Faculty members question 'Spirit of Inclusion'

By MATTHEW LOUGHRAN
Associate News Editor

Some faculty members expressed disappointment about Notre Dame's new "Spirit of Inclusion," which University president Father Edward Malloy announced on Friday.

"A 'Spirit of Inclusion' is nice, but it doesn't give any legal protection," said Ava Preacher, associate dean of the College of Arts and Letters and Faculty Senate representative to the Campus Life Council. "I firmly believe that [homosexual students, faculty and staff] have to have legal protection. This new statement is one of those half-steps that [the officers of the University] take but just doesn't get the job done."

Father Malloy issued the statement, which will be included in all University publications, on Friday morning. It begins with a biblical quote from the book of Ephesians, equating homosexual students, faculty and staff with what the text calls, "strangers and sojourners no longer." He also wrote an open letter explaining the statement and the officers' reasons for issuing the statement.

"I think [the letter] is problematic and confusing," Preacher said. "Malloy makes a distinction that may exclude a section of the population. Is it possible that someone necessarily admits to that conduct when openly stating that they are gay? Someone may lose their livelihood by openly admitting they are gay, and there is no legal protection."

Father David Garrick, professor of communications and theatre, agreed with Preacher's question.

"It is very prejudicial to think of people in terms of imagined sexual acts," he said. "It is a very old prejudice to imagine certain sexual juxtapositions in reference to homosexuals. That is not done to heterosexuals and it should not be done to homosexuals."

Preacher also took issue with Malloy's fear that civil courts would interpret "sexual orientation" differently than the Catholic Church would.

"He said that they might interpret the change through the 'broader social milieu,'" she said. "This is a Catholic Church, it is a Church for the people and it should be reflective of the milieu. We don't want a Church that is not in touch with the culture of its people."

Garrick also questioned whether the statement will affect equality on campus. "Look at the huge list for Activities Night," he said. "Not one gay student group is on list. Not one gay student group has been able to get on the list. Call GLND's number at 236-9661. Listen to their message. You will learn that they have no meeting place at Notre Dame that they can depend on. Does this sound like the message of people who are 'strangers and sojourners no longer'?"

Grant allows ND to add journalism concentration

By MICHELLE KRUPA
Associate News Editor

Notre Dame undergraduates now have the opportunity to formally study the field of journalism thanks to a $129,600 grant from the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation.

Still in the planning stages, the interdisciplinary program will be somewhat like the Hesburgh Program in Public Service; students will add journalism as a concentration while pursuing a traditional major, according to American studies chair and program director, Robert Schmuhl.

"The grant allows existing faculty at Notre Dame to develop new courses in the realm of journalism," Schmuhl said. "It will be interdisciplinary and will feature the involvement of professional journalists in a number of courses."

Currently, various journalism courses are available to students through different departments such as American studies, government, history and psychology. The new program will bring

LONDON

Prince Charles brought Princess Diana home for the last time Sunday, escorting the body of his "English rose" back to the land where their storybook romance ended in sorrow and scandal, a nation now plunged into grief and outrage over a stunning final tragedy.

A jet carrying the somber prince and the coffin bearing his ex-wife's remains landed outside London 16 hours after Diana died from injuries suffered when her automobile, chased by photographers, crashed in a Paris traffic tunnel.

At the Seine riverside tunnel, outside her London palace home, mourners heaped flowers in tribute to the much-admired Diana. But the sadness mixed with anger — outrage at a press that pursued the princess relentlessly in life, and may have contributed to her death.

"I always believed the press would kill her in the end," said her brother, Charles Spencer.

French police were investigating the role seven pursuing paparazzi photographers may have played in the early Sunday morning tragedy, which also took the lives of the 36-year-old Diana's new beau, the millionaire Dodi Fayed, and their chauffeur.

The red-tailed jet from Paris landed at the Northolt air base, where a grim array of dignitaries, led by Prime Minister Tony Blair, had gathered under leaden skies. A Royal Air Force honor guard solemnly bore the coffin from the aircraft to a waiting hearse.

"How difficult things were for her from time to time, I am sure we can only guess at," Blair said earlier in the day. "But people everywhere

... They liked her, they loved her, they regarded her as one of the people."

After the brief airport ceremony, Charles flew back to Scotland to be with the couple's two sons, Princes William, 15, and Harry, 12.

Buckingham Palace said the funeral plans were likely to be announced Monday. But across the nation, for millions of Britons in myriad ways, the mourning had already begun for the queen they never had.

■ INSIDE COLUMN

Holding out for a hero

To the list of greatest uniform numbers ever worn, another number was added yesterday.

No. 23.

But before you think that Michael Jordan has retired for a second time, you should know that the owner of this No. 23 isn't the greatest basketball player of all time. In fact, this baseball player is not even close to being the greatest player ever on his team, the New York Yankees.

But he is one of the greatest role models ever.

At Yankee Stadium yesterday afternoon, Don Mattingly, the greatest Yankee never to have won a World Series ring, had his number added to the list of Ruth, Gehrig, Dimaggio and Mantle. Mattingly's 14-year career produced statistics worthy of eventual Hall of Fame induction; the four-season span from 1984 to 1987 — in which Mattingly won a batting title, an MVP award and set the record for most grand slams in a season — was some of the best hitting of that decade.

But what separates him from other Yankee greats is something he never achieved: an appearance in the World Series. Mattingly joined the team in 1982, one season after the team last played in the World Series, and retired in 1995, just before the team's title-winning season last year.

For the tradition-laden Yankees, who have reached the World Series 34 times since 1923, enduring 14 years without a championship was unheard of. Such a distinction is not what one strives for when he breaks into the major leagues, but it emphasizes the graceful manner with which Mattingly played his career. Glory didn't seek Mattingly, but he didn't seek glory either.

