said, "To kill the Americans and their allies — civilians and military — is an individual duty for every Muslim."

Falwell has issued a similar proclamation, saying, "Preaching against the sin of homosexuality is the responsibility of every minister who takes the Bible seriously."

Bin Laden is fighting America, the so-called Great Satan. Falwell is fighting homosexuality, what he has called a "vile and satanic system."

Bin Laden fights with bombs. Falwell fights with words.

Bin Laden wants to remove the American presence from the Middle East. Falwell wants to remove Tinkie-Winkie from television.

They are two cheeks of the same metaphorical ass, and to extend this already crude metaphor further, they both stink.

Though an agent of hatred just as surely as bin Laden is, Falwell is no threat to the freedom of Americans. No military action will be needed to stop him. No economic sanctions will be needed to silence him.

By fighting for hatred and narrowmindedness in an ever more progressive and educated society, Falwell has made himself vulnerable to the only force that can take him down: irrele-

With every embarrassing diatribe, Falwell finds himself with fewer and fewer allies. The former leader of the Moral Majority is now a liability to the Christian Right, and few people in Washington are willing to have their names associated with his.

As the bold Ku Klux Klan members of the past eventually slunk into the shadows, so will Jerry Falwell. As the once-proudly flown Confederate flag became an ugly reminder of past hatreds, so too will Jerry Falwell.

But for now, Falwell, who pointed his finger in the face of pagans, feminists, gays, lesbians, victims of the attacks and the country as a whole, should know just one thing. We are pointing a finger right back in your direction, and there are far more of us than there ever were of you.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Apologies to Coach Davie

Fairness requires that I write this follow-up to my letter (published in Wednesday's Observer) calling for Coach Davie's resignation because our team and coaches were not on the field during the pre-game ceremonies. In my letter I stated that Coach Davie could offer no "valid explanation" for such absence.

Since my letter was published I have received a copy of a letter written by Tex Dutile, Chairman of the Faculty Board of Athletics, which explains that the Notre Dame and Michigan State Athletic Departments had agreed prior to the game that neither team would be on the field during the ceremonies.

While I continue to feel that it would have been more appropriate for both teams to have been involved in the pre-game ceremonies, keeping to the agreed upon approach is certainly a "valid explanation" for Coach Davie's actions and I apologize to Coach Davie for writing first and getting the facts later. The Notre Dame community, which of course includes Coach Davie and the players and coaches, can be proud of its response to the tragic events of Sept. 11th.

Davie to blame in game, not patriotism

After two games, the Notre Dame football team ranks close to last amongst all Division I teams offensively. For that, Bob Davie deserves to be criticized. The first team entirely recruited by the Irish Observer head coach lacks the explosiveness of Michigan State. For that, Bob Davie deserves our scowls and boos.

But before last Saturday's Michigan State game, where the Irish players remained off the field during "God Bless America," Davie simply followed a plan arranged by athletic director Kevin White. And for the criticism Davie received from students, fans and media this week, he deserves an apology.

To admonish Davie for Saturday's actions is to arrest a mailman for delivering an unwanted message. White and his fellow Irish administrators, who first decided to keep the Irish inside the locker room, should face the wrath of fans, media and alumni — not Davie. Although Michigan State originally agreed to keep their players in as well, head coach Bobby Williams and athletic director Clarence Underwood had the instinct and pride in America — to change their

In doing so, Michigan State showed that its true colors are not green and

The claim that the Irish stayed in the locker room to maintain a sense of normalcy is utter nonsense. Eleven days after the deaths of 6,000 countrymen, no one could remain unaffected. Michigan State stood up and faced the reality of America. Notre Dame stayed behind and ignored it.

Sadly, the attention given this confusion has dwarfed the real story. Enough fans to fill a small city waved flags and belted out "God Bless America." More than a quarter of a million dollars was raised for the victims. For that, Notre Dame deserves to be cheered.

Bush still has much to prove

Notre Dame freshmen and freshwomen (let's be politically correct, especially since this president claims to include everyone in his administration) have much in common with George W.

Bush. Both have begun a new life unlike anything they could have expected. They are still naivë, wellintentioned, unfamiliar with their new surroundings and somewhat immature. Yet they both have tremendous potential, and will undoubtedly have the opportunity to prove themselves in time.

Capitol Comments

My first freshman day on Notre Dame's campus was a nightmare. I walked past Morrissey through the arch at Howard and headed toward the Golden Dome. Somehow I ended up near the library and was hopelessly lost. Returning to the dome, I found myself near Lewis Hall and could not figure out that the old Bookstore was located on the other side of the Main Building. I quickly learned how to tell north from south depending on how Mary was standing above the Bush's last few weeks in office have been as traumatic. He campaigned on such issues as the immediate increase of funding for the military and less government in general. It was supposed to mean an influx of spending so the military could replace much needed parts for its equipment and the acquisition of new equipment. It meant a reduction of taxes and an end to government intrusion into the business lives of Americans, favorite topics of the conservative far right.

Ideally those tasks should be, for most Americans, supported without question. However, prior to the World Trade Center attacks, his defense secretary was attempting, with much opposition from the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to reduce much of the military personnel in favor of better technology. At that point in time not a penny of new military program spending, other than the missile shield proposal, was included in Bush's budget.

Just as I learned how to guide myself on campus by using Mary's stance on the Dome, Bush has learned how to maneuver around the corridors of the Pentagon on the military issue. He also learned how to relate with the White House press corps, which delight in their bulldog roles. More recently he steered his tax reduction win in both chambers of Congress. Bush was handling his honeymoon period with suc-

Like any university setting, the Bush Administration had settled down to its first few months of freshman classroom learning. Football season opened for Bush when the World Trade Center was attacked. He won that game in the public opinion polls, but the season is young. Despite his tendency to promise too much by promising to eradicate all terrorist activities, look for Bush to beat the odds makers' lines on most issues for another year due to the public's inherent lust for revenge.

Bush has been presented with circumstances like no other president in our history. Thus far his staff has steered him in the proper direction with our nation's response. While the public has given him the typical support during a time of crisis it will not formulate a permanent impression of him until election day of 2004

Bush is operating within a completely new and uncharted set of circumstances. He has opportunities unseen since Franklin Roosevelt's administration. He also has pitfalls before him unprecedented throughout history.

Patience is not a virtue the American public holds for long during political crisis. Our declared war sets the perfect tone for our resolve for justice but our unseen enemy will be difficult for the

The public is willing to blame any economic decline for the next several months on the attack, but slimmer pocketbooks will eventually mean impatience as well.

The Bush advisors need to temper the rhetoric so that expectations can focus at their true level of attainment. The John Wayne approach of bringing the outlaw to justice, getting the girl and riding off into the sunset is not the approach and will not work in this situation. Yet the president keeps raising expectations beyond the public's atten-

All of us would like to see Osama bin Laden captured and terrorism eradicated by the end of the year. Three more years is long enough to make the president's true presence felt in our economy, in our military and throughout the world.

However, this freshman president cannot undo the terrorist network over night that took tens of years to create. By this president's senior year in his term, he must have attained substantial results or the American public will have become impatient.

My concern is that Bush avoid the typically exaggerated pitfalls of every freshman - parties and tailgaters. After all, I remember being told that during the Navy weekend of my freshman year I was found in my underwear, one shoe on, one shoe off, stomping in a circle trying to walk off a tailgater success. Some rhetorical and behavioral moderation by every freshman is the key to success.

Scene sat down to a table full of pizzas to put them to the test — taste test, that is

Scene Staff Report

Pizza is the college student's (second) best friend. When the dining hall keeps serving the same swill day in and day out, the Italian pie never loses its allure. The Observer, in keeping with its high standards of journalism, has sought out various South Bend pizzerias and put them through an excruciating series of "scientific" tests to determine which pizza is the best.

While not all pizzas available to campus were sampled, The Observer tried out six pizzas available for delivery. Marco's, Papa John's and Pizza Hut all have autonomous delivery; however, the remaining three were delivered by Dine-In, a third-party food delivery service available by calling (219) 675-9999 or visiting www.dine-in.com.

Marco's Pizza

Marco's Deluxe pizza was by far the most aesthetically pleasing. Although its poor showing in the crust consistency category brought down Marco's overall score, it fared as one of the better pies

This pizza makes no advancement upon the basic notion of the Italian pie, but therein lays its strength. Marco's toppings were very fresh but their flavor didn't overwhelm the pizza as a whole.

Substantial improvement could be made to the mild and sparse sauce, however.

Unlike Papa John's, Marco's does not bury you in an inch of plastic-like cheese. In fact, you could even say that cheese is just another topping on the pie. Overall, Marco's had the best balance of those tested and would be a good neutral brand to order if a group cannot decide between other brands. Be warned though, Marco's pizza with its cardboardlike crust tastes something like a rubber tire when it cools off. So, eat it hot or get a mouthful of Michelin.

Marco's Pizza is located at 52750 Route 933 (U.S. 31/33). It is open from 11 a.m. to midnight, Sunday through Thursday, and from 11 to 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday. Call (219) 243-1122 to place a carry-out or delivery order.

Papa John's, despite the pervasive taste of those jalapenos in the corner of the box, was a supreme pizza experience for one obvious reason: the special garlic sauce. Other than that little container of pure buttery pleasure, Papa John's finest quality is by far the toppings, which actually look like authentic sliced mushrooms and assorted vegetables.

