Extra! Notre Dame Joins The Conference.

The last barrier to social recognition by the Big Ten has been removed. Notre Dame will have a pyjama parade. Now we can have all the dates we want with the coeds. Goody! Goody!

Later: Leave your pyjamas at home; the big feature has been called off. Notre Dame returns to her state of native originality. Somebody's always taking the joy out of life.

Great News From the Hospital.

The latest report from the bedside of Frank Gallagher is as follows: "Temperature 100, pulse 88; everybody is thrilled to death at his improvement." Since Wednesday morning the doctors have given him a chance to live; now they say he has a good chance. It's just another of those things that happen when you bless a person with a relic of St. Therese, the Little Flower. But Frank still needs a heap of prayers. The football squad is making a triduum for him; would that we could say as much for the social squad of the University.

The Tin Is In.

One hundred dollars went forth to Fr. Molinie yesterday, to keep off the winter snows. That ought to roof one room for him; he is praying hard for the rest. Our pledge has been kept, even if it took six weeks to make it. The collection Tuesday came to $101; it finished off the fund for the tin roof and started the fulfillment of the pledge for a Catechists' Home in one of the missions from Peña Blanca, New Mexico. All we need to finish out the hundred for this charity is $25 -- and the accountants are trying to monopolize this. Of course, if you want to go ahead and furnish the whole $200 needed for this work you are free to do so.

Visits Today.

The Blessed Sacrament is exposed all day. Make your adoration and your visits; offer them for the Poor Souls and for Frank Gallagher.

Start Your Novena Again Tomorrow.

The postponement of examinations makes it possible for some of the laggards who put off their Novena before Examinations to make it before they start. There remain nine days before the 14th.

Birthday Greetings.

Spiritual bouquet cards for birthday and feast day greetings are now on hand in 141 Sorin. The proper greeting is a spiritual one.

More Prayers.

Fred Haw's father is critically ill; Eddie Mahan, of the Chemistry Department, asks prayers for his little son who has suffered a serious accident; three students wish a remembrance for relatives who are ill, and two for deceased relatives; four special intentions and two acts of thanksgiving are requests of one student; three other special intentions are recommended. M. Hardaker has received word that his mother is not recovering as she should after an operation.