In the self-promotion era of the 1980s and 1990s, his modesty, more than not winning a title for the Yankees, is unheard of. Mattingly, like Jordan in Chicago, played in one of the top media markets in the country.

Unlike Jordan, Mattingly didn't line his pocket with endorsement dough. Playing the game was enough.

Mattingly never held out for a better contract, never pouted over a decision made by his manager, never demanded to be traded, and, most importantly, never left town in the era of unbridled free agency. In his entire career, the greatest flap he ever created was over how long his hair had grown below his baseball cap.

In the Bronx Zoo directed by George Steinbrenner, where managers change more often than the Dow increases, that's incredible.

If any author could write Mattingly's biography, it would have been Hemingway. A throwback to the time of the silent hero who was graceful under pressure, Mattingly has been a cool breeze in the era of hot-aired, superficial celebrities determined to see their name in the headlines as much as possible.

Mattingly never set out to be anything more than a great ballplayer. But in doing so, he accomplished something more.

He became a role model.

■ WORLD AT A GLANCE

Secretary Herman: Labor must share in prosperity

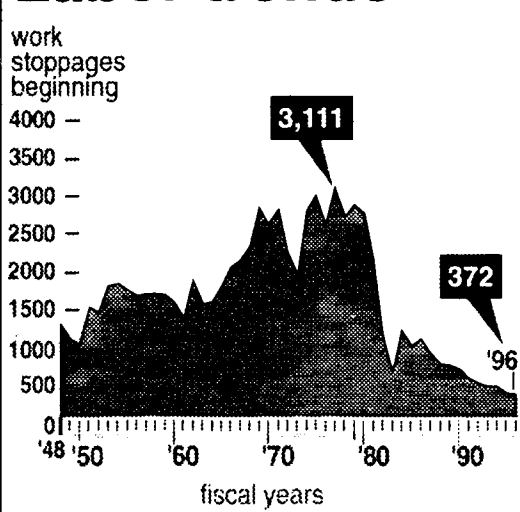

WASHINGTON
"The unfinished business of America's new prosperity" is to narrow the gap between rich and poor, Labor Secretary Alexis Herman said Sunday in a Labor Day message.

"These are indeed prosperous times, but still a quiet unease lurks ... that our nation will declare success before all Americans will have their chance to claim their fair share," she said.

Herman said she found during a week's nationwide tour that "workers are in better shape than in many, many years." But she also sensed worry that "America's rising tide may be casting our citizens toward two separate shores." On one side is a "new economy, full of opportunity and challenge," she said.

But on the other side, "the same tide may be stranding some Americans on the shoreline of an old economy that is quickly washing away beneath their feet," Herman said. She was referring to those displaced by downsizing, new technology and offshore production.

Herman's tour started in Seattle shortly after she played a role in settling the 15-day nationwide Teamsters Union strike against United Parcel Service. It took her to Minnesota, Texas, Tennessee and West Virginia, ending with the Labor secretary's traditional Labor Day address this year in the form of the Sunday sermon to more than 1,000 people at Washington's National Cathedral.

"On Labor Day 1997, the task before us as a nation — as a moral people ... as children of God is to make sure that the economy's new buoyancy lifts the lives of all Americans ... that we do not declare our work completed until America's new prosperity is shared by all," she said.

Cartoonist strives for educational strips

NEW YORK
In producing episodes of the popular "Doug" cartoon over the past few years, Jim Jenkins had one central worry: Will children laugh? Now his scripts must pass muster with a team of Harvard educators who have another concern: Will children learn? New federal rules taking effect today require television broadcasters to air at least three hours a week of educational shows for children. The rules already have forced some changes, but haven't ended the debate over nutritional programming for young minds. Several new features designed to fulfill the mandate debut this week, like the Norman Lear-produced cartoon "Umptee-3 TV" on the WB, "The Sports Illustrated for Kids Show" on CBS and an ABC cartoon about a 12-year-old named Pepper Ann. Yet many existing programs will simply return to the schedule, newly defined as "educational." "For us, this was just business as usual," said Maureen Smith, in charge of children's programming at Fox. "We will continue to pick shows that will not only educate but entertain."

HIV patients to receive organs

SAN FRANCISCO
As new therapies prolong the lives of those infected with the virus that causes AIDS, the University of California in San Francisco is offering organ transplants to people infected with HIV. But doctors said they would only offer organs to people whose infection with the virus was under control and who are not dying from other diseases. And HIV patients will only get organs that otherwise would have been turned down, so others will not be deprived of the kidneys or hearts they need, said Dr. Nancy Ascher, a UCSF liver transplant surgeon. That would include body parts from donors who are HIV negative but considered high risk — such as people who are gay, have multiple sex partners or have a history of intravenous drug use. Most other major transplant centers in the nation will not give organs to people infected with the AIDS virus. They say the shortage of donated organs demands that they be reserved for those with the greatest chance of a long and productive life. Dr. John Lake, medical director of UCSF's transplant program, says his department had to look at the long-term prognosis of people with HIV in the same way it looks at people with any other disease such as cancer or heart problems. "We had to do what was right," he said in San Francisco's issue of the San Francisco Examiner. But others consider it a highly questionable policy.

Bayh uses Labor Day to court voters

INDIANA
While most Indiana residents are relaxing at backyard cookouts Sunday, some of the state's politicians will use Labor Day to court potential voters. Among them will be former Gov. Evan Bayh, who is expected to run for U.S. Senate next year. The Democrat will take part in parades in Boonville and Terre Haute and United Auto Workers' picnics in Anderson and Fort Wayne. He'll cap the day with another parade in Elkhart. "I'll start at 7 a.m. and end about 7 p.m. It's a full day," Bayh said. Thirty years ago, Bayh noted, it would have been considered too early to start campaigning 15 months before the election. Not anymore. While Bayh is seeking the Democratic nomination for the Senate, the GOP has three candidates vying to succeed the retiring Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind. "I feel there's not enough time," said local attorney Peter Rusthoven, one of the three candidates. Another hopeful, local attorney John Price, has scheduled 11 events for the holiday weekend — from Oktoberfest in Michigan City on Friday to Old Fashioned Days in North Salem on Monday.

