PRICE 4 CENTS

CAMPUS BY-PATHS

Have you had your photo took?

-o- -o-

If you haven't, and you are a senior, watch out—Jack Scallan will get you.

-o- -o-

Speaking of Jack—we were speaking of him, you know, reminds me of the first time he was shaved.

-o- -o-

I think, Bill, present owner of the emporium did the dirty deed.

-o- -o-

The occasion was the Christmas holidays, and we were all blossoming forth in our very best—shined and spick and span.

-o- -o-

And Jack decided to have a shave!

-o- -o-

That was five years ago. Bill still contends it was like shaving a cherub.

-o- -c-

But The Dome is coming out. The way Jack is hurrying around, he intends to have you take it home at Christmas.

-o- -o-

Mark his words—"The Dome will be out, and delivered May 15—and on May 16, I'll get _____"

-o- -o-

But to get back to the question—have you had your photo taken?

-o- -o-

If not, why not?

-o- -o-

You should see the results!

-o- -o-

You seniors—did you see Clarence Joos' picture. Or Brennan's?

-o- -o-

Some shieks? Especially Count Brennan, distinctive John, leisuely, careful, exact, tasteful, discerning, clever John.

-o- -o-

And Henry Fannan and Noon—didn't Gene look just too lovely for anything?

-o- -o-

Line forms on the right—Rudy (Rudy snaps 'em—and boy, how he does it!)—well, Rudy will take the snap and you no! pur snap at Jimmie.

-o- -o-

There are others—Don Miller—and Gene Oberst—Jimmie Egan—all Valentino's—Some pictures!!

-o- -o-

They tell us Friday is the last day. Seniors, and others who wish to look even more beautiful than they really are—drop over and see Rudy.

-o- -o-

Dineen will take the dollar. Or it may be Jim Armstrong, poet, editor, and co-conspirator with the others to put out a Dome—a Junior Class Dome, better than ever before

-o- -o-

And while seniors were smiling before Rudy and Pancho yesterday afternoon, Tommy O'Connor was lagging back, though he was toddling across the way. But after Tom arrived, scouts report, he was loth to arrive back here again.

-o- -o-

Likewise, but not so emphatically so—Art Bidwell, John Hurley, Frank McCarthy, et others.

-o- -o-

And while the boys took their hats off to the fair ones, we doff our dilapidated headpiece to Carl Lenhard, of the Brunswick shop. Carl brought the Oriole Orchestra, of the Oriole Terrace, Detroit, and Isham Jones here, and he promises more of the big boys. But what is the real cause for our Sir Raleigh is the fact that Carl has let the football men take one of his Brunswick's and some records with them on the trips. Attaboy, Carl! We and they say thank-you.

-o- -o-

I'm feeling quite well today; thank you.

MR. GRUNDY.

Greavy to Arrange Homecoming Bill

A meeting of the Advisory Council on Homecoming for the Blue Circle, was held last night at 6:30 in Sorin hall. Chairmen of committees, or Homecoming arrangements discussed the progress being made.

William Greavy was placed in charge of the vaudeville program to be given in Washington hall during Homecoming. John Barr was named to assist Frank Cahill in making arrangements for the boxing program.

The next meeting of the Advisory Council will be held next Wednesday at 6:30.

WILL LECTURE HERE.

The Honorable P. H. O'Donnell, eminent Chicago lawyer, will address the Chamber of Commerce on October 27, at 10 o'clock, at the University. It has not yet been decided where the lecture will be held.

The lecture which Mr. O'Donnell will deliver will be entitled "Manners, Life and Customs in China."

FROSH LISTEN TO FR. IRVING

Second Lecture for Class Is on "The Traditions of Notre Dame"; Urges Acquaintances.

"The Traditions of Notre Dame" was the subject of the freshmen lecture given in Washington hall by Rev. Thomas Irving, vice-president of the University, at 12:30 yesterday. Father Irving gave the talk in the absence of Rev. Matthew J. Walsh, president of the University.

