Do You Rise After a Fall?

A research doctor at Cornell University has been studying the following case in reference to fatalities in air accidents.

"A woman, aged 42, 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 125 pounds, jumped from a sixth floor and fell 55 feet onto fairly well packed earth in a garden plot, landing on the left side and back. At the time the body struck the ground, it was travelling at a velocity of 54 feet per second or 37 miles per hour. She made a depression in the ground about four inches deep.

"There was no evidence of material injury or shock or loss of consciousness. The superintendent of the building reached the victim immediately after she struck the ground. She raised herself on one elbow and said, 'Six stories and not hurt'."