VMI woman complains of harassment

LEXINGTON, Va.
At least one of the women in Virginia Military Institute's first coed class has complained about being singled out for unfair treatment. Senior Class President Kevin Trujillo said Saturday the woman felt she was being picked on by the cadre, the upperclassmen who train the freshman class — known as "rats." The woman, who was not identified, plans to stay at VMI, Trujillo said. One other woman has been called before the Rat Disciplinary Committee. Trujillo said Angelica Garza of Fort Belvoir "popped off a little attitude with an upperclassman." Her penalty will be calisthenics. Except for a few members of the bellowing training cadre who "got a little hot" and had to be told to back off from yelling at the freshmen, no inappropriate behavior toward females has occurred, Trujillo said. The 158-year-old school chose to go coed after a 1996 Supreme Court ruling that it could not be both state-supported and all-male. As of Sunday, two of 30 women have dropped out since arriving on campus last month. Twenty-seven men also dropped out.

Board names Williams chairman

Special to The Observer

Father Oliver F. Williams, associate professor of management in the College of Business Administration and co-director of the Notre Dame Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business, has been elected chairman of the American board of the United States-South Africa Leadership Development

Williams

Program (USSALEP).

Father Williams, who served as a member of the United Nations Observation Mission for South Africa's first post-apartheid national elections in April 1994, has studied the South African business and political landscape for many years.

He facilitated a landmark 1991 meeting at Notre Dame between U.S. corporate and government officials and representatives of the African National Congress, the Inkatha Freedom Party and the Pan-Africanist Congress, and has spent the last two years in South Africa, teaching business ethics at the University of Capetown and Stellenbosch University.

A 1961 Notre Dame graduate, Father Williams was ordained a Holy Cross priest in 1970. He earned a doctorate from the Vanderbilt University Divinity School in 1974. A member of the Notre Dame faculty since 1973, he served as associate provost of the University from 1978-94.

Since its establishment in 1958, USSALEP, a binational non-governmental organization, has administered exchange and training programs in the United States and South Africa.

these disciplines together and add to them new internship opportunities and more extensive, specific course options.

"We are talking to people at ABC's Nightline and NBC's Meet the Press about possible internships, and we will continue to conduct those that already exist locally," Schmuhl said.

Two factors will affect the augmentation of the program, which Schmuhl anticipates will draw 25-30 students by next fall: the development of additional courses by professors and the approval of these courses by University officials.

"At this point, given the support of the Knight Foundation and the cooperation of everyone at the University, we would expect the program to be completely in place in a couple of years," Schmuhl said.

For the time being, one new course, "The Craft of Journalism," is in place, and several news veterans will come to campus to discuss their careers as part of its curriculum.

The Knight Foundation, which will support the program for three years, makes national grants in journalism, education and the field of arts and culture.

In a recent press release, the foundation's president, Creed Black, expressed confidence in the choice to endow Notre Dame's program.

"Our trustees think Notre Dame has approached the expansion of its journalism concentration in the right way. By starting with a solid emphasis in the liberal arts and adding an underpinning of the basics — writing, editing, ethics and journalism's value — Notre Dame will prepare its graduates for what ought to be a fascinating career for the 21st century," Black said.

Diana

married 16 years ago, the vast nave was filled for a special evening service, attended mostly by people in casual weekend dress. Flags flew at half-staff across the kingdom. All soccer games — the national sport — were canceled. The airwaves were filled with "God Save the Queen," the national anthem.

Hundreds of ordinary Britons, many in tears, gathered outside Kensington Palace, Diana's home. "She was one sparkling gem, very warm, a genuine person," said Josephine Boeg-Clarke, 65, her eyes red from crying.

"She was banished by the royal family, but she was the star member of the royal family," said royal biographer Anthony Holden. "It will be hard to see what they will be without her."

In Paris, the French, too, like many around the world, joined in lamenting the loss of a princess who had carried on with style and smiles through years of adversity in an ill-fitting marriage.

"She had everything," said Pascale Tremblay, a waitress in a Parisian bakery. "She was as good as she was beautiful."

Charles had flown to Paris on Sunday afternoon with Diana's two sisters, Lady Jane Fellowes and Lady Sarah McCorquodale, to retrieve the remains of the woman he divorced last year after 15 years of marriage.

French President Jacques Chirac and his wife, Bernadette, met the heir to the British throne at the hospital where Diana died three hours after the crash and where her body lay.

The crash occurred in a tunnel at a bridge, the Pont de l'Alma, just north of the Eiffel Tower. Fayed, 42-year-old son of the billionaire Egyptian owner of London's prestigious Harrods department store, was dead at the scene, as was the chauffeur.

A fourth person in the sedan, a bodyguard, suffered serious injuries.

Seven photographers who were detained immediately after the crash were placed under formal custody Sunday afternoon. Police sources said the seven, questioned throughout the day, would spend Sunday night in custody. They can be held without charges for up to 48 hours.

French police said the investigation of the crash, which a bodyguard survived with serious injuries, would be handled by a special unit usually assigned to high-priority terrorism cases.

Diana often had complained of being plagued by the paparazzi — the commercial photographers who trailed her since she entered the public eye as a shy young woman.

Diana and Fayed had dined at the Ritz Hotel — owned by Fayed's family — and reportedly were on their way to a private villa in western Paris, also owned by Fayed.

Witnesses said the photographers, riding motorcycles, were swarming around the black Mercedes-Benz before it entered the tunnel shortly after midnight.

France's interior minister, Jean-Pierre Chevenement, said

The speed limit was 30 mph. Diana and Fayed were not believed to be wearing seat belts, the source said.