Father Irving told of the traditions of the University, laying stress on the religious phase of Notre Dame's process of character building and emphasizing the value of daily Communion as an integral part of Catholic education.

Freshmen were urged to become acquainted, not only with fellow-classmen, but with upper classmen and members of the faculty. Father Irving pointed out that because Notre Dame is a national university, it is possible to meet men from all over the country.

Future freshmen lectures will be held every Wednesday, at 12:30.

DISTINCTIVE CONCERT HERE

Critic Praises Manuel and Williamson in Program at Washington Hall Last Night.

Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, two talented young artists, played to a fairly large audience in Washington hall last night.

Manuel, a lyric tenor, possesses a sweet, well modulated voice, and his accompanist, Williamson, displayed in his two-brief numbers at the piano, an excellent technique and rapid execution.

The program as a whole was colorful, but not well balanced for a Notre Dame concert. Manuel is an artist of the ultra-modern school and so attempted several song vignettes, as different as they were delightful. His rendering of Mozart's "This Picture is Bewitching Fair" and Rachmaninoff's "Songs of Grusia" displayed the quality of his lyric voice.

"The Mice and the Clock" by Lagourage, proved to be a very different number handled in a clever manner. What the program lacked in American semi-popular selections it fully made up in the novelty of theme and idea.

Notre Dame has heard, at least, a distinctive concert.

GAME TICKETS.

Tickets for the Purdue, Georgia Tech and Butler games will be on sale at the gym Thursday and Friday, from 2:30 to 5:30. Only one ticket for each game will be given on each athletic card presented. No seats in the east stands will be sold to students for persons other than students. Anybody wishing to purchase seats in the west stands may do so by sending a check for the amount of the tickets to the Ticket Committee, Notre Dame.

Thursday and Friday are the last days to get student tickets. Bring athletic card.

FINAL SENIOR SNAPS FRIDAY

Photographer Leaves Friday Evening; Scallan Issues Final Warning to Delinquent Men.

Arrangements have also been made for all those making the trip to hear mass and receive Communion in Toledo on the morning after the game.

NEED 150 MEN.

The Athletic Association issues a call for 150 men to assist at the Georgia-Tech game. The work will be similar to that of last year, ushering in the stands and assisting the student managers. The men will be given the chance to aid their school, and will be permitted to dispose of their reserved seat tickets for face value, $2.50.

All men who wish to help are asked to meet the student managers in the gym at 12:30 today.

Juniors Will Meet On Friday at Noon

The Prom date, the Junior stag supper, class pins and class distinctions, will be considered by the juniors at a meeting tomorrow at 12:30 in the Library.

Investigation is being made of a report that private individuals have been selling tickets on a trip to Princeton and representing these tickets as being junior class tickets or another Notre Dame concession.

The Junior class has the only S. A. C. concession for tickets on trips to games away from home. The award of prizes for selling Princeton trip tickets will be made this evening at 7 o'clock in the Brownson recreation room.

The Princeton trip is the first trip upon which juniors have had tickets. They did not handle tickets on an Army trip.

SENIOR CANES ARE APPROVED

Ball Committeemen Named, Owen Desmond Heads Committee; Lawyers to Act on Canes.

Senior ball committeemen were selected, and canes as marks of distinction for seniors were approved, at a meeting of the class in the Library yesterday.

Before the ballots were distributed for action on the canes, a discussion took place regarding the attitude of the senior lawyers, who are already carrying canes. The tradition was begun by the law school several years ago, but it is understood that the lawyers are not opposed to the seniors, as a whole, carrying canes. Formal action by the lawyers will be taken and after that the action by the class will be given definite form. The vote was 83 to 55.

A committee, consisting of Tim Rauh, John Barr, Ray Brady, Mark Nolan, Charles Molz, Joseph Ryan, Jerome Fox, Matt Rothert, James Egan, J. E. Miller, and George Hamilton, representing all colleges, was appointed by President Don Gallagher to purchase the canes if finally approved.

