Bush recognizes Baltics' independence

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush, after choreographing his move with Mikhail Gorbachev, on Monday formally recognized the independence of the Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, which were seized by the Soviet Union a half century ago.

Bush said his decision did not signify that the United States would necessarily recognize other republics that break away from the Soviet Union. He said he would look at each declaration of independence on a case by case basis.

And he expressed hope that a central government would survive as "a strong partner, a convincing partner to deal with" on matters such as foreign policy and arms control.

Although Gorbachev has lost much of his power, Bush said he would continue to deal with the Soviet president "with respect and with a certain degree of recognition that we look at some of these problems, foreign policy problems, eye to eye."

Bush announced recognition of the Baltic states at a Labor Day news conference on the final day of his 29-day vacation at his ocean-front estate. "We've had a good rest up here," said Bush, looking tanned and relaxed while jokingly complaining about not catching any fish.

The president hailed news from Moscow that Gorbachev and the leaders of 10 Soviet republics had decided to replace the current ruling structure with a new government giving far more power to the republics.

"This is a watershed in Soviet political thinking, equal to the dramatic movements toward democracy and market economies that we are witnessing in the republics themselves," Bush said.

His move drew mixed reactions at home.

Pastor Vilis Varsbergs, president of Latvian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America in Chicago, said many parishioners reacted mildly to the news, saying recognition should have come sooner.

"We feel great but it's sort of anticlimactic," said Varsbergs, whose church has some 25,000 members in North and South America. "Why should the U.S. be the last one to do it after more than 30 others. Bush follows suit after everyone else."

"Chills were running down the spines of Latvians all over the world when the coup began Aug. 19," said Lalita Muizniece, director of Latvian studies at Western Michigan University. "I would say that Latvians by nature are quite capable of learning. Despite 50 years of oppression, with people telling them what to do and when to do it, they'll start again and do very well."

The establishment of diplomatic relations with the Baltics was no surprise because the United States has made clear for a week that it would do so.

However, the delay in announcing U.S. recognition became something of a mystery as the United States stayed on the sidelines while dozens of other countries acted.

An administration official said Bush decided to recognize the see BALTICS / page 7

Lennon appointed as assistant vice president by University

By DAVID KINNEY
Associate News Editor

Chuck Lennon, the executive director of the Notre Dame Alumni Association, said that his recent appointment as an assistant vice president of the University is recognition of the many hard-working people in the association.

As a result, the alumni association is, for the first time, part of the University officer structure, he said. To Lennon, this means that the association will be able "to do what we do even better," such as serving the alumni and communities around the nation.

He said that the appointment is an example of the leadership style of University President Father Edward Malloy and Professor William Sexton, director of University Relations. They've "allowed us to move with great vigor and enthusiasm in the area of alumni continuing education and community service work," he said.

Lennon graduated from Notre Dame in 1961, after lettering in baseball for three years and rising to president of his class. In 1962, he earned a master's degree from the University and went on to serve as assistant basketball and baseball coach for five years.

For almost 10 years he has served as executive director of the alumni association, "the greatest job in the world," he said. The association has since garnered a national reputation for innovative programming and its move toward public service.

Notre Dame, with 210 local clubs, 16 international groups and 92,000 members, has the largest alumni association in the world, he said.

Lennon pointed out that the association plays an important educational, social, and religious role in the life of a Notre Dame student. "Your education does not stop when you get your degree," he said.

Jerry Lewis raises $45 million in annual Labor Day telethon despite controversy

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Comedian Jerry Lewis joined other celebrities and muscular dystrophy victims in coaxing a record $45,071,857 out of viewers during his 26th annual Labor Day telethon.

Pledges to the 2 1/2-hour show, which ended Monday afternoon, surpassed last year's record tote of $44,172,186 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The telethon drew some pickets in Las Vegas, Los Angeles and Denver, but Lewis won accolades from those appearing on the annual show.

The studio audience at the host Sahara Hotel tossed confetti into the air and cheered as the tote board went over last year's record. Lewis cheered again and shot a fist into the air when a second tote, minutes later, pushed the total over $45 million.

Lewis sang his staple song, "You'll Never Walk Alone," and wiped tears from his eyes as he walked from the stage.

Earlier, actor Jameson Parker fought back tears as his daughter, 6-year-old Katherine, who suffers from a sometimes fatal form of muscular dystrophy, told Lewis: "Thank you for letting me smile."

Parker, star of the old CBS television series, "Simon and Simon," said he was grieving in his kitchen one night shortly after he learned of his daughter's illness when Lewis called to offer sympathy and support.

"He's given hope to millions of people who had no hope," Parker said.

Singer Maureen McGovern said her niece contracted a neuromuscular disease the previous year.

"If you think muscular dystrophy can't strike your family, think again," she said. "I never dreamed I would be thanking MDA for helping my family."

Two former MDA poster children, Cris Matthews and Mike Ervin, recently announced a national campaign to boycott the telethon until Lewis is removed as host and the appeal is changed. Matthews has said they want to change the telethon "but not discourage donations to MDA."

In Denver, about 25 disabled activists protested in front of the local telethon headquarters. They yelled, "Free Jerry's kids! Tune out the telethon."

Laura Hershey, a spokeswoman for the group and another former MDA poster child, said people with disabilities have long protested for such goals as better access to public buildings and transportation.

"But our biggest problem is dealing with people's attitudes," Hershey said. "We are now part as equals of society and we believe this telethon still emphasizes our helplessness, our pitifulness and, by application, our uselessness to society."

Six protesters, including one young man in a wheelchair, demonstrated outside the show in Las Vegas. And in Los Angeles, seven demonstrators showed up in wheelchairs at a local telethon headquarters.

A lesson in Dixie for those from the North

Hi, y'all! Today my roommate threatened to flush the toilet non-stop when I next take a shower if I publicly discuss Northern and Southern dialects or in any way connect her with this communication battle. Sorry, Angie.

Anna Marie Tabor

I've kept my mouth shut about this for a year too long, and it is high time a brave Belle educated her northern counterparts. With some amount of confidence, I think I can assume many Southe'nuhs at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame have endured the same criticism and torture as I have. The Northerners have a way of destroying our heritage by moving "you guys" in on our "y'all."

When I arrived at Saint Mary's last year as a freshman, the hardest transition was not being able to understand anyone. Angie, who is from Minnesota, and I could communicate only when we were both equipped with translations in notebooks.

Different dialects were not the only problems I had with my rapid-tongued friends. We eventually had to accept that we will never resolve the coke, soda, or pop and pantyhose, nylons, or stockings arguments.

A week ago, I met a freshman from New Jersey who claimed he was having similar experiences. The very important difference between our stories, though, is that he is one of the ones who gets to do the picking on. Mike pointed out that I do not say "chocolate," "talk," or any other word with a vowel in it properly.

Since we Southe'nuhs are vastly outnumbered, we have had to learn to understand that "quata" means twenty-five cents and "oat" is another way of saying "out." It's time to educate the Yankee. I borrowed these words from a piece called "Goobers, Oakree, and Good Ole Boys" and took a few definitive liberties of my own. Hint: Your pronunciation will be better if you practice while barefoot, in a pair of overalls, on a front porch.

Prisoner swap questions surface

■BEIRUT, Lebanon — The fundamentalist Palestinian group Hamas said Monday that it holds Israeli soldier Ilan Saadon and wants him included in any U.N.-sponsored prisoners swap with Israel. Saadon, 18, was kidnapped in 1989 and last seen hitchhiking in southern Israel. The army announced he was killed, but no body was found. Israel has always blamed Hamas for his disappearance. Hamas, or Zeal, is involved in the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip that began in December 1987. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told Israel radio on Monday, "There is no negotiation with Hamas and I have no clear information of such a development." Israel has seven other servicemen missing in Lebanon and demands accurate information about their fate as a precondition for a prisoners swap.

Destruction of waste may improve

■WASHINGTON — With opposition growing to landfills and incinerators — especially for hazardous wastes — researchers say new technology could prove to be an appealing alternative. The process, called supercritical water oxidation, can break down any organic compound. You filter out possibly dangerous heavy metals from the waste stream, and what's left is harmless. It can even be resold or released without damaging the environment. "It's an extraordinarily attractive and economic solution to some vexing problems," said Earnest Gloyna, professor of engineering at the University of Texas at Austin. But governments and investors have been wary. "We're looking the idea over. It has the potential to destroy sewage in astronomical amounts," said Ben Benjamin, deputy director of Detroit's water and sewage department. "But until you run a full-scale test on it, you can't be 100 percent sure."

