Welcome Center begins Master Plan construction

By MOLLY McVOY

This afternoon the imple mentation of the Saint Mary's College Master Plan begins with the groundbreaking ceremony for the Welcome Center and Dalloway's Coffeehouse "I think it's significant that wero beginning with these projects," said Marilou Eldred. he president of the College The Weleome Center will b sisnal to both the internal sind external tommunity tha and external community that These two buildings repre Tol the bulep in the 10 semt Mester plan year Master plan and will be ocated near the corner of Madeleva Drive and The Avenue
"They are both going to be abulous additions to the cam pus in torms of hospitality for visitors and a social space for not only Saint Mary's stu dents, but also for Notr Dame," said Rick Russell, vice president of College relations. "It provides a unique place for students and faculty to continue interacting.
The Welcome Center's blueprints have been finalized and the money for the project has been secured. Jim and Colleen Ryan members of the Saint Mary's Parent Council donat dhe $750,000 necessary for the building.
"I.Jim and II both think it's a wonderful time at Sain Mary's to thance tho pus." Collonn Ryan said "When you colren Ryan said campus, you get this beautiful. tree-lined drive, but no place to get information. There just wasn't a place for a friendly welcome."
Colleen Ryan is a member of the Board of Trustees. Two of the Ryans' daughters graduated from Saint Mary's in 1995 and 1997 and one will graduate in 2000.
The Tudor-style Welcome Center will provide information on the history of Saint Mary's and current campus events.
"The Welcome Center will be an extension of campus hospitality," Russell said. "Its basically a place for people to get directions for places on the campus and in the congregation. There will be an area to display info about the college, the history and current events."
l:Idred agreed that hospitality is the main focus of the Welcome Center.
"IThe Welcome Centerl will represent the hospitality that characterizes the Sisters of the Holy Cross and the College," she said.
Dalloway's Coffeehouse will be serving the same function the old clubhouse near Holy Cross Hall now serves. It will serve as a hosi for sludent performers and speakers and perfer food and coffee Students will handle the managents will handle the management and programming of the coffechouse
"We want it to continue to be the same kind of social gathering for students [that the clubhouse was]," Eldred said.

Prejean: Death penalty opposes human dignity

By KATE STEER
Associate News Editor
A standing room only crowd gathered in 101 Debartolo Wednesday to experience the dynamic speaking abilities and powerful message of Sister Helen Prejean.
Prejean, who authored the Pulitzer Prize-nominated Dead Man Walking, spoke about her experience with the death penalty and death row and offered ways to work to make change in this realm. The death penalty Prejean said is a highly volatile issue. it aften becomes an iscue of justice for the victims, families justice for the victims fapposing human dignity and rights.
"What are we going to do with the outrage we feel?" she asked of the response to heinous crimes though she does not point to the death penalty as the answer. Prejean, a native of Louisiana, is a self-described "Southern storyteller" who began counseling death row inmates in her home state in 1981. Out of this experi ence came the story Dead Man Walking that was published in 1993. It was subsequently made into a movie, which Prejean calls a "miracle film" for bringing the subject to the American public
"The film exists because Susan Sarandon is the midwife of Dead Man Walkine" Preje of Dead Sarandon read the book and pur Sarandon read the book and pursued its production as a movie with the help of director Tim Robbins. Prejean praised the pair for their work for human rights. "If Tim Robbins is going to direct it, Susan Sarandon is going to have the leading role, and Scan

COPS: Live at Notre Dame

Say what you will about the sheltered nature of college students, but one thing they have in common with "the real world" is their distrust of the law. Cops serve in a thankless profession. much like the military, IRS uditors and septic tank epairmen. And although heir validity as "real" police fficers has been challenged lately, they are no less praiseworthy for thei efforts. Even if they do write me a lot of parking violations.
Most of you have your own hometown anecdotes about people who have had less

Dustin Ferrell han happy run-ins with the law, and you realize that our Notre Dame experience pale in comparison. We have it made considering how South Bend's finesi feel about us. (So NDSP, could you, uh, take care of' those tickets for me? No? Well, it was worth a try.)
When the privileged life of a college student shelters him or her from the harsh realities that wait upon graduation, it can help to now and again remind the student how lucky he, or she or it is to be here. In this spirit, I would like to see our beloved flat-foots give us the treatment. we deserve.
To me, one word signifies a beneficial use of the tuition increases: Tasers. Lots of them, the the tuition increases: Tasers. Lots of them, the kind that would put an elephant on its duff. Kind that would put in elephant on its dufl. These toys would help us make great strides in reaching an unprecedented level of respect and obedience. You don t want a ticket? Fair enough 'll turn you into a human night light.
And while we're discussing friendly devices, I'd like to recall the "mini-riot" that occurred last year. One thought kept crossing my mind: why don't they have tear gas? And you think parietals are harsh now. Besides. working at the gate must get rather monotonous, and it would be more fun to fire canisters at students walking from the 'Backer. If there are any questions as to the effectiveness of this happy gas, the Sierra Club and PETA could probably provide thorough testimonials, not to mention videotapes.
But let us not digress to a topic of past columns. I would not suggest that using tear gas or rubber bullets on students would be good in any way, even if we could make some great blooper videos from the whole deal. Our campus law enforcement could accomplish some serious good if they acted in the same manner as socalled "real" cops. Take, for example, the controversial "racial proliling" that occurs in police departments around our nation Regardless of dow immoral you consider this, I want you tu how immoral you considne lhis, I want you consider a new concept: preppie prolling.
Tmilar wic tory but similar logic: statistically speaking, preppies have the most complaints and cause the m trouble with Notre Dame Security Police. Therefore, random checks of vehicles containing preppies would help decrease these incidents and deter them. Just when you thought it was safe to drive around campus in your sport utility vehicle.
"Hey there Chadwick, have you been watching 90210 ? I think you'd better step out of the car.. Fear not. my friends, if you find my ideas about law enforeement a bit faseist, you can tak comfort in knowing that these people will never treat us the way we sometimes deserve

Purdue students continue hunger strike

BLOOMINGTON, Ind
Six students at Purdue University entered day three of a hunger strike in protest of sweatshop labor within the collegiate licensing industry. The students have resigned themselves to not eating and living in tents on Memorial Mall, an open park area in the center of the Purdue University campus.
Ben Partridge, a junior participant said the hunger strike is an effort to pressure the University to join the Worker's Rights Consortium, a facto-ry-monitoring agency.
IU signed on to the WRC on Feb. 18, along with the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin. Since that time, 12 other universities have joined, including Loyola University of Chicago and since October, PSAS has been in discussions with the administration and a committee was formed to assess the issue, according to Purdue's newspaper, The Purdue Exponent.

"We have negotiated with them in good l'aith but we won't allow them o pressure us into joining the WRC. said Joe Bennett, vice president of Purdue University relations
"We haven't ruled it out of course, but our perspective is that we don't know enough about it. Saying that we are stalling is a gross misrepresentation. Presently, our main concern is that no one causes themsolves bodily harm in the hunger strike."
"I am going to stay out here as long as I physically can," commented Partridge. "Beering could end this right now."

