SCENE. (A South Bend residence. A beautiful girl and a not so beautiful young man. A phone rings, disturbing the charming couple. The adorable girl answers.)

"Lass Lyin"—"But there's someone here. . . . Yes, it's Eddie Gottry. . . . Yes."

Not so beautiful but gruffly speaking young man—"Hello, there! . . . Yes, what do you want? . . . This is Edna's father, yes. . . . You don't believe it; well, I can't prove it, but that is neither here nor there." . . . (Long silence on the part of both parties.)

Voice from other end, sounding like Doc Stoeckley—"Well." (weakly.)

Gruff speaker—"Well?" (A longer silence.)

Doc—"But—" (weaker.)

G. S.—"Yes?" (Longest silence.)

Doc. (It seems like ages have passed)—"I—" (weakest.)

No answer from gruff speaker. Silence, and when it seems that eternities have passed, the gruff speaker hangs up softly.

Scouts were unable to say whether Doc was still at the phone or not. Some of the more trusted scouts have been dispatched to him with food and drink and a peppy magazine or two.

The management of the Neville-Casey Trucking Company will give a smoker in the "rec" room of Cadillac hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. This affair (which will be one of the biggest social events of the season) will be open to all the company's employes and their friends and will be in commemoration of the unloading of the second carload of coal to be handled by the firm this season.

The Campus Forders are increasing their ranks every day. Art McMullen and Steve Carboy have applied for membership in the new organization, and a meeting will be held in Cadillac hall soon, to draw up rules for membership. The organization is very exclusive, and they say that they intend to rival the Chicago club and the Scribblers in that respect. All applications must be made in writing (done on a shivering flivver), and must state age, birth, nationality, wet or dry, girl's name and telephone number, and average number of blowouts per week. Tom Barber and Robert Q. Worth will receive all applications personally.

Mr. Abner Sommer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sommer, of Portsmouth, Ohio, was host to the Badin Travel Club on a delightful motor trip downstate in his brougham, recently. The young men were pleasantly entertained by a host of Mr. Sommer's Fort Wayne friends. What would have been, one of the most exquisite occasions in the lives of these young men was marred by only one incident, the unfortunate ditching of their brougham over a muddy embankment just outside of Fort Wayne. The event was the opening of Mr. Sommer's winter social season.

Welcome Champs

The Notre Dame football team will arrive at the New York Central station Monday morning at 5:30. All students who wish to meet the team have permission to do so, but there will be no organized demonstration at the station.

The Demonstration will be held Monday night at 7 o'clock on the south side of the gym. It will be an old-time Notre Dame welcome. Rev. Matthew J. Walsh, president of the University, Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, Colonel Hoynes, Captain Brown and Coach Rockne will talk. The band will play and there will be a snake dance and a bonfire. The S. A. C. asks that all students attend.

South Bend people are cordially invited.

ARRANGE FOR HOMECOMING

Rooms, Tickets Almost All Taken; Record-Breaking Crowd Is Expected; Gate Admission Only.

Much interest is being shown by Notre Dame alumni in Homecoming this year, according to Matt Rothert, chairman of the Blue Circle.

Many old students of the University are writing for information concerning the annual event; practically all rooms in South Bend hotels have been reserved; and everything points to a record-breaking attendance from all parts of the United States.

The Purdue-Notre Dame game is attracting thousands here for Homecoming, interest having been stimulated by the strong showing made by Jim Phelan's men against Iowa last Saturday.

In an effort to house alumni, the Blue Circle, with the aid of the South Bend Chamber of Commerce, has secured a large number of rooms in private homes in the city. Many of these rooms have already been reserved.

Reservations for rooms may be made through Owen Desmond, chairman of the information committee, 110 Corby.

No general admission tickets will be sold except at the gate on the day of the game.

K. of C.'s Tiger Trot Is Great Success

Notre Dame's victory over Princeton was celebrated last night by a Tiger Trot from 9 to 12 o'clock in the Oliver hotel, given by the Knights of Columbus.

