"With all the stress on better attendance at October adoration, I've been wondering what's happened to a really edifying tradition associated with public exposition in former times here. When I first came in '46, it was a common sight to see many fellows at adoration vested in cassock and surplice kneeling on priedieus."

Answer: We don't know what's happened to the tradition either. If it hasn't been stressed enough that official adorers should be vested in cassock and surplice (obtained from the sacristy), we oblige you herewith.

"What can be done with a foul mouth?"

Answer: If it's not your own, tell him to sharpen up. If you're not big enough, take a varsity tackle with you. It's not hard to look into a foul mouth and see that he is chicken. His incessant chatter is his adolescent attempt to conceal an inferiority complex. Vulgar braggertism is a normal reaction to ill-starred post-puberty experiences with "guys in the know" whose profanity and crude sexism, they think, make them "high caliber pistols" about town. The fellow who is morally tough in the right sense, who can punch you in the nose when necessary, doesn't go around telling the neighbors. Drunks are ashamed of their drunkenness--they don't relish bragging about it. Sickening boasts about impurity and "experiences" with weak-willed women are not made by victims of such lust. Evil prattle is the defence mechanism of warped mentalities who surmise fancied excursions in mortal sin makes a man a man. If you can't correct the poor simps--pray for them. The boys you have in mind may never have had a chance before to meet young men who are clean-minded, clean-spoken --men who are decent with the decency they learned from virtuous mothers and fathers.

Prayers: (deceased) father of Fr. Dolten; relative of Bill Delaney (Wal); wife of Professor Barrett. Ill: grandmother of Bill Delaney; 3 sick persons; sister of J. Springer (Ba); mother of Fred Fox (Sor). Special intentions--12.