The scrumptious toppings overshadow the rest of the pizza, which is merely adequate in flavor; the doughy, powdery crust is conveniently bland ideal for dipping. The test pizza, a veggie, was loaded with green peppers, onions and black olives.

This pizzeria, which has earned a steadfastly devoted following among college students and become a staple of their diets, promotes its use of fresh ingredients and carefully prepared pies. It is definitely a reliable favorite. Papa John's is located on 1827 South Bend Avenue. It is open Monday through Saturday from 11 until 2 a.m. (depending upon demand), and from 12 p.m. until midnight Sunday. Call (219) 271-1177 to place a carry-out or delivery order.

Pizza Hut is quite possibly the epitome of what a pizza should be.

Like most pizzas, a Pizza Hut pie comes with several crust options, including thin crust, hand tossed and Whatever style crust one selects, the buttery, meltin-your-mouth, perfectly textured dough cannot be topped — except with the perfect amounts of sauce and cheese used by the masters at Pizza Hut.

The sauce complements the crust, allowing the flavors of each to mingle well. The sauce does not dominate the pizza or make the crust soggy. There is just enough sauce to create the perfect median between the crust and the cheese.

Too often, pizzas lack sufficient amounts of cheese. Pizza Hut places a fairly thick layer of flavorful cheese on each pizza it prepares. Toppings aren't prone to slide off the pizza as the cheese holds them firmly in place. The pepperoni tested for this review was neither too salty nor too spicy as some pepperonis tend to be.

Overall, from crust to toppings, Pizza Hut delivers the best pizza.

Crust aside, the rest of a Polito's pizza is not so disappointing. MEN'S INTERHALL FOOTBALL GOLD LEAGUE

Rivalry heats up in Dillon-Keenan matchup

By DAVE COOK, MATT DeNICOLA and ANTHONY BISHOP Sports Writers

Forget about Stanford and Alumni. Dillon and Keenan are discovering that their greatest rivals are no longer outside their window, but across campus.

When Dillon and Keenan take the field Sunday afternoon, they will continue a rivalry that has been maturing through the years and became especially heated last year.

After suffering a crushing 16-0 loss to Dillon during the regular season, the Knights were able to pull together a double overtime win against Dillon in the playoffs.

"This is a huge rivalry," said Dillon defensive end Ryan Hernandez. "This Hernandez. game will be more intense than the game against Alumni.'

The other returning Dillon players share the same sentiments as Hernandez.

"It was terrible losing [to Keenan] in dou-ble overtime," said Dillon captain Tayt Odom. "It was the hardest fought game I've ever seen.

The Knights, having returned many players from last year, also remember

"Dillon is usually the best team in the league," said Brian Kunitzer. "That game was a big win for us. The odds of winning were against us.

Both teams have a history of being powerhouses in interhall football, and this year is no different. Both Keenan and Dillon realize this will not be an easy game, and they have been preparing for this game all week.

'We definitely have a lot of work to do," said Knights captain Brent Morlok. "Our offense needs to sharpen up, and we added quite a few new guys on defense."

Defensive linebacker Pat Robinson also realizes they will need to play better if they want to defeat Dillon.

"We showed a lot of errors [against Stanford] that we need to improve on," said Robinson.

Keenan will be looking to their experienced offensive line and freshmen quarterback Patrick Downey to carry them through to a victory

On the other side of the ball, Dillon looks to keep the ball on the ground for most of the game. Look for Dillon running back Jason Visner to see a lot of action on Saturday.

"We don't have very good passing," said Odom. "Our strength is running

Hernandez summed up the feelings of Dillon this past week.

Stanford vs. Morrissey

"This is a huge rivalry.

against Alumni."

Ryan Hernandez

Dillon defensive end

It has often been said that the best offense is a good defense. As true as this may seem, the fact remains that you cannot win football games without scoring touchdowns. Ask Stanford or

Morrissey, neither of whom scored a touchdown in their season opener. But when these two teams face off this Sunday, neither team wants that to happen

"We've been focusing on defense and trying to improve the pass attack,' said Stanford captain Dave Dilworth. The Griffins allowed only one touchdown last week, and hope that the defense can step up in a similar fashion this weekend.

Stanford's defense may not need much work, but the offense struggled in their opener. Dilworth is confident that his offense can come alive.

"Our running game is our strength: running the ball, controlling the ball, and not giving it to the other team,' Dilworth said.

Dilworth's confidence in the run is not unfounded, considering the two man back attack of Dan Campion and Mark McNamee, who each had seven carries in the last game.

'Our backfield is really strong ... they can always come up with a big play," said Dilworth.

But Morrissey is not frightened by the Griffin backfield.

"I think we are strong enough to beat any team," said Morrissey captain Andy Baum. "If we need to make adjustments during the game, then we

The Manorites also allowed only one touchdown last Sunday, and expect to hold Stanford to a minimum number of points as well.

'We just prepared like we normally do," said Baum. "Last game both the offense and defense played well.'

Obviously the Manorites are confident in their offense. Even if they played well last week, they will have to put points on the board to win. Behind quarterback Rick Ysasi (5 of 11 passing) and running back Edward Hernandez, Morrisey has a formidable offensive drive each time they get the

Considering the similarities of these teams, this game could very well go down to the wire. Last season, Stanford was able to beat Morrisey for a spot in the playoffs.

'We were fighting to get in, they were fighting to get in ... it was a pretty intense battle," said

Dilworth.

A battle is exactly what to expect. Both teams have a game under their belt, and used this game experience to fix any problems. And both teams expect win.

"This game is important because it will be our first win," said Baum. "It is real important to get that first win and get rolling.'

The Griffins are just as confident.

'We still want to go 3-1," said Dilworth. "On a scale of one to 10, this game is a 10. We have to win out the rest of the season.'

Both teams may have improved on their last performances. However, only one will win. The game begins at 1 p.m. at Stepan Fields.

Alumni vs. Keough

The match-up between Alumni and Keough this weekend could very well be one of the better in the regular season. Both defenses were very strong in their first game, and both teams had success with their running games.

Alumni marched down the field in several series during their 6-0 loss to Dillon, but two key turnovers kept the Dawgs out of the end zone.

'We're going to be more careful with the ball this week," said captain Nick Linstroth. "Our offense moved the ball well, but now we have to punch it in.'

Alumni suffered a loss in the backfield after the game Sunday, as tailback Alex Roodhouse separated his shoulder. Taking his place will be sophomore T.J. Strachota.

The running game is anchored by the strong play of the offensive line. On numerous occasions last Sunday, the Dawg running backs found gaping holes that led to solid gains.

"We ran a lot of portside plays last week," said lineman Larry Rooney. "We're hoping to continue to pound it

The passing game for Alumni did not provide as much impact against Dillon as quarterback Chris Cottingham completed only two passes.

A strong Keough defensive backfield looks to keep the Alumni passing game in check. Linebacker Brian Adams and safety James Waechter each had interceptions last week against Morrisey.

With guys like Mike Perrone and Brian anchoring our defense, we hope to have another good outing," said Waechter.

"On a scale of one to 10,

this game is a 10. We have to win out the rest of the season."

Dave Dilworth

Stanford captain

The Kangaroo offense will be led by captain quarterback Andy Hess Supporting him was the star of last week's game, running back Clay Nuelle. Nuelle scored the only touchdown in Keough's game last weekend.

"We looked at what we did both right and wrong, and we're hoping to improve on that this weekend," said Waechter. "We had a few good practices this week, and we're looking forward to a good game."

McGlinn looks to avenge last-second loss

By KEN CHAMPA, PHILIP KOESTERER and MATT LOZAR

McGlinn's motivation for this week's game against the Off-Campus team (0-3) can be found by taking a walk down memory lane. This week. McGlinn (0-1-1) has carried the memory of last year's game with Off-Campus.

The Off-Campus team used a "Hail Mary" last year to defeat the Shamrocks in the waning moments of a rain-soaked game, 7-0.

"It was really disappointing to lose like that," said veteran Sarah Vatterott.

This week's practice has brought back the memory of losing that heartbreaker, and the veteran Shamrocks are working to make sure it doesn't happen again.

This season the Shamrocks have worked on offensive creativity, thanks to newly found starting quarterback Julie

'She (Julie) did a good job," said team captain Christa Gray. "She really has a lot of

"Our playbook is always expanding," said Vatterott. 'We have a lot of fun in practice creating different plays.'

What helps the offense click is the fact that all of the members have contributed.

"Everyone of our receivers caught a pass last game," said Vatterott. "Everyone con-tributed on offense for us."

McGlinn is also hoping to take advantage of the small size of Off-Campus's roster as "We know they (Off Campus) are small, and we're hoping to wear them out with our big roster," said Gray.

Combating the offensive attack of the Shamrocks will be the aggressive, blitzing defense of the Crime. Last week, the Crime was able to stymie the rushing attack of Cavanaugh by keeping steady pressure on the offensive line.

Off-Campus has found practice time hard to come by, which has made executing on offense very tough to do. Outside of the actual games, the Crime hasn't spent a great deal of time working out their offensive kinks. They have been held scoreless in their last two

Making the situation worse is the fact that the Crime's starting quarterback and team leader Abbey Ross will not be in action this Sunday, which will no doubt hurt an already struggling offense.

