". . . And The Greatest Of These Is Charity."

Certain students never fail to answer appeals for prayers and Communion for deceased persons. Ten days previous to the Novena for Poor Souls the Bulletin propagandized the novena of Masses to be celebrated for your deceased relatives and friends.

That you deposit your lists of deceased in the Poor Souls' boxes was announced at all Masses, Sunday, November 5. 321 lists out of a possible 5000 lie on the altar where these nine Masses are currently being celebrated.

Why can't we all have charity? Charity begins at home, it is true, but why does it stay there? What's done is done. Atone for your neglect, begin your own novena, hop to it tomorrow. Some day you'll be a beggar in purgatory pleading for rosaries, Masses and Communion from big-hearted Notre Dame students of another generation.

Children Barred.

A news report from Los Angeles, where families with children find it difficult to rent, states that 45% of all landlords barred children. This heartless situation is not restricted to California's Los Angeles (the City of Angels!). Other cities in this "land of plenty" are similarly infected.

It would be worthwhile for such landlords to turn back eighteen pages of their yearly ledgers and recall The Depression--the Bust that followed the Boom. Numberless families were on relief and had to be fed by public agencies and charitable organizations.

A report of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of Woonsocket, R.I.,--during the early days of the Depression '30's--on the size of the families it had been feeding made the circuit of Catholic journals. According to The Ligurian it was disclosed that the size of the 1999 families taken care of were as follows:

13 children	2 families	6	89
12	6	5	119
10	5	4	192
9	21	3	263
8	42	2	349
7	60	1	348
No children		493 families

When and if another depression snarls economic life landlords who have rented only to childless couples may well take cognizance of statistics and buy an extra soup ladle for disfranchised tenants.

The so-called "economic argument for birth prevention" is balderdash, Margaret Sanger notwithstanding. The Planned Parenthood Federation of America recently presented her with a $1000 gift for her "noble" efforts in teaching people how to avoid the conception of children. Carolyn Jackson, who writes as Peter Michaels, says in THIS PERVERSE GENERATION: "Propagandists for the Planned Parenthood Association claim that artificial contraception is not a new thing but that it was practiced by all the great civilizations. So it was--just before they went under. . . ."

Aphorism worth remembering: "A common sop to one's conscience is to grow eloquent over the shortcomings of the clergy, but it is doubtful if God will judge us by what the clergy do." -- Dr. Austin O'Malley.

Prayers: (deceased) Joseph McCarthy, '04; John F. Fitzgerald, LL.D., '15. Ill, prayers urgently requested for Harry Medeiros, '51; Thomas (Alu) Desser's 17-year old sister critically ill with ruptured appendix. Special intentions -- 10.