Vocal solos by George Koch, baritone, featured the entertainment, which was the first to be given by the Knights of Columbus this season. Music for the dance was provided by the Music Masters.

The Tiger Trot marked the inauguration of a series of social events to be given by the organization for the purpose of sponsoring social activity among the students.

PUBLICATION REGULATIONS

University Board of Publications Makes Public Their Rules Governing N. D. Publications.

The regulations made by the Board of Publications of the University were made public yesterday. Rev. Thomas Lahey is chairman of the board; Rev. John F. O'Hara, secretary, and Rev. Kerndt M. Healy is the other member.

Charles O. Molz has been appointed representative of the Student Activities Committee, as the man through whom all communications between the board and the publications shall pass. He will serve for this year.

The regulations follow:

This Board is equipped by the President of the University with full and final powers to deal with any matter affecting any of the following publications: The Dome, The Scholastic, The Juggler, The Notre Dame Daily, The Santa Maria. Any other student publications may, by action of the President, be added to this jurisdiction.

In the common interest of the University, it places all student publications under the following regulations, uniform unless exception is here noted.

1. This Board reserves the right to pass fully and finally upon the conduct or work of any member of the staff or any of the publications over which it has or may have jurisdiction.

2. Each publication shall file with this Board, and for its approval, a constitution determining its mode of organization and its editorial and business policy, and such constitution, when approved by this Board, shall determine the future conduct of the publication. Later amendments to the constitution shall become effective only with the approval of this Board.

3. Unless otherwise directed by this Board the publication above named shall continue to operate as they are now constituted, with certain exceptions hereinafter noted.

4. Each publication shall be self-supporting. For the current year exception is made of The Dome.

5. Within a week after the first, second and third quarterly examinations, a financial statement of each publication shall be submitted to the Treasurer of the University, and a final financial statement one week before the final examinations.

6. This Board shall determine the nature and scope of the censorship of each publication, and shall appoint all censors for such work.

7. No member of the staff of any of the afore-mentioned publications shall be privileged to resign from such staff without ample notice to provide for his replacement, under penalty of forfeiture of any academic honors which may later accrue to him.

8. The remuneration of any staff member of any student publication shall be taken from the net profits of such publication after all other obligations have been paid.

9. The Student Activities Committee shall make a survey of the distribution of local advertising among the various existing publications, and shall make specific recommendations to this Board regarding the protection of South Bend advertisers and the equitable distribution of advertising among the said publications.

10. The Student Activities Committee shall have supervisory jurisdiction over all student publications, with power to recommend but without power to command.

Any matter to be presented to this Board by a student member or members of the above-mentioned publications shall be presented through a representative of the Student Activities Committee.

ROCKMEN TRIUMPH OVER TIGER BY 25-2

Acclaimed as Nation's Best as They Out-Class Princeton; Layden, Maher, Crowley, Stuhldreher, Bergman Star

PALMER STADIUM, N. J., Oct. 20.—Rockne's Fighting Team, sweeping the East in a blaze of glory, defeated the Princeton Tigers 25 to 2 on their own battle ground in Palmer stadium before a crowd of 35,000 spectators, yesterday afternoon.

K. K. Rockne, the Notre Dame coach, invading the eastern football realm for the second time within eight days, proving to the world that the 1923 gridiron machine from the Hoosier school is the most brilliant and strategically successful eleven in the football world today.

The speed and quick thinking that was responsible for the Tigers' downfall yesterday afternoon was a revelation to the sport critics that sat on the side lines and continually kept the crowd in the stand in wild excitement as the westerners kicked, passed and ran their way through the champions of the Big Three.

Princeton, famous for their last minute comebacks, were decidedly disappointed in the battle with the brilliant run of Crum, who scooped up Crowley's fumble on the Tigers' 5-yard line and stepped away for 76 yards, only to be stopped by a diving tackle by Frank Reese on Notre Dame's 19-yard line. It was the only moment of consolation that came to the Tiger camp in their crushing defeat by the Rockmen.

