LARGE CROWD AT MISSION FIRST NIGHT

New Holy Communion Record Is Established at Services
Monday Morning.

The annual campus students mission opened Sunday evening at 7:30 in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart with a sermon by the Rev. James W. Donahue, C. S. C., who is conducting the mission. Students crowded every corner of the church and special chairs had to be placed in the aisles to accommodate them. It was the largest crowd that ever attended the opening of a mission at Notre Dame.

After the student body had sung a hymn to the Holy Ghost for the mission's success, Father Donahue delivered his sermon, "A Modern Captain of Christ." It dealt mainly with the life and Catholic faith of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, former commander-in-chief of the allied forces in the World War. As Foch had won the greatest victory of his career by upholding his faith, we must win the greatest battle of our lives in like manner, Father Donahue said.

At the Monday morning exercises a new record for daily communion was established. Father Donahue gave an instruction on the proper way to receive the Sacrament of Penance. Last night in his sermon, entitled "The Triumph of Treason," Father Donahue, in his sermon, pointed out the malice of sin; how mean is man when he disregards the love of God. Father Donahue vowed that nothing could compare with His love.

The sin of gluttony, especially that of drunkenness, was discussed. Father Donahue asked the students to make a pledge to abstain from alcoholic drink.

JUNIORS SELL TRIP TICKETS

Winner of Trip. to Be Announced
Two Nights Preceding the Game.

The junior class will sell tickets on a trip to the Princeton game, it was announced yesterday. Paul Rahe, chairman of the ways and means committee, will be in charge of the sale, which will begin this week.

The concession of selling these tickets was granted to the junior class yesterday by the S. A. C. The winner of the trip will be announced two nights preceding the game. Proceeds will go to the treasury of the junior class. Concessions for the sale of tickets on other trips will be granted other organizations.

An open meeting of the ways and means committee of the junior class will be held in the Journalism room of the Library after services tomorrow night. Paul Rahe, chairman, asks all members to attend. Reports of the last meeting and all new plans will be discussed.

Rev. Thomas Irving To Address Caseys

Rev. Thomas Irving, vice-president of the University, will speak at a regular meeting of Notre Dame Council, 1477, Knights of Columbus, tonight in the Walsh hall council chamber. Father Irving's subject will be "What We Have and What the Future Offers." A large attendance is expected. The committee promises eats and smokes.

Faculty Dance Committee to Meet

An important meeting of the faculty committee on dancing will be held at 12:30 o'clock Thursday noon at the office of the director of discipline. Any matters to be brought to the attention of the committee should be taken to the office of the director of discipline Thursday morning.

The committee, which includes Professor James McCarthy, Dr. Joseph Reichert, Professor Paul Fenlon and Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, will regulate all dances given under the auspices of any class or group of individuals at the University.

SALVI PLAYS TO BIG CROWD

Enthusiastic Applause Greets Harpist; Program Accorded Reception Unequaled.

Signor Alberto Salvi is an artist of the first rank. He proved that decisively last night in his concert in Washington hall.

It is seldom that one has the opportunity to hear a harp concert nowadays. After listening to Salvi, one laments that fact, for one is impressed throughout the concert with the indescribable sweetness—someone has called it a wild sweetness—of the harp. At times it was saddening; again it was joyous, but always was the interpretation so definite as to attract one to the varying moods unconsciously. The harp was shown to us in a new light last night—shown to us as an instrument for masterful interpretation and exquisite beauty.

As soon as Salvi had plucked the first tones from his immense golden harp, it was evident that there could be no monotony in his program, even though he was unassisted by other artists. Salvi needs no one to help "put his program over." His technique is nothing short of marvelous and the effects he produces are beautiful. That his work was appreciated was evidenced by the enthusiastic applause—perhaps the most ever accorded any artist at Notre Dame—that greeted his every number.

His program was well chosen and contained three of his own compositions, "Valse de Concert," "Italian Serenade," and "Scherzo." The "Spanish Dance" reminded one of soft guitars and gay, whirling skirts. As encores, he played "Believe Me If All These Endearing Young Charms," and "Mother Marchree."