SMC student council makes plans for year

By JENNIFER HABRYCH
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Lecture series, charity events and the celebration of the Sisters of the Holy Cross sesquicentennial are just a few of the plans in the works by the Saint Mary's student Board of Governance (BOG) for the new academic year.

One of the new programs announced by the Student Academic Council (SAC) at its meeting Monday is the departmental open houses in which students can learn about the departments they are interested in and meet with the professors in these disciplines.

SAC also plans to continue the Life of the Mind lecture series starting September 16 at 7:30 p.m. with Tom Presi and a lecture titled "Brooklyn Bridges."

BOG announced that the newly developed Volunteer Center will be working with the national program "Into the Streets." This will allow students to volunteer in the South Bend and Mishawaka community, and possibly sponsor some events on campus. This program, in connection with the YMCA and United Way, is to kick-off Nov. 1.

Also, this year BOG is working closely with campus security. A video on date rape was shown during Orientation, and there are plans to issue rape whistles and mace to students upon request.

Saint Mary's Recycles officially begins a recycling program on Sept. 10. An informational meeting will be held Sept. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in Regina North. Plans are in the works to begin collecting glass, paper, and plastic and installing outside recycling containers.

A new lecture series titled "Opportunities In..." will begin Sept. 11. The program will involve women in the community discussing their jobs, issues in the work-place and their outside role in the community.

An open forum for BOG will be held Wednesday, Sept. 18 at 7:00 p.m. in the Haggard Parlor. All members of the student body are welcome.

Bush denounces AIDS protests

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush defended his administration's approach to the AIDS crisis Monday and urged "behavioral change" to halt the spread of the disease.

"Here's a disease where you can control its spread by your own personal behavior. You can't do that in cancer," Bush said on the morning after 1,500 AIDS activists staged a "die-in" on the road near his vacation home.

He complained the ACT-UP protest disrupted business in his "ancestral home," where a few local merchants shut down "on the best weekend possible."

Sunday's march by ACT-UP — the AIDS Coalition to Unleash

Power — was noisy but orderly, with no arrests. The group has disrupted Bush speeches in the past.

"What was the message?" Bush asked.

He said he opposes federal funding of clean-needle exchanges — one of the demonstrators' demands — and wants "the most efficient and effective research possible" on AIDS, which already has claimed 114,000 American lives. The virus is transmitted through contaminated blood or body fluids. Most victims are homosexuals or intravenous drug abusers.

Bush said the $4 billion AIDS research, prevention and treatment budget was "far more" on a per capita basis than the government spends fighting cancer and heart disease.

"I'm in favor of behavioral change," he said. "Here's a disease where you can control its spread by your own personal behavior. You can't do that in cancer. You can't — well, to some degree some might argue you can in heart disease, if you run and stay fit."

Bush made no mention of cigarette smoking, which the surgeon general and other federal health officials blame for hundreds of thousands of deaths each year from cancer, heart disease and other ailments.

A White House official, asked why Bush cited personal behavior and AIDS, said, "Because it's sexually transmitted. ... Nine out of ten doctors in America will support the president's position on this medically right down the line."

Dennis Lyons, an activist with ACT UP's Maine branch, said of Bush's behavior remarks: "I think he's implying a value judgment against people who happen to be gay."

"He talks about behavioral change, but he has yet to institute a national AIDS education awareness program for school children. Until he does that, kids are growing up in schools without being taught anything about safe sex," said Lyons, a graphic designer from Portland, Maine. "That's where AIDS education has to begin."

Bush said that if the marchers' message was "compassion, I got it loud and clear."

alumni association that "cultivate a lifelong relationship" between students and the University. Lennon pointed out that the association tries to establish a relationship with students from the first day of classes onward.

"We have a motto here," he said. "Alumni don't interrupt our business; they are our business. That's what we're all about."

Lennon said that the ND Alumni Association is unique because it is not only attempts to serve alumni, but also runs a number of programs aimed at benefiting local communities.

For example, the alumni association and the Center for Social Concerns sponsor 115 summer service projects for ND students each year, he said. Students work with alumni at homeless shelters, children's hospitals, and other service institutions, and in return, the local alumni organizations give the students $1400 scholarships.

The association also offers continuing education seminars via satellite. One such seminar, a live-interactive teleconference on emotional and educational development of preschoolers, will take place this November, according to Lennon. It could potentially reach 11 million people across the nation.

Fighting erupts in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — New fighting broke out in Croatia on Monday, testing a truce brokered hours before by the European Community.

Initial reports said fighting lessened across Croatia soon after leaders of the federal government and Yugoslavia's six republics signed the latest peace plan mediated by the EC. But within hours intense shooting was reported in Petrinja, south of Zagreb, Croatia's capital.

Clashes also were reported elsewhere in the republic, where Croatian militia are fighting ethnic Serbs and federal armed forces.

Federal army officer Zoran Djodjevic said three people were killed and a fourth was wounded in an attack on a military base in Petrinja. Croatian officials and news media claimed tanks fired indiscriminately at civilians.

There was no independent confirmation. Associated Press reporter Tony Smith, among a group of reporters visiting the Petrinja base under fire, saw nine tanks leave for the town.

Three tanks returned five hours later, one of their crews dragging a checkerboard Croatian flag through the dust.

At least one man died and four were injured in fighting elsewhere in Croatia, which has been convulsed with violence since just after its June 25 declaration of independence. More than 300 people have been killed in the fighting. About 70 others were killed earlier in neighboring Slovenia, which also declared independence.

Previous truce accords for Croatia have collapsed, and Petrinja was an inferno of gunfire hours after the latest accord was signed Monday.

After a grenade fell outside an army base above the town, the air was filled with the rattle of machine-gun fire, the thud of mortars and the screech of multiple-rocket launchers.

The army claimed the Croats fired first, but reporters at the scene were unable to confirm this.

The new peace plan provides for foreign cease-fire observers, a five-member arbitration panel and a peace conference to settle the crisis. It also calls for disarming some Croatian forces and Serb militants.

Its endorsement by Yugoslavia's collective federal presidency and the feuding leaders of the six republics raised hopes a way could be found to end the war.

But deep differences stemming from historical rivalry between the Orthodox Serbs and Roman Catholic Croats remain.

Many of Croatia's 600,000 Serbs, 12 percent of the republic's population, are unwilling to be part of an independent Croatia. Hatreds are fanned by memories of hundreds of thousands of Serbs slaughtered in death camps run by Croatia's Nazi puppet government in World War II. Serb monarchist guerrillas killed thousands of Croats during the same period.

Croatia accuses Serbia, the largest Yugoslav republic, of instigating the fighting to expand its territory. The Croats also say the Serb-dominated army is helping the Serbian guerrillas, a charge denied by the military but one that is gaining currency in Western capitals.

Vasil Tupurkovski, the federal presidency member from the southern republic of Macedonia, said the peace conference was expected after Sept. 9. The talks are to be held in the Netherlands.

Gorbachev proposes shift in Kremlin power

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail Gorbachev and heads of 10 Soviet republics won resounding support from parliament leaders Monday to shift most Kremlin power to the republics and create a loose federation of sovereign, equal states.

A troika formed by Gorbachev, Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin and Kazakhstan President Nursultan Nazarbayev caught hard-line lawmakers off guard at the opening of the Congress of People's Deputies by proposing to transform the government of the Soviet Union.

Although there was no formal vote on the proposal from the 1,900-member Congress, it won key procedural votes by overwhelming margins.

"Let's speak frankly," said Sergei Alexeyev, chairman of the Constitution Oversight Committee. "Our union was not simply on the verge of collapse, but already in a state of collapse. We're in the state similar to that in Yugoslavia."

To preserve the country, Gorbachev and the other leaders proposed an interim government, consisting of three councils, that would give far more power to the 10 republics that endorsed it and strip the central government of most functions beyond defense and foreign affairs.