Farley vs. Howard

Farley quarterback Megan Sheehan and company are taking baby steps. Going into Sunday's match-up against the Howard Ducks at 2 p.m. on West Quad, Farley's Finest will concentrate on the fundamentals of victory.

The Finest were once again held scoreless on Tuesday night, this time against the Chicks of Lewis Hall.

"The coaching staff overcomplicated the offense [during that game]," said Farley offensive coach Chris Cordes. 'We're going to simplify everything and work on the execution." That will likely involve having Sheehan throw shorter passes in the early part of the receivers and make sure that they're running the correct routes, said Farley coach Irish Thompson.

For their part, Howard will be working out of a more varied playbook. According to team captain Katie Cawley, this trend contributed to the Ducks' 18-0 win over the Off-Campus Crime

"[Cawly]had a huge game running the ball [on Sunday], and we want to keep that up, said Howard coach Brad Untiedt.

'We worked more as a team, and when the coaches brought in a bunch of new plays, we communicated better and the plays worked," said Cawley. She and Howard quarterback Jill Veselik will be working to perfect the new plays and get their team back into Notre Dame and avenge last year's championship game loss. Thompson wasn't worried, however.

Man-Cover-Two defense didn't look that good against Lewis because they had really athletic receivers, Thompson said. "We haven't seen any stand-out receivers from Howard, so we're going to be keying off of the quarter-

Freshmen Charlotte Troupis and Alissa Mendoza play prominent roles on the offense and defense. Troupis is the Phoxes' quarterback while Mendoza plays at numerous defensive positions.

The Lions have worked on improving their defense this

"We have changed up our defense formation in practice,' said Lyons senior captain Irene Onyeagbako.

Despite being neighbors, the captains did not seem to think there was any rivalry between the two dorms.

"There hasn't been a chance to build it up," said Paulson. But I guess they would be our closest rival.

O'Neill hungry for more wins

By KEVIN BOYLE and MATT DeNICOLA

Sports Writers

What was it like for O'Neill Hall never having won before?

"It just made us that much more hungry," team captain John Enterline said.

O'Neill had a breakthrough win last week with a 14-7 victory over St. Ed's, but their hunger was not satisfied. O'Neill hopes to follow up last week's monumental win in their upcoming match-up with Fisher Hall.

"We're looking to build upon last week," Enterline said.
"We're not going to stop after one win, we want to get something going and get into the playoffs. Every game is a big game."

Fisher is also coming off of a big win, last week they defeated Knott 24-8. The offense was productive against a traditionally stingy defense while the Wave's own defense forced four turnovers.

The Wave, however, is not cocky or complacent. They won't overlook the Angry Mob despite its lackluster football

'With new freshmen coming in any team could be a contender, you have to be ready every week," Fisher captain Ray Aftandilians said.

Last week both teams' defensive line did a good job of putting pressure on the quar-

"Our linebackers came up big last week, and our defensive line did a great job of applying pressure," Aftandilians said.

"We need to continue to do our best to have everyone go all out on defense until the whistle stops; that's what you have to do to win. Offense will help us out but defense is what will get us to the stadium.'

On the offensive end, the Angry Mob stuck mostly to the ground while the Wave maintained a more balanced attack. Fisher was not as offensively dominant as the score would indicate, they got lucky and had one tipped ball that was caught for a touchdown. They need to and are focused on improving their execution against O'Neill.

The catch got us through, but we want to make preparation work rather than luck this week," Aftandilians said.

O'Neill is looking to add a few new wrinkles this week to the offense that only passed three times last Sunday. They appear to have the weapons to do so, quarterback Troy Montgomery connecting to wide receiver Kyle Johnson twice for touchdowns last game. If only they kept Interhall quarterback ratings.

Neither team is backing down this week, Fisher's main concern will still probably be stopping the O'Neill ground game while the Angry Mob needs to shut down Wave tailback Kameron Chappel and an effective aerial assault.

Stanford vs. Morrissey

It has often been said that the best offense is a good defense. As true as this may seem, the fact remains that you cannot win football games without scoring touchdowns.

Ask Stanford or Morrissey, neither of whom scored a touchdown in their season opener. But when these two teams face off this Sunday, neither team wants that to happen

'We've been focusing on defense and trying to improve the pass attack," said Stanford captain Dave Dilworth. The Griffins allowed only one touchdown last week, and hope that the defense can step up in a similar fashion this weekend.

Stanford's defense may not need much work, but the offense struggled in their opener. Dilworth is confident that his offense can come alive.

"Our running game is our strength: running the ball, controlling the ball, and not giving it to the other team," Dilworth said.

Dilworth's confidence in the run is not unfounded, considering the two man back attack of Dan Campion and Mark McNamee, who each had seven carries in the last game.

"Our backfield is really strong . . . they can always come up with a big play," said Dilworth.

But Morrissey is not frightened by the Griffin backfield.

"I think we are strong enough to beat any team," said Morrissey captain Andy Baum. "If we need to make adjustments during the game, then we will.'

The Manorites also allowed only one touchdown last Sunday, and expect to hold Stanford to a minimum number of points as well.

"We just prepared like we normally do," said Baum. "Last game both the offense and defense played well."

Obviously the Manorites are confident in their offense. Even if they played well last week, they will have to put points on the board to win. Behind quarterback Rick Ysasi (5 of 11 passing) and running back Edward Hernandez, Morrisey has a formidable offensive drive each time they get the

Considering the similarities of these teams, this game could very well go down to the wire. Last season, Stanford was able to beat Morrisey for a spot in the playoffs.

"We were fighting to get in, they were fighting to get in ... it was a pretty intense battle," said Dilworth.

A battle is exactly what to expect. Both teams have a game under their belt, and used this game experience to fix any problems. And both teams expect win.

"This game is important because it will be our first win," said Baum. "It is real important to get that first win and get rolling."

The Griffins are just as confi-

"We still want to go 3-1," said Dilworth. "On a scale of 1 to 10, this game is a 10. We have to win out the rest of the sea-

The Belles cross country team is ready to run.

For the past three meets, the team has had a great opportunity to see where they stand and get to know each other's strengths and weaknesses. They are working together and ready to step forth and run through the finish line.

"We are starting to improve and unite as a team," said junior Jennie Buehler.

This Saturday at the Lakefront Invitational at Lovola University. Jackie Bauters is the runner to watch. So far, Bauters, a sophomore, has proven to be the strength of the team. She has been one of the Belles' top six runners in all three meets they have run in this year.

Her best time so far was 20 minutes, 43 seconds at the Aquinas College Invitational, the first meet of the season. She placed in the top 17 overall in all of the team's five-kilometer races. Bauters is hoping to enhance her time and place in the top five for this upcoming

Dutch sweep Belles

By MATT MOONEY Sports Writer

Thursday was not a good day for the Saint Mary's volleyball team.

The bad news started when senior captain Angela Meyers' MRI revealed a torn ACL. Having lost their captain for the season, the Belles traveled to Holland, Michigan to face the conference leading Flying Dutch of Hope College.

The situation did not improve as Hope dispatched Saint Mary's in three straight games, 30-17, 30-25, 30-26.

The Belles find themselves in a slump. Having lost their last four matches, the team needs a victory of any kind.

As though things weren't bad enough, her absence makes an already young team even more inexperienced. Losing Meyers depletes the senior count to three.

In place of Meyers, Saint Mary's had to look elsewhere to replace her. Alison Shevik led the team in that category with 13 total digs while Jolie LeBeau posted 10 kills and six blocks. Jaime Dineen chipped in 15 assists. Junior Elizabeth Albert, now the best statistical player, had the best allaround game with three aces, nine digs, and six kills.

However, in losing Meyers, the Belles not only lost their strongest statistical player, but also their captain. This senior has the longest tenure of anyone on the team along with two school records.

In an attempt to replace Meyers, LeBeau will take over

Irish battle Big East foes

By SUSAN CARPENTER
Sports Writer

The No. 24 Notre Dame women's volleyball team will face two crucial Big East opponents this weekend. The Irish start off against Virginia Tech tonight at 7 p.m. and finish with a contest against Georgetown on Sunday at 2p.m.

Tonight's match will be the first ever between Notre Dame and Virginia Tech. Unable to rely on past meetings, the Irish have been doing their homework by studying tapes and team statistics. At 3-7 and 0-2 in the Big East, Virginia Tech is the underdog, but the Irish consider their game with the Hokies to be an important Big East matchup.

up.
"It doesn't matter what they're bringing," coach Debbie Brown said. "It matters what we're doing on our side of the net."

In Notre Dame's last match against Syracuse, the Irish had 10 aces and five service errors. Coach Brown hopes to continue to hit efficiently with a hitting percentage of .300 while holding the opponent to a .110 hitting percentage.

In their 11 matches with Georgetown, the Irish lead the Hoyas 10-1. The Hoyas should not be underestimated, however. Last year's match was close with the Irish edging out on top 3-2.

"They've proved to have a stronger team each year we've played them," Senior captain Marcie Bomhack said, "We treat them as top contenders in the Big East."

The Hoyas are also enjoying a winning streak of their own. The team has won its last three games to bolster their season record to 5-4 and has a notable record of 2-0 in the Big East. Voted by the 13 Big East coaches to finish a strong fifth in the conference, Georgetown could be a formidable opponent for Notre Dame.