N.D. BAND DANCE HELD SATURDAY

Harry Denny's Nine-Piece South Bend Orchestra to Play; Fund to Boost Band.

On Saturday night the Notre Dame band will give a dance at the Oliver hotel. Denny's popular will furnish the music. Eight of nine-piece South Bend orchestra the men in his orchestra are members of the N. D. Band.

The following men form the committee in charge of the affair: John Patrick, Ivan Kepner, Bion Vogel, and Robert F. Hurley.

James Egan, head of the band, urges the students to attend the dance as the proceeds will be turned over to the Notre Dame Band campaign fund.

The dance is one of the first events planned by the band in an effort to raise funds for equipment. Uniforms have already been ordered.

FRESHMEN TO HOLD ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Meeting Will Be Held in Washington Hall Under Supervision of the S. A. C.

The freshman class will assemble in Washington hall tonight at 7:30 to elect officers for the coming year. The regular laws of the Student Activities Committee, governing class elections will be complied with.

These regulations provide for the holding of a primary election, at which meeting the nomination of officers will be made. Final elections, according to the S. A. C. rules, will take place two days following the primaries.

If the class is unanimously in favor of immediate election, the primaries and finals may be held at the same meeting.

Members of the S. A. C. in charge of the election are Don Gallagher, president of the senior class; Mart Mooney, Don Miller, Ed Hunsinger, John Sheehan, John Moran and Charles Molz. These men will supervise all balloting, and the tabulation of votes after the election.

FROSH ELEVEN BEAT CULVER

Hurlburt Painfully Hurt, Remained in Game; Cadets Play Good Game.

The Notre Dame Freshmen carried the Irish fight into the Culver camp and beat the Cadets, 13-0, at Culver Saturday afternoon.

Prelli, was the chief ground gainer for the yearlings and scored the first counter on a hard drive through tackle and ran 25 yards through a broken field across the Cadet goal. Prelli hung up another tally when he took a trip around the end for 20 yards.

Ruckelshaus and Keefe played an exceptionally good defense game on the wings, going down fast under punts and making some hard tackles. Canny was a stonewall at center on the defense and smeared the opposition's drives through the line.

Burt, who made a fine showing at left tackle, was the real star of the line, considering that he remained in line throughout the entire game, with a sprained ankle and a wrenched knee.

Hurlburt was the outstanding performer of the backfield and his punting featured the game. Reillys at the quarter job, displayed remarkable field generalship.

Coach Hogan's men were accorded a fine reception by the Cadet school and the Culverites played a fine, clean brand of football.

Homecoming Plans To be Discussed

A meeting of the advisory board of the Blue Circle, in charge of Homecoming plans, will be held tonight, according to Ed Funk, chairman of the committee on publicity.

The board consists of the chairmen of the decoration, information, reception, publicity, barbecue, traffic and entertainment committees.

Plans for Homecoming will be discussed and progress of committees will be reported at the meeting.

PRINCETON GAME TICKETS.

Princeton game tickets will be on sale for the last time this afternoon, from 2 to 4:30.

Grid-Graph for the Army Game Saturday

The grid-graph, which brought the big Notre Dame games to the gymnasium here last year, has again been chartered, and will tell of the Army game play by play, it was announced yesterday.

The gym will have a seating capacity of 3,000 for Saturday, Raymond Brady, chairman of the arrangement committee for the S. A. C., said yesterday.

The grid-graph will be stationed at a far end of the gym and lights will tell of the progress of the play.

South Bend followers of the game are invited to watch the progress of the game at the gym.

MISSION FOR DAY STUDENTS

Father Finnegan Conducting Mission at St. Joseph's Church in South Bend.

"We do not know the value of life. That is why we need a mission," the Rev. George Finnegan told off-campus students, Sunday night at the mission being conducted at St. Joseph's Church. "But to make the mission a success," he continued, "sacrifice on the part of all off-campus students attending the mission will be necessary. . . . The University of Notre Dame has the interest of all off-campus students at heart, spiritually as well as physically and scholarly."