Tornado misses TCU campus

FORT WORTH, Texas A tornado that caused extensive damage in downlown Fort Worth Tuesday evening forced Texas Christian University students on campus into basements and lower-level floors of residence halls and buildings. TCU Police reported that the powerful wind caused no damage on campus. During the storm, police olticers evacuated students and staff to the lowest leve f each building said Jon Carter, a TCU police officer. "We sent all of the kids down to the basement in all the buildings," Carter said. "We just got word of the possibility of severe weather and went into action." The majority of the damage sustained occurred in central and northern parts of downtown, according to an Associated Press report. A tornado emergency was in effect as severe thunderstorms brought rain, soltball sized hail and strong winds, according to the report Hall director Bevin Kurtz said she heard about the tor nado after it hit the downtown area. "A resident assis tant made the announcement. and we all went downstairs sounding airhorns on each floor and knocking on doors," she said. "The basement was packed.

Actor Burke doesn't let disability hamper dreams

By KIFLIN TURNER

Chris Burke, best known for his portrayal of "Corky" on the elevision show "I.ife Goes On, knows abrout challenges.
"I was challenged from the day was born," said Burke in a lec lure Wednesday night about his xperiences with Down syndrome. Many members of the audience were so touched by his words that audible moans of sympathy could be heard throughout the lecture hall.
"When I can't do something, ry harder - this sums up my philusophy of life," Burke said.
He recognized his parents and his family members as the keys to his success
"My parents and my siblings dlways did the very best for me - we all worked together," Burke said. "At each step in my ife. I had someone there to encourage me."
Burke identified the imporBuce of education for those who have Down syndrome
"When it came to my aducation. my mom and dad made "ure I had the best", said Bukke le added that ihose with disabiltiese should not be the only abes maranteed an education but sociely as a whole needs to be well rquipped to accept and walude these with dishilitind well.
Remembering his childhood days, Burke pointed out his years growing up in middle and high school as being the most influen tial in terms of increased awareness and education of disabilities.
"It was becoming a time when college students were becoming more aware of different disabilities," said Burke.
As a young adult, Burke said he witnessed the progression of society's acceptance of disabiliies. Burke recalled visits from the Villanova college basketball team to his local high school. Not only were the players making an effort to break down the invisible discriminatory barriers between those who had disabilities and those who dict not, but Burke said "more importanlly, they gave us a leeling of importance." "I learned a lot in those years and knew that when I grew up could pursue my dreams "p aid recalling that his only two goals were to succeed as an actor and wo help others who faced the same difficultics as he lid during childhood did during childhood never gave up on my dream and Hollywood," Burke said in regards to his lirst goal
As for reaching his second goal. Burke has become a spokesperson and advocate for people with the disability through his involvement with the National Down's Society as edi-Lor-in-chief of "News and Views," the group's news magazine.

It made me happy to give them my time and love. I learned how to give because I was given so much," said Burke.
Inclusion, or the formal process of integrating those with disabilities into classrooms with those who do not have disabilities, is a program that Burke supports.
"Inclusion in everyday life is our ultimate goal. We must work hard to achieve acceptance, Burke said. Equally important Burke said that family, friends and society should accept and include those who have disabilities into all social, political and economic circles.
Burke spoke fondly of his expe riences with his first job teaching youth with disabilities
"The best part was that my fellow employees included me and invited me to all social activities. It was great to feel like I was a part of a team," he said "We're entitled to good jobs with good pay."
Burke has spoken before committees of the Senate and Congress in hopes of receiving equal treatment as functional and active citizens.
"We would rather be taxpayers than tax-dependents," said Burke.
Many colloge students a to look beyond disabilities according to Burke
"It's amazing to me, when I go o colleges I me, when I go at the teenagers and college stuat the teenagers and college stu-

abilities, but the abilities," he Burke said

At the same time, Burke recognized the important role of the students attending colleges like Notre Dame and urged those present at the lecture to take a more active role in acceptance.
All of you are role models and I ask you to teach [those with disabilities], accept them and give them a chance to go to school to learn as you are. They need you and you need them, that is what is most important, ?

Burke marched in Clinton's inaugural parade, and in 1994 created a musical trio which has completed three albums. Burke was also nominated for a Golden Globe in 1990, and in 1991 was named as one winner of the "Ten Outstanding Young Americans Award."

Remember, we can do Believe in us as we believe in ourselves, never give up on us and help us do the best we can do," he said.

Elian's dad wants to travel to U.S.

- Castro says dad is 'ready immediately'

Associared Press

HAVANA The l'ather ol Elian Gonzalez is willing to travel to the United States to claim his son and stay with him, his son and stay with him, while their Miami relatives continue a legal battle to keep him, President Fidel Castro said Wednesday night.

Juan Miguel Gonzalez "is ready immediately" to go Florida to take custody of the 6 -year-old boy, Castro said during the surprise announcement made during a live television broadcast. He said the trip was conditional on guarantees that the U.S. government would turn Elian over to his father or at least make a maximum effort to do so.
"The passports are ready," Castro said. "And of course the airplane is ready."
He said that Gonzalez's American attorncy Gregory Craig was seeking U.S. visas for the father and a large entourage, as well as the guarantees the lather had sought.
Castro said that all that Gonzalez was waiting for was final word from his attorney that the guarantees had been delivered. He did not offer any specifies to what city the plane would fly to initially, but said that Gonzalez would wait out the court process with his son in Washington.
The turnabout came at a crucial time - on the eve of the U.S. Justice Department's deadline for Elian’s Miami relatives to sign an agreement promising to give up the boy if they lose their legal appeal.

Ruling hurts nude dancing industry

Associated Press

WASHINGTON
The Supreme Court made it easier for local governments to ban nude dancing in about 3,000 adult clubs nationwide, ruling Wednesday that a stripper's l'reedom of expression can be restricted by be restricted by forcing her to wear pasties and a Gistring.
Nude dancing can be banned in an effort to combat crime and othe harms that adult harms that adult O'Connor entertainment clubs often attract, the justices said in a splintered decision reinstating a public-nudity ordinance in Erie, Pa.
Such dancing is "expressive conduct" but it falls "only within the outer ambit" of the Constitution's First Amendment free-speech protection, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote in the court's main opinion.
The ban promotes Erie's "interest in combating the negative secondary effects associated with adult entertainment establishments,"' such as crime and was not aimed at a dancer's erotic message, O'Connor said.
Although the court's rationale was divided, the decision is sure to have broad impact. Nude entertainment is broad impact. Nude entertainment is featured in about 3.000 adult clubs nationwide, the justices were told nationwide, the justices were told when the case was argued in November.
"We're delighted," said Valerie Sprenkle, Erie's assistant city solicitor. "We didn't ban any expression .. What's being regulated is the means of expression.
Sprenkle said dancers at a nude dancing club in the city "will be required to cover up to the extent required by the ordinance.
John Weston, attorney for the former Eric nude-dancing club owner who challenged the ordinance, said the ruling may lead to a Plurey of ttempts to ban nude dancing but that "sexually oriented businesses will always thrive
Weston said the ruling appeared to leave room for club owners to force governments to "defend their assumptions" that such establishments lead to crime.

