

Religious Bulletin

April 1, 1927.

The Sinner's Feast Day.

Today is the red-letter day on the calendar of the sinner. Wisdom consists in choosing the best means to attain the end desired. Folly is the opposite of wisdom. Heaven is man's last end; the grace of God is the means to that end. Let sinners celebrate.

The Adoration.

A junior states on his questionnaire that he has at last found out what the card is. If he will tell some of his friends, and let them read the note at the bottom of the card, perhaps we can keep the sanctuary filled today.

Which Pamphlet?

The first two hundred and thirty questionnaires have been checked over on the question as to which pamphlet has made most impression. The results follow:

Perseverance.....	43
Neglect of Divine Calls and Warnings.....	32
Your Son's Education.....	16
Ideals of Youth.....	14
The Religious Bulletin.....	10
You and Yours.....	7
Temptation is Not Sin.....	5
How to Make a Good Confession.....	3
Mental Sufferings of Our Lord in the Passion	3

Other pamphlets mentioned were: Jesus Pleads for My Love, Why Should I Be Moral? The Little Flower, The Dark Beyond, Chesterton's Why I am a Catholic, Stevenson's Father Damian, Can Catholics Be Masons, Whom God Hath Joined, Conquest of Life, The Acceptable Time, My Changeless Friend, Is One Church as Good as Another, Christ or Chaos, The Church and the Sex Problem, The Religious Survey, Supernatural Merit, Conformity to the Will of God, The Passion of Our Lord, Is there Salvation Outside the Church? Christian Science and Catholic Teaching, The Message of the Sacred Heart, The Persecuted Church in Mexico, A Thought a Day for Lent, What Wouldst Thou Have Me to Do? Frequent Communion for College Men, Saint Rita, Why Catholics Have Parochial Schools.

Look over the list and pick out a bit of reading matter. It will help you to know what other students have found helpful. (Religion class assignments, of course, account for the popularity of certain of the pamphlets listed first; they are the only ones read by the students in some cases.)

Prayers.

Maurice Smith, of Binghamton, N.Y., a graduate of '25, is dangerously ill with pneumonia, with only a slight chance of recovery, according to a telegram from Jerry Morsché's. A student asks prayers for his father, who has been an invalid for several years; a new treatment about to be undertaken promises good hope of success. Paul Cannon writes that his grandmother has sustained a serious injury. A nun who graduated recently from the Summer School asks prayers for her sister who is seriously ill.

Way of the Cross After Benediction.

Since the Way of the Cross cannot be held while the Blessed Sacrament is exposed on the altar, it will be deferred this evening until after Benediction. The whole service will be finished in time for the Adversities of 1927.
