House sustained Bush's veto to lift abortion 'gag rule'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Tuesday sustained President Bush's veto earlier in the day of a bill that would have lifted his ban of federally financed abortion counseling. Democrats had thought they had the muscle to override Bush for the first time, but fell a dozen votes short.

The outcome left Bush with a perfect 24-0 record for making his vetoes stick, and was a blow to House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., who convened the override debate immediately after the president's action with a prediction that "We have the votes" on the hotly disputed abortion issue.

But Foley didn't; the 276-156 tally was a dozen short of the two-thirds necessary.

Foley, in a rare speech on the House floor, condemned the veto as motivated by "a mistaken principle."

At stake was an overall $205 billion spending bill for education, labor and health programs. But the fight was centered on a provision that would block for one year the Bush administration's rule banning abortion counseling at federally supported family planning clinics.

That provision has been attacked as a "gag rule" by critics who say it shackles doctors and prevents pregnant women from obtaining information pertinent to their right of choice.

Supporters did not have the two-thirds override strength in the last House vote on the measure, either — when it was approved 272-156.

The bill had cleared the Senate 72-25, more than the two-thirds veto-proof majority, earlier this month.

"The president ought to feel pretty good about this," said

Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., a leading anti-abortion lawmaker. "This was an issue where it was very hard for us to demand party loyalty. ... This was a tough one."

Fifty-three Republicans and one independent joined 222 Democrats in voting to override the president. Forty-three Democrats voted with 113 Republicans to sustain.

"What happened was the White House worked very, very hard," said Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., chairman of the House Democratic Caucus. "I think the president loses on this. I don't think the American public agrees with him."

In vetoing the bill, Bush contended he was not trying to restrict counseling for pregnant women.

He pointed to a memo he sent to Louis Sullivan, the secretary of Health and Human Services, which he said "makes clear that there is no 'gag rule' to interfere with the doctor-patient relationship. I have directed that in implementing these regulations, nothing prevents a woman from receiving complete medical information about her condition from a physician."

Democrats denounced Bush's veto in strong terms and said that in vetoing the measure, Bush was jeopardizing the bill's spending for major health and education programs. Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., called the veto

War crimes committed by Saddam, said Beres

By JOHN CONNORTON
News Writer

Although the war in the Persian Gulf is officially over, the issue of war crimes remains unresolved, according to Louis Rene Beres.

Despite President Bush's statement in March 1991 that "Saddam Hussein and all those with him are accountable" for war crimes, the Iraqi President remains in firm control of his country and, as many maintain, continues to commit genocide against Iraq's Kurdish population.

Beres, professor of political science and international law at Purdue University, spoke yesterday at the Hesburgh Center for International Studies about the possibilities for prosecuting the criminals of grievous war crimes that occurred during the Persian Gulf War.

Iraqi war crimes include inhuman treatment of coalition prisoners of war, barbarous and unjustified assaults against Kuwait, the calculated murder of Kuwaiti citizens and aggression against non-combatants Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Saddam has also been accused of committing genocide against the Kurds "before, during and after the invasion," Beres said.

The difficulties in prosecuting Gulf War war criminals have been compounded by the United States' fear of the geopolitical costs such prosecution might cause, Beres said. He added that the U.S. fears strengthening Iran, Iraq's principal rival in the Middle East, and is hesitant to alienate other Arab nations.

Another difficulty involved in any such prosecution is deciding where the war crime trials should be held.

"Kuwait's right to speak on matters of international law has been compromised because of its oppression of Palestinians and other minorities," he said. "Some argue that America's right has, as well," because of its not-quite surgical bombings

Loretto renovation certain; SMC community divided

By KAREN ALBERS
News Writer

Renovation of the Church of Loretto at Saint Mary's is imminent, despite opposition from many in the Saint Mary's community, according to Mary Turgi, chairperson of the renovation committee.

Turgi discussed the reasons behind the decision at an open forum held yesterday at Saint Mary's.

Renovations have been discussed for at least eight years, but until last September, there has been no real planning. The committee spent three to four months finding an architect before deciding on Evans Wooller, the same architect who designed Saint Mary's Cushwa-Leighton Library.

One reason behind the decision was that the committee thought that there are many structural defects in the church, according to Turgi.

The acoustics and lighting are believed to be inadequate, she said. Because of the high, concave architecture, sounds tend to bounce around, making it hard for others to hear the service.

The walls of the church will be altered to better the acoustics, according to Turgi. Presently, the walls of the church slope down to niches, into which various statues are placed. The walls above the niches are composed of colored tile mosaics, depicting various scenes from the Bible.

Wooller decided that the first fifteen feet of the walls should be removed, taking off only mosaics of palm trees while leaving the pictures intact. The niches would be removed under the architect's plan and the resulting wall area made convex, to counteract the acoustics.

Wooller believes that the renovations will cause a fifty percent improvement in the acoustics.

INSIDE COLUMN

“ND family” isn’t as great as it sounds

As the time for turkey and gift giving approaches none too quickly for overworked students, thoughts of family holidays past keep popping into mind. No where are thoughts of “family” more prevalent than at Notre Dame. At the very core of the whole Notre Dame mystic is the idea of the “Notre Dame family.”

Lisa Eaton
Managing Editor

This is a concept diligently promoted by ND representatives across the country as they attempt lure prospective students to life under the Golden Dome. They speak of how dorm life encourages a sense of family, how everybody at Notre Dame is just one big happy family and how the administration is going to be there to shoulder the parental role for the new students.

In theory, there is nothing really wrong with this idea. Almost everybody has a positive concept of families and it is natural to want to have the comfort and safety of home come along to college. The real problem with this idea lies in its practice and application.

There is en loco parentis, that gem of administrative policy giving good ole’ Monk and his cohorts the authority to act as mom and dad away from home.

To the average high school senior and his/her parents, this is undoubtedly a very reassuring and attractive concept. But who really needs a second set of parents?

In reality the university, although good intentioned, does not allow its adult students the freedom to make their own decisions about important issues, such as sexuality and alcohol. Parietals and an alcohol policy, in some form, are necessary for the general safety of the students, but it currently encourages “closet” behaviors and uninformed choices. The university is not winning any “Parent of the Year” awards for that.

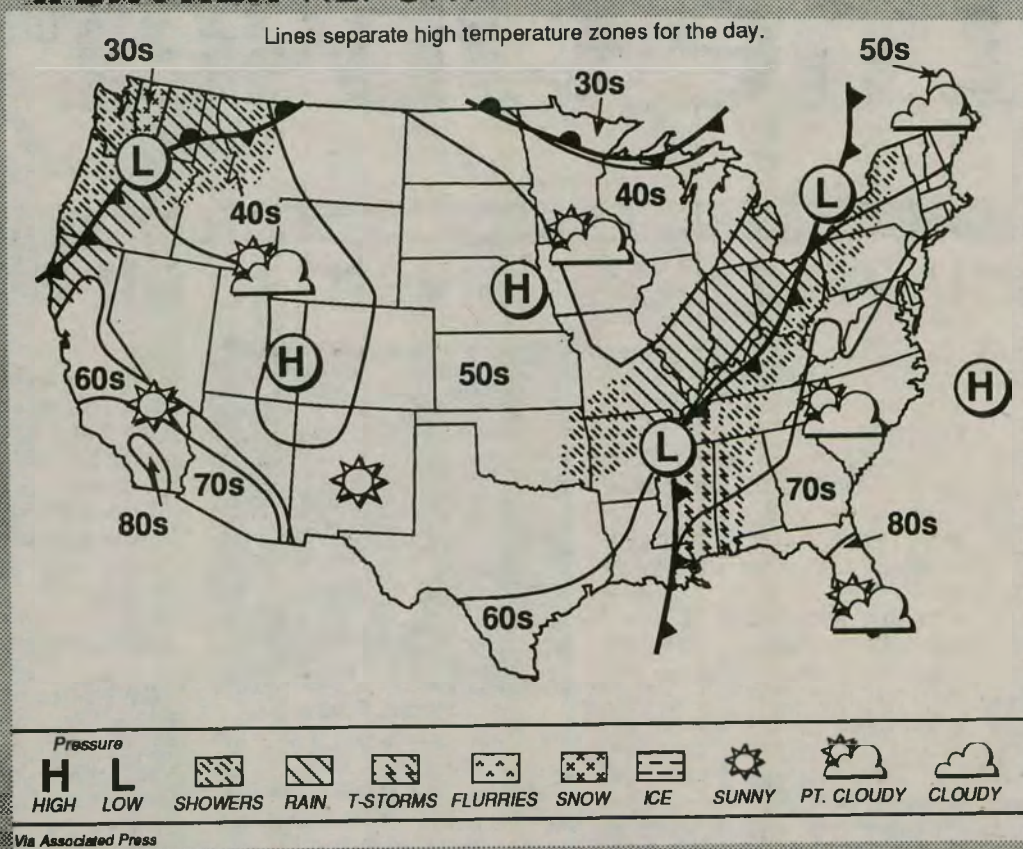

Notre Dame proudly boast about the fact that there are only single sex dorms with limited visitation hours on its campus. Why doesn’t Notre Dame have co-ed dorms or extended visitation hours? Does the Administration think that campus is going to become a orgy factory? Or does it simply not have enough confidence in its students to give them some credit for wanting to live and behave like adults in a dormitory situation? Do students have to move off-campus to prove that they can handle having neighbors of the opposite sex?