Parallels were drawn by Father Finnegan, who is a former army chaplain, on the sacrifices made by those who fought in the World War, and those students who are attending the mission despite numerous handicaps. He spoke with pride of the mission made in the mud of Brittany, where tired but sincere soldiers went miles to hear the words of a chaplain.

"Communion is three-fourths of a mission," said Father Finnegan, in his appeal for daily communion among those attending the mission. "The benefits to be derived from frequent repetition are many; temptations are lessened, passions are dimmed and good inspirations are manifested."

"The First Mortal Sin and Its Results," was the topic of discussion last night by Father Finnegan. The first mortal sin committed by humanity and the suffering of the whole human race occasioned by the act was described in detail. Sickness, poverty, weak intelligence and the weakness of modern times were described. All the danger of mortal sin, inherited from our first parents, were spoken of by Father Finnegan in his sermon.

TALK TO FROSH TOMORROW

First of Series Arranged by Department of Education at 12:50 in Washington Hall.

The first of a series of Freshmen lectures begins in Washington hall tomorrow. The lectures will be given weekly under the direction of the department of education and the program previously announced will be followed.

Tomorrow at 12:50, not at 12:30, as stated before, the subject will be "Welfare, Work, and Worship." Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, prefect of discipline; Rev. William F. Cunningham, head of the department of education, and Rev. John F. O'Hara, prefect of religion, will talk, each speaking for six minutes. They will talk in their turn on each of the three heads of the subject respectively.

S.A.C PLANS DANCE CARD FOR SEASON

S. A. C. to Give Homecoming Dance at Palais-Royale; Seniors to Have Georgia Tech Dance.

The Student Activities Committee met Sunday morning at 10:30 in the Brownson room of the Library and completed the dance program for the football season. Each of the dances will be given under the auspices of some student organization, the profits going to defray its expenses. The program is: October 13. The Notre Dame Band.

October 20. The Knights of Columbus.

October 27. Senior Class.

November 3. Homecoming, S. A. C.

November 10. Sophomore Class.

November 17. The Monogram Club.

November 29. Glee Club.

The selection of the place for the dance is at the discretion of each organization. The Palais-Royale has been contracted for by the S. A. C. for the Homecoming dance.

The Prefect of Discipline requests that each organization giving a dance hand in the names of the chaperones before the end of the week.

The S. A. C. also decided to create a Club Calendar, which requires the secretary of each of the campus clubs to hand in the place and time of the meeting of his club. This will be approved by the S. A. C. The purpose of the calendar is to avoid conflicts.

A temporary election committee was formed to supervise the freshman elections. Members of this committee are James Egan, Charles Molz and Ed. Hunsinger.

The S. A. C. has decided to help finance the band, and plans to tax each of the football concessions 10 per cent of profits.

MEN OF '24 MEET TODAY

To Discuss Plans for Raising Money; Golden Tornado Dance Planned.

The senior class will meet this noon at 12:30 in the South room of the Library to act upon the report of Walter Moran, chairman of the concessions committee, for the raising of funds for the class. The committee, consisting of Pat Curran, Walter Rader, Ed Cantwell, Ted Huether, James McSweeney, G. Noon, H. Thompson, John O'Sullivan, John James and Chairman Moran, have been investigating ways and means of raising money which will be applied to defray the expenses of the senior ball. Several propositions will be given to the seniors to act upon. John James, chairman of the informal dance committee, will present plans for a "Golden Tornado" dance, to be given by the Seniors November 27, the night of the Georgia Tech game.

Special arrangements are being made by the seniors for the entertainment of the Georgia Tech men. The seniors expect to equal the fine reception given Notre Dame by the Georgia men last year.

As to whether or not all members of the senior class will carry canes, as a means of distinction, will also be discussed at the meeting.

NO CHI MEETING.

Due to the absence of one of the officers, the Chicago club will not meet tomorrow evening.