Vernon Richard was appointed a member of the Class Advisory committee.

QUESTION

In an effort to raise the standard of student organizations the S. A. C. has demanded that each club shall give some evidence of high standards and definite aspirations; if it cannot do so, it will be denied the privilege of existing at Notre Dame. As to whether or not there are too many clubs, the S. A. C. may be accepted as a competent judge. In the period of uncertainty which followed the ultimatum of this body, however, some officers may have found it difficult to set forth a justification for the continued existence of their particular group. Yet, because of sentiment, or other indefinite reasons, they may abhor the thought of the club's death.

If there be any such officers, it is possible that they will find consolation in the statement that, in spite of the numerous societies at Notre Dame, there is one feature which seems not to have been the concern of ambitious club organizers. That feature is the matter of parliamentary law.

As suggested in a recent editorial, student interest, and consequently the success of organizations, has declined because the members have felt that too much time was consumed and too little accomplished in the meetings. This opinion is undoubtedly correct; but one of the reasons that so little is accomplished is the fact that so few students seem to have a working knowledge of the proper conduct in a meeting.

Even the officers at times delay the transaction of business by insisting on seconds for nominations which do not need a second, by allowing motions to be made out of order, and by permitting undebatable questions to be discussed. A meeting conducted in a parliamentary manner is unusually short and to the point; a meeting not so conducted becomes long and uninteresting.

Incidentally a reasonable familiarity with the proper procedure in meetings will be expected of those who attempt to exert any influence in the business and social world of today. It would seem, therefore, that any campus organization which finds itself in danger of summary execution might secure a stay of execution by interesting itself in the important, but seemingly friendless, parliamentary law. For, through its members who also take a part in the meetings of other groups, such an organization should indirectly benefit every club.

It is moved, therefore, that some organization interest itself in the investigation of the science—for it is a science—of parliamentary procedure.

Is there a second?

CONRAD AND HECHTIC AUTHORS

A number of educators in America advocate having the works of Joseph Conrad used in the schools in much the same manner as are the works of Milton, Shakespeare, Scott, and Dickens. If we had any authority, which, as Mr. Dooley used to say, "We have not," we would revise the English curriculum and require the study of Elinor Glyn, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Ben Hecht, Dorothy Speare, and Stephen Vincent Benet. The fact is that librarians declare the works of the standard authors are covered with dust while contemporary drivel is in constant demand. This, the librarians explain, is because once a boy or girl has been obliged to study a book in school, he has little or no desire to renew the acquaintance of the author. What a calamity it would be if a person failed to read Conrad's preface to "A Personal Record," because he once had to study and memorize extracts from its companion piece, the preface to "The Nigger of the Narcissus."

Now, consider the advantages of this new plan. Mr. Hecht and his associates would be assigned chapter by chapter until the assignees were thoroughly disgusted. In sheer desperation, if from no worthier motive, they would go to other sources for reading matter to occupy their spare moments, and would, in consequence, become familiar with the best literature of the ages.

The system, on the face of it, appears to be hare brained, but it might work, and, if it should, so much the better.

Camp Says

By WALTER CAMP.

(From Baltimore Evening Sun.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Many of the Eastern football teams could profitably sit at the feet of Knute Rockne's light Notre Dame eleven when it comes to pushing touchdowns across.

While some of the big-timers of the East were struggling Saturday with the problem of scoring after they had got into the enemy's danger zone, the Notre Dame team, lined up against a powerful Army eleven, was showing just how it can be done. Twice near the Army's goal, Notre Dame uncorked absolutely insoluble plays and pushed the ball across. She traveled 21 yards on two running plays for the second score of her 13-0 victory.

