Join in Novena, Masses and Communions, starting tomorrow to Poor Souls for Dick

Special Mass and Novena for Dick Sullivan.

Dick Sullivan lies in St. Joseph's Hospital paralyzed from the neck down, excepting in the upper arms and shoulders. Since Sunday his head has been harnessed to the head of the bed. And his bed has been tipped downward towards the foot so as to keep traction on his spine.

He can't turn his head an inch to one side or the other. Pains constantly shoot through his shoulders and arms.

He is conscious, and he thinks, thinks. Will I ever be able to walk?...Is there any hope that the use of my body will come back to me?....Am I likely to lose consciousness?....What chance have I to live?

Then he turns his worries into prayers...Mary, conceived without sin, pray for me!... Jesus, Mary, and Joseph, be my protection!...

Please, Nurse, massage my arms....Give me just a sip of water.

"The fellows out at school are all asking for you, Dick. They're up to Mass and Communion these mornings to help you through."

His eyes open, and close. He frowns slightly in restraint. "Please, Father, thank all the fellows for me."

A special Mass in the main church tomorrow morning at 6:25 will start a novena for Dick. Confessions will be heard at the Mass, but if you wish to go to Confession, please do , if possible, tonight, so that the confessionals will not be overcrowded in the morning. Then continue for eight more days, hearing Mass and receiving Holy Communion each morning in your own hall.

Now Ready.

A new service is at your disposal. It is a free, circulating library (to supplement the general University library) of 104 of the best modern Catholic books. And we mean best.

Look them over in the Prefect of Religion's Office, 117 Dillon Hall, any morning between 7 and 12, or any evening from 8:15 to 10.

You may choose any book available and take it to your room and read it at your leisure --providing your leisure lasts no longer than two weeks.

Mr. Sheed (of Sheed and Ward), who has several times lectured here, kindly granted the discount that made it possible to put these books at your disposal.

Why Aren't More Parents Like This?

"Dear Father:

"I am sending you this spoon which I took from the cafeteria at Notre Dame as a souvenir. I did not think that this was stealing but when I showed it at home my parents informed me that it was, and therefore I am returning it to you.

"I am sorry to have been so thoughtless"

And why aren't there more persons in the world with the delicate good sense of this young lady?

PRAYERS: (deceased) father of Rev. Richard Murphy, C.S.C., Ill, mother of Miss Helen M. Cane, Santa Barbara, California; Fred Weidner; Norman Duke; John Singler; Jack Reed; Leona Weidner; Matt Gonring (Dillon); Joe McGuire (St. Ed's), appendectomy.