The car hit a curb, crashed into a concrete post in the center divider, then bounced across the right lane and smashed roof-first into the tiled wall. The impact destroyed the car, turning it into a heap of crumpled metal and broken glass.

France info radio said at least some of the photographers took pictures before help arrived — and that one of the photographers was beaten at the scene by horrified witnesses. Six of the photographers were French and one was Macedonian.

"We want the entire truth," the Fayed's family lawyer, Bernard Darteville, later told French television. "It seems to me to be a case of involuntary homicide."

Italian photographer Mario Brenna, who himself has pursued Diana pictures, said he was told by a colleague at the scene that photographers were no longer chasing the car when it crashed.

"He and his colleagues had already broken away from the auto," Brenna told the Italian news agency ANSA.

Diana was rushed to Paris' Hospital de la Pitie Salpetriere, suffering major chest and lung injuries and internal bleeding.

Dr. Bruno Riou said Diana had quickly gone into cardiac arrest and that doctors tried for at least two hours to save her, applying internal and external cardiac massage to no avail. At 4 a.m., she died.

Princes William and Harry were informed of their mother's death by their father at Balmoral Castle, Scotland.

JEDI MIND TRICKS

Countdown to Game Time: T Minus Six

We should have today off. Today is an Irish holiday (not that we get a day off for this holiday — in the God, Country, Notre Dame hierarchy, ND overrides national holidays, i.e.

Kevin Patrick

Labor Day). For this holiday, you will not see streamers, you will not hear halleluias, and most of the beneficiaries do not even realize this "holiday" exists.

This is not a holiday for those of Celtic descent. It is a celebration for all of the Notre Dame "Irish" across the country. For this very Monday, outlined against a blue-gray September sky, signals the end of the famine — the final stage of our 12 step "off-season" program. Today begins the march to the national championship. No more weekends without Notre Dame football. No more speculation.

No more anticipation.

No more misguided fantasizing on the immeasurable impact the freshman class will have in determining the success or failure on the entire season. No more hanging on the every word of your buddy who has a friend whose roommate is dating the sister of the junior football manager who also happens to have an in with the head football manager who thinks that Clement Stokes improved his ability to sell the play action pass is the key to Ron Powlus' breakthrough year and our national title hopes. No more bitterness on Saturdays because you are in South Bend, Indiana (OK, just less bitterness).

Today starts game week.

Ah, to be banished from the bookstore by throngs of people not buying books, to line the walk from the Basilica to the stadium, to dance on wood planks to the most storied fight song, to pass unsuspecting peers and classmates through the stands, to wave at Bill Kirk sitting in his perch, to cheer the Irish Guard, to appreciate the humor of the Indiana State Police, to explode as the players enter the stadium, to greet the oppositions starting line-up with that good Catholic warmth, to jam with the band at half-time, to do push-ups in the stands, to throw marshmallows, to stand the whole game, to salute the students after a hard fought battle, to position yourself next to the "hottie" right before the alma mater is played. Life begins again.

Today is the beginning of a week that answers many questions, but also presents many more.

•Will the "1812 Overture" be played?

•When it is played, what will we all do? ("Bob!" just doesn't seem to do it).

•If the "Backer" opened and nobody came, what would you do? (Go home and see what Wednesday night TV has to offer.)

•Hypothetical ruined: What if the one resident selected to speak at the pep rally was John Cerasani?

•Would he talk about his dying mother as the Chicago Tribune would suggest?

•Or would he talk about improving his 12 I.Q. as John Beeler would suggest?

•What arrives in the endzone three seconds after Joey Getherall? (Allen Rossum).

•What does it take to receive a Rhodes Scholarship and where does Jimmy Friday sign up?

•When Notre Dame scores more than two touchdowns, will the cheerleaders have to hold the Leprechaun's knees?

•If Malcolm Johnson fumbles at the goal line, will everyone blame Jim Sanson? (Oh, I'm sorry, that was last year).

•With the Dome under construction, what steps will the band step-down from as they march into the stadium?

•When you attend Notre Dame for six years, and Notre Dame has lost a home game each of those years, what do you do? (Take a hint — LEAVE!).

This week contains a lot of magic. This week leads to the first football game in the new stadium. This week leads to the official beginning to the Bob Davie era. At the end of this week, some people will see the first Notre Dame football game of their life. At the same time, in some remote part of the country, someone you have never heard of and will never meet will wish more than anything that they were you. Today is the nadir which will crescendo every hour of every day leading to its zenith — game time, which needs to be sustained throughout the contest. It's your team, it's your school, it's your privilege. Today is the beginning.

You can find Kevin Patrick at every one of the pep rallies, at Schlitzky's Deli, or at Moe's Tavern. He is in his third year of the joint Law/MBA program at Notre Dame. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

When is Enough, Enough?

We all hope that the Generations campaign reaches its stated goals. None of us would do anything to make that task more difficult.

Assume Generations succeeds in raising $190 million for the endowment of undergraduate scholarships (merit and general). The genius(es) investing ND's endowment continue his/her/their brilliant work, but the market levels off. Maybe $190 million will only produce somewhere between $20 - $30 million per year. Heck.

What we don't know is the percentage of that income that will be plowed back into the endowment and what percentage will actually be used for scholarships. Some of us could experience a motivational surge for Generations if the high level bean counters and movers in ND financial affairs shared more of their thinking about the reinvestment/payout trade-off.

How rich do we have to get before we quit reinvesting, say, 95% of the endowment income? Is a need blind admissions policy our goal, or not? When? 2050?

Mission Statement

The Center for Social Concerns provides educational experiences in social concerns inspired by Gospel values and Catholic social teachings. Central to this process is enhancing the spiritual and intellectual awareness of students, faculty, staff, and alumni/ae about today's complex social realities, calling us all to service and action for a more just and humane world.

Welcome...

