Easy Money.

(Ill! Fr. Will Carey)

In The American Magazine recently appeared a question which any of you should be able to answer and answer well enough to pick up a little coin. The American Magazine says:

From a woman reader in Chicago comes a letter which poses a vital problem of today so vividly that we are printing it in full:

My son, a freshman in college, spent last week end at home with us. Naturally we talked a lot about his new life and work, and he told me he was studying history, chemistry, French, economics, and English literature.

"Don't you," I asked, "take any course in religion?"

He looked at me with amazement. "Religion?" he said. "I wouldn't take religion any more than I'd take Greek or Sanskrit. The idea is to study just what will be useful later."

I let it go at that, because I'm not the sort of mother who likes to press a point, but what he said has been on my mind ever since. Is religion, really, as dead as Greek? Doesn't it have as much relation with life today as economics or chemistry? Aren't we taking a dangerous course if we neglect religion in educating our young people? What do you think?

Perhaps you readers (continues The American Magazine) have an answer for our correspondent. For the best letter of not more than 300 words on What Is Religion's Place In The Modern World, And Why? we will pay $100; for the second best letter, $50; for the third best, $25; and for the next five best, $5 apiece. Address all letters to RELIGION, The American Magazine, 250 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. No letters can be considered after November 5th, and none returned.

So, there, gentlemen-- especially those of you who are hard up, who can't scrape up enough cash for the Cotillon or Prom or Ball, or those of you who have a few debts to pay-- there is your chance to make some easy money. Sit down and write. And good luck!

Who'll Volunteer?

Several up-and-coming freshmen are needed to augment the new Commission for Decent Literature which is launching its fall campaign-- stopping NO SMUT! up to 100,000 copies. Let those interested drop into Father Gartland's office tonight or tomorrow.

The Catholic Digest.

Joe Perkins at #1 Morrissey Hall has charge of THE DIGEST on campus. Assisted by an able corps, he will see that you're able to lay hold of this precious monthly as soon as it comes out. At present he has the October number on hand. Drop in after meals.

George Belting Thanks You.

Doctors a year ago said George wouldn't last the year. Saturday he enjoyed the game as much as all of you did. He credits his victory over T.B. largely to your generous prayers. He asks you to join him in thanking Our Lady. Mike Shannon says ditto. Jack Coughlin of Minot, North Dakota, now back in school, says double the ditto. It surely means something to benefit from Bulletin prayers; prayers from the lips of tens of thousands! Form the intention of offering one Hail Mary daily for those who are listed for prayers in the Bulletin. Your charity someday will merit the same prayers for you, and perhaps you will need them badly.

PRAYERS: (Deceased) Cyril J. Finnerty (Scranton); Adolf Bremer, Sr.; sister of Phil Fritz, '39; (Ill) brother of Fr. John McGinn, C.S.C.; grandfather of Harry Hofstetter (B-F); Mrs. Tagney; Msgr. Jos. O'Brien (Charleston, S.C.); Mrs. Jos. Hayden; 4 sp. ints