Leading the young Hoya team is Yulia Vtyurina who was selected as the Big East Player of the Week last week. The Irish are sure to heighten their intensity for this Big East competitor.

The Hoya victory over the Irish three years ago, "sparked a rivalry," Bomhack said. "We don't ever want that to happen again."

Notre Dame has a season record of 5-3 and is 1-0 in the Big East. After losing close battles with No. 1 Nebraska, No. 15 Pepperdine and No. 7 UCLA earlier in September, the team defeated Valparaiso and Syracuse to build its current two-game winning streak.

With renewed focus and a surge of momentum, the Irish look to maintain their dominating presence in the Big East, having not lost a Big East match since 1998.

Notre Dame has a winning mindset because the team takes each opponent one match at a time. Heading into a match, the Irish aim to win in 3 games. In addition, part of Notre Dame's strategy includes continually setting goals for themselves for each competition. The main objective for the Irish is to score points on the serve.

The team would also like to improve their overall statistics such as hitting percent blocks. Senior Malinda Goralski continues to be an important asset for the Irish. Leading the team with an average of over three kills per game, Goralski will be on offensive power while her ability to dominate the net will keep the Irish in control of the game.

Red-hot Belles win third straight

By KATRINA KALASKY Sports Writer

Saint Mary's didn't play like a team of freshman Thursday.

When SMC took the field against Indiana Tech, the team was playing against a squad that had only played teams of freshmen. Indiana Tech never stood a chance against the Belles, who slapped them with a 5-0 victory for their third consecutive season victory.

"Since the scrimmage [against Indiana Tech earlier this season] the girls have matured as players and established a composed style of play," said head coach Bobby Johnston.

After a 0-5 start to the season, the young Belles team is finally moving in the right direction.

They dominated the whole game, beginning with the three goals they scored in the first half. Two were scored by freshman Shannon Artnak and one was scored by freshman Jen Concannon, who has been an instrumental player with four goals and five assists in the past week.

"We came together as a team," Concannon said. "We were passing well and we're getting the job done."

During the second half, Saint Mary's freshmen continued to dominate play. Freshman Molly McCavitt scored twice, once on a penalty and again on a corner kick. There was no contest on offense. Saint Mary's had 37 shots on goal while Indiana Tech could only manage 5.

At the halfway point in their season, most of the players contribute their recent winning streak to having more experience working as a team.

"We know how to play together as a team now," McCavitt said.

With three wins under their belts, the Belles continue their MIAA season against number one ranked Albion College on Sunday.

Despite the fact that his young team is taking on a conference powerhouse, Johnston plans to keep everything just as it is.

"We've been playing well so we will keep the same style," he said.

The Belles winning streak has increased their confidence and they are ready to take on solid competition.

"It should be a good game.," said captain Lynn Taylor. "We're coming in with a lot of good momentum and a lot of confidence."

The game gets under way at 10 a.m. on the Saint Mary's soccer fields.

Belles in thick of MIAA championship hunt

By KATIE McVOY Associate Sports Editor

No more practice runs. Today is the real thing.

Three MIAA tournaments, each one with a different winner, and two months of practice all come down to this weekend.

Saint Mary's wraps up its conference season this weekend at the MIAA Championship at Brookwood golf course and the Belles want to come home with a trophy.

"We all want to win," team captain Megan Keleher said. "We've really been leading up to this and we've been playing consistently all season.'

Consistency is going to be key for the Belles this weekend. Competition Hope and Alma have been lead by a single solid player shooting under 80 - Lacy Wicksall for Hope and Courtney Rheinhardt for Alma. But Saint Mary's plays solidly across the board, with all four of their top golfers finishing in the top 10 in the three past MIAA tourna-

This weekend, as they tee off on their home course, the Belles are hoping that consistency comes through.

"We have a big advantage playing on our own home course," Keleher said. "I think that's key ... because we know the course so well we'll all play consistently.'

Keleher will be joined by a young group of golfers who have led the team all season. Freshman Stefanie Simmerman has consistently been the top golfer for the Belles this season and is hoping to be a top finisher again this weekend.

'Personally my goal is to go out there and play to the best of my ability," she said. "I'm really looking to go out there and place somewhere in the top three or four.'

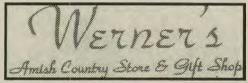

Freshman Julia Adams, sophomore Liz Hanlon and junior Molly Lee will take their places alongside Keleher and Simmerman as the Belles top five golfers.

"As an individual I think that because it's a championship round ... I hope to post a good score and to help the team,'

The Belles posted a victory during the first MIAA tournament, but fell to third and second in the next two tournaments. But this weekend they have the home course advantage. The last three years competition at Brookwood Golf Course has been rained out, so this weekend marks the first time any MIAA team will step foot on the course.

'This is a great benefit to us because this course is one that every other girl in the conference is not a favorite of," Hanlon said. Knowing the course is a big benefit for us.

New coach brings - new approach

By JOE LINDSLEY Sports Writer

Every Tuesday and Thursday morning at 5:30 a.m., Shannon Byrne and her teammates crawl out of their beds and head to the weight room to begin the day's circuit training.

This is a new era in Notre Dame women's golf.

After just three victories last season and unorganized practices, the Irish, under the direction of their first fulltime coach, are ready to focus their efforts on making a name for the team. This weekend, they start with their first intercollegiate tourna-

"I have a five year plan to get us into the top 25 [in the nation's women's golf rankings]," said new coach Debbie King.

King has led the University of Memphis women's golf program to the NCAA tournament four out of the past five sea-

Their quest begins Saturday at the Warren Golf Course, where the Irish are looking to defend their Notre Dame Invitational title. The competition this year is supposed to be tougher than before. Under the leadership of King, the team has stepped up its work-outs and they feel they are ready to win.

The Irish have not played since the Notre Dame Golf Campus Women's Championship Sept. 7 and 8.

'We're itching to get going,' said Byrne.

In the past, the golfers usually had to practice on their own, as there was not much structure with a part-time coach. King's full-time presence has completely altered the team's routines, with the weight and cardio workouts two mornings a week as well as more structured practices

"The additional structure has caused us to focus," said Byrne. "We're all on the same page now, and we know exactly what's expected of us.

King believes one of the major keys to improving the team's stature is getting the players to believe in them-

"I like to work my players from the inside out," she said.

King, showing her dedication to the Irish, summed up her reason for coming to Notre Dame in one sentence

"I felt my chances of winning a national championship would be better [at Notre Dame]," she said.

There are not just one or two leaders of the Irish. "Everyone will have their time to contribute, and everyone's going to be needed," said

In addition to veterans Rebecca Rogers, Kristin McMurtie, Jeanne Murphy, Taibl, and Byrne, the team will also look to freshmen Karen Lotta and Casey Rotella.

The members of the Irish women's golf team realize that changes are coming to their program, and are looking forward to the prospects proposed to them by King.

"Things are going up for us. We all feel like we're a part of something," Byrne said. "That's exciting. It's a challenge.'

Irish race to weekend meets

After last week's first place finish at the National Catholic Invitational, the team moved up to No. 4 in the national rankings.

Juniors Kevin Avenius, John Keane, Kevin Brown and Nathan Shay, sophomore Kevin Somok, senior Tom Lennon, freshmen Ryan Johnson and Eric Morrison and fifth year senior Sean Zanderson will run for Notre Dame this Saturday.

'I have no idea how they're going to finish," said head coach Joe Piane. And if you were to ask them they would say the same thing.'

Though next week's Notre Dame Invitational will be their first opportunity for the team to be tested against other nationally ranked competition, this meet will provide a good chance for the middle of the pack runners to possibly move into varsity competition.

"It's not quite as big of a meet, but it's a crucial meet for those that are on the bubble" said Avenius. 'That's why we're running the group we are.

Western Michigan and Ohio University should be the closest competition for Notre Dame. Though the runners will be different from the full strength Irish lineup, the same pack strategy that fueled last weekend's individual and team success will prevail in Saturday's race. Notre Dame took the first, second, third, fifth, eighth, 11th and 16th spots in last weekend's meet.

"On any given day, there are 10 guys competing for the number four, five, and six spots," said Avenius.
"It's going to be tough for the coach to make that call, but you have to go week to week.'

"It's a good problem to have," said Piane.

The women will also hold out their top seven runners from last week's National Catholic Championships, where they took second out of the 26 team field.

Junior Jen Handley, who took first place in the meet, as well as freshman Lauren King, sophomore Megan Johnson, who was third at the National Catholic Championships, and freshman Christi Arnerich, will rest this weekend. Junior Susan sophomores Rachel Endress and Megan Peterson, senior Hilary Burn, and freshman Katie Wales will be among those competing Saturday.

'We want to give those kids an opportunity to compete in a race that's a team situation," said head coach Tim Connelly. "We can use this meet as a gauge to see where we Ohio University, Wisconsin, and Detroit Mercy should be the teams closest to Notre Dame.

"We're going to make a conscious effort to work together," said Endress.

"Everyone, no matter what level. We have to work on pack running and motivating each other.

As the team continues to grow this season they have combined experience with new talent. They will also continue to develop their pack running strategy.

"It helps being able to go out where you're supposed to and stay with front runners at start," said Creary.