I hope you enjoy reviewing the opportunities outlined in these pages. The experiential and service-learning involvements have been extremely valuable for students over many years. Alumni/ae in many different careers are continuing to integrate their ND and CSC experiences as they work for a more just and humane world.

Please explore the challenges open to you, and others. Stop in at the Center or give us a call!

EXPERIENTIAL SEMINARS & ACADEMIC COURSES

All courses and the experiential and service-learning seminars listed on this page are developed and coordinated by Center faculty / staff and the Experiential Learning Council. They are offered through these academic departments: Theology, American Studies, Gender Studies, Peace Studies, Government, Psychology and Sociology. Information meetings for the courses will be announced. Contact the Center for more details.

ONE CREDIT COURSES

APPALACHIA SEMINAR

Each Fall and Spring break approximately 120 students travel to the Appalachia region of Kentucky and West Virginia. Students spend the week working side by side with the people of the mountains. Through physical labor and person-to-person contacts, students experience the cultural richness of the area and begin to understand and analyze social forces there.

BORDER ISSUES SEMINAR

Active exploration of the border region between Mexico and the U.S., examining issues of poverty, international challenges and more.

CHURCH AND SOCIAL ACTION

This course includes a 48-hour immersion into the kind of life most Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students seldom see. Over 358 students made an Urban Plunge during early January 1996. The purpose of the course is to experience injustice, apathy and poverty; to increase awareness of people who are working to improve these situations; and to witness and reflect on ways to address Gospel concerns regarding the oppressed.

THEO 362 / SOC 362

CULTURAL DIVERSITY

This seminar explores the rich cultural heritage of Chicago's ethnic neighborhoods and immigrant tradition. The corresponding problems of urban life and racism also are examined during the semester break experience.

ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES SEMINAR

Provides opportunities for students to challenge and deepen their understanding of environmental issues through direct experiential involvements.

HOLY CROSS MISSION SEMINARS: COACHELLA / PHOENIX

These seminars during the January Break build upon the efforts of Congregation of Holy Cross.

L'ARCHE COMMUNITY

This seminar centers on participation over break in the L'Arche Community (founded by Jean Vanier). Students explore issues of disability through active involvement.

LEADERSHIP ISSUES SEMINAR

The Leadership Issues Seminar is designed for students working in a leadership capacity promoting community service or social action.

THEO 369

MEXICO SEMINAR

THEO 366

Provides an international service opportunity through a two week immersion (during the last two weeks of May) in Oaxaca, Mexico.

THEO 368

MIGRANT EXPERIENCES

Offers a unique immersion into the lives of migrant farm workers in Florida during the spring harvest. Students work in the fields, live with migrant families, and assist agencies that serve workers.

THEO 363 / GOVT 496

WASHINGTON SEMINAR

Approximately 22 students travel each semester break to the nation's capital to explore crucial issues of the day from a variety of perspectives. This year's focus is environmental concerns. In Washington, students meet with the decision-makers, members of congress, non-governmental organizations and church leaders. On-campus preparation, on-site experience and follow-up reflection combine to create a unique learning opportunity.

THREE CREDIT COURSES

In addition to the many seminars graded (S/U), there are multidisciplinary courses by Center faculty in various departments. Courses include reading and reflection on issues raised by service experiences and study and analysis of contemporary issues of justice and peace.

The Center sponsors or co-sponsors a variety of creative peace and justice programs throughout the year, including films, panels, invited speakers and performing arts. Each opportunity focuses on an important issue of social concern (e.g., racism, poverty, the environment).

POST-GRADUATE SERVICE OPPORTUNITIES

Workshops, seminars and other meetings enable seniors to consider the integration of service into their chosen careers and/or the advantages of a year or two of volunteer service, e.g., Peace Corps, Holy Cross Associates. Contact Andrea Smith Shappell (631-5293).

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

... include, as resources allow, service-learning trips to the rural south, and to Holy Cross Mission sites in the U.S., Mexico, and Africa. Student leadership plays a key role in developing unique learning opportunities.

THE FACULTY AND CENTER ACTIVITIES

The special focus of our opportunities designed for faculty during the 1997-1998 academic year will be on "service learning" and the ways in which it can be incorporated into courses and research, through one-on-one consultations, a "Service Learning Fair," and visits to Summer Service Program sites in Chicago and South Bend. Faculty will also have the opportunity to participate with students in the Social Concerns Seminar: Appalachia over fall and spring breaks. And this year we begin a research-education relationship with the South Bend Heritage Foundation where the role of faculty will be key.

Faculty are a vital resource to the CSC as well. They serve as facilitators for the course The Church and Social Action ("Urban Plunge"), opening their homes for a one-evening gathering to provide students with an occasion to reflect on and extend their analysis of the city experience. They are speakers for our various cross-listed experiential learning courses, advisors to the service and social action groups, and offer directed readings on related social concerns topics.

Faculty interested in getting involved in any of these opportunities are encouraged to contact Dr. Kathleen Maas Weigert (phone: 631-5319 or e-mail: Kathleen.M.Weigert.2@nd.edu).

Center Associate Director for Academic Affairs and Research, Kathleen Maas Weigert with newest Center Faculty Fellow and Marketing Professor Mike Etzel.

Revisiting Hannibal Lector

By JOSHUA BECK
Accent Film Critic

From the beginning of the film "Manhunter" with its ominous and foreboding music to its inevitable fiery conclusion, the frequent moviegoer is bothered by one question: where has he seen this before? The answer, though somewhat complex, may seem rather simple in nature. The movie, made in 1984 and directed by Michael Mann, was and still remains somewhat unknown, though the premise is readily recognizable to the avid movie fan. The film is based on the book "The Red Dragon," written by Thomas Harris, which deals with the exploits of a maniacal serial killer named Hannibal Lector and the man named Will Graham who painfully brings him to justice. Harris' sequel to "The Red Dragon," following in the footsteps of the first book, was transformed into a big-screen blockbuster which also followed the life of Lector. This movie was entitled "The Silence of the Lambs." While "Manhunter" cannot justly be considered a prequel to the more recent film, the one thread that does connect them is the main character: the cannibalistic killer Hannibal Lector.