Roper's outfit played a hard game and never gave up the hope of triumph until the final whistle sounded as Layden crossed the goal after a 48-yard run with an intercepted pass.

Drews and VanGerbig performed in brilliant style for the Jungletown eleven; the former succeeding several times in throwing the Irish backs for losses before they got started. VanGerbig was a powerful factor both on the offense and defense, and was mixed up in nearly every play, by making the tackle, by spoiling a pass, or by punting.

Snively, the famous passer, whose work is expected to put Princeton at the head of the Big Three this year, gave his best to the passing game throughout the entire struggle, but failed to complete as many passes as the aerial masters from the West.

Bergman, Miller and Layden rushed the ball through the Tiger defense in the first quarter and got the lead on Princeton when Miller ran 20 yards for the first score. Only once did the Irish try to score from a drop kick which went wide of the bar from the 45-yard line. Notre Dame gained a total of 152 yards to the Tigers' 67, in the first quarter. Both teams were playing hard but Notre Dame was the gainer on the line plunging game.

Before the second score was tallied, Layden tried the line only to be stopped within a foot of the goal. Stuhldreher went over on the next play.

The Irish failed on every attempt for the extra point after touchdown, except once, because of the ability of the Princeton forwards to break through and block the kick.

Occasionally during the game, the Irish broke loose and gave a wonderful exhibition of football as played out West. But aside from these infrequent breaks, the Princeton line and secondary defense were able to stop the Irish drive before it had gone far.

Princeton resorted to the overhead attack throughout most of the game in a vain effort to score, and only gained their two points when Crowley fell on a blocked punt back of his own goal line.

The Tigers' aerial drive brought defeat to Roper's men and the speed and clever deception of the Rockmen went far to prove that they cannot be defeated at their own game. In the last few seconds of play, Layden intercepted Snively's pass and ran 48 yards for a touchdown as the final whistle blew.

The field was soggy, but did not affect the playing of the two teams to any great extent. Princeton made their appearance on the field, headed by the Tiger band, whose attire and clever work drew the applause of the crowd.

First Quarter.

Emery kicked off for Princeton to Layden on Notre Dame's 7-yard line. He returned it to own 24-yard line where Rutan brought him down. Bergman lost 5 yards at left tackle, second down 15 yards to go. Layden kicked out of bounds at mid-field.

Layden went off left tackle for a yard. D. Miller made 7 yards around right end. Layden went off right tackle for first down on Princeton's 39-yard line. Bergman went off left guard for 8 yards. D. Miller went off right tackle for 20 yards and a touchdown. Layden's kick was blocked. Score, Notre Dame 6; Princeton 0.

Layden kicked off for Notre Dame to VanGerbig on Princeton's 3-yard line.

Layden tried drop kick from 45-yard line but it went to left of the posts. Princeton put ball in play on own 20-yard line. Smith replaced Drews at left end for Princeton. VanGerbig made two yards around left end.

First period score; Notre Dame 6; Princeton 0.

Second Quarter.

Princeton defending north goal. Princeton's ball, second down, 8 yards to gain on own 22-yard line. On next play, Princeton was off side and penalized 5 yards, third down, 13 yards to gain. Croft failed to gain at center, fourth down, 13 to gain. VanGerbig punted to Stuhldreher on Notre Dame's 41-yard line. Crowley replaced Bergman for Notre Dame. Crowley made 6 yards around left end. Crowley to Mayl forward pass gave Notre Dame a first down on Princeton's 48-yard line.

On next play Notre Dame was off side and penalized 5 yards, second down, 15 to go. D. Miller went around right end to Princeton's 21-yard line where he was thrown out of bounds. Layden went through center for 6 yards but Notre Dame was penalized 5 yards off side. On a series of plays Notre Dame carried the ball to Princeton's 3-yard line, where Princeton gained the ball on a fumble and punted out of danger.