Prejean

Penn came on board to play the death row inmate, I thought all the Hollywood studios would go for it," Prejean said. After facing many rejections, the story was picked up by Polygram Films International.
Prejean's support for the project was bolstered by her trust in hope that the film would bring hope that the film would bring the issue to the American consciousness.
"What the film Dead Man Walking did was to reach out to the American people and give them a way to begin reflecting on the death penalty," she said. This achievement has also brought Prejean's work into the public eye, giving her the opportunity to travel internationally to speak on the subject. Her ultimate goal is to turn the tables politically, she said, and abolish the death penalty

On the one hand we hear about innocent people being killed in wanton evil acts where their lives are just cut short, and we feel outraged - it's part of moral sensitivity to feel outraged," she said. "But on the other hand, we have the polls that show that public support for that show that public support for the death penalty is plummetthe ing."
Prejean pointed to the unreliability of the system that hands down the death penalty, stating that currently 87 innocent people have come off of death row since its reinstatement in 1976.
Following the removal of Anthony Porter from death row in Illinois, Gov. George Ryan, who supports the death penalty, imposed a moratorium while the system that has sentenced numerous innocent people to die is investigated.
While 5 states have followed suit and formed initiatives to call for moratoriums, there are other states in which the death penalty is deeply ingrained in the culture.
"We have legitimized vengeance as a part of our culture," she said. "I didn't know I was going to get involved with the death penalty, or walking with people to the electric chair, or with the victims' families, or with the guards who are part oll the execution squads," said

Prejean of her involvement. " got involved by getting involved with poor people."
Ultimately her introduction to he death penalty was incidenta she was approached by a mem he was approached by a member of the Prison Coatition to become a pen pal with a death row inmate. Through this project Phe came to know inmate Patrick Sonnier, whom she evenually went to visit. "Prisons are such places of abandonment." she said. Sonnier's mother visited once but was unable to return because of the trauma it caused.
"He was alone and sentenced to die," said Prejean. "I couldn't believe how human his face was." Prejean continued to visit and became Sonnier's spiritual advisor, and would accompany him iterally to his death.
Alter accompanying 5 people oo their executions, and carrying with her their faces and the faces of victims' families, Irrejean became deeply involved in working to reform the system that imposes such a punishment.

Those who participate in her side of the issue refer to the death penalty as torture, which Amnesty International has defined as "an extreme mental or physical assault on someone rendered helpless." Prejean does not say that all victims' families support the death penalty
"There can be people in this white-hot fire of loss who choose forgiveness," she said social and political change regarding the death penalty. She believes prison reform is essential as well.

"Over 10 years, state legisla tures have been tightening up sentencing for people who are charged with first-degree murder, which is the only crime punishable by death, she said. Prejean said that this is a step toward eliminating superfluous use of the death penalty. Its ineffectiveness is evidenced by the fact that only five percent of those eligible for the death penalty receive it as a sentence, and that of those, a large number end up being released.
In a dialogue with Pope John Paul, Prejean was able to clarify the Church's official stance on the issue, which has recently changed from support of the death penalty to strictly pro-life.
"Modern societies have a way to incapacitate people without imitating their violence," she said.
Prejean was invited to speak by Call to Action Michiana and was sponsored by many local oroups including Amnesty International

Hellrung reflects on homosexuality at 'a place like this'

Senior Alyssa Hellring discusses her experiences as a lesbian in Notre Dame's conservative environment Wednesday.

By BRIAN HOBBINS

News Writer

Breen-Phillips senior Alyssa Hellrung began her lecture entitled "What it Takes to be Honest in a Place Like This" with a powerful image
"Imagine if you woke up one morning and you realized that all the time you thought your cyes were dark brown they saids describing her sexual awakening
The lecture examined homosexuality and activism for gay and lesbian rights at Notre Dame in her lecture Wednesday night in her dorm. "I want to talk about what happened before I started questioning my sexuality," Hellrung said. She discussed her adolescence, which included a normal upbringing. concerns with popularity and a pursuil of the opposite sex. "I was having feelings for women as well, and I didn't know what it meant at that time," Hellrung said.
She dismissed those feelings as a part of her lifelong desire

"I. went through high school and had a lot of boyfriends but for whatever reason I'd always break up with them," Hellrung said.
She also examined the physical side of her heterosexua relationships, remembering shuddering after kissing her boyfriend.
"It was a shudder of repulsion - no offense to you guys," she said. Lator in high school, Hellrung examined her relationship with a female riend in a different light, questioning if she had a crush on her.
"It made me question a lot of my relationships and what was behind them, said Hellrung, adding that such questioning led to some self doubt. "I didn't want to go there, to think that I might be all the way gay.
Hellrung found it hard to alk with her parents about the issue as well
"She Imy moml would say something that would hurt me like this is just a phase" she said.
Hellrung realized that her only way to make an informed decision would be to act on her impulses. She described an encounter with a friend Angie.
"She just knew she was gay," said Hellrung
The friendship led to physical contact and an awakening or Hellrung.
"Over the summer before came here, I realized that I was a lesbian," she said "Then I came to Notre Dame and that is where things got unny.
Hellrung described Notre Dame as being more conservative then she had expected.
"I was going to wait a couple months and get used to life here and then I'd start by coming out to my roommates and then my section mates and that did not work," she said. "It took me about an hour to realize that that wasn't going to work. I had to be honest."
IIonesty has been at the core of Hellrung's activism since then. The spring of Hellrung's freshman year saw an erupion of activism in response to controversy about the Spirit of nclusion A parade and protest for awareness was taged on the steps of the Main Building, where Hellrung's honesty activism made her the most recognized homosexual on campus.
"I am a lesbian at Notre Dame," Hellrung said in front ol' a crowd of 400 .
"People were like - you're so brave to be doing this," Hellrung said before dismissing her stand on the steps as mere honesty. "There is a lo of activism that can be done that way, just by living your life honestly. Everyone can be activists through honesty.
Hellrung also addressed myths about homosexuality and lesbianism at Notre Dame and worldwide
"First myth: Lesbians hate men," Hellrung said.
Other myths focused on the belief that gay people can't be Catholic, that homosexuals try to recruit straight people to "the other side of the fence" or that lesbians want to be men.
"Most of the lesbians I know love being women and love women," Hellrung said.
Hellrung also examined beliefs that coming out to a friend indicates desire and examined studies that claim gay people are miserable.
Hellrung's activism has helped quell the sense of taboo about the issue
"I've seen things change here in the four years I've been here," she said, citing he emergence of suppor groups and information as well as education for resident assistants.
She has even seen a turn around in her parents
"The mind is like a parachute, it doesn't work unless it's open," Hellrung's mother said in support after her daughter's freshman year coming out.
Hellrung argued that change needs to continue

There are people on this campus who do not want me here, or do not want my gay friends here," she said, adding that she hoped her speech and activism would help pass the orch for change after her graduation.
"I'm all about making life more comfortable for me, my gay friends and the gay people coming after me," she said.