Though readily available for rent and for sale, "Manhunter" is still for the most part unknown, and perhaps for good reason. The main attractions that so manipulate moviegoers are unseen in the initial representation of the film. The list of actors, though brimming with impeccable ability, is relatively subtle. The film stars William Petersen as the forensics expert who is forced out of retirement to catch a serial killer known only as the Tooth Fairy because of the bite marks on his victims. Brian Cox is cast as the cunningly manipulative Lector, Dennis Farina as the brutish homicide detective, and Joan Allen as the Tooth Fairy's handicapped love interest. Michael Mann, who has directed some brilliant movies of late with "Heat" and the most recent version of "The Last of the Mohicans," had at that point some minor films. His biggest credit is the long-running television series "Miami Vice." But aside from its obvious lack of big-name actors and an extraordinarily popular director, "Manhunter" did succeed in creating an entirely new genre of film: the analytical crime drama in which the protagonist must endure a truly excruciating process of capturing an insane serial killer.

A particularly absorbing aspect of the film which keeps the viewer riveted is the dualistic nature of the main protagonist, the forensics expert Will Graham. From the beginning, he finds himself drawn into the never-ending labyrinth of the Tooth Fairy's insane mind. To finally locate and capture him, he must not only look at the aftermath of the killings and the evidence left behind, he must become the killer and think like him to figure his next move. He requests the assistance of Hannibal Lector, now locked up in a mental institution, to help him in his quest. Although this particular venture backfires on Graham later in the film, Lector is constantly there to offer clues as to who this killer might be, making Graham realize hidden truths about himself as well as the killer.

While the film is not overflowing with action, the intensity of the scenes and the forcefulness of the music keep the viewer stuck to his seat throughout the film's entirety. Some of the best scenes occur when Graham, played brilliantly by Petersen, sits alone in his hotel room, going over evidence and "talking" to the Tooth Fairy so he can figure out why he does what he does. The surprising element of this film is that it is not so much about the life of Hannibal Lector as it is about the transformation of the weary Graham, who at first is reluctant to help search for the killer but then finds himself becoming more and more involved until he and the culprit are thinking along the same lines. The film is truly an insight into the capabilities and limits of one man to decipher another's psyche and use it to his advantage.

While the film may not seem as striking or as glittering as "The Silence of the Lambs," it certainly achieves its goal of shocking the moviegoer and literally knocking him into the back of his seat as if with invisible hands. This is exhibited in a chilling scene shortly after the beginning of the film when Graham steps into the house which was the Tooth Fairy's last crime scene. Stepping into the bedroom and turning the light on, the bright red blood which stains the bed, the walls, and the floor is readily apparent to the viewer. In a way, it is a symbol of what the movie is all about: Will Graham pursuing an invisible killer, one that is only known by what he leaves behind. In the end, this movie achieves everything that it sets out to accomplish: to introduce the insane Lector, to showcase Graham's slow transformation into what he chases, and to literally spellbind the viewer with its intensity and fast-paced plot.

The acting is enjoyable, particularly that of the sly, smooth-talking Lector as portrayed by Brian Cox. Joan Allen, who recently was nominated for an Academy Award in "The Crucible" and acted in the summer blockbuster "Face/Off," is exceptionally good as the blind love of the Tooth Fairy. Finally, William Petersen himself gives a dazzling performance as the confident yet troubled hero Graham. Michael Mann, beginning a trend of stylistic dramas, showcases his talent in shocking us yet drawing the line in just the right places. Surprisingly, in many ways "Manhunter" is just as good if not better than its sequel, and that above all else should make it a must-see for everyone who enjoys a truly fascinating crime drama.

■ SOAP OPERA UPDATE

General Hospital

By GENEVIEVE MORRILL
Accent General Hospital Correspondent

Welcome back "General Hospital" fans, did you keep up with the trials and tribulations of our "other family" in the Port over the summer holiday? Well let's look in and see what they're all up to, shall we?

Perennial star-crossed lovers Brenda and Sonny finally seem to be headed down the aisle, of course to get there they'll have to climb over the emotionally devastated men and women they've left behind, not to mention all the corpses...what's the body count by now? Sonny fantasizes that Brenda will be shot on their wedding night, and realizes the only way for them to be safe is to disappear. Brenda agrees, but promises not to tell anyone. She plans the wedding, asking Edward to give her away and Ned to be her maid of honor and to buy L&B. Meanwhile Sonny tells Jason there are two options once he and Bren leave: run with them or become the new Godfather... Monica and Alan are going to love that. Jason's response? Kiss the ring, he's in!

Felicia is spending quality time with her grandma in Texas, and considering leaving the girls there so that she can go to Africa and see the love of her life. Well Tom has other ideas and he sends her a "Dear Felicia" letter from Africa. OUCH! Couldn't he at least call? Where's the personal touch? Sending the girls out to play, as she always does, (what a parenting style, go out and play and we'll see ya in six months) Maxie goes to a gully and digs up an artifact. Kid, if you're so bored you're grave robbing, you know it's time to go back to school. When Mac hears how depressed his best buddy is, he hops a plane to Texas to cheer her up.

Prince Hottie, or as his family likes to call him, Nikolas, decides to move back to the island. Both are overjoyed, but shocked and dismayed by Nik's desire to attend a public high school! The horror! But Stefan does reward Kathy with a little tonsil massage and the promise of an intimate evening. When Stefan returns home, George, prompted by Alexis, reveals that there is a way that Kristin and Natasha could have escaped Helena. So who's Natasha, Katharine, Miranda or Alexis?

