For The Team.

The S.A.C. very thoughtfully took the initiative yesterday in suggesting that today's Holy Communion be offered for the coach, who is suffering severely from sciatic rheumatism, and tomorrow's for the team. Don't forget the coach tomorrow, either. Keep him in all your prayers, and offer some mortifications for his recovery; they hurt, so they help. Sciatica also hurts -- intensely; take some of it on yourself.

St. Christopher is patron of the game. The name means "Christ-bearer," and Tuesday's Bulletin showed you how the team carries out the significance of the name.

The Mass for the team tomorrow will be in the church at 6:25 a.m. Make sure of confession by going today or tonight.

Confirmation.

The students who are to be confirmed at St. Joseph's Church, Mishawaka, this evening, are given the following final instructions:

1. Be in the state of grace; that is, go to confession if you need to;
2. Wear your Sunday clothes;
3. Be on hand at the church at 7:00 p.m. and report there to Father Doremus for a card bearing your name.

The day should be spent in prayer and recollection, to be more worthy of the Holy Ghost Who comes to you in this Sacrament.

Undo This Heartless Act.

Attention has already been called to the vandalism that marked the opening of school, when store rooms were rifled of furniture. Among the articles missed by Prof. O'Grady were some diaries of his brother, who died in France, and an album of family photographs. If these are still intact, they may be returned to Dr. O'Grady through the office of the Prefect of Religion, which is open and unoccupied between 6:15 and 7:00 morning and evening. If they have been destroyed, a note to this effect will be appreciated, in that it will end the search for them.

Another Life In Danger.

Max Conrad, of Winona, Minnesota, who is registered to return to Notre Dame in February, was critically injured Sunday, according to a dispatch from Red Wing, Minn. He suffered a fractured skull when he attempted to rescue a woman passenger from the propellor of his plane, from which she had just alighted. He was a student here in summer school two years ago, and was a frequent visitor to the University ever since. He always received Holy Communion in the Sorin chapel on his visits here, and was intent on finishing his education at Notre Dame. Pray hard for him. He is a good Notre Dame man.

"Just Facts."

A homely little poem, bearing this plain title, tells the story of a boy who thought he could sin and get away with it. He wrote the poem and sent it back to his old school in the hope, he said, that it would do some good to some one "who is not so stubborn as I was when I was there." You will find copies of it at the rack. Send them to such friends as need them.

Keep Your Head.

If you are in any danger of losing your head if victory comes tomorrow, get a copy of Tuesday's Bulletin and keep it before you these days. Copies are at the rack.
