DIS & DAT

or

(The weekend at a glance by Ivanhoe Hawkshaw)

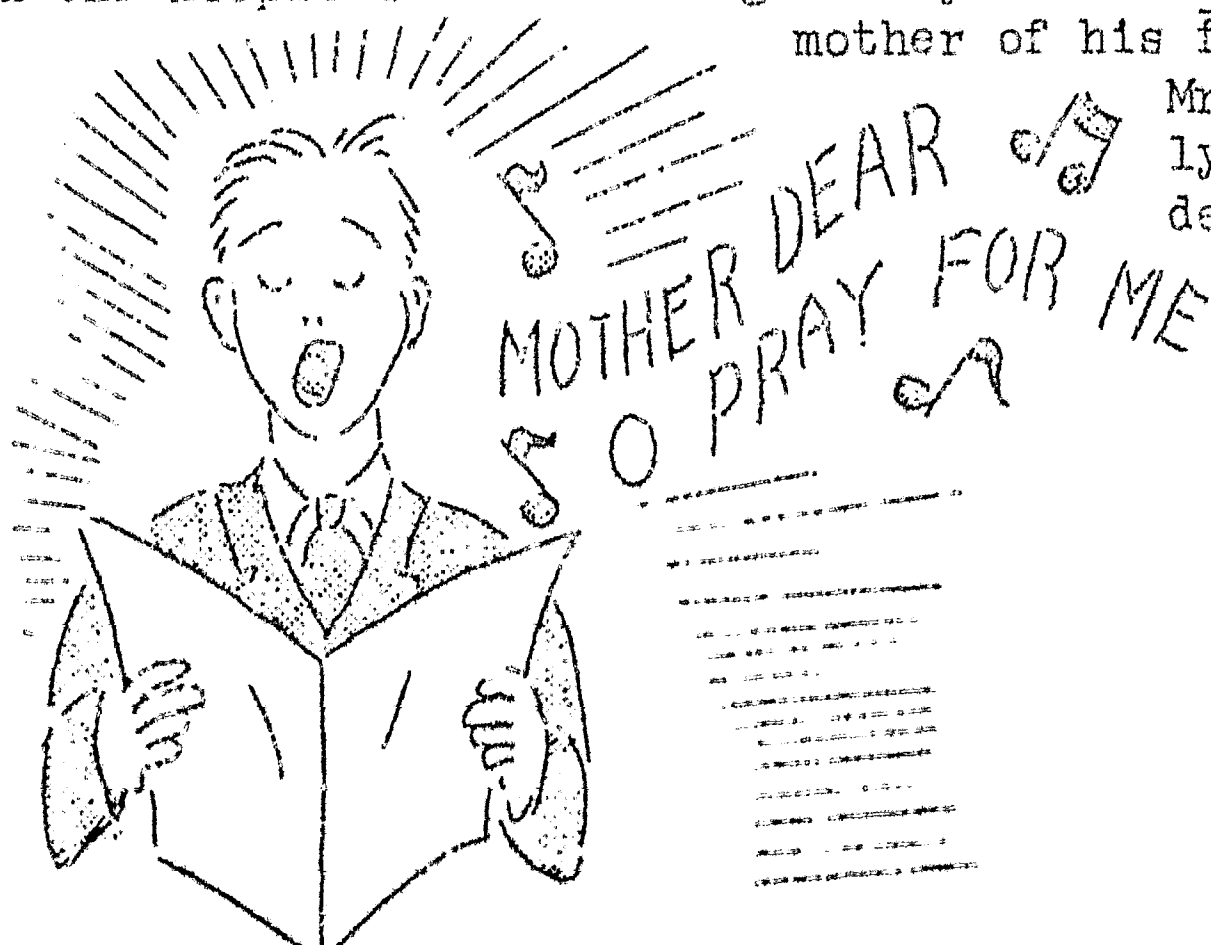

Tarzan over in St. Eds hall was the No. 1 pain-in-the-neck for the week. Attired in shorts only, he sat before an unshaded window where all visitors could look in. Think, gentlemen, think, there is a virtue called modesty. . . . .
Not so hot, the singing of the first hymn at Benediction last Sunday night. We'll try the same piece again at the nightly singing at the Grotto during May. . . . .
The cannibals are loose again. They dropped two empty ice cream containers on the path in front of the church. A fine mess for visitors and students to see . . . . .
What's that the priest sings after Benediction? "Cor Mariae Immaculatum" (Immaculate Heart of Mary). The student response is "ora pro nobis" (O Pray for us). Why not say it when troubled by thoughts of impurity? . . . . .

Shamefully low was the number of Communion last Sunday; only 887 for the entire campus. That's a disgrace when you consider that about 2000 students attended Mass. About one-third of the congregation missed a chance of a life-time. . . . .
And don't say you can't keep the fast. Daylight saving gives you a break. 1:00 A.M. is now the deadline for beginning the fast. . . . .
There won't be any eating or drinking in heaven. No fooling! It's going to be a dull place during weekends up there for the boys on liquid diet. Why not try the pledge and get in shape for heaven. . . . .
Bengal Bouts tonight. See you there. In the gym. . . . .

Prayers.

This note is from Bob Rossiter, the partially blind student who was graduated from Sorin hall and Notre Dame last semester: "I went to the doctor a week ago. He told me I have a chance to regain some of my sight. I've prayed all my life for this, and I would like you to pray for me now too. The doctor I go to takes care of Cardinal Spellman, and he really is quite a man. He said he didn't know how much sight I would get back, but that he would study my case and let me know the next time I visit him which is May 8, my mother's birthday."

The mother of Matt Siedlecki, president of the Veterans Club last semester, died a few days ago. Bud Mulvey of B-P last semester, is at home in Brooklyn still recovering from a serious operation performed over two months ago. Grattan Stanford and John O'Brien, both trustees of the University died last week. The husband of Helen Connor, manager of the Huddle, was killed in the recent train tragedy. The grandmother and aunt of John Nolan of Alumni are ill. Brother Justin, CSC is still in the hospital and is doing fairly well. John Suty of Lyons asks prayers for the mother of his friend, Father John Zubak. The cousin of Mr. Dooley of the Alumni Office died recently. The father of Brother Ilmo, CSC is also dead.

O Mary, our hope, have pity on us.