Group debates Denny's incident, student center survey

By LAURA ROMPF  Assistant News Editor

Two students involved in the Roseland Denny's incident addressed the Student Senate Wednesday night with concerns about the letter written by the senators supporting the students.
Senior Joseph Ioy and junior Patience Mchenry questioned why the students involved in the incident were not consulted before writing the letter
"First of all, Int it be known that I was not one of the students arrested on February 26," senior Joseph Joy said. "I Was a member of the group that was expelled from the restaurant and I did experience many of the injustices of Wat night.

Also know that this statement is in my behalf, and not on behalf of the entire group. although I do believe many of the other students will have similar opinions of the Student Senates letter concerning the incident," Joy said, who continued by saying that although the Senate's intentions were positive, by not interviewing the involved students their facts and further actions could be negative.
"It is my opinion that, in order for the semate to support the students involved in the ineident, they must first tisten incident. they must first listen to what we have to say." Joy said. "I Tee that the letter was not very well informed. In order for the senate to honestIy say that it stands with the students. it must first consult the students and understand in what capacities it can sup-

Some senators felt that since last week the tetter was just passed "in spirit" and was open to further review, there was no need to rescind the letter.
"We already passed the letter in spirit and if we make a motion to rescind it weakens the letter," said Brendan "owdall, Dillon Hall senator We know what we did and we know how we stand. We did this to support the students. However I feel we should listen to what the involved students have to say."
Knott Hall senator Ed Foy agreed.
"Recalling or rescinding the letter makes it appear like we're not supporting the students," Foy said.
However, other senators disagreed.
"We should recall the letter and get a clear understanding and get a clear understanding of what happened so that the actions we the "" be in line with the students, said Zahm Hall senator Ryan Becker. "We messed up last week and instead of trying to save face here so we don't look bad, we should just fix the situation,"
"I feel we should recall the letter and get the facts straight. We should go ou there with these students and get the facts clear, said Cimarron Gilson, Sorin sena tor.
Mcllenry seconded Joy's feelings that the senate should have consulted the students involved in the incident.
"We just have three main problems with the letter. First of all, we were unsure what was meant by an open letter," McHenry said "Does thi Mchen it will simply be kept on mean it will it bly be kept ple in South Bend'?
ple in South Bend?
"Second is consultation. No Second is consultation. N one ever talked to the peopl directly involved. We are not attacking the spirit of the let ter," McHenry continued. "We feel the spirit is awesome. We are not saying this was done for selfish reasons. Our problem is it came from a blind source and that you all were not informed.
"Lastly, there was some wording in the letter that was not conducive to the facts.
Overall, because the letter had already been sent out to three separate groups, the senate resolved to form a committee of old senators, new senators and involved students to make revisions to the letter before it would be sent on to further involved parties. Joy and McItenry agreed to the resolution.

"Because the letter has already been sent to the Roseland Police Department, the St. Joseph's County Police Department and Denny's, I realize that recalling the letter is not possible," Joy said. "But I do ask that the letter not be further distributed until it is revised."
He added that he was glad the senate chose to support the students involved in the incident.

- The meeting ended the terms of the 1999-2000 senators as well as student body vice-president Michael Palumbo.
- Christopher Anderson, Keough Hall president, and Luciana Reali, student body secretary, presented the results of the student survey on a new student center.
"We have been analyzing information over the past months and collecting student opinion on the issues." Reali said "This is the first time that the students have been consulted regarding a building issue, so we are very excited."
- Senate unanimously passed three more resolutions, one regarding the use of flex points at the Alumni-Senior Club, one regarding the destruction of Stepan Center and a final one regarding the use of Farley Hall as a student entertainment facility. The facility would play 70 s music on the first floor. 80 s on the second, 90 s on the third floor and a mix of Marvin Gaye and Barry White on the fourth floor.

Memory lapses in the White House

Press accounts in the past lew days have yielded yet another mention about the forgetfulness of the guys at 1600 . The latest "oops" concerns Al Gore's e mails. Despite having invented the Internet, it seems that $A$ is a klutz (color me shocked) when it comes to using email. At least we are to believe that to explain why Al and Justice Department Investigators, can't recover six years of recover six years of e-mails covering the e-mails covering th period when there period when the question about fund raising improprieties at the White House.

Cappy Gagnon

Six years - and Richard Nixon got skewered for a 16 minute lapse on his secretary's transcription tape. I bet old Tricky Dick wished he had done the Gore mancuver on those White House tapes.
Gore is the same guy who gave an impassioned speech (his lip doesn't quiver quite as well as Bill's, when he's sharing your pain, but he's working on it) about how his sister died of lung cancer, because of cigarettes. This was a powerful personal message, which attracted a lot of media coverage - and public symlot of $m$ pathy.
Unfortunately for AI, it attracted so much coverage, that someone was able to dredge up a televised and equally impassioned, speech Al had delivered, shortly after the death of his sister. telling voters in Tennessee "I have always been, and will always be, a tobacco farmer." When this discrepancy was pointed out, Al claimed that he had temporary amnesia because of his sister's death (I'm not making this us). Gore also forgot to remember that his visit to a

Buddhist Temple was a fund-raiser, even though he came away with buckets of cash. He pointed out that there was no controlling legal authority in the Clinton Administration. Maybe I'm misquoting him a bit, but the idea is the same
In Monday's papers (I'm not making this us), Gore said he did not remember his staff' people talking about fund raising at the temple. He claimed that he was drinking a lot of iced tea that day, and he may have been in the bathroom at the time of the discussions about fund raising (Lipton won't want to put that in their (Lipton wont commercials!.
During the recent primaries, Bill Bradley's folks unearthed some letters to constituents and Congressional votes showing that Al had once been a "believer" in the "right to life" position. Bradley pointed this out in an attempt to weaken Gore's popularity with the abortion crowd. Didn't work. Al can't remember.
If George W. can quit tripping over his feet in time to defeat Gore, I recommend Al consider a career in car sales, as Joe. Isuzu, Jr.
Now where could AI have picked up this memory loss problem? How about from Bill and Hill?
I was thinking about the contrast between the President during my youth, Dwight Eisenhower, and the current occupant of the White House. Ike played football and boxed, at West Point; Clinton played footsie in his boxers in the West Wing. Eisenhower went to England to invade Europe to serve his country; Bill went to England to evade serving his country. Advantage: Ike.
If we had to depend on Bill to do some of the things Ike did, this essay would be filled with umlauts.
Bill seems to have also suffered memory loss while at Oxford, because he forgot to graduate, and couldn't remember if he ever got a draft notice. And, according to Monica Lewinski. Bill couldn't remember her name, while he was not having sex with her.
Bill also couldn't remember why one of his underlings (Craig Livingston) had 1,000 FBI files on Republicans. This pathetic, sacrificial underling himself couldn't remember who got him his White House job, even though it was a considerable step up from his other prior employment: II) Checker in a tavern. (Chuck Colson, an aid to President Nixon, served six months in Federal Prison for improperly having one FBI file, during the Watergato eral
Some sources claimed that the First Lady was the person who put Livingston in his joh. You can see why she couldn't remember, since she couldn't remember how she was able to earn $$ 100,000$ in her lone day of future's trading. Then she couldn't remember how her Rose Law Firm's billing records "turned up" one day, in a private sitting room, in the White House!
Bill Clinton promised "the most ethical administration in history." He delivered the most forgetful.
The past eight years have been very good for the economy and there have been no foreign enemies at our shores (unless you count the Chinese spies in our nuclear labs and the Clinton fund ruisers who fled back to Chinal so the Clinton-Gore cra deservedly should get lome high mars in the history booke but when all the chapters are completed, but when all the chapters are completed, we may learn that Ronald Reagan wa memory malady.