"The group is very talented, and we are confident about our ability to compete," said Endress. 'A lot of the people, especially Susie Creary and Megan Peterson have improved vastly since last

Jackson Park Tournament marks first competition for Saint Mary's

By NOREEN GILLESPIE

When Anne Pikosovits and Frances Fuller were playing field hockey at Saint Mary's, they had no idea they were creating a revolution.

They simply wanted to have fun with their friends. So in the fall of 1934, 12 women came together to form a field hockey team, marking the first time there was any organized athletic team at the College.

"We just wanted to have fun, to get out of the classroom," said Pikosovits, who will accept the 1934 Field Hockey Team's Hall of Fame induction at Angela Athletic Facility Saturday. "We wanted to do something besides study all the time ... that's how we got

Under the direction of Isabel Kane, a physical culture instructor at the College, the students met for practice and scrimmaged after class. For most of them, it was the first time they had been exposed to the sport.

While Pikosovits remembers impromptu volleyball games held in the gymnasium, and the College handbook states students took daily walks down the tree-lined avenue for "fulfillment of daily exercise," women's athletics were unheard of in the 1930s.

The team soon made a name for itself both within Saint Mary's community and the region when they were invited to play in Jackson Park's Play Day in Chicago, a regional tournament for teams from local colleges. The South Bend Tribune reported on the event, writing that the College sponsored a spaghetti dinner, a "rousing" pep rally and sold hockey patches to fund the team's trip.

For the team who had never played against anyone but themselves, it was the opportunity

"We were so young, so inexperienced ... we hadn't played anyone else," Pikosovits said. "We had never left the campus for a game

The team was scheduled for three 15minute games on Saturday, Nov. 10, 1934, and walked away tying University of Chicago, 0-0. They lost one game to Battle Creek College 2-0, and won by default to Lake Forest College, who did not appear for its game.

One year later and with one year's more experience, the team returned to the Jackson Park tournament on Nov. 9, 1935, and notched a victory against Northern IIllinois State Teachers College. They tied North Junior College 0-0, and lost to Northwestern

Within the next five years, a basketball, equestrian, tennis, canoeing, volleyball, track and field, archery, golf, badminton and hiking teams were established. Within the next 50 years, the College would field eight teams for varsity competition and join the NCAA as a full-fledged member.

But tell that to Pikosovits and Fuller now, and they'll humbly tell you they just did it to

I think this is a very novel idea," Fuller said. "It was important to me and the team."

"I feel very humble," Pikosovits said. "I feel a lot of pride in it...I didn't want to pat myself on the back, but I thought it was a pretty good thing to happen."

◆ Belles athletics changes from single team to conference champion

By KATIE McVOY Associate Sports Editor

It's not a history that includes perfecting the forward pass or claiming countless national championships, but it is a history worth revisiting, a history full of growth and expansion. From the first team to take the field in 1934 to the first MIAA championship team last year, the Saint Mary's athletic department has grown with the times.

In 1934, 12 women took the field as the first organized athletic team in Saint Mary's history and won one game. That was the beginning of a program that features seven varsity teams, a complete intramural schedule and a physical fitness program today.

That was just such a fabulous statement and landmark for Saint Mary's," athletic director Lynn Kachmarik said.

Following that first game in 1934, the department moved from an intramural program to an NAIA member up to NCAA status in 1990.

By 1982, Saint Mary's had established a complete varsity program, sporting swimming and diving, softball, basketball, gymnastics and crew. The Belles established a solid rivalry with Notre Dame's varsity women's teams and had their share of competition across route 31.

The Belles seemed to take control in volleyball, beating the Irish the first two years the women played varsity, but always seemed to fall short in basketball, keeping a series record of 0-10 against the Irish.

"Although the rivalry is a fairly new one, the intensity is high," said Mary DiStanislao, former Notre Dame women's basketball coach.

With the intensive program under way, the Belles needed a conference affiliation. Under the leadership of athletic director Erin Murhpy, Saint Mary's joined the NAIA in the first step toward establishing itself in the athletic world

Following its arrival in the NAIA, Saint Mary's had one of its best spring seasons in history. The softball team claimed the Indiana Division III Championship and 14 members of the track and field team qualified for nationals. Eleven grabbed top six finishes.

When Jo-Ann Nester took over in 1984, the NAIA wasn't enough. Over the next five years Nester looked into membership and by 1989, the Belles had dual membership in the NCAA and NAIA.

"As an NCAA Division III affiliate, we now have the opportunity to compete in a non-scholarship division among schools with athletic and academic philosophies similar to ours," Nester said at the time. "This kind of peer scheduling clearly will allow our teams to be more competitive in post-season play at the district, regional and national level.

For the next nine years the Belles would play in the NCAA without any conference affiliation and the basketball program hit its peak under the leadership of Marvin Wood. In the fall of 1999, Saint Mary's would take its final steps to becoming the program it is today.

Beginning in 1997, the Belles had been playing with the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Assocation. Finally, in 1999, they took the final step and became full-fledged members of the MIAA. Acting athletic director Jini Cook took the Belles most of the way and then handed the program over to Kachmarik for completion.

"Coaches recruiting for their sports can offer a stable conference, a stable schedule and a strong competition to incoming freshman athletes," Cook said after she brought Saint Mary's into the MIAA.

Two years later, the Belles have one MIAA championship to their name and are looking for another one this week-

Over 60 years after the first Saint Mary's women took the field, moving from intracollege competition to state level competition, Saint Mary's is still looking ahead.

"Now I would like to see our teams compete at the NCAA Division III national level," Kachmarik said.

seasons.

Meghan Rafferty Weldon graduated in 1988 with her name already embossed in Saint Mary's history. As a member of the Belles swimming and diving team she set three school records as an individual and qualified as part of three recordbreaking relay teams for the national championship. Weldon held individual school records in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke and the 50-yard freestyle.

The 90's produced the largest part of the 2001 induction class. After joining the NCAA in 1991, Saint Mary's had more to offer its student athletes.

1991 graduate Nicole Hill Colucci still holds the record in the indoor 1-mile and 2-mile run and was the 10,000-meter District Champion. During her stay at Saint Mary's she was named Most Valuable Player on the track team and received the Coach's Leadership Award.

Kelly Cook, a 1992 graduate, led the Saint Mary's soccer team during her tenure at the campus. She was a three-time All-Region soccer player and was named to the NSCAA All-American team.

Rounding out the class of 2001 are 1993 graduate Karen Lorton and 1994 gradate Dalsaso. Lorton holds six school records in volleyball and earned the NCAA All-Region player Award. Dalsaso, like Cook, was named to the NSCAA All-American team in soccer and was a three time

All-Region player. Activities this weekend are focused around intermingling alumni and current student athletes. Tonight at 7 p.m. there will be an alumni basketball game and inductees are encouraged to cheer on current Belles teams during Saturday's home soccer, volleyball and golf competitions.

Alumni will also have the opportunity to face off against future hall-of-famers in alumni/varsity tennis, softball and volleyball matches on Saturday afternoon. Alumnae soccer players can compete with current Belles soccer players on Saturday, and the swim team will host an alumnae meet at Rolfs Aquatics Center Sunday

No. 4 Irish: We're finally playing up to our ability

By JOE LICANDRO Sports Writer

After struggling in some of their early games due to injuries, the No. 4 Irish are finally healthy and ready to return to last year's form that carried them all the way to the NCAA Final Four.

With a three game streak and a newfound confidence, the Irish hope to continue their momentum this weekend against Big East opponents Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

"For the first time all season, all three separate units — offense, midfield and defense — we're on the same page," said senior fullback Lindsey Jones. "Tuesday was a great reminder that we are capable of playing well together. I think we have moved past some of the mistakes that hurt us at the beginning of the season because we are communicating with one another."

While the Irish certainly showed they were capable of defeating any team in the country with their resounding victory over No. 3 Nebraska on Tuesday, the Irish have yet to be tested on the road this season. On Friday night, the Irish will leave the friendly confines of Alumni Field and travel to Pittsburgh.

While the Pittsburgh Panthers are not regarded as one of the stronger teams in the Big East, Notre Dame knows full well that they cannot take anyone lightly.

"I do not think playing on the road will be a problem for us because all of our upperclassmen have traveled and played on the road before," said Jones. "Playing on the road will be a new experience for the freshmen, but I think we are ready for the game Friday night."

The Irish expect Pittsburgh to play a very defensive-oriented game to offset Notre Dame's superior athleticism and speed. The Panthers boast last year's Big East goalie of the year Rachel Brown. The Irish must rely on the passing abilities of their midfielders Randi Scheller and Mia Sarkesian to create quality scoring chances for forwards Amy Warner, Amanda Guertin, and Kelly Tulisiak.

The Irish will have little time to recuperate from Friday's game against the Panthers as they must return to South Bend to host the West Virginia Mountaineers on Sunday at 1 p.m. at Alumni Field. Sunday's game for the Irish is critically important because the Mountaineers are currently tied with the Irish for the Big East lead.

Last year, the Irish squeaked out an overtime victory at West Virginia so they know that West Virginia is eagerly awaiting their chance to avenge last year's loss.

"This is a huge game for us for so many reasons," said Notre Dame head coach Randy Waldrum. "This game will go a long way in determining who will the Big East Title.

