May Devotions.

Tomorrow evening at 7:00 and 7:30 there will be May Devotions. The sermon on Our Lady will be preached by Fr. Robinson, C.S.C., who gave the Lenten sermons which you enjoyed so much.

With this balmy weather there is a temptation to get the wanderlust and to skip studies and religious services. The month of May is, however, all the more reason for attendance at Benediction, which is required, incidentally. This is for the particular notice of sophomores and freshmen. If you're afraid it will interfere with your work, attend generously, devoutly, and offer up your work for that evening to Our Lady and her Son. You'll go back and do better work then; it will be a prayer.

What Think You of Yours?

Pastors all over the country report that on Mother's Day in recent years the number of Communions equals or exceeds the number on the two great feasts of Easter and Christmas. That shows what people generally think of their mothers.

If you have the proper regard for your mother, you are now making the Novena for her. If you are not doing that, the very least you can do is to offer Holy Communion for her on Sunday. You will certainly feel cheap if you see the rest of the school at the rail and you are one of the few holding back. So if you have an obstacle to Holy Communion on your conscience now, get it off before next Sunday.

Adorers.

As expected, the list of adorers for May Adoration is not large. There are some weak periods for which few have signed up. Please be faithful to the period that you picked, and especially during the following weak periods: Wednesday, 8:30-10:00, 2:30-4:00. Thursday, 10:00-12:00, 3:30-4:00. Friday, 8:00-10:00 and 2:30-3:00. Those who did not sign up, but promised to make some period, please note these periods and make your Adoration then, if possible.

World, not Campus, Politics.

The editors of The Review of Politics invite you to a symposium on Changes in the Contemporary World, on Thursday, May 8th, with the following program:

3:30 P. M. Eng. Bldg. Auditorium	Opening Words	Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C.
	Power Politics Today	Mr. Waldemar Gurian.
	Evolution of Conservatism in Contemporary France	Mr. Yves Simon.
