More Objections to Holy Communion.

Fear of Confession.

"It was a brave man who first ate an oyster." It's like eating olives or grapefruit for the first time, or taking a cold shower. Get used to it and you'll want to go to confession all the time.

Fear of Unworthiness.

Leave that to the Pope. Holy Communion is an aid to virtue, and not a reward for virtue. Go to become good, not because you are good.

"I Feel better going once a month."

Feeling is not religion. There are certain sects, particularly among the negroes, that place religion in the feelings, but God placed it in the intellect and the will. Emotion may aid, but leave them as ~~means to an end, and do not make them the end.~~ Would you starve yourself for a month to be able to enjoy a meal more?

No Time.

Who gave you the time in the first place?

Fear of Slackness in Confession.

329 out of 349 students state that frequent Communion has made their conscience more sensitive.

Lack of Appreciation.

In eternity there will be only two places to appreciate -- Heaven and Hell. If you haven't appreciation, get it!

Lack of Will Power.

You need will power if you are going to save your soul.