Letters to the Editor

All we need is a Christian candidate

[ïrst of all, I must admit that I have been one of the many quietly complacent students here. However, things I have seen recently in The Observer have finally brought me to action in writing. I have two purposes within this letter
The first is to set a lew things straight with Mike Marchand. I was irst incensed when I read his March 6 column decrying gun control. was close to writing, but again, my complacency got the better of me. L.uckily, the March 9 issue included a very good relutation for Marchand's arguments. Ryan Davis took the words out of my mouth (Marchand, why in the heek not have "smart guns" which could take over where human error and innocent irresponsibility take over? If only one life is saved, it is more than enough to justify the law.) Marchand's arguments remind me of a friend of mine back home who would support the right at all times (his family believed George $W$ who would support the right at all times (his family believed George $W$ too liberal). On the subject of George W. Marchand wrote another column which requires an answer. For one thing, I wonder how someone as porti-catholicism" "wer ast Republicans have visited the and anti-Catholicism," even after past Republicans have visited the place in previous years. I'm not saying that GW is a racist, but I am jus saddened if he is really willing to sell out on Catholics to court the far right (and equally so if the Democrats do the same thing.)
Maybe he genuinely didn't know about-BJU, but if he did, he shouldn't have identified his party with it. Mr. Marchand's assertion that Bush has the support of Catholics in the "millions of Hispanic Catholics" in Texas is simply wrong. As a Hispanic Catholic from San Antonio, I know this is certainly not the case. As the GOP goes, he is making significant headway with some Hispanics, but he is a far cry from the support that Marehand implies. To a very large extent, Mexican- Americans identify themselves with the Democratic party. even to this day. Ilis winning Texas was not due to the Iispanies, but due to the state's strong GOP base.
This brings me to my second point, a point which I share with A.J. Boyd (as seeen in "Inside Column," on Marel 28), that I find "offensive .. those who replace "Catholic" in their personal philosophies with ideas like 'conservative" or 'uniformity' and think the difference is negligible." His words have linally Julled me out of my complacency to write (I would first like to make clear that I do not categorize Marchand in this group; it would be unfair of me to as I do not fully know all of his political stances).
I think it is absolutely sickening to see a Catholic sacrifice his or her beliefs in favor of a party or ideology. A case in point was the Democratic U.S. Representative primary two years ago in my home district. The primary, of course, was essentially the election because in my largely Hispanic district, the GOP hardly stands a chance. Both Democratic eandidates were visible and prominent Hispanic Catholics However, both were ardently "pro-choice." How can any Catholic run on such a platform? Similarly, how can any Catholic support capital punishment as the GOP does?
The sadder thing is that, even in largely Hispanic Catholic districts, the voters don't seem to care that they are electing a Catholic whose platforms directly contradict one of the absolute most sacred teaching of faith, or they are faced with electing a lesser of two evils. It is sad when people let ideology shape what they believe, when Christians are expected to put their faith above all else.
I think it is kind of interesting that Father Bill Seetch put in an article on Mareh 28 also trying to give us a wake up call. I remember talking with him a fow months back expressing my political frustration. I told him that I could not be a Republican because of their positions on gun control (or lack thereof) and on capital punishment (i.e. "the way wo do things in Texas"). However. I could not consider myself a Democrat because of the party's oflicial disregard for life's sanctity in abortion. He told me that he agreed with me, and was very helpful.
I wonder why there can't be a politician (maybe even a president?) who puts his or her Christian beliefs above the party and political arona, when applicable (for instance in issues of abortion, debt relief and capital punishment). Why can't there be a politician who will not sell out to BuJ or to racism in AI Sharpton (if what is said about him is true?) I think that there must be somebody out there reading this who is called into polities and who also is strong in faith.
I personally don't know if I am, but be assured that I must and intend to answer whatever calling I receive. I hope that more people in the church, laity and clergy will encourage its members to seek politics as a way to set things right, in accord with the universal ideals found in Christianity, and in reality, all faiths (respect for life, helping others almost to a socialistic point and safeguarding peace, to name a few.) Thope that someone will answer this call to be a true good servant o this country, but a first servant of God and all people. That way, we won't have to choose between the less repulsive of the platforms. I heard Father Seetch say this once, and I hope other priests may echo this, "get your rear end into politics!" if you are so called. Do not neglect your vocation

ND security police insult was unfair

NDSP is fair buffer from
"real world"

In response to Jeremy Beau's letter on March 27. I'd like to point out that the Notre Dame Police Department is not just a nuisance. Notre Dame Security is a buffe from the South Bend "real" police that may be underappreciated by Jeremy.
The South Bend Police would have been just as gla to hand you a ticket if you had been in their jurisdic tion. Also, Notre Dame Security usually refers students detained for such offenses as public drunkenness and even worse offenses directly to the University. If Notre Dame Security wanted, they could just hand you over to the South Bend Police, where you would be prosecuted like the adult you are, do a night in lock-up and have a permancnt mark on your manent mark on your buffer from the "real" police that Notre Dame Security pro that Notre Dame Security pro-

Blatant whine about security police

This is for Jeremy Beau and his recent comments directed toward the Notre Dame Security Police (NDSP). For those of you who missed his commentary, it boils down to this he and some friends of his broke a bunch of rules set down by the University (and one local ordinance) and was irked by the audacity the NDSP showed in attempting to enforce these rules. If your goal was to come off sounding like a spoiled trust fund brat who requires that he get his way, then congratulations. You fit the mold. You did things you knew were wrong and were punished in not unexpected ways. I do not endorse the NDSP as endorse the Nof law enforcement, but this is not about them. It is about you, and your decision to consider yourself better than all those who follow simple rules, rules follow simple rules, rules such as where you are persuch as where you are per mitted to park. The simple fact that you got not one, but three tickets for parking in a visithree tickets for parking in a visitor's lot demonstrates that either you're not too bright, or you think you're important enough to park next to signs that, for you, read "Do Not Park Here Or You Will Get A Ticket."
You ought to work these things out for yourself and quit your whining.