TIME AND THE CHAIR-WARMER

Some gentleman (you may be sure it was a modern gentleman) has said that "Time is money." The phrase has been popular, because money is the most popular thing of which we materialists know. And in spite of the phrase's popularity, there is truth in it—the way in which to salt down nickels is to spend your time in thinking about nickels. That is the code of the business man, and while it is an injurious code, it is a successful one. Talk to a business man about something from which the life has not been squashed by his pet boa-constrictor, the dollar sign—about philosophy, or painting, or the great literature of the past. His reaction will be rather mild, resembling that of a plump and solid rock to the breath of flowers. If you are in the smoking compartment of a Pullman, as you are apt to be, you will do better to converse upon these subjects with the porter, who may also be money-mad, but scarcely money-made.

We have indicated one extreme view of the value of time. In school we are confronted by the opposite and equally extreme view, which takes the stand that the clock will take care of time, so why bother our merry heads about it? Of the two positions, the business man's is the more useful, but ours the more youthful and therefore more refreshing. There is, however, the broad middle path, which we at least should have sense enough to follow, letting the money-chaser hold to his narrow path if he will.

To find the way to this middle road we should observe at least one fundamental rule—not to waste another man's time. If we would squander the moments of our own brief existence for hours at a time, feet poked between the rungs of a chair, our thoughts concerned with nothing and our conversation indicating just that—well, that is largely our own affair. But when we impose our own stagnation on another by burdening his room with our lethargic and unentertaining presence, we have trespassed upon his courtesy and hospitality. Such men have had to keep their doors locked in order to keep us out, to be alone with their work and their thoughts. It ought to be that they would have to lock the door to keep us in.

In short, many of us chair-warmers would help matters all around by raising the temperature of our own plush cushions now and then.

SENIOR EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

An innovation in class organization is being tried in the senior class this year. All class activities are centralized in a committee of 15 men, instead of being in the hands of many as in the old clumsy method by which committees were appointed for each and every exigency that arose.

In past years it has been found that much dissatisfaction has arisen from the fact that there has been very little "system" to class organization and government. This has, of course, been most noticeable in the senior class.

Under the new order the executive committee will draft and suggest plans for the various activities of their class, and with the approval of the class as a whole will conduct these activities. Each man on the committee has a subcommittee, consisting of three or four men of his choice, working with him, all under the direction of the chairman of the committee and the president of the senior class. Every man has a certain specific duty assigned to him and he is responsible for the successful performance of his part of the work. Regular meetings of the committee, in which each member will be required to give a report of what he and his men are doing, will be a feature of the plan.

In this way it is hoped that the senior class program for the year can be carried out with the least expenditure of time and energy, and with the maximum of efficiency.

The Editor Says

Men, mistakes and criticism, are co-existent. That is our text. We will illustrate it in the case of newspapers.

Errors of matter and form are certain in any journalism. The haste of preparation makes that certain, and because of that, all newspapers, except possibly Hearst papers, run "Beg Your Pardon" columns. Sometimes the reporter is responsible, sometimes the copy reader, sometimes the editor.

Many of THE DAILY reporters—most of them in fact—are freshmen. They are, for the most part, good reporters, and make up a staff that many newspapers might be proud of. But they are new to Notre Dame and may sometimes make Father Talbot Smith a member of the C. S. C., or they may refer to Father Burke, as the "registrár" of studies. And—now and then—the copy reader, who read

Through the Looking Glass

Three Guesses
(Voices floating from out THE DAILY Office.)

"It's a trap, all right but what kind?"

"A funny kind. Look, here's where you put the cheese."

"Then you think it's a mouse trap?"

"Maybe, but look, here's a funny gagit. Now if you put your finger in it like—Ouch! damn thing bit me."

"Tough luck."

"It'll be tough if I find the guy that brought this crazy rig in here."

"What'er 'e wheels for? Suppose it would run if you put it on the floor? If I wasn't scared I'd try it."

"Somebody had a lotta crust to leave the thing here without a label."

"Couldn't figure out a label. See this part here looks like a thing for drawing circles."

"Let's throw it out the window and see if it will explode. You grab this end."