Stuhldreher returned the ball to Princeton's 43 yard line. Notre Dame's ball, first down. Layden went through center for 3 yards. Crowley made 4 more through left tackle. Layden made two more at center. A forward pass, Stuhldreher to D. Miller, made a first down on Princeton's 10-yard line. Layden put the ball on the line about a half foot from the goal. Stuhldreher hit center for a touchdown. Princeton 0; Notre Dame 12. Crowley missed a drop kick for extra point, Stout blocked it.

Miller went in for Vergara. Nopenberger kicked off to Dinsmore on Princeton's 20-yard line. He returned it to his own 32-yard line where Crowley tackled him. Crum failed at left tackle. VanGerbig punted over Notre Dame's goal line. Notre Dame put ball in play on 20-yard line. Maher went in for D. Miller and Cerney for Layden for Notre Dame. Maher failed to gain at left tackle. Smith blocked Crowley's punt. It went over Notre Dame's goal line and Crowley fell

PONDEROUS PONDERINGS

Canes, it seems, should be taken seriously. Until 83 men of the Senior class voted their approval of wearing canes as means of class distinction, one was inclined to ridicule the idea that canes could be considered seriously.

Canes, it had been thought, were wearing appurtenances that were proper on certain occasions. It was thought that canes were quite the thing to make impressions, like the ones that must have been made by Sir Plume, according to Pope. The lines are like these:

Sir Plume, of amber snuff-box justly vain,

And the nice conduct of a clouded cane.

It was imagined that they were commendable superfluities for frequenters of the local Rialtos, and again becoming reminiscently poetical, the lines of an old song recurred:

I marched the lobby, twirled my stick.

The girls all cried: "He's quite the kick."

But that mood of levity passed when the 83 men voted for canes. Although everyone with whom one talked on the subject seemed to have voted that way just to show the lawyers that there were other brave men in the school—or something like that—it still seemed that canes were serious subjects, staffs of life, or the like.

It was recalled that a cane was a natural thing to carry, on a walking excursion, whether through the wild ways or down the Michigan Boulevard ways. It was recalled that canes were quite commendable parts of dress for certain occasions.

But rack the head as one might, one could not understand why canes should be worn on certain afternoons to classes; on every trip to South Bend, even when one went to a plebian movie; and to football games, whether one chose to go dressed in afternoon clothes, in sweater, or in vulgar corduroys.

COLLEGE-MADE BUSINESS MEN

For many years Mr. David Harum and Mr. Babbitt have been taken as representative of American business men, men whose chief pursuit is the dollar, whose ideas of business, economics, sandwiched between hearty songs and lusty jokes, are secured at Rotary club banquets, and who sought his pleasure at the club and at the burlesque show.

But in the last several years a subtle change has come about. The new business man hails from the university. He is no longer the self-made man, but he is the college-made man. He has a different air; he is a new type, different even from each of his fellows. He has secured his knowledge of business economics in the university, where experts have explained the fundamental principles; with the result that he really knows economics and is able to judge things by principled knowledge, and no longer has to depend on the lessons of his own experience and the recited experiences of Rotarians. He hears speeches of big business men who delight in paying a visit to a university, where young men will listen to his every word.

He discusses all kinds of businesses, and in his Chamber of Commerce secures a sympathetic understanding of all pursuits. There, too, he meets men from all parts of the world, and he is enabled to learn of places far remote from the little town in Wisconsin from which he came. He makes friends, too, friends from everywhere; who may be of assistance to him in his coming work.

And, in the better universities, he learns not only business, but he learns the cultural subjects, too. He imbibes a bit of philosophy, a bit of history, a bit of science, a bit of English literature, and a bit of other subjects. By these studies he accustoms his mind to seek not only the material dollar but the spiritual goods as well. He makes himself so much more the man and so much less the machine. He gives himself so much more expanse of intellectual foundation upon which to build his special life-pursuit. And, when he goes into the world, he is able to get an unlimited joy out of life, not a limited one like his Babbitt predecessor, for he, the college-made business man, has a spiritually developed mind to draw upon—and the spiritual is unlimited.