Proving we are a "family"

1 wish to praise the actions of all Notre Dame students and I know I am not just speaking for mysclf. I am sure many were equally shocked and pleased at the turnout today
Thank you! To all who came to show their support for Conor Murphy: I have never been so proud to be a part of the Notre Dame community as I am today.
The way that students have responded to one of our own in need is overwhelming. I stood today in LaFortune and felt tears sting my eyes as I saw how many students came to show their support for Conor Murphy. Hundreds more students than the local Junior League volunteers could handle turned out for the bone marrow drive today at LaFortune. It is a shame that people had to be turned away.

I want to thank everyone who came today to show their love and support for a fellow Notre Dame student. I thank God that I am here amongst so many wonderful people. We should all be proud of the Notre Dame family today. Thank you.

Ending of 'Gate’ leaves its audience behind

By MATT NANIA  ssistant Scenc Eiditor

When one looks at the early career of director Roman Polanski, they are likely (o) be struck with awe. This is alter all, the man who gave us two of cinema's classics: "Rosemary's Baby" and "Chinatown,"
In later years, though, his work has been competent, but not quite as spectacular. With "The Ninth Gate," polanski shows us that he's still got his directing chops - to some extent. This is a superemely intelligent movie which despite its languid quality draws quality, draws its atudience into a sim istor world of demonic lore. With a very absorbing opening eredit first weaving an perie gothic labric first. Weaving an cerie, gothic rabric around its characters. Sady, its veiled ending nearly ruins the film completeIV.

The story introduces the audience to Dean Corso (Johany Depp), an unscrupulous rare book expert who will do almost anything to procure rare books for resale Corso is contracted by one of his prestigious clients, Boris Balkat (Frank langella in creepy (amp glory). to authenticate a volume of "The vine Ciates of the Kingdom of the Shadows." a satanie tome rumored to conjure the Dark Lord himself: Traveling from New York City to Portugal and Prance. Corso comes across two alternate versions of the book, each containing new secrets for unlocking the key to summon Satan.
"The Ninth Gate"

out of five shamrocks
Director: Roman Polanski Starring: Johnny Depp, Frank Langella and Lena Olin

Soon the owners of these other copies are murdered and Corso finds himself caught up in a labyrinth of deception and danger that includes being hunted by the widow (Lena Olin) of the book's original owner and being followed by a mysterious woman (Emmanuelle Seigner) with supernatural powers.
"The Ninth Gate" is extremely well crafted. Adapting the film from the novel "EI Club Dumas" by Arturo Pere\% Reverte, Polanski produces an effectively dark and otherworldly atmosphere without resorting to trite shadows-and-fog effects. Polanski's strengths as an auteur - his dry wit Hitchcock-ian camera movement striking visual imasery and an engrossing broodins narrative - are engrossion bur all on display here.

The movic deals heavily with the occult, yet Polanski never once stoops to cheap theatrics as were used in "such films as "End of Days" and "Stigmata." There are no monsters coming out of the depths of hell or spells. Polanski keeps everything in the low-key style of a classic film-noir who-done-it.
And, despite a few slow spots, the pacing of the story is nearly perfect. A mystery centered on books should unfold at a tempo different from the pell-mell acceleration of today's thriller Depp's perlormance is solid as usual, capluring a man driven by a force he can't control. Nothing seems impossible for Depp as an actor. He can lend himself to a filmmaker's most fantastical ("Sleepy Hollow") or

Johnny Depp stars as Dean Corso, a rare book expert caught in the middle of a dangerous scheme, in Roman Polanski's supernatural thriller "The Ninth Gate."

Abstract

poetic ("Dead Man") conceptions and turn into the embodiment of those stories, anchoring them to earth. From the first scene, as he cons a greedy bourgeois couple out of a book collection. Depp is right in tune with Polanski's dry malice. It remains, however, that these elements aren t enough to salvage a film that teases its audience for two hours only to thumb its nose at them in the end. Surely, after such a mysterious journey, the least one can hope for is some sort of tangible pay-off.

Since "The Ninth Gate" plays like a marginally entertaining detective story, the overall enjoyment of watching the film would have been greatly heightened had it not left so many questions unanswered. Why did the original owner of the book hang himself? Who is killing whom? Who is the mysterious woman? What is the Ninth Gate?
For all its seemingly careful plotting and Polanski's eye for quirky detail the film's ultimate revelation seems too much like an afterthought, making the movie a lengthy joke without a clear punchline.

Julia Roberts' "Erin Brockovich" dominated the box office last weekend, raking in an impressive $$ 18.5$ million in its second week of release. Roberts' movie-star appeal and Universal's marketing blitz guaranteed "Brockovich's" success. "Romeo Must Die," Warner Bros.' attempt at recreating "The Matrix's" box-office numbers, did moderately well in attracting martial-arts fans. "Mission to Mars," Touchstone's high-budget sci-fi extravaganza, brought substantially less box-office receipts in its third weekend of release. Negative word-of-mouth and misleading previews contributed to the film's decline in attendance. Multiple Oscar-nominees "American Beauty" and "The Cider House Rules" benefitted from their inclusion in the Academy Award's Best Picture race, bringing in $$ 4.1$ million and $$ 2.8$ million, respectively.

Lakers 108, Grizzlies 99

Kobe Bryant scored 28 points to help the Los Angeles Lakers reach the 60 -win plateau for the second time in three seasons, pounding the Vancouver Grizzlies 108-99 Wednesday night.
The victory gave the Lakers a 0-12 record and a magic number of five to clinch home-court advantage throughout the playffis. It also was the secondastest the Lakers have recorded 60 wins, trailing only the 1971-72 team. which won 69 games.
All five Lakers starters scored in double figures, but it was Bryant who set the pace. He hit 7 -of- 10 from the field in the first half, and ended with four steals and six rebounds to lead Los Angeles to its 26 th win in 27 outings Shaquille 0'Neal added 19 points and had eight assists. mproving his average of 3.7 assists per contest.

Anthony Mason had 22 points,
10 rebounds and eight assists to lead the Charlotte Hornets to a 98-91 victory over the Detroit Pistons in a battle of two of the East's hottest teams Wednesday.
The Hornets now lead the Pistons by three games in the race for the No 6 seed in the Eastern Conference playoffs.
The win extended Charlotte's winning streak to four games and took some of the luster off Detroit's 4-1 West Coast trip. David Wesley added 18 points David Wesley added points Campbell had 16 points and 13 Campbell had 16 poinls and 13 with 26 . Grand Jory Stroit with 26 and Jerry Stackhous dded 19
Detroit led by as many as 13 points in the second quarter but seven points from Mason in the period got the Hornets within 47-43 at the half. Stackhouse had 14 in the half, while Mason had 12.
Charlotte took its first lead of the game, 60-57 midway through the third by using a 60 run. But John Crotty's 3-pointer and a driving layup by Grant Hill let the Pistons regain a 71 69 advantage by quarter's end. Charlotte opened the fourth period with a 5-0 run, taking the lead 74-71 with 10:16 to go After Hill's two free throws, the Hornets increased their edge to 79-73 with a three-point play by Todd Fuller and two foul shots by Eddie Jones.
Charlotte led by as many as seven, but Hill's three-point play finished a rally that brought Detroit within 84-83 with 5:44 to go. The Pistons got no closer as the Hornets scored the next four points from the line