"Wait, here's some gloves to use on it. Now just get a good hold on—"

(J. H. enters at this point.)

J. H. "Here you guys, get away from our typewriter."

Come in and see it some time. No admission. Just a promise to stay calm and collected.

We don't know where the inventor is now. He died in Escanaba.

Dear Ed:
I read your colyum when I have nothing to do quite a bit sometimes. I wrote this when I got in from a date last night which was punk, and I liked it. If you like it I don't want it and you can use it. It didn't take me long to write it for I saw the point almost as soon as I finished it. Here it is:
Of all the girls who get my goat
The worst I hope to meet,
Is she who when you pass a cab
Gets, "Oh, such 'aching feet."
—UGLY.

Hooda

(The Play went on.)
Hooda settled himself, took out a block of gum, glued his teeth together with it to keep from being too emotional, and then as a final precaution he slipped off his shoes and put them in the hat rack under the seat.
"Where are those papers?" snarled the villain.
"Hold on," said the girl sweetly, "I have no papers, and my name is not Little Nell. Why should you ask me that?"
"It is a hard ask?" growled the villain. "And if you don't know why, WHY?"
(It is a lesson in the alphabet, thought Hooda at this point.)
"The spirit of the age does not permit you to talk like that," responded the girl.
(She has never seen Division street ones, thought our hero.)
"Have done with this prattle," howled the villain; "I want those papers."

"You'll be getting your walking papers soon," she answered.
(And it was right—here that Hooda decided that there was something wrong with the play.)
"I tell you I shall raise a ruckus and play Hades with you if—"
"You couldn't raise a nickel and play bridge with me," she said.
(Hooda thought that was a good one.)
"You are making a fool of me," hissed the villain, "I must find surcease from chagrin."
"I don't believe you know anybody like that, and I never heard of the town," said she with a shrug.
(The play is getting to be a little more sensible, thought Hooda. I must stay and see it out. He settled deeper in the seat. The play kept revolving.)

AT THE THEATERS

Orpheum—The Cheat.
Palace—William Courtenay.
Oliver—Tell Me Why.
LaSalle—Are You a Failure.
Blackstone—The Eleventh Hour.

Pola Negri's latest picture, "The Cheat," now playing at the Orpheum, is the story of a wealthy girl who has married a poor man and is forced to struggle along without the luxuries to which she has been accustomed. The fact that her father has cut her off without even the customary shilling, and that a former suitor, apparently as rich as her husband is poor, appears at a most critical moment in her husband's financial career, go to make up one of the most entertaining pictures in which this star has appeared. It has none of the exotic qualities which characterized her former productions, and attention is paid to the story and to the acting, rather than to unusual scenes, although the setting leaves nothing to be desired.

Jack Holt plays the husband and Charles de Roche, the imported shiek, is the former suitor. One of the many good features of the film is that the small parts are filled by such capable men as Charles Stevenson, Charles Ogle, and Robert Schable, whose work is excellent.

William Courtenay, whose last appearance on the stage was in "Dangerous People," heads the bill at the Palace this week in "The Dragnet," a five person sketch, denouncing the evils of the drug traffic. The plot is stereotyped, but its manner of presentation, the presence of Courtenay, and of a very capable villain, who was, by the way, unprogrammed, saved it from what might have been a failure, and made it a success.

Joseph Regan, a tenor with a remarkably good voice, sang a number of solos which included a bit of opera, a variety of Irish numbers, and the now popular, Marcheta.

Johnny Murphy, who made no pretense at being able to sing, scored with his monologue; Fivet and Claret provided an interesting exhibition of roller skating; and Herbert's Dogs, a better act than the average animal turn, closed the bill. "Tea With A Kick," the photoplay, was not so good as one might have expected from the variety of stars which were in it.

THE EDITOR SAYS.

ing much copy, oftentimes reads mechanically and without noticing the sense of the story, lets the error slip by. And now and then the editor—but he will pass that by for this time.

At any rate: the editor frequently must write a "Beg Your Pardon." THE DAILY has done that on every occasion when they made an error of fact. They are making every effort to be truthful.