West Virginia has three all-Big East players in their starting lineup including projected Big East offensive player of the year Katie Barnes. West Virginia is an excellent team.

"They already have some big wins this season including a big win over No. 19-ranked Auburn," said Waldrum. "I expect West Virginia to give us a real challenge so we must play our best to defeat them on Sunday."

The Irish's record currently sits at six wins and one tie. If they play the way they did against Nebraska on Tuesday night, their record will most certainly be improved to eight wins and one tie at the end of this weekend while sitting atop the Big East with four wins and zero losses in conference play.

forever ENGRAVED IN TIME

Saint Mary's remembers the athletes and coaches who brought athletics from one field hockey team to a rising MIAA force with induction in the College's new Athletic Hall of Fame.

The 1934 Saint Mary's field hockey team that will be inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame on Saturday was the first organized athletic team in College history. Nine other individuals will be inducted with the team this weekend.

This weekend will be a weekend of memories and a weekend aimed at the future. A wall in Angela Athletic Facility that has long remained empty will become a memorial to the members of Saint Mary's athletics who came before and forever changed the face of Belles athletics.

On Saturday, the Saint Mary's athletic department will re-institute the Athletic Hall of Fame and hold the first formal induction in department history.

'It was something I wanted to do the day I got here," athletic director Lynn Kachmarik said. "I feel ... there are so many women [and men] who need to be recog-

The Hall of Fame, which was instituted in 1993 by athletic director Jo-Ann Nester, is currently home to only four Saint Mary's athletes. After the class of 1994 was named, the Hall of Fame fell into disuse and it wasn't until Kachmarik became athletic director in 1999 that the idea to reopen the Hall of Fame came to light.

"I've been researching," Kachmarik said. "This is a natural time to do this. We're trying to get back in touch with alum-

Ten former members of the Saint Mary's athletic department will mark the inagural class. Beginning with the 1934 field hockey team that competed as the first represented Saint Mary's team and culminating with 1994 graduate Megan Dalsaso, the men and women who will be inducted cover over 50 years of Saint Mary's athletic history.

'Their stories, what they have to say, is the best part of this induction ceremony," Kachmarik said. "It's not what we're going to say about them, it's what they're going to say to us to give us more appreciation and more memories of Saint Mary's.'

The 1934 field hockey team competed in the first intercollegiate athletic event in Saint Mary's history. The team took part in the Jackson Park Play Day Hockey tournament. "Some things just stood out with the 1934 field hockey team," Kachmarik said. "It was just a given — This is a team that went out and represented us back in 1934.

Mary Fran Shaff Meekison, a 1940 graduate of Saint Mary's, played an important part in Saint Mary's athletic history before varsity athletics were a part of the department. She won the Helen Holland Voll Trophy in 1938 for outstanding participation in intramural athletics. She was a key player on her class' basketball team while at Saint Mary's and remains an involved alumna. The athletic department recently named "The Mary Fran Meekison Senior Athlete Service Award" in her honor.

"Her commitment to Saint Mary's since she has left here [is obvious]," Kachmarik said.

Nester, who served as the athletic director for Saint Mary's from 1984-1993, contributed to the progress of the Saint Mary's athletic program. In 1989 she began taking steps to change Saint Mary's from an NAIA team to full NCAA Division III status.

'There's a whole history of sports before varsity athletics," Kachmarik said Marvin Wood is in the minority. However, being the only male member of the induction class is not the only way he has distinguished himself. Wood served as the head basketball coach at Saint Mary's from 1984-1995. The Saint Mary's team played some of its most successful years under his leadership and, following his death in 2000, the department dedicated a memorial bench to him. His wife Marilou will represent him on Saturday.

"Marvin Wood, a coach who gave so much to Saint Mary's, was just part of history here, Kachmarik said. "He just epitomizes everything [we stand for]."

The last six members of the class of 2001 represent the height of varsity play at Saint Mary's. Debbie Laverie, a 1985 graduate, pioneered the Saint Mary's tennis program that has recently risen to prominence. Laverie was Saint Mary's first NAIA All-American tennis player, was named to the All-District team and qualified for national championships. After graduation, she turned to coaching and was named the District III Coach of the Year for three consecutive

Holiday newest hope for Irish offense

By JEFF BALTRUZAK Assistant Sports Editor

Desperate to avoid the first 0-3 start in school history, an 0-2 Notre Dame football team enters Saturday's game at undefeated Texas A&M the object of national scrutiny, piloted by first-time starter Carlyle Holiday.

Holiday's ascent to the highest pressure position in college football clearly illustrates a team in dire need of offensive fireworks. The Irish have scored just 20 points in their first two games, struggling to maintain drives and facing third and long passing situations that have frequently turned into completions well short of the first down marker.

"The reality is that we're not scoring enough points," said Irish head coach Bob Davie Tuesday. "Carlyle deserved that opportunity to see if he can generate points."

Davie understands that Holiday can only do so much to put the ball in the end zone.

"I think our team understands we need execution in all phases," Davie said. "We needed to improve in so many ways to win, it doesn't matter who was the quarterback."

The Irish have shown only brief flashes of proper execution, mostly on defense.

The Irish front seven anchored by Grant Irons, Courtney Watson and Tony Weaver has been solid this season, holding highly touted tailback T.J. Duckett to just 71 yards while putting up a fierce pass rush during Notre Dame's loss to Michigan State.

With seniors Jordan Black and Kurt Vollers providing effective run blocking and with Holiday under center, the Irish line will have an easier time keeping their young signal caller off his back.

"With Carlyle back there, it makes pass blocking a lot easier," said Black. "We'll run a lot of options just because Carlyle's an option kind of guy."

While pass blocking might be easier in College Station, hearing Holiday's signals and snap counts amid a notoriously loud and hostile crowd at Kyle Field will complicate the line's job considerably. On passing plays, Black said he will hold hands with guard Sean Mahan and wait for Mahan to tug his hand after the snap.

"It makes me a step slower," Black said.

For many Irish players, the A&M game is more than the third game of what has turned into a tough season, it is a return home. Besides Holiday, who hails from San Antonio, Texas, 13 other players on the Notre Dame roster are from Texas, a top recruiting area for Irish coaches.

"Just the fact that it's in Texas is huge," said senior inside linebacker Tyreo Harrison, a native of Sulphur Springs, Texas. "This date has been marked for a long time."

It's been on the Aggies' calendar a while as well. Texas A&M has yet to play a ranked opponent, with wins over lightly-regarded, non-conference opponents McNeese St. and Wyoming, with another Big-12 victory over Oklahoma State.

Aggie head coach R.C. Slocum, Davie's former employer, sees playing the Irish at home as a watershed game, a win that could catapult A&M to more national attention.

"If we can beat this team, I think we are capable of beating anyone in the Big-12," said Slocum in a press conference Tuesday. "We have never relaxed since Sunday."

Neither have the Irish. The prospect of getting back on track against a team he was once so personally involved in has Davie excited for Saturday.

"We are backed in a corner," said Davie. "I'm going to stop and say I can be darned proud of what we've accomplished and I'm looking forward to this."

Facing the pressure — at home

Sophomore quarterback will make his first start in his home state

By NOAH AMSTADTER Sports Editor

Carlyle Holiday walks into the interview room for his first teleconference as Notre Dame's starting quarterback. When he gets there, he finds a surprise.

Sitting with the rest of his pads and jersey - waiting for him to wear during a photo shoot — is what appears to be a large white ball. Upon closer inspection, Holiday finds that it is his helmet - with about seven layers of athletic tape completely covering it.

'That's just our offensive line,' Holiday said. "When they are getting treatment, playing around with us, just because we are littler than they are."

Looking like your average Notre Dame sophomore, he answers questions, he remains modest, and listens patiently, considers every question and provides a thoughtful answer.

But the world for this quiet, collected 19-year-old changed with one phone call Monday morning.

Called Into Action

Back in his room in Carroll Hall, the telephone rang. The Notre Dame coaching staff wanted to meet with Holiday before practice.

So after class, Holiday walked over to the locker room at Notre Dame Stadium and sat down to listen to the coaches. The message was short, but it had a meaning of astronomic proportions.

Holiday would take over for Matt LoVecchio as Notre Dame's starting quarterback Saturday afternoon against Texas A&M. Holiday, who lives in San Antonio, Texas, reacted calmly to the news that he would make his first start in his home state.

'He was very matter-of-fact," Irish offensive coordinator Kevin Rogers said of Holiday's reaction. "He's a Texas guy, so I think he's very excited about it.

On the practice field, the repetitions weren't all that different than they had been with LoVecchio as the starter. Both quarterbacks are quiet by nature and they had been sharing snaps at practice all season. But Monday, something was different.

"We are just practicing like we ave been normally." said. "It's just me with the first team and him with the second

While the quarterback generally serves as the commander in the huddle, veterans on the team such as Tony Fisher and Jeff Faine have provided a sense of calm while the quarterback focused on running the offense.

"He's a guy that really has taken charge of the huddle for the first time as the No. 1 guy," Rogers said. "It's a role that he really has to take charge of and get used to."

But Holiday's quiet, businesslike demeanor hasn't hampered his ability to lead the Irish charge downfield. With speakers blasting into practice this week to stimulate the loud fans the Irish will face at Kyle Field, Holiday has let himself be heard.