Nuggets 101, Wizards 93

Nick Van Exel, who went scoreless on 0 -for- 7 shooting in the first half, found the range after halftime and finished with 26 points as the Denver Nuggets defeated the Washington Wizards 101-93 Wednesday night.
Van Exel led a 16-0 thirdquarter run that put Denver ahead for good as the Nuggets salvaged a $2-2$ split from their four-game road trip.
Rookie James Posey scored a carcer-high 25 points and matched a career high with nine rebounds. and Antonio McDyess had 24 points and 12 rebounds for Denver. Mitch Richmond scored 22 points for the Wizards, whose late-season surge hit a serious roadblock with a 36 percent shooting performance. Washington had won five of its previous six.
The Wizards led 60-52 with 5:55 to go in the third period when Van Exel started the 16-0 spurt with a 21 -loot jumper. By the time the run was over, Van Exel had added a 3 -pointer, a fadeaway 19 -foot jumper at the shot clock buzzer and a pair of free throws to make the score 68-60

Portugal, Schourek lose positions with Reds, Pirates

Abstract

Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates found thei filth starter, forcing Mark Portugal and Pete Schourek to look for new jobs Three days after announcing that Portugal was their fifth starter, the Reds changed their minds and released him Wednesday. The Pirates did the same to Pete Schourek, who thought he had earned the No 5 spot in Pittsburah's rotation with strong outing a day before The about-face stunned Portugal rotation replavemed Portugal, rotation replacemen Rob Bell. and a clubhouse full of teammates who thought the pitching staff was set Portugal's rough outing on Tuesday prompted general manager Jim Bowden to change his mind. "Bewildered is probably the best word I can come up with. right-hander Pete Harnisch said. "Shocked is probably another one Portugal had a 4.50 ERA when Bowden announced tha he'd won the fifth starter's job His Tuesday outing raised it to 6.00. still the second-lowest in a rotation that has struggled this spring. "They didn't really get into some of the reasons but I just think the timing of it is leind of weird," Portugal said Convinced that Schourek was Convinced that Schourek wa no longer the pitcher who won 1995. the Pirates released Schourek and gave rookie lelthander Jimmy Anderson the job. Only one day earlier. Schourek, who is guaranteed $$ 2$ million, seemed to have secured a spot in the rotation by limiting a Minnesota split squad to two runs in six innings, his best start this spring.

"I'm confident I can pitch," said Schourek, 4-7 with a 5.34 ERA last season. "They told me it was a numbers game. The $$ 2$ million apparently didn't mean anything.
Owner Kevin McClatchy gave general manager Cam Bonifay permission to cat Schourek's contract if he and manager Gene Lamont felt the Pirates were better with Anderson in the rotation
Their spring numbers were nearly identical. Schourek was 2-1 with a 5.40 ERA and eight strikeouts in 20 innings and Anderson was 3-1 with a 5.17 ERA and nine strikeouts in 15 2-3 innings.
"I'm not real worried about the baseball side of Schourek said. "I thought I threw well this spring and worked out some things I had problems with last season. I think I'll have a productive season for somebody
At Jupiter. Fla.. Mark McGwire was removed with stiffness in his back in the third inning of the St. Louis inning of the Si verdinals, 3-1 win over the Montreal Expos.
McGwire was replaced by a after drawing a walk in the third inning.
"He just said he felt achy all over and couldn't get loose," manager Tony La Russa said. "He could have scored in the first inning, but he said he just couldn't run well enough. Outlielder J.D. Drew was hit on his right pinkie by a pitch from Scott Strickland in the sixth inning. His status was uncertain.
"We'll know more in the morning," La Russa said. "He seems to be 0K.

Where's the Love?  by Frank Santoni

I often find myself thanking God: for a new day, for the sunshine (or more often, for the rain), for my family, for my friendships. I thank God for my wife's good health during our pregnancy. I thank God for my mom's recovery from lung cancer. I thank God, too, for the opportunity to live and work in an energizing community like the one I have found at Notre Dame. I thank God for my dogs, for my home, for Troy Murphy. The list could go on and on, and usually does. God gives us countless reasons to be grateful everyday and, as the familiar response from mass goes, we are right to give God thanks...and praise.

Praise. Praise? What about praise? It's clear how we give God thanks, but how do we give God praise? The words "praise" and "thanks" are not synonyms. While we thank God for things, we do not praise God for anything. We just praise God, period.

Consider this. What if God wasn't a God that answered prayers? Would that make God any less God? Or what if we couldn't easily recount the significant points in our lives at which God blessed us beyond expectation? Would God, then, cease to be as worthy of our adoration? Or what if during our moments of greatest need, God hadn't eased our hearts in a moment of divine peace or embraced us through the arms of a loved one? Would we worship God any less heartily? In other words, do we ever praise God simply for being, well...God?

See, there's a big difference between praising God and thanking God. You may think I'm getting picky with my terminology, but I think the distinction runs to the heart of our relationship with God Our thankfulness is a natural response to recognizing God's fingerprint on our daily lives. Our praise, on the other hand, is our heart's cry in reaction to God's unconditional, unmerited love for each of us. To praise God is to stand in awe of God, acknowledging that we are incapable, through our words or actions, of increasing or diminishing the love and mercy God has already bestowed upon us.

If you have read this far, you may be willing to take yet another step toward deepening your understanding of just how we can praise God in our daily lives. This Saturday, Campus Ministry again will be sponsoring "No Greater Love...a Notre Dame day of prayer, music and renewal." No Greater Love is a day of praise. The day's activities will offer plenty of ways to lift up our praise to God through prayer, music and sharing. Frs. Jim Lies, CSC and Bill Wack, CSC will lead us through the day with personal stories and dynamic preaching. Paul Hillebrand, a renowned composer and musician from Arizona, with the help of the Notre Dame Celebration Choir will lead us in music and worship. Students will share honestly about their own faith journeys through talks, songs, drama and in small discussion groups. We've invited some of our community's most exciting professors and rectors to share about their faith in small group workshops on a wide variety of topics.

No Greater Love is designed for you to be able to come and go as you please. The day will get underway at South Dining Hall at 10:00 a.m. If you come in the morning, I can almost guarantee you will want to stay the whole day. Its fresh format has elements that appeal to everyone, so invite your friends. The sacrament of Reconciliation will be offered in the afternoon and the closing mass will begin at 4:30 p.m. Check out the advertisement tomorrow in the Observer to get more details on the schedule.

God certainly deserves both our thanks and praise. This Saturday we are presented with an awesome opportunity to do both in new and exciting ways. Take this invitation and pass it on to a friend. Together, we can raise our voices in songs and prayers of praise because there exists no greater love than the love that God has shown us through Jesus Christ, our Lord.