The plan apparently would grant independence to the five republics that did not endorse it — the three Baltic states, Moldavia and Georgia — although that issue has not been fully resolved.

On Monday, the United States formally recognized the independence of the Baltic states. President Bush said diplomatic ties would be established immediately with Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Under the proposal put forth Monday, which must be approved by the 1,900-member Congress, Gorbachev and republic leaders would negotiate a new Union Treaty reconstituting the Soviet Union.

In the interim, the country would be run three councils: a Council of Representatives of People's Deputies, consisting of 20 lawmakers from each participating republic; a State Council made up of the Soviet president and leaders from the republics; and an inter-republic economic council, consisting of republic representatives.

The proposals include establishment of a union of sovereign states in which each republic will be able to define its participation. They also call for all republics to cooperate economically and step up radical market reforms.

Congress was also asked to support asking the United Nations to recognize each sovereign republic and to consider the question of their U.N. membership.

The proposals won the support of radical reformers such as former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and former Gorbachev adviser Alexander Yakovlev.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev faces great pressure from both the Baltic republics who want to break away and from hard-line government officials who want them to stay.

Baltic states' citizens hail recognition

VILNIUS, Lithuania (AP) — Baltic residents hailed U.S. diplomatic recognition Monday as the final, overdue affirmation of their independence and called on Mikhail Gorbachev to follow suit.

"The process of diplomatic recognition of Lithuania has reached its culmination," Lithuanian Vice President Bronislovas Kuzmickas said. "And I feel we can now consider the struggle for our independence to have been, in essence, won."

But the mood was almost anti-climatic across the Baltics. "Of course, we are happy to hear it, but we expected it so we're taking it calmly," said 51-year-old Paul Purga, a musician in Estonia's capital, Tallinn.

People went about their business as usual in Vilnius. Inside the Lithuanian parliament building, office workers and journalists gathered around a television to watch President Bush announce that the United States was formally recognizing the independence of the Baltic states.

"I'm very happy," said office worker Aurika Lingyte. "And I will also be happy when Gorbachev announces recognition."

In Latvia, President Anatoly Gorbunovs said U.S. recognition "emphasizes the irreversibility of the steps taken" by his republic.

Lutherans vote down anti-abortion platform

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The nation's largest Lutheran denomination Monday rejected a move to condemn all abortions except to save the mother's life. Some delegates chafed over a Catholic cardinal's letter aimed at swaying their vote.

Members of the 5.2-million-member body also refused to declare that life begins at conception, and they kept working to shape a less stringent anti-abortion policy.

In floor debate, the assembly of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America gave scant attention to New York Roman Catholic Cardinal John O'Connor's missive urging them to take a bold stand to protect "the unborn."

But in interviews, some delegates objected to the letter's timing and called it unprecedented for a Catholic plea to be interjected into debate by Lutherans, named for 16th-century Protestant reformer Martin Luther who led the break from the Catholic church.

"I know of no parallel," said Father William Rusch, the denomination's ecumenical officer. He said such consultation properly could have come earlier and doubted it would have much effect at this point.

Bishop David Brown of Waverly, Iowa, called it "very inappropriate."

O'Connor's letter, partially read on the floor by a Lutheran delegate, expressed hope the church would defend human life "in all stages and conditions."

The letter said abortion "is chiefly a question that puts to the test the theological and moral integrity of the Christian community."

O'Connor made his appeal in a letter to St. Paul, Minn., delegate Paul Hasbargen, one of a group of Minnesota clergy and lay people who had offered the amendment to condemn abortion except to save a mother's life.

Their proposal was pushed as a substitute for one developed through church-wide hearings that calls abortion an "option of last resort" and would condone it only in limited circumstances.

Those circumstances include when the mother's life is threatened, when a fetus is so deformed it would live only a short time, and in cases of rape or incest.

"Beyond these circumstances, we as a church disagree on what conditions, if any, make abortion a morally responsible act," the statement said.

Boston cops announce major drug bust

BOSTON (AP) — Federal officials on Monday stood in front of bales of cocaine stacked like cordwood and announced a cocaine bust that netted 4,822 pounds of the drug worth $500 million on the street.

Eleven people in Massachusetts and Florida were charged, and 10 arrested, in the third major cocaine bust in the Boston area since June.

U.S. Attorney Wayne Budd said almost 5 tons of cocaine worth $1 billion had been seized since June.

"It's much more difficult to calculate the harm, the danger, the destruction this cocaine would have had on the thousands of people it was destined for," said Budd, who called a special Labor Day news conference to display the money and cocaine.

Budd said the cocaine, which federal undercover agents acquired Aug. 7, was "in pure, uncut form." Investigators also seized $450,000 in cash, $173,750 in checks and five vehicles.

The defendants were charged with conspiracy to possess cocaine with intent to distribute. If convicted they face up to life in prison and fines up to $4 million, Budd said.

Two of the men arrested were from Colombia; the others were from New York City, Miami and Massachusetts. U.S. Magistrate Judge Joyce London ordered the suspects held pending a federal court hearing Tuesday.

On June 15, investigators in Peabody seized 3,300 pounds of cocaine, worth $175 million, and $500,000 in cash. Four men were arrested. Two days earlier, FBI agents arrested 14 people and seized 1,353 pounds of cocaine in Middleborough.

Law enforcement officials say they are combating dealers' tactic of shipping drugs through New England and eastern Canada rather than Florida and the Mexican border.

"Either (drug dealers) didn't get the message or they underestimated our resolve," said Robert Czujak, special agent in charge of the U.S. Customs Service in Boston. "Big mistake for them."

Milwaukee set to open Afro-centric inner-city school

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The three Rs will take a twist this year at a school in Milwaukee's inner-city where the curriculum is geared toward the special educational, social and emotional needs of black children, especially boys.

But the enrollment of 560 students at Victor Berger Elementary School is half female, said Principal Josephine Mosley. "The curriculum is focused on African-American males, but we will do the same for the females that we do for the males," Mosley said. "The needs of female students are just as great as male and everything we do here is good for all kids, regardless of sex or race." The school is in a black neighborhood where most of the pupils live, she said.

Other immersion programs have been developed in Baltimore and Detroit, and have been discussed in San Diego, Miami, Washington, D.C., and New York. Detroit, where 90 percent of public schools students are black, sought to open three all-male public schools for inner-city blacks, but a judge ruled last month that the restriction was unconstitutional and that girls also must be allowed to enroll.

Baltics' freedom last Tuesday after meeting with foreign policy advisers and Robert Strauss, his new ambassador to Moscow. Bush sent a cable to Gorbachev last Tuesday night alerting him of the impending announcement but expressing hope that the Soviet Union would act on its own first to grant independence. Yet, the cable said in effect that "time is running out" and the United States would act by Friday, the official said, speaking on condition of anonymity. On Friday, a member of Gorbachev's personal staff called the White House and pleaded for more delay. The aide told Ed Hewitt, the senior Soviet specialist on the National Security staff, that "they needed more time, that the (Soviet) Parliament had not acted. President Gorbachev was still considering the situation, could they have more time before we announced it," the official said. After checking with Bush, Hewitt called back and said the president would wait until Monday. On Sunday, Bush received a cable from Gorbachev, thanking the president for his support throughout the Soviet crises and saying that things were under control.

But Gorbachev's message made no mention of the Baltics or their independence. "So we went ahead with today's recognition," the official said. Gorbachev, however, did indicate in a Sunday interview on Cable News Network that the Baltic states were free to leave the union if they wished. In delaying action, Bush had hoped that Soviet authorities would clear up disputes on over the Baltics' boundaries and border security as well as political issues. "Those concerns are all still there," the official said. "The president just felt that at this point we'd given them every opportunity, that we might as well go ahead with the recognition and we'll just have to deal with these."

Lewis touched on the controversy as he kicked off the telethon. "I've never used the terms 'disabled' and 'handicapped,'" Lewis said. "Please, I'm begging for survival," he said. "I want my kids alive. ... I don't ask you to pity them. I'm asking you to keep them alive." Protesters also complained that the telethon's overhead is too high. But Jerald Friedman, president of the MDA's Los Angeles chapter, said independent audits show the association has one of the lowest overhead costs of five top charities. Lewis has raised some $570.7 million from the telethon that bears his name. Corporate contributions, not included in the telethon totes, have pushed the total past $1 billion.

