NOTRE DAME SPIRIT

No one has ever defined adequately the "Notre Dame Spirit." It can't be done, because too many elements go to make it up. One ingredient of the Spirit is the comradeship that arises from life on the campus, from playing and praying with one another, from pulling together on a team or as rooters from the sidelines and from struggling for knowledge in the same classrooms.

Once a year Notre Dame men everywhere recapture the spirit of the campus. It's called Universal Notre Dame Night. Little groups gather to recall old times on the campus and to speak about old friends. The renewal of comradeship is invigorating and most satisfying, and it serves as a reminder of what can be forgotten in the workaday world: that the simple, good things of campus life really make life worth living.

John H. Neeson, '03, of Philadelphia, former trustee of the University, now deceased, was the founder of Universal Notre Dame Night. Every year since 1924 Notre Dame alumni and former students have been keeping this celebration. This year the day will be kept on Monday, April 29.

When Mr. Neeson was a student he organized the first Philadelphia Club on the campus. So it is fitting that the Club lead the way in showing the students now they can keep the day. The members of the Philadelphia Club have all the deceased alumni and former students in mind, and they are going to assist at Mass and receive Holy Communion in Sorin hall chapel Monday for these men.

Every student should follow this example and hear Mass and receive Holy Communion Monday for one another and for all living and deceased Notre Dame men.

The Bengal Bouts on Monday night in the gym should remind you of the "universal" element of Notre Dame Night. Bengal is a section of India where Notre Dame men, priests and brothers are working for the conversion of souls. By supporting the Bouts you are helping the missions and showing the Notre Dame Spirit to those living on foreign soil.

May At Notre Dame.

Here is the program that the Catholic student follows during May, the month of Mary. Visit to the Grotto. Once a day the student should bend his knee at the campus shrine of Our Lady. She never forgets her Grotto devotees. The students who have not yet formed the habit of stopping for a prayer or to light a candle is missing an intimate part of life on the campus.

Period of Adoration. Our Blessed Mother is pleased by devotion to her Divine Son. Store up graces and favors this month through Adoration which will run through the entire month, beginning May 1. Sign up for at least one half-hour period of adoration each week with the student-cavasser who will stop at your room within a few days. A card reminding you of the day and hour of your adoration will be left at your door each week.

Hymnsinging. One of the most popular May devotions is the singing of Marian hymns at the Grotto nightly during the month after supper. So don't linger in the caf these nights. Head for the Grotto, and bring your friends with you.

Frequent Communion. Receive Holy Communion daily in honor of Our Lady and thereby conquer your particular weakness.

PRAYERS: Sister Agnes Ann, CSC, is dying in the infirmary at St. Mary's. She asks for a remembrance in your prayers. Say one NOW for her.
