Late Mass daily,
7:20 A.M. in Dillon
hall chapel.

A Meditation.

To crib is to cheat.
To crib is to lie, claiming that your work
is your own when it's not.
All cheating and lying are sins.

To aid another during an exam is to help him become a cheater and liar.
This cooperation in evil is also a sin.

God does not love the cheater.
God does not love the liar.
Therefore, if you love God, you won't cheat,
nor cooperate in dishonesty.

After the sin is all over, the cheater even hates himself. He thinks himself pretty small, and he's right.
He knows he is developing a bad trait that will backfire later in life and hurt him,
and again he is right.

Honesty is the best policy for time and eternity.
Cheaters are despised in business and social life.
The cheater is a weak man, because he hasn't the courage to face possible embarrassment.

Well, what's your attitude towards the approaching exams?

Are you going to crib? or cheat?
Now is the time to resolve to be honest.
God wants it.