Nikolas and Sarah grow closer, he even "reads" her mind. Hey Nik, can you figure out what's on my mind? Lucky is incensed that Sarah likes Nikolas, convinced Cassadine has an agenda. He does, they're called hormones. Elizabeth can't image why Sarah likes Nik over Lucky and waits to make trouble. Later she overhears Lucky say the Cassadines killed Steve. A dilemma for the brat: tell Sarah and watch her run into Lucky's scrawny arms or keep quiet and try to win Lucky herself. I wish the Tin Man would take out Elizabeth, Emily, Sarah, Lucky, and Keesha while he's in town.

After she drugged A.J. into a stupor and doused him with vodka, Carly is suddenly overcome by a conscience. She follows him around town begging him not to drink, saying his slip is her fault. Darn right! A.J. on the other hand, is determined to be his own whipping boy. Kinky. Finally after A.J. cries more then most women do at weddings, he decides to leave town for rehab. Carly is thrilled that both her plans worked: A.J.'s a mess and Tony's picking out dates. One problem, Mick the Bartender wants more money.

Now that V's broke, she convinces Mac to let her work at the Outback. There she soon annoys the customers as much as she does me and is fired. Then Jax hires her on a probationary period as his assistant. My God man, are you mad! Where is the take charge, suffer no idiots man of the world we know and love? Have the pod people taken Jax or are the writers on drugs? Stay tuned and hope for the best...

Irish struggle to find net, settle for a tie at Pittsburgh

Defense. While offense wins games, defense wins titles, and if that is true, the Notre Dame men's soccer team has nothing to fear for the upcoming season. Their opening game against Pittsburgh on Friday did not prove to be an auspicious start;

Although they were outshot 8-7, the Irish played extremely tough in the backfield, led by goalie Greg Velho. His past history of playing strong during key situations continued during Friday's game as he saved two out of three consecutive shots on

"Since overtime is a sudden death position, because the game is over if someone scores, a lot of tension is added to the situation," said Velho. "We had good chances to score, but it didn't happen."

Sophomores Matt McNew and

The absences of co-captain Ryan Turner and Bill Savorino, due to team violations, were also felt. Turner is the leading scorer, returning this year after All-American Tony Capasso graduated. As a team, the men have pulled together to compensate for these losses. A deep pool of talent to draw from has helped the team put on a strong showing instead of dwelling on their losses.

and Sinichenko, one of their star players, was out for the game."

By Saturday afternoon, the Irish were on the floor again, facing Oral Roberts, a team who had participated in last year's NCAA Tournament. In a seesaw battle dictated by short rallies and many errors on both sides, Notre Dame took a five set victory over the Eagles, 15-12, 13-15, 16-14, 9-15, 15-9.

ORU held a 14-11 lead in the second game but needed 10 opportunities to even the match. The match took a pivotal turn in the third game when, down 12-14, Notre Dame won four straight points to take a 2-1 lead. In the fifth set, the team regained its concentration and took a quick 8-2 lead. Despite a late ORU rally, the Irish held on to win the game and the match.

"It's still early in the season," Brown remarked about the sloppiness of the gameplay, "and we have a long way to go before we find the right combination."

Only a few hours passed before the team competed yet again, this time against No.18 Wisconsin. The Badgers had pulled off two wins earlier in the weekend, including a four-set victory over Louisville that morning. Despite a strong effort by the home team, the Badgers managed to defeat the Irish, 15-10, 11-15, 15-4, 15-11.

One of the biggest surprises of the match was the return of Jaimie Lee, who had flown back from the World University Games hours beforehand.

Lee entered the arena with Notre Dame trailing in the second game, 4-2 and took some time to go over plays with the coaches before entering the match. On the first play, she could not reach a set from Boylan but moments later got her first kill of the season in the middle of a 9-1 run that eventually evened the match at one game apiece.

"Our plan before the game was not to let her play," Brown said. "But we didn't want to go down without giving it a chance. I pretty much left it up to her to choose."

However, the Badgers erased their thoughts on Lee's arrival and regained their composure, taking the third game convincingly and later pulling away from a 10-10 tie to win the fourth game and the match.

"There were a lot of good things we did and a lot of things we need to work on," Brown said.

"We had some trouble with pass control and we hit for a very low percentage against Wisconsin. We'll have to iron some of these things out."

Wisconsin was led by senior hitter and tournament MVP Amy Lee's 14 kills. Three other players on the Wisconsin squad also had double-digit kills. Harris once again led the Irish offense with 21 kills.

W. Soccer

picked up her second consecutive shutout with one save in the contest.

"Our attack is not quite as smooth as it should be," said Petrucelli. "I don't know if we finish enough of our chances. We're not always going to get 40 chances to score each game."

The Irish travel to Washington to face the Huskies on Friday, the first of four straight road games for the team, before their showdown with North Carolina in the Adidas/Lady Footlocker Classic at Alumni Field on Sept. 19.

Sophomore forward Jenny Streiffer played a key part in the Irish's success this past weekend.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

EUGENIA LAST

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: David Byrne, Alice Bay Laurel, Danny Wood, Patrice Munsel

DEAR EUGENIA: I was born on Aug. 22, 1974, at 10:11 a.m. I went out with a girl for seven years off and on. She is a Leo born on July 25, 1974. We are still great friends, but haven't been sexual for over a year. If she leaves some of her new friends, maybe we could get something started again. We are very comfortable with one another. We broke up because things weren't going too well. I was wondering if we would make a good lifetime pair.