“Parental concern” and “administrative concern” should be two mutually exclusive ideas. The whole point of going away to college is to learn how to fly solo in the face of difficult decisions. To replace one set of parents with another is defeating the purpose and inhibiting the growth of the student.

The “Notre Dame family” is a very inviting one, but it is not without its price. As it currently functions, the price seems to be the students’ freedom to choose how to live their lives. Maybe one day, the administration will realize that this isn’t Never-Never Land and sooner or later everybody has to grow up.

The views are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Train derails near Mexico City

MEXICO CITY — A freight train derailed and plunged into a busy highway south of the capital Tuesday, killing or injuring at least 50 people, authorities said. The accident occurred just outside the town of Tehuacan, 152 miles southeast of Mexico City in Puebla state. Reports from the scene indicated the train, heavily loaded with cement and sorghum, jumped the tracks at a curve near an elementary school and plowed into the traffic, said Lt. Susana Garcia Hernandez. She said there were about 50 dead or injured. At least 18 freight cars were destroyed as well as 14 vehicles on the highway, including passenger buses, Garcia said.

Roberts defends recent fundraiser

TULSA, Okla. — The chief financial officer for Oral Roberts Ministry believes the only way to stop the jokes about the ministry’s most recent plea for money is to go bankrupt. Television evangelist Oral Roberts is asking donors to send money within the next three weeks or “all hell is going to break loose against this ministry.” He warned of a “satanic conspiracy” facing the ministry. “The really sad thing is that so many of these people take the attitude that we really don’t need the money, that there is no crisis,” according to Mark Swadener, chief financial officer. Robert’s son Richard blamed the decrease in contributions to the scandals involving former PTL leader Jim Bakker and evangelist Jimmy Swaggart.

Nintendo loses at its own game

INDIANAPOLIS — More than 100,000 Hoosiers will share $500,000 as part of a settlement between the Indiana attorney general’s office and the Nintendo video game company. The settlement is part of a nationwide suit which alleges that Nintendo fixed prices, requiring retailers to sell the video consoles for a uniform price of $99.95 from June 1988 through December 1990, state Attorney General Linley Pearson said Tuesday. The agreement calls for Nintendo to provide $5 coupons to each of the 133,295 console owners who bought their games during the time of the alleged price fixing. Nintendo will also buy newspaper advertisements across the country to explain how Nintendo game owners can claim their coupons, Pearson said.

Iran says American captives to be freed

WASHINGTON (AP)- Released hostages Terry Waite and Thomas Sutherland savored their first full day of freedom Tuesday, and key players in the hostage drama gave new indications that the remaining Westerners held in Lebanon could soon be released as well.

A day after pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim captors freed Waite, 52, and Sutherland, 60, Iran said the kidnappers would soon free the last three American captives and "close this case."

At the United Nations, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar — who had said Monday that there was an agreement in principle to free the Western captives by Christmas — said Tuesday that such a release would be unconditional.

The secretary-general has been trying for months to broker a complex overall swap that would also involve missing Israeli servicemen in Lebanon and Arab detainees held by Israel and its allied militia in south Lebanon. Tuesday marked the first time he had suggested that the Westerners could be freed even if all the pieces of the complex puzzle do not fall into place.

At a rain-swept air base in western England, Waite, the bear-like Church of England envoy kidnapped nearly five years ago during a mission to free the other hostages, had an emotional homecoming.

Waite criticized all who hold prisoners in the Middle East, no matter what the reason. "Those who do it fall well below civilized standards of behavior, no matter who they are," he said in impassioned tones.

While Waite was eloquent in his appeal for the release of other captives, Sutherland, reunited with his family in Wiesbaden, Germany after more than six years in captivity, let hugs and smiles speak for him.

Both Sutherland and Waite appeared to revel in the ordinary things denied them so long in captivity.

Arriving at Wiesbaden early Tuesday, Sutherland was given a bouquet and deeply inhaled the scent. "I haven't seen flowers in 6 1/2 years," he said.

In Tehran, official Iranian radio declared: "The rest of the three remaining American hostages will be freed soon."

The commentary, monitored in Cyprus, praised the efforts of Perez de Cuellar, whose intensive mediation effort began in August.

Lebanon's state television said Tuesday the three remaining American hostages would be released soon even if Israel failed to free more Arab prisoners. The television cited an unidentified U.N. source.

"There are assurances that the case of the remaining American hostages would be closed soon despite the lack of any sign of reciprocation from Israel," the station said.

Both Waite and Sutherland had said Monday that their captors told them the three remaining Americans — Terry Anderson, Joseph Cicippio and Alann Steen — would soon be released.

Waite said the kidnappers told him Cicippio and Steen would be freed within a few days, and Anderson would be released by the end of the month. Sutherland said "in about a couple of weeks, all of the Americans will be freed, hopefully."

Waite vows to fight for freedom

LYNEHAM, England (AP) — Laughing and without a trace of bitterness, freed hostage Terry Waite returned home Tuesday and pledged to keep working to release all hostages in Lebanon.

The burly envoy, who paid for his last mercy mission to Lebanon with five years in captivity, joked about his large feet and the English weather. And he spoke with quiet and controlled emotion of nearly five years in captivity.

The period, he said, included four years in solitary confinement, in a windowless room without books or notepaper. He spoke to no one except an occasional word with a guard who brought food.

"I think you can imagine that after 1,763 days in chains it is an overwhelming experience to come back and receive your greetings," said Waite, 52, after flying into this air base in gusting winds and pouring rain.

"From the bottom of my heart, thank you for turning out on such an awful day, but a typically English day," he said, looking gaunt, but walking steadily.

Waite, 52, stepped from the air force plane which flew him home via Cyprus and spoke for nearly 15 minutes to well-wishers sheltered from the rain in a hangar. He was then reunited with his wife and four children.

The 6-foot-7-inch Waite was freed Monday in Beirut along with American Thomas Sutherland.

Humphrey details duty of SB controller

By ERIN BROWN
News Writer

Keeping track of $70 million, handling 1,200 employees, and working alongside city council is all in a day's work for Katie Humphrey, she said.

As South Bend city controller, Humphrey is in charge of all of the city's finances, she said in her lecture at Saint Mary's last night. The $70 million for which she is responsible include property tax revenues, enterprise tax funds, state excise taxes, as well as other taxes.

In her department there are approximately 1,200 full time employees including police officers, firemen, teamster employees, secretaries, sanitation workers, and other part-time employees, she said.

Humphrey said that she works closely with the city council and Mayor Joe Kernan in managing the budget. Some of her projects have included restoring a $1.6 million budget cut, restructuring the city's budget, and reducing health insurance costs, she explained.

Humphrey added that her job is challenging and interesting and she encouraged her audience to consider elected office. Accounting or finance degrees are beneficial, she said, but not mandatory. She told her audience that, "You have the opportunity to make changes that I never would have dreamed about in the 1960's."

She said she felt rather limited in options in college but received her undergraduate degree in art education. After holding various positions, she received her master's degree in special education at Indiana University. She held jobs in public school and development centers before getting her MBA at Notre Dame in 1985.

In 1987, she became involved in Kernan's campaign, who later offered her the position of city controller, she said.

Saint Mary's music dept. will host Choir Festival

By CAROLINE CLARKE
News Writer

The Saint Mary's College Department of Music will host its seventh annual High School Women's Choir Festival in O'Laughlin Auditorium tomorrow and Friday.

In addition to Saint Mary's, 21 high school choirs from three midwestern states — Indiana, Michigan and Illinois — will participate, according to Coordinator Nancy Menk. Each choir will perform in a 10 to 15 minute program.

The Saint Mary's Women's Choir will perform at 12:10 p.m. on both days, she said. Performance by the high school choirs run from 9:30 a.m. to noon, and 2 to 4:30 p.m. each day.

Certain students from participating schools will be selected to attend private piano or voice lessons with members of Saint Mary's faculty. All participants will receive a campus tour and attend a performance by The Saint Mary's Women's Choir, according to Menk, associate professor of music and director of choral activities.

"Commentators will be on hand to critique as well as instruct the singers after each performance," she said. "The audience will be in an open rehearsal atmosphere."

Commentators for the festival are JoAnn Brorson, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at North Dakota State University at Fargo; Carl Stam, minister of music and worship at Chapel Hill Bible Church in N.C.; and Elmer Thomas, professor of music at the College-Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati.

Menk said that all are encouraged to attend, and admission is free. For more information, contact the Saint Mary's Department of Music at 284-4632.

Abortion

"disgusting," and other Democrats used similar language.

"This is an absolute outrage," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo. "Anyone who does not vote to override is saying to American women, we don't think you're adult enough to have your options explained to you ... by a doctor or a nurse."

Bush's ban on abortion counseling had the strong backing of anti-abortion leaders. Though lacking majority support in both the House and Senate, they had relied on Bush's veto and his perfect record of sustaining those vetoes.

Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., accused Democrats of pressuring anti-abortion lawmakers to switch their votes to overturn the gag rule.

"You are being pressured by the pro-abortionists today to do something you believe to be ethically wrong. You are being pressured to facilitate abortion by overriding this vote," Smith said.

The issue triggered deeply emotional debate. Advocates of the rule said abortion itself was at issue, while opponents said Bush's policy injects the government into doctor-patient relationships and threatens freedom of speech.

Saddam

of Iraq, Beres said.