Owners vote to keep instant replay next year

Associated Press

PALM BEACH
Instant replay is getting so popular among NFL owners that they may want to keep it for good.
Teams voted 28-3 to continue the system reinstated last season. Replay, which returned after a seven-year absence, will be exactly the same Coaches will get two challenges per game, and a replay official can stop play on his own for a challenge in the last two minutes of each half
The vote emboldened its proponents, particularly among the coaches.
"Next year is the pivotal year," said Minnesota's Dennis Green, the new co-chairman of the competition committee. "If things go smoothly next season, it may be time to put it in on a permanent basis."
That may be hard
Replay, first instituted for the 1986 season, has always been renewed on a yearly basis, both from 1987-91 and the past two years. That has meant it needs three-fourths of the teams, currently 24 of 31 , for approval. If it goes in permanently, it would take threefourths of the teams to repeal it, a step many may not be willing to take given some of the controversial calls last season.
Cincinnati and Arizona also voted against it for the second straight year. Kansas City replaced the New York Jets as the third dissenter.
"Human nature doesn't change, and it's humans who run these marhines," said Cincinnati's Mike Brown, who has voted against replay every time it has been proposed.
"I voted for it last year to give a chance," said Kansas City's Lamar Hunt, another consistent anti-replay owner. "I didn't think it worked any better than it had before.
Commissioner Paul Tagliabue was noncommittal.
"That doesn't matter to me today," he said when asked about making replay permanent. "We made the right decision for this year."
Owners also passed a new rule mandating fines for celebrations by two or more players. The vote on that was $30-0$ with one abstention, the St. Louis Rams, whose players pioneered the "bob and weave" celebration on route to their Super Bowl victory.
"The coaches said across the board that players on their teams regarded it as provocative," Tagliabue said. "The coaches felt it was very negative to spend time before a game trying to cool players down. They felt there was no need for it to be an issue in the no need for
In additional action, the NFL voted to consolidate its Internet presence into NFL.com. Internet revenue will be equally divided among the 31 teams, just as television revenues are, for the next two years, then the issue will be reviewed.
"Many felt it was as important as in 1961. selling the TV rights as a national package," Tagliabue said. "The difference was that was permanent and this was for two years.
The NFL discussed scheduling for 2002, when Houston enters the NFL. Tagliabue said there was some discussion of adding one team in each conference to the playoffs, expanding it to 14 teams.

Agassi squeaks past Henman in tiebreaker

Associated Press

The ball floated to Andre Agassi's backhand side, offering him a fat target.
Tim Henman charged the net one last time, desperate to pressure a mistake, but by now it was clear Agassi couldn't be ratteed. He calmly yanked his shot crosscourt for a winner. then punched the air with both fists to celebrate the knockout.
With considerable cool and a little luck, Agassi overcame four match points in a sloppy but thrilling tiebreaker Wednesday to edge Henman 7-5, 1-6, 7-6 (10) in the quarterfinals of the Ericsson Open.
"To win a match like that, you feel kind of proud." Agassi said. Henman, rushing to the net at every opportunity, was one point from an upset victory at 6 5. 8-7. 9-8 and 10-9 in the tiebreaker. He served once with a match point and squandered that chance by double-faulting into the bottom of the net.
"It wasn't the ideal time." Henman said. "But that's the way it goes."

Agassi had a match point at 7 -

6 but punched an easy return into the net. He then sharked a forehand at 7-7 but escaped and won the final three points "I got a little lucky," Agassi said. "I knew held put pressure on me. That's why he's so good."
In women's play, top-seeded Martina Hinges and No. 7 Monica Soles easily advanced and will meet in the semifinals Thursday. Hings, the 1997 champion, eliminated Amanda Coetzer 6-3. 6-1. Soles, seeking her third title at Key Biscayne but her first since 1991, beat Amy Frazier 6-(), 6-3. Agassi, bidding for his fourth Key Biscayne title, will have a well-deserved day of before playing in the semifinals Friday against sixth-seeded Gustavo Kuerten, who eliminated unseeded Wayne Ferreira 6-3 6-1.

Attention Students, Faculty and Staff

At its meeting on Thursday, March 23, 2000, the University Committee on Computing and Information Services (UCCIS) met and discussed the impact that a program named "Napster" is having on University computing resources. As many of you are aware, "Napster" is a computer program that acts as an intermediary between computer users who wish to find and trade music files. Use of the program has raised serious concerns about network system security, security of personal computers systems, computer resource (bandwidth) management, intellectual property and copyright violations at college campuses across the country, causing nearly two hundred universities to prohibit use of the "Napster" program on their systems.

The UCCIS is concerned about these issues as well as the resultant cost to students, faculty and staff. Because conservative estimates suggest that between $25-40 \%$ of ResNet traffic is "Napster" use, the UCCIS has recommended that the Office of Information Technology immediately implement a moratorium on "Napster" and similar programs. Accordingly, and consistent with the policy on Responsible Use of Information Technologies at Notre Dame, we have directed OIT to immediately implement measures to prevent usage of this type of software.

The UCCIS believes that the moratorium is necessary so that core University academic and administrative computing needs can be met and so that an actual determination can be made of the impact of the use of "Napster" on campus. The UCCIS anticipates that the moratorium on the use of such programs could become permanent at a later date.

Please know of our appreciation for your understanding and recognition of the need to appropriately provide for and protect the University's academic and administrative computing needs.

By BRIAN KESSLER

NEW YORK Following Notre Dame's victory over BYU last week, firstyear head coach Matt Doherty hinted that he probably would have traded an NIT Championship for a first round loss in the NCAA Tournament. Wednesday he changed his mind.
"After experiencing this tournament and the first-class manner in which it is run, I wouldn't," Doherty said at a press conference held at the Marriott Marquis in New York. "The exposure we ve gotten on ESPN and the exposure our players have gotten in a tournament setting is invaluable for a young team "

"It's kind of neat playing an ACC team [Wake Forest]," said Doherty who played in the ACC for North Carolina. "It brings back some memories, but our players aren't old enough to remember those days so I don't want to sound like the old coach living in the past. We want to create some new memories."

His wide blue eyes stretched open far enough to catch every play on the court. His alert body bounced up and down in a defensive stance primed to stave off an opponenl's drive. His arms waved back and forth, warning the opposition that any hot or pass would have to get by him first.
Penn State didn't listen to any of the warning signs, attempting, instead, to lob the ball past Irish guard Matl Carroll into the paint in Tuesday's game against Notre Dame. But Carroll was ready. He leapt high into the air, intercepting the pass and batting it into his own hands. He then tossed it down courl to teammate Martin Ingelsby for a lay-up.
Now the Nittany Lions wish they had managed to avoid that Insson on how potent Carroll's defense can be. Carroll grabbed a careerhigh lour steals and added live defensive rebounds to assist the Irish in their $73-52$ assist the Irish in their 73-52 victory.

You look at Matt Carroll getting all those rebounds last night, and that's something that we ve had to bring out of him as a coaching staff," Notre Dame head coach Matt Doherty said. "He had five defensive rebounds which is something we