The college-made man was once frowned upon by employer Babbitt. But some of the college-made business men became successful so much more rapidly than sons of Babbitt that the favor changed. Nowadays the employer seeks the man who has been trained in colleges. He makes that a point in most of his advertisements for new men.

And the business courses grow. Five times as many men are now studying business in the universities as there are studying all other subjects. More men are becoming college-made business men, in accordance with the law of supply and demand.

Through the Looking Glass

The comma is the most useful mark of punctuation.

From South Bend paper:

"—and where is Scallan. He said he's meet me at nine-thirty tonight, and it's ten now?"

"I think he is working on The Dome."

"I knew they were gilding it, but what can they be doing on it at 10 o'clock on a rainy night?"

Sir:

Now that the Presidential whim has changed from golf to early morning walks, the number of potential Presidents at Notre Dame has fallen off greatly. How many have we?

STATISTICIAN.

Statistician:

Confidentially, we don't know, not being a student of Brother Cyprian. However, as proof of the never-failing service of the colyum of Notre Dame's Greatest Newspaper, we will ourselves start a fund (out of the editors' drawer) with our two-cent stamp heading the list, for the worthy reader who can devote his time to this task. The contest is on. To the victor belongs the spoil (ed stamps!)

DOC.

It is probably worth knowing that John Dore will be on a ticket committee.

Now all they need is Mr. Hurley, to see to those who won't have tickets.

And Mr. Blunt for those who want to argue.

WORRIES.

We have been getting up at five every morning because the alarm set that way and we are too lazy to change it.

Tom Hodgson has ceased to be a democratic person. He is not going to let his beard grow any more, he says. In Phil. 4c, he expounded to a group of eager listeners his intention of and reasons for eliminating the growth with a cold-chisel.

King doubts that one cola-chisel will do it. He suggested that Bill Neville drag them out with the school Cadillac.

Suggestions will be appreciated.

From Off Stage

AT THE THEATRES.

Palace—The Eternal Struggle.
Orpheum—The Frame-up.
Oliver—Enemies of Women.
LaSalle—The Spanish Dancer.
Blackstone—The Man Who Won.

It was a great afternoon, and, as Mr. Grundy says, "Whoopie!" Having watched Rockne's croppy boys tie bow knots in the Tiger's tail via gridgraph, we wandered down to the Palace to see what we could see, and were well repaid for having done so.

Colleen Moore and Johnny Walker, a likeable pair, were two young people struggling to get a foothold on Broadway, subsisting on a mere crust of bread and a pint or so of milk while they waited, like one Micawber, for something to turn up. Something did turn up, and the thing ended very happily with the girl's name in electric lights and with Johnny as the man whose play made her success possible. "Broken Hearts of Broadway" is not a great picture, nor one to rave about, but it provides a good opening for the bill.

Ramsey's Canaries is an unusual act with the birds showing remarkable training, and carrying out their stunts in a manner which reflects great credit upon their trainer.

Sam Armstrong and Lee Phelps, the boys from Hollywood, gave a varied repertoire of songs, both new and old which established them with the audience from the start.

Patsy Shelly, Erny Holmgren and his band are billed as the headliners, and their act deserves the distinction. Patsy Shelly's dancing reminds you at times of Eva Puck and at others of another dancer, not so well known, but nevertheless good, Pert Kelton. Erny Holmgren plays "Kiss Me Again" as a violin solo, and directs his band in several numbers which are fully up to the high standard the aggregation sets.

Frank Dobson is a comedian who does not have to resort to the cut and dried gags to put his act across. He scored the hit of the evening with his songs and stories, and kept the audience in what is known as continual merriment.

Harvard, Holt, and Kendrick closed the show with a novel form of basketball which combines polo and cycling which managed to hold those who usually crawl over your knees and step on your toes to get out early.

That's about all, unless the editor will tell us to put in a few more whoopees.

HIGHEST AVERAGE.

John H. Neeson, president of the Notre Dame Alumni association, has been appointed Chief Engineer of the Department of Highways of Philadelphia. In the examination for the position, he achieved the highest general average on record in the department.