Because Saddam and his top officials are not in custody, there will be no repeat of the Nuremberg Trials. The only way for justice might be assassination, Beres said.

"There has been no illegalization of assassination in any international treaty," said Beres. "Assassination could be construed as a law enforcement policy."

Although he acknowledged assassination is a very touchy subject, Beres said, "it is time to pass from the jurisprudential to the common-sensical. If there was a blanket ban on assassination, we would have to realize that terrible crimes might have to go unpunished."

The possibility of trials occurring is doubtful without "the political will to make the machine work." With Saddam still in power, his conviction on any charges would be next to impossible without a concerted international effort, Beres said.

A native of Zurich, Switzerland, Beres has lectured widely on international affairs, nuclear war, and human rights. In addition to writing articles for journals specializing in international affairs, he writes occasional columns in newspapers nationwide.

This lecture was sponsored by the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies, the Department of Government and International Studies, and the Notre Dame Law School's Center for Civil Service and Human Rights.

Parts of the church appear dark and gloomy, "like black holes," because of the choir balconies, said Robert Frazier, liturgist at Church of Loretto. The step in front of the altar area presents a hazard because it is the same color as the rest of the floor.

A colonnade of 24 columns, each about nine feet apart, will be placed around the nave to give structural and aesthetic support to the mosaic dome, Turgi said. The colonnade will also focus attention on the liturgical space, and supply a place to house acoustical and lighting systems.

The south and east balconies will also be removed to improve lighting, enhance the view of the mosaic dome and the stained glass windows in the dome. Painted glass windows will be replaced by clear glass panes.

She said that the architect hopes to be able to reuse materials that are removed from the church—such as marble from the altar, windows and statues—in the new design.

The liturgical space itself will have antiphonal seating, with the altar in the center, she said.

Chairs, rather than pews, will be used so that different arrangements can be made; some chairs will have kneelers.

The total cost of the renovation will be about a million dollars, but Turgi believes that that isn't very much, considering the amount of work that will be done. The money is coming from the Sisters of the Holy Cross Common Fund.

Despite the improvement in acoustics, many students disagree with the decision to renovate the church.

"I think it's an utter shame," Saint Mary's student Roberta Hines said. "Why destroy the tradition of the church for aesthetic reasons?" One student opposed the opinion that the statues in the church are "distracting" to the service.

Some Holy Cross sisters also disagree with the renovation. One sister said she was "embarrassed that they were spending this kind of money" and believed that it would be "a hodgepodge" in the end. Other sisters see it as a change of tradition and beauty.

Nevertheless, the committee feels the renovation is necessary to better worship and to follow the teachings of Vatican II. "Many aspects of this space are hindering our prayer," said Frazier. "[Our] life is both mission and prayer."

Nearly 300 Haitians forced to return home

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The United States Tuesday forced home 300 Haitians who fled in small boats after a military coup. But as Haitians kept fleeing, a U.S. judge ordered the government to stop the repatriation.

A U.S. Coast Guard cutter had picked up the 300 Haitians after the Sept. 30 coup and detained them aboard while the Bush administration weighed what steps to take. On Monday, it moved to return them to the impoverished Caribbean country.

About 20 policemen looked on while immigration officials processed the returning Haitians, who had risked their lives to flee, many in frail vessels. Red Cross officials said they would examine the refugees and give them $10 each before they rejoined their families.

The Haitians filled a green-ceilinged welcoming area at the industrial docks. Many sat listlessly, arms folded on their knees, and others lined up for officials at tables. One man on line wore a shirt that said "Tahiti."

Said one refugee, who spoke on condition of anonymity: "I've tried to leave before. Every time I do, they catch me. I'm not going to try again."

In Washington, State Department deputy spokesman Richard Boucher said the refugees continued leaving Haiti despite the U.S. decision Monday to return them. The Coast Guard has picked up a total of 2,160 since the coup, he said.

Hours after the first group were returned, U.S. District Judge Donald Graham in Miami temporarily halted the repatriation until another hearing Monday.

The Haitian Refugee Center in Miami had challenged the repatriation, saying the government failed to grant the refugees their rights.

Haitians by the droves, many fearing repression, have been fleeing after President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, their first democratically elected president, was toppled by the military. Many were retrieved by Coast Guard cutters stationed not far from Haiti's coast.

Nearly 500 are in U.S. custody at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba and the rest are aboard Coast Guard cutters. Venezuela, Belize, Honduras and Trinidad and Tobago had offered to take in at least 550 of the Haitians, and U.S. officials said those held at Guantanamo Bay will be sent to those countries first.

After failing to persuade countries in the area to provide shelter for more Haitians, the State Department announced in Washington that most of the Haitians were being sent home, effective immediately.

Shevardnaze to return as foreign minister

MOSCOW (AP) — Eduard Shevardnadze is returning as Soviet foreign minister, officials announced Tuesday, giving an immediate boost to his long-time friend Mikhail Gorbachev's struggle to revive Kremlin authority.

The reappointment of Shevardnadze, who helped end the Cold War but then quit as foreign minister last December, warning of dictatorship in the Kremlin, drew immediate praise from President Bush and other Western leaders.

"We know him well and have great respect for him," Bush told reporters as he met in the White House with Alexander Yakovlev, another member of the original Gorbachev team that began the perestroika reforms.

The genial, white-haired Shevardnadze, 63, and other Soviet leaders had no immediate public comment on the appointment, but state TV called it "just as sensational" as his resignation 11 months ago.

The appointment bolstered world confidence in Gorbachev as he struggled to forge a new confederation among the remaining 12 Soviet republics and persuade them to assume responsibility for the $81 billion Soviet debt.

"In a particularly difficult moment for the U.S.S.R., the return of Shevardnadze ... will contribute to giving the world a guarantee of having in Moscow not only secure, but also trustworthy and capable partners in dialogue," Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis said.

The reappointment was the latest turn in a remarkable life. Shevardnadze had made a career in the Communist Party and police apparatus in his native Georgia until Gorbachev surprised the world by naming him foreign minister in 1985.

As Gorbachev's chief emissary to the West, Shevardnadze hammered-out treaties under which the Soviet Union slashed its nuclear and conventional arsenals and agreed to withdraw its armies from eastern Europe. Soviet satellite regimes and the Berlin Wall toppled, enraging hard-liners.

Shevardnadze, with a theatrical flair, stunned the world last Dec. 20 by telling the Soviet parliament he was resigning because "dictatorship" stalked the Kremlin.

Less than a month later, Soviet troops cracked down on secessionist Lithuania and Latvia, killing more than 20 people. Last August, Shevardnadze's chilling prophesy came true, as Communist Party hard-liners tried to overthrow Gorbachev.

New portions of Dead Sea Scrolls published

NEW YORK (AP) — Three American experts Tuesday announced publication of previously unpublished portions of the Dead Sea Scrolls, further breaking a small group of researchers' 40-year stranglehold on the documents.

Access to the scrolls has been guarded jealously by an eight-member committee of Israel-based researchers dubbed "the cartel" by critics.

In recent months, two American institutions published portions of the scrolls in defiance of the committee.

Tuesday's announcement of publication of "A Facsimile Edition of the Dead Sea Scrolls," a two-volume set, takes the academic revolt a major step further by offering the 20 percent of scroll material never before seen, in addition to what was published but not readily available to all scholars.

"This represents the last stage in the breaking of the monopoly. Now there will be absolute, total public access," said Professor Robert Eisenman, chairman of religious studies at California State University in Long Beach and co-editor of the book.

Hershel Shanks, publications editor for the Washington, D.C.-based Biblical Archeology Society that is publishing the book, also announced a new Institute for Dead Sea Scrolls Studies, where scholars may study the manuscripts and exchange information.

The scrolls were discovered in caves near the Dead Sea in 1947. Scholars believe they were written by members of a Jewish sect around the time of Jesus.

While some 300 scrolls have

been published elsewhere, critics charge that the committee's editors have released only about 100 in nearly 40 years, denying a rich lode of history to scholars.

"What enormous hubris and greed it was for eight men to think that in their lifetime they could edit and write commentaries on all of this material," said Shanks, a leading foe of the committee.

Eisenman said the 1,787 photographs of scrolls in the new books were delivered to him over a two-year period by an anonymous source.

He said he didn't know who the source was, but believed it was no one connected with the Israel committee or with either of the institutions that recently released material, the Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif., and Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati.

Professor Eugene Ulrich of Notre Dame University, a committee editor who denies that the group has withheld data unfairly, called the Eisenman-Robinson book "grandstanding" and "ethically questionable."

Ulrich added, however: "I would hope this will bring some peace and rest to the troubled waters of the Dead Sea Scrolls project ... I would like to see (Shanks) and his colleagues decide they've gotten enough kudos that they can get out of the warfare mentality."

Eisenman and his co-editor, Professor James Robinson, chairman of religion at California's Claremont College graduate school, said they had no doubt that the anonymously donated photographs were authentic.

AIDS drug effects all users equally

CHICAGO (AP) — The country's most widely used AIDS-fighting drug appears to work just as well for women and minorities as it does for white men, according to two studies.

Researchers on both studies cautioned that their reviews of the drug AZT were limited and urged further study.