Germans seize Libyan-bound machines

BONN, Germany (AP) — Investigators seized machinery bound for Libya at Hamburg harbor and were trying to determine if it was intended to help Moammar Gadhafi build rockets, officials said Monday.

German authorities stressed there was no indication the company, Fritz Werner, was guilty of wrongdoing and the company itself denied the charges.

The machinery — an industrial oven and a fiber-wrapping machine — was to be shipped on a Libya-registered freighter, said Hans-Josef Blumensatt, chief prosecutor in Wiesbaden.

The offices of Fritz Werner, owner of the shipment, also were searched and documents confiscated after the machinery was seized July 16, Blumensatt said.

Officials at Fritz Werner, which is based in Geisenheim, near Wiesbaden, declared their innocence in a statement later Monday.

"At no time did Fritz Werner make deliveries — directly or indirectly — in Libya to the arms industry," the statement said.

It said Fritz Werner has been doing business for years with the "Central Repair Workshop" in Tripoli, filling orders for replacement parts for vehicles, machines and electric motors.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Athletes' arrests show the local police's whimsical character

Dear Editor:

Change the slogan on their squad cars. Once again, South Bend's finest put their best foot forward and stuck the other foot in their mouth — or firmly up some other orifice.

Arrested the night of August 30 for public intoxication and disorderly conduct were three people at a party being held near the campus of the University of Notre Dame. According to various estimates, there were between 500 and 600 people at that party, but only three arrests. Of these, two were Notre Dame football players: quarterback Rick Mirer and linebacker Demetrius DuBose.

At the time of his arrest, DuBose was outside talking to a friend. Mirer, who was on the telephone in a nearby apartment, was told what was happening and came out to ask police why DuBose was being taken away. He, then, was arrested on the spot.

Because neither had had a drink within two hours prior to their arrest, both Mirer and DuBose requested a Breathalyzer test. But police denied them their request. Why? Because, according to the South Bend Tribune, police admitted that they didn't think either was drunk, that they noticed no unusual behavior in either one, and that neither smelled of alcohol.

So what's the problem? I, too, drank no alcohol that night. Why wasn't I arrested? Mirer and DuBose claim they were singled out because they happen to be football players. Well, they happen to be right. Mirer also claims he overheard one officer say that "if he had enough handcuffs, he'd arrest the whole damn team." Case closed.

According to Ron Marciniak, that fine, upstanding bastion of humanity and current South Bend police chief, it is not necessary, at least as he claims to understand current police department procedure, to first administer a Breathalyzer test before making an arrest for public intoxication. Here, on the untamed frontier of northern Indiana, it appears that one can be arrested and charged with public intoxication merely on a police department whim and with no other substantiation.

Why should we take their word for it? And where, in this instance, the disorderly conduct charge came from remains a mystery even to the police.

Should Mirer and DuBose choose to take advantage of the situation, they both could very easily walk away from this thing rather wealthy young men by suing for wrongful arrest and defamation of character. I hope they do. And just whom would you believe: two good-looking, articulate, thoughtful young men who just happen to be national celebrities with national reputations, supported by the other 597 people at that party who know full well and who have already stated publicly that they were neither drunk nor disorderly; or a parade of police officers, none of whom could agree on the same story, supported, no doubt, by some right-wing dolt who swaggers into the courtroom with a Bible in his hand and his fly open, claiming to represent the best interests of South Bend, Indiana — home of the Kitty Kat Lounge?

This latest incident is not an isolated case. Many times has the South Bend Police Department stuck its dirty nose where it clearly didn't belong. Why do they have this deep-seated obsession (let alone the time) to hunt down students guilty of nothing more than talking to each other?

Just because the police are not themselves intelligent enough to be admitted into the University of Notre Dame, popular enough to be invited to their parties, or talented enough to play major college football does not mean they should vent their jealousies against those who are.

If the police really wants to provide a public service, or "To Serve and Protect" as they like to boast, let them begin by solving a few murders or preventing a few break-ins, rather than harassing and arresting innocent kids.

It can often be a fine line between enforcing the law and breaking it. Sometimes, it's a little easier to discern. Which, after all, is the real crime: public officials destroying a young man's reputation on nothing more than a whim, or a college football player not drinking a beer?

Student involvement contributes to community spirit

Dear Editor:

The growing incidents of violent crime in our community has marred the beginning of this academic year. It seems to me that we must address the problem in ways that will make our community more safe for everyone who lives in it.

The problem of crime is extremely complex. There is no easy way to prevent crime or to insure that one will not be a victim.

One of the most insidious by-products of increased crime is the growing sense of fear that pervades the community. It seems to me that one way to deal with this problem is to work actively at making our community a safer and better place to live.

I would suggest that one way to do this is by contributing some of our time to programs that serve the disadvantaged members of our community. This approach addresses some of the ills that breed crime, while it allows us to know our neighbors better and let them know us.

By becoming involved in the neighborhoods of South Bend, we declare that we stand with the people of the community in their efforts to make this a better, safer place to live.

We no longer seem like foreigners who have no investment in what happens here. At the same time, our growing knowledge of our surroundings makes them less frightening and unknown to us.

If you are interested in becoming involved in the South Bend community, in contributing to the efforts of the residents of the neighborhoods of South Bend to make this a better place to live, then come to Activities Night, this evening at the JACC from 7-10 p.m.

Over thirty organizations and agencies that serve the local community will be represented there. You can learn what services are being offered and how you can help. We can make a difference.

'Boyz' depicts bittersweet triumph

It would have been easy for me to attack the first movie I reviewed this year. It would have given me the reputation as a tough or at least discerning film critic.

However, "Boyz n the Hood" is a film too important to be used as an example.

This movie, the story of young blacks growing up in south-central Los Angeles from the mid eighties to the present, is an unforgiving, harsh look at the problems in black society.

On top of this, it contains some very professional and convincing acting. The combination of good cinema and social relevance make this movie far too good to miss.

The movie begins when Tre Styles, the protagonist played by Cuba Gooding, Jr., is 11 years old. He moves with his father to a black neighborhood that is rough but close-knit.

He falls into an ambiguous crowd

Elizabeth Hayes

Observer Film Critic

including some no-goods and some kids with real promise. At this point some intriguing foreshadowing of the events that will happen to them all in the next seven years takes place.

The story unfolds slowly, making frequent stops to address almost every major black social issue from single-parent families to issues of housing and the plight of the black athlete.

"Boyz n the Hood" takes every opportunity to get up on a soapbox about the problems facing today's black communities.

As well it should. I have never seen a film that puts the black urban community under such close scrutiny.

Writer and director John Singleton has shown many sides of it, from the drug-dealing "hoods" that terrorize its streets to the care and concern that even the teenagers have for their neighbors.

The black neighborhood portrayed in this movie is a real community, where people are not just neighbors but a family, with all the attendant familial regard and fighting that takes place in an actual family.

And in the end, Tre's triumph is bittersweet rather than sappy, because he is the only one of the "boyz" who makes it out of the cycle of poverty and despair.

Ice Cube, the popular rap artist, plays "Doughboy," a tough and dramatic teenager who vacillates daily between trying to do the right thing and succumbing to the fate that his environment and his disparaging mother have placed upon him.

He displays an impressive range of emotions, and stands as a powerful and realistic image of the young American black.

It can be argued that this movie bites off more than it can chew. It is a small film that addresses the most gigantic of social issues. Perhaps its well intentioned naivete is what makes it so convincing.

This kind of true dedication to a purpose is so seldom found in modern cinema that it gives this movie a stature that other films of its kind have not achieved.

Athena answers the plight of confused ND students

Concerned students from all around campus have expressed their concerns over a wide array of topics.

I consulted Athena, goddess of wisdom for her deep insight on these matters. Athena is a professed ND alum.

Dear Athena,

I am so nervous about my upcoming SYR. How should I go about getting a date for it?
Lou Zehr
Flanner Hall

Lou Zehr,

Domers employ many different methods in getting YR dates, or any dates for that matter:

a. Scope one out in the dining hall. When the moment is right—just "accidentally" bump into her (being careful not to cause her to drop her tray), and ask her.

b. Utilize your "dogbook." Be careful not to be shallow and base this crucial decision on looks alone.