"Carlyle, I feel is a pretty quiet guy, but he speaks up pretty loud out there," offensive guard Kurt Vollers said. "You always know what's going on."

With less than two full quarters of play behind him — none before this month — the unknown factor is how Holiday can play a full game under pressure.

"It's how you respond to the bumps in the road and how you respond to the mistakes more than how it is when things are going smooth," head coach Bob Davie said. "That'll be the mark of whether he's a successful quarterback or not."

Facing the pressure

As the Irish coaches and players walked into the Stadium after practice Monday night, nearly every reporter crowded around Davie. With his first response, Davie answered their question: 'We're going to go with Carlyle Holiday this weekend."

Everything changed. Soon a mob had formed around Holiday, just returning from his first practice as the starter. Reporters pushed tape recorders in his face. They battled for the right to ask the next question.

Holiday stood patiently, helmet in his hand, and looked each reporter in the eye as the questions kept on coming. Reserved by nature, Holiday never cut his answers short. The reporters some from as far away as San Antonio — left with all of their questions answered.

The next day, the same crowd, this time including a few more reporters who missed Monday's show, gathered around once

On Wednesday, Holiday had to fit in the teleconference, posing for photographs in Washington Hall and practice. He also attended his full load of sophomore classes in the business school. But somehow, Holiday has kept his his first start Saturday afternoon against Texas A&M.

"I don't really let anything distract me," Holiday said during the teleconference, his voice remaining calm and collected. "I've just been going to practice with the same mindset I have been since the season started. There's been a lot more questions asked or whatever, but I just, you know, sort of try to stay focused in football."

But the fan attention can cause some problems. Notre Dame student e-mail addresses are available to anybody via the school's Web site, and Holiday has received his fair share of support.

"I probably have [received quite a bit of e-mail from fans, but I don't check them anymore," he said. "It's getting a little bit out of

As Holiday reflects on the answers, he exhibits not one bit of the arrogance or cockiness associated with many athletes of his caliber. He treats every reporter and every question as fairly and honestly as he can.

"He is a special guy," Rogers said. "You're talking about one of the nicest people you ever wanted to meet. There's not a big shot bone in his body. I think he's genuinely a decent human being.'

Coming home

The attention and pressure is nothing new to Holiday. He played high school ball in Texas for Roosevelt High in San Antonio. High school football is to Texas what religion is to a priest. Quite simply, it's life.

"It's pretty big," Holiday said. "It's almost like a college atmosphere. It's serious.'

On Friday afternoons, school would let out early. The gymnasiums would fill to the rafters as cheerleaders and students and families cheered the team on at the pep rallies.

But the atmosphere has its negative side as well.

"If coaches don't win down there in football, they get fired," Holiday said.

And Homecoming game was the biggest of all. Fifteen thousand fans would fill the stadium. Players and their dates spent more time getting ready for the homecoming dance than they did for Prom. Girls walked around with bouquets of flowers that covered their arms.

"Homecoming was real big. It's serious," Holiday said. "People walk around with 20 [flowers] on their arm. It's just big.'

Playing in that atmosphere has helped Holiday adjust to starting on one of college football's most glorified roles as well as adjusting to large venues.

"There are big crowds at the games down there," Holiday said. 'It helped out a little bit, it's not the exact same amount as the college game, but it's as big as it gets in high school."

On Saturday, Holiday has his own personal homecoming. He's already left tickets for 15 friends and relatives who plan on making the trip up to College Station from San Antonio, and has fielded requests from many more.

Kyle Field isn't wholly unfamiliar to Holiday, who attended games there his junior and senior years of high school when he was recruited by Texas A&M. He is ready to for the loudest game he's ever played, but says the team is ready as well.

"It's not really a factor, unless we make it a factor," Holiday said. 'We've worked on it."

Holiday also looks forward to seeing his parents, who called him with congratulations Tuesday

'They're excited, they just want me to go out and win," Holiday

Winning on the field is why he came to Notre Dame. While he may be quiet, Holiday looks reporters and coaches in the eye and says he came to Notre Dame

Saturday he gets his chance. Right back in Texas, where he

IRISH RUSHING

IRISH PASSING

Notre DAME

Davie's never been on a seat as hot as the one he's on now. He'll need to win to get the critics off his back. No Notre Dame coach has started off 0-3 — ever.

Holiday is the clear starter here. Irish coaches have decided to shake up the offense and give the sophomore his first start. The coaches have also made clear that he will see most of the action — it's unlikely that LoVecchio will see significant playing time.

Fisher has emerged as the top Irish runner, but Jones will probably see significant carries during Saturday's game. The offensive line did a much better job opening up holes last week.

Injuries to Givens and Battle have hurt the Irish passing game severely. While Hunter has established himself as a legitamate threat and Jenkins looked solid in his first appearance last week, the Irish have been relucatant to throw the long ball this year.

FEXAS A&M

Slocumb is synonymous with Texas A&M football. He is virtually unbeatable at home. Slocumb was responsible for giving Davie his first major coaching position.

Farris is very similar to last year's Heisman Trophy winner Chris Weikne. Both played minor league baseball before joining college football programs. And he's a prolific passer, throwing for 341 yards against Wyoming.

A weak defensive front characterizes the Aggie defense. Both defensive ends are recovering from injuries sustained last year, but Warren is a powerful nose guard. The Aggie linebacker corps is also fairly solid. Davie coached the first generation of the Aggie famed "Wrecking Crew.

Texas A&M has a strong, potent pass rush that could pose problems for the Notre Dame offensive line. They recorded eight sacks last week, and their secondary is very experienced. Davis already has three interceptions and Weston has started 14 straight games at cornerback.

While Slocumb and Davie remain great friends today — they call each other nearly every week — Slocumb is doing a much better job managing his football team right now. While he can focus on the game, Davie's focusing on saving his job.

Holiday is simply untested. He's played only six series, while Farris has thrown a touchdown pass in his last six games. Nobody knows what Holiday will do, but his passing has come under criticism and he has looked hesi-

When Notre Dame decides to run the ball, they usually do it well. With Holiday at quarterback, the Irish will be much more run-oriented and will rely on the option and quarterback draw more. The Aggies will have a tough time stopping the Irish run.

Holiday is a suspect passer, and although Givens may play Saturday, the Irish receivers probably won't see the ball very much. And when it is thrown their way, the Aggie secondary has a good chance of picking the ball off.

After two quarters of sputtering offense, the Irish will score three second-half touchdowns to pull away. Holiday's homecoming will be solid, but not spectacular. Game balls for Fisher, Watson and a surprising Tyreo

FINAL SCORE: Notre Dame 28 Texas A&M 7

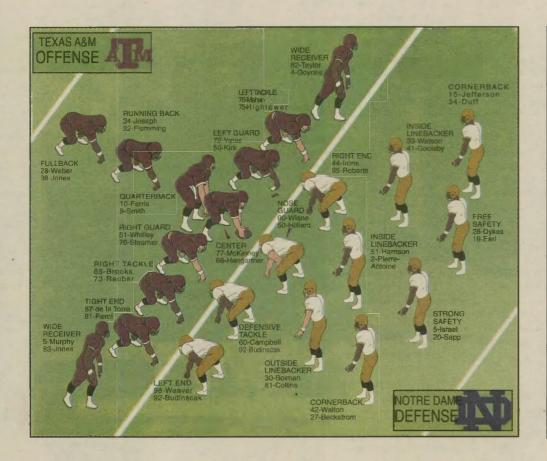

Andrew Soukup associate sports editor

The Aggie defense, knowing the Irish never throw down the field, will focus on the stopping the run. While Holiday will provide a spark, he can't do it all. While Notre Dame's special teams play will keep the game close and the defense will control the Aggies' spread offense, the lack of offense will kill the Irish — again.

AGGIE RUSHING

AGGIE PASSING

SPECIAL TEAMS

INTANGIBLES

The defensive line looked a 100 percent better last week, holding Duckett to just 71 yards. Watson and Harrison have also proven that they are capable of providing both run support and a pass rush.

The Aggie running backs have been hampered by injuries. Joseph only carried the ball eight times

against Oklahoma State and Flemming only had 71 yards last week.

Farris isn't a running threat, either. Like the Irish, Texas A&M doesn't

use their fullback much.

Before the season, people thought the Irish secondary would hurt the defense. Turns out they were right. Against Michigan State, Notre Dame's cornerbacks couldn't stay with receivers, missed key interceptions, and made costly tackling errors.

Here's the core of the Texas A&M offense. The Aggies love to spread the field and pass the ball, and Farris is a classic

drop-back passer. Taylor,

Texas A&M's go-to receiver, transferred from Notre Dame last

This is the bright spot of the Notre Dame football team. Hildbold has been outstanding punting the ball — he's averaging around 50 yards a punt. Last week, Jones showed he's still capable of breaking big returns to give the offense a boost.

Special teams is definetly not an Aggie strong point.

Scates handles both the Aggie punting and kicking duties. He's made 13 tackles — not exactly the stat

a special teams coach wants to see. Scates has only gone 1-5 on field goals this year. Their return game is modest.

Right now, the Irish are playing for pride. They've been just the fourth Irish team since 1900 to start off 0-2, and you can bet they don't want to be the first team to start off 0-3.