Their findings should calm some of the fear raised earlier this year by a government study suggesting AZT might be less effective for some groups, said an editorial accompanying the two new reports in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The issue of AZT's effectiveness across racial, ethnic and gender lines is particularly important because minorities and women represent a growing number of AIDS cases. While rates of newly acquired infection by HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, in this country appear to have stabilized or declined in homosexual men, they have not subsided in blacks, Hispanics, women and intravenous drug users, researchers said.

It had been widely assumed that AZT was equally effective for AIDS patients regardless of their race or sex, but a report in February conducted by the Department of Veterans Affairs seemed to question that premise.

It said AZT slowed development of AIDS symptoms when given to white patients who were infected with the virus but had not yet developed the disease — but didn't do the same for blacks and Hispanics.

The VA report stirred controversy despite the author's warning that results were only preliminary and based on a limited study group.

Researchers on the two latest studies reviewed studies of the drug dating to 1987 — this time pulling out data on women and minorities. They did not look back at the VA study.

"We found there is no evidence to ... prove that AZT was any less beneficial in blacks or Hispanics or drug users or women," said Stephen Lagakos, lead author of one of the new studies and professor of biostatistics at Harvard University School of Public Health in Boston.

Researchers noted that the two new studies should be viewed cautiously for the same reason that the VA study was — because none of the three were originally designed to make race or sex comparisons.

Lehder testifies against 'corrupt police officer'

MIAMI (AP) — Carlos Lehder, who once threatened to flood the United States with cocaine, testified in Manuel Noriega's drug trial Tuesday that the ousted Panamanian ruler was just another "corrupt police officer."

Lehder is serving a sentence of life without parole plus 135 years for running more than three tons of cocaine to Florida and Georgia through the Bahamas.

He testified that the Medellin drug cartel became aware of Noriega in the late 1970s when one of its members was arrested and beaten in Panama and forced to pay the Panamanian leader $250,000.

The Medellin cocaine cartel decided "either to bribe him or to fight him," Lehder said, calling Noriega "just another criminally corrupt police officer in Panama."

Lehder said he never met Noriega, but heard much about him in cartel "round tables" held to solve problems.

He said the cartel struck a deal with Panama in February 1982, after Noriega helped win the release of kidnapping victim Marta Ochoa, a sister of the cartel's Ochoa brothers.

In return for $1,000 per kilogram of cocaine shipped through Panama to the United States, Noriega gave cartel pilots a special frequency to use when landing in Panama, Lehder said. Noriega's intelligence agents met the planes and helped store the cocaine, he said.

All arrangements were kept compartmentalized and only Noriega and the cartel were aware of all the details, Lehder said. He was to continue testifying Wednesday.

He agreed to testify in return for better treatment and other considerations including the possible reduction of his sentence. But prosecutors deny he has been promised an eventual release.

Manuel Noriega

Lehder, for the first time, admitted he committed the acts he was charged with in his 1988 conviction, which his attorneys are still appealing. He said he actually smuggled 15 tons of cocaine into the United States.

He said he bought Norman's Cay in the Bahamas in the late 1970s for $1.2 million in drug profits. He allegedly paid Bahamian Prime Minister Lynden Pindling for protection, a charge Pindling has strongly denied.

"When I purchased the island, I established a (cocaine) pipeline into the United States," he said.

But he said that in 1981 he had to flee the Bahamas because local officials and U.S. drug authorities closed down his operations.

When he was arrested after a firefight in Colombia in 1987, U.S. authorities boasted he was the biggest drug catch ever up to that time.

Prosecutors called him "the Henry Ford of the cocaine trade" because he modernized drug delivery routes to the United States from Colombia.

Lehder gave television interviews from a Colombian jungle hideaway, showed a fondness for Adolf Hitler and built a statue of the assassinated Beatle John Lennon on his ranch — complete with a bullet hole.

He even organized his own political party to fight "U.S. imperialism."

Reputed mobster sentenced to 6 1/2 years

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Reputed mobster Americo "Cigars" Petrillo was sentenced Tuesday to 6 1/2 years in prison for using a social club as a front for the Patriarca crime family's gambling operations.

Petrillo, 57, of Old Saybrook, was one of eight members of the New England mob who were convicted in August on federal racketeering charges.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Durham argued for a prison sentence, saying if Petrillo went free, he would assume control of the crime family, which was left in disarray in a tri-state sweep of 21 reputed mobsters in 1990.

Federal prosecutors argued during his trial that Petrillo owned the South End Social Club, a rundown hall in Hartford that was a front for the mob's illegal card and dice games and bookmaking activities.

Petrillo's attorney, Richard Cramer, said although Petrillo participated in gambling, he was not the ringleader. Petrillo scoffed at the government's depiction of him as a gambling czar and sometimes laughed during testimony.

U.S. District Judge Alan Nevas sentenced Petrillo to the maximum penalty — despite appeals from family and friends who described him in letters as a warm and generous man.

Petrillo also was fined $25,000 and placed on three years probation during which time he is not allowed to gamble. He also must attend Gamblers Anonymous meetings.

On Nov. 5, Nevas sentenced Salvatore "Butch" D'Aquila, 51, to 15 years in prison for being a principal in a gambling operation and for acting as a lookout during the burial of a Boston hotel executive at a secret mob graveyard in Hamden.

Louis Failla, a mob soldier, is scheduled to be sentenced on Friday. The remaining five defendants — including reputed family boss Nicholas Bianco — are scheduled for sentencing beginning Nov. 25.

Raymond "Junior" Patriarca, who headed the organization until his arrest in 1990, is being held without bail while awaiting trial in Boston.

Win or lose, a visit to ND is a moment to remember

Dear Editor:

To lose by 10 points hurts. To lose by 1 point hurts even more. Why do so many fans seek tickets to an Irish game when they can watch it from the comfort of their living rooms and avoid the traffic? Because you really haven't seen the Irish spirit until you've been to the ND stadium, live.

To get the true aspect of the game, one need to fight the Friday night traffic to attend the pep rally. If the traffic doesn't get the blood pumping, the rally will.

Don't miss the tailgate party, or the walk along US 33—where you'll see visitors from as far away as California toting signs "in hopes" of purchasing tickets—at any price.

Sure, ND wants to win—but if they don't—nobody walks away a loser. For they have purchased a ticket to a memory that will live on in their hearts forever! There are no sad faces with exception of a brief look of defeat upon those of the players. But once the cameras are gone, the grief is too, for the Irish spirit is something that cannot be defeated, no matter what the score.

CENSORSHIP?

Limiting films will only promote censorship

Dear Editor:

I was amazed to see Professor Rice's editorial about "Madonna: Truth or Dare" (The Observer, Nov. 12). In simple terms, he was advocating a form of censorship. This, from a professor in our Law School who is supposed to be teaching his students the value of the First Amendment.

From the way he wrote his editorial, I do not find any evidence that he has even seen the film. All he does is quote other writers that reviewed the film when it was released. If he had not seen the film before writing about it, and even if he has, he is wrong to advocate censorship.

The film in question did contain some explicit material, but that is why it received the rating it did. The students and faculty at this University are mature enough to see the film. For those who were not open-minded enough to see the film, it did have some merit to it, both as an art film and as a documentary.

Granted, it was more than enough Madonna to satisfy me until I die, but it was interesting. It was valuable as an artistic film, because the director used some very interesting techniques to visually express the persona of Madonna. As a documentary, it gave insight into one of the most interesting characters of popular culture.

This type of insight is valuable to understand why she is so popular and why she is doing what she does. As an artist, she wants to push the limits of self-expression. In America, she has that right, and a university in South Bend should not have the power to deny this right.

When Professor Rice wrote about the choice of films at the Snite, his statements angered me even more. The Last Temptation of Christ, by most standards, could be considered blasphemous, if taken literally. This film, like most other art, should not be interpreted literally. If one views the film with an understanding that it is not an actual portrayal of the adult life of Jesus, one will gain an interesting view of the humanity of Jesus.

View it for the ideas, not the story. I thought it did a remarkable job to show the humanity of Jesus while it portrayed the divinity as well.

Professor Rice, and anyone else who agrees with him, the Snite does not need "fumigation" or "demonstration." The films that Rice has a problem with are intended for an open-minded adult. If he does not want to see them, he does not have to. That is the beauty of America. People have the right to choose what to see, to hear, and to speak. This right should not be infringed upon by anyone, let alone a university.

The purpose of a university is to expose its students to new ideas and new ways of expression. To advocate censorship at the University of Notre Dame is wrong and goes against this fundamental purpose of a university.

Rice also makes an interesting point about the fact that ND is a "Catholic" university. What people need to remember is the original meaning of this word. "Catholic" means "universal." I'm not advocating the idea that ND move away from promoting Roman Catholic ideals, but it needs to promote universal ideas as well.

Professor Rice also should remember that the best law school in the nation sponsors an X-rated film festival every year. Yale believes in the First Amendment. I hope Notre Dame will continue to believe in it as well.

Papal teachings proscribe the ordination of women

Dear Editor:

The Observer of Oct. 15 recounted what has become an annual Notre Dame rite—a statement by the Committee on Notre Dame's Position on the Ordination of Women (CNDPOW). "How come," said a spokesman for CNDPOW, "we (Notre Dame) can certify just about every calling and profession (for women) and we will fight like blazes to stand by our certification, but we won't do it with women and the priesthood?" The answer, shortly, is that a vocation to the priesthood is a call from Christ acting through his mystical body, the Catholic Church. Notre Dame is neither Christ nor the Church.