Look for unique hobbies such as spear fishing, safari's, or bookbinding and steer away from the "people, conversation, talking" types.

Aren't those three of the most basic necessary human skills? You would hope that everyone has already acquired them?

c. Since you live in an air-conditioned dorm, simply wait for another ghastly hot day, call a girl from South quad and invite her to your cool abode. If that does not get you a date—you are hopeless indeed.

Dear Athena,

Is it true that no one is allowed to walk on the grass on campus?

Tyred C. Mentwalker
Pasquerilla West

Tyred C. Mentwalker,

Absolutely, positively true. ND grass is sacred territory, much like the Dome and the Grotto.

The University employs snipers with up to a half-mile range, who gun down anyone seen trespassing on the green grass.

To cut down on this expense, the University is highly considering becoming an all cement campus.

Dear Athena,

I am a freshman male. I really have no clue as to what goes on in a football game. Can you help me out with some of the most basic terms?

Cloo Less
Alumni Hall

Dear Cloo Less,

We'll start with the most simplistic and basic concepts.

Touchdown—when one of the players with the gold helmets runs, or receives the football in an end zone.

End Zone—the place on either end of the field with no numbers. A big tip-off is the goalpost located at the end of it.

Goal post—the thing in the

Jeanne Blasi

From the Playpen

end zone that looks like a fork without the center prong. You may see a kicker try to kick a football through it.

Football—if you cannot figure this one out, stick to tailgating and just cheer when everyone else does.

Dear Athena,

What happens if I decide to break parietals and keep a guy in my room overnight?

Dee Fiant
Walsh Hall

Dee Fiant,

A dangerous proposition indeed. At the designated hour, if the boy is not out of your room, an alarm goes off.

When this is not heeded, helicopters with search lights encircle the dorm looking for the prospective sinners screaming "you are a flower of Mary, keep your virtue intact!" through their bullhorns.

Finally, if the chastity patrol does not get you, God will—thunder resounds as the sky lights up with the word "Sinners" with a gigantic arrow of lightning pointing to your room.

Dear Athena

Is it OK to have a boyfriend

as a freshman?

Ty Down
Lewis

Ty Down,
One? How about four or five?

Dear Athena,

What should I wear to my first SYR? I am kind of scrawny and want to look more muscular.

W. E. Zell
Zahm

W. E. Zell,

The official "Real ND Man" handbook in the chapter entitled "Looking Huge" calls for a navy blue blazer, striped or paisley tie, khaki or plaid pants, and standard loafers.

Unfortunately, this look is prescribed for every other section of the book also.

Dear Athena,

I'd like some advice on preventing the "freshman 15" from accumulating on my early freshman year figure.

Constance Leed Rinken
Anonymous male dorm

Constance Leed Rinken,

If you're going to drink, you are going to gain. So live your life as you will, suck it in, and deal with it.

Dear Athena,

What do I do if my SYR date ditches me at the dance when I think the date is going well? I've heard it happens to everyone at least once.

Ditch E. Dagain
Morrissey Manor

Ditch E. Dagain,

Unfortunately this "ditchitis" is not linked to being a freshman, but occurs to ND men of every age (and women also).

If your "scoping techniques" are solid and you use good judgement, this calamity should never happen to you. People most likely to get "ditched" on a date are those who:

1. Use the dogbook pictures as their sole source of choosing a date.
2. May be too aggressive or not aggressive enough.
3. Choose a date who's a real
4. Are themselves real

Carefully consider each of the possibilities before deciding the real problem.

Dear Athena,

What do I do if I get an 'F'?
Vera Stressed
Lyons Hall

Dear Vera Stressed,

1. Hire a hit man and kill your professor.
2. Run away and join a monastery and live a life of peace and solitude.
3. Transfer to Miami.
4. Suck it up and deal with it.

I hope Athena's advice quells your concerns.

Thomas shines in Jets' new offensive scheme

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The collection of names was impressive, a potential who's who of the NFL. Keith McCants. Cortez Kennedy. Junior Seau.

For a team with a suspect defense, any of those players might have been a savior. The Jets had a shot at all of them in the 1990 draft.

They never hesitated when they made the second overall choice that April. They went for Blair Thomas.

On Sunday, in the 1991 season-opener, Thomas showed why a team relatively deep in the backfield and struggling nearly everywhere else would pick a runner.

Thomas, healthy and comfortable in Bruce Coslet's system, ran a career high 23 times for 92 yards. He had little support from the offensive line on many of those rushes.

But even when he was on his own, Thomas made progress. Several times, he seemed trapped in the backfield; twice, in fact, by McCants, now a defensive lineman for Tampa Bay. Nearly every time, Thomas sneaked through.

"We designed a lot of plays for him and he came through," Coslet said. "He's got great cutback ability. He's got speed to sweep, he can come out of the backfield to be a pass receiver. He can do it all. I compare him very favorably with James Brooks."

When Coslet was an assistant coach at Cincinnati, the versatile Brooks helped the Bengals get to a Super Bowl. Nobody is putting that kind of pressure on Thomas just yet, but Sunday's game made it clear who the focal point of the attack should be.

"I loved it," Thomas said of his heavy workload. "It got me into the game, got me into the team plan, got me into a groove."

"I just want to go out and play football. That's what the Jets drafted me for; that's what they pay me for."

The Jets paid him handsomely after a preseason holdout last summer. That holdout slowed his progress, then a series of injuries nearly halted it.

Florida State earns another top ranking

By NIKKI WELLMANN
Sports Writer

Editor's Note—This poll was taken before USC's loss to Memphis State Monday night.

Florida State captured the pole position in this year's first National Collegiate Sports-writers' Poll conducted Monday evening.

The Seminoles accumulated 22 first-place votes and 667 points after crushing Brigham Young 44-28 in their season opener. Florida State edged out idle Michigan, which finished with 610 points. 27 schools participated in this week's poll.

Miami settled in third place with 583 points after its solid 38-3 victory over Arkansas, while Penn State's performance against Georgia Tech—a season-opening 34-22 victory—earned it the fourth position with 559 points.

Notre Dame was the seventh best team in the country according to the pollsters. The 505 points the Irish received put them close behind no. five Washington and no. six Florida.

Also in action last weekend, no. nine Houston thrashed Louisiana Tech 73-3 as the Cougars' Heisman candidate, David Klingler, launched nine touchdown passes. Houston and Miami face each other in two weeks.

Notre Dame will face two of the top five teams (Michigan and Penn State) and five of the top 20 teams in the poll.

Three Clemson defensive linemen suspended

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Three Clemson football players have been suspended from Saturday's game against Appalachian State for three separate violations of team rules, coach Ken Hatfield said Monday.

Arthur Bussie Jr., David Davis and Pierre Wilson, all defensive linemen, will practice with the team this week but won't dress out or play in Saturday's game, Ford said.

Bussie moved from outside linebacker to defensive tackle this fall, and has been listed in the starter's slot during the preseason due to injuries to returning starter Chester McGlockton.

McGlockton is scheduled to return to practice this week after missing two weeks due to a knee sprain.

Wilson is listed at the same defensive tackle slot, while Davis is the Tigers' second-team middle guard.

Ford did not say what rules Davis and Wilson are accused of breaking.

But Bussie, from Camden, N.J., was charged with assault after a scuffle with a university housing official over the weekend.

Colts in disarray after succumbing to Pats

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A day after losing to the worst team in the NFL, the Colts looked in the mirror and still felt queasy.

"It doesn't seem any better today," coach Ron Meyer said after Monday's practice. "We've been there before, unfortunately. No one likes it."

Least of all disgruntled fans, who've waited in vain for the Colts to win their first season opener since moving from Baltimore in 1984. The team's opening day losing streak is the longest in the NFL.

"Frustrating — that word dominates the scene around this community," Meyer said.

The latest setback was a 16-7 loss Sunday to the Patriots, who ended their reign as the NFL's worst team after 14 straight losses.

They may have passed that dubious distinction to Indianapolis, which is trying to avoid a repeat of last season's slow start when the Colts dropped three straight after losing all four of their exhibition games.