Meanwhile, Yale added a bit to her prestige by her victory over University of Georgia. Richeson proved that he was no flash in the pan, but a real quarter, and Milestead, although not yet in top form, showed himself a powerful and active player. But Yale is one of those who might take a lesson or two from Rockne's men. She lacked scoring deception within the 20-yard line.

Sophomore hall, erected on the campus last summer, will accommodate 180 students.

Dear F. T. K.:

I am the other man who was not appointed to the senior ball committee. Both my partner and I are pretty average vexed at the thought of not being appointed. For my part, I admit I was almost asleep by the time the list was finished. I may have been appointed without hearing about it.

And then, too, the time was so short.

What They Say

[The New York American]

By ARTHUR ROBINSON

Notre Dame had four Casey Stengels at Ebbets field yesterday afternoon, and they all looked a little like Babe Ruth. And on the sidelines, tense and fidgety, sat Knute Rockne, a species of football "master mind," master-minding with exquisite intelligence and victorious effect.

The game between Notre Dame and the Army was, in a way, a contest between "brute force," represented by the Army, and fine football philosophy and thought, represented by Rockne.

Notre Dame didn't need all of her Stengels. One would have been enough and it might have been either Elmer Layden, Jim Crowley, Harry Stuhldreher or Don Miller.

All four, operating together, were much too much for the Army.

Notre Dame had the sympathy of the crowd, but Notre Dame didn't need it.

There is something of a magician about this man Rockne, something of the Three-Card Monte man of old circus days. In red pants and a silk hat and a frock coat, he would indeed look the part. A fanciful moustache would be unnecessary.

Some years ago he came east with a Notre Dame team and electrified all by the manner of his magic and the uses to which he put the forward pass.

Notre Dame beat the Army that year, and Notre Dame has been almost unbrokenly monotonous in this respect. The two teams have played ten games and of these the Army has won only two. Each time the Army took the bitter with the sweet.

Rockne rolled up his sleeves, and lo! two touchdowns emerged when Blackstone—Only a Shop Girl.

"The Girl Who Came Back" is not nearly so good a picture as some you have seen. She should not have gone anywhere in the first place, but, having gone, she should have stayed there.

The story, briefly, is this: Sheila Weston, an unsophisticated country maiden, comes to the city where she meets a smooth young gentleman, who makes a livelihood by stealing automobiles. She marries him, and five minutes later the two of them are hustled off to the lock-up for her husband's peccadilloes. After two years in prison she is released; her husband tells her where a fellow convict has secreted a sum of money. Sheila finds it, and after her husband has been killed, or, rather, found dead, proceeds to travel the civilized portion of the globe and becomes a society favorite. In Capetown, which if you remember your geography, you will know is in Africa, she meets the owner of a diamond mine, who, peculiarly enough is the owner of the money she found, and who was her husband's old cell mate, and falls in love with him, because every heroine must have at least one ecstatic love affair.

The cast, which includes Miriam Cooper, Gaston Glass and Kenneth Harlan, does as well as may be expected under the circumstances.

WHAT THEY SAY.

(Continued from Page 2.) they were least expected. We suppose he could have pulled a bowl of gold fish and some rabbits out of the air in front of the entire army, including General Pershing, if he had so desired.

But the Army's defeat hurt. Last year the Army beat the Navy in one of the greatest games ever played. West Point was proud. The team which was beaten yesterday was substantially the same team. In fact, it was thought to be even stronger. Somehow, Tiny Hewitt, a giant who was at Pittsburgh university last year and a star under Glenn Warner, came to be a cadet, and Hewitt, it was said, had added a great deal of strength to the Army team.

This may or may not be, so Notre Dame declined to allow him to show his strength. The westerners stopped the Army attack dead. And on top of this Notre Dame, operating behind the magic brilliance of her four Stengels—Layden and Crowley and Stuhldreher and Miller—disclosed what Notre Dame has always disclosed—a screen for its forward passing—which amounted almost to an illusion, an awe-inspiring mirage.