Notre Dame does present itself, especially to alumni and others, as a Catholic university. Yet Notre Dame, by its own choice, is legally a secular corporation. If Notre Dame is secular and not Catholic, why should anyone care what its position is on the ordination of women, any more than one should care about the position on the subject of General Motors or the Kiwanis Club?

If, however, Notre Dame is Catholic, as it claims to be and as CNDPOW claims it to be, that identity carries with it an obligation of institutional fidelity to the clear position of the Catholic Church, as enunciated by the Vicar of Christ.

The periodic CNDPOW statements convey the impression that the issue of ordination of women is an open, politicized one of civil rights. Unfortunately, Notre Dame students are not likely to have had the opportunity in their theological studies to experience an adequate presentation of the Papal teaching on this, or any other, subject. In fact, the position of the Church on the ordination of women is clear and settled.

In his address to the American bishops, in Los Angeles on Sept. 16, 1987, Pope John Paul II stated that, "women are not called to the priesthood. Although the teaching of the Church on this point is quite clear, it in no way alters the fact that women are indeed an essential part of the Gospel plan to spread the Good News of the kingdom. And the Church is irrevocably committed to this truth." (Emphasis in original)

On Jan. 30 1977, Pope Paul VI said, "Why can men alone and not women, too, receive the priesthood? Let us note straight off that disparity of function does not imply unequal dignity in the objective order of grace nor, consequently, any inferiority in the order of love and holiness (Gal 3, 28). In this hierarchy, as Mary shows, women can occupy the highest places and this not merely as passive recipients of grace but as active practitioners of the great virtues which have such a wide and beneficent influence on society."

The reason for the disparity of function is Christ's decision in giving the Church her fundamental structure and her theological anthropology. The perennial tradition of the Church reflects that original determination . . . Moreover, now that an answer has been given to this question, which some intemperate feminists have rendered unnecessarily vexing, we urge women to realize that the Church has no intention of underestimating the precious role they are called to play in the overall plan of God's kingdom and in the temporal sphere as well."

Three months earlier, on Oct. 15, 1976, Pope Paul VI had approved and ordered the promulgation of the Declaration on the Ordination of Women, by the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. The Declaration stated that, "complying with a mandate of the Holy Father and adhering to what he himself wrote in his Letter of Nov. 30, 1975, [the Congregation] believes it necessary to assert that the Church, which intends to be faithful to the Lord's example, does not regard herself as having the authority to admit women to priestly ordination . . . The Catholic Church has never held the view that priestly or episcopal ordination can be validly conferred upon women."

In a passage that ought to be required reading for CNDPOW members, the Declaration stated, "In the last analysis, it is for the Church to speak through the magisterium on these matters and to determine which elements of the sacraments are immutable and which are mutable. The Church is convinced that she may not admit certain changes because she knows that Christ has bound her to act in a certain way . . . The Church's practice thus has normative value for her. Behind her practice of conferring priestly ordination only on males lies a tradition coterminous with the history of the Church, universal throughout east and west, and ever watchful in order quickly to suppress abuses."

Such a norm, based on the example of Christ, has been followed in the past and is being followed today because it is regarded as conformed to God's plan for his Church."

"It is necessary," said the Declaration, "to keep before our minds how much the Church differs from other societies and how utterly unique her nature and structure are . . . Moreover, and especially, one would seriously mistake the nature of ministerial priesthood were one to account it as a right all human beings have; baptism does not give anyone a right to exercise a public ministry in the Church."

Priesthood is conferred upon a person, not for his honor or personal advantage but for the service of God and the Church. It is the object of a special and completely unmerited call: 'It was not you who chose me; it was I who chose you' (Jn 15, 16; see Heb 5, 4). It is said at times, and frequently repeated in books and periodicals, that there are women who feel themselves called to the priesthood."

Such an inclination, however, though noble and quite understandable, is not enough to prove a genuine vocation; a vocation is not reducible to a simple interior inclination, which of itself is purely subjective. Since priesthood is a special ministry of which the Church has charge and control, a vocation also requires authentication by the Church as a constitutive element, for Christ chose 'the men he himself had decided on' (Mk 3, 13).

On the other hand, all the baptized do have a call to exercise the royal priesthood by offering their lives to God and bearing witness so that God is praised. Women who say they seek the ministerial priesthood are undoubtedly impelled by the desire to serve Christ and the Church.

Nor is it surprising that, having once become fully aware of the discrimination to which they have been subjected in the past in the civil sphere, they should desire the ministerial priesthood. We must not overlook, however, the fact that the priesthood is not something to which the human person has an inherent right but depends on the working out of the mystery of Christ and his Church."

The teaching of the Church is firm on this issue. And it is evident that John Paul II represents the wave of the future for the Church. His appeal to youth throughout the world is magnetic and increasing. The post-Vatican II decline in vocations is turning around for religious congregations, male and female, loyal to the Pope.

The same trend can be seen in some dioceses where the emphasis is on fidelity to prayer, the sacraments and the teachings of the Vicar of Christ. On the other hand, the adherents of the "Church-of-where-it's-at" are fading leftovers of the sixties. They see the Church in political terms and they would manipulate it as they would a political movement or the Congress.

The Catholic Church, however, is not like that. Instead of playing pressure group politics with the Church, the members of CNDPOW would do better to encourage the members of the Notre Dame community to pray, especially the Rosary, for increased vocations to the priesthood and the religious life. And it is about time for the Holy Cross priests at Notre Dame to speak out in support of the Papal teachings on this and other points.

Campus organizations launching awareness campaign

Dear Editor:

A coalition of campus organizations will launch a campaign to raise awareness about sexual harassment and sexual assault at Notre Dame. We recognize the need for such a program in order to raise awareness about these problems. We hope that by sponsoring such a program the number of such incidences will decrease.

The campaign includes several Observer ads explaining the myths and realities of sexual harassment and sexual assault. We hope to dispel some commonly held misconceptions through these ads.

Besides the series of ads, a letter will be sent to each student from a victim or from a person related to a victim. There will also be a panel discussion headed by Ms. Laurel Eslinger of Sex Offense Services on Wednesday, Dec. 4, at 7 p.m. in the Library Auditorium. We hope that this will provide students an opportunity to voice their concerns, questions, and opinions.

The campaign will culminate in a two-page article in which we hope to illustrate specific incidences of sexual harassment and assault here at Notre Dame. Foremost, we are asking that if you or someone you know has had an experience of harassment or assault to write anonymously to Student Government. Such letters will be vital to the campaign and will be considered confidential.

The address for letters is: Student Government, 2nd Floor LaFortune.

If you got the money, we got the room

I read with great interest the whole saga that took place during the men's interhall football playoffs. It's a real shame that the Vermin from Carroll had to fight so gallantly, only to have their victory taken away from them.

But as I read about how Carroll was forced to forfeit a game because three of their players were ineligible, I wasn't thinking that Carroll had cheated or that the interhall officials had made a mistake.

The thing that struck me about the whole mess was that two of those players who live in Carroll don't even go to Notre Dame. There are quite a few students from Holy Cross College that live in the apartments around me, and they're all great people. "Why, then, don't they live at Notre Dame?" I wondered aloud.

The question was answered when I realized who these two players are. It all seems to fit now. If you have the clout (or more importantly, the money) you can get anything you want at Notre Dame.

I have this friend named Matt. He's from about the same financial background as myself—modest by Notre Dame's standards. Well, Matt, you see, transferred to Notre Dame last year. Hoping to live on campus, he contacted the Office of Student Residences.

"Sorry, there's no room in the Inn," they said, to quote that Book we know so well.

Hmm...if there was indeed no room on campus for Notre Dame students, how come there are two (and maybe more) Holy Cross students living here?

In the words of a representative from Student Residences, "Special exceptions were made by the Officers of the University." Hmm...

In an Observer EXCLUSIVE! I have discovered the guidelines the Officers of the University use for making these "special exceptions."

First, a $100,000 donation will allow you to take all the food out of the dining halls that you'd like—get this—including Yo-Cream!

A $500,000 donation will allow you and all your roommates to carry liquor across campus in—get this—unsuitable packaging!

For a cool million, you can have either the Irish women's volleyball team or the men's hoops squad come over and give you a rub down—nightly.

If you donate enough to build, say, a new dorm, you get any room on campus you want! Okay, so that's a little far-fetched. Sorry.

If you donate enough for two dorms, you not only get a room, but cable television, too.

If you give the University enough to create a new quad, high-ranking University officials will baby-sit your grandchildren.

Lou Holtz will personally wean them and Monk will teach them how to play basketball. Throw in another building, and Patricia O'Hara will handle the discipline.

Looking at all of these guidelines, it's apparent that people like Matt and I don't really have the bucks to get what we want at ND.

I, for one, would like cable, but two dorms are a little out of my parents' reach. I do think they could help me on one thing, though.

Like most Arts and Letters students, I need classes. In fact, English 300A looks good, but it's closed.

As I look at the guidelines, I see that there are no provisions for "exceptions" for classes. So I've looked around campus and found something that my parents can afford: One of those brick things they have on Fieldhouse Mall.

Okay, how much can a brick platform with a plaque on it cost? A couple thousand tops. Surely Mom and Pops could chalk that up. Well, at least they would if they loved me.

It's Christmas season once again, and the students at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's are beginning to feel the excitement and bustle that surrounds the holiday season. If you're searching for the perfect gift for the family or friends, search no further. The ultimate Christmas album is here on compact disc: Acorn Records' "Home For Christmas."