"We've just got to get a lot better," Meyer said. "It boils down to being able to make and execute a given play at a given time."

"The problem with us is we don't execute as well as we should. That's the bottom line," said Bill Brooks, who caught four passes for 89 yards and the team's only touchdown.

Even Dean Biasucci broke down. The most accurate kicker in Colts' history with a career mark of 74 percent, missed four field goal attempts.

"This whole team needs to get some confidence and get it rolling. We're just having a hard time getting started," said Biasucci, who missed attempts of 44, 52 and 42 yards in addition to having a 48-yard attempt blocked.

Biasucci said that what the Colts currently lack can't be found in playbooks or game films.

"It comes down to the things you don't see on paper," he said. "It's believing in yourselves and confidence."

Those intangibles are developed over time, said tackle Bubba Paris, who was brought in from the 49ers to shore up the Colts' shaky offensive line.

More doctors recommend extra-strength HP.

More and more PhDs across the country are recommending Hewlett-Packard financial and scientific calculators to their students. And for some very strong reasons.

"The HP 48SX Scientific Expandable has powerful graphics tools that are remarkably helpful to students learning mathematical concepts. And with the equation solver feature, it's excellent for applying mathematics to engineering," according to Dr. William Rahmeyer, a professor of civil and environmental engineering at Utah State University.

"The HP Business Consultant II has an equation solver and extensive math functions. These free the students from computational tedium so they can think and interact on a higher level," says Dr. Lee V. Stiff, a professor of math education at North Carolina State University.

So go check out the HP calculator line at your college bookstore or HP retailer. You'll agree, there's no faster relief from the pain of tough problems.

Haarhuis becomes a celebrity in homeland

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Haarhuis, the man who beat Boris Becker, isn't heading home to the Netherlands anytime soon. He won his fourth-round match against Carl-Uwe Steeb 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 to reach his first-ever Grand Slam quarterfinal.

The No. 45-ranked Haarhuis' previous Grand Slam best was the fourth round of the 1989 U.S. Open — the year he beat John McEnroe in the second round.

Is Haarhuis making headlines back home because of his Becker victory?

"I don't know, I wasn't there," Haarhuis said. "I talked to my dad only briefly. He called here and watched on TV. He was very happy for me...I don't know if it was big news."

How do you celebrate pulling off a big upset over the No. 1-ranked player in the world?

"Some friends said 'Let us meet together for dinner'," Haarhuis said. "So we kind of had dinner with eight or nine people. But nothing more than that...because it is not the end of the week. There is a next match coming."

Haarhuis admitted it was difficult to focus on his next match after his victory over Becker. He was happy, however, with the way he played against Steeb.

Haarhuis is the first Dutchman to get to a U.S. Open quarterfinal round since Tom Okker. Okker was the runner-up at this event in 1968 and a semifinalist in 1971.

Sandstrom's goal leads Swedes to victory

MONTREAL — Tomas Sandstrom sent the once-mighty Soviets reeling with one blast that put Sweden back into contention Monday at the Canada Cup tournament.

The Los Angeles Kings' winger caught the inside post with a shot at 16:06 of the third period that killed a Soviet comeback and gave Sweden a 3-2 victory at the Forum.

"The goalie (Mikhail Shtalenkov) was standing at the far post so I had to hit the short side," Sandstrom said. "The shot wasn't that hard but I wanted to get it on the net and force him to make a save."

"Both teams lost the other night so this was a big game for both of us."

Defenseman Calle Johansson flattened Sergei Lomakin on a Soviet rush and Thomas Steen picked up the loose puck and sent Sandstrom in alone on the counterattack.

Mats Sundin scored in the first period and set up a goal by center Thomas Rundqvist in the second for Sweden.

The Soviets swarmed in the third, outshooting Sweden 15-4, and tied the game on goals from Alexei Zhamnov and Alexander Semak before Sandstrom broke their backs with the game-winner. The Soviets held a 30-15 shot advantage in the game.

The young Soviet squad, beaten 5-2 by Czechoslovakia to open the tournament last Saturday, dropped to 0-2 in the round-robin portion of the six-team tournament.

Connors celebrates 39th in styleOvercomes Krickstein in five sets; Sampras advances

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors, all heart and guts and daring shots, turned his 39th birthday celebration into a coronation in the U.S. Open with another incredible comeback that sent him into the quarterfinals.

Connors roared back to win the final two sets against Aaron Krickstein on Monday, capping it with a 7-4 romp in the fifth-set tiebreaker, in the longest match of the Open this year — 4 hours, 42 minutes of tension and brilliance.

The final backhand volley into an open court ended the 3-6, 7-6 (10-8), 1-6, 6-3, 7-6 (7-4) duel and brought bows from the frenzied crowd of nearly 20,000 and a second serenade of "Happy Birthday."

"It was a war," Connors said. "I was lucky enough to win. John McEnroe said it after I beat Patrick, 'It's a Connors miracle right here.' This is what I live for — to win a match 7-6 in the fifth."

Krickstein, 15 years younger and just as exhausted, played with a blister on his right hand, but didn't use it as an excuse.

"I can't say it cost me the match," he said. "He hit some great shots. I can't make any excuses. Normally I have a lot of crowd support in New York. But Jimmy's a legend, a great player. I understand that."

Connors, the consummate competitor, refused to quit just as adamantly as he had when he fought back from two sets down to beat Patrick McEnroe in the first round.

This time, though, Connors was playing an even tougher opponent, a human backboard who kept pounding baseline shots back and trying to run Connors into retirement. It was a hopeless cause.

Connors, a wild card ranked No. 174 after coming back from 14 months off because of a wrist injury, continues to amaze fans and younger rivals with his tenacious play.

In other action, defending U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras, showing impeccable timing, is back at the peak of his game and in the quarterfinals of the tournament he wants to stamp as his own.

Sampras overcame a hot start by hard-serving David Wheaton, a Wimbledon semifinalist, to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 Monday and prove that his 10 months of injuries and embarrassing losses after winning here last year had come to an end.

He moved as fluidly on the court against Wheaton as he did a year ago in beating Ivan Lendl, John McEnroe and Andre Agassi in the final three matches to become at 19 the youngest men's winner in U.S. Open history.

All that was lacking was the pinpoint accuracy and consistent 125 mph speed of his serves that he showed then. Sampras chose, instead, to slice and angle his serves a bit more, taking a little pace off them, but still came up with 19 aces against Wheaton.

Wheaton didn't feel he tired so much as he simply lost the momentum when Sampras solved his serve and broke him in the third game of the second set.

"In the first set I dictated play," Wheaton said. "Then in the middle of the second set I lost my serve once and he got a little momentum. In the fourth set, I was one break too far behind to come back."

Sampras is finally over the shin splints that bothered him for most of the past year, but he harbors doubts that he'll reach the level of play he showed in taking apart Agassi in the final last September.

"It's going to be tough to duplicate how I played against Agassi," he said. "But I'm feeling good, I'm healthy and I'm confident, so things are looking good."

He's reduced his practice time and his running regimen and has come to terms with the burdens that come with the benefits of being a U.S. Open champion. Now he feels he's a better player overall, with more experience, more maturity and more confidence.

"Last year I was not really (considered) a contender here," he said. "I was just working my way through the ranks. A lot of people are expecting me to do well now."

In another men's fourth-round match, Paul Haarhuis followed up his upset of top-ranked Boris Becker by beating another German, Carl-Uwe Steeb 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Martina Navratilova, knocked out in the fourth round last year, reached the quarters by beating Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere 7-6 (7-5), 1-6, 6-2. Navratilova, seeded No. 6, will next play fourth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, who beat Natalia Zvereva 6-3, 7-6 (7-4).

Snyder leads Jays to win; Bo debuts with White Sox

TORONTO (AP) — Joe Carter opened the 12th inning with a triple off the glove of right fielder Chito Martinez and scored on Cory Snyder's single as the Blue Jays beat the Orioles 5-4 Monday for their seventh victory in nine games.

Carter, who struck out with a runner on second to end the ninth, led off the 12th with drive that glanced off Martinez's glove in the corner. Snyder followed with a single down the left-field line off Gregg Olson (3-5).

Mike Timlin (10-6) pitched one perfect inning for the victory.