The late Professor Munsterberg, the German professor of Psychology at Harvard, used to hold a watch in his right hand before his class and after a few minutes of silence ask the students what he had been doing with his left hand.

Notre Dame was like that after three failures on the line. The Army players looked everywhere but at Notre Dame's left hand. And suddenly, obscurely, Layden—one of these Stengels—popped out far off toward the sidelines and took a forward pass from Stuhldreher, another Stengel, for the first touchdown of the game.

By H. V. VALENTINE
[The New York Tribune]

Sometimes brawn beats speed and brains, but nothing of the kind happened when the Army met Notre Dame at Ebbets field yesterday. Here, indeed, was the first big upset of the lusty young football season, one that will make the Princeton Tiger do some tall thinking and planning during the next five days.

The team that Knute Rockne launched on the unsuspecting and thoroughly confident West Pointers yesterday was a revelation. For sheer dash and fighting spirit its equal has not been seen in this neck of the woods since the same South Benders dazzled eleven young stalwarts from Rutgers college with their amazing speed at the Polo grounds two seasons back.

For the Army's much touted eleven there is little to be said. The Cadets entered yesterday's fray top heavy favorites, but they were so completely outplayed as to look foolish at times. The score—13 to 0—meant little. Had it been desirable or necessary Rockne's speed boys could have rung up four touchdowns as easily as they did two. The lurking presence of half a dozen Tigers in the throng of 30,000 that watched the Ebbets field struggle doubtless caused Quarterback Stuhldreher to be wary about bringing Rockne's prize tricks out of the bag. Sufficient to say that whenever the trick bag was opened the Army defense was hopelessly inadequate.

Let no one tell you that Notre Dame has not a sweet quartet of backs behind its line this fall. Crowley, a triple-threater, is a great football player and no mistake. He can pass, carry the ball through the line or broken field and receive the pass to the queen's taste. Crowley it was who intercepted Wood's far-flung forward in the third quarter yesterday to dodge and race to the Cadets' 25-yard mark.

And Crowley it was, a minute later, who broken through the Army's defense from the 7-yard line to register the South Benders' second score.

But Crowley had able assistance. Layden, at fullback, is another gem in Knute Rockne's crown. Neither is Miller, the plunging halfback, a whit behind. Stuhldreher, at quarterback, has been seen hereabouts in many ter, is as shifty a field general as moons.

By PAUL GALLICO
[New York News]

The light, but fast, Notre Dame backfield simply played rings around the logy Army backs, Layden, Miller and Crowley starring for the westerners. At the same time, the light Notre Dame line was beating the army line to the jump and frequently sweeping it off its feet.

The defensive brand was equally good, the West Pointers being forced to attempt forward passes, which went wild, as any consistent gain through the Notre Dame forwards was out of the question. The Army discovered this early in the game and their bewilderment was funny to behold.

IRISH PRIMED FOR TIGER GO

Rockne Takes 34 Men East; Roper Has Brainy Eleven; No Game on Coast.

THE IRISH VS. THE TIGERS.

Rockne's Fighting Team will leave the Vandalia station this morning at 9:50, and all students free from classes at that hour will assemble at the station to give a demonstration for the Rockmen.

Rockne's Fighting Team will leave for the East this morning where they will meet the Princeton grid warriors in the Tiger camp next Saturday afternoon.

The attention of the football world is centered on the eastern battle ground, and while debating the outcome of the big game, they marvel at the ability and courage of the football coach who would take on two such formidable teams as the Army and Princeton within eight days.

With only two days of real practice on Cartier field, Rockne will go today to encounter one of the finest coached teams in that section of the country. Coach Roper's gridiron men passed through an unbeaten season last year and hopes are running high of repeating their feat of last year. The Tigers are rushing preparations in order that they might be able to meet the Rockmen in Palmer stadium, with a passing game that will meet its test against the strategy of the originator, Rockne.