"Home For Christmas" is a special charity recording that will benefit the YMCA Urban Youth Scholarship Fund. Many local celebrities and performers contributed their time and efforts to help the production of the holiday disc.

The album was the brainchild of Cyril Oake, who is the producer for Acorn Records. An Ind. native, Oake lived and taught in the projects of Brooklyn, N.Y., for several years before returning to Ind. a year ago. "I saw the same street violence going on here that reminded me of Brooklyn," said Oake.

Through meetings with Charles Martin of the YMCA, Oake came up with the idea for the disc. Although the production didn't begin until August, Acorn "decided to go through with it even though it was a late start," Oake commented.

The recording was actually the easiest part, thanks to the cooperation of the performers. Arranging the publicity, marketing, financing, and the manufacturing of the disc presented the largest obstacles, making the project "an arduous process for sure," according to Oake.

The performers on "Home For Christmas" range from Lou Holtz, the Notre Dame head football coach, to Big Daddy TC from the radio station Jam 910 a.m. Many local performers showcase their talents on the disc as well.

Those who contributed their talents to the effort waived all rights and did not ask for compensation for their time. "Most were pretty excited just to get the exposure," said Oake.

A wide variety of music styles appear on the benefit disc, so that it may have a more universal appeal. "Go Santa Go," performed by the Alter Egos, is a throwback to the Buddy Holly days of the Fifties. A touch of soul and R&B is added to selections such as "Have Yourself A Merry Little Christmas," and the Bushwacker Band performs "If Santa Claus Don't Come Tonight" with a little country flavor. A humorous rendition of "The Twelve Days of Christmas" was put together with the help of many of the local radio and television personalities.

Acorn records also tapped into the talents of Notre Dame for the holiday disc. The Notre Dame Glee Club sings "Ave Maria," and a group of students and faculty performs the Irish classic "Seamaisin" with a Gaelic passage read by Michael McGettrick.

The main attraction to the disc may be Lou Holtz's recitation of "The Night Before Christmas." Oake believes Holtz, perhaps the most well known celebrity on the disc, will help sell more copies.

Oake is already planning to produce a "Home For Christmas II" for next year, and he hopes to draw some more Hoosier celebrities such as David Letterman, Jane Pauley, and maybe even Larry Bird. This would give the benefit disc a stronger national impact.

"Home For Christmas," although comprised of local performers, is being distributed nationally through Vinyl Vendors, and is being advertised through publications such as "Blue and Gold." It can be purchased by telephone (800-678-NUTS) with a Visa or Mastercard.

When planning your Christmas shopping this season, keep in mind "Home For Christmas." It will provide hours of holiday entertainment, and the money spent will help the disadvantaged youth in the area go to college. As South Bend mayor Joe Kernan says in the album's introduction, "Christmas is the time of giving, and certainly there is no greater gift than that of opportunity."

Good things from the BoDeans

Even though only two acts were listed on the bill of performers, four separate sounds filled Stepan Center last night.

After opening act Will T. Massey warmed up two-thirds full Stepan, the BoDeans took the stage and treated the crowd to three distinctly different sounds.

The group opened with a number of songs from their first few albums, "Love & Hope & Sex & Dreams," and "Outside Looking In," belying their origins in the Milwaukee bar scene.

After opening with "Fadaway," the group switched gears playing the mellower "Dreams," before encouraging crowd participation on "If I Could Hold You Tonight."

"Paradise," the first song performed off their most recent album, "Black and White," sent a wave of energy through the crowd, and for the rest of the evening the band received a great deal of support from the audience. This song featured a more poppish feel, emphasizing Michael Ramos' keyboards.

Vocalists Sammy Llanas and Kurt Neumann shared responsibilities on the mike, complementing each other nicely. Llanas' deep-throated, gravelly voice contrasted Neumann's more melodic sound. Despite apologies for Llanas' vocal problems, his unique sound disguised whatever trouble he may have had.

"Good Things," a song which has encountered some success on the pop charts, proved to be one of the big hits of the first set, with the crowd filling in the responses on a couple of occasions. The group finished the first set with "Ultimately Fine," from the "Love & Hope" album.

Ramos, bassist Bobby Griffin and drummer Danny Gayol took a break, leaving Llanas and Neumann alone on stage. The pair showed yet another side, performing a three-song acoustic set harkening back to their first sound.

The rest of the band returned for a rocking cross-section, encompassing songs from all of their albums, with "Do I Do," from the latest album, gathering a huge response from the crowd. "Say About Love" closed the second set.

The crowd, eager for an encore, showed its desire with the cheer performed during kickoffs of Irish football games, and the BoDeans responded. After Neumann called the cheer "one of the coolest things" he's ever heard, the crowd repeated it, much to his delight.

"Say You Will," from the first album, was the first song of the encore, followed by "Naked." An exceptional version of "Good Work" ended the concert on a high note.

The music was complemented with a colorful lighting display, which was effective despite being simplistic for this age of multi-million dollar light shows.

Will T. Massey opened the show with an acoustic set. His voice, somewhere in between John Mellencamp and Bruce Springsteen, helped to carry his folk-rock numbers.

Boilermakers' frosh point guard to be tested in NIT

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue sophomore Travis Trice is on trial, and Ball State will help determine the verdict for the Boilermakers' point guard in the preseason National Invitation Tournament.

"The job is up for grabs," said coach Gene Keady, who sends the Boilermakers against Ball State at Mackey Arena on Thursday night.

"Travis is going to get the first shot. I want him to be a little waterbug. I want him all over the place," Keady said. "I want him getting after folks, pressuring the ball, being there when someone throws a careless outlet pass."

Trice, a 6-foot-1, 182-pounder from Princeton, Ind., had more assists (70) than points (59) while making seven starts and playing in 27 games last season.

"I want him to forget about scoring. I want him to get the ball to people," Keady said. "The thing that will happen when he forgets about scoring, he'll become a scorer. When he's not worried about it, he'll get in the flow. ... Our offense is flexible and everybody can score if you do what you practice."

Keady will go with the same starting unit he used in two exhibition games — a 79-77 loss to the AAU High Five team and 76-54 victory over the Cuban National team. Matt Painter and Ian Stanback will be at forward, Craig Riley at center and Woody Austin and Trice in the backcourt.

A victory over Ball State would send the Boilermakers against the winner of Thursday night's first-round game between No. 13 Oklahoma State or Evansville on Saturday. The winner of that game moves on to New York for next week's semifinals.

"We're young. Defensively we may not be able to stop anything. It's going to be interesting," Keady said about prospects of advancing to Madison Square Garden.

Austin, a former Indiana high school Mr. Basketball who missed the second half of last season because of academic ineligibility, and Riley are the team's only seniors. Painter is the only junior.

"I'm not sure we're that talented or experienced to get by Ball State, or someone like Oklahoma State or Evansville. This is the youngest team I've ever had here and you're not going to win a lot with young players. You've got to get some experience under your belt."

Heat blaze to their best start as Seikaly burns Jazz

MIAMI (AP) — Rony Seikaly had 23 points and 17 rebounds to lead Miami to its fourth straight victory, 111-91 over Utah on Tuesday night.

The Heat moved to 6-2, the first time the franchise has ever been four games above .500, and took their third straight win over the Jazz in Miami.

Miami used runs of 14-4, 11-0 and 11-2 in building a 90-64 lead 17 seconds into the fourth quarter. Utah never got closer than 14 points for the game's final 28 minutes.

Bimbo Coles had a career-high 20 for the Heat, as did rookie Steve Smith.

Utah was led by Karl Malone with 25 points and Jeff Malone with 16.

In their three previous seasons, Miami had never posted it's sixth win before the 23rd game.

SuperSonics 113, Bullets 106
LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Gary Payton scored 16 points in the second half and Michael Cage had 20 rebounds to help Seattle overcome Washington for its third straight victory.

Trailing 68-61 in the third quarter, Payton had eight points in a 20-4 run which gave Seattle a 9-point lead and helped send the Bullets to their second straight loss and fifth consecutive defeat at the Capital Centre.

Cage, who finished with 20 points, had six during the decisive spurt.

Washington, which made just 5-of-21 shots in the third quarter, went over six minutes of the period without a field goal.

Nets 122, Kings 118
EAST RUTHERFORD N.J. (AP) — Sam Bowie scored 27 points and Chris Morris had a key basket and two clutch free throws in the final minute as New Jersey snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 122-118 victory over Sacramento.

It was the 41st consecutive road loss for the Kings, who are 0-5 away from home this season.

The Nets trailed 102-99 in the fourth quarter after Jim Les and Anthony Bonner combined for 15 points. Drazen Petrovic hit his fifth 3-pointer to tie it and the teams traded baskets until Morris took a pass from Bowie and scored to make it 116-114.

Morris had two free throws with 5.7 to play to make it 120-

116 and wrap up the victory. Petrovic had 25 points for New Jersey, while Sacramento's Mitch Richmond had a game-high 32 points.

Bucks 127, Hornets 104
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Moses Malone had 23 points and Dale Ellis scored 11 straight in the third quarter as Milwaukee snapped a four-game losing streak by beating Charlotte 127-104 on Tuesday night.

Ellis, who finished with 22 points, expanded an already wide lead with three straight 3-pointers and a basket from an offensive rebound midway through the third quarter. Milwaukee outscored Charlotte 41-20 in the period and also got eight points apiece from Malone, Larry Krystkowiak, and Alvin Robertson.