Leo Lovers

DEAR LEO: Lovers Your comparison with your Leo friend is passionate, loving, caring, sexual and all those wonderful things. Unfortunately, since the beginning of the '90s, you have both gone through some pretty rough times. Your chart indicates that you are moving into a period where you want a commitment. Without her time of birth, I can't tell you if she is in the same frame of mind. You do make a very good lifetime couple. However, you are both still facing some uncertainties. I feel that you are both moving through a period of re-evaluation. You have to be friends before you can be lovers, and with that in mind, I suggest that you let your relationship unfold as it may. As for her friends, they could be a problem. Keep in mind that you match up well to the signs Aries, Sagittarius and Aquarius as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Romantic partners may cost you dearly. Don't try to impress others by being flamboyant or dramatic. Creative endeavors will turn out as planned. Don't partake in joint-money ventures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your lover may take drastic measures to get your attention. Don't overreact or allow your temper to explode.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get together with friends or relatives. Travel will be beneficial. Self-improvement projects will bring favorable results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Help those less fortunate than you and rewards will follow. Older members of your family may need your advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't blow situations out of proportion. Your tendency to overspend on items for your home will cause friction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You will take things the wrong way at an emotional level. Problems with in-laws or noisy relatives may get your dander up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't overspend on club memberships. Fund-raising events will cost more than you can afford.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Although you may have difficulties with your emotional partner, you can make major accomplishments if you put in overtime.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel and family outings will be enjoyable. However, be sure not to overspend on entertainment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will overspend if you go shopping. Investments will not be sound. Children may cause friction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your emotions will be unstable. Think twice before you say something you'll regret later.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Employers may overreact. Be aware that empty promises may result if you don't get agreements in writing.

Born Today: You'll have some pretty amazing ideas this year, but you'll have to get some sound financial advice if you don't want to go over budget. You can make ends meet if you're willing to do the work yourself. This won't be a restful year if you really want to get ahead.

VOLLEYBALL

Irish take second in Shamrock

By BILL HART
Sports Writer

Last season, the Notre Dame's volleyball team managed to win its second consecutive Big East title despite difficult opponents and key injuries. This year, all eyes are on the Irish to repeat their past success. With a little help from seasoned veterans and new faces, the team proved they are ready for the challenge as they took second place in the fourth annual Shamrock Invitational.

Notre Dame started its season off Friday against Louisville, a strong rival who advanced to the Sweet 16 last year. Through a strong team effort, the Irish decisively crushed the Cardinals 15-3, 15-3, 10-15, 15-10.

Notre Dame took control of the match from the beginning, making an 8-1 run in the first game before the Cardinals were forced to call a timeout. After a marathon third game that went to Louisville, the Irish came back to win the fourth set and the match. Down 7-10, the momentum swiftly changed when freshman Denise Boylan served six straight points, assisted by four kills and a block from senior Angie Harris, to take the fourth game.

"I was really excited when I was picked to be a starter," Boylan said, "I was nervous all day on Friday, but once I got out on the court, I was ready to play."

Boylan, the first freshman since 1988 to start as the team's primary setter, had 51 assists in her college debut, along with three aces and four kills.

Both teams played without one of their usual starters, with senior hitter Jaimie Lee playing for the U.S. national team in the World University Games in Italy, while Louisville sophomore Marina Sinichenko was serving the first match of an NCAA suspension that will last until the midpoint of the season. With the victory, the Irish avenged a five-game loss last year at the Joyce Center in the championship match of the Big Four Classic. "Louisville definitely did not look as strong as they did last year," head coach Debbie Brown said. "They had lost four starters to graduation, Senior Angie Harris contributed to Notre Dame's successful weekend.

Notre Dame's women's soccer team showed its depth and domination in two games this weekend, outscoring Big East rival St. John's 7-0 on Friday, and Big Ten foe Michigan State 6-0 Sunday afternoon.

The two-time defending Big East champions outshot the Red Storm 41-2, as seven different Irish players found the back of the net in the season-opener.

Junior Shannon Boxx opened the scoring for Notre Dame (2-0), heading in a loose ball from seven yards out, just 8:13 into the contest. Boxx and senior co-captain Kate Sobrero assisted on the game's second goal, the first career goal for freshman Monica Gonzalez.

Jenny Heft closed out the first half scoring with a header into the right corner from two yards out.

Sobrero, a three-time All-American defender, recorded four assists in the two games, just one short of her 1996 season total of five.

"The balls I played were not that great," said Sobrero. "It's just that [my teammates] are amazing players."

In the second half, freshman Meotis Erikson slipped a feed from Sobrero past St. John's goalie Sherry Reill for her first career goal.

"We couldn't have won either game without the freshmen," said head coach Chris Petrucelli. "But it's not just our freshmen. You could see the older players coming out and stepping it up. That's the strength of our team, our depth."

"For me, it's been pretty easy because of my experience," said freshman Anne Makinen. "And the team is great."

Jenny Streiffer knocked in a pass on the line from Gonzalez, increasing the Irish lead to 5-0. Makinen showed flashes of brilliance, as she drilled in her first career goal in a blue and gold jersey off a pass from Jen Grubb.

Notre Dame closed out the scoring at 89:04, on a Jean McGregor goal that found the right corner of the net off a feed from Iris Lancaster.

"[The freshmen] did awesome," said Sobrero. "You can't even tell they are freshmen. They had to step into huge roles, and they did."

The Irish outshot Michigan State 44-2 in Sunday's lopsided victory, marking the 28th straight win over Big Ten opponents for Notre Dame women's soccer teams, dating back to a 3-0 loss to the Spartans on Sept. 22, 1989.

Despite controlling the ball and taking nine shots in the first 18 minutes, Notre Dame did not record a goal until 18:59, when Streiffer volleyed in a loose ball from five yards out. Makinen added her second goal of the weekend on a blast that ricocheted off the left post and found the back of the net, giving the Irish a 2-0 advantage. Boxx's shot at 44:04 put the Irish up 3-0 at the half and gave senior co-captain Holly Manthei, the women's career and single-season assist leader, her first assist of the 1997 season.

Manthei, who recorded three assists on the day, picked up another in the second half on a cross to Heft, whose header at 47:06 made it 4-0. Heft chipped a Makinen feed over goalkeeper Sara Kloosterman's outstretched arms from 10 yards out.

Boxx closed out the scoring, rifling a shot into the upper right corner from 35 yards.