Roper is another exponent of the "game from the neck up" and will present a team next Saturday that will be confident of matching wits with the Irish on an equal basis.

In the passing game that is gradually being accepted in the East, the Tigers have an assortment of aerial plays that include long, short and triple passes. Furthermore, the kicking end of the game is well taken care of by LeGendre, with Snively, captain of the eleven, doing the pass work in backfield. Snively's deadly passing is emphasized by the complexities of the plays with which the Tigers hope to sustain the reputation in the East this year.

Critics, viewing last Saturday's game with Georgetown, remarked on the weakness of the Princeton line as well as their defense against the passing attack. Rockne will have an aerial game Saturday that should baffle the Tigers, as the lesser bags of tricks baffled the Army. The terrific speed with which the Irish execute their backfield game is one of the reasons it is so successful.

The last practice session of the Irish was conducted in the gym last night as the inclement weather prohibited outdoor work. Although the time at the disposal of the Rockmen to work on Princeton formations was limited, the defense is working smoothly. The team that made the Army trip were out in uniform and are primed for the Tiger battle Saturday, with a fighting zest equal to that which manifested itself last week.

A post-season game with some team on the Pacific coast has been discussed, but Rockne characterized all stories to that effect as "stories."

The Irish football men are now under the care of Verly Smith, who gained a nation-wide reputation as a trainer during the three years that he took care of Jack Demsey.

The following men will leave the Vandalia station this morning at 9:50: Collins, Crowe, Farrell, McMullen, Noppenberger, Bach, Weibel, Brown, Gluckert, Harmon, Regan, Walsh, Kizer, Vergara, E. Miller, Oberst, Hunsinger, Murphy, Mayl, Stulldreher, Reese, Bergman, Crowley, Hauser, Layden, Cerney, Enright, D. Miller, Maher, Connell, Livergood, Rigali, Friske, Finch, Eggert.

DINNER-DANCE OF CRUSADERS

Club House at St. Mary's Scene of Affair; C. S. M. C. Committeemen There.

The Catholic Students Mission Crusade committee from St. Mary's and Notre Dame have been rewarded for their efforts during the summer in making the mission crusade a success. A dinner-dance was given in their honor in the St. Mary's club house, yesterday afternoon and last evening.

The task of handling several thousand persons from all over the world who attended Notre Dame last August to participate in the crusade fell upon Rev. Hugh O'Donnell and his student committeemen. STUDENT CARS TO BE BARRED Off-Campus Students May Have Them If Parents Consent; Letter Must Be Presented by Nov. 1.

Campus students who own autos must dispose of their machines as soon as possible as the result of action taken last night by the Department of Discipline. It was because of numerous accidents that the Department of Discipline saw fit to rule against the ownership of machines by Campus students, it is said.

Students living off campus may have cars in their possession provided that they present to the Director of Off-campus Students a letter from their parents or guardian authorizing the possession.

This letter must be presented not later than November 1.

Any student violating this ruling will be subject to disciplinary action by the Board of Rectors.

Fire Breaks Out On Cartier Field

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a section of the fence on the east side of Cartier field yesterday, shortly before 2 o'clock. A high wind from the south swept the flames along the fence for about 35 feet before the fire was controlled by firemen.

The blaze was discovered at 1:30, and an alarm sent in to the South Bend fire department. On the arrival of the fire trucks, a hose was strung from the hydrant in front of Sophomore hall to the scene of the fire. Students aided the firemen. The fire was under control by 2 o'clock.

THRILLED?

YOU bet he is! He's making a tremendous hit! She has just told him that he has hair like Rudy Valentino's. But he doesn't know whether to pretend that it came that way or confess that he did it with his little bottle of "Vaseline" Hair Tonic. He owes a lot of his manly beauty to that bottle. "Vaseline" Hair Tonic promotes the growth of the hair and keeps the scalp in the healthiest condition. At all drug stores and student barber shops.