Kenny Gattison scored a season-high 21 points and Kendall Gill added 19 for the Hornets, 0-6 on the road this season.

The Bucks led 85-63 lead with 6:18 remaining in the third before Ellis went to work. After Ellis's second 3-pointer, Larry Johnson made a shot for the Hornets. Ellis took a pass from Robertson and hit another 3-pointer for a 94-65 Milwaukee lead with 4:06 left in the third. Del Curry made a 22-foot jumper, but Ellis tipped in his 11th straight point and the Bucks had a 96-67 cushion with 3:33 to go.

The Bucks biggest lead of the game came at the end of the third when Krystkowiak made two free throws to go up 106-71.

Federov sticks Blackhawks

Islanders 7, North Stars 4
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Wayne McBean broke a 4-4 tie with a shorthanded goal with 6:14 left in the third period Tuesday night as the New York Islanders rebounded after blowing a three-goal lead for a 7-4 victory over the Minnesota North Stars.

McBean took a pass from Benoit Hogue and was pulled down from behind by Dave Gagner, but managed to flip the puck over Minnesota goalie Jon Casey while sliding on his stomach.

Todd Elik had completed Minnesota's rally with a goal 8:40 into the third that gave the Stars a 4-3 edge. But Hogue tied the score with a power-play goal at 10:55, then set up McBean's winner.

Pierre Turgeon scored on a breakaway 1:23 after McBean's goal, and Ray Ferraro added his second goal of the game with 1:45 remaining.

Mike Modano scored a pair of goals in a 2:56 span early in the third period to tie the game.

Derek King also scored for the Islanders, and Ulf Dahlen started Minnesota's comeback with a power-play goal at 7:31 of the second period.

The Islanders were outshot 43-25, including 27-11 over the first two periods, yet managed to hold a 3-1 lead.

The North Stars lost their second straight and dropped to two games below .500 (8-10-1), their worst mark of the season. The win gave the Islanders their first three-game winning streak of the season.

Red Wings 4 Blackhawks 1
DETROIT (AP)—Sergei Federov had a goal and three assists, leading the surging Detroit Red Wings to a 4-1 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks on Tuesday night.

The win moved Detroit past Chicago into first place in the Norris Division. The Red Wings are unbeaten (6-0-1) in seven games for the first time since November, 1988.

Winning goaltender Tim Cheveldae stopped 30 shots.

Orgen's accomplishments are increasingly impressive considering he had to deal with a number of injuries which sidelined his top players for extended amounts of time.

Sullivan joined Ebert, and a trio of Fisher offensive weapons as the only unanimous first team selections. Wide receiver Renzy Smith and running back Curtis Baker were the other two Green Wave players who earned unanimous selections.

Second to Fisher's ten players, was Carroll with four first team members, followed by Sorin with four. Sophomores Gregg Larson and Pete Lawrence were the only underclassmen to be named to the first team.

The Detroit Red Wings handily beat the Chicago Blackhawks last night 4-1, in Joe Louis Arena. Center Sergei Federov had a goal and three assists to lead the victorious Wings.

'Easy' Pickens opts for NFL after season

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee wide receiver Carl Pickens has decided to forgo his senior season and apply for the NFL draft, Volunteer coach Johnny Majors confirmed on Tuesday.

In a statement released through sports information director Haywood Harris, Majors said Pickens told him of his decision to turn pro before practice Tuesday afternoon.

"Coach Majors told him before the season that if he decided to turn pro to inform him," Harris said.

In the statement Majors said he "understands Carl doing it, and hopes everybody else understands it also."

"We wish him success in professional football, and appreciate what he's done for the program the last four years," Majors' statement said. "It did not surprise me that Carl decided to do this. We'd like to have him return, but since he chooses not to, we understand his thinking."

Carl Pickens

Majors said he told Pickens "I wanted him to finish strong as a Volunteer these last three games."

It was widely expected that Pickens would leave Tennessee after this year for the NFL. The 6-foot-3, 200-pound receiver said as much at the end of last season.

Pickens played sparingly on offense as a freshman at Tennessee but displayed his athletic ability by playing safety on defense for the final five games, during which he intercepted five passes.

Pickens' defensive skills were enough to earn him defensive MVP honors in the Vols' 1990 Cotton Bowl victory over Arkansas, in which he intercepted a pass in the end zone to thwart a Razorback drive.

But Pickens made it plain that he preferred offense, and he played there exclusively last season as a sophomore. He led the Vols with 53 receptions last year for 917 yards and set a school single-game record with 13 catches against Notre Dame.

This season he has caught 43 passes for 828 yards and five touchdowns despite being double-teamed on most plays.

Pickens is the leading receiver in the Southeastern Conference and seventh in the nation with 92 yards per game. He's fifth in the conference in receptions per game.

Always a big-play threat, three of his touchdown catches this year covered 87, 75 and 60 yards. The 87-yarder against Auburn is the longest in school history.

week. Sullivan returned two interceptions for touchdowns and led the team in tackles.

"I saw him against Pangborn and he was pretty incredible," said Ebert.

In his second year as coach Orgen took Notre Dame's smallest dorm and led them to an undefeated season. He also led the Vermin to the semifinals of the playoffs.

"I had nothing to do with it (the teams success)," said Orgen. "I was just there to help. Coaching had nothing to do with it."

Shortstop Cal Ripken, shown here tagging out B.J. Surhoff, won the American League MVP Award for 1991 last night.

Cal Ripken captures AL MVP Award

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cal Ripken won his second American League MVP award on Tuesday, becoming the first player in the league to capture the trophy as a member of a losing team.

The Orioles shortstop hit .323 with 34 homers and 114 RBIs as Baltimore went 67-95 and finished sixth in the seven-team AL East. He received 15 first-place votes, eight seconds, four thirds and one seventh for 318 points in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Cecil Fielder of the Detroit Tigers, who led the majors with 133 RBIs and tied for the major-league lead in homers with 44 homers, was second with 286 points. Fielder, the runner-up last year to Oakland's Rickey Henderson, got nine first-place votes, 12 seconds, six thirds and one seventh.

Frank Thomas of the Chicago White Sox was third with 181 points, Jose Canseco of the Athletics was fourth with 145 points and Joe Carter of the Toronto Blue Jays was fifth with 136 points.

Ripken was AL Rookie of the Year in 1982 and MVP in 1983, when the Orioles won the World Series. This time, he did it with a team that was out of contention by early May.

He becomes only the third player in baseball history to capture the award as part of a losing team. Ernie Banks did it in 1958 and 1959 with the Chicago Cubs and Andre Dawson, also of the Cubs, won it in 1987.

Ripken established career highs in average, home runs and RBIs and was the All-Star MVP after hitting a game-winning homer. One day earlier, he won the All-Star home run contest.

His 1991 postseason awards include player of the year honors from The Associated Press and The Sporting News.

Ripken's consecutive games streak is up to 1,572 — second-best in baseball history behind Lou Gehrig's 2,130 — but this year he proved he is more than merely an iron man.

Ripken's 34 homers made him the eighth player in major league history to hit at least 20 homers in each of his first 10 full seasons. Banks is the only other shortstop to hit .300 with 30 homers and 100 RBIs.

Of all his accomplishments this season, Ripken is most proud of his batting average, which was .49 points higher than his career mark. He didn't dip below .318 after the third day of the season.

"This year I got back to the level of efficiency that I am used to," he said last month. "The best thing about this year was being about to go out and be consistent on a daily basis. My batting average reflects that."

"I'm very happy with the way I played this season. I'm not the kind of player who's going to hit 10 homers in 12 games, but then I wasn't going to go 0-for-50 either. I don't think I went through a slump all year."

Ripken earned a $100,000 bonus on top of his $2.2 million salary. Carter got a $50,000 bonus added to his $3 million salary for finishing fifth.

Another Vitale coming to Notre Dame

Observer Staff Report

"It's time for the diaper dandies, baby!"

College athletic recruiting is in full swing in all sports, and the Notre Dame women's tennis team has already received letters of intent from a core of 'prime-time' players.

Sherri Vitale, daughter of television color commentator Dick Vitale and sister of current Irish sophomore tennis player Terri Vitale, tops the group. Also destined for the Irish squad next year will be Holyn Lord and Wendy Crabtree.

Vitale, the Bradenton, Fla. native, was 31st in the 1990 girls rankings. She won the Florida high school singles title last spring and took the double title as a sophomore in '90 for St. Thomas High School. In 1989, she reached the semifinals of the national indoor amateur championships.

A native of Carmel, Ind., Holyn Lord is currently ranked 33rd in the 1990 girls 16 poll and fourth in the Western Section of the United States. She was the Indiana state champion as a freshman and sophomore while enrolled at Carmel High School.

Terri Vitale

The following year, Lord rolled to a perfect 54-0 record. She did not play prep tennis as a junior after transferring to Brebuef High School in Indianapolis. In 1988 she won the national 14's doubles tournament.

Wendy Crabtree, from Concord, Mass., is currently ranked 42nd in the 1990 Girls 16 poll. An outstanding all-around athlete at Concord-Carlisle High School, she led her prep soccer team to the state title as the leading scorer last season.

As a freshman, Crabtree won the state's high school doubles title and led her school to a team championship as a sophomore. She is ranked third in the New England

Tennis Association poll for her age group.

