Homer Nods!

Don't blame the printer for omission of Badin Hall from the Adoration List. It was the editor's fault.

Culpa Vacat!

And don't blame the editor. Badin Hall's religious fervor has not thrust its self upon his attention this year.

Non Nobis.....

Above all, don't blame Badin. Badin is a Sophomore hall, and Sophomores, as has been noted, are exposed to mental poise.

What is Mental Poise, and How Does it Work?

The average Freshman is willing to accept an education. He believes what he is told.

The average Sophomore believes he has an education already (especially if there are any Freshmen around, as in Badin). He doesn't hear what you tell him.

The average Junior settles down to learn something. He begins to listen. The average senior becomes what he is going to be in later life. He works either to learn all he can before he leaves, or to get by on the last lap.

A Practical Example of Mental Poise.

ON the last Religious Survey there were answers from 33% of the Freshmen, 20% of the Sophomores, 30% of the Juniors and 27% of the Seniors.