Kelly Gruber hit a solo home run in the eighth that gave the Blue Jays a tie at four. Gruber's 15th homer came with one out off Todd Frohwirth.

White Sox 5, Royals 1

CHICAGO — Bo Jackson went hitless in his return to the majors, but still helped Roberto Hernandez win his big league debut as the White Sox beat the Royals.

The crowd of 37,187 came mostly to see Jackson, who went 0-for-3 with a sacrifice fly in his first game since sustaining a hip injury in the NFL playoffs last January. The fans saw a much better game from Hernandez, who held Kansas City hitless for six innings and wound up pitching one-hit ball for seven innings.

Frank Thomas hit his 30th home run and Dan Pasqua also connected for Chicago. Jackson, though, was the slugger in the spotlight.

In the sixth, Jackson hit a routine fly ball to medium-deep center against Luis Aquino (6-3). He batted again in the eighth against Mark Davis with the bases loaded, and hit a 3-1 pitch on a line to center field for a sacrifice fly and Chicago's final run.

Tigers 12, Mariners 5

SEATTLE — Cecil Fielder took over the major league lead with his 37th home run and Lou Whitaker and Tony Phillips also homered in the Tigers' victory over the Mariners.

Bill Gullickson (17-7) tied Scott Erickson and Tom Glavine for most victories in the majors as Detroit stayed 2 1/2 games behind Toronto in the AL East. The Mariners lost their fourth in a row and for the 10th time in 13 games.

Fielder hit a three-run homer in the fifth for a 6-2 edge. He broke a tie with Jose Canseco for the home run lead and connected off Rich DeLucia (11-9), who has given up 27 homers, tops in the league.

Expos 4, Braves 3

MONTREAL — Atlanta lost its third straight game as Andres Galarraga hit a two-run homer and Bill Sampen pitched six strong innings for Montreal to beat the Braves and Tom Glavine 4-3 Monday.

Sampen (7-4), pitching because Dennis Martinez has a lower back strain, gave up four hits in only his fifth start of the year and his first since April 28. Mel Rojas pitched two innings and Barry Jones struggled to get the last three outs.

The Braves rallied in the ninth off Jones as Otis Nixon hit a two-run triple and Jeff Treadway singled him home. But Terry Pendleton hit into a double play to end the game.

Glavine, (17-9), the major-league leader in wins, gave up five hits and struck out 10 for his ninth complete.

Astros 3, Mets 0

NEW YORK — Rookies Ryan Bowen, Rob Mallicoat and Al Osuna combined on a six-hitter to lead Houston past New York.

Bowen (4-2) allowed five singles and four walks in 6 1-3 innings before Mallicoat came on to stop a rally in the seventh. Osuna got his 10th save with two innings of one-hit relief as the Astros snapped the Mets' three-game winning streak.

Frank Viola fell to 12-13 and third baseman Howard Johnson made two costly errors, giving him 29 for the season.

Toronto's Kelly Gruber hit a game-tying home run in the eighth inning against Baltimore yesterday afternoon. Cory Snyder's RBI single in the 12th inning won the game for the Blue Jays 5-4. AP Photo

Giants sneak past 49ers 16-14

Bahr's last-second field goal gives Handley win in debut

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J. (AP) — Matt Bahr, who beat the 49ers in the NFC title game last season, did it again Monday night with a 35-yard field goal with five seconds left for a 16-14 win in a matchup of the past two Super Bowl winners.

Bahr's kick, which capped a drive that started with 4:40 left at the Giants 22, ended the 49ers 19-game road winning streak and made a winner of Ray Handley in his coaching debut. He had taken over in May when Bill Parcells resigned.

It was the third straight defensive struggle between the rivals from the East and West coasts. The Giants have won two, despite scoring only one touchdown in the three games.

The 49ers had gone ahead 1:23 into the final period on a 5-yard rollout by Steve Young.

The Giants then reached the 49ers 34, from where a 51-yard field goal try by Bahr was just short.

The Giants took over again and Jeff Hostetler, who completed 17 of 31 passes for 228 yards and ran five times for 45 more in his first game since beating out Phil Simms as the starter, began to move the team.

The key plays were Hostetler's 14-yard connection to Stephen Baker, a 5-yard, third-down run by Ottis Anderson and an 8-yard run on a pitchout on third-and-5 by Dave Meggett.

On third-and-10 from the 37, Hostetler connected with Mark Ingram, who put the Giants well within Bahr's range. They then ran the clock down before the winning kick.

Young completed 12 of 22 passes for 162 yards filling in for the injured Joe Montana.

With the Giants leading 13-7 late in the third quarter, Charles Haley broke in on Hostetler on a third down play and knocked the ball loose. Hostetler recovered, but he was back at the 10. That forced a 32-yard punt by Sean Landeta that set the Niners up at the Giants 42.

Six plays later, Young hit Brent Jones for 13 yards to the 5, and the quarterback then rolled left into the end zone as guard Guy McIntyre took down the Giants' Lawrence Taylor, the only man who had a chance to stop him.

Young also had a 73-yard first-quarter touchdown pass to Jerry Rice, but the Giants dominated most of the first three quarters. Hostetler scrambled and passed them to a 1-yard TD run by Anderson and 35- and 28-yard field goals by Bahr.

The Giants scored on their first possession on Bahr's 35-yard field goal.

An illegal-hands-to-the-face call on the Giants' Mike Fox negated a sack by Taylor at the San Francisco 8 and Young got new life. Six plays later, he hit Rice between Myron Guyton and Greg Jackson for the 73-yard play that made it 7-3.

A 25-yard scramble by Hostetler and a 16-yard pass to Howard Cross set up Anderson's 1-yard TD, breaking the Giants' scoring drought and providing a 10-7 lead 4:56 into the second quarter.

Bahr's 28-yard field goal at the gun made it 13-7 at half-time. It was set up by a 47-yard connection between Hostetler and Baker.

U.S. track team reasserts its global dominance in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Track and field, the blue ribbon sport of the Olympics, was becoming black and blue, the result of some big-name athletes getting caught using drugs and a stagnation in world records.

The eight-day World Championships, which ended Sunday, produced world records in three of the glamour events and gave the sport a tremendous boost heading into next year's Barcelona Olympics.

The meet also showed a rejuvenated U.S. team — the complete opposite of the second-string team that performed so poorly in last month's Pan American Games.

Although the Soviets led in overall medals 28-26, the United States showed surprising strength in events in which it had been declining in recent years.

For example, the Americans got two medals in the high jump — a gold by Charles Austin and a bronze by Hollis Conway — for the first time in a major championship since 1968, when Dick Fosbury and Ed Caruthers finished 1-2 in the Mexico City Olympics.

And they won the decathlon — with Dan O'Brien setting an American record of 8,812 points, the third-highest total ever — for the first time in a major championship since 1976, when Bruce Jenner set the U.S. record of 8,634 at the Montreal Olympics.

Unquestionably, however, Carl Lewis was the star of the finest World Championships ever, although he was outdueling by countryman Mike Powell in the greatest long jump competition ever. Powell obliterated Bob Beamon's world record of 29 feet, 2 1/2 inches, set in the high altitude of Mexico City at the 1968 Olympics, with a historic leap of 29-4 1/2.

Lewis, chasing Beamon's hallowed mark and the 29-foot barrier for 10 years, had three jumps of 29-0 or better and another of 28-11 3/4.

He also led a 1-2-3 U.S. sweep in the 100 meters with a world-record time of 9.86 and anchored the American team to a world-record time of 37.50 in the 400-meter relay.

... considerations

A group of Notre Dame students spent a whole lot of time this past summer digging two big holes in the lawns around the Old College and the Log Chapel, down by St. Mary's lake. It's the place where the University began and I guess they were looking for artifacts—arrowheads and old pennies and the like— for clues that would somehow help us all to better understand Notre Dame in its beginnings.

I'm not sure, but I got the impression from the sidelines that they didn't really find too much. And now that they have put back the soil and covered it with new sod and watered like crazy in standard Notre Dame fashion, you can't even tell that they ever tried anything at all out there on that pretty little hill.

The other day the secretaries in the Administration Building all started wearing gold pins with "150 years" printed on them. One lady told me "we've spent so much money on all this stuff already, it would be better if we just built a few houses for the poor instead and forgot all the rest of it."