And, now that organization is becoming better, they are making less mistakes.

All of this is really introductory to what we really intended to say today.

We want to talk about the delivery of your paper. Due to missing "S's," "C's," and "M's" in the 30-point type that THE DAILY uses for headlines (Hooda is not the only one worried about missing letters) many headlines have to be re-written in the wee-sma' hours, when brains are dull and time and type are short. And the time becomes long, and the papers late.

But new type has been ordered. And there have been other reasons for the paper being late—one of them was an alarm clock.

When it is late, the chaps who make hall deliveries are made rather er busy. They must make deliveries as well as they can between classes. Most of the circulation men are also freshmen. They are in training for the position of circulation manager later. Except for the possibility of securing that position later; they get nothing for their efforts. They are aiding you and Notre Dame; they are men who do things for their school, things that mean as much as many activities that pay in glory or cash.

They'll miss you now and then—a few of the less efficient chaps have missed more of you than they should, perhaps—but if they do miss you, send in your report of being missed, and keep in mind the task of the chap who gets up early in the morning to deliver THE DAILY.

Subscribe for the DAILY.

WALSH LOSES TO BROWNSON

Captain Stanhope's Men Unable to Stop Purple Chargers; Corby Forfeits to Badin.

Brownson hall, crashing their way through the heavy Walsh line and scoring the lone touchdown of the opening game of the interhall series, beat the Orange and Black squad, 7-2, on Cartier field, Sunday afternoon.

The game was a see-saw affair until the middle of the second quarter, when Brownson, by a succession of hard drives through tackle and several wide end runs, carried the ball down to Walsh's 10-yard line. Another wide end run that came from a criss-cross, sent Cooney over the line for a touchdown. Brownson made the try for goal and the score was 7-0. A few minutes later, Reidy, Brownson's speed king in the backfield, rushed the ball down to Walsh's 7-yard line, but the whistle for the half interrupted another score.

Walsh's forward defense, with the exception of the wings, was strong and Londo, Murray and Antoine, repeatedly succeeded in stopping the terrific plunging of the Purple backs.

Walsh's secondary defense looked good, due to the stellar performance of Bonner and Ziliack. The latter proved to be a vicious tackler, with plenty of courage. Burton, at quarter for the Orange and Black, played a good heady game, as did his opponent, Cooney. The latter starred in the Purple backfield along with Reidy and Ryan. The Brownson ball-toters got away for their runs with plenty of speed and were clever at picking openings.

Walsh opened up a passing attack in the last quarter in a vain effort to score, and Magie, who replaced Ziliack at right half, gave an exceptionally good account of himself for the short time he was in the game.

Mayer, at right tackle for Brownson, was one of the best performers on the Purple line, and perhaps will bear out to be the leading tackle in the interhall ranks. Of the other two games scheduled for Sunday, both Badin and Freshmen hall won by forfeits.

IRISH GOLFERS LOSE OPENER

Chain-O-Lakes Team Forced to Battle Hard in Order to Secure Victory.

By George Ward.

The Notre Dame golf team, playing their initial match against the Chain-O-Lakes team, last Sunday, went down to defeat after giving the St. Joe Valley association champions a hard fight.

The feature of the game was the terrific battle waged between C. A. Hisey of the opposition and Jack Adams, acting captain of the Irish team. The match was a toss-up, until the 18th green, when Adams sunk a 10-foot putt, and garnered two points for his team. Joseph Foglia lost to Jack Beck, 2-down; Dan Harris lost to Harry Elmore, 3-0; George Ward lost to F. Whitehall, two up and one to go; Charles Mouch, lost to H. Harper, 3 down; James Corbett defeated K. G. King, two up; Fred Link lost to T. R. Dugan, 3-0; Ray Bartzan lost to J. D. Farneman, 3-0.

Analysis of the play show that the Notre Dame players made better scores the second round than they did the first. Inexperience in team play accounted for some of the losses.

The University golf team goes into action against the Christiana

Country club at Elkhart next Saturday, while a return match with the Chain-O-Lakes club is being negotiated.
