Private Mass for Rock at 8
at his shrine in Dillon; request of Gogebic Range Club.

Tomorrow Morning for Rock!

It will be five years tomorrow since the awful tragedy of Bazaar, Kansas. Rockne is dead! How that news, five years ago, shot across the world! Newsboys, waifs, shut-ins, grown men and women of distinction and affairs, broke down and wept shamelessly!

The great Rockne, idol of a nation, had been crushed to dust,

When Father Charles O'Donnell, distinguished President of Notre Dame, shook with grief in the pulpit, during his marvellous funeral sermon, sorrow reached its crisis.

New sons of Notre Dame now claim the campus, but the memory of Rockne lives on. Tomorrow morning the great Rock will receive again a testimonial from the Notre Dame student body. In the church, from which he was buried, all students will attend a Requiem Mass at 6:25 and receive Holy Communion for the repose of his soul. Go to Confession tonight if necessary. And everybody out for Rock in the morning!

Cooperation, Please!

Questionnaires for the new students' survey are coming off the press. They will reach the Halls tomorrow. Please take a copy, fill it out immediately, and drop it into the box provided in your Hall.

Only a week remains before the Easter holidays. And all questionnaires should be in before you leave. Fill out your questionnaire without delay!

This Week for Should-Have's.

.....I should have done more during Lent.....I should have stuck by my Ash Wednesday resolutions.....I should have gone to Mass and Holy Communion every morning as I had planned.....I should have made the way of the cross and said the rosary every day....I should have stayed out here on the campus instead of trotting in to town... I should have...

Passiontide, most solemn commemoration of Christ's sufferings and death, started yesterday. Only two weeks of Lent remain, little more than one week here on the campus.

Start now to make up for what you should have done during Lent. What's left of Lent is little enough, you know.

Thy Neighbor.

Think no harsh thoughts of him though he may look
So cold and proud, thou canst not see his heart,
And those hard lines--O they may be a book
Where God delights to read a saint's high art!
Speak not unkindly though his words be short,
Seal thou thy lips upon the quick retort,
Deal gently with him though his way be gruff,--
May not some thorn be turning in his side?
O every one's a diamond in the rough,
Or Christ had never been the Crucified! (--F.P. McKeon.)

Flood Relief.

Serin comes through with $6; St. Joseph's Farm with another $6. Total now $31.45.
Make it at least $50. Hurry!