I wasn't sure whether to quickly agree or not. I like the idea of searching for our beginnings. I think we need more inspiration for all of our efforts here, more focus for our gifts, more purpose to our work.

When Basil Moreau, the founder of the Congregation of Holy Cross, sent Fr. Sorin to Indiana to start this school of ours, he reminded him that "...our life does not belong to us, but to God who wishes that we live for his glory and his works."

Let's hope that after all the conferences and the fireworks and the assorted sesquicentennial diggings into our past, we will be able to see some mark on this campus and have a clearer understanding of the founding vision of this university. Perhaps taking the hint from that wise lady working under the Dome, we will find ourselves more focused on the needs of the poor.

Irish baseball prepares for fall season with three freshmen ready to step in

By ANTHONY KING
Assistant Sports Editor

The secret is out. Yes, Virginia, there is a great baseball team at Notre Dame. But the real story is the brilliant future on the not so distant horizon for this year's team.

After compiling an incredible 45-16 record last year, the Irish look poised to improve upon this record with a strong returning team and a group of talented freshmen.

Last year was a very successful season, marking the third consecutive 40-win season for the Irish. The Irish finished up in the polls a strong 22nd, despite being snubbed for the post-season NCAA tournament. Over the past three years the Irish have managed to rack up an incredible record of 129-47-1, which puts them in the top 5 in Division I college baseball for the last three years.

This, however, is a new Irish team that has been working through the summer to improve upon last year's successes. Junior Pat Leahy pitched in the Cape Cod League this summer, doing well enough to be named to the Top 10 pro prospect list as published by Baseball America.

Junior outfielder Eric Danapilis was one of the 38 players invited to tryout for the Pan American Games this summer. Unfortunately, injuries slowed Danapilis, and he returned to summer school after 10 days.

Coach Pat Murphy is excited

about the upcoming season, and he has plenty to be ecstatic about. Captain Joe Binkiewicz, a GTE Academic All-American last year, returns after a scalding season with the lumber last spring. The other captains for the '92 season are Craig Counsel and Cory Mee.

Murphy also has a group of impressive freshmen that should make an impact this season. Steve Verduzco of San Jose, California turned down a professional contract with the Phillies and a scholarship to Stanford to come to Notre Dame. The young shortstop batted .355 with 26 stolen bases last season, and figures to see some action this season.

Pitchers Craig Allen of Franklin, Kentucky and Tim Kraus of Cincinnati, Ohio join the Irish after spectacular high school careers. Kraus was drafted by the Giants and Paul Falia, the backup quarterback for the Irish, was drafted by the Royals organization. Other freshmen notables are Bob LiSanti of Chicago, Craig DeSenor, and local Dan Adams.

"They are unbelievably good kids," commented Murphy. "They are very talented, but they are freshmen. They'll have to make the adjustments to become Notre Dame baseball players."

They also are a very talented academic group. Six of the ten recruits had a four point GPA in high school, and all ten had above a 3.5.

Coach Gary Tuck, a former Yankee, and a manager on the Double A level, joins the Irish coaching staff this year. Tuck served over 10 years in the majors and was an assistant at Arizona State, and should be a positive edition for the Irish.

The 1992 schedule provides the usual difficult road of top teams to challenge the talented Irish. The Irish face difficult road series against baseball powers like Arizona State, Miami (Fla), and the College Baseball classic in the Seattle Kingdome. Their goal is not modest, however.

"We want to win the national championship," said an excited Murphy. "We want to be on the mound in Omaha."

Questions abound as gridiron battles begin

Yes, it's football season again, time to put aside thoughts of innings, base hits, and summer and turn to quarters, touchdowns and autumn-unless you're from a town where a team is still in the pennant chase.

But for most of us, the World Series is in the distant future, and more immediate questions arise, such as ...

Could we have any more conclusive proof that Georgia Tech's dream season was just that: a dream?

And how about Ty Detmer? Somehow, I expected more from a returning Heisman Trophy winner.

Where exactly will Florida State stumble in its schedule? The Seminoles face their usual murderers' row, including games at Michigan, Louisiana State, Louisville, and Florida, as well as home dates with Syracuse and Miami. It's virtually impossible nowadays to go undefeated and untied—the last team to do it was Notre Dame in 1988—and Florida State doesn't have the greatest track record as number one.

Is Houston for real? Okay, so David Klingler went wild against the likes of Louisiana Tech, but how will he do against Miami (Fla.) September 12th?

And likewise, are the Hurricanes for real? Beating up on Arkansas is one thing, but that matchup with the Cougars in two weeks looms to be a huge measuring stick for both teams.

If the charges against Mirer and DuBose stick (which is a big if), what does that do for Notre Dame's chances this season?

And it's not just the college ranks that are full of unanswered questions. For instance ...

How will Steve Young handle the transition from top NFL understudy to top dog for the San Francisco 49ers?

How many bad passes will it take for New York Giants coach Ray Handley to pull Jeff Hostetler and stick in Phil Simms?

How long will it be before some NFL team gets penalized for excessive celebration after a touchdown-and have that penalty cost them in a game? And how long after that will these silly rules survive?

How well will teams adjust to Buffalo's no-huddle offensive scheme? Considering that a number of teams are implementing it into their offenses, it may not provide the Bills quite the advantage it did last season.

And finally, how quickly will New England be eliminated from the AFC East title hunt?

Stay tuned. The answers are forthcoming.

Memphis State stuns USC 24-10

17-point underdogs hold Trojans scoreless in second half

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Keith Benton threw two touchdown passes in the second half, rallying Memphis State to a stunning 24-10 victory over 16th-ranked Southern Cal on Monday.

The Tigers outscored Southern Cal 21-0 in the second half in the season opener which marked the first football meeting ever between the schools.

The Tigers, 4-6-1 last season and 17-point underdogs against the Trojans, 8-4-1 in 1990, scored two touchdowns in a span of 1 minute, 12 seconds of the fourth quarter to pull away from a 10-10 tie.

Benton threw a 4-yard scoring pass to Jeff Bynum on third-and-goal to give the Tigers a 17-10 lead 4:03 into the final period.

On the kickoff following that 97-yard, 8-minute, 20-second Tiger scoring drive, Jeff Buffaloe's soft kick landed between Southern Cal players and bounced backward and the Tigers' Rod Brown recovered at the Trojan 18.

Three plays later, Xavier Crawford scored on a 2-yard run to give Memphis State a 14-point pad.

The Tigers drew into a 10-10 tie on a 40-yard scoring pass from Benton to Russell Jones 5:55 into the second half.

Jones broke free behind the Southern Cal secondary and Benton, under pressure from the rush, threw a high pass that Jones was able to run under in the end zone.

Chuck Stobart

Cole Ford put the Trojans ahead 10-3 with a 29-yard field goal late in the second quarter, shortly after he had missed from 42 yards.

Reggie Perry, a sophomore who inherited the Southern Cal quarterback job when Todd Marinovich turned pro after his sophomore season, gave the Trojans a 7-3 lead when he scored on a 20-yard run off an option play early in the second quarter.

Joe Allison's 45-yard field goal for the Tigers was the only scoring in the first quarter, as Memphis State's defense stopped Perry for no gain on fourth-and-3 at the Tiger 27 on the Trojans' first possession.

Memphis State's defense shut down the Southern Cal offense almost completely in the second half, as Perry, who had taken just three collegiate snaps and had never thrown a pass in a game, was unable to generate any offense.

The Trojan ground game bogged down after tailback Mazio Royster suffered a knee sprain in the second quarter and was unable to play in the second half. Royster gained 97 yards on 20 carries in the first half.

His replacement, Deon Strother, was held to 38 yards on eight carries in the second half.

The Trojans also hurt themselves with penalties, including a holding call that wiped out a 100-yard kickoff return by Curtis Conway with the game tied 10-10.

Benton, a senior, completed nine of 18 passes for 134 yards and was not intercepted. Crawford gained 55 yards on 10 carries.

Perry hit 13 of 23 for 155 yards, with one interception, and also rushed 15 times for 60 yards.

The Tigers are coached by Chuck Stobart, a former assistant under Larry Smith at Southern Cal.
