College Spirit.
(A Serious Essay for Freshmen.)

Coach Rockne was right in emphasizing loyalty as the true interpretation of college spirit. But shouting for the team is only one expression of loyalty: praying for the team is another, and the team appreciates it. Hard study, clean sportsmanship, gentlemanly conduct and the development of spiritual power are things Notre Dame stands for: the loyal Notre Dame man stresses them in his personal life, and no Notre Dame is one hundred per cent without them.

The Sense of Humour.

The sense of humor is a gift of God. Since all our perfections are participations of Divine Perfection, the nearer we come to God the stronger should be our sense of humor. Cheerfulness and good nature, particularly under adversity, mark the daily communicant.

Restitution.

Every well-instructed Catholic knows that he cannot receive absolution for a violation of the seventh commandment without promising to restore the ill-gotten goods or make good the unjust damage done to his neighbor. And yet, according to the S.A.C. Bulletin, students still wreck street cars, and let the S.A.C. pay the bill.

Holy Communion after Eight O'Clock.