Kyle Field says it all. The Aggies are 66-7-1 at home since Slocumb took over, and for good reasons. Texas A&M have some of the best fans in the nation, and Davie believes the noise in College Station will be greater than what the Irish faltered under in Nebraska.

The more time special teams units are on the field, the better it is for the Irish. It's simple special teams are Notre Dame's strength and Texas A&M's weakness.

Home field advantage gives the edge to the Aggies. The Irish admitted they weren't pre-pared for the noise against Nebraska, and if Davie thinks Kyle Field will be louder. Notre Dame could be in big trouble.

Texas A&M doesn't use the run much, but when they do, they're not very effective. Irons, Campbell, Wisne and Weaver shouldn't have too many problems controlling the Aggie rushing attack.

Any team whose offensive focus revolves around passing the ball will cause the Irish problems this year. Notre Dame has an inexperienced cornerback in Duff and has shown they can't cover receivers when they take off down the field.

Davie will hold a prominent spot in Notre Dame history — but for something he will be proud of. He will be known as the only coach to start a season 0-3. Mixing an untested quarterback with a loud and crazy stadium is a recipe for disaster. The Irish defense will remain tough, however, and keep the score close.

FINAL SCORE: Texas A&M 14 Mike Connolly Notre Dame 3 editor in chief

Two games. Two losses. Twenty points. That doesn't sound like a formula for success. The Irish need point production and they need it fast. Holiday doesn't have big shoes to fill but he has a huge task ahead of him. Once again, leave it to the defense to carry the burden of keeping the Irish in the game.

FINAL SCORE: Texas A&M 24 Notre Dame 10

Holiday gets first taste of media frenzy

I don't envy Carlyle Holiday. Not one bit.

Nor, for that matter, do I envy Matt LoVecchio, Gary Godsey, Arnaz Battle, Jarious

R o n Powlus and the legions of Notre Dame quarterbacks who came before them.

this joke before about whether you're the head coach or whether you're the quarterback," Bob Davie said earlier this season. "Notre Dame fans love to discuss that issue of who is going to replace you and how quick.

Sports Editor

And it's not just fans. From TV personalities to newspaper columnists to sportswriters, everyone is always looking at the new Notre Dame quarterback, wondering if he's good enough to measure up to the great Notre Dame quarterbacks of the past.

Too often, he's not.

And it's not because he's not talented. It's not because he lacks poise or confidence. It's because they spend so much time worrying about how to explain their mistakes to reporters rather than focusing on next week's opponent.

Every time a new Notre Dame starting quarterback is named, the throng of media reporters descend upon the poor hapless soul asking questions like, "Are you surprised?" 'Did you see this coming?" "Are you nervous?" "How are you going to handle the pressure?" and "Do you remember competing against Joe Smith, Texas A&M's third string water boy, in second grade piano recitals?" Monday afternoon, it was no different for Holiday.

The first question a reporter asked Bob Davie was if he had picked a starting quarterback. Yes, we're going to go with Carlyle, Davie said.

A few more questions came Davie's way — questions about Kyle Field and offensive communication.

Then, someone noticed Holiday walking through the gates, and the crowd around Davie evaporated.

Instantly

Before he knew it, Notre Dame's newest starting quarterback felt a tug on his arm by one reporter asking for a minute of his time so he could answer a few questions. Holiday finally walked away from the crowd of 20 or so reporters about 20 minutes later. He might have even been sunburned from the multitude of TV camera lights pointed at

"There must be a new sheriff in town," said Davie, who was standing a few feet away. Then, more somberly, he added, "That's what it was like with Matt last year.'

And that's how it was with Gary Godsey before LoVecchio, and Battle before Godsey. Everyone wants to know about the quarterback

And, when things go wrong, everyone begins to point fingers at the quarterback.

"The quarterback gets too much blame and too much credit," offensive coordinator Kevin Rogers said.

It's hard to anticipate what the pressure is like when you first sign with the Irish. Holiday received a series of congratulatory e-mails from die-hard Irish fans when he picked Notre Dame over Nebraska and Texas A&M a few years ago.

"I understood the world I was coming to when I came here," he said

But did he really? A few emails from some subway alumni is one thing. Being asked three times in the same interview if you have ever played in Kyle Field for a high school allstar game is another. Sure, he saw LoVecchio last year answering questions about everything imaginable last year. But when people are asking about your jock size, it's another thing entirely.

"I don't even check [my email] anymore," Holiday said. "It's getting out of control."

You can try to guess at what it will be like. You can think you can handle it. And it's nice to receive the attention at first. But when it's the same questions, day in and day out, you can't help but get frustrated.

"It's been a lot this week,"

Holiday said. "People are going to ask their questions ... When football is going on, I just think about football at that time and I just try to get away from all the questions and all that stuff."

Holiday can try all he wants. He'll never get away.

People will still follow Holiday around after games, asking questions about every single aspect of the game. If the defense doesn't play well, he's going to get asked about it. If a wide receiver has a good game, he's going to get asked about it. And if Holiday screws up, he's going to get asked about it.

Just ask LoVecchio. After every game, he talks to tape recorders, boom microphones and television cameras, answering questions about missed plays, missed field goals and missed opportunities two or three times. And when the people holding those recording devices are finished with him, they walk away wondering why he didn't say very much.

In fact, the only person who answers more questions than the Notre Dame quarterback is the Notre Dame head football coach

And that's too bad. Because all Holiday and LoVecchio want to do is play football.

But they can't.

Welcome to the position of Notre Dame quarterback. Enjoy your stay.

GAME OF THE WEEK

Wildcats' quarterback Zak Kustok hands off to Damien Anderson during Northwestern's victory over Illinois last season. Northwestern's game against Michigan State is the first home opener since Rashidi Wheeler's death.

Wildcats ready for emotional home opener

By GREG LADKY Sports Writer

game Saturday's between No. 23 Michigan State and No. 16 Northwestern will be the Wildcats' first home game since the death of safety Rashidi Wheeler. Wheeler collapsed and died shortly after a summer conditioning drill Aug. 3, just days after Minnesota Vikings star Korey Stringer died of a heat stroke during prac-

Both deaths shocked the world. Northwestern will pay tribute to Wheeler before the game with a moment of silence, along with a ceremony for the victims of the terrorist attacks Sept. 11.

The Wildcats look to improve to 3-0 for the first time since 1962. Ara Paraseghian was the Wildcats' head coach that year. To win, the Wildcats will offer the Spartans a healthy dose of running back and Heisman candidate Damien Anderson, who gained 189 yards rushing and four touchdowns in Northwestern's 44-7 rout of Duke last Saturday. Notre Dame transfer Zak Kustok passed for 318 yards for the Wildcats.

The Spartans will be flying high after their victory at Notre Dame last Saturday. Running back T.J. Duckett looks to get back on track after a modest 71-yard rushing performance against the Irish. The Spartans will likely split snaps between Jeff Smoker and Ryan Van Dyke at quarterback again.

Saturday's game matches two of the best running backs not only in the Big Ten, but also in the nation. Expect big days from both backs. Michigan State must exploit the height advantage their receivers have over the Wildcat corners. Michigan State wide receiver Charles Rogers stands at 6-foot-4. Northwestern corners Raheem Covington and Chasda Martin stand 5-foot-9 and 5-foot-11 respectively. Rogers scored the 47-yard touchdown that finished the Irish last Saturday.

Irish fans will take interest in how the Wildcats' aggressive spread offensive attack moves the ball against the young Spartan defense. The Wildcats should be able to score points in bunches. Expect an offensive shootout in this game.

OTHER TOP GAMES

LSU at Tennessee

Neither of these SEC powerhouses has played since Sept. 8. Saturday night's game between No. 14 LSU and future Irish opponent No. 7 Tennessee is a key battle in determining who plays in the SEC championship.

The game will be the Tigers first visit to Volunteer Stadium since 1993. The Tigers beat Tennessee 38-31 in overtime last year in Baton Rouge.

LSU has outstanding skill players. In last week's 31-14 victory against Utah State, running back LaBrandon Toefield rushed for 183 yards and four touchdowns. Quarterback Rohan Davey can run and throw. He has 482 yards passing in LSU's first two games.

The Volunteers squeezed out a 13-3 victory against Arkansas in their last game. Running back Travis Stephens ranks third in the country with 158 rushing yards a game. Many experts consider Tennessee defensive lineman John Henderson the best player in Anticipate a thrilling SEC game filled with talented players on both sides of the ball. Like most SEC battles, big plays will win this game.

Kansas State at Oklahoma

Two great defenses will collide when No. 11 Kansas State and No. 3 Oklahoma battle Saturday. No team played the defending national champions as tough as Kansas State last year. The Sooners needed a fourthquarter comeback to beat the Wildcats in last year's Big 12 championship game.

Kansas State out-gained New Mexico State 528-115 last week. The defense has given up a total of six points against USC and New Mexico State. Quarterback Ell Roberson will be the key for the Wildcat offense. He has been inconsistent thus far, but needs to play well to break the Oklahoma defense.

Some believe the Sooner defense is the best college football has seen in years. Linebacker Rocky Calmus is the most watched player on the unit, but there's loads of talent elsewhere, especially with safeties Brandon Everage and Roy Williams.

The Sooners have not played since Sept. 8. New quarterback Nate Hybl will have to shake off some rust, or else the Sooners will find themselves is another war with the Wildcats.

Come back and do it all night long one more time.