Women's Basketball Coach Muffet McGraw is also busy recruiting high school talent. McGraw recently signed Stacy Fields, a three year starter from Mounds View High School in Indianapolis who earned North Suburban all-conference honors each year.

Fields, a third-team Street & Smith's prep selection, alternated between guard and forward as a junior, averaging 17.1 points and 7.9 rebounds. The left-handed Fields had 89 assists, 32 steals and 21 blocks last season, leading the Mustangs to a 16-8 record last year.

Fields earned all-Metro honors from the Minneapolis Star-Tribune, and also earned all-Metro honors for the fourth straight year as the Mustangs' soccer goalie.

"Stacy will fit in very well with our program," says McGraw. "She's a great person and player. She'll compliment Michelle (Marciniak) and Audrey (Gomez) and we expect her to step in and make immediate contributions. We're elated to have her join our team."

Irish

Peters led AIA with 18 points, Tolbert added 13 points and five rebounds, and Sherman Williams added nine points and nine boards from his small forward spot.

"Jay really stepped up his play tonight," said Lower.

But the spark for Athletes in Action's comeback was ex-California star Keith Smith. The All-Pac 10 point guard scored seven points during a 14-2 run.

Then, Romar drained two long-range jumpers and Smith added five more points to bury the Irish in a 22-point deficit.

MacLeod. "Defensively I'm not satisfied. We had a lot of turnovers and those mistakes hurt us."

Sweet thinks the Irish will be able to learn from their mistakes.

At the same time, the Irish motion game bogged down in a sea of indecisiveness. In their effort to be unselfish, they were passing up wide-open chances.

"We had good opportunities that we didn't take," added MacLeod.

Notre Dame tried to follow MacLeod's advice late in the game, cutting the Athletes in Action lead down to seven with 4:44 remaining, but then Smith hit two free throws, and pulled up and hit an 18-footer to start a 9-2 spurt that built the lead back to 14 with 1:22 left.

"We made a rush, but they were able to hold us off," said MacLeod.

"We're going to be a really good team," said Sweet, who never got on-track after early foul trouble. "We know exactly where we made our mistakes, so we know what we have to do to improve."

A balanced scoring attack by Jay Peters (18 points), Keith Smith (17) and Lorenzo Romar (16) improved AIA's record to 8-6.

LaPhonso Ellis thunders home a dunk, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Athletes In Action, as the Irish lost 87-76.

A.I.A. outrun, gun Irish 87-76

By DAVE MCMAHON
Associate Sports Editor

Team speed and a 39-14 foul shot advantage combined to shut down an early Notre Dame lead as Athletes in Action rolled past the Irish men's basketball team last night at the Joyce ACC, 87-76.

Forward LaPhonso Ellis led the Irish in their second and final exhibition game with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Freshman Billy Taylor followed with 15 points on 7-of-9 shooting.

After Notre Dame took a 20-12 lead on six points from Taylor and four from Joe Ross, AIA finished the half with a 30-13 run for a 42-33 halftime advantage.

"They spread us out in the first half," said Notre Dame coach John MacLeod. "We were making nice moves, but we had a flurry of turnovers. Then we began to shoot poorly."

In the second half, AIA picked up where it left off, building on an 18-00 stretch in which the Irish were outscored 50-20.

"It was the best job we've done all year with being patient," said AIA coach Dave Lower. "We ran our screens well and had good cuts."

In an attempt to thwart AIA's speed, MacLeod played all 13 scholarship players, but couldn't find a suitable combination. The Irish shot .500 (32-64) but could not find the bottom of the net at crucial times.

After center Keith Tower drew two quick fouls in the first half, MacLeod replaced him with Joe and Jon Ross throughout the remainder of the game. In 13 minutes of action, Tower tallied four points and two fouls. Joe Ross added six points (3-of-4) in 18 minutes of play.

"Quickness was a factor in limiting Tower's time," said MacLeod. "It was a tough cover for him tonight."

Freshman Malik Russell had six points and seven rebounds in 19 minutes of play. Russell and Taylor, both freshman, played much of the second half alongside Elmer Bennett (3-for-10 from the field), Daimon Sweet at small forward.

"We used some different line-ups to get a little quickness," said MacLeod. "We missed some wide open jumps shots and had some good opportunities to shoot that we didn't take advantage of."

Notre Dame, 1-1 in exhibition games, failed to convert on many rebound goals, as the Irish out-rebounded AIA 41-29. Ellis (8-of-14 from the field) made sure he didn't miss on one occasion.

Taking the ball from shin-level in his right hand, Ellis cut AIA's lead to 35-30 on a mammoth windmill dunk.

Foul shots, or lack thereof, plagued the Irish, as they hit only 7-of-14 for the game. AIA took advantage of the bonus situation, as Notre Dame recorded its seventh team foul at 9:24 remaining in the first half and 7:56 left in the second.

Offensively, 19 Irish turnovers allowed AIA to implement its speedy transition game.

Despite a poor team performance, MacLeod said the Irish are not discouraged. Taylor agreed with MacLeod's assessment.

"We have to get a better feel for each other," said Taylor. "We'll keep working at it and soon the open shots will start falling. We're not worried about that."

The Irish open their regular season next Tuesday, hosting Butler at the Joyce ACC.

"We need to settle down, catch a stride and develop a rhythm," said MacLeod. "That's not an easy solution."

Although the seniors played three years of zone defense under Digger Phelps, MacLeod's man-to-man style has been welcomed by the team. Against AIA, the Irish showed that an unfamiliar style can lead to defensive problems.

"We softened up on defense when we got tired," said

Carroll dominates awards

GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Writer

As the smoke from the scandalous interhall football championships finally begins to clear, the Rockne League coaches issued their all-star picks.

And after Carroll Hall suffered the shame of being disqualified, several eligible representatives were honored with the league's most prestigious awards: Tom Sullivan was named league MVP and Marty Organ was voted coach of the year.

While Fisher led the way with 10 players on the All-

Rockne team, Sullivan earned player of the year honors for the second consecutive year for his outstanding play at linebacker and fullback.

Sullivan edged out Fisher QB Rick Ebert by three votes. Despite the close margin Ebert felt that the honor went to the right player.

"He is a good competitor and he plays tough," said Ebert. "He knows the game real well."

Among the many sterling performances Sullivan put forth this year, none shines brighter than his performance against Pangborn in the season's third

How Athletes in Action came away with an 87-76 victory over Notre Dame last night can be described by two plays.

With 12:09 left in the first half, Joe Ross took a nice feed from Elmer Bennett and scored on an easy layup.

Ross' basket capped a three-and-a-half minute span in which the Irish ran off 10 straight points to grab a 20-12 lead, forcing AIA to call a timeout. Notre Dame's motion offense was resulting in easy baskets, and the Irish pressure forced AIA to miss eight consecutive shots.

With 14:03 remaining in the game, Ray Tolbert hit a running hook shot in the lane, capping a 16-3 streak that expanded Athletes in Action's nine-point halftime lead to 22, 62-40.

In that 18-minute stretch, AIA outscored the Irish 50-20, hit 72 percent of its shots (18-25), compared to ND's 39 percent (9-23), went to the foul line 15 times—converting 10—to only one-of-five from the line for the Irish, and forced nine turnovers while committing only three itself.

Quite a turnaround.

"We weren't as quick inside as they were, and they spread us out and drove the ball on us," said Irish coach John MacLeod. "We had good shots; we just weren't able to make them."

Athletes in Action were without the services of 6-9 forward David Wood, who dropped off the squad after Monday night.

And early on, his absence showed. The visitors had trouble scoring inside, missing several lay-ins, while Ross, Billy Taylor and LaPhonso Ellis combined for 17 of Notre Dame's first 20 points of the game.

Without Wood, forwards Jay Peters and Ray Tolbert were expected to take up the slack for Athletes in Action. Both came through.

Irish can't comeback from run

Knott's Kmak named MVP

By ELAINE J.C. DEBASSIGE
Sports Writer

The Blue Division All-Stars and awards for women's interhall football were named, as voted by the coaches, for the 1991 season.

Senior quarterback Ruth Kmak was named Player of the Year for the Blue Division. Mike Huie was voted as coach of the year. Kmak and Huie both hail from the Knott interhall football team. As in the men's Rockne division, one dorm captured both awards.

"I was very surprised," said Kmak. "It was a fun year for Knott football."

Kmak, a senior from Tinley Park, Illinois, was also named to the Blue All-Star team as a linebacker.

"She (Ruth) is very much a team player," said Dana Dillon, a teammate of Kmak's. "She is a talented individual. She brings out the best in others and she is a great leader."

Kmak walked away with the honor over Bethany Riddle from Pasquerilla West, and Kristen Sadie of Lewis, who tied for runner-up. Knott placed six other players on the first team all-star lists.

Huie, a junior from Flanner, led Knott to a 2-3 record for the season, and captured the coach of the year honors.

"He did a really good job with a small team," commented P.W. coach Chip Malin. "He had players play both defense and offense and I think he handled that well."

"This is my third year playing football and we have had many different coaches," explained Dillon. "I was really impressed (with Huie) because he showed a commitment in playing and having fun. Ruth (Kmak) got injured and Mike took time to see that she was taken to the hospital."

The league runner-up Lewis, as well as Pasquerilla West, placed four players on the all-star roster. Both Farley and Siegfried had one representative on the first team.
